But we also have foreign advertisers among our clients and they have come to realize that we know thoroughly how to adapt to the new field, the methods that have been successful in their own country. We will mention only one name but we think that will suffice.

PALMOLIVE

Et. & L. DAMOUR

Chefs de Publicité et de Vente

20, rue Vernier, 20 - PARIS (17e)

Telephone : Carnot 34-41, 42, 43 et 44 Telegr. : Damourad-Paris

Apply to us for all information that may interest you. We are at your entire disposal, to explain the intricacies of the French market and to demonstrate the value of our service. Correspondence in your own language.

U. S. ADVERTISING IN THE FRENCH MARKET

(Continued from page F34)

way for any length of time, and we feel they may prefer that their methods be not cited until they have more completely infiltrated the French market.

Lack of success in advertising American products in France can be traced in most cases to the mistake of trying to transplant American methods to France, to reissuing their American advertising, making only a literal translation of the American text. In other cases it has been a case of putting "the cart before the horse," have actually started their advertising campaign before verifying the existence of their market or their exact place in it, before having arranged for their distribution through the usual channels or before making any effort to interest the individual merchants in their line.

"I am inclined to believe," writes Mr. W. T. Demiston, "that the defeat of American advertising campaigns in France should be attributed less to a misapprehension of the mentality of the French buying public than to the advertising copy itself, in the same sense that American advertising is not understood in France.

"That is to say, a product which is extensively advertised is in itself, for the French, of an inferior quality."

This assertion, if taken literally, however, may easily prove fallacious.

Certainly with us, as in the United States and elsewhere, the charlatanism of advertisers has hindered the honest efforts of publicity, but this phase passed out of existence some time ago. We could wish for nothing better than the rapid development in France of American methods of advertising.

To bring about this success we must bring into play all of the necessary principles and enter the field without hesitancy.

Among the various categories which we have already enumerated, let us take one of the very oldest for a brief examination, in order to indicate better than could be done by a long dissertation the best road to follow.

The Libby, McNeill & Libby Company has sold its products in France for ten years. In order to exploit its canned goods in the old world, its first thought was to make a study of the market through a qualified house and to see how these products should be presented after customs duties and other formalities had been complied with.

Then the general manager studied the French sales organizations of houses producing similar products, so that he might approach his problem through the inevitable intermediaries. These first problems disposed of, he proceeded to the actual distribution of the Libby products through various wholesalers, regional agents, representatives and brokers, synchronizing this distribution with his advertising campaign.

In this manner, this organization avoided the natural error of affronting the great army of French consumers. It first discussed the matter thoroughly and then followed the advice of its advertising agent, then established a system of publicity for his products susceptible of assimilation by the brains of those to whom it was addressed.

That advertising system was made up of the following:

1. A poster campaign, utilizing space recommended by local agents.

2. Display space in the regional newspapers, women's magazines and technical publications.

3. Humorous films shown on the screens of the most popular theatres.

4. Free demonstrations in the large grocery stores.

In addition to this, he furnished to retailers free window decorations and special cook books to be given away to customers, thus tying up permanently the interests of Libby with the interests of the merchant who sold the products and in turn with the consumer.

And, especially, Libby did not forget to modify completely the aspect, the form and even the text of these advertising media. He embroidered the themes of the American propaganda with variations to fit the French taste, and created new themes especially applicable to the new clientele. Thus the success of this means of introducing the products was not left to chance.

Following the success of the example set by Libby, the same methods have been used, in the main, by all American firms attaining success in France.

The Waterman fountain pen interests installed decorative displays in show windows. A linotype company founded a house organ and established a school where the operators of its clients were trained. Boyce-Ite printed on its posters and in its advertising the names of its representatives. This company also installed on the roads approaching the large cities the names of the distributors of the products.

Northam Warren Company put on sale sample assortments of Cutex products.

The Tidewater Oil Company gave away a booklet of practical instructions for automobilists.

But whatever the method, all were agreed upon the necessity of changing their methods of sale and of advertising to permit their products to become acclimated to the French market.

That adaptation, without which one risks failure, can only operate with the aid of French technicians, having a profound knowledge of universal principles of advertising and a long experience of the particular clientele.

Commercial legislation, corporative customs, tariff regulations and duties, the network of transportation systems, the wires of distribution, and the antagonisms of trade organizations form in France an inextricable labyrinth with which one must be familiar.

Parliament, the Administration, and the individual, each in their respective spheres, with their own individual preferences, will bewilder an explorer without a guide.

Among our people there exists also a heritage which is apt to confuse the most peaceful invader. Our ancient race came from many things. They are suspicious and not given to enthusiasms as quickly as a young and adventurous race. On the other hand, this clientele once gained is as difficult to lose. It remains faithful in spite of the most alluring offers, until it is proved to them irrefutably that their confidence has been misplaced.

There is the delicate point involving the fact that ingenuous publicity will not suffice. One must know the psychology of the French buyer in order to overthrow his prejudices, to avoid false moves and to avoid alienating his interest.

That is why all American houses, when they come to France, employ the trained men of the country, agents and editors of publicity who know thoroughly the innumerable Parisian and regional newspapers and special publications which circulate throughout the sections which they wish to exploit, and the intricacies of the French market and the mentality of its people.

Without going any further into the details of this complicated problem, we may sum up with this simple formula:

To exploit successfully in France an American product its sales and advertising campaigns must first become naturalized.

Is the moment well chosen to continue to put into practice these principles? Assuredly! Because of the state of exchange the time is particularly ripe for the preparation of a campaign with the greatest chance of success.

As for me, conscious of the shortcomings of this article as I am, I trust that I have demonstrated to the readers of Editor & Publisher, and through them to American business men who may enter the French field, something of the market which awaits them, and I would feel it an honor to have had however small a part in contributing to the progress of international relations; as well as to have contributed to the reduction of the cost of living in my country through any small influence exerted by my loyal and energetic concurrence.

EXCELSIOR

THE ONLY ILLUSTRATED DAILY IN FRANCE

A Renault adv. in a recent issue of Excelsior is the recognized medium to reach the elite of French Society throughout the country.

With a net circulation of 200,000, it commands exceptional selling power because it is read by the class of clientele which can buy.

EXCELSIOR was one of the very first newspapers in France to enforce strict discrimination in the selection of its advertisements, thereby gaining the wholehearted approval and confidence of its readers.

If your goods are for the class of people who live in the best districts and drive in the smartest cars, let EXCELSIOR carry your advertising.

We shall be delighted to forward sample copies together with schedule of advertising rates and all complementary information you might require.

Write: Excelsior 20 Rue d'Enghien, Paris (France).

The Greatest Newspaper Published in the French Provinces

LE PETIT MARSEILLAIS

A daily newspaper founded in 1868

Daily Features

News of the entire world
Local News
Maritime Chronicle
Sporting News
Commercial and Financial Quotations
Financial News
Rates of Exchange
Stock Exchanges:
Paris
London
New York
Chicago

Periodic Features

Agricultural Page
Motion Picture Page
Woman's Page
Colonial Page
Sporting Page
Radio Section
Stamp Collectors Section
And others.

Twelve Editions Daily

The best informed newspaper on news of the entire world gathered through its 3,000 correspondents, its special writers, its news agency, its special leased wires and its radio service.

The best edited newspaper because of its competent staff of editors, local and Parisian, including the most renowned French journalists and writers.

The first French daily Newspaper as to the results obtained from advertising.

Its wide distribution covers thirty Departments including Corsica, Algeria, Tunis and Morocco, its various editions appealing to each locality.

Its clientele is of the highest order, embracing a reading group of intelligence and conservatism, ever constant to this newspaper through many years.

Editorial and Administrative Offices:

15 Quai du Canal • MARSEILLES

Advertising Offices:

Either the above address or Agence Havas, 31 rue Pavillon, Marseilles; 62 rue de Richelieu, Paris

DIRECT-BY-MAIL MEDIUM HAS SMALL FOOTHOLD IN FRANCE

By RAY J. G. CLEMANG

Chief of Advertising of Excelsior, Professor at the Superior School of Sciences and Economics, Paris

TO give in a few hundred words even a résumé of direct-by-mail advertising in France would be quite impossible and to attempt to discuss the matter comprehensively would even be pretentious. Consequently the following notes must be considered as only a summary, an impression of the whole situation of this kind of publicity, so much used in the Anglo-Saxon countries.

On the whole, it can be said that in France direct advertising through letters, circulars and catalogues is principally used by firms starting in business without a large capital and having no great means of production.

This does not imply, of course, that they are the only ones to make use of direct-to-consumer publicity, for what is called in France the "Grands Magasins," especially those of Paris, and even one big provincial manufacturer of arms and cycles—an instance almost unique in our country—do millions of francs' worth of business each year through catalogues, either sent periodically or occasionally.

But it is usually the small industrials and retail merchants who attempt to enlarge their market through this kind of publicity. The search for direct business ought to be, logically, the most diffused system of French commercial business, being a country where small business and industry abounds. Three obstacles, however, limit in practice the field of activity of direct postal advertising.

The French spirit is eminently a critical one and in the learned class confidence in "puffing advertisements" is very weak. The character of the French peasant is, by nature, cautious, and so not inclined to believe a word of the offers made to him by people whom he does not know or of the merit of articles he cannot see. The liking for reading is not particularly developed in this class and thus the first difficulty to success of direct-by-mail advertising is presented.

The second difficulty is a matter of geography. The urban centers are near enough to each other, and, existing for centuries, each one of them is a kind of microcosm where all current businesses are represented. The country people go frequently to sell their products in the fairs and markets and take advantage of those occasions to bring back to their homes what they want that could not be found in the small shops of their villages.

The direct publicity by means of letters and circulars has not thus a particularly favorable soil in which to prosper as in newer countries where centers of population are farther removed from each other and communication less easy and rapid.

Finally, since the War, the heavy charges of a nation drained of its life blood, obliged to build anew more than a tenth of its territory destroyed by hostile armies, has forced France, right or wrong, to increase by tremendous proportions the postal taxes on letters, circulars and catalogues, which even before were not in a favorable position for the development of correspondence.

When all this is said, however, it must be admitted that a great many circulars are sent through the French mails. These circulars are often accompanied by small folders, price-lists, etc.; of which the advertising technique is, for the most part, rather rudimentary.

The wine merchants, producers of honey, soap, linen, certain manufacturers of underwear or clothing, jewelry and clockworks, merchants of horticultural and agricultural tools, seeds, etc., are nearly all using the mails as a means of increasing their sales.

Direct-by-mail advertising, it is true, is used, but the whole plan is more often than not very imperfect because the originators have not taken the trouble to study the psychology of the proposition. In this we find a common fault of a great deal of French publicity; namely, the absence of a definite technique, due to the state of mind of the advertiser, who, because he thinks that he knows how to sell his merchandise or his services believes also that he has acquired at the same time the knowledge of how to announce them through the advertising media.

Consequently he does not take enough account of his wording of advertisements nor of the state of mind of the eventual customer, and of the objections that he will have to refute. The advice of an expert on the subject is not asked, which accounts for the failure and insufficient returns in many fields of advertising.

It is not necessary to point out that the large French advertising agencies are endeavoring to remedy this harmful situation and that they are fast meeting with success.

As I am in the mood of a critic and as we are duty bound to tell the truth to our friends, I think it well to point out one of the reasons for the failure that some American and British firms are still undergoing in launching their products on the French market. They do not succeed because they do not know how to present their selling arguments to the French mind.

The use of the catalogue is general. Perhaps there may be a shortcoming in their description of the articles they have to offer and a great lack of illustration, but catalogues are nevertheless fairly widely distributed and not without some effectiveness.

It is unquestionable that but for the World War, and the economic consequences following in its wake, direct-by-mail advertising in France would be vastly more developed at the present time. It is, however, developing, however slowly, and it is to be hoped that within a few years I will be able to write in all sincerity of French advertising by means of letters, circulars and catalogues with the praise I necessarily have for that form of advertising as practiced for so many years by our good friends overseas.

"TOURISM" IN FRANCE WELL PROTECTED

(Continued from page F40)

France to arrange for the reception of her visitors.

In many places, in the mountains, on the seashore, in the neighborhood of smiling landscapes, associations of men of initiative and good will were created. Their sole aim was to make their corner of France attractive and hospitable.

All the "Syndicats d'Initiative"—there are 600 of them—are federated by localities, and these federations are themselves united in a Union of Federations of "Syndicats d'Initiative." Recognized as a public utility, this Union wishes to give to France the means of being the attractive and intelligent mistress of her gracious house.

The miseries of humanity force us, alas, to mention the pitiful caravan of other travelers, the sick.

Science joins its efforts to those of tourism to assure the best care and to give to the watering places and to the mountain resorts a modern equipment. The "Federation Thermale et Climatique et l'Union des Groupments Scientifiques" have undertaken this task. There remains only to the tourist industry to take care of their well being and to procure for them such distraction as may help them to forget their sufferings.

Essentially tourism cannot isolate itself from other economic factors to which it assures important revenues and which must consider its needs and requirements; railroads, navigation companies, local railroads, automobile transports and so forth. It has therefore included their directorates in its own, associating with them the National Association of Hotel Keepers presided over by M. Barrier, who is also president of the International Alliance of Hotel Keepers. Concerned with modern technique, the National Chamber of Hotel Keepers is also the depository of two treasures jealousy guarded, the cuisine and the traditions of French hospitality.

The Unions of Federations of the "Syndicat d'Initiative," the climatic and thermal associations, the National Associations of Hotel Keepers, are thus the essential elements in this new form of tourism, welcome and hospitality.

Better to co-ordinate all the organizations of private initiative the Government has handed over to the National Office of Tourism the task of giving information, notably in the United States.

Administered by a board which has associated with itself all necessary experts, this office has realized in every way the program which the law outlined for it. It has created at 152 Boulevard Haussmann in Paris a National Bureau for the information of tourists. The office has also founded branch offices in the Capitals, in ports and on boats to inform the foreign public and to make known to it the beauties of France. L'Office Francais du Tourism has been opened in New York at 342 Madison Avenue.

Furthermore, the National Office of Tourism encourages progress in the installations of resorts of all kinds, and it distributes important funds gained from the visitors' tax. It has also recently taken part in the creation of the National Credit for Hotel Keepers.

Finally the groups of Tourism in the Chamber and the Senate defend the interests of Tourism before the Parliamentary assemblies.

Such is the contribution of the Government.

The organization of Tourism in France has thus as its object to facilitate traveling in all its forms, to offer visitors the maximum of comfort, and above all, to show them that, faithful to its traditions, France remains ever a most hospitable nation whose chief care is to utilize every favorable means for the rapprochement of peoples.

HENRI DUMAY. JR.

Henri Dumay, Jr.

Henri Dumay, Jr., among the French delegates, is director of advertising of Le Quotidien, morning newspaper. He is the representative of District 17 and is distinguished in Paris for his contributions to the new idea in advertising.

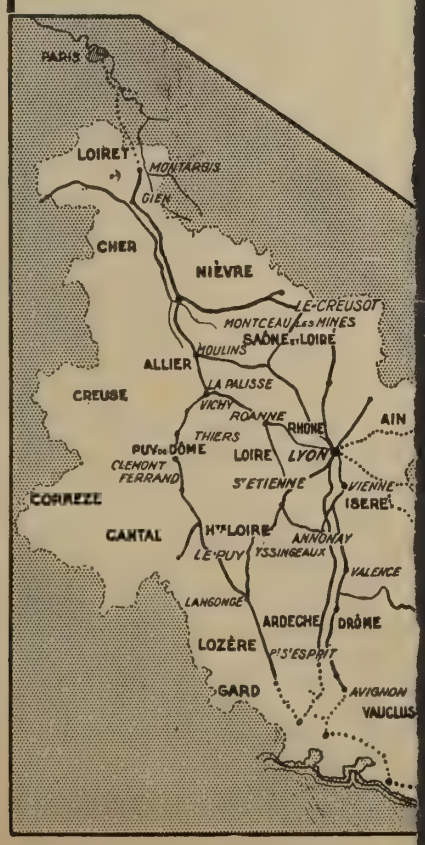
"L'ECLAIREUR DE NICE et du SUD-EST"

The leading morning newspaper of South Eastern France. Special American and English Section during the Winter Season.

"L'ECLAIREUR DU SOIR"

The Evening Edition issued every day at five o'clock.

"L'ECLAIREUR DU DIMANCHE"



The Illustrated Weekly Magazine of the Côte d'Azur.

"L'ECLAIREUR AGRICOLE & HORTICOLE"

An Agricultural and Horticultural Monthly.

General Offices: 27-29, Ave. de la Victoire, NICE.

Cliché VENDRE
L
Les négociations avec les Ri sont rompues

PARIS
LOIRET
MONTARGIS
GIEN
CHER
NIÈVRE
LE-CREUSOT
MONTCEAU-LES-MINES
SAÔNE-ET-LOIRE
MOULINS
ALLIER
LA PALISSE
CREUSE
VICHY
ROANNE
AIN
THIERS
RHÔNE
PUY-DE-DÔME
LOIRE
LYON
CLERMONT FERRAND
ST-ETIENNE
VIENNE
CORRÈZE
ISÈRE
CANTAL
Hte-LOIRE
ANNONAY
LE-PUY
YSSINGEAUX
VALENCE
LANGOGNE
ARDÈCHE
DRÔME
LOZÈRE
P.-S.-ESPRIT
GARD
AVIGNON
VAUCLUSE

REGIONAL PRESS A FRENCH POWER

Circulated Among More Than 30,000,000 Readers — Excellent News Service — Greetings from Director Guillaume

By Eugene Guillaume

Director of "Reveil du Nord"
President of the Syndicat des Grands Quotidiens Regionaux

The traveller who spends much time in France is struck by the very individual characteristics of the various regions which form the country.

In the north, industrial and commercial wealth, immense cultivated plains with populous cities; in the west, great breeding centers, prosperous countrysides; in the southwest the celebrated vine culture enriches the region where picturesque old cities attract the tourist; from Marseilles to Nice the sun of the Orient enchants the onlooker along the famous Cote d'Azur; at Lyons, metropolis of silk, industrial activity begins again and extends as far as the frontiers of the East, across the vinelands of Champagne, the Alps and the Vosges, with mountains as impressive as Switzerland. This variety has created in France an old and extremely powerful regional press which is circulated among more than thirty millions of readers.

The centers of this regional Press are, for the North, Lille; for Normandy, Rouen; for Brittany, Rennes, Brest and Nantes; for the South West, Bordeaux, Toulouse and Montpelier; for the Midi, Marseilles and Nice; for the South East and Central part, Lyons, St. Etienne and Clermont-Ferrand; for the East, Nancy and Reims; for Alsace, Strasbourg and Mulhouse; for Lorraine, Metz.

Each one of the great dailies published in these regions is circulated not only in the large cities but also in the smaller localities.

The large regional dailies have offices and information bureaus, modern in every aspect, in Paris. The excellent world organization of the Havas Agency supplies them by special wires with news from America and from the entire world.

Very significant is the confidence which the French population places in these large regional papers. In view of the very original character of each section, readers like to find in their daily paper the news of their province, and reports on their markets, information on business and agriculture, the price of materials, etc.

The confidence of the readers in their regional papers has arisen through the fact that the journals vigorously defend the industrial and commercial interests of each region and that they take a part of first importance before the French Parliament, whose members they often help to name in Departmental elections.

There is something like a family tie between the great regional journals and their readers. As with all my confreres, I frequently find in my editorial correspondence letters in which readers ask me "what is the best brand of binder-reaper" or perhaps one writes "I would gladly buy an American automobile, but is it possible conveniently to procure spare parts?": Unknown readers ask me, as they would ask an old friend, for advice about marriage or about the education of their children.

In the name of the French people, the Syndicate of "Great Regional Dailies," which includes all the most powerful papers of France—excluding the journals of Paris—is happy to salute the Convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World. We retain a very pleasant memory of the visit of 1924 to France.

I beg, therefore, that M. Léon Renier, the most efficient director of the Havas Agency, will carry a cordial handshake from the directors of the great regional daily Press to the delegates meeting in the great city of Philadelphia, home of the illustrious Benjamin Franklin, who was the founder of one of the first regional journals, the "Pennsylvania Gazette."

Le Petit Journal

The oldest of the Great French newspapers

The best informed
The most complete
The most popular of all the newspapers of the World

Le Petit Journal

has its place in every advertising campaign and brings success to every class of product.

Many specialized products (names on request), selling by the millions, were launched only through advertising in

Le Petit Journal

LE PETIT JOURNAL ILLUSTRE, in colors Weekly circulation 450,000
LA MODE - - - - - - - - - Weekly circulation 250,000
LE PETIT JOURNAL AGRICOLE - - Weekly circulation 150,000

Le Petit Journal has been for half a century the favorite Parisian daily of the rural population of France. Dean of the great dailies, pioneer of the Popular Press, Le Petit Journal penetrates into the very heart of the French Provinces, where it established a prestige, confidence and popularity long before the existence of the great Provincial dailies.

Any advertising campaign which does not include LE PETIT JOURNAL is incomplete

The Second Capital of France is at

LYONS

with the adjacent territory of Burgundy, Dauphiné, Savoy, Cevennes, Beaujolais and Charolais. The most widely read, the most appreciated and the most authoritative newspaper in this region is

LYON REPUBLICAIN

Direction and Administration at Lyons: 6 rue Childebert.
Editorial rooms and plant at Lyons: 10 rue Bellecordiére.
Special news bureau at Paris: 8 Boulevard des Capucines (Opera)

Through its high editorial policy, the accuracy of its news service, and the multiplicity of its clientele affords every advertiser the most satisfactory results.

LYON REPUBLICAIN

By advertising space in "Lyon Republicain" you may establish your reputation and introduce your product throughout the entire South East of France.

THE MOST IMPORTANT NEWSPAPER OF CENTRAL FRANCE

published at

CLERMONT–FERRAND

The Former Capital of independent Gaul, the old religious City where the first Crusade was preached

L'AVENIR DU PLATEAU CENTRAL

THE LARGEST CIRCULATION IN "LE PLATEAU CENTRAL"

The best informed · Most extensively read · The most Favored

Because of its distribution throughout the Province of Auvergne advertising in "L'AVENIR DU PLATEAU CENTRAL" is most effective.

This section, one of the most important grain and cattle sections of France, is not served by any other capital and can be reached only through a strong local newspaper. The rubber industry of France is centralized here. The fashionable watering places and tourist resorts of VICHY, Le MONT-DORE, LA BOURBOULE, SAINT-NECTAIRE, ROYAT, CHATELGUYON, NERIS, etc., . . . within a few miles of Clermont-Ferrand and served by this newspaper draw thousands of people from all over the world each year.

All inquiries regarding advertising will receive courteous attention from:

"L'AVENIR DU PLATEAU CENTRAL"

15, rue du Port, Clermont, Ferrand

The Memphis Press is first in daily city circulation

c i t y c i r c u l a t i o n

40,115

The Memphis Press is a Scripps-Howard newspaper

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

ARE YOU GETTING YOUR SHARE

564 IMPORTANT NEWSPAPERS Have Been Made GREATER by The

"WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER"

CHICAGO TRIBUNE News and Features Have Helped Them Win Circulation and Become More Productive Advertising Mediums

No Wonder The Chicago Tribune Stands Supreme in its Own Territory

NO buyer of newspaper advertising space can question the supremacy of the Chicago Tribune in its home territory when he learns of its widespread influence on American journalism.

564 newspapers from coast to coast, among them 64 great metropolitan dailies, regularly buy all or part of Chicago Tribune service. This includes foreign and domestic news, fiction by the world's foremost novelists, cartoons by McCutcheon, drawings by W. E. Hill, comics such as "The Gumps" and "Gasoline Alley," and articles by Dr. Evans, H. L. Mencken, Walter Eckersall, Antoinette Donnelley and other noted authorities on varied subjects.

Why do these newspapers — the outstanding journals of their communities—turn to the Chicago Tribune for aid in creating greater interest among their readers?

Solely because of the Chicago Tribune's astounding growth, both in circulation and advertising lineage, and its known effectiveness in producing results for its advertisers.

The Chicago Tribune
The World's Greatest Newspaper

A Tribute from

PUBLISHERS of many of America's most successful newspapers freely attribute their increased circulation and greater advertising results to reader interest won with Chicago Tribune news and features.

The flattering endorsements reproduced on this page should convince every advertiser that the Chicago Tribune well deserves its title of "The World's Greatest Newspaper."

Doesn't it stand to reason that a newspaper conceded by other publishers to be the source of news and journalistic features of the very highest order of excellence must be overwhelmingly dominant in its home territory?

OF BUSINESS FROM ZONE SEVEN?

St. Louis Globe-Democrat
GLOBE PRINTING COMPANY, Publishers
ST LOUIS.

January 15th, 1926

Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Tower,
Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:

As the leading newspaper of the "49th State" the Globe-Democrat is pleased to acknowledge the superior merits of Chicago Tribune features. Your fiction and comics are of the very highest order of excellence. I believe our readers would be genuinely lonesome without "The Gumps", "Winnie Winkle" and "Gasoline Alley".

That you are entitled to considerable credit for our commanding position in this territory is the verdict of this newspaper and its large clientele of readers.

Very truly yours,
ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT
Joseph J. McAuliffe
Managing Editor

PUBLIC LEDGER
INDEPENDENCE SQUARE
PHILADELPHIA

January 16, 1926.

Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Tower,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

The Philadelphia Public Ledger, which uses "Gasoline Alley", "The Gumps", "Harold Teen" and other comics and features of the Chicago Tribune in the Evening and Sunday editions, receives daily evidence of the interest created among its readers by the excellence of these features.

We feel that these features have assisted us in increasing our circulation in our territory.

Sincerely yours,
Phil E. Ludy
Editor-in-Chief

THE PITTSBURGH POST
THE PITTSBURGH SUN

PITTSBURGH PA.
January 13, 1926

The Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Tower,
Chicago
Illinois

Gentlemen:

It has always been our aim to give our readers the most accurate news and the finest of fiction and features.

We feel the Chicago Tribune wire service and syndicate features have been of tremendous influence in attaining our enviable position in Pittsburgh and surrounding territory.

Very truly yours,
PITTSBURGH POST AND SUN
By A. E. Thurm
Publisher

The Detroit Free Press
MICHIGAN'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER
DETROIT

January 12, 1926

Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Tower,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

The Detroit Free Press cannot praise too highly the masterful wire news and feature service that the Chicago Tribune has contributed to the journalistic world.

It has been of great benefit to our thousands of readers and has assisted us to our present position of supremacy in the great Detroit and Michigan territory.

Very truly yours,
THE DETROIT FREE PRESS
Phil S. Reed
Managing Editor

Men Who Know

Why The Chicago Tribune Dominates Chicago

Remember that when you use the Chicago Tribune you have in one paper the combination of news and features which 564 important newspapers are glad to have if only in part.

That, in a nutshell, explains the unrivaled circulation and influence of the Chicago Tribune in Chicago and the surrounding states of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana.

The Chicago Tribune would appreciate the privilege of making clear to you the remarkable opportunities which await your product in the Chicago territory, and how it can aid you to make the most of them.

Every promise of advertising results will be proved by records established for other advertisers. Ask the nearest Chicago Tribune representative to call at your convenience.

When considering 100000 population cities ~ Your campaign should include ~

BINGHAMTON

The Metropolis of South ~ Central New York

258 FACTORIES | $162000000 IN PRODUCTS | 33000 WORKERS | $63000000 PAYROLL

IN South Central New York the big commercial center is Binghamton. And in Binghamton it is the BINGHAMTON PRESS, published every evening except Sunday, with over 34,000 daily circulation to carry your sales message to consumers.

The national advertiser has the advantage of four other prosperous industrial communities besides Binghamton, which are all a part of this section—Johnson City, Endicott, Port Dickinson and Union. These cities are considered a pa t of Binghamton and their paper is also the BINGHAMTON PRESS. This group of cities has a manufactured output of $162,000,000.

The BINGHAMTON PRESS is known to national advertisers for its unusual reader confidence.

Write us for information about the Merchandizing and Promotion Departments of the BINGHAMTON PRESS and how they will help you secure distribution in this territory.

The JOHN BUDD COMPANY

National Advertising Representatives

9-11 E. 37th Street, New York
Healy Building, Atlanta — Tribune Tower, Chicago
Chemical Building, St. Louis — Higgins Building, Los Angeles
Sharon Building, San Francisco

ALL ADVERTISING RECORDS BROKEN IN MAY BUSINESS

For five years October, 1920, stood as the record month in the history of The News in point of volume of paid advertising; this record was broken in October, 1925, and that new record was again smashed in November, 1925. April, 1926, went ahead of November and now comes May to set another new mark.

Total Volume of Paid Advertising for May, 1926

Local	1,181,194 Lines
Classified	184,996 "
National	325,752 "
Total	1,691,942 "

The newspaper situation in Birmingham is constantly changing—in favor of the increased dominance of The News. For many years The News had had an overwhelming supremacy in volume of paid advertising. The margin is wider today than ever before. The total volume of paid advertising carried by The News in May, 1926, was an increase of approximately 14,000 lines over April, 1926, and an increase of more than 196,000 lines over May, 1925.

For the first five months of 1926, The News has gained more than 733,000 lines of advertising over the same period of 1925, a much larger gain than has been achieved by any other Alabama newspaper.

Only a continuous record of result-producing over a long period of years could achieve the magnificent totals recorded month after month by The News, and only a continuously increasing supremacy in result-producing could have achieved four new records in a period of eight months.

The lowest cost-of-advertising per-dollar-of-results-produced has been for years the consistent achievement of The News, for the advertiser is not interested in the cost of advertising per line; he is interested only in cost per dollar of returns from his advertising.

Millions of Dollars are pouring into Birmingham to be invested in Real Estate and Buildings.

Thousands of People are coming into Birmingham to build homes, to follow their trades and occupations, to establish themselves in new business and commercial enterprises—where opportunity is greater.

The News continues to be a constant, reliable influence in the daily lives of Birmingham citizens.

High Water Mark

Net paid for April

Daily 81,088. City 48,000

Sunday 93,822. City 51,000

The Birmingham News is sold solely on its merits as a newspaper. It has achieved this magnificent total circulation—by producing the best possible newspaper for its thousands of readers to enjoy.

The News Gives to Advertisers

—Complete Effective Coverage

—True Reader Acceptance

—Permanent Prestige

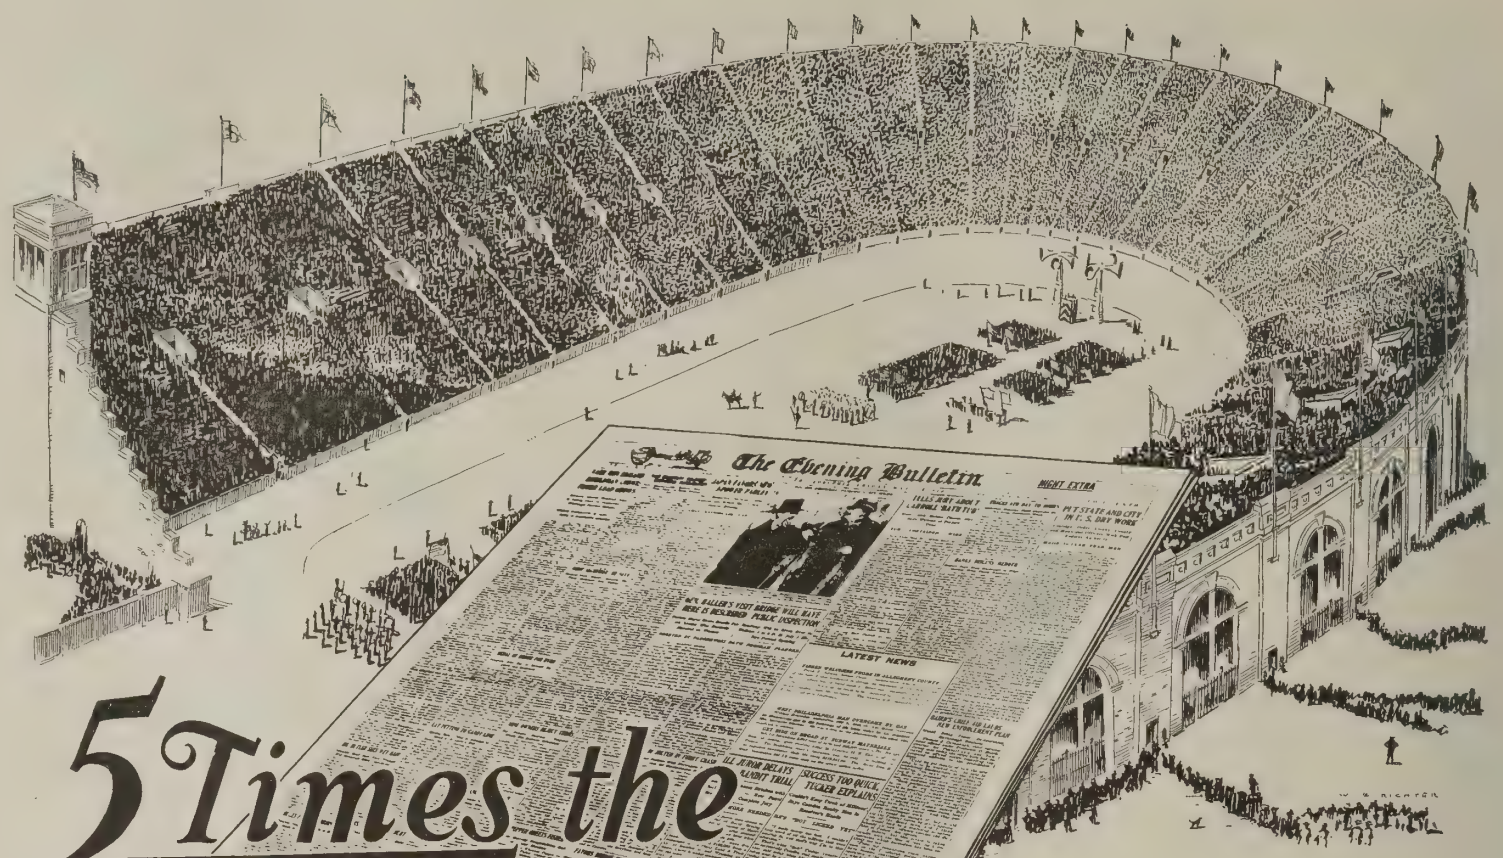
—Results With Profits

Comparative Lineage Report for First Five Months—1926

	NEWS		AGE-HERALD		POST
	1926	1925	1926	1925	1926	1925
Local	5,384,442	4,945,108	2,335,578	2,381,876	1,842,274	1,444,982
Classified	909,580	785,162	630,224	586,362	211,932	118,748
National	1,402,478	1,232,070	628,726	618,674	325,458	261,870
TOTAL	7,696,500	6,962,340	3,594,528	3,586,912	2,379,664	1,825,600
Gain	734,160		7,616		554,064

THE NEWS GAIN IN NATIONAL LINEAGE 1926 OVER 1925, IS 170,408 LINES

The Birmingham News



THE SOUTH'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building, New York City — Waterman Building, Boston, Mass. — Atlantic Building, Philadelphia, Pa. — Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, Jr., Atlanta

5 Times the capacity of the Worlds Greatest Stadium!

Philadelphia's great new Stadium, built for the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition, accommodates 100,000 spectators. Every evening the Bulletin reaches more than five times that many homes in and about Philadelphia.

STAGE your advertising in this vast ampitheatre. It is true that "In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin." The Bulletin is Philadelphia's Newspaper. It has the largest circulation in Philadelphia, Camden and suburbs and the third largest in the United States.

The Bulletin dominates Philadelphia. It offers maximum impression at minimum cost. Associated Advertising Clubs of the World Convention Headquarters are in the Bulletin Building. Ask the Bulletin Advertising Staff to give you facts and figures. Check them up yourself while you are at the advertising convention.

Net Paid Daily Circulation for 1925
553,169 copies

The Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA

PREPARATIONS FOR N.E.A. CONVENTION COMPLETE

More Than 600 Delegates Expected to Attend Annual Meeting in Los Angeles, June 30 to July 2—Lavish Entertainment to Be Provided During Two Weeks' Tour of State

A ROYAL welcome is being planned for the visiting delegates to the forty-first annual convention of the National Editorial Association, meeting in Los Angeles, June 30, July 1 and 2. As a result of the activity of the entertainment committee of the association, which is working through the office of the Southern California Editorial Association, practically every large community in southern California, as well as several cities in the northern part, will be visited by the editors.

Present indications are that between 600 and 700 delegates will attend the convention, many of them bringing their families with them. Two chartered trains will arrive in California from the East on June 28, while many other editors are planning to motor to the convention. Minnesota will head the list with two Pullmans of delegates and their families. Governor Christensen, a publisher, will head this delegation, while Governor Byrd of Virginia, publisher of the Winchester Star, will also attend, as will Gov. Friend W. Richardson of California.

Nebraska will also send a large delegation, according to reports received by Ben H. Read, managing director of the Southern California Editorial Association.

Frank O. Edgecombe, editor of the Geneva (Neb.) Signal, is president of the Association.

The complete N. E. A. program follows:

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30

Morning Session—10:00 o'clock
Convention Hall—Alexandria Hotel

Invocation—James A. Francis, D. D., First Baptist Church of Los Angeles.
Address of Welcome—State of California—Governor Friend W. Richardson.
Address of Welcome—City of Los Angeles—Mayor George E. Cryer.
Address of Welcome—Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce—A. S. Bent, President.
Address of Welcome—Southern California Editorial Association—Frank M. Keffer, President.
Response—Frank O. Edgecombe, President National Editorial Association, editor Geneva (Neb.) Signal.
President's Annual Address—Frank O. Edgecombe.
Appointment of Committees—Audit, Resolutions, Credentials, Officers' Reports, Necrology, Nominations.
Report of Executive Secretary—H. C. Hotaling, St. Paul.
Report of Treasurer—W. W. Aikens, Franklin (Ind.) Daily Star.
Awarding of Membership Contest Prizes—Chief Pirate's Chest—Hon. Harry Byrd, Governor of Virginia, editor, Winchester Evening Star.
12:45 P. M.—Adjournment for Luncheon, guests Ambassador Hotel.

Wednesday Afternoon Session—2:15 o'clock
Ambassador Hotel

Awarding National Editorial Association Trophies—
The Best Editorial Page—Cup offered by Inland Printer, Chicago—G. L. Caswell, managing director, Iowa Press Association, Ames.
Greatest Community Service—Cup offered by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, New York—James W. Brown, New York City.
Front Page Contest—Cup offered by American Printer, New York—Clyde Oswald, New York City.
Best Weekly Newspaper—Cup offered by President Frank O. Edgecombe—Fred Kennedy, Manager, Washington Press Association, Seattle.
Overcoming Difficulties of Placing National Advertising—George W. Cushing, McKinney, Marsh & Cushing, advertising agents, Detroit.
Woman's Opportunity in the Newspaper Field—Miss Marion Clifford, Pottsville (Pa.) Daily Republican.
Report Legislative Committee—Wallace Odell, Chairman, Tarrytown, N. Y.
Winning the Envelope Fight—
4:00 P. M.—Adjournment. Trip to Beverley Hills, guests Beverley Hills Chamber of Commerce for dinner.

THURSDAY, JULY 1

Morning Session—9:30 o'clock

Invocation—M. Howard Fagan, D. D., Wilshire Blvd., Christian Church of Los Angeles.
Shop Talk and Question Box—George W. Marble, Past President N. E. A., Fort Scott (Kan.) Tribune-Monitor, in charge.
An open forum for the informal discussion of craft topics and problems.
12:45 P. M.—Adjournment for luncheon, guests of Los Angeles organizations.

Thursday Afternoon Session, 2:15 o'clock

Illustrated Address—The Physical Appearance of a Newspaper—John E. Allen, Linotype News, New York City.
What the Schools of Journalism Are Doing for the Weekly Newspaper—Prof. Buford O. Brown, School of Journalism, Leland Stanford University, Palo Alto.
"The Big Issue"—Harvey Ingham, Des Moines (Ia.) Register and Tribune.
4:00 P. M.—Adjournment. Visit to Glendale and Pasadena. Guests Pasadena Chamber of Commerce for dinner and evening.

FRIDAY, JULY 2

Morning Session—9:00 o'clock

Invocation—Willsie Martin, D. D., First Methodist Church of Hollywood.
Symposium on Prohibition—J. C. Brimblecom, Past President N. E. A., Newton, Mass.
"What constitutes an Acceptable Weekly Newspaper"—Byron Norrell, Ada (Okla.) Weekly News.
Field Manager Plan of State Press Association Organizations—J. S. Hubbard, Executive Secretary Missouri Press Association, Columbia.
The World's Press Congress—J. C. Latimer, World's Press Congress Executive, New York City.
12:45 P. M.—Adjournment for Luncheon. Guests of Los Angeles publishers.

Friday Afternoon Session—2:15 o'clock

"Ideas of a Country Newspaperwoman"—Mrs. Blanche K. Lord, Daily Tribune, Albert Lee, Minnesota.
Report of Advertising Committee.
Report of Committee on Resolutions.
Report of Committee on Necrology.
Report of Committee on Officer's Reports.
Report of Committee on Audit.
Report of Committee on Credentials.
Selection of Next Place of Meeting.
Election of Officers.
4:00 P. M.—Adjournment. Visit to San Fernando Valley. Guests dinner and evening.

Immediately after the sessions close, on July 2, the delegates will embark on a tour of California which will end in San Francisco, July 15. En route the party will be feted and dined by civic organizations in dozens of cities. Motor tours, boat rides and innumerable sightseeing trips have been arranged.

The complete tour program follows:

Two special trains have already been arranged for the National Editorial Associaiton outing, June 24 to July 15. Those departing from Chicago will be luncheon guests of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company on June 24. Those leaving Omaha will be entertained at dinner by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, with President Frank O. Edgecombe as the guest of honor. At Minneapolis the delegates will be entertained at luncheon by the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association.

FRIDAY, JUNE 25—Breakfast, Grill Room, Muehlebach Hotel, guests Kansas City Chamber of Commerce. Automobile trip over beautiful boulevards. Departure at 11:00 A. M. Arrive Hutchinson, Kan., 5:30 P. M. Dinner and evening entertainment, guests Hutchinson Chamber of Commerce. Departure at 11:30 P. M.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26—Arrive Liberal, Kan., 6:00 A. M. Breakfast guests of the Liberal Chamber of Commerce. Stop of four hours with a visit to vast grain fields. Departure at 10:00 A. M.

SUNDAY, JUNE 27—Arrive at El Paso, Tex., 6:00 A. M. Breakfast guests El Paso Chamber of Commerce. Visit to Juaraz, Mexico. Departure at 12:00 o'clock. Luncheon on train.

MONDAY, JUNE 28—Arrive at El Centro for breakfast in heart of Imperial Valley. Proceed through Carriso Gorge to San Diego, arriving about 3:30 P. M. Guests of San Diego Chamber of Commerce. Short ride around city, thence to Mission Beach. Beach amusements, dinner and dancing. Take sleepers for Orange county.

TUESDAY, JUNE 29—Arrive Santa Ana for breakfast, guests of Orange county for entire day. Following breakfast, automobiles will be taken to Newport Beach, harbor and yachting waters, Huntington Beach, oil fields, through city of Orange to county park where luncheon will be served. After luncheon an orange grove will be visited. Cities of Anaheim, Fullerton, La Habra will be visited. Arrive in Los Angeles in early evening where baggage will be found in hotel rooms which will be previously assigned.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30—Convention opens in Alexandria Hotel. Luncheon guests of Los Angeles county. Following afternoon adjournment, parlor cars will be taken to Beverly Hills past homes of motion picture stars. Drive to Santa Monico along Pacific and return to Beverly Hills for dinner. Motion picture stars who live in Beverly Hills will greet the visitors.

THURSDAY, JULY 1—Convention, Alexandria Hotel. At adjournment parlor cars will be taken through Glendale, Flintridge, Altadena to Pasadena where the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce will be hosts. Dinner and evening guests of Chamber of Commerce.

FRIDAY, JULY 2—Convention Alexandria Hotel. Luncheon guests Los Angeles publishers. At adjournment take parlor cars for San Fernando Valley. Sight-seeing tour of valley, including visit to "Memory Garden" at historic old Mission of San Fernando, where at sundown a Spanish feast will be served. A colorful pageant will be enacted depicting early Spanish period of California.

SATURDAY, JULY 3—Picnic in Los Angeles Park under auspices of Federation of State Societies. Former residents of various states will unite to greet editors from the "old home state" and entertain them at lunch.

SUNDAY, JULY 4—Free Day. Do as you please. Visit with folks you met at reunion picnic on Saturday.

MONDAY, JULY 5—Guests of Associated Chambers of Commerce of San Gabriel valley for tour of rich agricultural section. Visit only lion farm in world. Pass through Puente, El Monte, Covina, luncheon at Pomona. Visit Ontario, Uplands, Glendora, Azusa, Monrovia.

TUESDAY, JULY 6—A day in Hollywood and the Motion Picture Studios. Guests of Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc. Luncheon at Writer's Club where stars will act as hosts and hostesses. Special entertainment features at luncheon. Afternoon will be spent in visiting studios.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 7—Guests of Los Angeles Realty Board for trip through city's industrial district, the harbor, and ending at Long Beach about 2:30. Guests of Long Beach for remainder of afternoon, dinner and evening.

THURSDAY, JULY 8—A trip through the Orange Empire. Breakfast guests of Fontana Farms Company, serving products raised on farms. Through Rialto, Bloomington to Riverside. Drive to points of interest in Riverside, Mount Rubidoux where Easter Morn services are held, Magnolia avenue, see parent navel orange tree. Luncheon at Mission Inn. Thence through Colton to San Bernardino. On to Redlands, famed for its fruit and scenic beauties. Dinner joint auspices of Redlands and San Bernardino in pavilion of National Orange Show.

FRIDAY, JULY 9—Catalina Island. Take the "Million Dollar Ferry-ship to Fairyland" for a day on California's Magic Isle, owned by Wm. Wrigley, Jr. Glass bottom boat ride over submarine gardens.

SATURDAY, JULY 10—Take train for northern points. Luncheon and noon entertainment at Ventura. Arrive Santa Barbara mid-afternoon where the remainder of the day and evening will be spent. Dinner guests of Chamber of Commerce. Take Pullmans for night.

SUNDAY, JULY 11—Breakfast at Hotel Del Monte in Monterey. Sight-seeing trip over Seventeen Mile Drive, along coast line. Carmel, the artist colony, Monterey cypress, trees of Lebanon. Board train for Santa Cruz. First sight of the Redwoods. Thence to San Jose. Dinner guests of San Jose Chamber of Commerce and on to San Francisco for the night.

MONDAY, JULY 12—Morning free to go as you please. Afternoon sight-seeing in San Francisco.

TUESDAY, JULY 13—Day to be spent in Oakland, Berkeley and other east bay cities. Luncheon on University of California campus, auspices Berkeley Chamber of Commerce. Drive along Skyline Boulevard, University of California and other points of interest. After dinner return to San Francisco by ferry, affording a view of the city by night.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 14—Ascend Mt. Tamalpais. Take gravity rail cars for Muir woods, giant Sequoias. Thence to Luther Burbank's home, with lunch en route at San Rafael. Then to Petaluma. Jack London's ranch in the valley of the moon. Barbecue dinner. Automobiles to Sausalito. Trip across the Golden Gate.

THURSDAY, JULY 15—Trip through San Francisco, through gardens of San Francisco, along the Peninsula, San Mateo, Burlingame, Redwood City and Palo Alto to Stanford University for lunch on campus. Then back to San Francisco where official tour ends. Additional side trips may be arranged for those wishing to remain longer.

LIST OF N. E. A. DELEGATES

THE following have made reservations for the N. E. A. convention and California tour.

ARKANSAS

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allsopp, Little Rock Gazette.
Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Funk and mother, Rogers Democrat.
Miss Edwardine Jolly, Warren Eagle.
Miss Hoyle, Warren.
Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Berry, Eldorado News.
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Plank, Bentonville Record.

CALIFORNIA

Mrs. Gertrude French and son, Alturas Plaindealer.
E. W. Nobbs, 515 American Bank Bldg., Los Angeles.
Buford O. Brown, Stanford University, Stanford University.
Mr. and Mrs. Ben Read, 515 American Bank Bldg., Los Angeles.
Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Craemer, Orange Daily News.
Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Brownhill, Puente Journal.

COLORADO

E. B. Deu Pree, Craig Courier.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Mason, La Junta Tribune.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Wm. L. Daley, N. E. A. Representative, 540 Investment Bldg., Washington.
Mrs. Virginia King Frye and daughter Virginia, The Penwoman, 301 S St. N. E., Washington.

FLORIDA

Past President and Mrs. J. E. Junkin, 136 S. E. 3rd St., Miami.
Miss Ruby Edna Pierce, West Palm Beach Daily News-Palm Beach Life.
Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Wade, Orlando Morning Sentinel.
Mr. and Mrs. Thos. M. Seawell and daughter, Winter Garden Herald.
Edward Cowles, Sarasota, This Week in Venice.

GEORGIA

G. S. Chapman, Sandersville Progress.
Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Thomasson, Carrollton Times,

IDAHO

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lloyd Adams and daughter Maxine, Rexburg Standard.
Miss Nettie Garner, Rexburg Standard.

ILLINOIS

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Babb, Chicago Rock Island Magazine.
Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Bates, Farmer City Journal.
Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Davis, Mt. Sterling Democrat Message.
L. B. Frazier, Rockford Morning Star.
Miss Louise Givens, Beardstown Star.
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Goddard, Washington Reporter.
Maurice L. Jones, Johnston City Progress.
Mr. and Mrs. Miles T. Lamey, Barrington Review.
Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Marquis, and daughter, Bloomington Pantagraph.
Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Mason, Buda Plain Dealer.
H. C. Paddock, Arlington Heights Herald.
Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Pettit, Reynolds Press.
Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Pierson, Bloomington Daily Pantagraph.
Miss Elizabeth Rodewald, Rushville Times.
Fred M. Rolens and family, Murphysboro Independent (address 715 S. Adams St., Glendale, Calif.)
H. J. Schmidt, Nashville Journal.
Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Seright, Harrisburg Daily Register.
Mrs. Henry O. Shepard, Chicago Inland Printer.
John F. Hurd, sister Edith M. Hurd, and daughter Margery Hurd, 6124 S. Sangamon St., Chicago Western Newspaper Union.
Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith, Waukegan Daily Sun.
Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Taylor, Mt. Sterling Democrat-Message.
Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Vandercook, 1716 W. Austin Ave., Chicago.
Elmo Scott Watson, Publishers' Auxiliary, Chicago.
Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Worman, Teutopolis Press.
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Renich and mother, Woodstock Sentinel.

INDIANA

Treasurer W. W. Aikens, Franklin Daily Star.
Charles and William Beeson, Winchester Journal.
J. P. Cox and son Arlin, Owensville Star-Echo.

IOWA

Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Brown, Harlan Republican.
Mr. and Mrs. Marion Bruce, Rolfe Arrow.
Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Guy, Osage News.
Harvey Ingham, Des Moines Register.
Ben J. Preuss, Ida Grove Record-Era.
Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Richards, Toledo Chronicle.
Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Stacey, Guthrie Center Guthrian
Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Stouffer, Sac City Sun.
Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Taylor, Traer Star-Clipper.
Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Wortman, Malvern Leader.
Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Cardin, Alton Democrat.

KANSAS

Miss Dora Adriance, Seneca Courier Tribune.
Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Anderson, Winfield Courier.
Mr. and Mrs. Mack Cretcher, Newton Journal.
Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Denious, Dodge City Daily Globe.
W. D. Greason, Paola Republican.
Mr. and Mrs. George Harmon, Valley Falls.
Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Little, Alma Enterprise.
Past President George W. Marble, Fort Scott Daily Tribune.
Mr. and Mrs. Clark T. Richardson, Garnett Review.
Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Simons and daughter

(Continued on page 114)

BUFFALO EXPRESS AND COURIER MERGE BY CONNERS CONSOLIDATING A. M. FIELD

Dailies Combined June 14 with W. J. Conners, Sr., Chairman, Burrows Matthews, Former Express G. M., President and Editor; W. J. Conners, Jr., Publisher

MERGER of the Buffalo Express with the Buffalo Courier, accomplished on Monday, June 14, ended the separate existence of two publications each approaching a century of service and reduced the number of morning newspapers in Buffalo to a single one. The consolidation was completed two days after the first intimation that it would be made, although the merger is one said to involve investments and joint value of the two publications of nearly $6,000,000.

Appearing on Monday with the old Courier masthead above that of the Express and being run off on the Courier presses and published by its mechanical staff augmented by Express printers, the new paper contained practically all the features and departments of both its predecessors. This was carried even to the extent of using headtype and body matter of both newspapers although this arrangement will be only temporary, it is believed.

The first joint Sunday issue of the two publications will appear June 20.

The executive personnel of the new publications are: William J. Conners, Sr., chairman; Burrows Matthews, president and editor; William J. Conners, Jr., vice-president and publisher; Frank J. Clancy, secretary; William S. Bennett, treasurer. Mr. Conners and his son are the former Courier publishers and Mr. Bennett formerly was Courier business manager. Mr. Matthews has been editor of the Express and Mr. Clancy has been circulation manager and formerly was city editor.

John D. Wells, who recently resigned as managing editor of the Buffalo Times to join the Courier staff, is managing editor of the new publication. Fred M. Lennan, former managing editor of the Express, becomes news editor of the new paper. Charles H. McChesney, night city editor, and Fred Turner, day city editor of the Courier, retain these positions.

For the present all editorial employees of both newspapers will be retained although it is anticipated there will be minor reductions in this personnel later. William Kelly of the Courier remains as sports editor.

The Express was a Republican newspaper and the Courier Democratic. The new journal will be independent in politics, it is announced.

This is Buffalo's second reduction in newspapers within a few months, the Post having suspended late in 1925. It reduces the number of active Associated Press memberships held in Buffalo to three.

The Buffalo Express was founded 80 years ago and was reorganized in 1878 by James Newson Matthews. It has been under the domination of the Matthews family since that time and shortly before the merger had announced plans for the erection of a large new publishing house.

The Courier was the first daily newspaper issued in Buffalo, having been founded in 1831 succeeding the Buffalo Bulletin as the Buffalo Star. Several years ago Mr. Conners replaced his Buffalo Enquirer with a tabloid bearing the name Star. This publication continues without change. The name Courier was adopted in 1845 and publication under that name has since continued, Mr. Connors becoming its owner in 1897.

Recently each newspaper has had a circulation of approximately 55,000, daily. The Sunday issues, particularly of the Courier, were much larger.

Following is the statement of William J. Conners, Sr., relative to the merger:

"The merger of the Express and the Courier into the new Buffalo Courier and Express rests on sound economic principles. The cost of producing two big newspapers is very great. The expenditure of material resources is enormous. The reading public is not better served.

"Firm conviction that Buffalo's reading public and Buffalo's welfare demand a morning newspaper of the finest sort capable of production has resulted in this merger. Readers will get two newspapers for the price of one. All the best features of both journals will be preserved for the enjoyment of their respective followers.

"In unity there is strength. I expect these combined forces to turn out the very finest newspaper in not only this part of the country but the nation. The responsibilities of producing this super morning newspaper have been handed over to young blood, William J. Conners, Jr., Burrows Matthews and John D. Wells. They will hold high the banner of a greater Buffalo. They will be fearless and independent. There will be no malice or spite toward anyone. An unbiased attitude will be preserved, save where evil is to be fought. 'Boost Buffalo' will be the cornerstone of the new institution.

"Cities east and west are progressing at top speed under the momentum supplied by a single morning newspaper. I cite Detroit, Cleveland, Rochester, Syracuse and Albany as examples. Business in Buffalo will be benefited by this merger. Merchants will be afforded a single, direct and powerful medium of contact with the buyer and the consumer. Presentation of claims for wares will be facilitated. With unbounded faith in Buffalo's future and with a sense of personal happiness I commend the New Courier and Express to readers of yesterday, today and tomorrow."

A telegraphic statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER signed by W. J. Conners, Jr., and Burrows Matthews said in part:

"We shall have as our inspiration for the future the splendid traditions that have surrounded both of these outstanding properties for nearly 100 years."

Congratulatory messages in abundance followed the announcement. One of the first of these came from Vice President Charles Dawes and many others from persons of high station in the state and nation.

Mr. Conners recently purchased a site on Buffalo's new civic center and proposes to erect thereon a skyscraper building as the home of his newspaper and numerous other enterprises which include very extensive Great Lakes, Florida and other interests. He was in Buffalo completing details of the merger.

The merger leaves Buffalo, which is strongly Republican in national politics, with a single newspaper of that persuasion, the Buffalo Evening News.

FIRST ISSUE OF MERGED BUFFALO DAILY

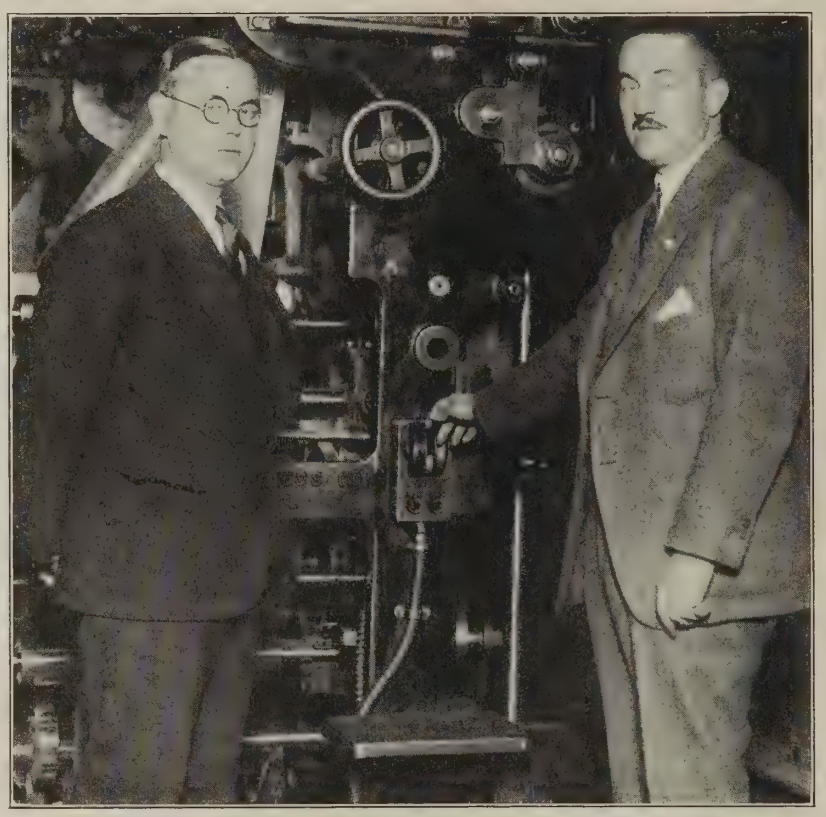

Photo shows Burrows Matthews (left) and W. J. Conners, Jr., (right) turning on power for first run of new Buffalo Courier and Express on June 14.

W. H. Carswell Dead

W. H. Carswell, 51, first advertising manager for the Vancouver (B. C.) Sun, died Sunday, May 23 at his home in Vancouver. Mr. Carswell in 1912 became the Sun's first advertising manager and in 1914 manager for the A. J. Massey Advertising Agency of Winnipeg. At one time he had been secretary to the late Sir Israel Tarte, minister of marine and fisheries in the Laurier government.

Merritt Joins Cambridge Springs Paper

Milton L. Merritt has become general manager of the Cambridge Springs (Pa.) Enterprise-News succeeding James M. Ross of Erie who was forced to retire on account of ill health. Ross was connected with the Enterprise-News for more than four years. He was formerly advertising manager of the Erie Herald. Merritt was for some time advertising and circulation manager of the Charleroi Daily Mail, leaving that post to join the Cambridge paper.

Delineator and Designer to Merge

S. R. Latshaw, president of the Butterick Publishing Company, has announced that the two women's magazines, the Delineator and Designer, will be combined in one publication, the Delineator. The change will take place with the November issue.

LEE SYNDICATE BUYS KEWANEE DAILY

E. P. Adler President of Midwest String Obtains Control and Places Son in Charge—Leo Lowe Retains an Interest

E. P. Adler, president of the Lee Newspaper Syndicate, which operates seven newspapers in four Mississippi Valley states, and publisher of the Davenport (Ia.) Times, last week purchased the Kewanee (Ill.) Star - Courier, published the last 30 years by Leo H. Lowe, and has made his son, Philip D. Adler, editor and publisher of the paper. A new corporation, the Kewanee Star-Courier Company, will be formed to take over the paper with Mr. Lowe retaining an interest in the plant and serving as one of the directors.

E. P. ADLER

With the acquisition of the Courier, the Lee Syndicate enters its fourth state, having the Davenport Times, Ottumwa Courier, Mason City Globe Gazette and Muscatine Journal in Iowa; the Madison State Journal and LaCrosse Tribune in Wisconsin and the Hannibal Courier-Post in Missouri.

The Star-Courier is an evening paper, housed in a three-story building, 50x150 feet, which is included in the purchase. The Courier was established as a weekly in 1876 and became a daily 31 years ago.

PHILIP ADLER

Philip Adler, the new editor and publisher, completed his course at the University of Iowa this spring, serving four years with the Daily Iowan, student daily, the last year as editor-in-chief. Loren D. Upton of Iowa City for the last four years business manager of the Students' Publications, Inc., will be business manager. Upton was also instructor in journalism in the college. He has been succeeded at Iowa by Harry Bunker.

Although Mr. Lowe will be connected with the Courier under the Lee Syndicate association, he plans to take a long rest before returning to his duties.

In relinquishing is editorship of the Star-Courier after 30 years' service Mr. Lowe said, editorially:

"For more than 30 years the writer has been connected with the paper. For most of that time he has been editor and has daily written this column. It has never been brilliantly written but we hope it has been honestly offered. That it should be so has been our constant hope.

"Friends. They are what make life worth living. To those who have helped, supported and forgiven us in all these years, we can only say, God bless you all.

"Some have been kind enough to say they hoped we would not seek residence elsewhere. It is needless. In our present frame of mind, we could not live elsewhere if we tried.

"And so, for the first time in these 30 years we sign the editorial column. Good-bye.—L. H. Lowe."

Tribute Paid to Late Publisher

High tribute was paid to the late Everett C. Johnson, publisher of the Newark (Del.) Post and a trustee of the University of Delaware, Newark, by the board of trustees of that institution at the recent commencement exercises.

PASTOR GLAD TO QUIT AFTER WEEK AS EDITOR

"I Feel Like an Emancipated Slave" Exclaims Rev. D. W. Ferry Who Traded Places with W. W. Robertson of Yakima Republic Following Latter's Invitation—They Differed on Prohibition

By Miss S. I. ANTHON
Managing Editor, Yakima Republic

SCOTCH Presbyterian training in the stern theological doctrines of predestination and infant damnation did not contribute to Rev. David W. Ferry's idea of a 100 per cent nightmare. It remained for his week's service as editor of the Yakima (Wash.) Daily Republic to furnish that. His nightmare now is a vision of a row of linotype machines come to angry life and pursuing him 'round and 'round with clicking keys in place of grinding teeth and hungrily yapping for copy, COPY, COPY! And the first time that Rev. Mr. Ferry, having completed his brief editorship, wandered into a newspaper office it was with much the bravado of the small boy that he looked at the relentless linotype and promptly declared "I feel like an emancipated slave."

Rev. Mr. Ferry, without previous newspaper experience, took the editorship of the Republic while the editor, W. W. Robertson, went on a week's vacation. The arrangement was made following a long press-pulpit argument in which Mr. Robertson contended editorially that the cure of the present prohibition law is in many respects worse than the disease while Rev. Mr. Ferry contended that the law is sound and, when time and human frailty are considered, operating satisfactorily. In the course of the argument Rev. Mr. Ferry was editorially referred to as the "erring minister" and promptly took up the challenge by preaching a prohibition sermon in his own defense as well as to uphold the prohibition cause. It was charged that the "dry" faction had scant opportunity to put its views before the people and the offer of the week's editorship, no strings attached, was speedily made. Rev. Mr. Ferry, of Scotch-Irish descent and veteran of the Boer and World wars, accepted as quickly.

"I used to be haunted every Sunday evening by the horror that next Sunday, drained dry of sermonic material as I was, I would again have to face a congregation and preach," the minister-editor commented on the final day of his service. "After this I guess I'll just be thankful. Preaching every Sunday is nothing like the strain of filling editorial columns day by day with worthwhile material. I've learned that. The demands of newspaper space and time are so insistent and relentless that I could not stand up under them long. In fact, I don't really see how anyone stands such a nerve-racking task. As for enjoying it—! We ministers should be grateful we only have to preach one day a week and don't have to editorialize verbally and exhort to the extent of two or more columns every day. That's my idea of hard labor—a life sentence.

"The 'other fellow's job' certainly looks a lot easier from the outside than it does from the inside. Lots of persons think they could run newspapers and write editorials without the least difficulty. There have been times when I've had some such idea myself. I wish such persons could all try it once. It would develop a fine spirit of tolerance for editors and editorials, though after the experience they might not survive so long to exemplify it. If I ever have to retire from the ministry, I'm certainly not going to try to find any rest in an editorial chair, no matter how well padded. It isn't there. No one can run the other fellow's job as well as his own though he may, until he has tried, be fully convinced that he is able to do so." Newspaper men will all agree that Rev. Mr. Ferry has one drawback that will keep him from ever making a real success as a newspaper worker. When he was offered the week's salary that Mr. Robertson allows himself, he refused it and would not even accept it to devote to his beloved prohibition cause.

Through his editorial service, during which the Republic was the dryest of the dry newspapers, prohibitionally speaking, in the state, Rev. Mr. Ferry acquired a considerable amount of sermonic materia." He invited several of the "dry" leaders to contribute editorials, all printed over their initials, and stepped so firmly on some of the pet ideas of the anti-prohibitionists that several of them availed themselves of the ancient remedy of ordering their paper stopped. Even his wife, he confessed, urged him not to devote so much space to the liquor question as she was getting a bit tired of it, but the zeal of the crusader led Rev. Mr. Ferry to have at least one and usually several editorials daily in behalf of the prohibition cause. Not being able to emphasize his words in other ways, Rev. Mr. Ferry tried having some of his editorials printed in 10 point instead of the customary eight point, though his printing vocabulary was so limited that "you know, larger" was about as specific directions as he was able to give. He also used at least one editorial of almost a column in length, a length that rarely appears in the Republic's column under Mr. Robertson's personal direction. His brief paragraphs, possibly quoting Howlin Hix the reservation farmer or Castoria Magooselum the flapper, are widely copied and he is the exemplification of the axiom that dubs brevity the soul of wit.

Rev. D. W. Ferry

Rev. Mr. Ferry learned quickly that printer's ink has no inflections. Words created by its use are cold and precise and their sting is not softened by a twinkling eye or a similing mouth, as may be done when one speaks ex cathedra from the pulpit. The man who prayed that the Lord deliver him from his friends and expressed his willingness to handle his enemies without additional help is thoroughly understood by the Rev. Mr. Ferry as a result of his newspaper experience, brief as it was. His enemies waited for him to attack while his friends craved to lead the attack for him. Not a few of them submitted enough editorial to choke the press of the most metropolitan daily and could not see why their material, most of it impossible to handle, was not used.

The task of explaining why this or that effusion could not be printed and refusals to allow the editorial columns to be used to exploit personal grudges, called for even more finesse and tact than for a he-man such as the minister-editor is to attend the ladies' aid or missionary society meeting and get away without pulling any social or church boners. At that, the Rev. Mr. Ferry took his editorial office a bit too late for the usual open season of would-be spring poets.

In the opinion of the Rev. Mr. Ferry, the touch with the world of the press was distinctly worth while, though he will always find an em a great mystery, consider justify as related to ethics only, and six point, eight point, and the like mere gibberish as far as he is concerned. On his final day he declared that "I am darn glad it is over. Newspaper people are wonderfully kind and everyone was helpful, but man! it's certainly a job to get out a paper or any part of it."

During the period that Rev. Mr. Ferry was in charge of the editorial columns of the Republic, the following notice to patrons headed the column:

"NOTICE TO PATRONS

"From now until Wednesday night, May 19, the editorial department of the Republic will be in the hands of Rev. David W. Ferry, and through him and in co-operation with him, in the hands of all persons in this community who differ in any way from the policies in public matters heretofore advocated by the newspaper. Dr. Ferry will sit in the editorial chair in the editorial office, and whatever he may say about the paper's editorial expressions will go—it being understood that he and his colleagues will speak for themselves and will not bind the newspaper beyond the date when they finish their work. We hope that Dr. Ferry will have the most cordial and sympathetic assistance of everyone in town who does not agree with the Republic on any question of public interest during this week.

"THE EDITOR."

Rev. Mr. Ferry's initial statement was:

"THE NEW EDITOR

"In taking over the Editorial Department of this paper, we are embarking on an undertaking in which we have had no previous experience. We are doing it at the request of the editor who feels that those who differ with his editorial views should have an opportunity to express themselves.

"So far as we know this is a new departure in editorial policy. For an editor to turn his editorial columns over to another who is untried and unproven, without any strings attached, requires courage of a high degree; but for an editor to turn his editorial columns over to those who disagree with him, with no strings attached, requires not only courage but manifests a spirit of good sportsmanship and fair play that if put into practice more generally would result in better understanding and be productive of better feeling between those who hold diverse opinions and who are inclined to look askance at those who are on the 'other side of the fence.'

"The sporting aspect of the editor's challenge none can gainsay. The wisdom of it remains to be seen. Our guess is that the readers of the Yakima Daily Republic will heave a vast sigh of relief when the old regime is reestablished.

"David William Ferry, Editor Pro-Tem."

"The policy of these editorial columns during the present incumbency shall be a fair field for all and no favors. If you feel that the former editor has misrepresented your views or violated your feelings on any question of public interest, tell us about it and we will lambast him good and plenty. We have a few accounts to square with him ourself."

Toward the end of his regime, when he had suffered some of the sad experiences that at times are the lot of every newspaper worker, Rev. Mr. Ferry wrote:

"FOOLED AGAIN

"No mere preacher can compete with an editor. The editor of this paper purposely entered into controversy with us and finally surrendered his paper into our hands.

"We were foolish and egotistical enough to believe that this surrender was a real victory, but we find, as many another supposed victor has found to his cost, that to the 'vanquished' and not to the 'victor belong the spoils.'

"The editor has had a week's vacation; has had his paper and himself advertised all over the country; didn't even preach for us; and what do we get? A week of hard labor, doing both our own work and his, and all the kicks, slights, slams and slurs that accompany the editing of a 'fearless' paper. We were badly fooled."

A fairly typical Robertson editorial in regard to the prohibition issue is:

"The other day up at Wenatchee, officers of the law, claiming to be out pursuing their duty of enforcing, arrested a citizen who owns and conducts an apartment house, and put him in jail and kept him there for several hours in spite of the protests of his attorney. This man conducts a place so respectable that the mayor of the town and the district superintendent of the Methodist church and other well known and highly respected citizens make their homes there. It had been represented to the officers that someone in the house had liquor in his possession, and the proprietor, not himself under the slightest suspicion, charged with nothing, was treated with indignity because he refused to open the rooms of his guests in obedience to a search warrant until he had been advised by his attorney that he had a right to do so. The other day a man going about his business in his boat on Puget Sound was shot and killed by a coast guard because he refused to stop when ordered to do so and declared he would shoot anyone who attempted to board him. He was not carrying liquor, and the officers had not the slightest reason to suspect that he was. Outrages of this kind against citizens cannot be perpetrated continually and indefinitely even in the name of prohibition enforcement. Whiskey in the old days undoubtedly had its victims. It never went into a man's house and murdered him or took him off to jail. As long as he let it alone he was perfectly safe from its depredations. That much cannot be said of what our prohibition friends call 'law enforcement.'"

As an entire change of front, below is a portion of a typical Ferry editorial such as appeared daily during the minister's tenure of a week:

"GIVE IT A CHANCE

"When we recall that the liquor traffic has been enslaving the human race during all the centuries of recorded history, it is not astonishing that this form of slavery cannot be completely wiped out in five or six years.

"Human slavery was not wiped out when the anti-slavery law became a part of our constitution. It required many long years for the abatement of this evil.

"A well financed, well organized nation-wide campaign of 'wet' propaganda sponsored by the liquor interests is being conducted to break down morale, foster disrespect and encourage revolt against the laws of our land in an attempt to bring the 18th Amendment to our Constitution into disrepute, to have the prohibition law modified and ultimately to restore the liquor traffic to its former power.

"In this campaign they are aided and abetted by those who are in revolt against our laws, by all who profit by lawlessness, and by the 'wet' press that deliberately and as a part of this propaganda presents to its readers distorted news, headlining wet propaganda and ignoring or obscuring anything favorable to prohibition, holding our Constitutional laws up to ridicule, constantly and systematically reiterating that our laws are impossible of enforcement, sympathizing with and condoning those who violate them, on the ground that the law itself and not the violator is to blame, and in various ways undermining respect for law, and rendering law enforcement more and more difficult."

E. M. JOHNSON SUCCEEDS BARLOW

Wisconsin Man to Head New Minnesota Journalism School

Edward Marion Johnson, associate professor of journalism at Wisconsin, has been named head of the new journalism school at the University of Minnesota to be established next fall under a $350,000 endowment provided by late W. J. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune. He succeeds Prof. Ruel R. Barlow, who resigned last week.

California Semi-Weekly Sold

Gilmore H. and Arthur Gilbert have sold their interest in the Compton (Cal.) News-Tribune, semi-weekly, to W. H. Coonradt and Carl M. Bigsby. Mr. Bigsby, who was editor of the Tribune, prior to the merger last fall, will be the editor under the new ownership, while Mr. Coonradt, who was also with the Tribune, will be the publisher of the newspaper and general manager of the Compton Printing Company.

There are 172 firms representing newspapers in the national advertising field.

The Augusta (Me.) Kennebec Journal is in its 101st year of continuous publication.

Seventy-five newspapers in the United States publish rotogravure sections.

YOU CAN LIBEL PEOPLE AND NOT NAME NAMES

Might as Well Be Blunt If You are Sure of Truth in Good Cause—Two Dozen Words, Without Proper Noun, Once Cooked Up $16,000 Libel Judgment Against Daily

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, once said:

*"We should never forget for an instant that one reporter thoughtlessly writing an inaccurate story may have it in his power to do more harm to some unfortunate than could the Governor of a soverign state. * * * That one editorial writer * * * may have it in his power to blast a reputation and shatter a career more utterly than could the President of the United States.*

"Reporters and editors need not think they rid themselves of this weighty responsibility by eliminating names and insinuating charges. .If they are sure of the truth let them print the names and print the charges in a good cause.

This is brought out in this the 14th article in a series obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

"THERE," sighed the copyreader, after going through a powder-factory story and eliminating the names, but leaving the libellous charges. "I've put a permanent crimp in the wave of libel suits this time."

But he was wrong.

You can libel people and not name names.

"A person may be libelled by a story, if it describes him in such a way as to enable his friends and acquaintances to identify him as the person referred to, even though it does not mention him by name," reads "Look Out for Libel," a brief memorandum issued by the Bureau of Libel Survey of the Hearst Newspapers, New York.

You needn't name charges, either; if what you write is untrue and damages to individual reputations follow, you must face the libel consequences.

Back in the days when Harry K. Thaw's case was real big in the news, and not merely inside-page chatter about Mrs. Thaw's birthday anniversary, reported reunions with Evelyn Nesbit and Harry's own announced forthcoming published memoirs, a more or less unimportant murder occurred down in Virginia.

First stories from there were confusing. It seemed, however, that a woman fleeing from a man had taken refuge in the home of a John Armstrong Chanler. The man had followed her there and Mr. Chanler had shot and killed him.

Now Mr. Chanler had been adjudged insane in New York state and his estate was being administered for him from there. He was living in Virginia, nevertheless, as a sane man.

Having in mind the red-hot Thaw case, an important editorial writer on the staff of the New York Evening Post wrote an editorial paragraph which did not contain more than 24 words. None of these words was a proper name. In effect the paragraph simply declared that the "latest prominent assassin" had had sense enough to have himself adjudged insane before committing his rash act.

John Armstrong Chanler was freed of a murder charge in the Virginia courts. "Assassin" is a word that is libellous per se.

Bang!

A libel pot was started boiling which cooked up through all appeals a $16,000 judgment against the New York Evening Post.

"In "Freedom of the Press and Its Limitations," by Isaac Deforest White, head of the Bureau of Accuracy and Fair Play of the New York World, occurs this pertinent passage:

"You may libel a person without publishing his name or address. The record of the courts show there is a perilous belief quite general among news writers that the contrary is the fact.

"In one libel action the complaint was based on the publication of an interview with a woman who believed her lover had been robbed and murdered by his brother. The name and address of the suspect were withheld, but his identity was made plain to many who knew him by writing of him as a former roommate of the dead man and describing the locality in which they had resided.

"A newspaper published a series of articles not long ago in which it accused several druggists of dispensing drugs, which were imitations or not up to the recognized standards. The newspaper did not name these druggists or give their exact addresses, but seven of them collected money damages out of court for libel on the ground that the newspaper identified them by writing 'a druggist near the corner of' and then naming the intersecting streets on the corners of which the respective stores were located."

In the same class of libel are those cases which have been described in previous articles, but cannot be printed too frequently, in which charges are not names directly, but insinuated.

"To insinuate that a person has been guilty of wrongdoing may be just as libellous as making a direct charge," Mr. White has written in the same book.

"That this fact is not generally appreciated by newspaper writers is indicated by the number of libel actions which are based on innuendos.

"The following extract from an article complained of in one of these suits (with letters substituted for names) is an apt illustration: 'Mrs. A. was an attractive and brilliant woman and B. was openly attentive to her. For a long time, nothing was thought of this, but at last society began to talk. The end came in an open scandal. Mrs. A. left her husband's home never to return. The B. house was also temporarily broken up, but the wife finally returned to her husband.

"The writer of the above paragraph and the copyreader who passed evidently were of the opinion that by cunningly wording the article and evading any direct charge, they had steered clear of the libel laws. As a matter of fact, the paragraph as published was just as much a libel—although it would probably not be considered so gross a libel—as it would have been if the charge of adultery had been made in so many words."

Perhaps some may consider it wasteful to present several definitions of the same libel law, but to the mind of the writer each of several definitions is apt to bring out a point overlooked in previous generations.

Thus it is that "The Law of the Press," by William G. Hale, Dean of the Law School and Professor of Law of the University of Oregon, in its definition brings out the fact that it is possible to libel a man or woman by reference merely to his or her class or profession. The definition reads:

"A libel is not committed upon an individual, unless a sufficient clue to his identity is given. However, he need not be specifically named. The designation may be sufficient, whether it is by name, by occupation, or by blanket reference to a specified group, of which one is a member, (board of directors or trustees, etc.)

"However, since the object of civil libel is to compensate a particular individual for a loss sustained by him, a personal action for damages will fail, unless the plaintiff can show that he was so described as to be identified by the readers. Otherwise such loss does not ensue.

"A somewhat difficult problem may thus be presented, where reference is to a class or group of persons, by some composite designation. Whether a particular individual in the group can make it appear that he, personally, has suffered damage, may well depend upon the size of the group, the popular knowledge of its personnel, and the apparent purpose of the defamatory statements. It is a question of fact and of degree. A general invective against those who administer the law would not support civil libel, but it would probably be otherwise, if charges of corruption were made against members of the Supreme Court of a certain state. Likewise a distinction would probably be drawn between a defamatory attack upon the Legislature as a body, and upon all members of the finance committee of the Senate."

A court, Hale points out, has stated the test as follows:

"If the words may, by any reasonable application, import a charge against several individuals, under some general description or name, the plaintiff has a right to go on trial, and it is for the jury to decide whether the charge has a personal application to the plaintiff."

Don't try dangerous cross-cuts!

N. Y. TIMES MAN AND FILM STAR WED AT SEA

With Captain George Fried, of the U. S. liner "President Roosevelt" officiating, Lincoln Eyre, Berlin correspondent of the New York Times and Dina Gralla, German film star, were married recently while the ship ploughed the cold North Sea. In the photograph taken on the promenade deck where the ceremony took place, are shown (left to right) Mrs. Hawkins, stewardess, Chief Steward Charles Kennecke, Chief Engineer J. Turner, Dina Gralla, Lincoln Eyre, Chief Officer R. B. Miller, and Purser A. Koppenjan. Capt. Fried received world renown last winter when his crew rescued the crew of the sinking British steamer Antinoe.

PHILADELPHIA RECORD CRUSADED FOR BRIDGE OVER DELAWARE RIVER

Daily Was First Penny Paper in America, First to Print Daily Women's Pages, and Daily Auto Sections—Rowe Stewart, General Manager

DELEGATES to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World's convention in Philadelphia next week have been invited to be among the first to cross the new bridge which spans the Delaware river, linking Philadelphia with Camden, N. J. This honor would not have been possible, had it not been for the strong editorial fight waged single handed by the Philadelphia Record, the only Democratic daily in Philadelphia, and the paper of which Rowe Stewart, former A.A.C.W. president, is general manager.

When New Jersey floated bonds to pay for the bridge, it provided a sinking fund to be paid out of tolls. The Pennsylvania State Legislature, however, passed almost unanimously a bill supported by Philadelphia politicians, providing for free passage over the span. A big fight between the two states ensued, with the two attorney generals taking the case to the Supreme Court of the United States. A long delay in completion of the bridge seemed inevitable.

The Record then undertook to sway public opinion and force the Pennsylvania Legislature to repeal the bill. Although personally solicited, other papers throughout the state refused to help Mr. Stewart's daily in its fight. Cards were printed and sent to voters and motorists asking them whether or not they would be willing to pay tolls or wait indefinitely for the bridge, work on which had been halted as a result of the supreme court suit between the two states.

When Gov. Pinchot called a special session of the legislature in January, 1926, the Record succeeded in getting him to include its measure for repealing free tolls. The bill was repealed with only one vote in each house against it, despite a Mayor's committee sent from Philadelphia. It was a clean victory for the Record.

This paper has many record "firsts" to its credit. It was the first penny paper in America, and maintained this price until 1917. It started the first daily woman's page in 1891, and the first daily automobile section.

Mr. Stewart, vice-president and general manager of the Record, has for many years taken a keen interest in organized advertising. In 1920-1921, he was president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. In consequence he pays particular attention to the advertising side of his newspaper.

"We train all our solicitors to be good copywriters as well as salesmen", he has explained to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "We also maintain our own copy department in charge of a skilled copy writer.

"And I can believe the Record can claim to be among the first to clean up its advertising columns. We have no regular censorship committee, but we do not allow any highly speculative copy or any untruthful advertising in our paper."

For more than 25 years, the Record has shown its interest in the question of better advertising by printing a daily editorial on the subject.

Mr. Stewart started his career as an office boy on the same paper he now heads. In addition to the Record, he has been connected at various times with the Philadelphia North American, New York Globe, Washington Herald and Philadelphia Times. From 1910 to 1913, he was in the advertising agency business with the Tracy-Parry-Stewart Company.

Melville F. Ferguson, the Record's managing editor, has been connected with that newspaper for 31 years. He started as a reporter in 1896. As editorial executive, Mr. Ferguson believes an editor's duty is to so control his staff that it produces a newspaper that is a fair, accurate undistorted mirror of its community.

Thus he has drawn up a code of reportorial ethics for his staff, the enforcement of which he makes one of his important duties. Of 25 rules making up the code, the following are underscored.

"Get both sides of your story. When the circumstances reflect upon an accessible individual or group, learn what is to be said in explanation or defense. Fairness and justice demand it.

"Be accurate. Remember that in most cases the story you write will be read by some people who have first-hand knowledge of some of the facts. They will be quick to detect inaccuracies, and to characterize the paper as unreliable if it prints statements at variance with their own observation.

"Keep your personal opinions, or the supposed opinions of the paper, out of your story. Stick to the facts. Interpretations and comment belong in the editorial columns.

"Avoid ridicule except when it is conveyed by a plain recital of facts. Nothing makes enemies more quickly; and one enemy of the paper exerts more influence than ten friends.

"Never write a story that you cannot successfully defend, when an irate reader comes to the office to demand a retraction. If you keep this rule constantly in mind all the time, you will keep out of libel suits."

The history of the Philadelphia Record dates from May 1, 1877, when William M. Singerly bought from William J. Swain a newspaper known as the Public Record. It had been founded on May 10, 1870, and was published at The Record Building, at Third and Chestnut streets.

On June 1, 1877, Mr. Singerly launched the Philadelphia Record, a one-cent newspaper. It was the first one-cent newspaper that the American people ever saw. On Jan. 29, 1917, the Record in common with many other newspapers throughout the country increased the price of the daily edition to 2 cents per copy.

In 1882 the paper was moved from Third and Chestnut streets to the new Record Building, at Ninth and Chestnut streets, and at the same time began the issue of a two-cent Sunday newspaper. Later the price was made 3 cents, and on January 4, 1914, with the addition of several new features, the price was increased to 5 cents. The present price of the Sunday edition is 7 cents in the city and 8 cents outside of the city.

The Philadelphia Record was the first newspaper in the world to establish a daily magazine department for women.

D'UTASSY PRESIDENT OF N. Y. MIRROR

Treasurer Succeeds M. L. Annenberg, Resigned as Head of Hearst Tabloid—Was Once with Patterson's Paper

George d'Utassy, treasurer of the New York Mirror, has been appointed president of the Hearst tabloid, succeeding Moses L. Annenberg, whose resignation was announced last week. He retains the title of treasurer. Philip A. Payne, managing editor, is vice-president, and J. Mora Boyle, business manager, secretary.

Mr. d'Utassy was at one time connected with the Mirror's opposition, the New York Daily News, edited by Captain J. M. Patterson. Prior to becoming treasurer of the Mirror he was vice-president of the International Film Company.

A graduate of Harvard College, Class of 1898, Mr. d'Utassy began his career with Harper & Brothers, book and magazine publishers. At various times he has been publisher of Motor, Cosmopolitan Magazine, Motor Boating, Hearst's Magazine, Harper's Bazaar, Good Housekeeping and Nash's Magazine of London.

PRESS PICTURES BANNED IN BRITISH LAW COURTS

UNDER a clause in the Criminal Justice Act, which came into force in England this month, it is now an offense involving a penalty of £50 to take or attempt to take in a law court any photograph for publication, or to make or attempt to make a sketch or portrait of any juryman, judge, witness, or party in any proceedings in the court.

It is also an offense to publish any such photograph or sketch, the penalty for infringement of this also being £50.

The law applies to courts, of justice, coroners' courts, and to pictures of judges, recorders, registrars, etc.

The picture must be made neither in the court itself nor the precincts thereof, nor of a person while he is entering or leaving the court or its precincts.

KNECHT SAYS FRENCH LACK U. S. NEWS

Urges Fuller Cable Reports as Aid to Peace and Progress—Delegates to A. A. C. W. Convention Luncheon Guests of New York Publishers

French newspapers are lacking in adequate cable news from America, according to Dr. Marcel Knecht, general secretary of Paris Le Matin, addressing guests to a luncheon given the French delegates to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World's convention. The Newspaper Publishers Association of New York City was host at the luncheon, and Fred A. Walker, association chairman, and publisher of the New York Evening Telegram, presided.

Dr. Knecht explained reasons for the lack of American news in French newspapers as due to the high cost of cable tolls and the small size of the French newspapers. Fuller cable reports, he said, would make the press "a gigantic instrument for peace, co-operation and economic progress in America and France."

"We come to America as colleagues," Dr. Knecht explained, "representing the newspapers of France, and we are on a pilgrimage of good will. We have come to meet the leaders of the American press, and to see if the actual interchange of news between our two countries is sufficient."

In conclusion, Dr. Knecht pleaded for less sentimentality in Franco-American relations.

Others who spoke at the luncheon were Leon Renier, Jr., commercial manager of the Havas Agency; Andre Kaminker, delegate from District 17 of the A.A.C.W., and James W. Brown, publisher of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

The French delegates, Marcel Knecht, Gilles Duroulet, Maj. Adrien Muller, Leon Ranier, Jr., Andre Kaminker, and Henry Dumay, Jr., were to arrive in Philadelphia either June 19 or 20.

Those attending included: Louis Wiley, business manager, and Hugh O'Donnell, assistant business manager, New York Times; Herbert F. Gunnison, Brooklyn Eagle; W. W. Craig, Brooklyn Standard Union; Julius Ochs Adler, New York Times, Mason Peters, New York Journal of Commerce, C. K. Woodbridge, A.A.C.W. president; C. C. Lane, business manager, New York Evening Post; A. B. Chivers, New York American; J. R. Waters, and Henry Ahern, New York Evening Graphic; S. M. Williams, New York World; J. C. Dayton, New York Journal; Edwin S. Friendly, New York Sun; Robert Creswell, New York Herald Tribune; Robert Remy, Washington correspondent, of Agence Havas of France; and L. B. Palmer, manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

ROBERTSON LIBEL SUIT vs. N. Y. NEWS ON TRIAL

Woman Who Lost Actions Against Times, World and Two Jersey Papers Pressed to Appear This Week by Tabloid's Counsel

Despite an appeal for delay, made by attorneys for the plaintiff, the $100,000 libel suit brought by Mrs. Sarah L. Robertson against the New York Daily News, went on trial this week before Judge McCook, in New York Supreme court.

After two weeks' trial a verdict against Mrs. Robertson and in favor of the New York World was opened June 7. The plaintiff had sought $135,000 from the World. The News case has been on the court calendar for some time marked ready. Mrs. Robertson pleaded illness in asking a delay, but MacDonald Dewitt, attorney for the News, obtained permission from the court to have a physician examine her, and when he reported her in condition to appear in court, trial opened.

Mrs. Robertson's suits against the Long Branch Record and the Asbury Park Press were tried together more than a year ago. The jury disagreed and they have not been retried. Suit against the New York Times on the same alleged libel was tried last April and a jury found a verdict in favor of the newspaper. The actions against the New York Sun and the New York Evening Telegram were consolidated and tried a few days after the trial of the Times' suit and a jury found a verdict of $5,000 each against both newspapers. The Sun and Telegram have appealed.

In all cases, Mrs. Robertson is objecting to published reports of an investigation by the police and public prosecutor of Monmouth County, N. J., following her arrest in February, 1922, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud Lloyds of London of $73,000 jewelry insurance by staging a fake hold-up and robbery at her home in Deal, N. J. Newspaper articles complained of reported that a few hours after her arrest, Mrs. Robertson had herself confessed to Gerard Luisi, chief investigator of Lloyds, and that she was ready to produce the "stolen" jewelry and name her accomplice if she was assured immunity. Mrs. Robertson was acquitted when tried on the criminal charge.

The World made a very careful and thorough inquiry into the past history of Mrs. Robertson. The inquiry covered cities and towns in many states from New York to California, and evidence was found which had not been available at earlier trials.

Mrs. Robertson was represented in the World trial by William Otis Badger, Jr., New York attorney, while Charles B. Brophy was the defense counsel.

The World in answer to Mrs. Robertson's complaint, pleaded justification—that the articles were true.

ATTORNEY CHARGES LIBEL

G. T. Kern Asks $10,000 Damages from Woodland (Cal.) Independent

John F. Garrette, publisher of the Woodland (Cal.) Independent, a bi-weekly newspaper, was named defendant in a $10,000 libel suit filed June 7, by District Attorney George T. Kern of Yolo County.

The suit is a sequel to a recent report of the Yolo County Grand Jury in which Kern's removal from office was asked. It also asked from Kern the return of $960 alleged to have been drawn from the county in payment of stenographer's wages when the county government act does not provide for such an expenditure.

Kern's suit is based upon an editorial in Garrette's paper in which the grand jury's report was reviewed.

Kern is seeking re-election at the August primary election.

MAY LINAGE FOR 30 CITIES SHOWS 6.8 PER CENT GAIN

FIGURES compiled by the New York Evening Post Statistical Department for the May advertising of 132 newspapers in 30 cities show a total gain of 6.8 percent. The comparative figures follow:

SUMMARY OF ADVERTISING BY CITIES

30 cities listed — 26 show gain — 4 show loss
132 papers listed — 92 show gain — 37 show loss
3 no comparison

	1926	1925
New York	16,324,002	14,839,352	1,484,650 Gain
Chicago	8,803,542	7,855,362	948,180 Gain
Philadelphia	7,626,797	7,199,352	427,445 Gain
Detroit	5,995,976	5,912,956	83,020 Gain
Cleveland	4,315,575	4,270,725	44,850 Gain
St. Louis	4,611,640	4,410,900	200,740 Gain
Boston	7,501,700	6,531,909	969,791 Gain
Baltimore	4,962,662	4,701,949	260,713 Gain
Los Angeles	7,440,254	7,304,266	135,988 Gain
†Buffalo	4,135,191	3,930,406	204,785 Gain
†San Francisco	5,075,521	5,101,195	25,674 Loss
Milwaukee	3,509,136	3,429,972	79,164 Gain
Washington	5,233,163	4,669,145	564,018 Gain
Cincinnati	3,892,800	3,515,400	377,400 Gain
New Orleans	4,438,086	3,792,929	645,157 Gain
Minneapolis	3,392,315	3,117,572	274,743 Gain
Seattle	3,221,176	2,918,322	302,854 Gain
Indianapolis	3,458,196	3,563,721	105,525 Loss
Denver	2,425,780	2,562,448	136,668 Loss
Providence	3,191,207	3,015,530	175,677 Gain
Columbus	3,888,294	3,376,686	511,608 Gain
Louisville	3,722,755	3,401,319	321,436 Gain
St. Paul	2,652,678	2,503,452	149,226 Gain
†Oakland	2,539,012	2,593,598	54,586 Loss
Omaha	2,250,598	2,072,658	177,940 Gain
Birmingham	2,963,534	2,639,924	323,610 Gain
Richmond	2,154,670	2,145,038	9,632 Gain
Dayton	3,142,790	3,096,744	46,046 Gain
Houston	3,091,004	2,961,658	129,346 Gain
†Des Moines	2,237,464	2,095,639	141,825 Gain
Totals	138,197,518	129,530,127	8,667,391 Gain

†Note references under individual newspaper linage of these cities.

NEW YORK

	1926	1925
American	1,246,514	1,305,710	59,196 Loss
Herald Trib.	1,755,726	1,420,874	334,852 Gain
Times	2,804,854	2,468,638	336,216 Gain
World	1,741,064	1,517,238	223,826 Gain
*Mirror (Tab)	297,460	342,240	44,780 Loss
News (Tab)	671,102	560,910	110,192 Gain
*Eve. Graphic	328,988	†286,218	42,770 Gain
*Eve. Journal	1,300,282	1,306,756	6,474 Loss
*Eve. Post	417,030	439,756	22,726 Loss
*Eve World	840,992	758,388	82,604 Gain
*Sun	1,379,052	1,224,274	154,778 Gain
*Telegram	510,600	614,762	104,162 Loss
Brooklyn Eagle	1,834,446	1,613,980	220,466 Gain
Brooklyn Times	655,606	425,146	230,460 Gain
Standard Union	540,286	554,462	14,176 Loss
Totals	16,324,002	14,839,352	1,484,650 Gain

†Sunday Graphic discontinued September 1, 1925; 146,790 lines for 5 Sundays included.

CHICAGO

	1926	1925
*Daily News	2,015,556	1,870,152	145,404 Gain
Tribune	3,138,804	2,890,938	247,866 Gain
Herald Exam.	1,170,489	1,107,126	63,363 Gain
*Post	494,892	482,394	12,498 Gain
*American	1,244,733	1,103,403	141,330 Gain
*Journal	739,068	401,349	337,719 Gain
Totals	8,803,542	7,855,362	948,180 Gain

PHILADELPHIA

	1926	1925
Inquirer	2,082,600	1,951,200	131,400 Gain
Record	755,100	780,600	25,500 Loss
Ledger	1,507,004	1,355,706	151,298 Gain
*Eve. Ledger	1,374,393	1,315,146	59,247 Gain
*Bulletin	1,907,700	1,796,700	111,000 Gain
Totals	7,626,797	7,199,352	427,445 Gain

DETROIT

	1926	1925
News	3,138,338	3,106,362	31,976 Gain
Times	1,183,350	1,174,488	8,862 Gain
Free Press	1,674,288	1,632,106	42,182 Gain
Totals	5,995,976	5,912,956	83,020 Gain

CLEVELAND

	1926	1925
Plain Dealer	1,811,775	1,816,275	4,500 Loss
News Leader	1,158,000	1,164,975	6,975 Loss
*Press	1,345,800	1,289,475	56,325 Gain
Totals	4,315,575	4,270,725	44,850 Gain

ST. LOUIS

	1926	1925
Post Dispatch	2,296,840	2,095,800	201,040 Gain
Globe Democ.	1,383,300	1,309,800	73,500 Gain
Star	584,700	694,500	109,800 Loss
Times	346,800	310,800	36,000 Gain
Totals	4,611,640	4,410,900	200,740 Gain

*No Sunday edition.

BOSTON

	1926	1925
Herald	1,623,627	1,306,508	317,119 Gain
Globe	1,596,693	1,428,057	168,636 Gain
Post	1,160,117	1,089,521	70,596 Gain
Advertiser	508,190	420,152	88,038 Gain
*American	429,436	387,016	42,420 Gain
*Traveler	1,171,709	964,369	207,340 Gain
*Transcript	772,780	687,040	85,740 Gain
*Telegram	239,148	249,246	10,098 Loss
Totals	7,501,700	6,531,909	969,791 Gain

BALTIMORE

	1926	1925
Sun	1,704,478	1,713,082	8,604 Loss
*Eve. Sun	1,651,759	1,506,881	144,878 Gain
American	588,624	573,545	15,079 Gain
*News	660,529	662,241	1,712 Loss
*Post	357,272	246,200	111,072 Gain
Totals	4,962,662	4,701,949	260,713 Gain

LOS ANGELES

	1926	1925
Times	2,415,910	2,313,836	102,074 Gain
Examiner	2,126,904	2,076,330	50,574 Gain
*Express	784,476	795,522	11,046 Loss
*Herald	1,489,124	1,431,836	57,288 Gain
*Record	419,986	420,252	266 Loss
News	203,854	266,490	62,636 Loss
Totals	7,440,254	7,304,266	135,988 Gain

BUFFALO

	1926	1925
Express	545,393	525,309	20,084 Gain
Courier	710,153	718,297	8,144 Loss
Post	.....	82,978	.....
Times	1,222,974	1,175,396	47,578 Gain
*Star	190,773	137,070	53,703 Gain
*News	1,465,898	1,291,356	174,542 Gain
Totals	4,135,191	3,930,406	204,785 Gain

Post discontinued February, 1926.

SAN FRANCISCO

	1926	1925
Chronicle	1,040,186	1,026,816	13,370 Gain
Examiner	1,795,419	1,787,437	7,982 Gain
Bulletin	596,064	643,916	47,852 Loss
*Call	940,296	845,642	94,654 Gain
*News	703,556	644,756	58,800 Gain
*Herald	.....	152,628	.....
Totals	5,075,521	5,101,195	25,674 Loss

Herald discontinued May 5, 1926.

MILWAUKEE

	1926	1925
Journal	1,893,770	1,718,094	175,676 Gain
S. T. & A. M. Sentinel	690,079	727,034	36,955 Loss
*Leader	263,265	246,984	16,281 Gain
*Wis. News	662,022	737,860	75,838 Loss
Totals	3,509,136	3,429,972	79,164 Gain

WASHINGTON

	1926	1925
Star	2,631,669	2,343,077	288,592 Gain
*Post	1,041,114	938,601	102,513 Gain
*Eve. Times	687,940	743,682	55,742 Loss
Herald	656,376	489,802	166,574 Gain
*Eve. News	216,064	153,983	62,081 Gain
Totals	5,233,163	4,669,145	564,018 Gain

CINCINNATI

	1926	1925
*Post	887,100	767,700	119,400 Gain
*Times Star	1,323,000	1,199,100	123,900 Gain
Enquirer	1,374,900	1,262,100	112,800 Gain
Tribune	307,800	286,500	21,300 Gain
Totals	3,892,800	3,515,400	377,400 Gain

NEW ORLEANS

	1926	1925
Times Picay.	1,877,346	1,571,870	305,476 Gain
Item	1,004,639	1,006,416	1,777 Loss
States	912,878	797,847	115,031 Gain
*Tribune	643,223	416,796	226,427 Gain
Totals	4,438,086	3,792,929	645,157 Gain

MINNEAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,407,016	1,347,305	59,711 Gain
Journal	1,465,764	1,298,819	166,945 Gain
*Star	519,535	471,448	48,087 Gain
Totals	3,392,315	3,117,572	274,743 Gain

SEATTLE

	1926	1925
Times	1,528,016	1,399,398	128,618 Gain
Post Intellig.	980,168	791,672	188,496 Gain
*Star	604,674	621,810	17,136 Loss
*Union-Record	108,318	105,442	2,876 Gain
Totals	3,221,176	2,918,322	302,854 Gain

INDIANAPOLIS

	1926	1925
*News	1,677,459	1,635,759	41,700 Gain
Star	1,264,176	1,307,826	43,650 Loss
*Times	516,561	620,136	103,575 Loss
Totals	3,458,196	2,563,721	105,525 Loss

DENVER

	1926	1925
News	566,496	649,936	83,440 Loss
Post	1,433,488	1,393,364	40,124 Gain
*Times	425,796	519,148	93,352 Loss
Totals	2,425,780	2,562,448	136,668 Loss

PROVIDENCE

	1926	1925
Journal	1,046,249	975,293	70,956 Gain
*Bulletin	1,286,083	1,191,139	94,944 Gain
Tribune	435,830	407,386	28,444 Gain
*News	423,045	441,712	18,667 Loss
Totals	3,191,207	3,015,530	175,677 Gain

COLUMBUS

	1926	1925
Dispatch	2,086,723	1,883,297	203,416 Gain
Journal	744,145	648,706	95,437 Gain
*Citizen	1,057,428	844,683	212,745 Gain
Totals	3,888,294	3,376,686	511,608 Gain

LOUISVILLE

	1926	1925
Cour. Journal	1,433,358	1,306,086	127,272 Gain
Herald Post	674,921	704,457	29,536 Loss
*Times	1,131,391	968,411	162,980 Gain
*Post	483,085	422,365	60,720 Gain
Totals	3,722,755	3,401,319	321,436 Gain

ST. PAUL

	1926	1925
*Dispatch	895,006	842,184	52,822 Gain
Pioneer Press	1,014,286	903,854	110,432 Gain
News	743,386	757,414	14,028 Loss
Totals	2,652,678	2,503,452	149,226 Gain

OAKLAND

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,704,906	1,733,382	28,476 Loss
*Post Inquirer	834,106	776,132	57,974 Gain
*Record	.....	84,084	.....
Totals	2,539,012	2,593,598	54,586 Loss

Record discontinued October 24, 1925.

OMAHA

	1926	1925
World Herald	1,219,799	1,042,370	177,429 Gain
Bee	555,625	522,151	33,474 Gain
News	475,174	508,137	32,963 Loss
Totals	2,250,598	2,072,658	177,940 Gain

BIRMINGHAM

	1926	1925
Age Herald	749,014	737,884	11,130 Gain
News	1,691,942	1,495,830	196,112 Gain
*Post	522,578	406,210	116,368 Gain
Totals	2,963,534	2,639,924	323,610 Gain

RICHMOND

	1926	1925
*News Leader	1,176,056	1,117,536	58,520 Gain
Times-Dispatch	978,614	1,027,502	48,888 Loss
Totals	2,154,670	2,145,038	9,632 Gain

DAYTON

	1926	1925
News	1,541,484	1,508,710	32,774 Gain
*Herald	902,734	859,642	43,092 Gain
Journal	698,572	728,392	29,820 Loss
Totals	3,142,790	3,096,744	46,046 Gain

HOUSTON

	1926	1925
Chronicle	1,392,188	1,369,690	22,498 Gain
Post-Dispatch	1,170,988	1,008,014	162,974 Gain
*Press	527,828	583,954	56,126 Loss
Totals	3,091,004	2,961,658	129,346 Gain

DES MOINES

	1926	1925
Register	812,751	692,049	120,702 Gain
*Tribune	907,792	772,236	135,556 Gain
*Capital	516,921	‡631,354	114,433 Loss
Totals	2,237,464	2,095,639	141,825 Gain

‡Sunday Capital discontinued with February 21, 1926, issue. Includes 62,488 linage Sunday issue.

*No Sunday edition.

News Covers Detroit

More Thoroughly Than Ever

The Detroit News has 87% of its circulation concentrated in this era—the natural and logical trading area of Detroit.

36,000 Circulation Increase Sunday Over a Year Ago

28,000 Increase Weekdays Over a Year Ago

Advertisers in the Detroit market employing Detroit's one big medium enjoy the rare good fortune of obtaining an always greater coverage of the market than they anticipated. Between May, 1925, for example, and May, 1926, The News increased 36,000 Sunday and 28,080 weekday circulation, bringing its total circulation to 350,000 Sunday and 320,000 weekdays. That The News thoroughly covers the homes of its field is best evidenced by the survey now in progress of all sections of Detroit. Below is reproduced some typical results of the survey, covering every type of district from the wealthiest to the most modest.

Observe Percentage of Coverage Enjoyed By News

Every Type of Home Is Covered by This Survey	Total Homes in Neighborhood	Homes Canvassed Reading English	Homes Where Detroit News Is Read	Percentage of Coverage by The Detroit News
District A	124	103	98	95%
District B	143	139	133	96%
District C	58	52	43	83%
District D	219	211	209	95%
District E	118	106	97	91%
	90	85	82	96½%
District F	119	109	98	90%
District H	136	120	110	92%
District I	161	125	112	90%
District J	84	79	68	86%
District K	83	79	63	80%
District L	112	104	74	71%
District M	108	71	56	80%

The Detroit News

Detroit's HOME Newspaper

350,000 Sunday Circulation 320,000 Week Day Circulation

KANSAS CITY STAR TRUSTEES REQUEST BIDS FOR DAILY BY JUNE 30

Nelson Estate Trustees Issue Call to Prospective Purchasers—Chamber of Commerce Organ Protest Sale to "Outsiders"—William Allen White Says Financiers Want "Its Freedom"

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 15.—Local interest in the sale of the Kansas City Star was stirred Tuesday by the action of the Chamber of Commerce when it printed in its publiction, The Kansas Cityian an article against outside ownership of the local newspaper. The article which was headed "A Real Danger to Kansas City" followed the announcement Sunday by the trustees that they had sent to all prospective purchasers a letter asking them to have their offers in the trustees' hands by June 30. The trustees' letter said:

"Since the announcement on May 14, of our readiness to furnish information to prospective purchasers of the Kansas City Star, we have supplied information to a considerable number, several of whom have announced their readiness and desire to submit offers.

"It is our purpose to avoid undue delay by having offers in hand before the vacation period arrives and, therefore, request that offers be submitted for our consideration by June 30, 1926.—William Volker; J. C. Nichols; Herbert V. Jones.

"(University trustees, the William Rockhill Nelson Trust)"

The Chamber of Commerce article was inspired largely by the reports in other Kansas City newspapers that among those who were prospective purchasers were several chain newspaper owners with headquarters in other cities. Also it has been reported that two syndicates in St. Louis had been formed to buy the Star. One of them was headed by a well known St. Louis banker backing Frank Glass and the other was a group of capitalists and politicians backing Morton Jourdon, St. Loius lawyer.

Other prospective purchasers whose names have been printed by Kansas City newspapers are Luke Lea, owner of the Nashville Tennesseean and other southern newspapers; Frank Gannet who heads a chain of newspapers in New York State; the Booth Publishing Company which has a chain of state papers in Michigan; Roy Howard of Scripps-Howard Newspapers; F. G. Bonfils of the Denver Post; H. V. Jones of the Minneapolis Journal and the present organization of the Star headed by Irwin Kirkwood, editor. It is not known whether this list is correct as the trustees have declined to make public the names of those who sought information.

The Chamber of Commerce article says in part:

"Now that the Star is to be sold, its future control becomes of tremendous importance to this city. Is it to continue to be conducted by Kansas City men, or is it to pass to the direction of outsiders?

"The Star itself has been silent on the situation. But it is known from publication in other newspapers, and from common report, that outside interests are considering bidding for the property. St. Louis syndicates are understood to be making inquiries. Several owners of chains of newspapers are reported to be among the prospective purchasers.

"The Star has been one of the great aggressive forces for Kansas City development in season and out. Suppose this force should come under control of St. Louis capitalists! Suppose the Star should become a branch house, one of a chain of newspapers directed from some eastern city! Could there be any greater blow to the progress of Kansas City?

"The possibility of the situation developing in a way to tend to make Kansas City 'the vassal of St. Louis, financially and politically' has attracted attention in all our territory. William Allen White writes of it in the Emporia Gazette:

"'Kansas City people should know that the wolves are gathering to attack them. Down in St. Louis is a well known financial concern. This crowd is forming like a wolf pack to attack Kansas City, to make it a vassal of St. Louis financially and politically by buying the Kansas City Star.

"'The Star looks like a good buy to that outfit. For the wolves believe that they will be buying the only thing of value in it—its freedom, its good name, and the fine talent of men who have made the Star. These things seem to be in the market. But they are not. Let one breath of scandal touch the Star—a scandal based on obvious fact and not on patent malice, and over-night the chief assets of the Star will vanish.'"

The Chamber of Commerce article after quoting William Allen White, concludes with this statement:

"A real crisis confronts the city. The possibility of foreign control of this vital exponent of Kansas City's progress has seemed preposterous, incredible. But nevertheless we must recognize that it exists. Such an outcome could be regarded only as a public calamity."

Lou Holland, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said today he would feel other than agitated about the sale of any Kansas City institution to interests with headquarters in other cities. He said the Chamber of Commerce directors had gone on record unanimously as opposed to outside ownership.

The value of the Star has not been indicated in any way by the trustees.

The will of Colonel W. R. Nelson provided for the sale of the newspaper within two years after the death of his daughter, Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood. Mrs. Kirkwood died Feb. 27 last. The entire Nelson estate was left for founding an art collection for Kansas City.

PARDON DENIED EDITOR IN JAIL FOR CONTEMPT

Alfred Lindsley, of Eureka, Cal., Sentenced to $2,000 Fine or 1,000 Days in Jail—Must Serve His Term

Alfred Lindsley, former editor of the Eureka (Cal.) Humboldt Standard confined in the Humboldt County jail for contempt of court was refused a pardon recently by Governor Friend W. Richardson, who is himself a newspaper publisher. Lindsley is serving a 1,000 day sentence in lieu of a $2,000 fine.

The editor, who was found guilty of publishing articles for the deliberate purpose of influencing the judgment of jurors and witnesses, embarrassing the Judge and interfering with the administration of justice, claimed that the sentence imposed was excessive.

Governor Richardson issued a statement saying:

"The question of the liberty of the press is not involved in this case. The contempt was based upon the finding of the superior court that Lindsley had published four articles in his newspaper for the deliberate purpose of influencing the judgment of juror and witnesses, to embarrass the judge, and to interfere with the administration of justice.

"Lindsley did not deny that his purpose in publishing the articles was to interfere with the administration of justice. His application for pardon is based upon a plea that the sentence was excessive.

"Lindsley has had his day in court and his case has been passed upon by the Appellate and Supreme Courts of this state. His legal and constitutional rights have not been violated. The issue presented to me is one of maintaining respect for the courts and a fair trial for those charged with crime and has nothing to do with the liberty of the press. A fair trial, in my opinion means not only one which is fair to the accused but also fair to the people. The rights of the people must be considered as well as the rights of the one accused. The sentence of Lindsley should stand, in my opinion, and he deserves the punishment inflicted. He attempted to interfere with the administration of justice and exhibited contempt for the courts.

"After carefully reviewing the case I am convinced that Lindsley's acts are not a credit to the journalistic profession, and that he does not deserve the sympathy of any respectable newspaper publisher or editor."

DAILY IN RECEIVERSHIP

Muskogee (Okla.) Press Lists Liabilities at $120,937, Assets $58,850

Listing liabilities at more than twice the total assets, the Eastern Oklahoma Publishing Company, owners of the Muskogee Press, have filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in federal district court.

Liabilities listed in the petition total $120,937.65 and total assets are placed at $58,850.

The corporation was adjudged a bankrupt by the federal court and A. O. Fuller, business manager of the paper, was named receiver.

The company was organized two years ago but only recently assumed control of the Press, which was formerly known as the Muskogee News.

COAST AD CLUBS TO MEET JULY 5-8

3,000 Expected to Attend 23rd Annual Convention at San Francisco—Lou Holland, Bruce Barton to Speak

More than 3,000 members of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs' Association will attend the 23d annual convention of the organization in San Francisco, July 5-8. It will mark the first convention to which non-members have been admitted. One thousand admission coupon books have been sold. According to Don E. Gilman, president of the association, the program arranged is on the same scale as that of a national convention.

Among the speakers scheduled are:

Wallace R. Farrington, governor of the Hawaiian Islands; Lew Hahn, managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, New York City; Alvin Dodd, United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C.; Lou E. Holland, president of the National Better Business Bureau, Inc.; Bruce Barton, of Barton, Durstine & Osborn, New York City; Dr. Alexander Fleisher, San Francisco; Dr. W. E. Hotchkiss, dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Stanford University, and C. King Woodbridge, president of Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Broad street, the main north and south street in Philadelphia, is the longest, broad, straight street in the United States, being 14 miles in length.

Today in Jacksonville

Another hostelry—the George Washington—breaks ground for a 13-story structure . . . 350 guest rooms . . . an investment of $1,500,000 . . . Evidence of the preparation for the growth of this city . . . Jacksonville goes on to its radiant future without abeyance.

And its favorite newspaper—the accepted ritual of this community—continues to grow in circulation and lineage. A good town and a great newspaper keep abreast of the times.

The Florida Times-Union
~ JACKSONVILLE ~

DAILY 53,000 SUNDAY 70,000

QUALITY DOMINANCE!

Here's the quality-story that May told in Los Angeles. The Examiner was, naturally,.....

FIRST in Automobiles

FIRST in Furniture

FIRST in Jewelry

FIRST in Musical Instruments

FIRST in Furs

FIRST in Radio

FIRST in Building Materials

FIRST in Toilet Requisites

—and FIRST in many other important classifications!

To reach mass-class buying-power, you NEED The Examiner in Los Angeles. The people who buy The Examiner pay more for it than they would have to pay for any other newspaper in Los Angeles, and they are not lured by premium inducements; sheer merit is the Examiner's only attraction to its great reader-audience. ..... The Examiner's Merchandising Service Department is the most effective west of Chicago.

170,000 DAILY Los Angeles Examiner

CHARACTER QUALITY AMERICA FIRST! ENTERPRISE ACCURACY

AN AMERICAN PAPER FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE — THE GREAT NEWSPAPER OF THE GREAT SOUTHWEST

LARGEST morning & Sunday circulation west of St. Louis

390,000 SUNDAY

T. C. HOFFMEYER
Pacific Coast Representative
571 Monadnock Bldg.
Telephone Garfield 2858
San Francisco

W. W. CHEW
Eastern Representative
Room 1512—285 Madison Ave.
Telephone Caledonia 2093
New York City

WM. H. WILSON
Western Representative
915 Hearst Bldg.
Telephone Main 5000
Chicago

DELAWARE RIVER BRIDGE A GIGANTIC ENGINEERING UNDERTAKING

Tremendous Structure Supports Longest Suspension Span in the World—1750 Feet Between Piers—Total Length 1¾ Miles—Will Cost $37,211,143 Completed

THE tremendous bridge spanning the Delaware River between Philadelphia and Camden, now in the course of erection, and to be opened to traffic on July 4, 1926, will stand as one of the notable achievements of the present century. Delegates to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World will cross the span two weeks in advance of its official opening. The span between the piers, 1,750 feet, will be the longest in the world for a bridge of suspension type, and the whole structure, from the Philadelphia entrance at Sixth and Race streets, to the Camden entrance at Sixth and Penn streets, will be 9,570 feet long, or about one and three-quarter miles. The vehicular capacity of the bridge is figured for such accommodations as may be required a decade hence.

In 1918, the legislatures of Pennsylvania and New Jersey and the City Council of Philadelphia made the first appropriations for the project. Since that year the project has been financed by the two States and by the City of Philadelphia.

The first construction contract, that for the two main piers, was let in December, 1921. The engineer in charge is Ralph Modjeski.

The main piers upon which the colossal towers rest are composed of solid concrete, faced with Georgia granite down to the bed of the river. These piers rest far below the river, upon solid, everlasting rock.

The Philadelphia pier goes down approximately 65 feet, but as the rock formation slopes downward toward New Jersey territory, the engineers found it necessary to dig about 20 feet deeper for the Camden pier.

The anchorages, also constructed of concrete, likewise rest upon solid rock, and their depths are approximately the same as those of the piers, although the Camden anchorage is twenty feet deeper. Into these anchorages are embedded huge steel girders, to which are fastened by giant bolts the great steel bars to which the wires of the cables are attached, assuring absolute strength and safety for the enormous loads which the bridge will be called upon to carry. The engineers have estimated that under maximum congested traffic this load will be equivalent to 12,000 pounds per lineal foot.

The great burden of the bridge and its vehicular and pedestrian load, will in the final analysis be borne by the two enormous cables, the largest ever constructed anywhere in the world. These cables will be composed of myriad wires, not quite so thick as an ordinary lead pencil. Each wire has been put to the severest tests for strength. When all the wires are in place, a wrapping machine will revolve around them, tightly covering them with still other wires, and forming a solid mass 30 inches in diameter.

If all these wires could be placed end to end, their total length would form a steel band long enough to go around the earth, with 100 miles to lap over.

Some interesting figures concerning the bridge follow:

Steel in bridge, 50,000 tons.
Masonry in bridge, 320,000 cu. yards.
Length of bridge, 1.81 miles.
Vehicular capacity of bridge—6,000 per hour.

Estimated Cost of Bridge:
Main Bridge	$15,632,000
Philadelphia Approach	5,121,677
Camden Approach	3,663,800
	$24,417,477
Cost of Construction, Real Estate, Philadelphia; Real Estate, Camden, etc.	12,793,666
Total Cost of Bridge	$37,211,143

Moore Rejoins Hearst Staff

Louis J. F. Moore, for five years advertising promotion manager of the New York Evening Journal, has resigned as advertising manager of the Murok Realty Corporation, St. Petersburg, Fla., to join the promotion department of the Hearst Newspapers, New York.

Hepner to Join Japan Advertiser

Harold S. Hepner, former newspaper man of Walla Walla, Wash., and Mrs. Hepner have left Vancouver, B. C., for Tokio, Japan, where Mr. Hepner will be connected with the Japan Advertiser.

CHANGES ON TULSA TRIBUNE

Business and Editorial Shifts Announced by Richard Lloyd Jones

Changes in both business and editorial personnel for the Tulsa (Okla.) Daily Tribune were announced recently by Richard Lloyd Jones, editor and publisher, made necessary, he said, by the growth of the paper.

RICHARD L. JONES

Changes announced are as follows:

Crawford Wheeler, national advertising manager, to business manager, succeeding W. B. Dimon, resigned on account of ill health. Mr. Wheeler was formerly associate editor of the Tribune.

Charles M. Barde, advertising manager, to promotion advertising manager, a new department.

Lewis R. Malone, assistant local advertising manager to manager.

H. W. Hussey, local advertising staff to national advertising manager.

J. T. Cargile, acting in place of Mr. Dimon, remains as treasurer.

R. C. Orlopp, for 10 years an assistant in the circulation department of the Indianapolis News, has been made circulation manager succeeding J. V. Hollett, resigned. Mr. Hollett goes to California on account of Mrs. Hollett's health.

In the news department, the following changes are made: Joseph Meyers, to news editor; John Booker, telegraph editor; Joseph Brandt, city editor; A. O. Hart, copy editor; Manton Marrs, copy desk; Mrs. Dorothy Emery, copy editor, reporter; Joseph Morris, reporter; W. C. Anderson, reporter.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

Staten Island, New York, Advance Says—

"The longer we live with our DUPLEX TUBULAR press, the better we like it."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

The INDIANAPOLIS NEWS

Leadership is not won in a day. The supremacy of The Indianapolis News has been 56 years in building. And with each year its leadership increases. Witness the new national linage records of March and April!

Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42nd
NEW YORK

J. E. Lutz
Tower Bldg.
CHICAGO

Frank T. Carroll,
Advertising Director

The First in each country!

Advertisers who are desirous of covering Latin-America's logical markets for American goods in an efficient manner, yet at the lowest possible cost, will find it decidedly to their advantage to use the publications on this list, each dominant in its respective field. This office is maintained by the following leading publications of Latin-America, with us in charge, for the purpose of assisting American manufacturers and advertising agencies to develop their business with the markets which these publications serve and dominate.

ARGENTINA
La Nacion Buenos Aires
Mundo Argentino
El Hogar
Don Goyo

BOLIVIA
La Republica La Paz

BRAZIL
Diario De Pernambuco Pernambuco
Revista Da Semana
Eu Sei Tudo
A Scena Muda
Almanach Eu Sei Tudo Rio De Janeiro

CHILE
El Mercurio Santiago, Valparaiso, Antofagasta
Zig-Zag
Sucesos
Familia
Los Sports
Corre Vuela

COLOMBIA
El Espectador Bogota

CUBA
El Mundo Habana
Bohemia
Elegancias

ECUADOR
El Guante Guayaquil

PARAGUAY
El Diario Asunción

PERU
El Comercio Lima
La Cronica Lima
Variedades
Mundial

URUGUAY
Diario Del Plata
El Plata Montevideo
Mundo Uruguayo

S. S. KOPPE & CO., Inc.
Publishers' Representative
TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK CITY
Bryant 6900

A Page from The Christian Science Monitor

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, BOSTON, FRIDAY, JUNE 4, 1926 19

AUSTRALIA SEEKS SOLUTION OF ITS BLACK RACE PROBLEMS

Legislative Authorities Discuss Proposal to Form Aboriginal State and Give Natives Parliamentary Representation—Plan Meets Severe Criticism

ADELAIDE, S. Aus., May 1 (Special Correspondence)—The future of the native black races in Australia presents to the responsible authorities a many-sided problem. South Australia has been far more active than any other state in endeavoring to find a solution, but the latest proposal has been vigorously criticised, although, to some extent, misunderstood. Some time ago a public meeting was held to devise a scheme for preserving the fast-disappearing remnant of the pioneers of the continent. It was felt that as civilization and the extension of railroads were restricting the hunting grounds, and the natives their food resources, definite measures of protection ought to be taken.

The movement, prompted by humanitarian impulses, was supported by pastoralists and others, and now a petition has been drawn for presentation to the Federal government, urging the establishment of a separate aboriginal state in Australia. The object of this, within this area various tribes to place the administration in the hands of a native board, which gradually to have also a native administrator.

Trespass upon this state by white people is to be strictly forbidden, while native rites and customs would be permitted, any brutality now known to be practised by blacks are to cease under penalties. Parliamentary representation of this state, it is proposed, should be granted on the same basis as to those extended to the Maoris of New Zealand.

Some Shining Exceptions

Taking the proposals as they must be regarded as practicable in what they seek to do, but there are serious objections to the plan. This much may be said, that the mentality of the average native blacks is by no means as low as many have imagined; indeed, in some cases remarkably high, as compared to the far-stretching Australian wilderness in the northwest. Australia's Deacon James Noble, a full-blooded black of much learning and eloquence and an emotional fervor that has stirred large white congregations in the cities. James Noble, in association with Bishop Trowar, is working for the evangelization of the natives in that enormous district, and fine success is attending his efforts.

Another distinguished aboriginal is David Unaipon. He is now engaged under the auspices of the Adelaide University, collecting folk lore and legends from native tribes of Central Australia to preserve a record that should be priceless in the approaching years of their extinction.

The third notable black is Jacob Harris, from the Point MacLeay Mission Station in South Australia, who has just taken part in the Australian draughts championships held in Adelaide. This was the first time that a native had participated, and considering Harris was self-taught, had never seen any published books on the game and his knowledge rested solely upon his own study of its rules, his accomplishment was remarkable. This aboriginal met his champions from every state in Australia, and he had never previously appeared in a tournament of any kind. In fact, he was reluctant to measure his skill on this great occasion, because he was almost childishly modest and shy. But experts who had seen him play recognized that he was a potential champion, and forced him into the competition.

His record was: Played 23 games won eight, drew seven, and lost eight. Finally he was defeated in the second round for the championship by the Victorian champion, J. Boyles, but excluding the actual final, he won as many games as any competitor. The black received hearty congratulations upon his performance and was presented with many books on the game. His appearance at the next Australian championships, to be held in Tasmania, in Easter, 1927, will be watched with considerable interest.

Shorthand Expert

If the name of still another remarkable Australian black may be mentioned it is that of the late Matthew Kropinyeri, who, without any instruction, mastered shorthand and attained a high speed. He was also something of a classical scholar, like Unaipon, and an orator in his way.

These four instances may be said to dispose of any doubt about how the mentality of the Australian blacks can be developed by self-educating the rough material, but the wisdom of creating a separate state for them and giving them control of it is certainly open to question. They can hardly be expected to have any capacity for executive responsibility. All they require is ample hunting grounds, away from the influences of white civilization and so far as possible to be left severely alone.

The black in his unfettered natural haunts is a majestic figure and his physical fitness and domestic harmony are insured by the orderly routine of his traditional life. He is a nomad, loving the unfenced freedom of the wilds.

Where the aboriginals do get in touch with white civilization the various governments provide food and clothing, which are distributed from recognized depots at certain seasons of the year. There is already a large area in reserve for the blacks in South Australia, far away north toward the border of Western Australia. The proposal to give the suggested aboriginal state representation in the Federal Parliament is too fanciful to justify a moment's consideration. There are not many Nobles, Unaipons, Jacobs and Kropinyeris.

Opposes Segregation

One authority, Hugh Morton Frewin, writing in the Register about the idea of an aboriginal state, criticizes as most dangerous any proposal to gather the natives from the four corners of Australia, because they happen to have a common, but exceedingly remote ancestry, and expect them to thrive under new climatic conditions and live amicably with neighbors of alien disposition, race and speech.

"Every true Australian must look forward to, and prepare for, a time when our great, unpeopled wastes will cease to be wastes and the latent wealth and potential resources of our country will be fully developed," he says. "The aborigine must inevitably conform to the new conditions and so evolve into something different."

What the Churches Are Doing

Of particular interest at the moment are the remarks of the new Dr. Herbert Basedow of Adelaide, who has an international reputation as an anthropologist, has a great admiration for the skill of the Australian aboriginals as hunters. He dismisses the suggestion of a well-known French investigator that the black is dominated by an irrepressible belief, in magical influences in every sphere of his existence. The Australian native, he explains, has developed a technical solution of his difficulties in attaining food supplies. Every tribe educates its children in order that they may become scientifically proficient and capable of obtaining the daily bread.

AMERICA MAY BUILD SHANGHAI CONSULATE

Better Housing Facilities for Consular Staff Desired

SHANGHAI, May 10 (Special Correspondence)—It is expected here that the proposed appropriation of $10,000,000 for the purpose of securing better housing facilities for the American Foreign Service in various parts of the world will include provision for an entirely new Consulate-General, to be constructed in the American quarter of Shanghai on the bank of the Huangpu River near the site of the present building.

The Consulate-General in Shanghai is one of the largest and most important in the service. In addition to the usual functions of such an establishment it includes the Consular Administrative Court, in which one of the consular staff detailed from Washington for that specific purpose presides over such litigation as may develop among the 4000 American residents of the International Settlement.

This is the arrangement for all foreign nations under the extra-territoriality system, although when the litigation involves Chinese persons or interests there is a mixed international court with a Chinese member. In addition to the Administrative Court, the peculiar and unique conditions existing in Shanghai make many other unusual demands upon the consulate and its very large staff, which numbers between 30 and 40 people in the inclusion of Chinese clerks, interpreters, messengers and servants.

The present housing facilities are very inadequate in the matter of space, and in many respects inconveniently arranged for the immense business which now requires to be transacted from day to day. All the American interests in Shanghai have urged Washington repeatedly to provide for some relief in the premises, and it is expected that these efforts will presently avail.

HISTORIC BUILDING TO BE MADE INTO OFFICES

Special from Monitor Bureau

LONDON—A bit of early American history is recalled by the news from Kirkcudbright, Scot., of the remodelling of the old Bay House there into offices for the County Council. At the laying of the corner stone of the building with Masonic honors nearly two centuries ago, it is recorded that among those present was a young Freemason of the town whose name has since been placed high on the roll of American patriots—John Paul Jones. Many years later Jones, as a privateer, returned to the town in command of a ship flying the American colors, and his crew, it was charged, looted the house of the Earl of Selkirk for which act the seafighter was rebuked by Benjamin Franklin in Paris. It was at the Earl of Selkirk's house on another occasion that Robert Burns gave the famous Selkirk grace:

"Some ha'e meat, and canna eat,
And some wad eat that want it,
But we ha'e meat, and we can eat,
And sae the Lord be thank'it."

What They are Saying

JOHN ERSKINE: "Happiness continues to be a by-product. Those who try for it directly find themselves baffled."

SENATOR BORAH: "The train may be crowded with delegates to the anti-prohibition convention, but they would mob the engineer who would take a drink while drawing his precious freight!"

SENATOR CUMMINS: "Every time a man pays more for a manufactured article than he would have paid if an import duty had not been laid upon it, he pays a subsidy."

...FILED ROBBINS: "Cracking, like oakum picking, is slowly dwindling British oddity."

...E HURST: "There is nothing wrong with the present Prohibition home. It is an safe and sane as it ever was."

...RNOT SIMONS: "As you can individual, there is some purpose in being here, some purpose in life; you must count for the world and help its moving up."

...IP MANNING: "Religion would make a person happy and calm in his daily life."

...ROACH STRATON: "Jazz is bandit music, bootleg music, and springs from the same spirit that is behind revolution."

...W. L. LAWTON: "The Scrapbook is no place for advertising."

...W. R. BOORMAN: "Some people seem to think that leadership is best expressed in finding out what people dislike and then making them do it."

WILLIAM GREEN: "The church must demand that Christianity should not only be taught and professed, but also that it must be applied in human, industrial, and business relationship."

QUEER SERVICES OF TRADE ORGANIZATION

Special from Monitor Bureau

LONDON—Trade and official organizations in Great Britain find many an oasis in the deserts of fact which they labor. The London Association for the Protection of Trade, which represents 370 city businesses, and carried out 220,000 investigations for them last year, reports that one of its inquiries concerned the discovery of "where water from the River Jordan can be purchased in London." Other of its services, referred to by Sir Douglas Hogg, Attorney-General, who attended its annual luncheon, were "the escorting of a member's daughter and the purchasing of a hat for a member's wife."

The Government stationery office, which deals in official bluebooks, occasionally has somewhat peculiar experiences. Its last catalogue includes George A. Birmingham's "Spanish Gold." The explanation of the inclusion of this vivacious novel among Government statistics is simple. It is that there were surplus copies to be disposed of from a set purchased for candidates for a civil service examination, in which the work was included in the syllabus for English literature. "Spanish Gold" has as good an explanation, therefore, as the lady's hat of the surroundings in which it has been found.

HUNGARY MAKES GOOD INDUSTRIAL SHOWING

BUDAPEST, May 20 (Special Correspondence)—Hungary's industries had by the close of 1925 recovered to within 93 per cent of the production corresponding to figures just issued by the Central Statistical Bureau. Some industries have gained remarkably, while others, as might be expected, show considerable decreases. The production, for example, in the textile, clothing, leather, foodstuffs, and electrical power branches of Hungarian industry, have gone up in some cases as much as 100 per cent in the 11 years since 1913.

On the other hand, the iron, metal, machine, stone, glass, wood, paper and chemical industries have dropped in production during this time, although in no case as much as 100 per cent. The value of the total production in 1913 amounted to 1,640,000,000 gold crowns ($328,000,000) as compared with 1,530,000,000 gold crowns ($306,000,000) for 1924.

Local Classified

Other Than United States and Canada

Advertisements under this heading appear in this edition only. Rate 1/—a line. Minimum space three lines, minimum order four lines. (An advertisement measuring three lines must call for at least two insertions.)

REAL ESTATE

FOR SALE—A block of land. Apply M. B. PORT, Adelaide Street, Palmyra, Western Australia.

PAYING GUESTS RECEIVED

FRANCE, Vichy Paris—Excellent accommodation will be found during the summer months at "Hyrabelle," well appointed modern villa; every convenience, 25 minutes south from Paris. MME. ANTOINE, 10 Rue Jean Dupuis Marie, Neuve-Ville d'Auvray (S. & O.). Phone Sèvres 42.

MADAME ALAVOINE, 22 Rue Pasquier Paris (near Msdlel), receives paying guests; all comforts. Phone Passy 42-96.

FRENCH LESSONS

PARIS, FRANCE—French taught by practical Parisian method. COMMANDANT CUNIER, 20 Boulevard d'Inkermann, Neuilly-sur-Seine. Tel. Wagram 39.01.

Local Classified

Other Than United States and Canada

Advertisements under this heading appear in this edition only. Rate 1/- a line. Minimum space three lines, minimum order four lines. (An advertisement measuring three lines must call for at least two insertions.)

HOLIDAY RESORTS

An Ideal Family Holiday Resort

THE JESSON CLUB is a RESIDENTIAL and SOCIAL CLUB, situated in its own grounds by the seashore, near Dymchurch, close to Littlestone Golf Club; enlarged and redecorated, safe bathing, 3 Pavilion hard courts, 3 grass courts and garages, excellent cuisine & service; temporary members welcome. Apply SECRETARY, Jesson Club, near New Romney, Kent, England

TO LET—FURNISHED

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN—Rooms with all confidence, during the summers, for visitors to Stockholm inside if desired. Please apply to MISS M. L. LUNDBORG, 132 Valhallavägen. Tel. 74617.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE

LONDON—Cosy, comfortable clean; Arden House, 69/61 Princes Square, Bayswater, W. 2; stands in large gardens, inclusive terms from 45/- per week; no extras; liberal table; gas fires. Park 3792.

BERTOLINI'S PENSION—FLORENCE
8 Via Palestro
Central heating and bath. Moderate terms

HOME—Albion Preston, 186 Via Sicilia (23); Lotoria Quarter; quiet location close to tram lines.

TEACHERS

MILANO, ITALY
Teachers, Maestro Manno, Teacher of Voice Production and prepares for operatic stage, diploma from the Royal Conservatorio of Palermo, excellent Italian diction. Via Leco 2

POST WANTED

GENTLEMAN (Welsh), much travelled, speaking and writing fluent French, likewise little colloquial German, possessing organizing and executive ability, capable living responsibilities from busy executives shoulders, is open to position of real responsibility where right activity is desired. Box 25, The Christian Science Monitor, 56, Faubourg St.-Honoré, Paris.

TEACHER'S POST WANTED

CAMBRIDGE GRADUATE, Blundells and King's, young athlete, with teaching experience seeks post. Box K-33, The Christian Science Monitor, 2 Adelphi Terrace, London, W. C. 2.

City Headings

DENMARK
Copenhagen

STAMPS
Great Variety in Scandinavian Stamps, Reasonable Prices
M. H. PETERSEN
Frederiksgade 14. Tel. Palae 2715X

MISS JULIE BRONDSTED
Teacher in DANISH, ENGLISH and ITALIAN
Farhavsbrogade 101 III

NEW ZEALAND
Store for Shoes and Boots
Godthaabsvej 17. Tel. Goth. 814y
Good quality, moderate prices.

SPIRELLA CORSETS
DAGMAR BONNESEN
Helgesensgade 31 II. Tel. Nora 2624-Y
Measure may be taken in ladies' home

COLONIAL SPECIALITY IMPORTED CONSERVES
AXEL MORCK'S SUCC
St. Kongensgade 116. Tel. 2300, Palæ 3064

FRANCE
Mentone

MAISON DE BLANC
GLUTSCHING
22 Place Saint-Michel, Mentone
Trousseaux, Handkerchiefs, Hand Embroideries
Orders very carefully fulfilled.

Monte Carlo

Family Hotel Overlooking
The Casino Gardens
HOTEL DE RUSSIE
Conveniences—Bed & Breakfast Only.
Swiss Management

Paris

A. Albert
LADIES' SOCIETY HAIRDRESSER
Permanent Wave Specialists. Latest Methods. All Style Cuts. Care of Hair. Waterwaving.
Branches:
31 Rue Tronchet (First Floor)
8 Rue des Capucines (First Floor)
18 Rue Chauveau-Lagarde

DRESSMAKER
15 Rue Royale. Phone: Central 43-01
Madame DORNAC
Would like you to visit her establishment to present you a selection of stylish gowns with Parisian lines but American steadiness. Best quality. Moderate prices

GEORGES
JEWELLER
Repairs a Specialty
Tel. Elysées 83-63. 100 Rue de la Boétie

DÔVE Couturier
A very nice selection of afternoon and evening dresses. Reasonable prices.
28 Rue Caumartin. Tel. Central 73 07

MARION
33 Rue Saint-Roch, Off Ave. Opéra
All leather Models Ladies' Bags and Purses
All Kinds Direct from the Purchaser

MODES
FLORA JESSYE
64 Rue des Petits Champs

FRANCO-AMERICAN HOUSE
Layer Cake, Ice Cream Soda, Sundaes, Chocolate, Luncheons, Teas
2 and 16 Place de la Madeleine

Princess Mary's Hosiery
205 Rue SAINT HONORÉ
Specialty—The French Cob Web Hose
The Thinnest and Strongest Silk Weaves

ROBIN RESTAURANT DES ALPES
10 Rue du Marché Saint-Honoré
Home Cooking—Fresh Vegetables. Chicken and Turkey a Specialty
English Spoken—Se Habla Espagnol

Corset and Belt Specialist
SYLVIE BISSON
34 Avenue de l'Opera
We also carry Lingerie
Phone: Gutenberg 41 84

Recommended Millinery
D. LOISEL
2 rue du Marché St. Honoré
(Near Opera). 2nd Floor. Tel Gutenberg 72-09
Smart Models. Moderate Prices.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNDER CITY HEADINGS

FRANCE
Paris
(Continued)

"DEUX CLAUDINE"
27 Rue Tronchet, Paris
THE SPECIALTY SHOP
Lingerie de luxe. French and Scotch Tricots—Sport Hats Reasonable prices.

PRINTING & STATIONERY
HERBERT CLARKE
338, Rue St Honoré
(Place Vendôme)
PARIS
Telephone Central 26-82

H. J. HOWARD
Stationer and Engraver
(Formerly 3 Rue Cambon)
Now Removed to 7 RUE ROY
(Behind Hanamese)
Close to church "St Augustin" Paris, VIIIe
Telephone Laborde 26-70
Wedding and Society Invitations Engraved As Per's Address Stamped in Relief Without Charge for Engraving Die

The RIVOLI TEA ROOMS
2 Rue de Rivoli (Near Louvre)
English and American Home Cooking
Breakfast—Lunch—Tea—Supper
MODERATE PRICES

11 Rue Bleue
Virgona
We aim to win your confidence
Telephone Bergère 36 13
OFFICE AND APARTMENT FURNISHINGS—TAPESTRIES
Paris, France—3 Rue Molière (Opéra)

Hélène Krieger
Made Gowns, Coats
We aim to give the best in Service, Quality and Style. Hems orders promptly executed
Phone: Gutenberg 62-90

Mon Félix
MODEL HATS—MODES
A very new selection for your approval
The best in quality and style
Avenue de l'Opéra
(Entrance 29 Rue des Pyramides)
English Spoken Telephone

A SMALL SHOP THAT WILL PLEASE YOU
LINGERIE
SMART TEA FROCKS
L. PRIOUT—27, Ave. RAPP VIIIe.

THE MAISON RUFFIE
11 Rue Saint-Augustin (Opéra)
Always has on hand a good sized stock of ready made Model Gowns, Coats Blouses Trousseaux, Lingerie, Tea Gowns, Lingerie, Immediate deliveries to travellers. English spoken. Phone Central 65-80

Anglo-American Typewriting Office
4 Rue Pasquier. Paris
(Corner Boulv. Malesherbes)
Tel.: Central 00-40 MISS W. HARLE
Stenographers Interpreters
Translators R C No. 136429

MARCEL COIFFEUR
Waterwaving, Shampooing and Manicuring
Perfumery. English spoken. Tel. Gutenberg 36-94. 8 Rue Boudreau (very near the Opéra).

MR. and MRS. AMMONS
Continental Tours Conducted
Compagnons Hôtel. Purchases Made
European Address HOTEL CECILIA
11 AVENUE MARIGNAN Paris
Telephone Wagram 30-10.

NOSEGAY EVENING BAGS
10 Violets Roses & Orchids
Reminder—Best materials used.
On display mornings 9-1
MISS TEMPLETON
Hotel Molière 21 Rue Molière

MME. WEBB-SIMONNOT
A Service Bureau That Fills All Needs
Efficiency—Discretion—Personal Service
Professional Shopper to suit your time and purse

GERMANY
Berlin

E. KÖNIG
Lichterfelde Ost,
Berlinerstr. 11, I
Tramway 6, 10
Hohenbrunnerstr.
Tel. Lichterfelde 3997
FURNITURE OF WICKER-WORK
Moderate Prices. Free Delivery

TRUNKS
Travelling Necessaries
Fine Leather Goods
ALFRED MENZEL, Saddler
Berlin-Steglitz, Albrechtstr. 116
Tel. Steglitz 5107

Artists, Fancy Stationery & Book-Shop
A. SCHLEE
Berlin-Charlottenburg
Kantstr. 35, Ecke Wielandstr.
Tel. Steinplatz 210

HOSIERY AND GLOVES
All Kinds—Best Qualities
HERMANN NEUHAUS
Berlin-Charlottenburg
Tebelstr. Telephone 2415

LADIES' LINEN UNDERCLOTHING
Plain and Elegant Style. Bed Linen
Own Sewing Shop
FRAU EMMA WITTNER
Berlin-Charlottenburg 2 Tel. Steinplatz 132

HOLLAND
The Hague

BRIKETTEN COKE, COAL and all other fuel delivered by
G. KUIPER
9 Calestr. 74. Tel: 30043

Mrs. and Mr. Kruyt-Bouvy
All commissions filled, purchases made, reservations made at hotels, pensions etc. Guides through Holland.
Ieplaan 152 Telephone 30001

ITALY
Florence

Old England Stores
Grocery, Sport Goods Dry Goods, Hosiery
Telephone 1983. 6 Via Vecchietti

Tel. 2057 Eyre & Evers Tel. 4-11
BANKERS
Land, House & Estate Agents
Steamer Passages and Travel Agents
J. H. GRIERSON
Luxurious Autos for Hire
UNIVERSAL AUNTS
General Information Bureau
in Lungl'Arno Guicciardini

CASA GUIDI LEATHERWORK JEWELLERY TABLE LINENS 9 PIAZZA S FELICE

Succ. B. Seeber
International Bookstore
LARGE STOCK OF WORKS IN ALL LANGUAGES
20 VIA TORNABUONI

L. GALLI
Venetian Shawls, Mandl's Imported Shawls, Roman Blankets and Scarves
Real Tortoise Shell Articles
11 Via Vigna Nuova

CARLO PIERI & CO.
TEA ROOM
Pastry, Confectionery
Specialty of Rice Cakes
15 Via Tornabuoni

THE BLUE SHOP
GIOVANNI BACCANI
Artistic Florentine Leather
Publisher of Florentine Christmas Cards and Art Color Calendars
10 Via Vigna Nuova

SANTINI & CANTU
ENGLISH DRINKS
Trunks, Suit Cases, Bags
First-Class Florentine Fancy Leather Articles
Ladies' Lodge
Telephone 4788 12 Borgognissanti

BREAD, BUNS, BISCUITS AND CAKES to be had at
BALBONI AND MULLERS
Electric Vacuum Bakery
Via Vigna Nuova

Recommended Millinery
BIANCALANI
Ladies' and Young Ladies' Hats, smart models
Fine Lingerie
4 Long'Arno Acciaiuoli, near Ponte Vecchio

U. LUISI and CO.
Marbles, Alabaster, Bronze
Artistic Gallery of Original statues and Reproductions
Carrara and Castellina Marble
Tel. 15-75 2 D Borgognissanti

RIFREDI SCHOOL
Embroidery in Antique Style
21 Via Carlo Bini Tram No. 24

FABIO INNOCENTI
Men's Tailor
Specialty in Tailor-Made Suits and Coats for Women
English Materials
3 Via Rondinelli
Telephone 37-15

EMILIA BOSSI
Dresses, Mantles, Hats
Via Rondinelli, Piazza Antinori
Tel. 3-72

S. PIANCASTELLI
Everything Optical
Kodak Materials
Developing and Printing
Phone 1-21 Via Calimala

SWEDEN
Gothenburg

LEOPOLD LINDWERG
FLORIST
Norra Hamngatan 7 Gothenburg
Telegrams 17-09

Stockholm

HEDIN & BERLIN
Stationery Lampshades
I. BIBLIOTEKSGATAN

CARL HELLBERG
AB. RURIK
Forwarding—Shipbroker—Insurance
Skeppsbron 9 Tel 8083

STUDIO MARTIN IVARSON
Artistic Designs and Retouching
Graphic Mass Copying, colour (1) and Special Effects
Artillerigatan 41 IV Tel 0 6736

PAYING GUESTS
are received in quiet house at the seaside, near Stockholm. You may address yourself to Mrs. L. Lunch Roslagsgatan 7 Tel N 23561

If you are looking for an elegant Corset that fits your figure, wears well, and also reasonably priced, you will find it at
TWILFIT

SWITZERLAND
Geneva

Specialty of GRILLADES
Rue Chantepoulet Tel. 32-33
Butter Cream
MADAME PASST
Rue de Lausanne 23 Geneva

GLAZIERY
ST GOBAIN LOOKING GLASSES
Frames of All Designs
PIERRE LORETTI
16 Rue d'Italie, Geneva

Lucerne

ADELHEID ROTHENFLUH SILKS
EMBROIDERIES
Weinmarkt 5 Tel. 8.26

SWITZERLAND
Lugano

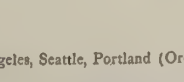
L'Art Ancien S. A.
Dealers in Rare and Early Books
7 Piazza A. Manzoni
Lugano

DÖBELI-FORSTER
Tea Room and Confectionery Shop.
Home-Made Cakes, Chocolates, Pastries and Candy.
2 Via Canova

St. Gallen

HAUSAMANN & CO.
ST. GALLEN
Marktgasse 13, z. Spinnrad
PHOTO—OPTICS
PROMPT DELIVERY

Vitznau on Lake Lucerne



PENSION WALDHEIM
Pleasant Holiday Resort.
Season April-October.
Tariff on application
Ulrich Winiker

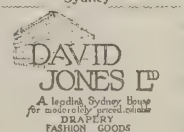
Zurich

Grands Magasins
JELMOLI, S. A.
GENERAL STORE

LADY TEACHER
with Zurich teachers diploma gives Lessons to Children
MRS. ESSIG-WYSS. Dietikon.

CUTLERY BLEULER
2 Poststrasse.
PRIVATE HOTEL
PENSION FLORHOF
Florhofgasse 4, near Central Station and Lake
Inclusive Terms from Frs. 10
PENSION BAERWOLFF

AUSTRALIA
Geelong



BUGGINS BROS.
CASH GROCERS
Herne Hill, Geelong
ADAMS & NANTES
Printers, Bookbinders and Stationers
146 Ryrie Street Geelong

BETTY TRICKETT
Costumier and Dressmaker
Melrose Flats
253 Ryrie Street Geelong

DENT'S
The Home of Good Furniture
76 Moorabool St. Geelong

BRYANT & LANE
Costumiers and Drapers
170 Moorabool Street Geelong

Sydney

DAVID JONES Ld
A legalled Sydney House for moderately priced goods
DRAPERY FASHION GOODS
MENS & BOYS' CLOTHING
OPPOSITE G.P.O. SYDNEY

FANES FLOWER SHOP
8 Rowe Street, Sydney
For EXCLUSIVE FLORAL GIFTS
(MRS. RAMSDEN)

Morning & Afternoon Tea
Hot & Cold Luncheons & Dinners.
Open Daily
117 Pitt St. Sydney.
Phone B 3439

W. NICHOLSON
HIGH-CLASS TAILOR AND COSTUME MAKER
No. 8A Castlereagh Street, SYDNEY

HOME for ladies desiring rest, or attention. Miss PITCHER, Tyrone House, Northwood Road, Northwood, Sydney, Australia.

Phone M W 2284 Quick Service
WINDOW WRITING
Glass Gilding Original Designs
VICTOR R. FORTESCUE
100 Dowling St. Phone
DRESSMAKING
Ladies' Own Material Cut and Fitted
MISS NEALE
No. 10 First Floor Liddle's Court Castlereagh and Market Streets

COMMERCIAL UNION ASSURANCE COMPANY, Ltd.
Fire and Marine Funds exceed £2,000,000
Pitt and Hunter Streets, SYDNEY

FIRE INSURANCE
Northern Assurance Co., Ltd.
Total Assets Exceed £15,000,000
6, O'Connell Street, Sydney

AUSTRALIA
Sydney
(Continued)

"Sydney's Specialty Hardware Store"
All General Hardware, Soft Furnishings, Tools of Trade
Hock & Kirby's
186-194 George Street Sydney

Phone M 2991. City 5
Hewlett Motor Service
147-151 Castlereagh Street
SYDNEY
Comfortable cars always at your service
Cars Available Day and Night
Calls attended to with promptness and Courtesy.

POULLARS LIMITED
Dyers and Dry Cleaners
Head Office: 114 Pitt Street, Sydney

SOUTH AFRICA
Cape Town

MURDOCK'S
Reliable Jewellers. Diamond Merchants
Watchmakers, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths
100 Adderley St. P. O. Box 901, Cape Town

THE MODEL DAIRY
Delivers milk in sealed bottles. This ensures unadulterated milk and full measure. Fresh butter daily supplied.
17 Kloof St. Cape Town. Phone 1408 Central

Durban

HARRIS'S CORNER STORES
(Opposite Grand Hotel)
High-class Groceries, Provisions & Meat
Try Our Cambridge Sausages
Phone 1865

BRISKER'S
Luncheon & Breakfast
"Meat & Weeat Specialists"
BUTCHER'S CORNER
West and Field Streets

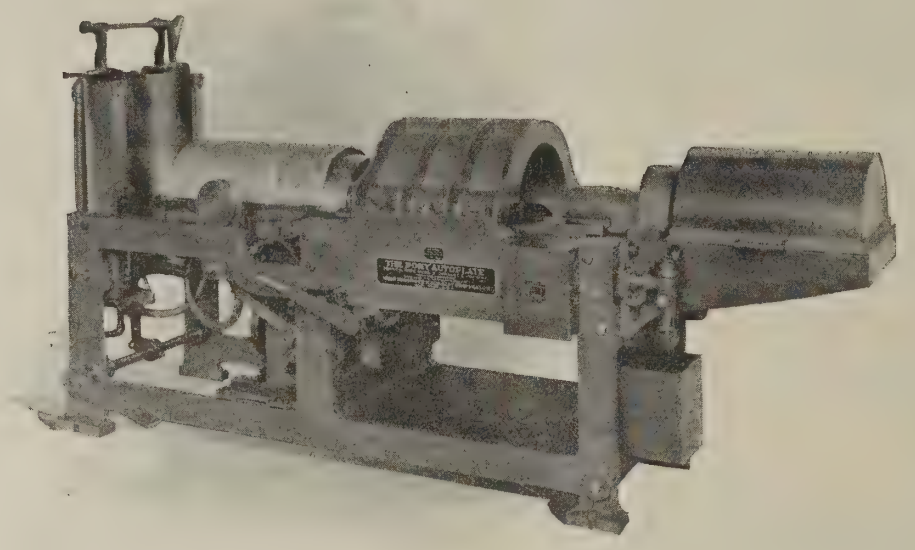
MODEL STEAM LAUNDRY
Phone 1445
70 PRINCE EDWARD STREET

SEATON PRIVATE HOTEL
Gillespie Street, Durban Beach.
Close to Baths.
UNOBSTRUCTED VIEW OF BEACH
Under personal supervision of
MR & MRS. J. C. POWELL Tel 2391

JAMES DOWNING
For Irish Linens, Art Needlework, Knitting Wools, and Baby Linen.
424 West Street, Durban, Natal

THE DURBAN DYE MANUFACTURING CO. and LAUNDERING WORKS
(H. BYRNE-SMART, Proprietor)
Established 20 years
Boots & Shoes Made to Order
175 a West Street, Durban

Johannesburg



ALL KODAK SUPPLIES
Developing & Printing
KODAK (SOUTH AFRICA) LTD.
86 Eloff Street, Johannesburg.

FANNY FARMER'S
High-Class Tea Room and Confectionery
Corner Bree Street and Commissioner Street
Johannesburg

"Pure Food, Cleanliness and Service"

The Christian Science Monitor
IS FOR SALE IN CONTINENTAL EUROPE
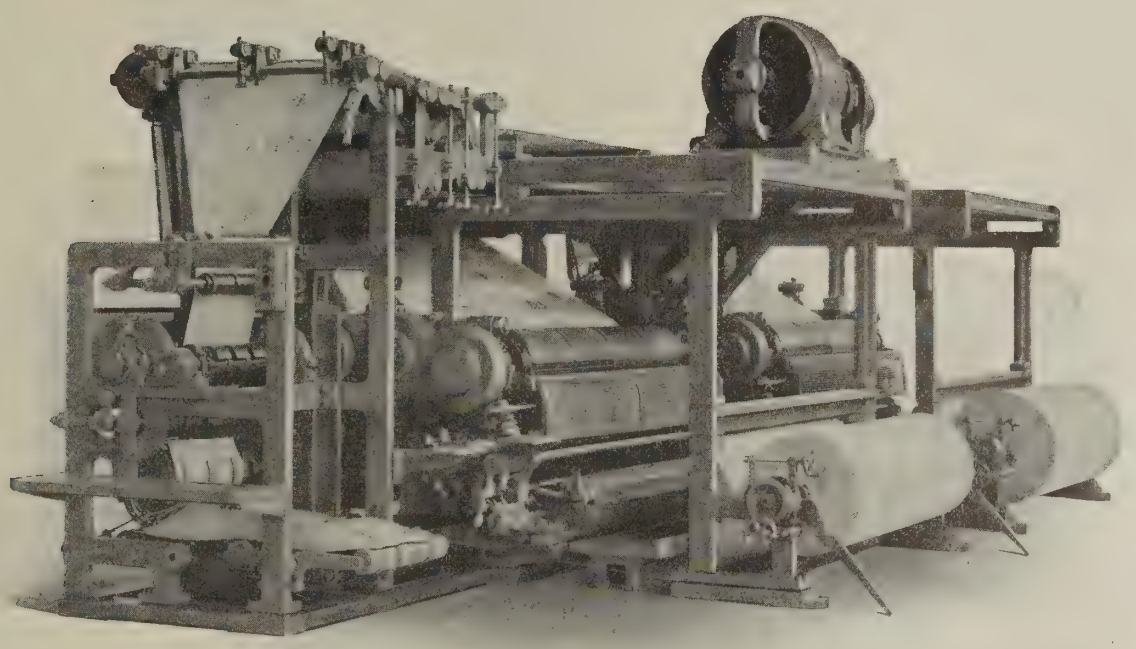
AUSTRIA
Vienna—Hermann & Glas, Seilerst. 4; Wallerss II., and all railway stands at the Hotel Bristol, Grand Hotel and Südbahnhotel.
CZECHOSLOVAKIA
Prague—F. Topic, Národní 11.
FRANCE
Paris—Librairie Française, 7 Rue de la Sorbonne
Boulogne-sur-Mer—Librairie Parisienne, 3 Avenue de Wimereux
Cannes—Librairie Nouvelle, 18 Rue Gimbernat
Dijon—Librairie Darantière, 18 Rue d'Auxonne
Grenoble—Librairie Allier Père et Fils, 1 Rue de Bonne
Lyons—Librairie Générale Ancienne et Moderne, Paul Feron-Vrau, 7 Rue Gentil
Marseilles—Nouvelle Librairie Générale, 4 Rue Vacon
Nice—Librairie Visconti, 30 Avenue de la Gare
No. 1—At the Municipal Casino
No. 2—Librairie Masséna, 24 Rue de Rivoli
No. 3—Librairie Auberge de Jehan de Saintré, 3 Rue Masséna
No. 4—Librairie Lafayette, 20 Boulevard Haussmann
No. 5—Librairie Nouvelle, 1 Rue Halévy
No. 6—Librairie Grand Hôtel, 12 Boulevard des Capucines
No. 7—Librairie Centrale des Beaux-Arts, 11 Rue Caumartin
No. 8—Librairie Hachette et Cie., 79 Boulevard Saint-Germain
No. 9—Librairie Nouvelle, 29 Rue de Rivoli
No. 10—Librairie Galignani, 224 Rue de Rivoli
No. 11—Librairie Brentano's, 37 Avenue de l'Opéra
No. 12—Librairie Française, 33 Rue Tronchet
No. 13—Librairie Scribe, 1 Rue Scribe
No. 14—Librairie Wagram, 103 Boulevard Malesherbes
No. 15—Librairie Française, 19 Rue de Rivoli
No. 16—Librairie Française, 25 Rue des Champs Elysées
No. 17—Librairie Française, 25 Avenue des Champs Elysées
No. 18—Librairie Française, 21 Avenue de l'Opéra
No. 19—Librairie Française, 7 Rue Castiglione
No. 20—Librairie Française, 4 Rue Castiglione
No. 21—Librairie Française, 248 Rue de Rivoli
No. 22—Librairie Française, 244 Rue de Rivoli
No. 23—Librairie Française, 242 Rue de Rivoli
No. 24—Librairie Française, 240 Rue de Rivoli
No. 25—Librairie Française, 238 Rue de Rivoli
No. 26—Librairie Française, 236 Rue de Rivoli
No. 27—Librairie Française, 234 Rue de Rivoli
No. 28—Librairie Française, 232 Rue de Rivoli
No. 29—Librairie Française, 230 Rue de Rivoli
No. 30—Librairie Française, 228 Rue de Rivoli
No. 31—Librairie Française, 226 Rue de Rivoli
No. 32—Librairie Française, 224 Rue de Rivoli
No. 33—Librairie Française, 222 Rue de Rivoli
No. 34—Librairie Française, 220 Rue de Rivoli
No. 35—Librairie Française, 218 Rue de Rivoli
No. 36—Librairie Française, 216 Rue de Rivoli
No. 37—Librairie Française, 214 Rue de Rivoli
No. 38—Librairie Française, 212 Rue de Rivoli
No. 39—Librairie Française, 210 Rue de Rivoli
No. 40—Librairie Française, 208 Rue de Rivoli
No. 41—Librairie Française, 206 Rue de Rivoli
No. 42—Librairie Française, 204 Rue de Rivoli
No. 43—Librairie Française, 202 Rue de Rivoli
No. 44—Librairie Française, 200 Rue de Rivoli
No. 45—Librairie Française, 198 Rue de Rivoli
No. 46—Librairie Française, 196 Rue de Rivoli
No. 47—Librairie Française, 194 Rue de Rivoli
No. 48—Librairie Française, 192 Rue de Rivoli
No. 49—Librairie Française, 190 Rue de Rivoli
No. 50—Librairie Française, 188 Rue de Rivoli
No. 51—Librairie Française, 186 Rue de Rivoli
No. 52—Librairie Française, 184 Rue de Rivoli
No. 53—Librairie Française, 182 Rue de Rivoli
No. 54—Librairie Française, 180 Rue de Rivoli
No. 55—Librairie Française, 178 Rue de Rivoli
No. 56—Librairie Française, 176 Rue de Rivoli
No. 57—Librairie Française, 174 Rue de Rivoli
No. 58—Librairie Française, 172 Rue de Rivoli
No. 59—Librairie Française, 170 Rue de Rivoli
No. 60—Librairie Française, 168 Rue de Rivoli
No. 61—Librairie Française, 166 Rue de Rivoli
No. 62—Librairie Française, 164 Rue de Rivoli
No. 63—Librairie Française, 162 Rue de Rivoli
No. 64—Librairie Française, 160 Rue de Rivoli
No. 65—Librairie Française, 158 Rue de Rivoli
No. 66—Librairie Française, 156 Rue de Rivoli
No. 67—Librairie Française, 154 Rue de Rivoli
No. 68—Librairie Française, 152 Rue de Rivoli
No. 69—Librairie Française, 150 Rue de Rivoli
No. 70—Librairie Française, 148 Rue de Rivoli
No. 71—Librairie Française, 146 Rue de Rivoli
No. 72—Librairie Française, 144 Rue de Rivoli
No. 73—Librairie Française, 142 Rue de Rivoli
No. 74—Librairie Française, 140 Rue de Rivoli
No. 75—Librairie Française, 138 Rue de Rivoli
No. 76—Librairie Française, 136 Rue de Rivoli
No. 77—Librairie Française, 134 Rue de Rivoli
No. 78—Librairie Française, 132 Rue de Rivoli
No. 79—Librairie Française, 130 Rue de Rivoli
No. 80—Librairie Française, 128 Rue de Rivoli
No. 81—Librairie Française, 126 Rue de Rivoli
No. 82—Librairie Française, 124 Rue de Rivoli
No. 83—Librairie Française, 122 Rue de Rivoli
No. 84—Librairie Française, 120 Rue de Rivoli
No. 85—Librairie Française, 118 Rue de Rivoli
No. 86—Librairie Française, 116 Rue de Rivoli
No. 87—Librairie Française, 114 Rue de Rivoli
No. 88—Librairie Française, 112 Rue de Rivoli
No. 89—Librairie Française, 110 Rue de Rivoli
No. 90—Librairie Française, 108 Rue de Rivoli
No. 91—Librairie Française, 106 Rue de Rivoli
No. 92—Librairie Française, 104 Rue de Rivoli
No. 93—Librairie Française, 102 Rue de Rivoli
No. 94—Librairie Française, 100 Rue de Rivoli
No. 95—Librairie Française, 98 Rue de Rivoli
No. 96—Librairie Française, 96 Rue de Rivoli
No. 97—Librairie Française, 94 Rue de Rivoli
No. 98—Librairie Française, 92 Rue de Rivoli
No. 99—Librairie Française, 90 Rue de Rivoli
No. 100—Librairie Française, 88 Rue de Rivoli
No. 101—Librairie Française, 86 Rue de Rivoli
No. 102—Librairie Française, 84 Rue de Rivoli
No. 103—Librairie Française, 82 Rue de Rivoli
No. 104—Librairie Française, 80 Rue de Rivoli
No. 105—Librairie Française, 78 Rue de Rivoli
No. 106—Librairie Française, 76 Rue de Rivoli
No. 107—Librairie Française, 74 Rue de Rivoli
No. 108—Librairie Française, 72 Rue de Rivoli
No. 109—Librairie Française, 70 Rue de Rivoli
No. 110—Librairie Française, 68 Rue de Rivoli
No. 111—Librairie Française, 66 Rue de Rivoli
No. 112—Librairie Française, 64 Rue de Rivoli
No. 113—Librairie Française, 62 Rue de Rivoli
No. 114—Librairie Française, 60 Rue de

Ultra Modern Methods and Equi

PONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE

HAND-MADE PLATES are no longer welcome in the modern plant. Their inherent inaccuracies and the uncertainties incident to their use result in wasting of time, labor, and newsprint.



All modern plants are now Autoplate-equipped because Autoplate plates are uniformly accurate in curvature and thickness.

The PONY AUTOPLATE Machine occupies the space of but 9 ft. 5 in. by 2 ft. 7 in. and may be worked by one man. It casts and finishes newspaper printing plates more swiftly and economically than can the conventional hand-worked apparatus. Autoplate plates require no hand-tooling; they are delivered completely finished, cold and dry, ready for press.

The AUTOPLATE Way is the only Modern Way.

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORPOI

ment for Today's Requirements

BEE-LINE PRESS

THIS is the simplest and swiftest smaller-city newspaper printing press in the world—printing at the same speed and as handsomely as the larger metropolitan daily presses.

It is easy to operate, easy to adjust and easy to install. From a single location, the pressman may view every operation of printing, folding and delivery. There is no roll lifting.

It meets every requirement of the smaller-city daily publisher and is unit-built to economically care for the future as well as the present.

The BEE-LINE PRESS relieves the publisher of the many limitations of flat-bed printing earlier than any other press. It is a handy tool and a first-rate printer. It requires no pit.

TION, 501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

These 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers offer a valuable marketing service—uniform co-operation for you over the entire state. Write for the "Iowa plan."

Average wealth greater—living standard higher—in Iowa

Iowa's taxable wealth per capita is $4,146, as compared with $2,731—the nation's average. (Latest financial report of U. S. Bureau of Census).

Iowa has lowest percentage of illiteracy of any state. Has the most telephones in proportion to population. Twice as many Iowa people, proportionately, have high school education as in the nation as a whole.

Though Iowa ranks twenty-third in area; though less than half of her people are engaged in farming, here is how Iowa compares with the other states in agriculture:

First in value each of corn, oats, horses, hogs and poultry.

First in value of farm lands and buildings.

First in total value of farm products.

First in combined value of live stock.

First in total value of farm property.

First in percentage of farm land improved.

Yet, the yearly value of Iowa's industrial output exceeds that of her field crops!

The question of selling to this wonderful market is simplified by one fact: Iowa people are partial to their daily newspapers. In the cities, in the villages, on the farms —practically every family reads one of these 28 leading dailies every day.

You can deal with all these papers as with one publication if you wish.

We will gladly send you rates and full information.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

STEER YOUR RETAILERS AWAY FROM UNSUCCESSFUL TYPES OF SALES EVENTS

Southern Department Store's Sales Fell Off When Club Women Managed Store for a Day—Buyers Feared Being Patronized

By PHILIP FRANCIS NOWLAN

NEWSPAPER advertising managers generally are on the search for new ideas to pass on to their merchant friends, and any unusual and successful sale staged by a merchant in one city is likely to be profitable reading for advertising managers in other cities.

Likewise, it's sometimes valuable to be posted on campaigns that did not pay for themselves, in order to advise advertisers who may be contemplating a similar "stunt," and who may blame the effectiveness of the paper's advertising columns when they find it doesn't work.

Here's a special event that was staged by one of the leading stores in the South. It was a success or a failure according to how you look at it. As a piece of institutional publicity it went far toward accomplishing a purpose the store has been working for for a number of years. It was expected that it would also produce an extra volume of business on the day of the sale. But in this it was an absolute "dud." As a matter of fact the store didn't do as much business as on a normal business day.

And from the result of the event the store management has concluded that the co-operation of an outside organization, association or club is a decided liability, except perhaps from the viewpoint of institutional good will.

The store and city shall be nameless for the sake of freedom in discussing the results of the sale.

Briefly, the idea was this. The department store, having moved into new quarters, much larger than many people in the city thought was warranted, staged one gigantic sale to prove that it could do a given volume of business—which we shall call 100% for purposes of this discussion—in one day. Actually, due to the careful preparation of an intensive advertising campaign preceding this day, it exceeded this amount by about 9%. Having accomplished this it determined to stage another sale to drive home to the women of the city the fact that while it carried a heavy proportion of inexpensive and economical merchandise, it also carried as good quality as could be obtained in the city at prices in reasonable proportion. It had never had much of the "elite" trade.

It so happened that the leading women's organization in the city was badly in need of funds at the time. The management therefore publicly offered the store for one day to the women's organization. Members of the organization for the given day were to act as the management of the store and receive a given percentage of the net sales. Spectacular full-page advertising announced the plan. The copy was such that it could not be overlooked. It would have "stopped" any reader of the several issues in which it appeared, even non-residents. The club women took charge on the given day, and all arrangements went as planned. The only trouble was that the public did not come.

Why? Was there any popular prejudice against the women's club?

No, everybody in town wished the club well. Many women, members of "the elite," who had never entered the store before made its acquaintance, and there was much evidence that they were pleasantly surprised in it. In that respect the sale was a success. More of them found their way into the store in one day than would otherwise have entered it in a year.

But the point was this. The women of moderate circumstances, who normally form the bulk of the store's trade, were "scared off" by the fact that the club women were in charge. They feared, it seemed, that there might be some danger of their being "patronized." They would rub elbows with society women on the same side of the store counter, but they did not want to face them across the counter.

Sales that day were only 20 per cent, (of the 100% figure mentioned) whereas on a normal day with no special sale it was nothing unusual for them to run 35, 45 or even 55 per cent. The merchandising was right, the advertising was right, and the weather was right. There was only one thing to which the poor volume of sales could be attributed.

In the future the management of this store intends to rely on its own strength in its merchandising events, and not call upon outside auxiliaries.

How to Get More Circulation

1. Make a good newspaper.
2. Sell it in a business-like manner.

An old formula, but still the best. With my staff of clean, aggressive salesmen I can get you all the circulation you want and with a good product which I can also help you make, you will hold the new business.

No contests, no tricks—just selling.

Let me show you what I have done for other papers and what I can do for you. Write or wire.

F. J. Marks Circulation Service
2524 E. 73d Street, Cleveland, O.

Phone Central 4802

FOR DISPLAY OR CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING IN FOREIGN LANGUAGE NEWSPAPERS

ADVERTISING PLACED IN POLISH BOHEMIAN
GERMAN JEWISH SWEDISH LITHUANIAN
DANISH HUNGARIAN
NORWEGIAN ITALIAN
GREEK ETC.
NEWSPAPERS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

Classified Advertising Dept.
GRACE F. LITTLE, Mgr.
Expert Ad-Takers
Complete Information
Our Service is FREE
Our Rates Are Same as Publishers' Largest Foreign Language Representatives in the Mid-West

Do you know that 76% of Chicago's population is foreign born or of foreign parentage? Write for our "Book of Facts" on Chicago's population.

Publishers' Representative

UNIVERSAL ADVERTISING SERVICE
132 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

An Organization Serving Advertisers and Agencies according to the recognized Practice of Publishers' Representatives.

The products of this fabulously wealthy territory pouring into Fort Worth —and Fort Worth supplying all the needs of this great Inland Empire

Here's the greatest try-out territory in the United States completely covered by the

STAR-TELEGRAM and RECORD-TELEGRAM with more circulation than any three other newspapers in this territory combined.

DAILY AND SUNDAY CIRCULATION

More Than 120,000

No Premiums No Contests

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM
(EVENING)
Fort Worth Record-Telegram
(MORNING)
FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM and Sunday Record

Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

AMON G. CARTER, President and Publisher
A. L. SHUMAN, Vice-Pres. and Adv. Director

WORLD'S FAIR IN THE MAKING AT SESQUI CITY

Exposition Not Complete, But There's Plenty to See at League Island Park, Three Miles from Hotel Headquarters—Treasure Island Transported from Wembley

A WORLD'S fair in the making is the spectacle offered A. A. C. W. delegates at Sesqui City, new name for League Island Park, three miles down Broad street from hotel headquarters, the Bellevue-Stratford. Those expecting a completed Sesqui-Centennial Exposition will be disappointed. Philadelphians candidly admit the affair will not be in full swing until July 4, when the grounds and buildings will be officially dedicated by President Coolidge.

But even as it stands now, those who like history, romance and industrial progress materialized for them within wood, stucco, and brick walls instead of within the covers of a book, those interested in having the world concentrated for them within walking distance, will find plenty to see beyond the big cracked Liberty Bell replica that hangs over the main entrance to the Sesqui grounds.

The Philadelphia daily papers supply the news of the special features scheduled for convention week, June 19-24. Certain regular exhibits and buildings noted in a trip around the Sesqui city, even in their incomplete state, are worthy of a visit.

After paying fifty cents admission, you can ride in a Philadelphia Rapid Transit Electric bus for ten cents about the streets of this pageant town, and thus avoid the temptations of the all too frequent soft drink and peanut stands.

It is hard to say today what state the exposition buildings, with their grandiose names, will be in tomorrow. Workmen are transforming scaffoldings into architecture with magical swiftness.

Those attending the auditorium for the first inspirational meeting will find this mammoth building complete at least. It stands at the right as you enter the main gate, where Broad street becomes the "Avenue of the Colonies." Across this avenue is the Palace of Liberal Arts, half filled with exhibits and half with promises. Here is a Danish exhibit of pottery, pewter and porcelain, exhibited by the firm of Peter Hertz, jewelers and silversmiths to the Royal Court of Denmark, established in 1834. This exhibit, valued at many thousands of dollars, is in charge of Torkal Hertz, of the fourth generation removed of the founder of the house. If artistic presents are wanted, they may be purchased here. The place is filled with many small stands at which women sell knickknacks and handiwork articles. Then there are some purely industrial booths, such as those operated by the Bell Telephone Company, the Underwood and Remington typewriters, and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Palace of Agriculture stands next door to the Palace of Liberal Arts. When visited the other day it was not complete. At the model post office next door it is possible to see the first 100 per cent finished exhibit on the grounds, but standing just in front of it is the proposed Tower of Light, still in early building stages.

Nearby is the Taj Mahal, or India building, garishly white in the Pennsylvania atmosphere, and lacking the mirror pool of the pictures. Carpenters are still at work inside, where a number of exhibits offering jewelry from India for sale are open. Here too is a restaurant to give one an actual taste of the Indies. The Pennsylvania building is not quite finished and contains no exhibits.

Sulgrave Manor, with its cool gray stone, comes as a relief after the stucco. This reproduction of the home of George Washington's ancestors in England, said to be exact in every detail, was erected by the Colonial Dames—the British delegates, and those who visited the original in 1924, can tell how exact.

A stone's throw away, the visitor finds himself back home across the Atlantic, but in America of colonial days. High Street of Philadelphia in 1776 has been rebuilt to charm with its quaintness the skyscraper minds of today. For those who like such details, High street covers a piece of ground 800 by 240 feet on the west side of the Avenue of the Colonies. In 1776 it was the Market street of the city. It is the typical Colonial square, with the town hall at one end, facing the market place at the other. Other buildings reproduced on High street are the Quaker meeting house, and the first brick house built in Philadelphia. The bricks were brought from overseas as ballast on a Colonial ship. The reproduction is called the Dames' school, and serves as headquarters for women teachers of the country.

High street comprises 22 separate structures, embodying the forgotten picturesqueness of other days, including a market house to contain 30 booths where women will sell articles to visitors.

Like pages torn from a child's picture book is "Treasure Island", a group of tiny, brightly painted houses in the shadow of a knoll on the bank of an artificial pond. This exhibit was one of the features of the Wembly Exposition, where it was seen by delegates to the London A.A.C.W. convention.

Across from Treasure Island, workmen are still completing erection of various amusement devices, which will eventually when completed, be called the "Gladway."

But so many buildings are as yet incomplete. Philadelphia and its attitude toward the Sesqui-Centennial is mystifying to the out-of-town visitor.

The Quaker City is like a small boy with his nose held compelled to take a dose of very bad medicine, much against his will, because the bad medicine is good for him. And the small boy is just beginning to realize that the distasteful stuff has its good effects.

Many Philadelphians have opposed the Sesqui—largely because of the condition of the city's streets and a feeling that the city would be unable to entertain a vast crowd of visitors. Those in charge had eight years in which to prepare, and have only really waked up in the last eight weeks. Putting it bluntly children of the home of the Declaration of Independence have been a bit ashamed of the old homestead and its failure, through political conditions to make improvements in streets and subways that should have been made years ago.

Philadelphia, however, has suddenly snapped out of its lethargy, because the patriotic visitors have reversed the order and sold the Sesqui-Centennial to them.

There was much furore because the Fairmount Park grounds, scene of the centennial, were not chosen as headquarters for the 1926 affair. Choosing of the Navy Yard region was opposed hotly. Now that it is realized that a section formerly worth only $10 an acre has increased in value to $20,000 an acre there is quite a change of heart. Estimates are that the property value increase and the assessment of the newly valuable section alone will bring in enough money to make the necessary improvements in the streets.

EL MUNDO of HAVANA

is pleased to announce the opening of their United States office, 503 Times Building, New York City, in charge of S. S. Koppe & Co., Inc., for the purpose of assisting American manufacturers and their advertising agencies in the development of one of America's nearest, best and logical markets—CUBA.

EL MUNDO is

FIRST — in circulation. EL MUNDO has the largest and best circulation of any newspaper in Cuba. EL MUNDO covers the island like a blanket and is the dominant factor in the buying habits of a country which has the largest purchasing-power per capita of any country in the world.

FIRST — in NEWS.

FIRST — in classified advertising (nearly double that of its nearest competitor)

FIRST — in national advertising

FIRST — in local display advertising

FIRST — in American advertising

FIRST — in EVERYTHING.

"Ask EL MUNDO about Cuba"

What the NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL Did For Duco

The letter from E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., reproduced herewith, tells a story, which is typical of the experience of New York Evening Journal advertisers.

DU PONT

E. I. DU PONT DE NEMOURS & COMPANY
WILMINGTON, DELAWARE
ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

May 7, 1926.

New York Evening Journal,
2 Columbus Circle, New York City.

Dear Sirs:

You will undoubtedly be glad to read the facts laid down in this letter. They surprised and pleased us greatly.

We have heard a great deal about merchandising cooperation from newspapers, but this is our first-hand experience of what can be accomplished with all forces pulling together.

With the cooperation of the Journal Merchandising Department we more than doubled the initial number of retail outlets selling Duco for Handy Home Uses in your marketing area.

Likewise we were pleased with the attention value of our opening color page advertisement and more Brush Duco was sold in the first three weeks than we had originally thought might be sold during the entire campaign.

Naturally, we are gratified and as you know, are continuing to use the Journal for this Campaign.

Very truly yours,

Wm. A. Hart

Wm. A. Hart
KED

Director of Advertising

This well-known company, makers of Duco, the new chemical finish for automobiles, furniture, etc., wished to introduce this product in the New York market—to build up the use of Duco in the home as an adjunct to its many industrial uses.

The co-operation of the Evening Journal Merchandising Department, the tremendously effective color-page advertisements in the Evening Journal itself, produced results far beyond their hopes or expectations. More Duco was sold to householders in the first three weeks than the du Pont Company had thought could be sold during an entire campaign!

Net Paid Circulation for six months ending March 31, 1926, was 696,447 Copies a Day

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

Largest Evening Circulation in America—and at 3c a Copy Daily—5c on Saturdays
DOUBLE the Circulation of Any Other New York Evening Newspaper PLUS 107,563

EDITORIAL

REORGANIZATION IS DUE

THE pages of this issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER in a measure reflect the astonishing development of internationally organized advertising.

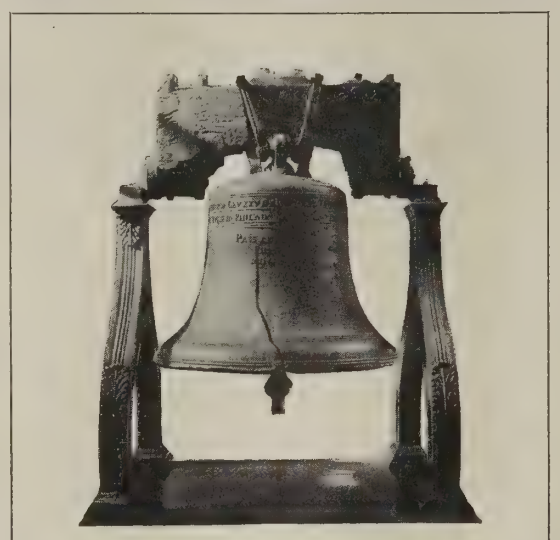
This is the triumph of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which is next week to celebrate in brilliant ceremony its twenty-second annual convention. A vast assembly of advertising Americans will greet distinguished colleagues from overseas and in general and special session consider an infinite variety of problems and again unite in action to give impetus to the world-wide movement.

Every thinking advertising man is aware that advertising is really only in swaddling clothes. Marvelous as has been the post-war development, the future presents a prospect only bounded by the imagination, courage and co-operative spirit of the votaries of commercial propaganda.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER takes this occasion to welcome to the shrine of our press freedom the advertising host from the states and foreign lands. This convention promises to be the most fruitful of any of the annual gatherings.

It should be emphasized that the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World is not a social organization —it is the leader and defender of one of the most serious economic movements of modern times. The Philadelphia convention has grave business in hand, as well as a glittering inspirational program.

The name of the organization is a misnomer. The A. A. C. W. is not merely a federation of clubs, but is the highly charged motor of a commercial philosophy upon which the entire machine is operating in this country and from which the whole civilized world is increasingly drawing power. That "Clubs" should be dropped from the name of the organization is a good suggestion. The A. A. C. W. is an international advertising conference and should be known as such. The word "Clubs" misrepresents it.



One of the powerful influences created by the A. A. C. W. movement is the body known and separately incorporated as the Better Business Bureaus, which has developed a corps of experts to examine into the integrity of advertising and take action with constituted authorities to prevent frauds upon the public through the medium of advertising. There are no words to express our enthusiastic approval of this principle. The work the Bureaus have done deserves commendation as high public service and merits ample support.

For months EDITOR & PUBLISHER has been hearing that there was a movement to disassociate the Better Business Bureaus from the Advertising Clubs of the World. We are not clear as to the motives, but the inconsistency and wrong of such cecession are obvious. When the Better Business Bureaus are disassociated from the general advertising organization they shall become mere detective agencies operating outside of the advertising organization and independent of its moral as well as financial support. Whereas the bureaus' activities are now generally welcomed heavy resistance from organizations that should be wholehearted in support of this public service would block independent vigilance work. The wisest heads in advertising predict nothing but disaster for bureaus conducted independent of the general advertising movement. The cecession talk is destructive and, if we may remark, underestimates the moral power of the advertising host that makes up the A. A. C. W.

There is no question that the A. A. C. W. and all of its branches deserve better financial support than has been given in the past. That individuals who are giving unselfishly of their time to promote the advertising cause should also be called upon to pledge their personal finances to guarantee organization deficits is an extreme absurdity. The A. A. C. W. should be well financed.

Reorganization is due at Philadelphia! The A. A. C. W. has outgrown its suit of clothes. The advertising interests and those who live by them demand a stronger body and harmonious operation of its several functions.

Every newspaper man in America knows that Carl Magee shot a by-stander while prone on the floor fighting for his life against an unprovoked assault by the thug ex-Judge Leahy: what do they think of a district attorney and state court that made Magee face trial for manslaughter?

WHY THE SUMMER SLUMP?

WHY is there a Summer let-down in the newspaper and advertising business? The relaxation in the midsummer months certainly does not reflect economic conditions in this country. In truth it reflects the ennui, fatigue, lassitude of the sellers of advertising and the persistent coddling of this psychology by managements. Business proceeds as usual in many departments of trade through the months of June, July and August. Money is spent for commodities. People read newspapers, often more completely because of larger leisure. It is not the average man's experience that there is any decrease in his buying of family requirements. Why, then, the Summer slump?

Last year in 25 leading cities of the country newspaper linage totals for July and August were approximately one-third below the total for October of the same year. There is no justification in logic or the facts for such slackening of newspaper advertising activity.

In a long list of American industries there is no seasonable variation in the volume of trade. In some industries June, July and August are peak months. It is true, of course, that many businesses decline in the hot weather months. But there is no warranted one-third balance against normal newspaper advertising volume.

In a recent issue of System a writer lists 36 out of 85 leading lines of business which actually enjoy their peaks of trade in June, July or August, or all three of these months. Of the number 24 make their high year records in July and August. Among the latter are: Automobile supplies, builder's materials, clothes and clothing, corsets, creamery supplies, feed, flour, grain and hay, food-products, hardware, jewelry, meat, musical instruments, oil, paint, photographic supplies, rubber goods, steam heating, trunks, wallpaper, bedding, brass goods, insurance, transportation, agricultural implements, bricks, rope, fertilizers, furniture, leather, millinery, real estate and engines.

Now, surely, in that impressive list of lines that thrive best under the glare of the midsummer sun, there is plenty of work for advertising men to do.

Grant that it is up-hill work, that resistance is against the summer lassitude of space buyers and that a high percentage of calls avail nothing due to the fact that prospects are spending the afternoon motoring with friend wife or seeking to cup a little white ball, nevertheless in the branches of trade that enjoy their peak trade in June, July and August there are advertising schedules for energetic solicitors who are able to talk advertising through wilted collars.

To the frenzied arrivist no idea is worth consideration until it has been slightly amended and wholly appropriated.

22,500 DEAD; 675,000 INJURED

OCCASIONALLY we hear some editorial man say: "We do not campaign for anything, not because we have lost the crusading spirit or hesitate to create controversy, but solely because there does not seem to be issues of sufficient interest to hold public attention in this exciting jazz and easy-dollar era."

Perhaps the situation in this country regarding the hideous, barbarous, insane misuse of the automobile might hold "them" for a few issues, particularly in view of the fact that the annual horror of 22,500 deaths and 675,000 injured can be materially reduced when newspapers demand local legislation and enforcement of safe traffic regulation and also educate the public to the dangers of the automobile as only newspapers can do.

In the face of 22,500 dead in 1925, an increase of ten per cent over the previous year, any editor who withholds protective comment and advice from readers because of a fear that automobile advertisers may frown, is not only cowardly but short-sighted, for if this delirious speed menace is not curbed by processes of reason, outraged public opinion some day shall take action that may be as irksome for careful drivers as is the Volstead Act irksome for temperate drinkers.

During 1925, according to statistics just published by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, 6,300 children under 15 years of age were slaughtered under automobile wheels. Is there human interest in that fact sufficient to distract public attention for a few days from "love nests" and bath-tub boozing? If not, this is a nation of lunatics.

The insurance men find that "in certain cities that have done intensive safety work there are marked decreases in automobile fatalities, showing that the situation is capable of control." There, surely, is a cue for any editor. What cities? How has it been done? Give us the facts! We desire to live and retain our arms and legs. Human interest? What else can this story be called?

No good salesman submits to an unjust attack upon his product or his house by a prospect whose only motive is to get rid of the visitor.

MIXING WAR POISON

WHAT is the formula of the poison called war? If we do not know the answer to that question in 1926 we are a mob of staring imbeciles. The formula is: Denial of essential human liberties, rough-shod suppression of all opposition, gagging press and ignoring minority opinion, imperialistic jingoism, stirring the pots of suspicion and hatred, thus setting up international targets; advocacy of the threadbare principle of balance of power in Europe, boasting of a standing army of 3,000,000 and ships that shall rule the seas, control of emigrated manpower "to the seventh generation," the waving of flags and symbols, fine feathers and the beating drums, goose-stepping, braggart dictatorial talk which transmutes normal patriotism into roaring, raving hysteria and—all in the name of "economics."

Twelve years ago this was a true description of Germany. Now it is an outline of the Italian situation. Why should sane men believe that the effects of these familiar causes should not be war? Why should persons possessed of their wits believe that Mussolini's dictatorship shall even accomplish its avowed national economic purpose? War is not economical. We know that, now!

Nothing succeeds like intelligent advertising.

INTRODUCING MR. PARKER

WE have with us today Don M. Parker, "Advertising Councilor" of the United Cigar Stores Co. of America, who is sending great gobs of free readers to newspapers to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the birth of his company.

Mr. Parker routes his "news" through the advertising department. In a very polite letter, asking liberal use of his hand-outs, he says the company is highly successful and is looking forward to "bigger and better service." But nary a word about paid advertising.

Now EDITOR & PUBLISHER readers know what an "Advertising Councilor" is.

PERSONAL

WILLIAM J. CONNERS, JR., of the Buffalo Courier-Express and Star recently had the members of the Town Club of Buffalo as his guests on a special cruise of the steamer Juniata, one of the Conners' fleet of lake passenger steamers.

Theodore T. Ellis, former owner and publisher of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette, was recently elected a trustee for three years of the Massachusetts State Lodge of Elks at the convention of that body in Salem.

L. E. Fairchild, treasurer of the Fairchild Publications returned from Europe on Monday.

Mrs. J. K. Hudson, Fresno, Cal., widow of the founder and first editor of the Topeka (Kan.) Daily Capital, celebrated her 87th birthday anniversary June 10, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dell Keiser, Kansas City, Mo.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

M. Y. STOKES, JR., formerly advertising manager of the Ardmore (Okla.) Daily Ardmoreite is now advertising manager of the Austin (Tex.) American-Statesman.

Frank Hastings, advertising manager of the Orlando (Fla.) Morning Sentinel, with two friends sailed recently from Tarpon Springs in a 30-foot boat for South America.

Luther Baker, circulation manager of the Knoxville (Tenn.) Sentinel and connected with that paper for 35 years, is convalescing from a recent illness.

Milton A. Bangs, for 14 years with the Winfield (Kan.) Courier, and advertising manager since 1924, has resigned to become office manager of the Sonner Gas Burner Manufacturing Company.

P. R. McDowell, former owner and editor of the Julesburg (Col.) Grit-Advocate, is now associated with the Sterling (Col.) Advocate in the advertising and printing departments.

John E. H. Markle has taken the post of advertising manager and business manager of the Olympia (Wash.) Olympian and Recorder.

Miss Elinor M. King has joined the business staff of the Kentville (N. S.) Advertiser.

H. R. Rinehart of the Philadelphia office of the Fairchild Publications has been transferred to the home office in New York.

R. Vernon Knight, cashier of the Salt Lake City Deseret News, and Mrs. Knight are parents of a daughter.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

HILTON P. HORNADAY of the Minneapolis (Minn.) Tribune reported the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at Tulsa last week for the Tribune.

James R. McGregor has joined the editorial staff of the Halifax Morning Chronicle.

O. N. Malquist of Salt Lake City, Utah, has been made editor of the Canon City (Col.) Record. J. A. Mann, former editor, resigned recently to enter advertising.

Florence Buchanan, millinery editor of Women's Wear, New York, has sailed for Europe. She will make her headquarters at the Paris office of the daily.

Leo H. Fischer, magazine editor of the Chicago Evening American, accompanied by his bride, will sail Saturday for a nine weeks' tour of Europe.

W. H. Robertson, former managing editor of the Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) News, is spending a vacation in the Allegheny mountains near Oakland, Md., with Mrs. Robertson.

David Lidman, former Norfolk, Suffolk, Baltimore and Richmond reporter is now assistant manager of the Savoy Theatre, Bethlehem, Pa.

Richard Henry Little, conductor of the column, "A Line O'Type or Two," in the Chicago Tribune, and Mrs. Little, have gone on a two-weeks' vacation in Washington, New York, and other eastern cities.

J. B. Bladine, former student of the State University of Iowa has joined the editorial staff of the Des Moines Evening Tribune.

Arthur Coon, formerly with the Buffalo Evening News, has been appointed editor of Dunlop News, a house organ of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber corporation of Buffalo, succeeding Herbert Peter who has resigned to return to the Buffalo Evening News staff.

Harrison R. Tucker, of the Tulsa, (Okla.) Tribune staff, made a trip by airplane from Tulsa to the New Mexico oil fields last week to obtain information for a series of articles on the oil fields.

Harold Say, marine editor, Portland (Ore.) Telegram, has been elected president of the 65th Artillery Veterans' Association.

McCready Huston, associate editor of the South Bend Tribune, has completed his second novel, "The Big Show," and its publication as a serial will begin in the August number of the Pictorial Review.

Stanley Worris, former Sunday editor, Newark (N. J.) Ledger, has succeded Harry Cohen as rewrite man and dramatic critic on the Newark Star-Eagle.

William Rudd, former editor of the Granite Falls (Minn.) News, has returned as editor of the paper succeeding R. F. Everett who has retired.

Johnson D. Hill, of the editorial staff, Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, was in New York this week on business. He intends to attend the meeting of the Press Congress of the World in Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, next September.

Warren A. Carberg and James Carroll of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette staff are on their vacations.

Frank A. Phelan of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette has gone to Colorado for the summer. He will return to the staff in the fall.

Thomas C. Hill, formerly with Wilmington, Del., and Philadelphia papers, more recently in New York, sails this week from San Francisco, to join the Sydney (Australia) Times.

Harvey S. Van Brocklin has joined the staff of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette.

Miss Dorothea H. Wingert, of Elizabeth, N. J., has been placed in charge of the Newark Sunday Call's resort news bureau at Asbury Park.

H. L. Weinberg has joined the day copy desk of the Minneapolis Tribune.

Barr Moses has joined the editorial staff of the Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

WHEN James Hale Steinman came back to Lancaster in 1911, with a Sheepskin from Yale and another from the University of Pennsylvania Law School, he came back to the family businesses and traditions which included the largest iron mill in Lancaster, Pa., coal and iron mines and property in Virginia and Alabama, and a newspaper with traditions of a hundred years but with little circulation and advertising. That newspaper was the Lancaster Intelligencer.

JAMES H. STEINMAN

Instead of opening a law office or pushing the iron mill, Mr. Steinman "took to" the newspaper business and set to the task of making the Intelligencer a power in its field.

He brought in a new managing editor and went to it. The Intelligencer grew instanter. Its eight p. m. edition was turned into a regular morning daily, the News Journal. During the war his brother J. F. Steinman began to take an active interest and a happy combination of youthful enthusiasm and conservative radicalism resulted.

When the World War broke out, J. H. Steinman enlisted, was assigned to the 79th division and went to France with it. He was promoted while in France to lieutenant colonel. The war over he returned to America and pitched into newspaper work with renewed vigor.

Two years ago a Sunday edition was started. During the year the brothers plan to erect a new six story office home for the newspapers.

WITH THE SPECIALS

ALLEN H. SEED, JR., vice-president and general manager of the Wm. J. Morton Company, special representatives, New York and Chicago, is making an extended trip to the coast.

Hil F. Best, formerly salesman in the main office of M. C. Mogensen & Company, Inc., national newspaper representatives, San Francisco, has been transferred to the New York office as assistant to Jerald D. Clemans, manager.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

MATTIE T. CRAMER has sold to George A. Seely the Orting (Wash.) Oracle.

(Continued on next page)

DURING the second week in June the following newspapers signed yearly contracts for the Central Press Association's complete general illustrated service:

Sacramento Union	Lexington Herald
Martins Ferry Times	Manitowoc Times
Knoxville Journal	Coatesville Record
Michigan City News	Canton Repository
Toledo Times	Wichita Eagle

Fremont, O., Messenger

This list does not include till forbid contracts for the general illustrated service, or new subscribers for the World's Best Picture Page.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

Now Ready For Release

SECKATARY HAWKINS CLUB PAGE

Is Now Being Served Subscribers to the Famous

SECKATARY HAWKINS STORIES

This "King Pin of All Juvenile Features" Also Offers a National

RADIO TIE-UP

Spreading the "Fair and Square" Motto for Boys and Girls

Letters from Readers
Answers to Letters
Story Contests and Prizes
Seckatary Hawkins Buttons

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

Delaven W. Gee, at one time editor of the Steamboat Springs (Col.) Pilot, has taken over the La Jara (Col.) Gazette.

Hugh L. Almon has purchased from William H. Wheeler the Halsey (Ore.) Rural Enterprise.

W. C. Wolfe and A. C. Post have sold the St. Francis (Kan.) Herald to A. A. Gillispie.

Guy Rutter of Pipestone, Minn., has purchased the Vienna (S. D.) Register, weekly, from I. J. Zettel, for several years its publisher.

Carthage (Ill.) Gazette, weekly, published by Will C. Sharp has been leased for a year by John Symonds of Carthage.

MARRIED

TULAH E. BROOKS, city editor of the Altoona (Pa.) Tribune, to Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Linder of Hartwell, Ga., in Washington, D. C., June 12.

Emory J. Bahr, cost accountant of the Rockford (Ill.) Daily Republican, to Miss Alice Wicke, June 8.

Giles Leroy Findley, of the Galesburg (Ill.) Evening Mail, editorial staff, to Miss Alberta A. Adams, in Galesburg, June 10.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

EDMONTON (ALTA.) BULLETIN recently installed a Monotype machine.

New Intertypes have been installed by the following Colorado weeklies: Western Colorado Progress, Grand Junction; Ignacio Chieftain, Niwot Tribune.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

S. J. K. HUGHES, from International News Service, to news desk, Knoxville (Tenn.) News.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

PEORIA (Ill.) STAR 10-page Builders' section, May 30.

ASSOCIATIONS

NEW YORK ASSOCIATION of YOUNG ADVERTISING MEN last week installed Walter E. Meinzer as president.

H. E. Swennes, president of the SOUTHWESTERN MINNESOTA EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION, has announced that the annual summer outing of the association will be held at Lake Sheat, August 7.

GREATER BUFFALO ADVERTISING CLUB conducted a four day cruise to Montreal June 10-13 with 200 members in the party. A specially chartered steamer was used.

Approximately 150 Colorado editors will attend the midsummer meeting of the COLORADO EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION at Alamosa, Col., July 23, 24 and 25, according to Edwin A. Bemis, secretary of the Association.

UTAH STATE EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION is to convene at Tooele June 18, for a three day session. Tooele is in the mining and smelting section of the state and a program of visits to industrial plants has been prepared.

SCHOOLS

NORMAN J. RADDER, associate professor of journalism, Indiana University, has taken charge of work in journalism in the summer school of the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University, Chicago.

Members of the alumni chapters of the Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi of Ohio State University held a reunion at the University recently with Prof. J. S. Myers, department of journalism, as one of the speakers. The chapters are entirely composed of former students in journalism at the university.

Students of journalism at the University of Oregon recently edited an issue of the Eugene Morning Register. They covered all beats, read and headed all copy that went into the paper. A few days later they put out an issue of the Eugene Guard.

Ivan Benson, instructor in the department of journalism, University of Kansas, has been advanced to assistant professor by the Board of Regents.

Obituary

MRS. WILLIAM T. BUCK, wife of William T. Buck, circulation manager of the Daytona Beach (Fla.) News died recently.

CHARLES WESLEY TIETSORT, 89, for 30 years editor of the Medora (Ill.) Messenger, a weekly, which he founded, died at his home June 5.

AGNES JOSEPHINE MURPHY, a member of the Boston Herald-Traveler circulation bookkeeping department for more than eight years died at her home in Woburn last week.

S. L. LESTER, business manager of the Hoquiam (Wash.) Washingtonian, died recently. He had formerly been on the staffs of the Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review and the Tacoma (Wash.) Ledger.

W. A. BROWNE, 84, publisher of the Greenville (O.) Advocate, died Monday at his home in that city. His three sons have been associated with him in the management of the Advocate.

E. R. PARSONS, 48, advertising manager for the Mills restaurants, formerly connected with the Columbus newspapers and a partner in the firm of Parsons & Powers, advertising agents, died recently at his home in Columbus.

C. E. CAUGHLAN, 61, for 20 years with the display advertising department of the Des Moines (Ia.) Register and Tribune, died June 5, after a brief illness. Since last fall he had been associated with the Stephenson Printing Company.

CHARLES W. BOYNTON, 72, for nearly half a century owner and editor of the Longmont (Col.) Ledger, which he established in 1877, died recently. Boynton founded the Longmont public library and later was instrumental in procuring a Carnegie library for his town. He is survived by his widow and two daughters.

MELVIN R. CROSBY, 66, for more than 35 years a member of the Boston Herald-Traveler composing room staff and for the past seven years in charge of the Traveler proof room died at his home in West Medford, Mass., last week.

MRS. MARY VERONICA MCLAUGHLIN ANDERSON, former society editor of the Detroit Free Press, and well-known among newspaper workers in Detroit and Cleveland, died Sunday in the University of Michigan Hospital at Ann Arbor, following an illness of several months. For a time Mrs. Anderson was society editor of the Detroit News and more recently has been on the staff of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald.

HUGH MCDONALD, 35, former well-known Bay City, Mich., newspaper man and later an advertising agent in Chicago and Detroit, died recently in Albuquerque, N. M. from the effects of being gassed while overseas in the Great War. Funeral services in Bay City were under the auspices of the ambulance company with which McDonald served in the army.

DONALD MCLENNAN, 86, father of Fred M. McLennan, news editor of the Buffalo Courier-Express, died in his home in Washington, D. C., recently.

CHARLES L. FEIGEL, 53, secretary of the Volksfreund Printing Company, publishers of a German daily at Buffalo dropped dead in his home in that city.

WILLIAM R. SPEARS, formerly with the Rochester (N. Y.) Herald advertising department, and more recently sales manager of the Bastian Bros. Company of that city, died recently.

W. S. PARKHURST, 67, former editor of the Richfield (Idaho) Courier and the Bingham County Idaho News, died June 3.

HANS BERGMAN, 57, author and assistant editor of the Puget Sound Posten, Swedish weekly published in Seattle, died June 2, in Seattle.

NO A. B. C. in Argentina

So — LA NACION of Buenos Aires has done the next best thing

LA NACION INVITED THE Audit Bureau of Circulations to send an executive at the expense of LA NACION to examine and make a report of its circulation along A.B.C. lines.

Unfortunately, the policy of the A.B.C. did not permit this and so the certified public accountants Deloite, Plander, Griffiths & Co., Price, Waterhouse, Saller & Co., and Arturo R. Zoppi, the Argentine National Accountant were employed and a quarterly audit is being made and results published.

LA NACION is the only newspaper in Latin America that has had its circulation audited and certified to by public accountants.

LA NACION has the largest and best circulation of any newspaper in South America.

LA NACION is one of the world's greatest newspapers. It is the only morning member of the Associated Press in Buenos Aires.

LA NACION has its own offices and correspondents in New York, London, Paris, Berlin and Rome, and its own correspondents in nearly all of the world's great capitals.

LA NACION publishes more local, national and American display advertising than any other newspaper in Buenos Aires, and for more than five years has consistently shown and is still showing the largest gain in advertising lineage and circulation of any newspaper in South America.

The Argentine is one of the United States' best customers. Are you getting your share?

Do you want to know more about the opportunities for the sale of your products in the Argentine?

Ask LA NACION about the Argentine.

EDITORIAL AND GENERAL OFFICE IN THE UNITED STATES
383 Madison Ave., New York
W. W. DAVIES, Correspondent and General Representative.

UNITED STATES ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES
S. S. KOPPE & CO., INC., Times Bldg., New York
Telephone: Bryant 6900

An informative booklet on advertising in Argentina, or a copy of an address delivered by Jorge A. Mitre, Editor and Publisher of LA NACION, at the breakfast given by the American Association of Advertising Agencies to the Pan American Congress of Journalists, or both, will be mailed to anyone making application to the advertising representatives.

Shall Merchandising Cooperation Be Paid For Directly or Indirectly?

The bane of many a newspaper publisher's life is merchandising cooperation.

The ultimate effect is increasing the cost of advertising.

Certain cooperation is legitimate and very effective. Its correct use is one of the many exclusive advantages of newspaper advertising.

But cooperation should be paid for as a separate item by the advertisers thus served for the trite reason that you can't get something for nothing.

Usually competition and the attitude of agencies and advertisers makes a direct charge unprofitable.

And so, in due time, rates are revised upward to include an indirect charge for cooperation.

Advertisers and agents should decide whether it is to their advantage to pay directly or indirectly for merchandising cooperation.

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives

DETROIT	NEW YORK	KANSAS CITY
ATLANTA	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Jack Kearns Tells of Fight Game from Inside—Collegian Reports Adventures Around the World—Ring Lardner Commits Autobiography

CHRISTY WALSH SYNDICATE, New York, announced this week Jack Kearns' story "The Fight Game from the Inside" to start June 28 and continue ten weeks. It is said to contain Kearns' replies to the charges recently made against him in a series of articles written by Jack Dempsey for King Features Syndicate, Inc., New York. In addition he discloses details of his own sporting life as boxer, gambler, and manager. Kearns' contract as manager for Dempsey legally expires Aug. 3.

Ring Lardner has decided to commit the crime of the present literary age—autobiography. It will be burlesque, and will be handled by Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York, as part of Lardner's weekly letters to newspaper editors, beginning July 4.

John Millar of the Associated Editors, Chicago, has returned from a business trip through towns in the Middle West.

Richard Halliburton, author and lecturer, who as a young Princeton graduate worked his way around the world, has written an account of his experiences in a series of five articles for the Metropolitan Newspaper Service.

Elizabeth Walker, who has done special features for the Chicago Daily Journal and the Chicago Evening Post will leave soon for a 5 months' stay in the Orient. She will write a series of Letters which she will syndicate to newspapers of the United States.

Zoë Beckley, feature writer for Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., addressed the weekly luncheon meeting of the League of Advertising Women of New York City, Wednesday, June 9, at the Hotel Astor.

The broadcasting program of the International Eucharistic Congress, at which cardinals and other church dignitaries from all over the world will speak, has been compiled as part of the radio program service to its subscribers by Audio Service. Copies will be sent gratis to newspapers in cities where there is no Audio service subscriber.

Bourges Service, Inc., New York, has a contract with the United States Government for the exclusive reproduction and syndication of 12 navy pictures in color especially selected by the government.

New York World Syndicate has enlarged its headquarters in the World Building, 63 Park Row.

Wilfred Grenfell, M. D., is author of a series of 24 serio-comic articles, under the heading "Yourself and Your Body" now being distributed by Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York. The series is illustrated by the author. Designed primarily for children, the articles are described as being interesting also for older readers.

Clinton Brainerd, president and owner of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, left this week for a brief vacation at his summer home near Winthrop, Me.

H. J. Webster, cartoonist for the New York World Syndicate, is on a fishing trip in Maine, near Portland.

R. V. Hardon, syndicate author has gone to Albuquerque, N. M., where he intends to make his future home. His features will continue to be released by the National Newspaper Service, Chicago.

CHICAGO DAILIES READY FOR CATHOLIC MEET

Both Editorial and Advertising Staffs Keyed Up for Special Effort During Meeting Which Will Draw 1,000,000 to City

Chicago's newspapers, both advertising and editorial departments, are making extensive preparations for the mammoth International Eucharistic congress, which will bring about 1,000,000 visitors to the city next week.

The Congress will be in session from June 20 to 24, and many of the delegates, some of whom have already arrived, will remain in the city for days afterwards. The newspapers will utilize every facility available to cover the convention from an advertising and news angle. Many of Chicago's largest stores and business enterprises are buying extra space throughout the Congress, some of them for commercial advertising, with an eye to interesting purchases by the delegates to the Congress, and some, like Marshall Field & Co., for institutional advertising.

The Chicago Tribune is establishing service booths at many of the downtown department stores to aid the Catholic visitors, and will also dispense information and whatever aid it can offer at its public service office, 11 South Dearborn street, and in a branch office in the lobby of the Tribune Tower. The Tribune has also published a new edition of its "Guide Book to Chicago" specially for visitors to the Eucharistic Congress.

Advertisers are making elaborate displays of particular appeal to the visitors during the Congress and are preparing their advertising with an eye to attracting the attention of the delegates to the gigantic convention.

In the editorial departments some of the papers are planning special sections, and all of them are arranging to use every man and woman who can be spared to help cover the Congress from every angle. The Tribune, for example, will have James O'Donnell Bennett handle the many colorful ceremonies attendent upon the Congress; John Clayton, the paper's correspondent in Rome, has accompanied John Cardinal Bonanzo, the papal legate, to America, and will be attached to the Cardinal's party in Chicago, to write of the pontifical aspects of the Congress; Daniel F. J. Sullivan, Tribune special writer, an authority on the ritual and significance of the Roman Catholic Church service, will interpret the many ceremonies as they occur, and Kathleen McLaughlin, who has been writing many of the pre-Congress stories, will contribute a daily story on the significant events of the Congress. In addition, a corps of writers will report the numerous group meetings to be held in the outlying churches and convention halls throughout the city.

The Chicago Evening Post will have a special 32-page tabloid section; the Daily News, the Evening American, the Daily Journal and the Herald and Examiner will also have special sections and large staffs of special writers, reporters and photographers working on the Congress.

Thackeray Art Manager

Wm. D. Thackeray, who has been production manager for the Fred M. Randall Company, Detroit, for the past three years, has been made manager of the art and creative department of this agency. Mr. Thackeray was formerly associated with the Toronto office of the H. K. McCann Company.

The first bank and the first insurance company in America were started in Philadelphia.

The Havana Evening Telegram

Cuba's Leading American Daily

English is the language of big business in CUBA. Get results by advertising in CUBA'S fastest growing English language daily.

CUBA is Uncle Sam's sixth best customer.

The Telegram's Merchandizing Bureau will be glad to assist American manufacturers and advertising agencies in developing their trade with CUBA.

"Ask THE HAVANA TELEGRAM about CUBA."

New York Office:
503 Times Building.
Telephone Bryant 6900

EL MERCURIO

carried in 1925 considerably over two million lines of American advertising. Published in SANTIAGO, VALPARAISO and ANTOFAGASTA. EL MERCURIO as the first choice of both local merchants and American manufacturers proved itself again the sure road to success in Chilean business.

2,000,000 Lines in EL MERCURIO means more than just a figure to the American firms whose advertising took up that space. It means profitable sales, good distribution, consumer demand, trade influence, and all the other things that EL MERCURIO'S Trade Information Bureau can tell you about. Chile's growth should be yours. 1926 will show a continued improvement.

S. S. KOPPE & CO., Inc.

Publishers' Representatives

TIMES BUILDING NEW YORK CITY

'Phone: Bryant 6900

ASK EL MERCURIO ABOUT CHILE

Continued Leadership
In the World's Greatest Market

THE value of The Sun as a medium for building sales in the great New York market is indicated by the pronounced and continued preference which advertisers show for The Sun.

For eleven consecutive months The Sun has published more advertising and has made larger gains in advertising than any other New York evening newspaper.

In May advertisers used 1,379,052 agate lines in The Sun. This was 78,770 more than the volume placed in the second New York evening newspaper.

The Sun's gain in advertising, comparing May of this year with May of last year, was larger than the combined gains of all the other New York evening newspapers.

This record is all the more significant because of the strict censorship which The Sun maintains on all advertising.

ADVERTISING in The Sun is equally productive for manufacturers who sell their products through local retailers and for New York merchants who draw customers from all parts of the New York market into their individual stores.

Both National Advertisers and the Manhattan Department Stores have for years used more space in The Sun than in any other New York evening newspaper.

The reason for the unusual productiveness of The Sun's advertising columns is found in the kind of people who read The Sun.

THE SUN'S large circulation is concentrated among intelligent people of moderate or more than moderate means—people who have money enough to buy not only the necessities of life but also the comforts and pleasures of life—people to whom quality and service and style are more important considerations than price—people who constitute the most profitable market for advertised products of good quality.

The Sun is a home newspaper. It enables advertisers to reach all members of the family six days a week. It is an effective medium for selling everything from automobiles and radio sets to laundry soaps and lingerie. Eighty-two per cent of The Sun's circulation is distributed after 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon, when New Yorkers begin to go home with their newspapers, and 97% of its readers live in the New York city and suburban trading area.

EVERY department of news is presented to readers of The Sun by writers who are without peers in their respective fields. Its pages are entertaining as well as informative, and there is nothing of manufactured sensationalism in them.

The Sun has long had an enviable reputation for the literary qualities of its news articles, the fairness of its editorials, and the completeness of its sporting news, financial news, society news and the many other divisions of a modern newspaper.

THE SUN'S large, responsive circulation is a growing circulation. During the six months ended March 31, 1926, The Sun had a daily net paid circulation of 257,067. This represents an average increase of 11,593 copies a day over the corresponding period of 1925.

The Sun

280 BROADWAY NEW YORK

BOSTON	WASHINGTON, D. C.	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO	LOS ANGELES
Old South Building	Munsey Building	208 So. La Salle St.	First National Bank Building	Van Nuys Building
PARIS	LONDON	BERLIN	ROME	PEKIN
10 Boulevard des Capucines	Trafalgar Building	14 Unter den Linden	25 Piazza Mignanelli Roma 6	8 Hsi La Huntung

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Alfred Wallerstein, Inc., Elects Officers, D. E. Bloch, President— C. C. Carr Reports on Florida Agency Business—McLain-Simpers Gets Asbestos Account

ALFRED WALLERSTEIN was elected chairman of the board of directors of Alfred Wallerstein, Inc., New York advertising agency, at a recent meeting. David E. Bloch was elected president and secretary. Other officers named were George N. Wallace, vice-president; N. J. Wallerstein, treasurer, and F. M. Riley, assistant treasurer.

Henry Ewald, of the Campbell-Ewald Company, with his family, and Walter Zimmer, of the Zimmer-Keller Company, with his family have left Detroit to spend the Summer in Europe.

Arthur W. Ramsdell, general manager, has announced a change in name of the agency he represents from Cole-MacDonald-Wood, Inc., to MacDonald-Ramsdell-Wood, Inc.

The change is one of name only, the staff remains unchanged.

The Lesan-Carr Advertising agency, St. Petersburg and New York, reports a volume of business of $750,000 for the year to end July 1, according to C. C. Carr, president. Mr. Carr was in New York this week, prior to attending the 22nd annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in Philadelphia next week.

The Lesan-Carr Advertising agency specializes in Florida community accounts, having handled the advertising for 30 Florida cities or communities during the past year. Mr. Carr reported that almost without exception clients are increasing their appropriations for this coming year.

The McLain-Simpers Organization, Philadelphia, has been appointed to handle the account of the United States Asbestos Company, manufacturer of brake linings, clutch facings, etc.

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Book Issued by New York Bank Calls Advertisers Associate Editors of Newspapers—Campaign Started for Ice Maid Refrigerators —J. C. Keplinger Named Timken Advertising Manager

ADVERTISERS are described as associate editors of the newspapers in which they advertise in a booklet issued this week by the Bank of Manhattan, New York. The booklet, entitled "News and Progress" calls the newspaper the "market place of the community."

The advertiser, it is pointed out, have the largest possible motive for making their announcements interesting for their own money is at stake in each issue.

"But even more than this, their reputation, as well as that of the paper itself, is at stake," the book reads, "and the copy must be reliable as well as interesting."

A newspaper presents a variety of information, the bank asserts, parts of which appeal to some members of the family more than others. Only one part induces an almost unanimous response, because it has a universal appeal, and that part is the advertising columns.

Newspapers of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, and St. Louis are being used in a campaign started by the Lamson Company, Syracuse, for its Ice Maid electric refrigerator. The account is handled by Moser & Cotins Company, Utica, N. Y.

The Twinplex Sales Company, St. Louis, has offered a $2,000 reward for the name of a sour-looking individual who "kicks about the blades not being as good as they used to be, yet when you ask him why he doesn't strop them, says, 'Why bother to strop my blades, when new ones are so cheap?'"

Earnings of the Murray Body Corporation for the first four months of the year ended April 30, after depreciation and charges but before Federal taxes, were $750,000, it was announced recently.

F. D. Zimmerman, publicity director for the Continental Oil company, Denver, has been reelected district governor of the Optimist clubs in Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexaco.

John C. Keplinger has been promoted to the position of advertising manager for the Timken Roller Bearing Company, Canton, O.

Edward W. Tree has joined the Interflash Signal Corporation, 120 Broadway, New York City, as advertising manager.

A. B. C. DIRECTORS MEET

Banquet Given Canadian Publishers and Advertisers at Niagara Falls

A banquet given by directors of the Audit Bureau of Circulations to Canadian publishers and advertisers was a feature of that body's meeting held June 11-12 at Hamilton, Ont., and Niagara Falls. The banquet was held at Niagara Falls Saturday evening.

O. C. Harn, of the National Lead Company, New York, president of the bureau, acted as toastmaster, and seated with him at the head table were: Stanley Clague, managing director of the A.B.C.; Hon. Frank Carroll, Quebec, president Canadian Daily Newspaper Association; MacGregor Young, K.C., representing the Ontario government; Walter L. Strong, managing director of the Chicago Daily News; Col. C. R. McCullough; Col. MacLean, president of the MacLean Publishing Company; S. P. Westaway, representing the Hamilton chamber of commerce; John Martin, president Canadian Advertisers' Association; W. J. Grant, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and W. J. Southam, of the Spectator Printing Company. It is customary for A. B. C. directors to hold one meeting in Canada each year, but heretofore these have always been held in Montreal or Toronto.

The Canadian advisory committee, which convenes with the board of directors, consists of John Murray Gibson, of Montreal; William Findlay, of A. McKim, Limited, Toronto; E. H. Macklin, Winnipeg Free Press; George E. Scroggie, Mail and Empire, Toronto; J. R. Henderson, Montreal Gazette; T. F. Drummie, Telegraph-Journal, St. Johns, N. B.; H. V. Tyrell, MacLean Publishing Company, Toronto; T. J. Tobin, of the Canadian Countryman, and M. McKnight, Consolidated Press, Toronto.

U. S. Newsprint Output is Smaller

May production of newsprint in the United States totaled 141,032 tons, as against 145,327 tons in April. Shipments aggregated 142,294 tons, as against 144,600 in April. Canadian mills produced 153,969 tons in May, compared with 151,739 in April, while shipments from the Dominion reached 151,990 tons, against 154,015 tons.

"Ask EL COMERCIO About Peru"

The United States today occupies a predominant position in the import trade of Peru.

EL COMERCIO, with its morning and evening editions, absolutely dominates this most lucrative market for American goods.

EL COMERCIO is the only member of the Associated Press in Peru.

EL COMERCIO, housed in one of the most beautiful newspaper buildings in the world, is a national institution, respected by the people of Peru and forming the buying habits of that country.

EL COMERCIO has the largest circulation and carries more advertising, both local and foreign, than any other newspaper in Peru.

"Ask EL COMERCIO about Peru."

S. S. KOPPE & CO., INC.

Publishers' Representatives

TIMES BUILDING NEW YORK CITY

Phone Bryant 6900

"Ask EL ESPECTADOR about Colombia"

The nearest South American Market * * *

Colombia, with a population of 7,500,000, accessible from two oceans and close to the Panama Canal, offers exceptional opportunities to American manufacturers who are seeking a lucrative market with ever-growing possibilities. EL ESPECTADOR, founded in 1886, has been in the vanguard of Colombian journalistic progress for almost forty years and has always been the preferred medium of American advertisers.

"Ask EL ESPECTADOR about Colombia"

S. S. KOPPE & CO., INC.

Publishers' Representative

TIMES BUILDING NEW YORK CITY

'Phone Bryant 6900

Washington and Its Environment Greater than Thirteen States

The U. S. Census Bureau estimates the present population of the National Capital as well over the half million mark—528,000—and the usual twenty-five mile shopping radius adds about 222,000 more.

With these figures to its credit it leads thirteen entire states—Arizona, Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont or Wyoming—bringing the total buying strength of the Washington market to approximately 750,000 prosperous people—whose incomes justify their liberal spending.

It is a notable fact that this combined area, exceeding in population each of the above thirteen states is completely reached by ONE newspaper —The Star. Its home delivered circulation—Evening and Sunday—makes The Star equally strong in the suburbs and in the city.

The possibilities of the Washington market and the directness and ease with which it is FULLY COVERED by THE STAR—deserves close consideration of the sales executives of products of merit.

Our Statistical Department is at your service in making specific surveys that may be of interest to you

The Evening Star.
WITH SUNDAY MORNING EDITION

NEW YORK OFFICE
Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42nd Street

WASHINGTON, D. C.

CHICAGO OFFICE
J. E. Lutz
Tower Building

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

MUST DISCARD INTERNATIONAL PREJUDICES

"INTERNATIONAL truth does not consist in stating the facts of the news as seen with American eyes or Oriental eyes or through the colored glasses which nationalistic prejudices sometimes produce. The international journalism must discard nationalistic prejudices and ignore the prompting of his personal patriotism. Facts and the Truth impersonally sought and impersonally stated without ulterior purpose and without intent to serve any cause nationalistic or political, are the standard."—J. H. Furay, vice-president, United Press Associations.

* * *

NEWSPAPERS REFLECT READERS' DEMANDS

"HAVE editorials grown spineless and flabby, treading water instead of championing unpopular causes? It is because people like them better that way. Are the papers full of news that you wouldn't care to discuss with your children? It's because people like them better that way. Do the papers occasionally exaggerate, splashing big headlines on unimportant items and relegating really vital news to a minor place? It's because the public demands it. Our newspapers will get better when the public will permit it. It is impossible for them to do so any sooner."—Editorial, Salt Lake City Telegram.

* * *

DISCRIMINATION IN COPY

"A NUMBER of public utilities advertise with fair regularity in the newspapers. Frequently the copy they use is not prepared with enough discrimination. I am aware of the assertion often made that public utility companies feel they must go in all local mediums, if in any. For all self-respecting newspapers I resent the inference that the editorial or news policy might be influenced by the advertising. But the point I am most interested in making is that the public utility companies would find it to their profit to adapt their copy to different newspapers."—Louis Wiley, Business Manager, New York Times, Before Public Utilities Advertising Association.

* * *

"SEE THAT YOUR EDITOR PROSPERS"

"YOUR editor is eternally the mouthpiece of your town. See that he makes money. See that he finds life congenial. It will pay your city. No editor can put his whole heart into building a town that does not give him prosperity. He must see his business growing; he must see his mechanical equipment improving year after year. Be the friend of your newspaper man. You can prove your friendship in no truer way than by helping him to make money. In an organized way, develop, if you can, faith in advertising in your local newspaper. Show the publisher that you and your Chamber of Commerce are his firm friends, wishing him business success."—Lester B. Colby of Illinois Chamber of Commerce, Addressing Convention of State C. of C. Secretaries.

* * *

WHO READS "SOB STUFF"?

"THE press chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, talking for three million women, avers that women do not read the sob sister and lovelorn stuff printed in many newspapers. Men do, she says, but every real he-man will refute the statement. Somebody reads the stuff that she calls 'slush' or so many keen newspapers would not use it. The explanation is that it is emotional stuff and there are a great many emotional people in the world, people of both sexes and all ages. They are not all of the keenly intellectual type exemplified in leading clubwomen. The latter can pass over the sob stuff and the people who like it can read it. That is the viewpoint of the modern newspaper. Something for everybody. Everything for somebody. This makes a newspaper that epitomizes humanity and short of that a great paper is not complete."—Albert E. Hayes in the Denver Post.

FLASHES

JUST the same, there are a lot of nice little girls in town who would be glad to sit, unattired, in a tub of sulphuric acid to get their pictures on the front pages of so many papers so often.—New York Herald Tribune.

It seems strange that those who stage endurance tests haven't thought of a gum-chewing contest.—Washington Post.

Prohibition isn't the only thing that is emptying the jails in Illinois. The local authorities have arrived at an almost infallible system. In 1923 Joliet Penitentiary received 397 prisoners and paroled 442.—New York Herald Tribune.

The way to transform a silly fad into a stimulating recreation is to adopt it yourself.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

A complete story in a date line: "Warsaw, Poland, May 13th."—St. Louis Star.

When a politician alleges that stealing is going on, he usually fails to keep his voice from sounding a little wistful.—El Dorado Tribune.

Aroused by the success of Miss Joyce Hawley, the enterprising department stores are advertising sales of Tub Frocks. —F. P. A. in New York World.

It doesn't seem right that an American would fly over the North Pole and not drop any advertising matter.—Indianapolis News.

An old-timer is one who can remember when a coroner got to sleep all night every night.—New York Telegram.

Sinclair Lewis has rejected a prize offer of $1,000. A little while ago Lewis declared "There is no God." And now he says he doesn't believe in Santa Claus. —Delaware State News.

The most important thing that needs fixing about the average automobile is the nut at the end of the steering wheel.—Toledo Times.

For those who habitually accuse our town of bibulous habits, we now unveil a forgiving but triumphant smile. What other city in America, we ask, has ever enjoyed such a gigantic milk scandal?—The New Yorker.

The reason a famous watering place does you good is because you drink more water than you would at home.—Waco News-Tribune.

What makes the farm-relief crisis so cruel in the lives of Congressmen is that they used to be able to stall off such things with free garden seed.—Dallas News.

A penny for the thoughts of some men would be obtaining money under false pretense.—Red Bluff (Cal.) Daily News.

CLINE SYSTEM
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
QUALITY SAFETY SERVICE SAFETY
CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by

Davenport Times

Davenport, Ia.

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

Now Daily As Well As Weekly

"VIGNETTES OF LIFE"

By Frank Godwin

To Meet the Great Demand for a Daily Version of This Popular Feature It Is Now Issued in Three-Column Mat for Release Every Week-Day.

LEDGER SYNDICATE

INDEPENDENCE SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Dallas Morning News has by far the largest circulation in its field. But what of it?

Hammers Are Appraised by the Pound

Which Also Goes for Newspapers

Let's get it clear. It's the pound on the nail, not on the scale, that counts.

It's not the pounds it can assay but the pounds it can essay that give a hammer—or an advertising medium—potence.

The instrument you select to hammer your story home has got to have more than mere weight of circulation. It's got to have character and stamina and influence among its people or it won't put you over.

If you want your advertising to be as big a success tomorrow as it is today you'll have to accept that as a fact.

* * *

The Dallas News has the biggest circulation in its field—has had for 41 years.

The News' circulation is larger today than ever before, and both its circulation and its margin of leadership are increasing.

But the fact that in circulation The News has things pretty much its own way is merely the evidence of a condition.

The influence of The Dallas News upon its people is a by-word wherever newspaper values are understood.

Circulation based on this condition is the finest circulation in the world.

* * *

Many of our friends will be interested in knowing that The News has discontinued its flat financial rate. Financial advertising of specific stock or bond issues, heretofore costing 25c. per line flat now costs no more than any other advertising.

The conditions that justified the higher rate no longer exist, and in taking this step we believe we serve the best interests of many valued friends and patrons.

Dallas is the door to Texas
The News is the key to Dallas

The Dallas Morning News

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

6½ pt. Ionic No. 5

COMBINES WORD COUNT AND LEGIBILITY

WORD COUNT of 6 point

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They were curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

Mr. MacPherson also noted that the welfare facilities offered by the American plant were much more elaborate than in England and that equipment and quarters were more beneficial. This was evidently the result, he observed, of the frequent scrapping of plants here to make way for expansion and development. His countrymen are

6 Point No. 2 with Bold Face No. 1.
Set on 7 point slug

LEGIBILITY

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They were curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

Mr. MacPherson also noted that the welfare facilities offered by the American plant were much more elaborate than in England and that equipment and quarters were more beneficial. This was evidently the result, he observed, of the frequent scrapping of plants here to make way for expansion and development. His countrymen are loath, he said, to tear down a building that has 6½ Point Ionic No. 5 with Bold Face No. 2.

Set on 7 point slug

LEGIBILITY of 8 point

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They were curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

8 Point No. 2 with Bold Face No. 1.
Set solid

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Composed on the Linotype, display in Cloister Bold except for enlarged title line

530.26.6-F

HAVANA DAILY PREFERS STREET SALES TO SUBSCRIPTIONS IN HOME CITY

El Mundo Believes Paper Is Immediately Read When Purchased at Stand—A. G. Mora, Managing Director, Tells of Daily's Policies

SENOR A. G. MORA, managing director of El Mundo, one of Cuba's leading newspapers, rose from the ranks in true American fashion.

El Mundo, which recently celebrated its silver anniversary, was founded on April 11, 1901. On that day, Mr. Mora entered the employ of El Mundo in the mail department. For one year, he worked without any compensation, because, as he pointed out, he considered journalism as a hobby. At the end of the first year, he was promoted into the Havana circulation department, at the munificent salary of $5.00 a week and soon after, entered the national circulation department, which covers the entire republic of Cuba.

A few years later and until 1919, he was detailed by the management to make a special investigation and to supervise the work of the various departments of the publication. In 1921, as a reward for his laudable work, he was appointed managing director, being then only 35 years old.

A tribute to Mr. Mora's ability as managing director is the fact that during the five years that he has held that post, the circulation of the paper has steadily increased.

Mr. Mora declared that while El Mundo is pre-eminently a paper of the people, its influence extends to all social classes, because of its traditional freedom from political and partisan struggles.

"Only on one occasion," he said, "have we abandoned this time-honored policy. That was when we lent our support to the candidacy of General Machado for President of the Republic. We did this because we were firmly convinced that his victory would result in untold benefits to the country."

"What type of news do your readers prefer, local or foreign?" was the question asked when Mr. Mora had finished.

"While our readers are naturally interested in local events, the ever-growing interest in foreign affairs has made it necessary for us to arrange for the best cable services from abroad. We are members of the Associated Press. We have a normal cable service of 30,000 words a day from abroad. Among the services which we receive, in addition, are the La Nacion of Buenos Aires service, Universal, the Inter-Ocean Press, a special service from our own correspondent in Madrid, where we maintain our own office (as Spanish news is always of great interest to our readers) and a special New York service of American news, from our correspondent in New York, transmitted over our own leased wire direct to Havana. Besides, we have our own correspondents in London, Paris and other world capitals."

A. G. Mora

"How do you distribute your paper to the readers, through subscriptions or direct sales?" was asked.

"We refuse to take any subscriptions in Havana itself," he replied, "because we believe that the best type of circulation from the advertiser's viewpoint is that which is sold direct. Papers that are subscribed for are frequently accumulated for many days before being opened and in numerous cases are not even read at all. On the other hand, if a man buys a paper in the street, on his way to or from his office, he opens it in the streetcar and not only does he himself read it, but two or three others who happen to be near him, involuntarily glancing at his paper, may inadvertently read some advertisements in the paper and thus the advertising receives double or three-fold publicity.

"We have 600 men and boys distributing El Mundo and we send our own automobile trucks all over the city of Havana, including the outlying districts. This is the system of circulation we have followed exclusively. Of course, we do accept subscriptions from distant places and also distribute copies of El Mundo gratis to all Cuban Embassies, Legations and Consulates.

"You may be interested to know that we pay a great deal of attention to sports. We publish a four-page section of sport news, printed on green paper. Not only do we cover important features in the sporting world, but, unlike other Latin American papers, we publish complete baseball scores, just like papers in the United States. These scores appear in Cuba at the same time that they are published in the U. S., being cabled to us.

"In addition to the regular features such as theatre and moving picture news, society, police and religious news, we have many other editorial features, among which I may name Arthur Brisbane's 'To-day'; a humoristic 'Outline of History'; daily beauty talks; a two-column article like McIntyre's 'New York Letter,' which is called 'Havana Daily Life'; municipal news; legal news and radio news.

"In advertising we are carrying a great deal of American copy at present and all indications point to an increase along these lines, as American manufacturers realize more and more the importance of the Cuban market as an additional outlet for their products."

Mr. Mora stated that Cuban tobacco is conceded to be the finest in the world but that even Cuban tobacco is not so mellow when dry and he offered this practical suggestion to the inveterate newspaperman smoker: "Put your cigars in the ice-box over night and you'll be surprised at their freshness in the morning."

OLIVER QUITS POLITICS

Pittsburgh Publisher in Letter to Mellon Says Newspapers Demand His Time

Declaring that active participation in politics and the publishing of a metropolitan newspaper cannot mix, George S. Oliver, publisher of the Pittsburgh Gazette Times and Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph, this week announced his retirement from politics.

The announcement was made in a letter addressed to the recently elected State Republican Chairman, William L. Mellon, nephew of the Secretary of the Treasury. William L. Mellon was active with Mr. Oliver in the support of Senator Pepper for renomination and for John S. Fisher for governor in the recent Republican primary election.

Mr. Oliver, a son of the late U. S. Senator George T. Oliver, succeeded his father as publisher of the Gazette Times and Chronicle Telegraph. He also followed in his father's footsteps in taking an active part in the councils of the Republican Party.

In his letter of retirement he refers to his growing business interest in his newspapers as demanding all of his attention.

Pueblo Gets Air Mail Service

The U. S. air mail service has been extended to Pueblo, Col., on a route from Cheyenne to Pueblo. This service provides one day mail service between Pueblo and New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

Edmonds Gets Honorary Degree

Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record was recently awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law at the annual commencement of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.

252,330 was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

May, 1926

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of May, 1926, was 192,051.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

40 INTERTYPES

are being used by

No Standardized Intertype Has Ever Become Obsolete

$300,000 Furniture Store

(In a 35,000 Town)

Proves Buying Power of Central Illinois

For beauty of architecture, this block-long 7-story furniture mart, with its arcade show windows extending 63 feet into the store, has no parallel in the United States.

Its construction was fully justified by the buying power of the 140,000 people in the Pantagraph's trading territory, demonstrated by the patronage extended this firm over a period of 40 years.

This store uses an average of 168,000 lines per year in The Daily Pantagraph, and is but one of the eight large furniture stores serving Bloomington and Central Illinois.

Paid Circulation 19003 In the Richest Spot in Illinois

The Daily Pantagraph.

Published Every Morning Except Sunday at Bloomington, Ill.

REPRESENTATIVES—

CHAS. H. EDDY CO., 247 Park Ave., New York City; 294 Washington St., Boston. J. H. GRIFFIN, Room 1501, 140 S. Dearborn St., Chicago. P. A. FOLSOM, Chemical Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

Member A. B. C., A. N. P. A., Associated Press.

Top—New 22-story office building just completed for Houston Post-Dispatch. This building is located in the heart of downtown Houston. The national, local and classified advertising departments of the Post-Dispatch are located in this building. On the 22nd floor are the studios and offices of radio station KPRC—the station owned and operated by the Houston Post-Dispatch.

Below—The publishing plant of the Houston Post-Dispatch. Th's plant was recently completed and is equipped with every modern convenience. It is located about a mile from the business district.

THE HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH

The fastest growing newspaper ever published in Texas

Gain last year 1,305,108 lines Gain first five months of 1926 1,123,598 lines

R. S. STERLING, Chairman of Board — W. P. HOBBY, President — C. C. MAES, General Manager — BOB MEEKER, National Advertising Manager

THE S. C. BECKWITH Special Agency NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES NEW YORK CHICAGO DETROIT ATLANTA ST. LOUIS KANSAS CITY LOS ANGELES SAN FRANCISCO

NO SLUMP EXPECTED IN MOTOR COPY DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS

Competition Too Keen to Permit Any Let-Up in Sales Effort, Detroit Writer Declares—Chrysler, Packard, Dodge, Hudson-Essex and Others to Keep Up Large Size Copy

DETROIT, June 16.—Motor and accessory advertising is not going to show any great slump in the next few months. Just now a couple of weeks between tides will lower the monthly average, but then it will start along again until fall.

This is due to the fact that the industry cannot stand still, nor just float along with the tide. The competition is too fast. And that means bringing out newer things all the time.

Earnings as a whole for the first six months will show substantial gains. It is not all going to the stockholders, for some of the companies now are spending money in new equipment, tooling up, or in some cases, plant enlargement. This latter plan is not general, however, because it involves too much piling up of brick and mortar that is not easily disposed of if a letup comes.

The makers are optimistic, but they are looking forward to get some idea of what is going to happen this fall when the congressional fights are under way. Some of them realize that it is going to be a more strenuous campaign than usual, particularly for control of the Senate, and they know that in some places it may slow things up a bit. Figures of parts makers show some already have begun to slow down production a little.

In the meantime a number of the automobile men, including agency and special representatives, discovered some time ago that there was more real money in Michigan real estate right near home than in Florida. Some of them have been turning over dealers, bringing them quite a bit of extra income.

All motordom is wondering what Henry Ford is going to do. It is surprising at the rumors that float about celebrities. Edsel Ford and his wife went to Europe and right away many had it that the boy and his father had a row and Edsel was shipped abroad.

Those who professed to know pointed as further proof of this the fact Mr. Ford had scrapped his advertising plans, and was quoted as saying it was "an economic waste." It is more probable that Mr. Ford is arranging to bring out something new and with that in mind he wants the public to forget temporarily what has been said in his advertising.

For more than two years it has been known to certain people that Ford was not content with just Ford and Lincoln cars. And the fact that other small cars were cutting into the tremendous sales of Fords, which cost the company a drop in profits last year of some $30,000,000, with a few more millions thrown in for a mixup in getting the new car out last fall.

Therefore, it is not at all beyond the realms of probability that the public will see a car shortly either a six or a straight eight, probably the former, worked out in between the Ford and Lincoln with some snappy combination of a name.

That new material has been moved into the Lincoln plant from time to time not necessary for the eight is no secret. And that many experiments have gone on with the Ford chassis using gear shift combinations many Detroiters know. When Henry gets ready he will take up advertising again, for he knows its value. Also when Henry talks about a new car he puts out, that is not news after the first announcement.

General Motors group is going along well all over the country, and that means larger profits, part of which will find its way into advertising. The Pontiac Six is like a driver in a race just swinging into a good position, and so its sales speed is being hastened by page copy that will alternate with half-page spreads. Oakland and Oldsmobile have been doing better than for years and there is no sign of a letup. At a distributors' meeting at Lansing this week the opinion was general that consistent advertising should be continued. Cadillac and Buick are showing increases which warrant more copy. Chevrolet is rolling up greater totals than ever.

Just now there is in preparation some good-sized copy for some accounts outside General Motors that will break through in a few weeks. Chrysler, Packard, Dodge Brothers, Paige-Jewett, Rickenbacker, Hupmobile, Hudson-Essex are going to keep up the large-sized copy. They will all find something new to talk about as the year goes along. There was some talk of Reo cutting down on its pages, but if it does it will not be this month anyway. Wills Sainte Claire is doing better than ever and it has a definite campaign going now.

John Willys is going to announce the facts about his little car this month, which is going to compete with Ford and Chevrolet. Instead of making an announcement first and dealers not having anything to show, the car is in production now and when it breaks in different places each dealer will have one. In the fall Mr. Willys will give the Stearns Knight a whirl to put it back in the picture. Willys-Knight copy continues the even tenor of its way.

Word from South Bend that Studebaker had changed agencies from Lord & Thomas to a newly organized firm at Chicago did not create any ripples on the surface of the industry. It is part of the business to try out different agencies from time to time. There is no intimation as yet that Studebaker will change its policy of page copy under the new plan.

Down at Cleveland the final work of merging the Chandler and Cleveland has been completed, and the executives are at the Chandler plant, with the engmeering at the Cleveland. The new company will make all its own bodies now. There is some good copy in sight there enlarging as it goes along. Peerless is doing a wonderful job and it is continuing its advertising.

E. S. Jordan is back after a month on the sleepers visiting dealers all over the country from coast to coast. The present schedule ending this month will be supplemented with another very soon. White is doing a big business and its advertising goes at regular intervals.

In the Northern belt Nash threw in a few full pages to give impetus to its change of name of the Ajax to the Nash light six, and there will be little let up in its regular schedule, if any. Kissel and Velie have had a good year and their linage has been increased this year, with more copy in sight.

Down in St. Louis Moon is working out its new light six which will be ready for the dealers along about August when the announcements will be due. Gardner is sending out new copy for its dealers to continue its big sale.

Indianapolis is strongly in the picture with Marmon and Stutz. Marmon sent out four pieces of big copy that are running now, and these will be followed by others. Stutz dealers were behind in deliveries, and the orders at the factory climbed up so that there was an interval in its advertising, and now the dealers are releasing copy again. Over at Auburn they are planning to release a new schedule shortly.

In New York Pierce Arrow supplemented its regular schedule with three or four more announcements and now work will be started on a new campaign. Franklin, with a year surpassing all previous ones plans to continue to let the public know all about its product.

One of the big jumps has been made by Star. Its production has put it from away down in the list up among the leaders in its class. And so the advertising continues to appear weekly in many places.

So it is going through the trade, with a few of the trucks like Federal and Stewart joining in the coterie of regular advertisers.

Among the tire companies Firestone and Goodrich are advertising now but Goodyear has not mapped out any schedule for release. Miller is this year trying the magazines. General Tire worked out a new plan of merchandising whereby it traded its new tires for others on a percentage basis, and the dealers were authorized to use copy running as big as seven columns in large centres, which has been very satisfactory.

United States has its schedule running regularly and so there is nothing to worry about with that account. All tire companies have substantial stocks on hand, but they are not overstocked. Dealers have been buying in smaller quantities, but placing orders more frequently, for they, too, are not carrying large inventories. With a few weeks of hot weather there will come a rush for tires that will soon deplete factory stocks. With the buying on generally, more companies will advertise to keep in the limelight.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization

Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg., LOS ANGELES

DAILIES FOE OF BLUE LAWS

Have Saved Country from Fanatic Reform Legislation, Former Writer Says

Were it not for the newspapers of America this country would now be struggling under a maze of Blue laws foisted upon the people, W. L. Burgan, former sports editor of the Baltimore Sun, now publicity director of the Seventh Day Adventist church, told 3,000 Adventists who gathered for the national convention of the Seventh Day Adventists in Milwaukee, Wis., last week.

Mr. Burgan lauded the press for its fight against Blue laws, for the scant encouragement it has given professional reformers, and for the vastly increased amount of church news now being published as compared with earlier days.

"The press has been of great help towards enlisting opposition to Blue laws and in defeating the professional reformer," he declared. "The professional reformers long ago would have secured the restrictive legislation they have been clamoring for had it not been for the universal opposition of the press. We are indebted to this marvellous agency beyond computation for the opposition to the Sunday laws and for the civil and religious liberty that people of this nation enjoy today."

Kent Press "Alumni" Return

Four former employees of the Kent Press Service staged a reunion by getting leaves of absence from their present jobs and returning to assist the Chicago bureau in handling the unusual volume of copy during the Eucharistic Congress. C. Russell Pierce, now director of public relations and assistant to the president of the University of Chicago, took charge of the squad at the ceremonials.

Twenty-four foreign countries and the United States are represented in the present membership of the Press Congress of the World.

The DAILY OKLAHOMAN
OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES
thoroughly and alone cover the Oklahoma City Market

Oklahoma is one of four states which Babson's June report says "should prove worthy of attention." Oklahoma is one of nine states which Babson's June Sales Map shows in the "Most Favorable" sales zone. Oklahoma is one of twelve states which the same authority designates as having the "Most Favorable" crop prospects.

The Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times thoroughly and alone cover the Oklahoma City market—the entire Central and Western portions of the state—those counties which will share largest in the bumper wheat crop now ready for harvest.

E. KATZ SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENCY
New York Chicago Kansas City Detroit Atlanta San Francisco

St. Paul Dispatch

St. Paul Pioneer Press

The second greatest city home delivered coverage in America at 15¢ a week.

O'MARA & ORMSBEE, New York, Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco

STANDARD 4-PAGE LETTER FORM URGED TO TELL MARKET FACTS TO AGENCIES

Space-Buyers, Flooded with Statistics, Don't Read Data Sent by Dailies, Writer Declares—Outlines Correspondence Method

By A. J. SLOMANSON

THE majority of publishers are confronted with the problem of instructing space-buyers and agency executives regarding the value of the markets covered by their respective publications. Direct-by-mail methods are practiced, but ineffectively, because of the great volume of circular matter received by agency executives each day, and as generally known, is very seldom read.

When selecting markets, most space-buyers choose those cities more familiar to their memory, unless the distribution of the advertised product demands a definite selection. After the schedule is finally released, the space-buyer is interviewed by a great number of salesmen, and as many as ten representatives a day try to educate the space-buyer to the value of their respective market at that time. Accordingly very little of the information given the space-buyer is retained in his mind because of the hurried way in which it is told to him. It is usually when the schedules are about to be released that representatives endeavor to actually sell their market. They may have called on the space-buyer several times each month previously, merely to ascertain whether there was anything new. It is true that they may not have had the opportunity to relate facts concerning their market on these calls due to the lack of interest on the part of the space-buyer. Then again, even if a space-buyer is educated to the value of a certain market, the efforts of the salesman will not assure any permanent value on account of the continual turn-over of space-buyers in agencies.

Another obstacle to overcome, if the space-buyer is to be educated to the facts regarding the various markets, is the manner in which the data is given, as at the present time this is done in a very haphazard and inefficient way. Many salesmen will give the space-buyer information about their markets in such a way that it is almost impossible for the space-buyer to remember the figures given him.

The following corrective measure is recommended and could easily be practiced by newspaper executives. It is the only ready panacea for having space-buyers continually apprised of the different newspaper markets. If newspaper publishers will standardize their correspondence to the following ideas, their markets will effectively be broadcasted at all times, and it will lessen the salesman's selling efforts at the time schedules are being prepared.

Throughout the United States all newspapers correspond extensively with space-buyers and agency executives, and in lieu of mailing the usual single letter sheet, a double page form could be mailed containing pertinent facts relative to the respective newspaper markets. For example; if a newspaper corresponded with a space-buyer concerning an account that has already been placed with the paper, or if the letter is in answer to some agency request for information about rates, etc., then the double page form containing data of local conditions will have the space-buyer's attention at the time he is reading the letter. Furthermore, if he received, say, ten letters each year from this paper, which is less than the average, he would have been apprised of this respective market at least ten times, and there is that possibility of having sold him on the value of the market without any extra effort or expense.

Naturally the first page of the double page form would be used for correspondence purposes. At the top of the second page, such information as "Audit Bureau of Circulation Member," "Member of Associated Press," or any such data could be listed.

This is of importance to a space-buyer, as if he were to select one paper in a small city for a quality product, the paper with the Associated Press service could be given more consideration than the paper without, considering circulations being about equal.

The names of the officers of the newspapers could also be listed on the second page, so that agency executive could become familiar with the name of each respective officer whenever corresponding. Too much correspondence between agency and newspaper executives is of an impersonal nature, and more good will could be established between both parties if the names of the officers were always on file.

There is no more outstanding aid to space-buyers than the Audit Bureau of Circulations reports, but how many space-buyers really study these reports considering that they are mailed to agencies each month in large quantities. The fact of the matter is that space-buyers refer to these reports only when it is necessary to do so. However, if the vital facts contained in the A. B. C. reports are listed on the second page of each letter which is mailed to agency space-buyers by newspapers, they would receive more notice and attention. Also all pertinent information regarding the newspaper and its market could be listed on pages two and three of the letter form, and by this procedure will space-buyers read the information listed on these pages.

For example, the following facts could be listed on pages two and three, and of course, changed according to conditions applicable to a different city and newspaper.

Member of A. B. C. Circulation, News Features, Advertising Rates, Service Department, Location of City and Population.

Assessed Space Value: Manufacturing, Trading Areas, Channels of Distribution, and Racial Analysis of Population.

The second inside page could show the following information: Schools, Banks, Theatres, Churches, Library, Hotels, Hospital, Clubs, Streets, Telephones, Telegraph, Express, Institutions, Good Roads, and Industries.

On the back page of this letter form the analysis of circulation distribution could be listed, and if desirable, a map could be printed showing the location of the city in relation to the state, and the trading territory around the city.

A newspaper mails hundreds of letters each year to agency executives, and by using a four page form as before described, there is no doubt that the newspaper following this procedure will enjoy more national business because of constantly bringing to the attention of agency executives the important facts about its respective market.

Edward Gans Resigns

Edward Gans, general manager of the Fall River (Mass.) Herald has resigned. He has not announced his future plans. The Herald was recently purchased by C. F. Kelly, head of the Kelly-Smith Company, special representatives, New York. Composing room employes of the Herald presented Mr. Gans with a gold watch and chain with pencil and fountain pen attached as a farewell gift.

Thirty per cent of the country's population and 40 per cent of its wealth and purchasing power lies within a circle drawn 250 miles, with Philadelphia as a center.

The "SPEEDMAT"

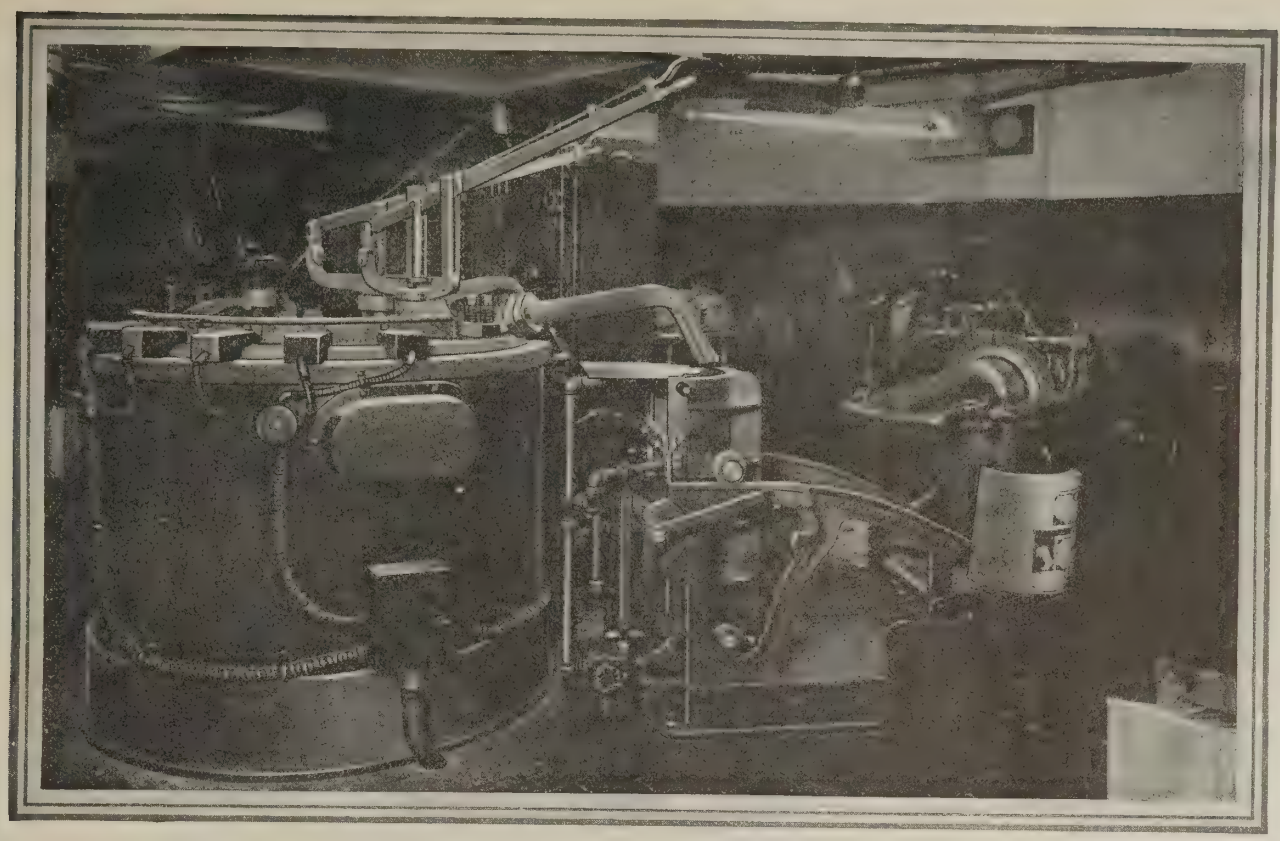
and the

Washington Times and Herald

On June 1st, without having had previous experience in handling dry mats, these Hearst newspapers began the use of "SPEEDMATS" on all pages. The preparations made by the Hearst management, under the direction of our expert, were so thorough that the "SPEEDMAT" quietly slid into exclusive use without "fuss or feathers" and was at once successful.

In this installation, and for the first time, a newspaper plant began to use dry mats with only narrow print paper rolls (Wood Dry Mat size) on hand. The supply of wider rolls for wet mats had been exhausted.

Had the "SPEEDMAT" failed and it had become necessary to use wet mats the papers would have appeared without margins.



But the "SPEEDMAT" did not fail, nor did the unusually efficient organization of the mechanical departments of The Washington Times and Herald.

"SPEEDMATS"

cost 15 cents at the mill

WOOD FLONG CORPORATION

501 Fifth Avenue New York City

Melt Your Stereotype Metal with Electric Heat

As high as 32% saving in cost!
Less wear and tear on the pot!
Uniformity of metal temperature never before securable!
All regulation and close attention eliminated!

THE progressive Waterbury Republican American, Waterbury, Conn., has installed a standard 5-ton stereotype pot, electrically heated by 9 G-E cast-in immersion units. Plates are cast for two issues daily and one issue on Sunday. The casting temperature of the metal is automatically kept at 620° F. Between castings the metal is automatically maintained at a temperature of 450° F.

Seldom has such an improvement been introduced in the casting room. This electrically heated pot is operated at a saving of 32% over the cost of operation of the previously used fuel-fired pot. Uncomfortable heat radiation and gaseous odors are absent from the room. As control is completely automatic, the pot requires practically no attention.

Everyone connected with the paper is enthusiastic. Mr. Dubuy, foreman of the plant, states that the excellent temperature control of the pot relieves him of the responsibility of making sure the temperature is right when his men want to begin casting. Mr. W. J. Pape, publisher, considers the installation as most satisfactory.

Although electric heat will not supplant all other forms of heat for industrial purposes, there are processes in every industry where it is the ideal heat—the most economical heat—the heat that ultimately will be used.

ULTIMATELY ELECTRIC HEAT
IN EVERY INDUSTRY

Phone or write to your nearest G-E office for complete information

570-9

GENERAL ELECTRIC

GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY, SCHENECTADY, N. Y., SALES OFFICES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR VANDERBILT TAB

E. A. Inglis, of Miami, Named, Following Petition Filed by Creditors, Who Claim $22,781.76 is Owed Them

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 16.—Notice to-day was forwarded E. A. Inglis, of Miami, that he has been appointed receiver for the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., following a creditors' petition filed in Federal Court here, asking for a receivership and concurred in by the Vanderbilt interests.

The International Paper Company, the Kimberly Clark Company and the Art Gravure Corporation, New York, united in petitioning Federal Judge Rhydon M. Call for the receivership. The Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., were described as organized under Delaware laws with California their chief place of business.

The creditors complain that the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., owe them a total of $22,781.76 and appear to have no way of settling under the present organization. The complaint was accompanied by an answer of the defendants, admitting the facts and consenting to such a receivership to protect the interests of the creditors.

Steps seeking the receivership are said to have been under way for the past two weeks and employes of the Illustrated Daily Tab, Vanderbilt tabloid newspaper at Miami, are said to have stayed on their jobs despite several weeks' wages being owed, in hopes that the receivership would afford relief.

The San Francisco Herald, another Vanderbilt tabloid newspaper, has suspended publication, it was stated, and the value of $180,000 placed on it was declared to be altogether free of liens.

$8,000 LIBEL VERDICT AGAINST N. Y. POST

Mrs. Anne McCoy Campbell Given Judgment in Damage Action—Same Plaintiff Received Settlement Out of Court from Two Dailies

Mrs. Anne McCoy Campbell, Christian Science practitioner, was awarded an $8,000 judgment for libel damages against the New York Evening Post by a jury in Judge McCook's part of New York supreme court this week.

The same plaintiff lost a suit May 17 brought on the same charge against the New York Sun, while the jury disagreed in trial of an action against the New York Times.

Mrs. Campbell objected to a story published in New York in March, 1922, telling of a suit that had been brought against her for $16,000 for alleged fraud. The suit was subsequently dismissed.

Suits brought by Mrs. Campbell for the same alleged libel against the New York World and the New York Tribune were consolidated and settled out of court. Amount of the settlement is not on record, and has not been disclosed.

Lloyd Willis is Dead

Lloyd D. Willis, special sales representative of Warner Brothers Picture Corporation, died June 12 at his New York home. Mr. Willis started as a reporter on the Philadelphia Public Ledger. He was at one time connected with the New York Times.

Criminal Libel Actions Dismissed

Criminal libel actions against four prominent residents of Cranford, N. J., charged with having caused to be published in the Cranford Searchlight an article injuring the reputation of a former member of the board of education, were nolle prossed by Judge A. A. Stein, June 14.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER classified advertisements yield results.

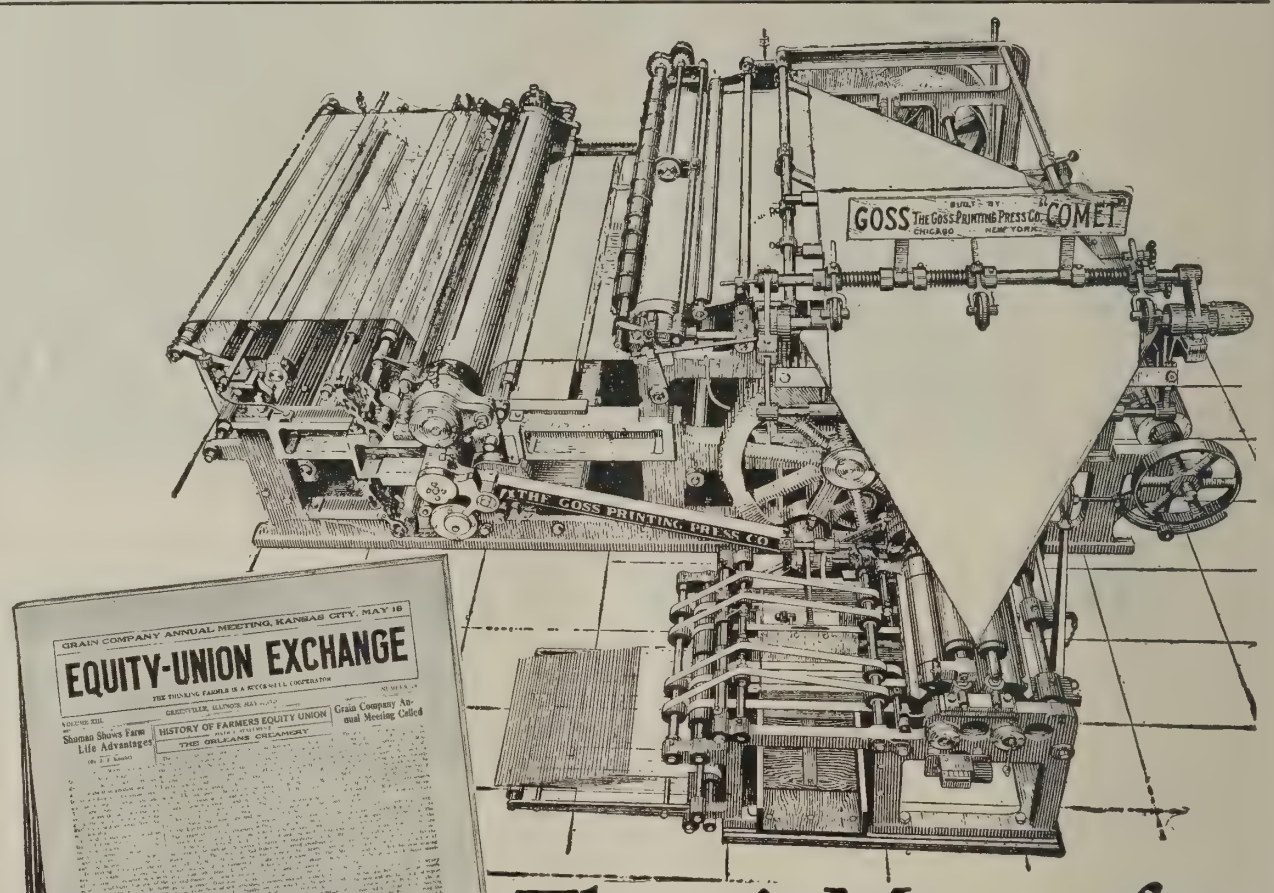
"CHICO!" EXCLAIMS CARDINAL

Awed by Paper Rolls in N. Y. Times Plant—It Means "Oh Boy!"

"Chico!" exclaimed Cardinal Reig y Casanova when he saw the huge rolls of paper ready for use on presses, during a visit he made this week to the plant of the New York Times. "Chico means 'Oh, Boy!'," a cleric in the party interpreted.

The visit to the Times plant was made at the Cardinal's request. The prelate's party went first to the office of Adolph S. Ochs, publisher, where they were received by Arthur H. Sulzberger, vice-president. Then a complete tour of the plant was made.

MAX BROWN PROMOTED



Made Advertising Manager of Louisville Herald-Post

Max Brown, formerly of Chicago, director of foreign advertising for the Louisville Herald-Post, has been made advertising manager, succeeding Millard Ridenour, who succeeded to the post when Paul O. Sergent resigned several months ago.

Ridenour has been designated advertising counsellor. He has been granted an indefinite leave of absence. Al White, assistant advertising manager of the Herald-Post, has resigned. Thus far his place has not been filled.

Girl Writer Weds

Miss Margaret R. Crowe, formerly of the editorial and advertising staffs, Worcester Evening Gazette, was married to Daniel A. Hare of Worcester recently at Schenectady, N. Y.

There's Money for Small Newspapers in Tabloid Products!

—with a Goss "Comet" print quarter and half newspaper size products in addition to your regular editions

PRINTING from type forms with roll paper unquestionably is the most economical method for the smaller publisher.

With a Goss "Comet" you can produce, per hour, 3,500 folded papers of 4, 6 or 8 pages. Approximately three times as fast as the sheet fed method!

Furthermore, your "Comet" will rapidly turn out up to and including 32 pages of a one-quarter newspaper size publication or 8 to 16 pages of a half newspaper size form (see example above). Many users make their "Comets" pay them handsome extra profits in this manner—so can you!

The Goss "Comet" is the choice of successful publishers of small newspapers everywhere. It is built in the same shops, by the same mechanics and according to the same high standards as the big Goss Presses selected by the world's leading metropolitan newspapers. It's their "little brother."

Foundation plans gladly furnished on application. Write for catalog.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO. . CHICAGO

The Goss Printing Press Company of England, Ltd., London
Messers. Edwards Dunlop Company, Ltd., Sydney, Sole Australian Agent

GOSS STRAIGHT LINE HIGH SPEED

ANNOUNCING THE MERGER OF Buffalo Courier AND BUFFALO EXPRESS

Effective with Issue of

Monday, June 14th

On and after that date the combined paper will be published daily under caption

The COURIER and EXPRESS

Buffalo's Largest Sunday and Only Morning Newspaper

Executive Personnel of New Organization

Chairman . . . . William J. Conners, Sr.
President . . . . . Burrows Matthews
Vice-President . William J. Conners, Jr.
Editor . . . . . Burrows Matthews

Publisher . . . . William J. Conners, Jr.
Secretary . . . . . Frank J. Clancy
Treasurer . . . . . William S. Bennett
Managing Editor . . . . . John D. Wells

The amalgamation is born of the absolute conviction that the morning newspaper is the newspaper of the future. This conviction is justified in an impressive way in most cities of the first class, where similar mergers are, and have been, taking place in preparation for the upbuilding of great morning journals. It is with this conviction that the consolidation of THE COURIER and THE EXPRESS has been born.

Readers will get two newspapers for the price of one as all the best features of both journals will be preserved for the enjoyment of their respective followers.

The policy of the combined newspaper will be independent in the most complete sense of the word. There will be no malice or spite toward anyone. An unbiased attitude will be preserved, save where evil is to be fought.

LORENZEN & THOMPSON, INC.

Publisher's Direct Representatives

CHICAGO NEW YORK SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE

LOS ANGELES NEWS TO BE SOLD IN 10 DAYS

Stockholders in Vanderbilt Tabloid Trying to Save Property by New Financing Plan—Assessment Plan Vetoed

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 15.—Believing that a bright future is in sight for the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News, Vanderbilt tabloid, more than 1,500 stockholders of the concern are working "tooth and toenail" in an effort to raise funds to purchase the property at the receivers' sale, scheduled within the next ten days. At a meeting of these stockholders held June 9, a committee of nine was appointed to work out plans for the raising of a sufficient fund with which to make a legitimate bid.

One stockholder suggested a voluntary assessment of 5 per cent. This plan, however, was found to be neither feasible nor legal under the California law and the assessment plan was abandoned. The committee decided to form a new corporation to be known as Daily News, Inc., the stock structure to consist of 25,000 shares of "Class A preferred" stock with a par value of 20 dollars per share, 25,000 shares of no par "Class B common stock," and 25,000 shares of no par "Class C common stock." The Class A preferred is to be entitled to a preference of 8 per cent dividend, but non-voting; the Class B common stock, voting stock, to be entitled to dividends up to $1.40 a share. In dividends the Class C stock participates equally with Class B over that mark. To the original Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., stockholders it plans to sell units of this stock two shares of preferred and one of common for $40, and in addition each purchaser receives one share of Class C common. The Class C stock does not go to those other than original Vanderbilt company stockholders.

Attorneys working with the stockholders' committee say they have the approval of the Corporation Commissioner of the state and believe this plan the only one by which the stockholders may hope to regain control of the paper and save it for themselves. It was pointed out that the machinery and equipment of the News has been appraised at $175,000; the accounts receivable $125,000; and a circulation said to be more than 100,000. This new plan will be laid before the stockholders at the general meeting set for Thursday, June 17, and if approved will be carried out and a formal offer made to the Federal Court sometime before Monday, June 21.

Publisher Urges State Advertising

Seymour Oakley, publisher of the Peoria Star, has recommended that the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, spend $150,000 in a campaign to advertise the state and counteract the "unfavorable illusions" in other parts of the country about lawlessness in Illinois, especially in Chicago and Herrin.

Public Asked to Name Weekly

South Bellingham, Wash., has a new weekly newspaper published for the first time June 2, under the temporary name of The Title. Miss Catherine Riley is the local news editor. The Title is offering a $100 prize for a suitable name.

N. J. PRESS ASSISTING JOURNALISM "GRADS"

Ratings of Rutgers Students Sent to All State Publishers—Course Inaugurated by Press Association

The Rutgers University course in journalism, sponsored by the New Jersey Press Association on June 3, gave certificates of attainment to 14 students who had completed a year's work under Prof. Allen Sinclair Will, head of the course. Six of the students were women.

The Press Association aims to work in co-operation with the school by providing jobs for graduates. To this end the group issues a confidential bulletin to all members containing the names and ratings of the graduates, salary expected, etc., which is believed to be a new idea in publisher-journalism school co-operation.

Following is an example of the student ratings sent to publishers:

Jones, John, graduated as Bachelor of Arts, 21 years old, son of J. Jones, Newark, N. J.; studied at Summer Avenue Public School and Barringer High School, Newark, 4 years at Rutgers; grade in journalism class, 95; average grade in other classes, 89.

Mr. Jones wishes to begin work as a reporter, preferably on a paper in or near Newark, about Sept. 1, when he will return from a trip abroad which he expects to start soon after the Rutgers commencement; salary desired, $30 a week.

General promise as a newspaper worker—excellent.

Character—high.

Personality—above the average.

Industry—marked.

As a news gatherer—persistent and successful.

As a writer—good, and improving fast; has special capacity as a writer.

General observation—Mr. Jones is naturally adapted to newspaper work, both by inclination and talents; does all branches of it well for a beginner; is eager to learn more.

R. E. Lent, publisher of the Passaic Daily News, and chairman of the New Jersey Press Association is chairman of the Committee on the Course in Journalism of that organization.

Littleton Lee Starke, who was awarded the New Jersey Press Association scholarship for the best student in journalism, will join the staff of the Passaic Daily News next month.

The assessed valuation of private property in Philadelphia for 1924 was $2,489,135,000.

PROGRESS DEPENDS UPON
THE MEN WHO BUILD WITH THAT END
IN VIEW

Our COMPLETE checking service handles the entire detail work of supplying "checking proofs" to every agency and advertiser promptly—and—efficiently.

WE DO IT ALL

from a few complete copies.

The Advertising
CHECKING BUREAU Inc.
538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

1856 or 1926?

The steamtable is doomed!

Ask any stereotype equipment manufacturer and he will tell you that his sales of new steamtables are indeed few and far between.

Why?

Simply because the steamtable-wet-mat process of stereotyping, which dates back to 1856, is antiquated, and is being replaced by the up-to-date 20th Century Certified Cold Process.

If you wish to place your stereotyping practice on a par with your composing room and press room methods, Certifieds are the medium to help you bring your stereotype department right up to 1926.

Why put up with the drudgery in wet-mat-steamtable stereotyping? Why lose invaluable time, and incur needless expense in steamtable operation?

We offer you a better way; a simplified way; the 20th Century way. Full particulars do not obligate you whatsoever.

Our Policy:

One Size
all mats 20″ by 24″

One Quality
only the best we can make —used by
The New York Times
Cleveland Plain Dealer
Detroit Times
and several hundred others

One Price
15 cents on standing order

¶ Have you received your copy of our booklet, "The Certified Road to Simplified Newspaper Stereotyping"? It's free upon request.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue — New York, N. Y.
for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds
MADE IN THE U. S. A.

Some of our newspaper users
From NEW YORK to NEW ORLEANS
From SAN FRANCISCO to SEATTLE
From BOSTON to WASHINGTON

CUTTING CUT COST

From CANADA, ENGLAND, BELGIUM and AUSTRALIA have also come requests for this improvement in the Graphic Arts

"You get it in the Negative"

This is not a transfer method, but Shading Sheets that you can put over your copy and see complete effect before making plate. Copy unaffected except photographically. No machine required. No license required. Reproduces in halftone or line.

Order on trial—Introductory Unit No. 1—84 different sheets. Working accessories and Bourges Character Color Chart included free with the price of sheets only (50c each).

Just because so many representative newspapers have used our Shading Sheets (some for over two years) doesn't mean that this new Shading Medium applies only to newspaper problems. Practically all reproduction problems of a Ben Day nature are simplified at a big saving in both cost and time. These sheets may be used by all National Advertisers to improve the highest class of illustration. See letter from the Silk Association of America.

AND

IMPROVING RESULTS

THE SILK ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA
ORGANIZED 1872
FOUR HUNDRED AND SIXTY-EIGHT FOURTH AVENUE
AT THIRTY-FIRST STREET
NEW YORK

Bourgess Service, Inc
144 West 32nd Street
New York, N. Y.

June 3, 1926

Dear Mr. Bourgess:

I feel that I ought to tell you of the very remarkable results secured through the use of the Bourgess Shading Medium in connection with some recent advertising illustrations on which I have been working.

The illustrations, showing the interior of automobiles, were made by one of the best artists we could obtain. It was easy enough to get the detail correct, but we ran into a considerable amount of difficulty in getting into the drawing a quality which would indicate the plush character of the fabric. Several different media were attempted -- wash, dry brush, and distemper -- but the effects were not satisfactory; finally, the thought occurred to me that what we were having considerable difficulty in obtaining by ordinary methods might be obtained by the use of your process. Accordingly, several of the drawings which looked cold and harsh were worked over, using your very fine stippled ~~tissue~~ SHEET. The results have been most satisfactory, as the proofs which I am glad to give you will show.

One particular feature of your ~~tissues~~ SHEETS, which particularly appeals to me, is the extreme simplicity of it; anyone with any idea at all of what he is trying to produce, and the ability to use a crayon and an eraser, can certainly accomplish wonders in getting new and interesting results.

I wish you all success.

Yours very truly,

F. D. Mack

Director of Style Service.

BOURGES SERVICE, INC.
Sole Manufacturers and Distributors
HUTCHISON ARTISTS SHADING MEDIUM
144 West 32nd Street, New York City
PENn 9314-5

NEW MASSES

McCUTCHEON, CARTOONIST, A WORLD ROVER

Chicago Tribune Artist Finds His Material in All Walks of Life—Affirms Superiority of Pictures to Text in Reader Interest—Says Public Men Would Rather Be Damned Than Ignored

By LUCILE BRIAN GILMORE

ARTIST, rover, and kindly philosopher is John T. McCutcheon, one of America's most famous cartoonists, a man to whom his work is only one of many vital interests. He has a love of things and people, a lively interest in his fellow man and a desire to know all classes and all creeds that penetrates his work and crops out in his cartoons for the Chicago Tribune, with which paper he has won international fame.

There is a vein of poetry in McCutcheon which finds expression now and then—which found expression notably in "Injun Summer," his most famous cartoon. "Injun Summer" has become a cartoon classic since it first appeared in 1907. And yet, McCutcheon says it was drawn without any special effort. Within a few days after it had appeared, however, comments started to reach him about it—words of praise and admiration from people in all classes of life. Its popularity became so widespread that the Chicago Tribune reprints it each fall. It has been reproduced in colors, and also has been painted as a mural decoration in the Tribune news room.

McCutcheon's career as a cartoonist dates back to 1889 when, fresh from Purdue university, he came to Chicago and went to work on the old Morning News. He then worked successively for the Evening News, the News Record, and the Record. On July 1, 1903, he joined the staff of the Chicago Tribune as a cartoonist and has been with the Tribune ever since.

McCutcheon is ever on the alert for material for his cartoons and finds it everywhere—in the news of the day, in recurring topical events, in people, in things generally. And he believes that the newspaper cartoon has achieved a greater prominence than ever before. The tendency of the times is towards pictures, and cartoons exercise their great appeal by epitomizing subjects and interpreting events for people, easily, humanly, and understandably. People like to be amused rather than preached at, he finds, and will take kindly to suggestion but will often resent preachment.

The crowded life he has lived in the 56 years since he was born on a farm in Tippecanoe county, Indiana, has given him an inexhaustible source of material for his work. Here are a few of the highlights of his career. A trip around the world on his first political commission in 1896—he was in the Orient at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, and was a witness of the battle of Manila, going with Dewey from Hong Kong. In 1899 he made a tour of Indian Burma, Siam, and China; he has hunted in Africa with Theodore Roosevelt; in 1914 he visited Mexico. Accompanied by his wife, he spent five months last year journeying to the remote countries of the Far East. He owns "Treasure Island," an island of 300 acres in the West Indies where he and his wife and two sons spend two months every year. He has been a war correspondent.

Although he is best as a cartoonist, he has also written considerable fiction, and does literary work for the Chicago Tribune syndicate in addition to his other work.

Although he is a pretty accurate judge of the elements which go towards making a good cartoon, he says the cartoonist rarely knows just what will favorably impress readers. He draws something, it is printed, and sometimes that is the end of it—not a whisper of comment, good or bad. Again, sometimes when he least expects it, there will be many echoes of something he has drawn. An idea boldly expressed, he finds, is more likely to make an instant appeal and will frequently bring a deluge of comments. And cartoonists, he says, appreciate messages sent to them, not only letters of commendation, but messages of disapproval, because both types help the artist to feel the public pulse. Messages give him contacts which aid him immeasurably in his work.

John T. McCutcheon

McCutcheon tries to maintain many social contacts, and as widely different social contacts as possible. He finds it impossible to get away often, but in his daily life he mixes with people of different interests and different positions in life, and studies their many viewpoints. He finds it necessary also to read a great deal, particularly newspapers and magazines. Like Matthew Arnold, he tries to "see life fairly and see it whole."

Men in public life, he has discovered, would rather be damned than ignored, and are fond of being cartooned. They prefer to be drawn in favorable light, of course, but are pleased even when pictured unfavorably, so long as they are pictured.

The day when cartoons dealt bitterly in personalities and excoriated persons who disagreed with the views or opinions of the cartoonist, or the newspaper he worked for, are passing, he says. A difference in opinion was once sufficient cause for ridiculing the offending person in cartoons, but the style has changed greatly, and the spirit of the present is one of tolerance, of broader vision.

Sincerity in cartoons, McCutcheon believes, carries the greatest weight with the public. If an artist is able to convince people through his work that he is sincere, he will have a large and faithful audience.

McCutcheon and Orr, the Tribune's cartoonists, are given a free hand in the selection of their cartoon ideas, but they attend a conference daily at which topics of the day and editorial ideas are discussed freely, since timeliness is such an important factor to be considered in choice of subject matter.

Cartoons about children have the greatest appeal to all people, McCutcheon has discovered. Anything pertaining to children or their welfare will strike a responsive chord in people. Next to children in appeal he lists standard topics, then human nature.

Occasionally a cartoon will have a great sentimental appeal for the persons involved. A striking example is furnished by McCutcheon's cartoon drawn during the world war when Quentin Roosevelt was killed in action. The cartoon showed the service flag floating at Oyster Bay. Col. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt were pictured in the foreground looking up at the emblem bearing three white stars for the three sons serving their country, and a gold star for Quentin. Col. Roosevelt was touched by the simple sentiment in the drawing and asked for the original. He acknowledged its receipt in a letter to McCutcheon in which he said he was giving the drawing to the girl whom Quentin was to have married.

One of the fine attachments in McCutcheon's life is his intimate friendship with George Ade. They went to college together, did newspaper work together in Chicago, and next week will return together to Purdue, their alma mater, where honorary degrees will be conferred upon them.

Henny Heads Kansas Group

Fred Henny, managing editor of the Hutchinson (Kan.) Herald-News, was recently elected president of the Southwest Kansas Editorial Association at the annual election in St. John, Kan. Other officers chosen were: Horace Fry, Spearville News, vice-president; Earl Fickertt, Peabody Gazette-Herald, secretary; S. P. Gebhart, Pratt Union, treasurer.

GENEVA INVITES PRESS SERVICES

16 World News Organizations Asked to Participate in Conference

Sixteen news agencies representing 11 countries have been invited to participate on a commission to meet under the auspices of the council of the League of Nations in Geneva for the purpose of improving world news facilities.

The meeting will be held sometime in August. The news agencies which have been invited and the countries they represent are as follows:

The Associated Press and the United Press Associations of the United States; the Americana Company of Brazil; the Avala Company of Servia; the Exchange Telegraph Company and Reuters of England; the Wolff Agency and the Telegraphen Union of Germany; the Nippon Dempo-Tsushin Sha and the Nippon Rengo of Japan; the Havas Agency and the Agence Radio of France; the Suisse Agency of Switzerland; the Tass Agency of Russia; the Tidningarnas Agency of Sweden; the Stefani Agency of Italy.

MASSACHUSETTS PRESS OUTING

179 Members Take Four Day Trip—Two New Members Added

The annual outing and June meeting of the Massachusetts Press Association, Inc., was held June 11-14 at Terrace Gables, Falmouth Heights, Mass., with 179 members and invited guests in attendance. A dinner and dance on Friday evening marked the opening of the festivities, with a motor tour of Cape Cod and clambake on Saturday as the features, when the members were the guests of the Cape Cod Real Estate Board, Cape Cod Press Club and Falmouth Board of Trade.

A business session was held Monday morning in Falmouth Heights at which the resignation of Carl F. Prescott, the secretary, was received. Prescott was later induced to withdraw his resignation. Two new members, Clarence T. Hall of the Wareham Courier, and Arthur R. Van Balsan of the Revere Budget, were received into the association, and applications of five others received to be acted upon at the next meeting.

Chicago Men Form Special Agency

D. E. Northam, formerly with the Benjamin Kentnor Company, Chicago, and Edward Bode, formerly in the advertising departments of the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Herald and Examiner, have formed a partnership, and will represent a group of newspapers in Florida. Their offices will be located in the Warner Building, Tampa.

New York Sun

Brightens Its Pages With Ludlow-Set Lines

In a recent unsolicited letter, Mr. John E. Martin, Production Manager of the New York Sun, writes: "We are delightfully pleased with the results we are obtaining from our Ludlow equipment, and have only the very kindest words for this equipment."

A three-machine Ludlow equipment was installed in the Sun's composing room last July, after Mr. Martin had thoroughly studied the many advantages of this system for producing, in abundance, sparkling, new sluglines for advertisements and heads. Now, after eleven months' experience in its use, he is more than ever convinced that the Ludlow way means cleaner, better print.

Ludlow Typograph Company

2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
Boston: 261 Franklin Street
New York: 63 Park Row

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Announcement

THE LEE SYNDICATE NEWSPAPERS

E. P. ADLER, President, Davenport, Iowa

HAS purchased THE KEWANEE, ILLINOIS, EVENING STAR-COURIER and this paper will be added to the Lee Syndicate. Philip D. Adler will be in charge as Editor and Publisher and Loren D. Upton as Business Manager.

The Kewanee, Illinois, Star-Courier was established in 1894, is published every Evening except Sunday and is the only paper in Kewanee.

Kewanee is a prosperous manufacturing city with a population of over 20,000 and is surrounded by a very rich farming country.

The Star-Courier, an A. B. C. paper, completely covers Kewanee and its trading territory, a 50,000 population market.

Watch this paper grow under The Lee Syndicate Management.

This will make the complete list of Lee Syndicate Newspapers as follows—

Davenport, Iowa, Times
Madison, Wisconsin, State-Journal
Ottumwa, Iowa, Courier
La Crosse, Wisconsin, Tribune
Mason City, Iowa, Globe-Gazette
Muscatine, Iowa, Journal
Hannibal, Missouri, Courier-Post
Kewanee, Illinois, Star-Courier

Foreign Advertising Representatives

CONE, ROTHENBURG & NOEE, Inc.

NEW YORK CHICAGO DETROIT
ATLANTA KANSAS CITY ST. LOUIS

J. L. STEWART, BACK FROM WORLD TOUR, DESCRIBES CONDITIONS IN MANY LANDS

Pennsylvania Publisher Reports Rising Tide of Race Consciousness in Hitherto Backward Countries—Tells of Affairs in Philippines and Orient

JOHN L. STEWART, publisher of the Washington (Pa.) Observer and Reporter, the Beaver Falls (Pa.) Tribune and the Beaver Daily Times, returned a few days ago from a five months' trip around the world visiting many places of interest and observing from a newspaper man's point of view the social, economic and political conditions which prevail in many of the countries of the world. Mr. Stewart said to a representative of EDITOR & PUBLISHER that among the many impressions gained from a world tour, the ones which stood out above all others were the evidence of the rising tide of race consciousness in the hitherto backward countries and the dependence of our own country, commercially and politically on the nations visited.

"I think," said he, "that I have today a far better idea of the meaning of foreign commerce than I ever had before and also of the effect of such legislation as the tariff bills and the immigration laws have in our relationship with other nations."

Mr. Stewart left San Francisco last November and spent a week in Hawaii visiting three of the five islands including Oahu and Hawaii. "No one can get the right conception of the importance of these islands to America unless they visit them," said Mr. Stewart. "Notwithstanding the polyglot of races which make up the population of America's outpost of the Pacific, the people are loyal to America and the future generations will be even more so. All this has been brought about largely by the splendid educational system which has been established and the opportunities which have been afforded all those who have gone there to live and get ahead.

"Honolulu is a progressive growing city typically American in its character even if set in an oriental atmosphere. I was very much surprised to find such excellent newspapers as the Advertiser and the Star-Bulletin, the former a morning and latter an evening newspaper. In their equipment they compare very favorably with similar plants in American cities of even larger size and in their enterprise are much ahead of most American dailies.

"From a military standpoint the Hawaiian Islands are our outposts of defense in case of war or threatened war from any of the Oriental nations. They are also health or sanitary outposts protecting United States from the diseases prevalent among Asiatics. That our government is fully alive to its national defense value is evidenced in the expenditures which have been made at Pearl Harbor, destined to be one of the greatest naval bases of any nation.

"The completion of the dry docks, more than 1,000 feet long, capable of taking care of many warships, was, next to the building of the Panama Canal, the greatest engineering feat possible ever undertaken and completed by our government.

"It will not be many years until Honolulu is one of the greatest port cities in the world—being today the center of the trade of three great continents—North America, Australia and Asia—and destined to become of importance to the growing countries of the west coast of South America and Canada—not to speak of round-the-world trade.

"One of my first impressions of Japan was the enterprise of its newspapers and my realization not only of their interest, but that of the educated classes, in international affairs. I had hardly finished presenting my passports to the Japanese officials on board the President Wilson when I heard my name being paged and responding to the inquiries, I found myself in the midst of a group of Japanese newspaper men. There was Y. Yoshida, the Yokohama representative of the Japan Advertiser, Tokio; R. Makayoshu, of the Osaka Mainichi and the Tokio Nichinichi; G. Sekinoto, of the Toho News Agency of Peking, China, and a representative of the Osaka and Tokio Asahi. These enterprising newspaper men of the far east were anxious to know the object of my visit and get my opinion on many questions. I began to discover before I got on shore what I learned later from many personal contacts with representative men of Japan and by visits to the newspaper offices themselves, that out there in the far east the people think more of world problems than we do in America. While only a few Americans are international thinkers, all educated, intelligent Japanese are.

"I was asked about America's attitude toward Japan, what I thought of the exclusion act and whether it represented the real sentiment of the American people; my personal idea of what effect the action of Japan in sending troops into Manchuria would have on American public thought. All wanted to know of business conditions in America and somewhat about the new ambassador who had arrived in Japan just a few days ahead of us. One reporter even asked me what the attitude of European countries was with respect to certain Far East problems. Inasmuch as I cannot read the Japanese papers, I do not know what effect any of my statements may have had on Japanese public opinion. But I at once began to feel that I was in a country where international politics occupies a place in the thoughts and lives of the people that we can little appreciate in the United States. Compared with Japan, we in the United States are provincial. Our geographical isolation is undoubtedly responsible for this American state of mind, while Japan—situated as she is on the border land of the Pacific to the west, and the most eastern of the Oriental countries—where East and West are constantly meeting, must think Occidentally as well as Orientally. There is, too, something in the character of the Japanese which makes him inquisitive. He is fast adopting the Western civilization and conforming more and more every day to the customs of American life. It may not mean much to us in the United States what Japan thinks of us, but it does mean very much to the Japanese what we think of them—what the Western world thinks, especially her nearest neighbor.

"Of all the cities of Japan, Osaka is perhaps the best example of one which is fast becoming western and still remaining Japanese. In most of the other cities of the East where great factories have been built and commerce increased, European or American capital and management have been interested. Not so in Osaka. Here the Japanese themselves are building a great industrial, commercial city on modern lines with their own capital and by their own energy. I was surprised to learn that it is today the largest city in Japan, with over 2,000,000 people and ranks sixth in the world.

"The farseeing men of Oska are helping to solve the problem of what to do with the increasing educated class of Japanese. Much of the trade of this city is with China and her great manufacturers are interested in coal production and the obtaining of raw materials from Manchuria. Is it any wonder that the Japanese must think in terms of the world—commercially and even politically?

"In Osaka one sees very few foreigners —but there are up-to-date taxicabs, wide, well paved, well lighted streets, hundreds of business and office buildings, eight to ten stories in height, parks and playgrounds,, schools, colleges, and art galleries—a city of the West in the heart of the East. Here the Japanese by western methods and in European dress are building up a great city, adding to the wealth and prosperity not only of their own people but of those who live in the rural sections and whose products are finding a much wider and better market.

John L. Stewart

"China was in the throes of civil war when I was there early in January, as it is now, and it was possible to visit only in Shanghai and Hong Kong. Certain it is that momentous things, having to do with the future civilization and well being of China and perhaps of the world, are taking place there. But it is not only the struggles between rival Chinese war lords, fighting for the control of provinces and authority to levy taxes to maintain their armies and enrich themselves, which is the most serious situation in China today.

"The real problem is found in what is taking place in the minds of the people.

"There is today in China a great industrial unrest among the workers as there is in every country—another reaction from the World War. Soviet Russia is trying to foment trouble among the Chinese and produce chaotic conditions. But there is much more back of this labor movement than Bolshevik propaganda. The workers have not had their share of the profits. Their right to a decent livelihood in a land of promising industrial and commercial development must be recognized in the solution of the problems which are today pressing for solution in China—problems which America must help solve, not only as an altruistic policy toward another great nation and for a friendlier international relationship, but in order that America in its own expansion and the development of its resources and world commerce may take advantage, in a material way, of the field of opportunity which today lies at its door on the Pacific.

"Those who have traveled much around the world and especially in the Far East, say that no city in the Orient has changed so much or made so great progress in recent times as Manila in the Philippines. Those who saw it in the early days of American occupation would undoubtedly be surprised to see the great changes which have taken place here within a period of a quarter of a century. Much of the old Manila is left—everywhere are the evidences of modern civilization—the results of 25 years' progress and development under American influence. In fact Manila today is a modern, thriving American city in its government, in the predominating life of the people and in the architecture and construction of its new buildings.

"Today the issue uppermost in the minds of the people in Manila, both Americans and Filipinos, is that of the political independence of the islands. I talked with many Americans, who have been long residents of the city and they are much concerned as to what action the American Congress may take affecting the future of the islands. The Manila newspapers—those controlled by the Americans as well as those owned by Filipinos—give more space to what is being said and done in America, both inside and outside

(Continued on page 108)

THE HAVANA POST

Cuba's First and Greatest American Newspaper

Published every morning in the year

Net circulation: 14,326

Advertising rate: 6 cents a line, flat

THE HAVANA POST should be included in every national campaign. In order to reach the English-speaking reader in Cuba, THE HAVANA POST is absolutely necessary.

THE HAVANA POST
Industria 77 Havana, Cuba

J. T. Wilford, Editor and General Manager

THE NESBIT SPEED FLASH LAMP

HAS NEVER FAILED TO GIVE COMPLETE SATISFACTION

There is only one principle-of-operation possible which will never fail to expose the plate at the instant of maximum illumination from the flash. That principle is utilized in this lamp. Protected by a basic patent it utilizes the recoil from the flash powder to trip the shutter at the instant of maximum illumination. It never has and it just can't fail to do this.

There are now and there have been for a year or more approximately 50 of these lamps in use by the News Photographers in New York City. Among these are the "Daily News" with 21 lamps. "Daily Mirror" with 15 lamps, Pacific and Atlantic Photo Co., with 9 lamps, International News Films with 3 lamps, the "World," "Times" and "Underwood & Underwood" each with from one to three lamps.

If you have any speed flash light work to do you cannot afford to be without one of these dependable lamps—no more misses or thin negatives but every exposure uniform and strong. Descriptive leaflet sent upon request.

William Nesbit, Short Hills, New Jersey, U. S. A.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY

Now Has Twenty Five Paper and Pulp Mills -- from Canada to Louisiana!

PAPER and PULP MILLS and WHOLLY-OWNED SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES

Glens Falls, Glens Falls, N. Y.
Fort Edward, Fort Edward, N. Y.
Hudson River, Palmer, N. Y.
Otis, Chisholm, Me.
Glen, Berlin, N. H.
Niagara Falls, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Webster, Orono, Me.
Winnipiseogee, Franklin, N. H.
Montague, Turners Falls, Mass.
Lake George, Ticonderoga, N. Y.
Livermore, Livermore Falls, Me.
Piercefield, Piercefield, N. Y.
Wilder, Wilder, Vt.
Bastrop, Bastrop, La.
Three Rivers, Three Rivers, Que.
Gatineau, Gatineau, Quebec Bldg.*
Van Buren, Van Buren, Me.
Solon, Solon, Me.
Cadyville, Cadyville, N. Y.
Riley, Riley, Me.
Milton, Milton, Vt.
Ticonderoga, Ticonderoga, N. Y.
Herkimer, Herkimer, N. Y.
Kipawa, Temiskaming, Quebec.
Hawkesbury, Hawkesbury, Ont.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC PLANTS:

CHELSEA, QUEBEC* SHERMAN ISLAND, N. Y. CADYVILLE, N. Y. FARMERS RAPIDS, QUEBEC*

Under Construction*

EXECUTIVE AND SALES OFFICES

100 East 42nd Street

New York City

A. R. Graustein
President
Allen Curtis
Vice-President
J. L. Fearing
Vice-President

Owen Shepherd
Treasurer
F. G. Simons
Secretary
B. O. Booth
Auditor

J. L. FEARING
Vice President and Sales Manager

Assistant Sales Managers

R. C. TILDEN
F. B. SMIDT
J. V. McNAMARA
J. P. PARSONS

Manager News Division
L. M. DAVIS

Newsprint and Ground-Wood Papers

Superoto

Northern and Southern Krafts

Envelope and Book Bond and Waxing

Special Bleached Papers

Sales Agents

JOHN E. A. HUSSEY
Boston, Mass.

R. B. HARBISON
Chicago, Ill.

W. E. MANSFIELD
Atlanta, Ga.

R. W. REMONT
Pittsburgh, Pa.

BROCK, ROWLEY & SCHROFF
Philadelphia Representatives
Philadelphia, Pa.

SALE OF OLD N. Y. TRIBUNE BUILDING RECALLS PARK ROW'S PAST GLORIES

MEMORIES of old time newspaper men along Park Row were awakened recently by the sale of the old Tribune building to the Frank A. Munsey Company by Ogden Reid, editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

The sale was arranged with the late Mr. Munsey last fall and was carried out after his death by William T. Dewart, president of the New York Sun.

The old Tribune building, like the whole block, is deeply fraught with the traditions of newspapers and newspaper making. Twice the Sun has occupied buildings in the block, the first on part of the site at 154 Nassau street, and again in the old Tammany Hall Building, which stood so long at 170 Nassau street, the Frankfort street corner. The Tribune occupied its site almost from the time of its foundation until its move up town in 1923. On the rear of the block is the structure built for and occupied by the New York Press prior to its merger with the Sun. The district was known for many years as "Printing House Square," and in it many newspapers came and went.

Beginning its life in a rented cellar in Ann street in 1841, the Tribune was able in 1843 to occupy its own home and in 1845 to erect a building which was then almost as much an architectural landmark as the "Tall Tower" became in later years. The first home of the Tribune was burned and was replaced in 1845 with a sturdy five story structure of buff brick, of which the Tribune itself occupied three stories and the other two were leased to job printers and stationers. It was in that building that Horace Greeley had his great career.

It was there that the Tribune introduced the then most modern printing presses and stereotyping and other important improvements in the mechanical departments of newspapermaking. It was there that the paper stood siege and repulsed the attack of the Draft Riots of 1863.

Upon the same spot Whitelaw Reid erected in 1874 the nucleus of the present building. It was only nine stories high, with a clock tower, but it rose above all other buildings in that part of the city, save the spire of Trinity Church, and was for years one of the chief landmarks of New York and one of the objects of prime interest to sightseeing visitors. There the Tribune was further developed. There, in a locked compartment in a corner of its ninth-floor composing room, the linotype was perfected and put into practical use, to revolutionize the art of typography.

That was a big building, towering far above the half dozen other newspaper establishments which were clustered about it in the American Printing House Square. But the paper outgrew it, and in the early '80s added an extensive wing, doubling its floor area. In the new quarters thus provided for the mechanical departments further advance was effected, notably the adaptation of half-tone engravings to the uses of a daily newspaper and the successful color printing of illustrated supplements.

But even this in time proved insufficient, and in the early years of the present century the edifice was further enlarged, both in ground area and altitude, to its present proportions. The original "Tall Tower" had been erected long before steel frame construction was devised, and its walls, of solid granite and brick, were of enormous thickness. In making this last addition to it the most modern processes were employed. Huge steel posts were inserted through the old building from roof to foundation, to support the framework of the ten more stories which were to rise above it, more than doubling its height. Of course, the same style of architecture, externally, was maintained, with a lofty mansard roof, and with the same clock tower crowning the whole. Completed in 1905, the building was scarcely less conspicuous and dominant in the architecture of that part of New York than its germ had been a generation before.

By the close of the World War it became evident that the best site for a morning newspaper was in the central part of the city, near the great railroad stations, the central postoffice and the heart of business and social life. Accordingly in 1923 the Tribune removed from the historic corner fronting on the statue of Ben Franklin, the patron saint of American printers, to occupy for its exclusive use its present modern building. The old building has remained in the ownership of the Tribune until the present time.

Prominent Colorado Publisher Dead

Henry J. Holmes, 73, veteran Colorado publisher, died recently in Long Beach, Cal., where he has lived since his retirement two years ago. Holmes was known as "the father of the sugar beet industry in Colorado" since the editor spent years writing and talking sugar beets, traveling all over the state explaining their cultivation and appealing to Colorado farmers to plant them. Today the beet sugar industry is the largest in the state. Holmes carried on his famous sugar beet campaign largely through the pages of the Glenwood (Col.) Avalanche which he established in the early '90s and edited for more than 30 years, first as a daily and more recently as a weekly under the name, Avalanche-Echo.

J. L. STEWART BACK FROM WORLD TOUR

(Continued from page 106)

the walls of Congress, about the Philippines than to all other features combined.

"One of the parts of the world which interested me exceedingly was the Malay states, particularly those great ports of Singapore and Penang, because they are the great shipping centers for one of the most important American imports—rubber.

"I bought a newspaper one day in January from a Penang newsie to find out what is going on in the world and especially in the United States. It was a copy of The Penang Gazette and Straits Settlement Chronicle and about the only news I could find under a United States date line were items from New York referring to the organization of an association of automobile tire manufacturers for the purpose of developing new rubber plantations and one from Washington, D. C., giving an account of the report of the Department of Commerce and Labor on the investigations into the possibility of growing rubber successfully in the Philippines.

"Observing later the thousands of tons of crude rubber in bales and boxes being loaded on an American-bound vessel, consigned to some well known automobile manufacturers, I was very much impressed with the importance which the rubber industry in the Malay States bears to one of America's greatest industries. Today among the automobile tire manufacturers there is the feeling, if not the more or less settled conviction, that the restriction of the output in rubber by England, under what is known as the Livingston Act, has artificially raised the price far beyond what the cost of production justifies. More than 65 percent of all the world's supply of rubber comes from the Malay States and of the more than 260,000 tons shipped last year from the port at Singapore over 200,000 tons went to the United States. I talked to a representative of an American commercial organization who just returned from visiting 52 plantations in various parts of the Malay peninsula. He is optimistic about the future of the rubber industry there, although he believes the price will gradually be lowered. 'I have very little sympathy,' said he, 'with the American tire manufacturers who are making such a great howl today about the high prices. When the price was only twelve cents in 1920 and the plantations were either being abandoned or harvested wastefully to save costs and laborers were receiving starvation wages, none of the American manufacturers did anything to save the situation.

"I do not know what the American tire interests would say in answer to this, but it was the same one advanced by a well known editor of a Singapore newspaper whom I interviewed on the present situation. He said: 'There has been a furious raging against the restriction of export rubber in America and while it was one of the boldest measures of industrial policy ever undertaken by the British, it has been fully and completely justified. Restriction on the export of rubber was hopeful in 1923, mistrusted by some in 1924 and triumphant by general acknowledgement in 1925. In principle it is the simplest expression of common sense and it differs from what has been done thousands of times in many countries only in the fact that it was applied under legal sanctions and government control. That was necessary because the racial and other conditions made voluntary action of an effective kind impossible.'

"While admitting that the present price is too high, he is of the opinion that it will gradually become lower, but representatives of American tire interests believe that it will not get very much lower until and when American capital can develop some other rubber supply—in the Philippines for example.

"Political conditions are not as much unsettled in the Malay States under English control or protectorates as they are in both India and Egypt. In both the latter countries one who is observant of conditions realizes the same race consciousness prevailing in the Far East, the same restlessness for complete independence, the same so called student or intellectual movements which are stirring public opinion and keeping things unsettled socially and politically. Even in Palestine, under a British mandate—there is a deep seated rebellion among the natives, not so much against British domination as against the Zionist movement which many feel is encouraged by the British Government. Tourists, except at their own personal risk are unable to travel to Damascus or in any part of Syria, due to the trouble between the Druses under Sultan Pasha and the French.

"Coming into Europe I found wonderful changes economically since my last visit in 1924, especially in Italy and France. Perhaps no other country of Europe has made such progress both economically and politically as has Italy during the past few years—under what some term the dictatorship of Mussolini. Much has happened to bring Italy into the limelight of world notice and observation and to speak of modern Italy must of necessity and in due regard to facts be in terms of this great world figure.

"While Italy has balanced its national budget and France has not, the latter country is also economically sound.

"The French parliament and not the French people, nor their economic condition, nor their inability to meet all demands for their country's good, nor their refusal to make all sacrifices, is responsible for whatever chaos, it may appear to us in America, seems to prevail in French politics. Today everybody who wants work in France can get it.

"A nation ordinarily, which has nine times changed administrations since the war, and has made three or four in the last few months, would not be trusted in the larger matters of financial affairs, but France is quite different. We, in America who were her allies, who know how much she suffered, how she bore the brunt of the world's greatest war for more than four long years, see the devastation which was wrought in her land and the places where rest the remains of so many of her sons, have not only strong faith in her, but are willing to wait and be patient. France in her own way, perhaps, and with time will occupy the palace of leadership in European affairs, which she by every right is entitled to assume."

Ask the Canadian Pacific about Canada — CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

Bureau of Canadian Information

THE Canadian Pacific Railway through its Bureau of Canadian Information, will furnish you with the latest reliable information on every phase of industrial and agricultural development in Canada. In our Reference Library maintained at Montreal, are complete data on natural resources, climate, labor, transportation, business openings, etc. Additional data is constantly being added.

DEVELOPMENT BRANCH—If you are interested in the mining wealth and industry of Canada or in the development or supply of industrial raw materials available from resources along the Canadian Pacific Railway, you are invited to consult this Branch. An expert staff is maintained to investigate information relative to these resources and examine deposits in the field. Practical information as to special opportunities for development, use of by-products and markets, industrial crops, prospecting and mining.

"Ask the Canadian Pacific about Canada" is not a mere advertising slogan. It is an intimation of service—without charge or obligation,—that the information is available and will be promptly forthcoming to those who desire it.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company

Department Colonization and Development

J. S. Dennis
Chief Commissioner

Windsor Station
Montreal, Can.

YOUR SHIP IS WAITING FOR YOU

It offers the opportunity to make real that dream you have had of sometime scaling the Alpine heights and viewing the wonders of picturesque Switzerland.

The good ship, the palatial S. S. Carmania of the Cunard Line, official steamer for the sails from New York, September 4, to carry delegates to the Third Press Congress to be held at

PRESS CONGRESS OF THE WORLD

GENEVA-LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND SEPTEMBER 14-18

Subjects of vital importance to newspaper publishers and the Journalistic profession will be discussed from a world-wide standpoint by successful Publishers and Journalists at Geneva and Lausanne. You should be there to participate in this important Congress and do your part in bringing about a better understanding between the peoples and the nations of the world.

10,000 MILES OF TRAVEL, covering a period of six weeks, accommodations at the best hotels; splendid meals, visits to historic shrines and picturesque European countries as a member of the PRESS CONGRESS OF THE WORLD party, will cost you $960, exclusive of tips on steamers.

DELIGHTFUL ROOMS are available on the official steamer, but it is imperative that reservations for accommodations be made at once. Write or wire

TOUR DEPARTMENT, PRESS CONGRESS OF THE WORLD

1700 TIMES BUILDING 42nd STREET and BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

PAINT AND VARNISH MEN FIND LITTLE WASTE IN NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

Most Dealers Successful in Getting Dealers to Place Copy and Stand Part of Cost—More Advertising Urged at Philadelphia Conference

LITTLE evidence of waste in the newspaper advertising done by the paint and varnish firms of the country was found by a committee which reported at the conference of sales and advertising managers of the industry held in Philadelphia last week.

Wiliam Knust of the National Lead Company, submitting the report of the committee said:

"In the questionnaire the subject of newspaper advertising was divided into three parts: newspaper advertising paid for entirely by the manufacturer; that paid for entirely by the dealer; that paid for partly by the manufacturer and partly by the dealer.

"In analyzing the returns, it was discovered that only one manufacturer follows the plan of requiring dealers to commit themselves to increased purchases before any newspaper advertising paid for entirely by the manufacturer is done. This firm's proposition is to advertise for seven weeks in the local paper if the dealer agrees to buy at least $300 worth of goods.

"'Why,' we said to ourselves, 'didn't other manufacturers use a similar plan. Surely they are passing up a good bet.' Looking further along in the returns, we found the reason. No less than five of the seven manufacturers, who report being newspaper advertisers, are very successful in getting dealers to pay part of the cost of the space. In the case of three of these manufacturers, 100 per cent of their newspaper advertising is placed on this basis, while one manufacturer reports 75 per cent and another 60 per cent. The arrangement in all five cases is 50-50. The dealer pays half and the manufacturer pays half. Just how successful the dealer-pay-part plan is may be judged from the fact that 7 per cent of all dealers on one manufacturer's list take advantage of the 50-50 plan, 20 per cent of another's, and 30 per cent of a third's. There can't be much waste under those circumstances!

"For obvious reasons, the most popular time for the inserting of the newspaper advertising, whether it is paid for entirely by the manufacturer or by the dealer, or whether it is placed on the 50-50 basis, is the spring and fall. The advertising is usually split about as follows: 75 per cent of the schedule in the spring and 25 per cent in the fall. We find, however, two of the manufacturers (one a paint account and the other a varnish account) have broken the long-established tradition. The varnish house runs its newspaper advertising: 50 per cent in the spring, 30 per cent in the fall and 20 per cent in the winter. The paint house schedules its insertions: 40 per cent in the spring, 10 per cent in the summer and 50 per cent in the fall. These two firms—the Martin Varnish Company and the De Soto Paint Company—seem to be pioneering and maybe they can teach us something.

"The general practice, in the placing of newspaper advertising, is to take advantage of the lower rates which dealers are able to obtain. One or two of the companies, however, for reasons unknown, seem to prefer to place their advertising direct. It is a fact that dealers oftentimes can obtain lower rates than the manufacturer. With many papers, the national rate is higher than the local rate both for open and one-time contracts, as well as for yearly contracts. The Association of National Advertisers investigated this matter last year. The differential in some cases is as great as 40 per cent. When we don't take advantage of these possible savings we waste our good coin.

"One of our members is right on the job, when it comes to ferreting out the difference between local and national rates. On the blank that is filled out by his salesman, when newspaper advertising is to be done for a dealer, a special place is provided for indicating both the local and foreign rates. This form, by the way, is not only complete but quite simple.

"With one exception none of the companies advertising in the newspapers specifies definite positions for copy. Where the advertisements go is left wholly to chance. This can hardly be said to be 100 per cent efficiency, as we all know that certain positions on a page have greater attention-value than others, and that advertisements on some pages are more likely to be seen than advertisements on other pages. Tests conducted indicate that the poorest of the run-of-paper positions have only half the attention value of the best positions. They also show that right-hand pages are preferable to left-hand pages, and that copy next to reading matter has double the attention-value of copy not so placed.

"Practically all those who answered the questionnaire furnish dealers with free electrotypes or mats for use in newspaper advertising. The dealers, of course, pay the cost of the space. Regardless of whether the manufacturer makes varnish or paint, and whether his business is large or relatively small, standard sizes of cuts prevail. Five inches up to 10 inches, both single and double column, are the popular sizes."

H. C. Dursley, speaking on "Waste in Advertising," had the following to say in regard to newspaper space:

"Don't be satisfied to send out newspaper electros haphazard if you want your dealers to do newspaper advertising. Design an advertising campaign for them and tell them about it and offer them an inducement to use it. Then get the newspapers to help you put it over with the dealers. Then get clippings of the advertisements from the newspapers."

Willard Maston, director of sales, Eagle-Picher Lead Company, Chicago, was chosen the chairman of the Sales Managers' Council for the coming year. Maston will appoint the other members to serve with him on the Council shortly.

R. E. Mercer, advertising manager, the Lowe Brothers Company, Dayton, O. was named chairman of the Advertising Managers' Conference.

The latter group passed the following resolution urging more advertising:

"Whereas, there is a great latent power in paint and varnish advertising that is not utilized to the fullest extent—

"Therefore be it resolved, that we should strive to obtain closer coordination of sales and advertising departments in the more extensive use of advertising in effecting sales.

Livingston Bennett Corp. Member

Robert E. Livingston has been elected a member of the James Gordon Bennett Memorial Home for New York Journalists Corporation and a member of the Board of Directors of that Corporation. Mr. Livingston is president of the James Gordon Bennett Association. He was on the New York Herald with James Gordon Bennett for 20 years and is now director of information and advertising of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York and its affiliated companies.

DAILY FIGHTING COURT SECRECY

Madison Capital Times Case Being Argued in Court

Arguments on the action of the Madison (Wis.) Capital Times against secrecy in court proceedings were being made on Wednesday, June 16, before Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppman in the circuit court.

The argument of the state in favor of court secrecy was to be presented by Philip M. La Follette, district attorney of Dane county, and son of the late Sen. Robert M. La Follette.

The suit was started in an attempt to have Judge Hoppman revoke an injunction he had issued restraining publication of a John Doe proceeding held to determine whether illegal attempts were being made, as charged in several editorials in the Capital Times, to influence public opinion in favor of the slayer of a Madison policeman.

Correction

In EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S report of the I. M. C. A. convention last week H. W. Stodghill was erroneously named as circulation manager of Louisville (Ky.) Herald-Post. He is the very well-known circulation manager of the Courier-Journal and Times.

Clarence Darrow says prohibition tends to destroy imagination and a feeling for romance. So? Then who gets up all our wet and dry statistics?—Detroit News.

From the Linotype Mailbag

MODEL 26

"paying its own way"

"It has been nine months since we installed the Model Twenty-six Linotype. It has given complete satisfaction. Ours is a typical country shop in a county seat town. Our operator had previous experience on a number Five Linotype. He has had no trouble whatever with the Twenty-six. He has set our entire paper—heads, advertisements, and everything—without getting out of his chair for machine changes. We have printed the entire paper from Linotype slugs, with the exception of one or two scare heads in display advertising. We have had many country newspaper men call to see the machine, and they each and all have been delighted with the work it is doing and expressed themselves as being amazed at the ease with which it adapts itself to the range of faces, lines, and bodies as required in a combination weekly paper and job shop. We hesitated in making the change from the old reliable number Five, but since making the change we do not see how we could have gotten along without it. One fact is certain, that it is paying its own way."

The Times-Tribune
Beaver City, Nebr.

The Advertising Managers of upwards of 1,000 leading national Newspaper Space Users regularly read EDITOR & PUBLISHER. So do the key men in practically every one of the leading Advertising Agencies.

And for mighty good reasons

It keeps them posted on what is going on among advertisers and publishers, just as aggressively, as ably and as promptly as any daily paper gives its news.

They find many splendid uses for the analyses, compilations and fresh, authentic statistics on linage, circulations and rates which it is all the time presenting. The two great Annuals included with their subscriptions—the International Year Book and the Space Buyers' Guide—are invaluable and indispensable to them in getting at the facts and figures which must form the basis of all profitable advertising.

You belong with these men

Take your place with them at once, by filling in and mailing the coupon below.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER,
Times Bldg., New York, N. Y.

Send me EDITOR & PUBLISHER every week for a year, including with my subscription at no extra cost all the Special Numbers and the International Year Book and Space Buyers' Guide, as they are issued during the term of my subscription. Enclosed is my check for $.....
(Or, if you prefer, send me your bill.)

Name .....
Address .....
Paper (or Company) .....
Title or Position .....

Subscription Price, $4 per year
(In Canada, 50c extra; Foreign, $1 extra)

24 Great Business Centers through one group of Newspapers!

Albany
Amsterdam
Auburn
Brooklyn
Buffalo
Corning
Elmira
Freeport
Geneva
Gloversville
Ithaca
Jamestown
Middletown
Mt. Vernon
Newburgh
New Rochelle
New York
Niagara Falls
Port Chester
Poughkeepsie
Rochester
Syracuse
Troy
Watertown

Twenty-four well known business and trading areas, surpassed by none, are reached through the group of dailies in the great Empire State.

Each of these cities is a market in itself. But, the whole 24 can be covered most economically and effectively through the group of dailies listed below. It will pay any national advertiser to get the data and statistics of this great market. These dailies have it ready for you.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Evening News.....(E)	34,444	.10	.10
Albany Knickerbocker Press.....(M)	34,018	.11	.11
Albany Knickerbocker Press.....(S)	56,924	.16	.16
Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat .....(E)	7,810	.04	.04
††Auburn Citizen .....(E)	6,389	.065	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle .....(E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle.....(S)	84,997	.22	.22
Buffalo Star and Enquirer .....(E)	36,158	.13	.09
Buffalo Courier .....(M)	51,254	.17	.13
Buffalo Courier .....(S)	111,212	.27	.22
Buffalo Evening News.....(E)	138,294	.25	.25
Buffalo Evening Times.....(E)	102,562	.21	.21
Buffalo Sunday Times.....(S)	108,219	.21	.21
Buffalo Express .....(M)	53,254	.14	.12
Buffalo Express .....(S)	59,243	.18	.14
††Corning Evening Leader.....(E)	9,339	.05	.05
Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser.....(E&M)	33,487	.11	.11
Freeport Daily Review .....(E)	7,991	.05	.05
††Geneva Daily Times.....(E)	5,040	.04	.04
Gloversville Leader Republican.....(E)	7,238	.035	.035
††Ithaca Journal-News .....(E)	7,751	.05	.05
Jamestown Morning Post.....(M)	11,722	.04	.035
Middletown Times-Press .....(E)	7,127	.04	.04
Mount Vernon Daily Argus.....(E)	10,437	.05	.05
Newburgh Daily News.....(E)	12,132	.06	.06
††New Rochelle Standard-Star .....(E)	8,598	.04	.04
The Sun, New York .....(E)	257,067	.60	.56
New York Times .....(M)	356,471	.80	.784
New York Times.....(S)	610,041	.95	.931
††New York Herald-Tribune .....(S)	345,484	.693	.672
††New York World .....(M)	287,682	.595	.58
††New York World .....(S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World .....(E)	294,442	.595	.58
Niagara Falls Gazette .....(E)	20,629	.07	.07
Port Chester Item.....(E)	4,732	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise.....(E)	12,824	.06	.06
††Rochester Times-Union .....(E)	70,406	.21	.20
††Syracuse Journal .....(E)	65,326	.16	.16
Troy Record .....(M&E)	22,679	.06	.06
Watertown Times .....(E)	17,334	.03	.03

 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

USED CAR ADVERTISING IS A "CONFIDENCE" GAME

Seattle Dealer Tells How He Built Confidence in His Firm by Forsaking Classified Copy for Display—Impressed Public with His Truth-Telling Envelope Plan

By P. E. SANDS

President, Sands Motors Company, Seattle, Wash.

Territorial Distributor Studebaker Automobiles

THE other day, I read in an automotive trade publication that "more than 75 per cent of all used cars sold are moved as the direct result of contacts established with prospects through classified advertising."

The basis for this rather broad statement was a survey made in the Los Angeles field. No doubt, the assertion, as applied to Los Angeles, and perhaps elsewhere, is true, but I question the inference made that the classified department of the newspaper is the best method of advertising and selling used cars.

I am prompted to lay my case before advertising men and executives in hope that I might provoke a discussion of the used car problem, with which the automobile industry has been vainly wrestling for some years—a problem that still causes concern and worry in many executive offices; not only does it vex the dealer, but the car manufacturer as well.

But this aspect, by no means is the most important.

The want ads lend themselves merely to price and name advertising, and glittering superlatives. Is this sufficient in the case of automobiles, especially the used car? The writer in the trade publication referred to seemed to think price and name is of major importance to the prospective buyer.

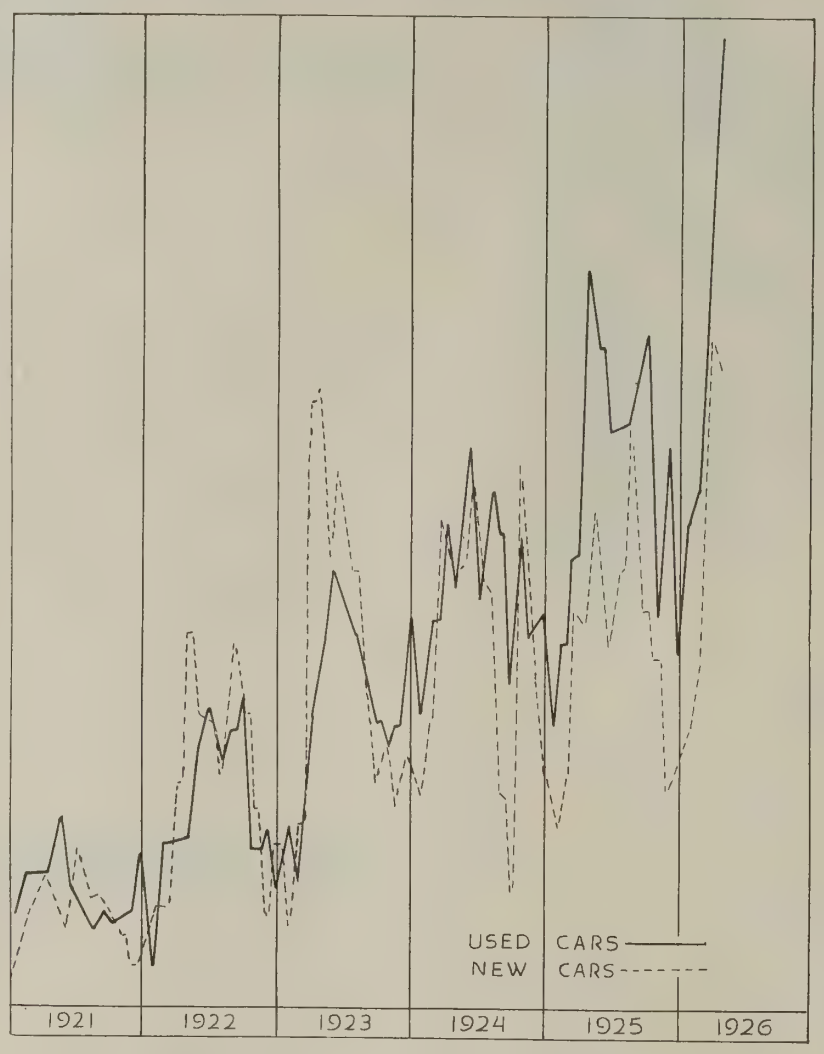
This may be true in the case of house furnishings, wearing apparel and other staple commodities, where the buyer feels competent to judge relative merits of materials and workmanship.

The mechanical complexities of an automobile are foreign to the experience of the average buyer. He has no way of judging values.

Hence automobile merchandising and advertising is essentially a confidence game—not of the poker, roulette or carnival concession type—but a game wherein confidence must be established between buyer and seller. The car buyer is forced to buy on confidence, unless he's a gambler or a horse-trader, and in the measure that the dealer's methods and his advertising inspires confidence in himself and his product, he will succeed.

Particularly is this true of the used car business.

We all know that "confidence men" have operated in the used car field; taken advantage of the gullibility and lack of mechanical knowledge of the public, and brought disrepute on the entire industry. This makes the job of inspiring confidence the harder, but it must be done.



In the solution of the used car problem lies the future of the automobile industry. Quoting the article referred to:

"Statistics show that on 80 per cent of all cars sold for $1,000 or less, another car is traded in; that on cars selling from $1,000 to $2,000, 87 per cent of the sales call for handling of the purchaser's old car—and after you reach the class of about $3,000 mark, the percentage of trade-ins on sales reaches more than 97.5 per cent. In addition, the average dealer must accept other cars as trade-ins on the used car which he has taken in on a new buy."

In my business I find that I must sell 1½ used cars for every new car sold, in order to prevent an excess accumulation of used cars. With the increasing production of new cars, and the tendency toward lower prices, the used car problem becomes more acute. A profitable outlet must be found and maintained.

The automobile business has learned through bitter experience the significance of it. In Seattle six years ago there were 66 automobile dealers. Today less than a baker's dozen of these firms remain in business. Of this number, only three dealers are handling the same make of car as they did 6 years ago.

This heavy casuality in the business was due primarily to one cause—the dealers became loaded with used cars, and eventually the burden became too great.

How display copy sent used-car sales soaring

With others, I faced the problem of finding an outlet for trade-in cars. During the years 1920-24, inclusive, I confined my advertising to classified ads, following the current custom. During more than 75 per cent of this period, my new car sales exceeded my used car sales. Inevitably my warehouses filled to overflowing with trade-in cars.

Something drastic had to be done. I reasoned that many prospects for good used cars of the better class, were buying new cars of a cheaper type, because they refused to take a chance on the mechanical condition of the used car. They knew, no doubt, that the high class of used car presented a better value for the money expended, provided it was in good condition. But that was the rub! They hesitated to buy "on sight—unseen."

I had always made it a rule to take in only good used cars, with a complete history. These cars were overhauled from stem to stern and put in A-1 condition. This history of the car, along with all the facts pertaining to reconditioning it, were placed in an envelope and attached to the car. I could back them with my own personal guarantee of satisfaction and service. But to convince the public of this fact was another proposition.

I thought it could be done—but not with a want ad.

I had a story to tell and it must be told in such a way that the people would believe—and believing would confidently take my word for the condition of the merchandise I offered. This, of course, is a simple fundamental of all successful merchandising, but particularly pertinent in the automobile business.

I called in an advertising man—John F. Held, president of the J. F. Held Advertising Company of Seattle. "Capitalize your business integrity," was his advice, "but do it differently so as to attract favorable attention—not with meaningless superlatives and vain bragging, but with the facts and more facts. Tell these facts simply, honestly and fearlessly, and back them up with the goods. Once you establish public confidence, you need not worry about selling—the public will buy and price will be a secondary consideration.

"What you need is a definite, concrete plan of advertising, wherein the public can visualize your method of doing business."

The result of this conference was that we decided to advertise the "truth-telling envelope," instead of the used cars. It was a matter of selling the reputation and integrity of the firm instead of selling merchandise.

We adopted the slogan: "The Envelope Tells the Truth," and dramatized this bit of paper and what it stood for. Our ads told the story of the envelope—how all the facts pertaining to the car; a statement of the former owner relevant to previous mileage and use, make and model number, detailed description of work done in re-conditioning, etc., were placed in the envelope before it was attached to the car. On the outside of this envelope was printed in bold type: "The Envelope Tells the Truth." Also on the outside was printed a facsimile of a written statement, signed by myself, in which I personally assumed the responsibility of the facts contained therein.

To make our claims even stronger in the minds of the people, we arranged with one of the largest bonding companies of the country, to issue bonds for the used cars, assuming the responsibility for the facts related in the envelope. Said one of our ads: "A great big cold blooded Indemnity Bonding Company, knowing we have lived up to our promises to thousands of others, will guarantee that we keep our promises to you."

This led to an addition to our slogan—"The Envelope Tells the Truth, and an Indemnity Bond Insures the Truth."

This has become so well-known as to be virtually trade-marking the truth, as far as our firm is concerned, and so strong has our policy of the square deal been impressed on the public mind, that it happens time and again that people buy used cars from us, without trial or demonstration, without even turning over the motor, and sometimes over the telephone without seeing the car before it is delivered. These facts can be verified by the Studebaker Corporation.

This condition, I believe, is the result of our institutional advertising, designed to inspire confidence and good-will toward the firm, rather than to sell specified cars that we may have on hand. Typical of the type of copy we use, I might cite the following excerpt from one of our ads:

"Truth and Trade are Twins! The Truth

(Continued on page 115)

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

During the week of June 20 to 24
Philadelphia
will be the Advertising Capital of the World

The Bellevue-Stratford Hotel will be the center of activities of many of the delegates to the Associated Advertising Clubs
of the World Convention

Room 105
Bellevue-Stratford
Hotel will be EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S headquarters
all during the Convention

Make them YOUR headquarters too.
Our invitation is most cordial

Everything will be provided for your comfort and your convenience

Make free use of our stationery, our stenographic and information service, our smokes

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Suite 1700, Times Building, Broadway at 42nd Street, New York

PREPARATIONS FOR N. E. A. COMPLETE

(Continued from page 67)

Dorothea, and Mrs. Leo A. McNally, Lawrence Journal-World.
Harry Trimmer, Gove Republican-Gazette.

MASSACHUSETTS

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brewster, Hull Beacon.
Past President and Mrs. J. C. Brimblecom, Newton Graphic.
L. C. Hall, Wareham Courier.
Mrs. Jessie L. Leonard, Winthrop Sun.
Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Twombly, Reading Chronicle.

MICHIGAN

Mr. and Mrs. Leon D. Case, Watervliet Record.
George W. Cushing, McKinney, Mark & Cushing, Detroit.
Mr. and Mrs. M. H. DeFoe, Charlotte Republican.
George Dolliver and son George, Battle Creek Moon-Journal.

MINNESOTA

Mrs. Frances Bodin, 999 Grand Ave., St. Paul, (Official Stenographer).
Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bromstad, Milan Standard.
Governor and Mrs. Theodore Christianson, St. Paul.
Mrs. Maude B. Cooley, Walker Pilot.
Harold Curtis, St. James Plaindealer.
Mr. and Mrs. Carl Eastwood, Sen. C. N. Cosgrove, Le Sueur Herald.
Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Erickson, Springfield Advance-Press.
Executive Secretary and Mrs. H. C. Hotaling and daughter Mary, Mapleton, Enterprise.
Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Johnson, 48 E. 3rd St., St. Paul.
Mr. and Mrs. Emil Leicht and daughter Henrietta, Winona National Weeklies.
Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Libby, "Midway Salesway," 141 E. 5th St., St. Paul.
Mrs. Blanche K. Lord, Albert Lea Tribune.
Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Olson, Red Wing Daily Eagle.
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pollock, Minneapolis Pollock's News.
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Preimesberger, Pierz Journal.
Mr. and Mrs. Herman Roe, Northfield News.
E. S. Sanford, Northern States Envelope Company, St. Paul.
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Whitney and family, Marshall News Messenger.
Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Witherstine, Rochester Post-Bulletin.

MISSISSIPPI

L. H. Bowen, Brookhaven Times.
Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Cashman, sister-in-law Virginia Sneed, Vicksburg Evening Post.

MISSOURI

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Holt, American Type Founders Co., St. Louis.
Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hubbard, Columbia Missouri Publisher.
Wm. Nolen, Monroe City News.
Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Preston, Marshall Democrat News.
Miss Ella Pearl Smith, Clinton Eye.
Henry F. Stapel, Rock Port Mail.
A. H. Volkmann, Rock Port Mail.

NEBRASKA

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Backus, Columbus Daily Telegram.
Mr. and Mrs. Ole Buck, Harvard Courier.
Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cramb, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nuckolls, Fairbury Journal.
President and Mrs. Frank O. Edgecombe, Geneva Signal.
G. N. Gaskill, Albion Argus.
Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Kroh, Ogallala News.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Nyberg, Wayne Herald.
Miss Marcia Perkins, Fremont Herald, 218 Federal Bldg., Omaha.
W. T. Pickett, Wahoo Wasp.
Mrs. Emma L. Robinson, Upland Eagle.
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Taylor, Overton Herald.
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Weekes, Norfolk Press.
S. H. McCaw, Norfolk Daily News.
Mr. and Mrs. Montagu A. Tancock, Omaha Chamber of Commerce Journal.
Mr. John B. Long, Omaha Northwestern Bell Magazine.

NEVADA

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Williams, Fallon Eagle.

NEW JERSEY

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Anzer, Union City Hudson News.
Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Summerill, Mrs. Charlotte Cook, Miss Ruth Sweeten, Penns Grove Record.

NEW YORK

John E. Allen, Linotype News, New York City.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alvord, Livonia Gazette.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blaine, Port Chester Daily Item.
Louis Buisch, Hornell Times.
Mrs. Helen M. S. Greenhow, Hornell Times.
Marc D. Johnson, Randolph Register.
Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Latimer, World's Press Congress, New York.
Mr. and Mrs. John D. Stivers, Middletown Times-Press.
Geo. A. Riley, American Press, New York.
A. E. McCall, Bath Plaindealer.
D. W. Murray, Rockaway Beach Wave.
Past President and Mrs. Wallace Odell, Tarrytown Daily News.
Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sykes, Clinton Courier.
Mr. and Mrs. Gordon S. Van Wormer, Middleburgh News.
Hon. Garry A. Willard, Past President, Audrey V. Musser, Boonville Herald.

OHIO

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Biery, Bluffton News.
Mr. and Mrs. John P. Bowman, Loudonville Times.
Mrs. Robert McCormick, and daughter Mrs. Ward Parry, Woodsfield Sentinel and Spirit of Democracy.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Miller, Dresden Transcript.

OKLAHOMA

Kathleen and Mildred Jessee, Altus Times Democrat.
Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Barber, Lawton News-Review.
Mrs. Effie Painter Farringer, Marland Record
Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hinkel, Stillwater Gazette.
Miss Ruth Strode, Stillwater Daily Press.
Mrs. Ira M. Hudson, Eldorado.
Mr. and Mrs. Elmer V. Jessee, Mangum Star.
Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kates, Claremore Progress.
Miss Sue L. Lower, Enid News Contributor.
Gould Moore, Sallisaw Sequoyah Publishing Co
Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Nichols, Bristow Record.
N. A. Nichols, El Reno American.
Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Plummer, Anadarko American-Democrat.
Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Sarchet, Ponca City Daily News.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Shepler, Lawton Constitution.
Mr. John Riley Thacker and son Glenn, Eldorado Courier.
Miss Maude Thomas, Beaver State Federation News.
Floyd E. Miller, Skiatook News.
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wetzel, Checotah Democrat.
Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Maher, El Reno Daily Democrat.

OREGON

Past President and Mrs. E. E. Brodie, Oregon City Enterprise.
A. E. Voorhies, Grant's Pass Courier.

PENNSYLVANIA

Marion S. Schoch, Selinsgrove Times.
Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Althouse, son Samuel and daughter Mary, Sellersville Poultry Item.
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Baum, Perkasie News.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Biddle, Huntingdon Daily News.
E. E. Helman and dauchter, Irwin Republican.
Ira B. Jones, Minersville Free Press.
John D. Knepper, sister Rose Knepper and friend Mrs. M. Shreve, Carnegie Signal Item.
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Livengood, Meyersdale Republican.
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Meredith, Quakerstown Free Press.
Miss Hattie M. Sharbaugh, Carrolltown Tribune.

RHODE ISLAND

J. F. Comstock and mother, Cranston News.
Mrs. Beverly S. Lake, Wickford Standard.
E. A. Noyes, Wickford Standard.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Agnese Dunne, Marion Record.
Mary Dunne, Marion Mitchell Republican.
Clara Hackett, Parker New Era.
Iris Hart, Wessington Springs Republican.
Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Heath, Artesian Commonwealth.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Kirch, Wood Pioneer.
Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Oddy, Woonsocket News.

TEXAS

D. W. George, Blooming Grove Times.
Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hoefgen and daughter Doris, San Antonio Dispatch.

UTAH

Mr. and Mrs. Charles England, Logan Journal.

VERMONT

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Belknap, Bellows Falls Times.
Miss Iva M. Young, Bellows Falls Times.
Harry Parker and daughter Sara K. Parker, Bradford United Opinion.

VIRGINIA

Mrs. E. W. Bissell, Grace Holy Trinity Bulletin, 310 N. Lombardy St., Richmond.

WASHINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stoddard, Waterville Enterprise Press.
Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Wheeler, Waitsburg Times.
Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Woody, Okanogan Independent.

WEST VIRGINIA

Miss Gertrude A. Shaw, Moundsville Echo.

WISCONSIN

Mrs. A. M. Anderson, Mrs. E. F. Kramer, Oregon Observer.
Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Andrews, Bloomer Advance.
F. C. Atkinson, and son Marshall, Eau Claire Daily Leader.
Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hoard, and daughter Elizabeth, Ft. Atkinson Union.
Mrs. Viola Howe, Miss Velma Howe, Ripon Press
Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kuypers and sister, De Pere Journal Democrat.
C. V. Lake, Marshall Record.
M. P. Rindlaub and daughters Mrs. J. H. Robertson and Mrs. Certrude R. Morris, Platteville Witness.
Mrs. Henry Towell, Milwaukee Times.

IDEAS GLEANED FROM TRADE PAPERS AID SOLICITORS TO SELL SPACE

By HAROLD J. ASHE

SOMEWHERE, sometime or another, the story has been printed concerning two kinds of salesmen who called upon a certain merchant. Both salesmen sold the same line of merchandise for competing houses. One of the salesmen was a bluff, rough-and-ready product of the old school, always loaded to the hilt with the latest anecdotes, with which he tried to ingratiate his way into the bulk of the merchant's orders. The merchant liked the first salesman, personally, considered him a good friend and invariably invited him to his home for dinner. Such a condition was competition of the most difficult sort for the other, younger salesman. However, the latter was an alert sort, always observing the latest merchandising practices of other merchants upon whom he called. He made a mental note of every good idea adaptable to the business of the customer, who was giving him only fill-in orders. Every time he called upon this customer he passed on one or more of these ideas which the merchant turned to good account. Ere long the merchant found himself benefiting to such an extent from these ideas that he looked forward to every visit of the second salesman, and within a short time was placing his big orders with him.

The newspaper advertising salesman is in the same position as the salesman in other lines, today. He must actually render a service to his clients, if he is to beat competition. It is no longer sufficient that he be a hail-fellow-well-met man. He must be able to talk his client's business over with him intelligently. He must be able to discuss his client's problems, particularly as applied to advertising. Generalizations are not sufficient. The client, himself, no doubt is fed up on generalizations, the value of advertising as a cure-all for merchandising ills, etc., etc., ad infinitum, ad nauseum.

Unlike the traveling salesmen, who bring stories of how so-and-so in another town sells automobile tires while the snow is on the ground, the local advertising salesman is handicapped in that he cannot tell from his personal experiences how a certain dealer put over a specific campaign, for the fact that the campaign was put on in the same town, in most cases spoils it for use, even with variations, by another merchant.

Therefore, the advertising salesman must draw upon the experiences of out-of-town merchants through the medium of any of the thousand good trade journals that are being published in every section of the country, for distribution nationally and sectionally.

No longer is it necessary for the space seller to tell Jack Washburn, the radio dealer, how Bill Niccolls, the sewing machine dealer, increased the number of sewing machines rentals in outlying districts through the medium of the printed word. Rather, he can refer him to a current number of Radio Dealers Topics and show him how the Great Western Radio Company of St. Paul obtained 500 live prospects through a novel contest that cost them $50 in merchandise and $60 in newspaper space. That from these 500 prospects 40 sales were made, totaling $1,535.

The automotive accessory dealer, who grudgingly uses a limited amount of space, because his competitors do, but who declares it has not brought him a nickel's worth of business, thanks to his classics announcing that "A new line of laprobes have just arrived. Come in and look them over," cannot resist changing heart when he learns how "Emerson's For Accessories," increased their newspaper space 20 per cent, and doubled their volume in one year. The trade journal carried by the salesman gives him all of the details of the story, from the time Emerson's started in by running a slogan contest in the newspaper, followed up by circularizing the list of entrants, and changed their advertising copy to the snappy epigram style, with an occasional open letter to some prominent local citizen, complimenting him on buying a Goodyear tire, or perhaps just a dust-cloth.

The small specialty shop is trying to build up a clientele among the better class of women buyers in the town. The merchant previous to his present business has been doing a general drygoods business in another town, where price was paramount. Show him by concrete examples that comparative prices do not make an appeal to the class he is trying to reach. Sell him on the desirability of plenty of white space, dignity in copy, perhaps institutional advertising in some of his copy.

The brick manufacturer cannot appreciate the need of advertising. The contractors come to him anyway when they need the brick. He is the only manufacturer for 100 miles around. Get out your copy of Brick and Clay Record and turn to the story about Pacific Clay Products which describes how this concern, with a consistently increasing advertising appropriation have built up their business through selling the general public on the superiority of brick as a building material; how this has resulted in the home builders erecting more brick homes, which increase was felt by the brick company. Let him see the reproductions of the advertisement, which showed typical local homes, factories, schools, and office buildings which were built of brick recently.

Armed with these trade-journals the advertising salesman can get the increased space from that merchant, who has been dissatisfied with his advertising; even the most hardened merchant who has refused to carry any advertising at all will reluctantly admit that there must be something in advertising after all, when confronted with the concrete evidence, the word of successful business men in his line of effort.

A cheap investment indeed it would prove if every newspaper subscribed to a dozen, or even two or three dozen representative trade journals and insist that all salesman read and make use of them in their soliciting.

Savings in Rebuilt Equipment

8-page Duplex Angle Bar Press, with 16 chases 22 x 16
No. 4-0 Miehle 2 rev. Cylinder Press, bed size 46 x 62
20th Century 2 rev. Cylinder Press, bed size 42 x 62
Two Huber Hodgman 2 rev. Cylinder Presses, bed size 46 x 66
No. 10 Babcock Optimus, bed size 41 x 55
No. 8 Cottrell 2 rev. Cylinder Press, bed size 38 x 55
No. 2 Miehle, bed size 35 x 50
Cottrell Drum Cylinder Press, bed size 34 x 47
2-E Whitlock 2 rev. Cylinder Press, bed size 29 x 42
No. 1 Pony Miehle, bed size 22 x 34

Job Presses and Paper Cutters—all sizes
Stereotype Chases—Form Tables—Melting Furnaces

Write for the current issue of the "Hall Broadcaster" giving a complete list

Thos. W. Hall Co., Inc.
575 Washington St. New York

USED CAR ADVERTISING "CONFIDENCE" GAME

(Continued from page 112)

is the quickest, cheapest and most powerful way of building up a permanent business. If Truth were sold like gasoline, people would drive around every little while to have their tanks filled up. But, because Truth is free, lots of people kid themselves into believing a substitute will take its place."

"Here nothing takes the place of Truth. We have found by experience that the Truth about our Sands Plan Cars is good enough—that's all that people want. When they know the facts about an automobile they can make up their minds about buying."

"A large majority of Used Cars represent a world of unused transportation—uncertainty and guesswork are the only stumbling blocks in the way of quick and ready sale of every used car on the market. When you come here to buy a Sands Plan Used Car, we want you to know the Truth—the Facts—then your own good judgment will tell you whether or not to buy."

The method of compiling the facts, and what they consist of, as found in "The Envelope That Tells the Truth," is repeated time and again.

Of course, we do not altogether neglect merchandising copy, describing cars for sale, but this is made secondary in the ad. In this copy we take advantage of the possibility of giving names and addresses of former owners, and a resume of the car's previous history, as well as giving sample illustrations of actual duplicate sheets, showing repair and replacement work done in our shops.

Obviously, this type of advertising does not belong on the want ad page. In the matter of space used in display, we proceeded cautiously, first using small ads at frequent intervals. The response was immediate. Thirty days after going into display advertising with the institutional copy featuring the "Sands Plan—The Envelope Tells the Truth," our used car sales immediately exceeded our sales of new cars for the first time in many months, and this relative position, so necessary to keep the automobile business on an even keel, has never been lost since, with the exception of a very short period in the second month following, as the graph with this article will show.

As the success of the advertising campaign became increasingly apparent, we grew bolder and increased the size of our ads, using 70 inch ads four times a month. We now use eight or nine 70 inch ads per month in two daily newspapers. We believe that dominating the page with a large ad is eminently better than using smaller ads more frequently to make equal volume.

Contrary to the then prevailing custom, we selected the newspapers alleged to reach the "high-brows," for we believed that the right kind of a used car would appeal to the better classes of buyers as well as to those of more moderate means. Results have shown we were right.

Where four and five years ago, we found it impossible to maintain the ratio of one used car sold to one new car, during the past two years, since using display advertising that I have described, our ratio is easily maintained at one and a half used cars to every new car sold. Often it approaches a ratio of two to one.

Five years ago we averaged about 250 cars per annum. Last year, the volume increased to over 2,000 cars sold. Our volume of business has increased from half a million a year to over two and one-half million dollars in 1925. I do not write this boastfully, but merely to prove my point that the right kind of merchandising and advertising will deliver the goods. The used car no longer presents an unsolved problem to us.

We have taken it out of the curbstone market class, given it an important place in our scheme of merchandising, and—most emphatically—removed it from the want ad pages.

Only by securing public confidence can the reputable merchant, or manufacturer for that matter, overcome the evils in the wake of the "confidence men." That's why I say that merchandising and advertising is primarily a "confidence" game.

Ohio Semi-Weeklies Merge

The London (O.) Press and Democrat, Republican and Democratic semi-weeklies have been merged. They will be issued as semi-weeklies for the time being, but later the Press may be made a daily. R. B. Howard, who owned the Press, continues as general manager, and Chester E. Bryan of the Democrat will have an interest in the new company.

News Man Buys Magazine

Paul H. Lovering, Seattle newspaper man, has purchased the monthly magazine, Western Fruit, Flowers and Garden.

Retail business in Philadelphia in the last calendar year amounted to $692,217,700, or 29 per cent of the total business of this character in Pennsylvania.

Williams Sails for Philippines

James T. Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston American, sailed Wednesday from Seattle for the Philippines where he will make an investigation for all Hearst newspapers of conditions there, especially in the light of the duty of the United States in the Philippine Islands. Williams' trip will take him all over the Islands and occupy his attention until early fall, when he will return to Boston via China, Japan and probably Guam and Hawaiian Islands.

Chehalis Bee-Nugget 44 Years Old

The Chehalis (Wash.) Bee-Nugget has just completed forty-four years of publication in Lewis county under the direction of C. Ellington, editor and owner.

Daily Installing 15 Press Units

The New Orleans Times Picayune is installing 15 Hoe Z-Pattern superspeed balcony type units, arranged as three separate decuple presses with the automatic pump system of ink distribution.

Former Reporter Ordained a Priest

Martin W. Doherty, who left the reportorial staff of the Chicago Herald and Examiner a few years ago to study in Rome, Italy, and in the United States, was ordained a priest of the Roman Catholic Church on June 14. The sacrament of the Holy Orders was administered in St. Paul, Minn., by Archbishop Austin Dowling. He is a brother of James E. Doherty of the Chicago Tribune, on which paper he also served as a reporter for three years.

A RESOLUTION

ADOPTED BY THE

ASSOCIATION OF NATIONAL ADVERTISERS

WHEREAS national advertisers who give a great deal of time, attention and money to the preparation of high grade newspaper advertising necessarily suffer by having such advertising overwhelmed by local advertising that consists largely of blocks laid on heavily in type, lettering, banners, squares, circles, sweeping curves, follow-the-arrow lines, backgrounds, embellishments and smudges generally, and

WHEREAS the general newspaper tendency typographically seems to be to make this condition worse instead of trying to correct it, and

WHEREAS unless something is done to clean up this phase of newspaper advertising we are bound to have increasing complaints that advertising doesn't pay.

BE IT RESOLVED that the Association of National Advertisers, assembled in convention at Chicago, May 10, 11 and 12, 1926, go on record as favoring a typographical clean-up in newspaper advertising and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this Association recommend the matter to the attention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the A.A.A.A. and the Newspaper Committee to be hereby instructed to organize and conduct an educational campaign among newspapers of the country until relief is secured from this intolerable situation.

To any one interested in this campaign we will be glad to send a copy of the article "LACHERLICHESCHRIFTEN" (Ludicrous Types) which originally appeared in the Linotype Bulletin. The wide circulation of this article has done much to arouse both publishers and advertisers to the injury which these typographic monstrosities do to legitimate advertising

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

DEPARTMENT OF LINOTYPE TYPOGRAPHY, 461 EIGHTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

580.26.7-X

Composed in Linotype Garamond. Borders, 12 Point No. G-6L, No. G-6R, No. G-7L, No. G-7R, and 5 Point Matrix Slide No. 516

NEW YORK JOURNAL OPENS SECTIONAL PLANT IN BRONX BOROUGH

New Uptown Branch of Evening Daily Established to Facilitate Delivery in Populous Harlem and Bronx Areas—Brisbane Speaks at Formal Opening

New Bronx plant of New York Journal

AN innovation in the rapid publication and distribution of metropolitan newspapers was made last Saturday when the New York Evening Journal, opened a new $500,000 plant in the Borough of the Bronx, which is part of the Greater City. It is separated from Manhattan only by the Harlem River. Papers sold in that borough will, in the future be printed in this new plant.

The Bronx, which is one of New York city's five boroughs, now has a population of more than 900,000. It is the first time a newspaper has opened a completely equipped plant in another section of its city.

"Borough Day," the annual celebration of the Bronx, was the occasion for the opening, and the first papers were printed in the new plant last Saturday. More than 300 civic leaders and business men of the Bronx were guests when the presses started for the first time.

Following an inspection of the plant the guests journeyed to the Concourse Plaza Hotel for luncheon. Here they were addressed by Joseph V. McKee, president of the Board of Aldermen; Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Evening Journal, Henry Bruckner, Borough president of the Bronx, and John M. Haffen, president of the Bronx Board of Trade.

Mr. Brisbane paid a tribute to the Bronx. He said that the new building was only the cornerstone of a great building to come, and that the Evening Journal's new plant "will increase as the Borough of the Bronx is sure to increase."

Eight editions a day are published in the new plant. The new plant makes it possible for the Journal to be on the streets of the Bronx with news only a few minutes after it occurs.

The present structure is two stories high, but the foundation has been laid to carry a building of ten stories.

The Harlem & Bronx section of the New York Evening Journal features local news of uptown New York and is sold on all stands above One-hundred and tenth street as a part of the complete newspaper.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

News Value of Advertising

To Editor & Publisher: In Editor & Publisher of May 29, 1926, J. Omansky, circulation manager, Cleveland Times, is quoted as saying, in an address before Ohio Circulation Managers Assn.:

"Advertising sells very few papers. It's an intrusion on the reader, and nothing else. Don't believe the bunk advertising men hand you about advertising being news—it isn't and never will be. We are not selling advertising papers, we are selling newspapers, and when advertising is permitted to crowd out news, whenever publicity gets in disguised as news, whenever news stories are suppressed to please advertisers, whenever advertising dominates a paper, raise hell about it."

The daily circulation man's problems are somewhat different from those of the weekly, but it seems that Omansky has gone to extremes, even in regard to the daily. Primarily, of course, a newspaper is a news paper. It is the extent and quality of the news service which is the basis of circulation, and it is the size and texture of circulation that is the basis of advertising.

There is a tendency among daily advertising men to discount the importance of the news side, and their arrogance is returned with interest. And the circulation manager sometimes wants to manage the whole works. But men of comprehensive experience know that a newspaper is at its best only when all departments—editorial, advertising, circulation, business—are properly balanced and coordinated under the competent direction of a general manager of mature experience and broad vision.

I cannot agree that advertising is an intrusion and is not news. Some advertising is not news, because, like the cub's headlines, it doesn't tell anything. But advertising at its best tells in an interesting way the news of the commodity advertised and the store advertising.

Advertising which does not pay is advertising devoid of vitality and human interest.

Here in the country we know that advertising is news, for we are repeatedly told that the Aledo (Ill.) Times Record is valued as much for its advertising information as for its news and feature service. It is within my personal knowledge that a weekly newspaper in Michigan suspended primarily because its competitor had the farm auction sale business "sewed up tight." I know because it cost me $3,000 to find out.

As a general proposition advertising should not be permitted to crowd out news, but there are times when it is necessary because of shortage of print paper in the market, because of lack of time to print more pages or because of temporary mechanical conditions. It is unfortunate, however, if one works on a paper whose manager worships advertising to the exclusion of all other gods. It is a short-sighted policy and sooner or later will react disastrously to circulation and profits.

However, if space sufficient to carry the news of the day and a few good features is available, the more advertising the better, for it brings an interesting message.

And here's a fact often overlooked by newspaper men who have never signed a payroll—it's advertising that earns the dollars; circulation earnings are only a few "drops in the bucket."

But why argue? The advertising staff would have little to do without a newspaper; the news staff would not exist long without a payroll largely from advertising; and the circulation men would have nothing to peddle without the other two.

Working together, they are an efficient triumvirate; at cross purposes they waste energy and produce less of worth-while results.

A. C. Olmstead,
Aledo (Ill.) Times Record, News Editor.

Spelling and Pronouncing

To Editor & Publisher: What is the connection between the correction of the spelling of linage and advertisement? In the case of linage there was a confusion of words as well as pronunciation involved. But "advertisement" has only one meaning, practically speaking.

Of course it doesn't mean much in the English language to compare spelling and pronunciation, but why should we deliberately go out of our way to foster a pronunciation which clashes with the spelling. Granting that the language is faulty enough in that respect already, why make it worse?

But why all this excitement—I mean excitement—about it. Is it on record that propaganda ever changed a word once firmly embedded in the spoken language? A new word, yes. And the spelling of a word, often. Spoken words change, it is true, in the course of time, but through involuntary and unconscious change of habit on the part of the mass of population.

Why worry? If either pronunciation is destined to completely overcome the other it will do so anyhow. And if not, what's the difference. It causes no more confusion than "either" and "eyether," "tomato," "tomahto" and "tomatto," or "potato" and "puhdayduh."

Philip Francis Nowlan.

Prints Bill of Rights Facsimile

The Richmond (Va.) News-Leader of Saturday, June 12, included a photogravure facsimile of the original bill of rights adopted by the Virginia convention June 12, 1776. It was offered as a souvenir of the celebration at Williamsburg, Va., Saturday, of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its passage.

The Boston Traveler will celebrate its 101st anniversary on July 6.

AN UNDER-DEVELOPED ADVERTISING FIELD

Church advertising will be one of the very important phases of the international advertising convention in Philadelphia this coming week. It is to be the theme of ministers and laymen who will occupy the pulpits of seventy-six Philadelphia churches on June 20th, convention Sunday.

The value of advertising to churches will be fully discussed at the Tuesday and Wednesday sessions of the Church Advertising Department, June 22 and 23, in Room 200, College Hall, University of Pennsylvania, particularly with reference to newspapers as one of the most important mediums.

The discussions will be helpful and valuable to newspaper men who are developing church advertising in their papers. Are you planning to cover these meetings?

Church Advertising Department
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS,
383 Madison Avenue
New York, N. Y.

R. L. BALDRIDGE OF CLIFTON NAMED PRESIDENT OF TEXAS PRESS ASSN.

Change in State Libel Law Urged at San Antonio Meet—Outgoing President Denounces Newspapers Which Flout 18th Amendment—El Paso Chosen for 1927

THE Texas Press Association will hold its 48th annual convention next year in El Paso, the border city having been selected over Mineral Wells, Falfurrias and Texarkana Saturday at the final session of the 47th annual convention in San Antonio. By turning down Texarkana's bid the association decided against a proposal to meet jointly with the Arkansas Press Association in the city on the Texas-Arkansas line.

George A. T. Neu of the Brenham Banner-Press was elected vice-president to succeed Robert L. Baldridge of the Clifton Record, who was advanced to the presidency in succession to W. A. Smith of San Saba. Sam P. Harbin of the Richardson Echo and Ben F. Harigel, La Grange Journal, were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. Mrs. Lee J. Rountree of the Bryan Eagle was chosen poet, and the following were re-elected. Clarence E. Gilmore, Austin, attorney; E. G. Senter, Dallas, historian; Dick McCarty, Albany, orator; Arthur Lefevre, Houston, essayist. Sam E. Miller of the Mineral Wells Index was re-elected to the executive committee and Walter B. Wilson, McKinney Courier-Gazette, was added to the committee.

The program of the San Antonio convention was constructive and out of it grew a decision of the association to cooperate with the Texas Bar Association in the latter's program in behalf of court reform, with reduction of time and expense in litigation, improvement in method of selecting judges and stricter law enforcement.

President Smith, in his annual address, deplored the "unmistakable danger that threatens free government" in the "widespread tendency of certain sections of the press and more or less influential citizens to join with lawless and law-defying elements in flouting the 18th amendment."

Wisdom of the association in establishing the Texas Press Weeklies Inc., a separate organization of association members for more business, has been amply justified by experience of the year, Smith said. Subsequently a report of the Texas Press Weeklies, Inc., was submitted by H. L. Grable, Dallas manager. The convention was told how that organization was expanding its work in the foreign advertising field, having 220 active members, and offices in six cities.

Turning from business to service, President Smith said: "The business side of the newspaper game has been overworked. There are those who express a fear that the trade side of journalism will eventually smother the profession of journalism. My study of the problems, coupled with years of experience, leads me to the conviction that economic problems of the 20th century newspaper are intimately interwoven with its spiritual life, and that, just as 'honesty is the best policy' from a business and selfish standpoint, so disinterested and aggressive promotion of the principles of religion, education, patriotism and the quickening of the civic conscience is 'good business' for the newspaper."

Featuring the first day was a memorial service in charge of Henry Edwards of the Tyler Journal, following the report of Arthur Lefevre, Jr., Houston Chronicle, chairman of the memorial committee, in memory of the following late members: R. M. Johnston, Houston Post; C. F. Lehmann, San Antonio, who was treasurer of the association until his death; T. E. Arterberry, Savoy Star; Harry T. Warner, Paris News; P. N. Thomas, Quitman, Wood County Democrat, and D. C. Breed, Public Health Roundup, Austin.

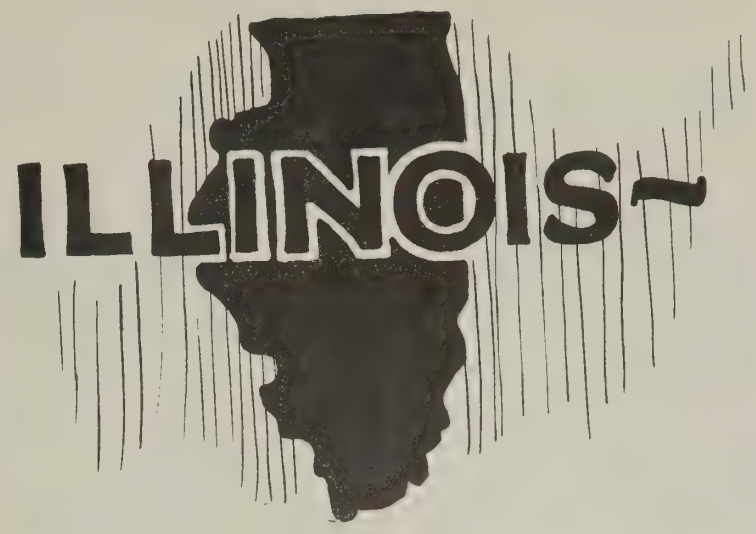
Winners of several annual contests sponsored by the association were announced during the convention. The Dallas News and Journal loving cup for the best all-round weekly was awarded jointly to the Tyler Journal and Troup Banner, published by Henry Edwards and son, Emerson, with the knowledge of the award committee that both papers are printed from the same plant. Honorable mention went to the Rockdale Reporter, Olney Enterprise and Kerrville Mountain Sun. The W. N. Beard $150 gold award for best mechanically set advertisements was awarded in two divisions as follows: Class A (ads of quarter page and over), Olney Enterprise, first; Canyon, Randall County News, second; Kingsville Record, third; Class B (less than quarter page), Whitewright Sun, first; Rockdale Reporter, second; Sweetwater Nolan County News, third. The Clarendon News won the Harry A. Olmstead loving cup for the best job work showing.

In the golf tournament arranged by S. D. Chestnutt of Kenedy, Ralph Shuffler, Olney Enterprise, winner, won the silver trophy offered by the Southwestern Paper Company. Tying for second place, Hal Bridges, Luling Signal, and Arthur Shannon, Beeville Bee, each were awarded a golf club given by the Mergenthaler Linotype Company.

J. H. Lowry, Honey Grove, on behalf of the association, presented to retiring President Smith a chest of silver, on the last day of the convention.

Authorizing appointment of a special committee to petition Congress in opposition to government-printed envelopes, a resolution was adopted condemning the envelope practice as unfair, discriminatory and contrary to principles of free government. Other resolutions endorsed work and objectives of the Texas Agricultural Writers' Conference held annually at A. & M. College; asked re-establishment of the abolished department of journalism at the University of Texas and commended the pioneer work done there by former Dean Will H. Mayes and his co-workers.

Besides election of 50 active and 61 honorary members, the association made W. A. Ownby, former managing editor of the Waxahachie Light, and C. M. Barnes, San Antonio, both of whom are in ill health, life members without dues.



The feature address of the final session was the talk on libel, by Sydney Samuels of Fort Worth. He expressed belief that the present Texas libel law would be a practicable, workable statue if an amendment to it can be obtained providing for introduction as evidence, in suits for actual as well as in those for exemplary damages, of circumstances surrounding the obtaining writing and publication of news. The present law admits such evidence only in suits for exemplary damages. Commenting on recent decisions in Texas libel cases upholding the truth as complete defense Samuels said truth always has been and always will be defense to libel actions, and declared that if newspapers go before the legislature seeking a new law they may seem to be striving for license rather than liberty.

Fred E. Johnson, Dallas, member of the Advertise Texas executive committee of the Tenth District, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, solicited support of the press in the $500,000 campaign to advertise the state.

On Friday the visitors were guests at a luncheon given by the San Antonio Light, with W. M. McIntosh, publisher, as host.

Frank G. Huntress, publisher of the San Antonio Express and Evening News, was host at a luncheon and theater party Saturday.

Nearly 100 of the press delegates left on a special train Saturday night for an over-Sunday excursion to Brownsville and other points in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Reach the great mid-west market through the papers that carry prestige and influence

There are nearly 1,400,000 families who look to their daily papers for their wants and amusements in Illinois.

The influence of these papers on the life of the people is truly remarkable. The communities that these dailies cover are the real home towns of the nation, where dwell the people that are the backbone of the Country.

The daily papers are the most direct medium for the people of Illinois—the State that stands head and shoulders above the majority of states as far as Commerce, Agriculture and Industry are concerned.

		Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon-News	(E)	18,694	.06	.06
†Chicago Herald & Examiner	(M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner	(S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
†Chicago Daily Journal	(E)	123,771	.26	.24
Evanston News Index	(E)	6,729	.04	.04
Freeport Journal-Standard	(E)	9,613	.045	.045
Joliet Herald News	(E)	19,591	.06	.06
††Mattoon Journal Gazette	(E)	5,712	.03	.03
Moline Dispatch	(E)	11,680	.045	.045
Monmouth Daily Review Atlas	(E)	5,416	.035	.035
Peoria Star (S) 22,497	(E)	29,874	.075	.06
Rock Island Argus	(E)	11,248	.045	.045
Waukegan Daily Sun	(E)	5,213	.03	.03

A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926
††Government Statement, September 30, 1925

PHILLIE TO SHOW A. A. C. W. IT'S NOT SLOW MOTION PICTURE CAPITAL

Stiff Opposition of Restaurant Men and Hotel Proprietors to Sesqui Finally Overcome and Big Show Will Proceed —Gen. Smedley Butler Will Be Missed

Written especially for EDITOR & PUBLISHER

By McKNIGHT BLACK

Writer of "Matrimonially Speaking"—Ledger Syndicate

FOR some time Philadelphia has been pretty widely thought of as being the Hollywood of the Slow Motion Picure industry.

There also seems to be a general impression that Philadelphia mail-carriers, due to the large number shot annually in mistake for Confederate soldiers, are rated by insurance companies as Class Z risks.

With these facts in mind, a number of Philadelphians got together some time ago and decided that something ought to be done to liven up the town and also to let the nation as a whole know that Philadelphia is strictly up-to-date. The committee decided that the best plan would be to hold a celebration of some sort, but for a good while nobody could think of anything to celebrate. Then it occurred to someone that about 50 years ago a very successful celebration known as the Centennial had been held here in honor of something or other.

"If we can find out what that Centennial back in 1876 was all about," said the chairman, "there is no reason that I can't see why we shouldn't celebrate it all over again."

"And then," put in a statistically-minded member of the committee, "we can call it the Sesqui-Centennial, because it will be just 150 years since that something happened."

Well, somebody dug up the fact that the Declaration of Independence, had been signed in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776, and that there had been considerable excitement for a few minutes down around Sixth and Chestnut streets, which was then considered way up-town.

With this idea as a starter, the committee has really done very well up to date. Philadelphia has never had very much publicity, due to the fact that Peggy Hopkins Joyce never married anybody from here, but the members of the committee started right out to tell the world as well as they could that 1926 was Sesqui-Centennial Year in Philadelphia.

Although there was a lot of opposition on the part of hotel men and restaurant proprietors, invitations were finally sent out to a selected list of all the lodges, orders and associations within three weeks travelling distance of Philadelphia to hold their annual conventions here this year. The Shriners were the first to arrive and they seemed to have a right good time, although disappointment was pretty generally expressed over the fact that General Butler had been called back to the Marine Corps sometime ago and so was not on hand to help with the merry-making.

There are a great many spots of historic interest that visitors to Philadelphia will want to visit. They won't visit them, but I know they will want to. Here are some of them:

The statue of William Penn on top of City Hall. Although it seems a long climb for everybody to have made, this was the spot on which Penn signed his famous treaty with the Indians. It is interesting to note that the signing of this treaty marked the first use of the dotted line, which later came to be such a feature in American business life. I haven't been able to find out for sure, but I think that William Penn was in the cigar manufacturing business, because there is a William Penn cigar which is still being sold by the United Cigar Stores.

The new Delaware Bridge, which is the longest suspension bridge in the world. It was designed and built last year by Milton Work the bridge expert, who lives here.

Benjamin Franklin's House, 111 Spring street. I don't know where that is, and there is no Benjamin Franklin listed in the phone book, but maybe some visitor can find it. As far as can be learned, Franklin spent most of his time founding things like newspapers, universities, Saturday Evening Posts, etc. He was recently elected president of the Founding Fathers Association of North America.

It might be a good thing to mention at this point that Philadelphia is known, at least to the members of the local Chamber of Commerce, as "The City of Homes." There certainly are a lot of homes here, at any rate. For instance, there is the Old Man's Home, the Home for Spanish War Veterans, the Home for Aged Couples and the Home for Unreformed Ball Players, which is nicknamed the National League Ball Park, at Broad and Huntington streets.

If there is anything else that visitors would like to know about Philadelphia, I guess they will have to wait over until President Coolidge makes his speech here on July 4, because I am sure he will be full of information on the subject, and maybe he will also tell them what he thinks of the Senatorial Primaries, which were recently held in South Philadelphia.

ARNOLD BENNETT WRITES AD

Philadelphia Haberdasher Uses Quotation from English Novelist in Copy

A quotation from a recent syndicated article by Arnold Bennett, English novelist, served aptly in the newspaper advertising copy of Jacob Reed's Sons, Philadelphia men's store, this week.

The quotation, which might very well be sold to a local store in some other city by a newspaper copywriter, reads:

"The importance of being well dressed, while not being a dandy, is strongly insisted on in certain professions and callings, and a carefully dressed man will always have the advantage over a carelessly dressed man in beginning business relations.

"The first thought of a negligent man seeking a situation is invariably to remedy his negligence; the pity is that sometimes he cannot remedy it."

Under the quotation the store said:

"That's our contention exactly—we have preached the gospel of being well dressed for years. It doesn't cost a lot, either, if you deal at the right place."

Then the store listed some suit offerings with prices.

PHILADELPHIA MOTHER OF MAGAZINES

(Continued from page 32)

zines were published in Philadelphia. In the same period of time New York had eighteen and Boston seventeen. These figures show the supremacy of Philadelphia in the magazine field during the eighteenth century and justify her title, "Mother of Magazines."

The dawn of the nineteenth century saw the birth of The Port Folio on January 3, 1801, started by Joseph Dennie and Asbury Dickins. Its fictitious editor, however, was Oliver Oldschool, Esq. Dickins was the son of the Rev. John Dickins who edited The Methodist Magazine from January, 1797—August, 1798—one of those periodicals of the eighteenth century which I did not mention by name. Dennie, however, was the responsible editor.

Dennie in his editorial introduction admitted that "Port Folio" was not in Dr. Johnson's Dictionary and proceeded to define his title as "a portable repository for fugitive papers." Dennie then poked a little fun at his editorial contemporaries about how they selected titles not connected with contents, "we hear of The Mirror and The Aurora; but what relation has a literary essay with a polished plane of glass, or what has politics to do with the morning?"

In fact, Dennie was always publishing satirical comments. When Noah Webster announced "A Columbian Dictionary" with "American corrections of the English language," Dennie printed an amusing skit on how the Columbian language was an elegant dialect of the English. Dennie, modeling his magazine after English periodicals, played up English writers. Yet the contributors to The Port Folio constitute a "Who's Who" of American letters for the period.

When Thomas Moore visited America he was lionized in The Port Folio to which he contributed "Lines written on Leaving Philadelphia." In it he said in the first line of the concluding stanza, "The stranger is gone—but he will not forget." This poem, by the way, although written for The Port Folio first appeared, with questionable newspaper ethics, in the columns of The New York Evening Post. The poem was dedicated to Mrs. Joseph Hopkinson, the wife of a son of Francis Hopkinson.

The fictitious editor, Oliver Oldschool, disappeared in January 1811. After that The Port Folio was "conducted by Jos. Dennie, Esq." In later years, after Dennie's death, the magazine had a hard time to make both ends meet. Suspensions of publication became so periodic that "Finis" was finally written in December, 1827.

What did "ye olden time" magazine editor look like? One does not have to guess for Joseph T. Buckingham, famous in the history of New England journalism, has left in his delightful reminiscences this pen portrait of Joseph Dennie, editor of The Port Folio when on dress parade:

> Dennie was particularly attentive to his dress, which, when he appeared in the street, on a pleasant day, approached the highest notch of the fashion. I remember, one delightful morning in May, he came into the office dressed in a pea-green coat, white vest, nankin small-clothes, white silk stockings, and shoes, or pumps, fastened with silver buckles, which covered at least half the foot from the instep to the toe. His small-clothes were tied at the knees, with riband of the same color, in double bows, the ends reaching down to the ancles. He had just emerged from the barber's shop. His hair, in front, was well loaded with pomatum, frizzled, or craped, and powdered; the ear-locks had undergone the same process; behind, his natural hair was augmented by the addition of a large queue, (called, vulgarly, the false tail,) which enrolled in some yards of black ribband, reached half way down his back.

The date at which The Port Folio ceased publication brings me down to about the period when I closed my remarks about Philadelphia newspapers. Consequently it may be a good point at which to end this chat about Philadelphia magazines. Before doing so a passing mention at least must be made of The Literary Magazine and American Register started on October 1, 1803, by John Conrad and edited by Charles Brockden Brown, the first American author to make his living from his pen. Brown, born in Philadelphia, January 17, 1771, had had his first editorial experience on The Monthly Magazine and American Review which he edited for T. & J. Swords in New York from April, 1799-December, 1800.

Speaking as the editor of The Literary Magazine he thus outlined his policies:

> He will pay particular attention to the history of passing events. He will carefully compile the news, foreign and domestic, of the current month, and give, in a precise and systematic order, that intelligence which the common newspapers communicate in a vague and indiscriminate way. His work shall likewise be a repository of all those signal incidents in private life, which mark the character of the age, and excite the liveliest curiosity.

Brown's magazine in many respects, and these the most essential, ran parallel to The Port Folio. Indeed, he did not hesitate to quote from the latter. Moore's "Lines Written on Leaving Philadelphia," for example, were reprinted by Brown in The Literary Magazine for January, 1806.

Briefer mention may be made of: The Analectic Magazine of which Washington Irving was editor in 1813-14 and in which he printed part of his "Sketch Book"; Godey's Lady's Book started in July, 1830, by Louis A. Godey and now highly prized by collectors because of its colored fashioned plates; Graham's Magazine of which Edgar Allan Poe was once editor, on which James Russell Lowell once worked, and to which James Fenimore Cooper and Nathaniel Hawthorne contributed; Peterson's Ladies' National Magazine which put Philadelphia on the map as a publishing center for magazines designed to appeal to women; The Philadelphia Repository started by William Henry Gilder, father of Richard Watson Gilder who was for many years editor of The Century Magazine in New York; The Dollar Magazine which gave Edgar Allan Poe a price of one hundred dollars for his "Gold Bug" and which was later owned by George W. Childs; and last but not least The Saturday Evening Post which first apeared on August 4, 1821. The story of The Post as well as of that of The Ladies' Home Journal and that of The Country Gentleman may be found in "The Man from Maine," the book in which Edward W. Bok sketches the life of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, the present publisher of the three magazines last named.

Because the periodical in which this article is printed is designed to appeal to newspaper and advertising people I must not overlook the fact that Lippincott's Magazine, which was said to enjoy the honor of being "first in fiction," printed the first comprehensive series of articles about American journalism—a series later brought together in book form under the title "The Making of a Newspaper."

Philadelphia is said to be the city of homes. It is still the home of its magazines. In New York and Boston, for example, the magazines, while retaining editorial offices in these cities, have places of publication elsewhere. But in Philadelphia its magazines are home production, though intended for national consumption.

Trade Mark FLEXIDEAL Reg. U S Pat. Off

THE IMPORTED DRY MAT OF SUPERIOR QUALITY

Write for Free Samples

FLEXIDEAL COMPANY, Inc.

15 WILLIAM STREET NEW YORK CITY

JUDGE LEAHY TESTIFIES IN TRIAL OF CARL MAGEE FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Thug Judge Admits He Sought Editor Out in Hotel Lobby Looking for Fight—How Magee's Unfortunate Friend Met Death

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

Carl Magee was acquitted at 8:30 Wednesday evening after Judge Luis E. Arminjo had directed the jury to bring in such a verdict.

EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., June 16. —The high light in the trial of Carl C. Magee editor of the Albuquerque (N. M.) State Tribune, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of John B. Lassetter, a bystander who was killed by one of the shots Magee aimed at Judge D. J. Leahy after Leahy had knocked him to the floor of the Meadows Hotel lobby, occurred Wednesday when Leahy took the stand shortly before noon.

Near the opening of his testimony Leahy testified that he searched Magee out in the hotel lobby because Magee in an editorial utterance had declared that he hoped some day to meet Leahy man to man. Leahy testified that as he approached Magee and struck at him he said to the editor, "we meet man to man now you — —."

June Wheaton, who testified that he entered the lobby of the Meadows Hotel with Judge D. J. Leahy on the night of the shooting, was the first witness called by the prosecution. He indicated on a blue print of the hotel lobby, the location of the participants in the shooting.

Magee, Wheaton testified, was sitting on a divan when Judge Leahy entered the lobby. Wheaton said Leahy inquired of H. W. Kelly, whom they met at the entrance of the lobby, as to whether the man sitting on the divan was Magee. When Kelly said he did not know, Wheaton testified Leahy said, he was going to find out and walked toward the divan on which Magee was sitting, quickening his pace as he approached the editor. When asked whether Leahy's attitude seemed friendly or unfriendly as he started across the lobby Wheaton answered "normal," a faint murmur of amusement spread over the courtroom.

Leahy hit Magee, Wheaton testified, knocking the editor to the floor in front of the divan and striking at him as he lay on his hands and knees struggling to rise. Three shots were fired Wheaton said, but Leahy and Magee were so close together that he could not see the gun in Magee's hand at the time the shooting took place. Lasseter according to Wheaton's story was behind Leahy and reaching for him. Leahy, striking at Magee, got out of the way just as the shot was fired. Lassetter fell. The third shot, Wheaton said, lodged in Leahy's arm. Wheaton said that Leahy then turned to him and asked if he had a gun, saying that he would kill that—. The testimony of H. W. Kelly, the second witness called, did not differ from that of Wheaton materially except that he testified that he did not hear Leahy ask Wheaton for a gun or say that he would kill Magee. He said he thought he would have heard such a remark if it had been made.

Wheaton said he had known Leahy about eight years. Kelly testified that he was a friend of Magee's and had known him for about 30 years. Leahy was still on the witness stand when the court adjourned at noon. He had not yet been cross examined.

On Tuesday, the first day of the trial, the prosecution's questioning of jurors dealt mainly with whether they had already formed an opinion. The defense's questioning was built around the question whether the jurors believed in the principle of self-defense. No jurors admitted they had formed opinions. Influence of pre-trial newspaper accounts of the case was a negligible factor in the selection of the jury. Approximately 75 per cent of the men questioned asserted that they read no newspapers.

DETROIT CHILDREN VIE FOR PIANO PRIZES

10,000 Entered in Playing Contest Backed by Free Press—Believed to Be First of Its Kind Competition

The first piano playing contest for school children is being conducted in Detroit under the auspices of the Detroit Times, and more than 10,000 children have taken part in the elimination contests held in the parochial and public schools. The affair has passed all expectations of those interested.

The idea of the contest was originated by a former newspaper man, E. Clarke King, Jr., at that time connected with the Detroit Convention and Tourists' Bureau and now with the advertising department of the Kelvinator Corporation. Before going to Detroit, Mr. King was branch office manager for the Syracuse Herald at Fulton, N. Y. He gave his piano contest idea to Frank J. Bayley, president of the Detroit Music Trades Association, which sponsored the movement.

Both parochial and public schools, as well as music teachers and others prominent in musical circles, have endorsed the movement. Ossip Gabrilowitch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and Serge Rachmaninoff, noted pianist, will be two of the judges during the grand championship test to be held in the Coliseum at the State Fair Grounds in Detroit, Aug. 17.

Approximately $50,000 worth of prizes and awards have been offered to the winners. The grand champion will receive a $1,500 baby grand piano of the winner's own selection; a trip to New York City, accompanied by a parent or guardian with all expenses paid; the recording of a piano roll and the receipt of all royalties resulting therefrom, and a year's scholarship in one of Detroit's leading music conservatories. Nineteen scholarships are among the prizes offered to the winners.

Much interest is being shown in the piano contest and letters have been received from all parts of the United States asking for information about the affair.

New Atlantic Cable Landed

The Western Union Telegraph's new transaltantic cable from Bay Roberts, Newfoundland to England, was successfully landed last week. Together with its connecting cable from Bay Roberts to New York, which will be laid later in the year, it will be capable of transmitting 2,500 letters a minute, a speed five times greater than the old types.

Claude N. Bennett Dead

Claude N. Bennett, former Washington correspondent of the Atlanta Journal, died in Washington June 13. He was secretary to Hoke Smith when the latter was secretary of the Interior, and was appointed on a special mission among the Indian tribes by President Cleveland.

J. F. Bresnahan Reports Big Catch

J. F. Bresnahan, business manager, New York World, returned to his office this week from a vacation spent salmon fishing in Maine. He reported a big catch, including one six-and-a-half pounder.

SEE SYD CLARKE FIRST

Ninety-five cents won't exactly buy you a whole carnival of fun, frolic and foolishness on Main Street at home, now will it?

But in Paris—well in Paris ninety-five cents U. S. jack is more than thirty francs, and with all that money how can you be blamed for putting on the white spats, taking the new cane and sallying forth—just sallying forth?

Suppose they DO tell you that all steamships have been sold out for months. Maybe they have—but you just let Syd Clarke's New York office know when you want to sail. You tellem, go-getter—you tellem—that's all.

The artistic and ingenious French, the blase Belgians, the Portugese and the Greeks have been devising for five hundred years the most alluring, rose-tinted, and I'll say enticing, ways to separate you from that thirty francs. Why Syd Clarke knows a place. . . .

Yes, sir, Main Street is the place to MAKE money, but over here—well, when you decide on a vacation, you want a vacation, n'est ce pas?

You just provide the time and the wherewithal and tell us when you can get away. Same thing goes for London, Dublin, Budapest, Tokio, and Timbuctoo.

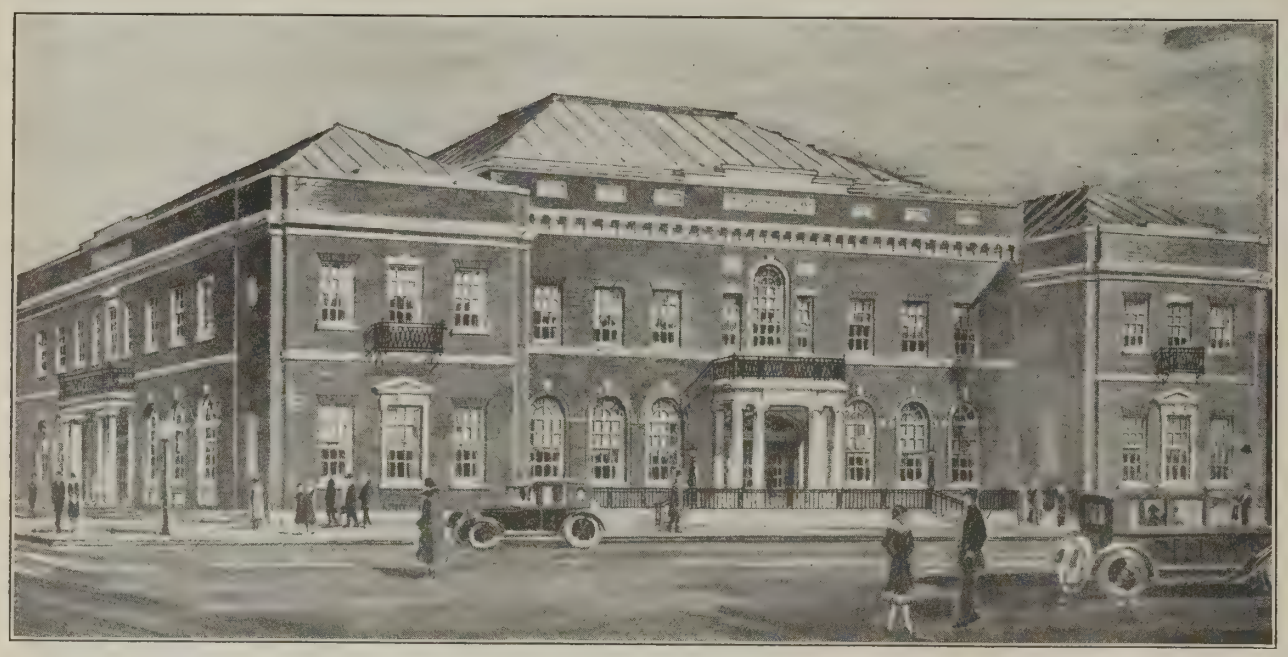
Syd's New York representative, Frank C. Nesbit, will be on deck during the convention in Philadelphia. He thrives on answering questions and making reservations.

International Service

SYDNEY R. CLARKE

76 rue des Petits Champs, Paris

American Representative



Frank C. Nesbit

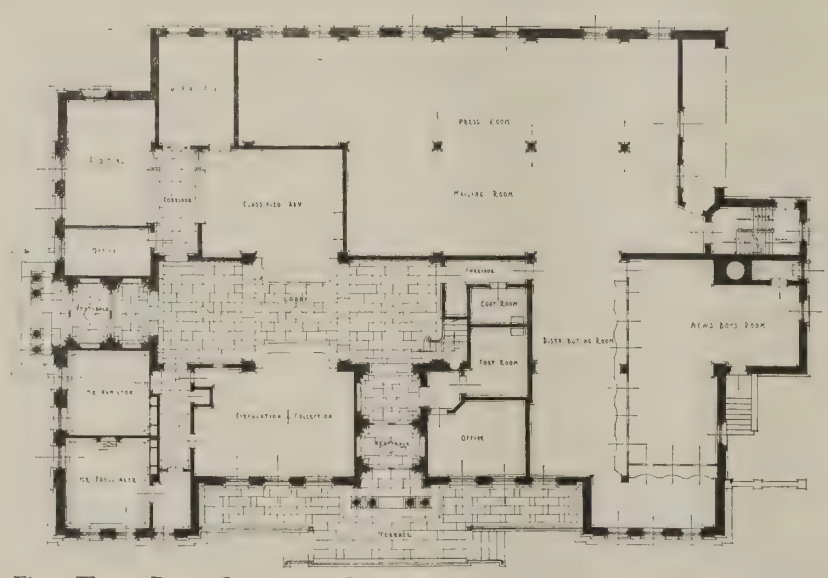
Better Service Travel Bureau

303 Fifth Avenue, New York City

Caledonia 7665

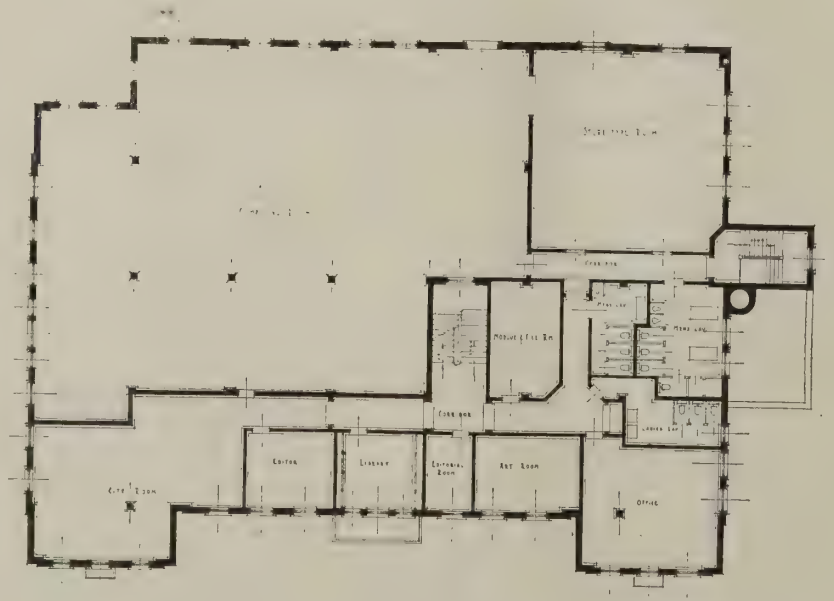
FT. WAYNE NEWS SENTINEL STARTS 93RD YEAR WITH NEW PLANT AND EQUIPMENT

Street view of Ft. Wayne Sentinel's new building



DESIGNED in accord with the restful lines of the Georgian Colonial school of architecture, the new home of the Fort Wayne (Ind.) News Sentinel strikes a new note in middle western commercial building construction. It is a three story building, 100 by 145 feet on its foundations. Not only the building but also the equipment from desks to presses is entirely new and to this is attributable the fact that moving was accomplished without incident and with out recourse to stunts that the shifting of mechanical equipment would have necessitated. The press equipment consists of a double sextuple-unit-type with two folding devices and two carrier delivery systems. These presses are driven by a double electric control. The paper storage is in the basement with capacity for 13 cars. The rolls are placed in their bins and moved to the presses on an industrial rail system that requires a minimum of physical labor.

The composing room is on the second floor with two huge skylights supplementing great windows to brighten the room. Ranged along the south end of the room are 13 Intertype machines which, with two Ludlow casting devices, provide the type faces. The mat making equipment is at the north end of the composing room with the casting foundry immediately adjoining. This room also is equipped with a huge skylight insuring not only light but also ventilation. An interesting feature of the stereotyping equipment is the electric unit scheme for the reduction of the metal in both the plate and the flat casting pots. Plate drops and elevators connect directly with the press room.



The rooms devoted to the news department are ranged along the east side of the building on the second floor with the city room in the corner, and private offices for the managing editor, editorial writer, cartoonists, library and telegraph editors.

Entrance to the building may he had from either the Washington or the Barr street fronts, both of which lead directly into the spacious lobby. This lobby is floored with stone flagging, while throughout the remainder of the building including all mechanical departments the flooring is a resilient composition.

As one enters from Washington street, the south entrance, the classified department occupies an open space to the left with a handsome solid walnut counter, the exact counterpart of the counter in front of the auditing department directly across the lobby. The telephone exchange is located in a corner of the auditing department across a corridor from the executive offices. The local display and the national display departments occupy spaces along the south front of the building with the circulation department directly adjoining, to the north.

First Floor—Devoted to general offices, executive offices, press and paper distributing rooms

Second Floor—Occupied by the editorial and reportorial staffs, composing and stereotyping rooms.

The wood finish throughout the general business offices and executive offices is of solid American walnut, while throughout the mechanical departments and the news departments birch has been employed for the trim.

The building occupies a prominent corner just out of the retail district. It is opposite the Y. M. C. A. building on the Washington street side, while along the Barr street side it faces a portion of the public market.

Construction on the building was started on Decoration Day, May 30, 1925, and just one week less than a year from that time the News Sentinel moved into its new home beginning its ninety-third year of service.

Oscar G. Foellinger is publisher and general manager of the News Sentinel. Arthur K. Remmel is managing editor and Herbert R. Miller, city editor. On the business side Frank G. Hamilton is advertising manager and Clark A. Ferris circulation manager. H. E. Miller is in charge of classified.

CIRCULATORS FEAR THEIR OPPOSITION

Majority Lack Courage of Own Convictions Says Sunpaper Man—Afraid of Threats from Competitors—Urges Them to Stick to Ideals

Fear of their opposition is keeping many circulation managers and their papers in a rut, in the opinion of Charles O. Reville, circulation manager of the Baltimore Sun, who, in an interview with EDITOR & PUBLISHER, advocated a little psychoanalysis to free such men of this complex.

"The one fixed idea in many circulators' minds at present is to do as the other fellow in his town does," he said, "If the opposition announces a premium contest, these weak sisters immediately take to premiums, like fiends take to dope. Jazz brides follow jazz brides in quick succession, because someone is afraid he is going to be left out of something. Thus ideals are shattered.

"If these timid souls had any confidence in their products at all, they wouldn't play this sort of inane leap frog. But the average circulation man hasn't got guts enough to sell his product on its own merits.

"Most of them believe it is wrong to give their papers dope, that it is better to give real tonic that builds, but one among them, the weak paper in the town, jumps to insurance, clubbing, or premiums, and like lambs they chase after him.

"I once worked on a weak paper," the Baltimore World. I know the difference. The World went out of business. I don't believe it would have, had it stuck to the fundamental ideals of prompt and efficient carrier service and no premiums."

The Sun's route-owner carrier system has few duplicates in the country. The paper has authorized some 130 route owners, their franchises being worth anywhere from $1,000 to $10,000. These route owners employ their own carrier boys. The average net earnings of a route-owner is $50 a week.

DEMAND STANDARD PROFIT

British News Agents' Federation Seeking Same Price from All Papers

British newspaper retailers are strongly organized and their National Federation is trying to obtain a standard rate of profit from the 1800 weekly newspapers in Britain.

At the annual conference of the Federation on June 10 it was stated that 250 weekly papers now granted the newsagents the one-third profit of selling price that they asked. All the 157 morning and evening papers are sold to the newsagents at two-thirds of the selling price.

The news agents are also trying to put into operation a "distance limit" scheme, under which each news agent has a monopoly of the trade in his district.

Townsend Joins Cadillac Company

Brian Townend, for the past nine years with the advertising staff of Iliffe & Sons Ltd., printers and publishers of automotive publications, London, England, has joined the advertising staff of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, Detroit.

NEWS FACTS STAND TEST OF TIME WHILE INTERPRETATION FADES

Writer Gleans Lesson in Editing from James Anthony Froude's Dissertation on How to Write History—Facts Important, Comment Often Futile

By HOWARD A. LAMB

RECENTLY I happened to read an address delivered at the Royal Institution, London, on Feb. 5, 1864, by James Anthony Froude, the English essayist and historian, on how to write history and it seemed to be such an excellent guide on how to write news that perhaps readers of EDITOR & PUBLISHER would like to note a few paragraphs.

News is nothing less than the history of today and yesterday; the same principles should apply in chronicling both. Arthur Brisbane is always reminding us that a great man once called news the second hand of history. Mark Twain in his autobiography shows how much more interesting an event is when described in detail at the time of its occurrence than after the recital has been decomposed into history.

The point Mr. Froude makes is that the fact is the important thing; its interpretation is often futile. In other words, it is the reporter, not the editor, who counts.

He goes to Shakespeare and Homer to illustrate what he means. Thus:

"If you were asked to point out the special features in which Shakespeare's plays are so transcendently excellent, you would mention perhaps, among others, this—that his stories are not put together, and his characters are not conceived, to illustrate any law or principle. They teach many lessons, but not any one prominent above another; and when we have drawn from them all the direct instruction which they contain, there remains still something unresolved something which the artist gives, and which the philosopher cannot give.

"It is in this characteristic that we are accustomed to say Shakespeare's supreme truth lies. He represents real life. His drama teaches as life teaches—neither less nor more. He builds his fabrics, as Nature does, on right and wrong, but he does not struggle to make Nature more systematic than she is. In the subtle interflow of good and evil; in the unmerited sufferings of innocence; in the disproportion of penalities to desert; in the seeming blindness with which justice, in attempting to assert itself, overwhelms innocent and guilty in a common ruin—Shakespeare is true to real experience. The mystery of life he leaves as he finds it; and, in his most tremendous positions, he is addressing rather the intellectual emotions than the understanding—knowing well that the understanding in such things is at fault, and the sage as ignorant as the child."

Now follows something to think about as regards the suppression of crime news. Froude continues:

"Cibber and others, as you know, wanted to alter Shakespeare. The French king in 'Lear' was to be got rid of; Cordelia was to marry Edgar, and Lear himself was to be rewarded for his sufferings by a golden old age. They could not bear that Hamlet should suffer for the sins of Claudius. The wicked king was to die, and the wicked mother; and Hamlet and Ophelia were to make a match of it, and live happily ever after. A common novelist would have arranged it thus; and you would have had your comfortable moral that wickedness was fitly punished, and virtue had its due reward, and all would have been well. But Shakespeare would not have it so. Shakespeare knew that crime was not so simple in its consequences, or Providence so paternal. He was contented to take the truth from life; and the effect upon the mind of the most correct theory of what life ought to be, compared to the effect of the life itself, is infinitesimal in comparison."

Froude proceeds to show the limited usefulness of preachers and editorial writers:

"Again, let us compare the popular historical treatment of remarkable incidents with Shakespeare's treatment of them. Look at 'Macbeth'. You may derive abundant instruction from it—instruction of many kinds. There is a moral lesson of profound interest in the steps by which a noble nature glides to perdition. In more modern fashion, you may speculate, if you like, on the political conditions represented there, and the temptation presented in absolute monarchies to unscrupulous ambition; you may say these things could not have happened under a constitutional government; or, again, you may take up your parable against superstition; you may dilate on the frightful consequences of a belief in witches, and reflect on the superior advantages of an age of schools and newspapers. If the bare facts of history had come down to us from a chronicler, and an ordinary writer of the nineteenth century had undertaken to relate them, his account, we may depend upon it, would have been put together upon one or other of these principles. Yet, by the side of that unfolding of the secrets of the prison house of the soul, what lean and shriveled anatomies the best of such descriptions would seem!

"Or, again, look at Homer.

"The 'Illiad' is from two to three thousand years older than 'Macbeth,' and yet it is as fresh as if it had been written yesterday. We have there no lessons save in the emotions which rise in us as we read. Homer had no philosophy; he never struggles to press upon us his views about this or that; you can scarcely, indeed, tell whether his sympathies are Greek or Trojan; but he represents to us faithfully the men and women among whom he lived.

"Shakespeare in the historical plays is studious, wherever possible, to give the very words which he finds to have been used; and it shows how wisely he was guided in this, that those magnificent speeches of Wolsey are taken exactly, with no more change than the meter makes necessary, from Cavendish's Life. Marlborough read Shakespeare for English history, and read nothing else.

"'Macbeth,' were it literally true, would be perfect history; and so far as the historian can appoach to that kind of a model, so far as he can let his story tell itself in the deeds and words of those who act it out, so far is he most successful. His work is no longer the vapor of his own brain, which a breath will scatter; it is the thing itself, which will have interest for all time. Hegel falls out of date, Schlegel falls out of date, and Comte in good time will fall out of date; the thought about the thing must change as we change; and a history is durable or perishable as it contains more or less of the writers speculations.

"Whenever possible, let us not be told about this man or that. Let us hear the man himself speak, let us see him act, and let us be left to form our own opinions about him. The historians, we are told, must not leave his readers to themselves. He must not only lay the fact before him; he must tell them what he himself thinks about those facts. In my opinion, this is precisely what he ought not to do.

"Philosophies of history, sciences of history—all these will continue to be: the fashions of them will change, as our habits of thought will change; each new philosopher" (or in other words, editorial writer) "will find his chief employment in showing that before him nobody understood anything; but the drama of history is imperishable, and the lessons of it will be like what we learn from Homer or Shakespeare—lessons for which we have no words."

All this may sound very theoretical and highbrow for the fellow that has to get out tomorrow's paper, but as journalism progresses toward a profession I believe it will head in the direction Froude indicates.

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA
Producers of
SPARTAN TYPE METAL
Since 1866
LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE COMBINATION
Stocks in Principal Cities

For the First Three Months of 1926
THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE
printed 7,355,276 lines of Advertising, and thus moved up from twelfth to SIXTH place among the newspapers of the United States.
The only newspapers printing a greater volume of advertising during that period than The Tribune were the Miami Herald, the St. Petersburg Times, the Detroit News, the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.
The Tribune covers the rich South Florida territory of 24 counties and 190 cities and towns, with a population of 713,943.
That's Why Its Advertising Volume Grows
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency,
National Representatives.

The Morning Telegraph
Is the giant influence on the Turf, in Society, Music, Theatre, Motion Picture and Finance, having the largest circulation of any Daily in the United States at a ten-cent Price.
Circulated in every State in the Union and the principal capitals of Europe. An exclusive market for its advertisers.
The Morning Telegraph
50th St. & 8th Ave., N. Y. City

Still Gaining!
The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.
The net paid average for the American was 57,503.
You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.
Sold separately or in combination.
THE BALTIMORE NEWS
and
Baltimore American
ANNOUNCEMENT
To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies
The National Advertising Departments of
New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American
are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit
New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400
Chicago Office: F. E. CRAWFORD, Western Manager, 913 Hearst Bldg.
Detroit Office: FRANKLIN PAYNE, Representative, 1351 Book Bldg.
All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

creating Impression!
nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.
The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium – ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it
J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St., New York
Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago

LARGEST WEEKDAY CIRCULATION in the City
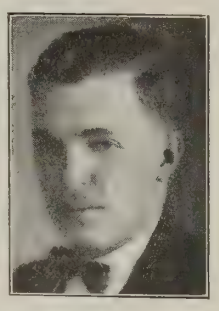
The Item Tribune
NEW ORLEANS

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?
The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.
If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.
NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS



TEACHING PUBLIC SPIRIT OF SCIENCE A TASK FOR NEWSPAPERS

Scientific Institutions and Groups Should Maintain Close Contact With Press to Promote Popular Understanding, Cleveland Writer Declares—Outlines Practical Methods

By DAVID DIETZ
Science Editor, Cleveland Press

Excerpts from an address before the Ohio Academy of Science Columbus.

A CHARGE frequently made in recent years and not without some justification in many instances, is that the scientist has been prone to withdraw from the world into the seclusion of his laboratory not unlike a hermit in his cave. This action in every case has proceeded from the highest and finest motives. The scientist felt that in searching for the answer to his particular scientific problem, he was devoting himself to the most important thing of which he knew and he felt that nothing else mattered. But I believe that a changed point of view is coming to the front.

David Dietz

Scientists are beginning to see that something else does matter. Not so long ago, Dr. Burton E. Livingston, permanent secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, called attention to the fact that sufficient progress had been made by the scientist and the engineer to insure the complete happiness of the whole world if every scientific discovery had been put to its best possible use. But, as he pointed out, this has not been the case. Many discoveries of the scientist have come under the control of others and have been put to their worst possible use.

Not only is this the case, but many well-intentioned though sadly misguided people have come to regard the scientist as the enemy of society. Such an event as the Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., bears dramatic testimony to this fact.

The present situation is a complex one which deserves serious attention. On the one hand, we see unparalleled scientific endeavor marked with unparalleled achievement—achievement so great that Sir Richard Gregory, the editor of Nature, has seen fit to term this the "golden age of science." And on the other hand, we find so little understanding of science that so-called fundamentalists regard science as the enemy instead of the great benefactor of mankind.

We like to refer to our age as a scientific age. But we must remember that for large groups of people it is only scientific to the extent that they are utilizing the applied results of scientific research. They light their houses with electricity with only the vaguest notions of what the electric current is. They ride on street cars with no clear idea of what makes the street car go.

Our big job today is to make the scientific age scientific.

I do not mean that we must make people understand the complicated details of electrical engineering or any other branch of pure or applied science. Eventually we want people to know and understand the spirit of science. But the beginning must be made with the facts of science. An understanding of the spirit of science will follow an acquaintance with the facts of science.

The leading scientists of the nation, I believe, see the necessity of doing this. It was easy to see at the last meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that President Michael Pupin and other leaders felt the need of carrying on this task of spreading scientific knowledge—what I have termed the task of making the scientific age scientific.

A number of movements are now under way. College authorities are considering the advisability of fundamental courses to acquaint the first year students with the aims and spirit of science. They are also designing descriptive courses aimed to give students who do not intend to follow scientific pursuits a more extended knowledge of scientific fields. Public school officials are considering the advisability of introducing more science into high schools and junior high schools and they are even wondering whether a beginning cannot be made in the teaching of science in the public schools. Many scientists who are leaders in their field are turning their attention to the writing of popular scientific books. Such men as Sir William Bragg and Bertrand Russell, for example.

But important as all these things are, they are not sufficient to meet the situation. More of the population than that within college walls must be reached. Nor can we wait for the present generation of children to grow up. The great body of men and women carrying on the affairs of the world today must be reached at once.

The one agency through which this can be done is the newspaper.

Fortunately, the leading newspapers of the nation realize what must be done and are eager to do it.

The late E. W. Scripps, far-sighted genius of the world of journalism, was the pioneer in this regard. Many years ago, he realized the necessity and the value of presenting science through the columns of the newspapers. His own papers took the lead in the presentation of scientific news and as science editor of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, it has been my pleasurable duty during the past five years to attend a majority of the important scientific meetings in the United States. These papers also sent me on a tour of Europe to attend meetings there and interview European scientists, to my knowledge the first time that an American newspaperman was sent to Europe for the exclusive purpose of writing scientific articles.

It is my belief that the scientist can best accomplish the diffusion of scientific information by realizing that the newspaperman is his chief ally in the task. The scientist should therefore see to it that the newspapers are supplied with the material which they want. This will not prove a difficult task for the scientist.

Here are some of the ways in which I believe it can be done:

Large scientific laboratories and the scientific departments of colleges should maintain some regular means of letting the newspapers know what they are doing. In the case of colleges, this can be done easily through the college's department of publicity. In many cases this is already being done.

In the preparation of such materials for the use of newspapers, it should be borne in mind that the material is planned to reach readers, a majority of whom have had no technical or scientific training. It should be written, therefore, in a simple and non-technical manner.

Secondly, I would suggest that scientific institutions be willing to co-operate with newspapers in specific instances where material in greater detail is wanted. Through the visits of newspapermen to scientific institutions both the scientist and the news writer will profit in that they will come to understand each other's viewpoints and will learn from each other the best way of presenting science to the public.

Third, I would suggest that in the arrangement of all scientific meetings, the fact be borne in mind that the meetings are going to be reported in the newspapers. Part of the arrangements for a meeting should include the setting up of a publicity bureau to see that the newspapermen get abstracts of papers and the news of what is happening. The American Association for the Advancement of Science has taken the lead in this matter. At the Washington meeting of the association, for example, fine assistance was given newspapermen under the direction of Dr. Austin H. Clark of the Smithsonian Institution.

The maintenance of an information bureau during a meeting means considerable work in advance. It also needs the sincere co-operation of every speaker on the program. For the success of the bureau depends upon the willingness of speakers to comply with the request of sending the bureau abstracts of papers well in advance of the meeting.

These things which I have enumerated are all relatively simple things. Yet I believe that they are things which are exceptionally well worth doing.

"Tell E. & P. Readers—"

And in his memorandum, "O. S. B." (Mr. Bates, head of our Advertising Department) instructs us to "get across" the fact that rapid and tremendous growth in the Miami Trading Zone makes printed matter on this market insufficient—likely to be out of date more or less —and that the Advertiser or Advertising Agency can always augment it by calling on us for the fresh data from our files and other sources of information.

The Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher.

have you been following the remarkable growth
of the Detroit Times

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION
An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.
S. P. WESTON
Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation
120 West 42nd Street New York

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.
THE PITTSBURGH PRESS
A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

The World
These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 Daily World — Evening World readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.
The Evening World
Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA
JOURNAL
Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

MORSE MEN INCREASE AND PROSPER DESPITE AUTOMATIC PRINTERS

Bulletin Matter Still Goes to Dot and Dash Operators for Fast Service—Changes in Transmission Devices from Early Days Told

By JAMES THOMAS DICKSON

WHEN a news story is of "bulletin" importance, or when a stock broker's message must be put through without delay, or a telegram is marked "rush" is it put on one of the various automatic telegraph appliances of recent invention for transmission?

It is not. Every efficient telegrapher knows this. It is placed on the good old standby, the Morse circuit, operated by a telegrapher who knows how to put such matter through at top speed. Even where the Associated Press, with double or triple wires, uses automatic printers, the speedy Morse circuit carries the "flash," "bulletin," and "bulletin matter" news, because it is quicker than the automatic printing telegraph.

Almost a century ago Professor Samuel Finley Breese Morse invented the first practicable electrical telegraph. His first apparatus used a ribbon tape of paper upon which a needle recorded the dots and dashes, which then were transposed from Morse characters into English. That apparatus served well enough until the telegraph operator discovered himself. The operator found he could speed up the service by reading the dots and dashes as these clicked in on the magnets and armature. Exit the paper tape system, enter the telegrapher.

Ever since that time scientists, electrical engineers, inventors and others interested in facilitating communication, have sought to perfect a telegraph apparatus that would be speedier and equally efficient. They have attained speed; they have produced apparatus that makes one wire serve the purpose of eight; they have succeeded in transmitting motion pictures and photographs by wire; but the Morse telegrapher still lives.

Frequently, especially during the last few years, as invention succeeded invention in the field of communication, the telegrapher has asked himself: "Am I making my last stand?" Increased demand for his services soon answered that query. Instead of the new apparatus putting him out of business, it has increased the demand for his services at increased wages and better working conditions. Today very close to half a million telegraphers do their daily "stuff" on the North American continent in speeding up the immense and ever increasing volume of telegraph matter of all descriptions that all but swamps the telegraph and telephone companies. News distributing concerns find their leased wires inadequate to handle the "daily run" of news matter demanded by the publishers — Congressional and White House news in complete detail; news from the capitals of foreign countries: Locarno, the world court; League of Nations; the clash of arms in the Near East; the civil struggle in China; quotations on world commodities, and our own stock, bond and curb exchange quotations. The great bulk of this news matter is handled over the automatic printing telegraph, but the more important of it goes to the good old standby, the expert Morse telegrapher, over a speedy wire paralleling the printer circuit.

With world and domestic news crowding its system of leased wires the A. P. recently found it necessary to double the capacity of its trunk lines west of the Mississippi river. It was a case of handling twice the usual volume of news matter over one of these two circuits, or of leasing an additional wire. The cost of a leased wire from the Mississippi to the Pacific coast, and from the Canadian to the Mexican boundary, would involve great additional expense. But by installing the latest development of the automatic printer, the news organization solved the problem without an additional circuit. Heretofore the use of the automatics by this organization was confined to that portion of the country east of the Mississippi. Up to Oct. 1, last year, it used 252 of the inventions on its 117,656 miles of leased wires in the United States. But it had to have one of the most expert of telegraphers at each "printer" station, not only to look after the printer, but, more to the point, to handle the more important news matter on a fast Morse circuit. True, the printer has a capacity of 65 words a minute, but every word must be "punched" on a ribbon of paper tape and passed through an automatic transmitting machine. These machines work fine in fine weather—and sometimes in bad weather. But when old Aurora Borealis gets in his work, or when sleet and snow storms, or high winds interfere with communication—well, there's the good old standby, the efficient and experienced Morse man, who puts the news over almost unworkable wire conditions because he has other Morse men working with him. A letter or a word, or a bit of code may "hang" or "stick" or "drop out" over a very poor telegraph circuit, but the efficient telegrapher has a brain to aid him in his task. The automatic is only what its name implies.

In addition to its double and triple trunk lines, the Associated Press has 42,599 miles of leased single state wires, 7,220 miles of single interstate wires, and 20,904 sporting and financial leased wires. It serves 1,203 newspapers over these leased wires, and a vast number of smaller dailies by "pony" or limited telegraph or telephone service. It employs more than 1,200 expert and experienced telegraphers. It requires a regiment of day and night correspondents, news editors, sporting editors, market editors, pony editors and telephone "readers" to handle the news matter. But Mister Morse Telegrapher, attending strictly to his work, manages to get the news over the wires pronto.

The experienced news telegrapher is a source of information to editors "out on the line," or on state and interstate wires. He has the "news" literally pounded into him by the clicking sounder. He knows what is happening in all parts of the world, and what is likely to happen in the near future. It's easier for the editor to ask the operator "What's Hoover's middle initial?" "Is Senator So-and-so a dem or a standpatter?" "Where's the Prince of Wales today?" than to look through newspaper files in the reference department.

In spelling the telegrapher "is there like a duck." He doesn't have to think how the words are spelled. A series of Morse characters, meaning, perhaps, a word, a phrase, or in some instances, a complete sentence, click on the sounder. The telegrapher hasn't time to stop to "dope out" the spelling problem—his fingers just "bat 'em out" on the typewriter. And by the time he has completed that task he may be six to twenty words behind the sender—and his brain has to not only type the number of words he may be back of the sender but must remember what is clicking into his ear while he is writing what has already been sent and spell it out in full, properly punctuated. Russian, Polish, Czechoslovakia, and Jugoslovakia names, with their maddening bunches of wcjskis, vich's, jkzikis, mean absolutely nothing to the telegrapher. He just "puts 'em down" correctly. Spanish, Italian, French, Japanese and Chinese names come easy to him. Try it yourself sometime and see how far you get. The news telegrapher, by courtesy and for the sake of expediency, is allowed three "breaks," and for the sake of expediency, is allowed three "breaks," or inquiries, a day. More than that number on a fast circuit brings him a polite but insistent note from headquarters wanting to know why he had to ask about this or that, delaying service.

No automatic telegraph device, used by even the most expert typist in punching paper tape, will do similar work. The typist must use the "touch" system while reading copy. Human fingers insist on getting tangled up at times, no matter how expert.

Of course the automatics are flexible to a certain point—an error in "punching" the wrong letter may be eliminated without being transmitted to the receiving printer.

Prior to 1912 the telegraphers in the employ of the A. P. were under the supervision of division superintendents. Kent Cooper, now general manager, came into the organization sixteen years ago as an inspector. He established the traffic department, separate and distinct from the news department. He inaugurated the employes' disability and pension plan, under which they receive their regular pay checks if disabled from sickness or other causes and life insurance without cost.

The first automatic telegraph printers were installed by Mr. Cooper many years ago. As these automatics were improved and made more efficient their

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?

We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.

It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.

Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.

When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.

Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

THE TELEGRAM
now has the largest paid circulation in
CLARKSBURG, W. VA.
13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday
guaranteed.
Member Audit Bureau of Circulations
Represented Nationally by
The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
The only paper in St. Petersburg, Florida, whose application has been accepted by Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

EVENING HERALD
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation
Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.
IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY
REPRESENTATIVES:
H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
THE LEADING NEWSPAPER IN GRAND RAPIDS—THE ONLY DAILY IN SEVEN OTHER CITIES
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.
It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest
O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives
The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young
Publisher

first! in OHIO
9,561,237 Lines
Dispatch advertising record for the first five months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,378,109 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines, exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.
NET PAID CIRCULATION
CITY 55,812
SUBURBAN 26,973
COUNTRY 23,666
Total Daily Circulation....106,451
Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

use was extended until today these printers are in use where double leased wire service is required to handle the volume of news matter desired; but, notwithstanding such installment, the Associated Press telegrapher finds himself not only benefited financially but his work is easier. Mr. Cooper is not a telegrapher, but he has a firm hold upon the love and loyalty of the telegraphers in his service.

In what some telegraphers might term "the good old days" the operator was wont to migrate with the seasons. In summer, with the millionaire, he was to be found where business and weather were "befittin' "—in the northern states. In winter he migrated south. Some few of his tribe, wanderers who didn't want to work, and who couldn't work if the opportunity offered, gathered in large numbers in large cities. These were the "blockites." Numbers of them would manage to arrive in a good sized city about "payday" and "panhandle" the real workers.

Those days are gone forever. Today a telegrapher must have a clean record. He must be efficient. Before he is given steady employment he must "make good" in actual work. The telegrapher of today takes his vacation or does his migrating like a gentleman should or would.

Since Professor Morse invented and improved his original system of telegraphy, inventors unnumbered and some without record, have sought to "ditch" the Morse system of telegraphy. New inventions have been put into use,—and sidetracked. With the old Wheatstone system the punched tape could be transmitted fast enough over a telegraph circuit for a few hundred miles but required a small army of "tape punchers" with heavy metal punchers grasped in either hand pounding away at a small machine through which the tape passed, to prepare the messages for transmission. And at the receiving end it required a similar small army to transpose the dot-and-dashed tape into English. The system was cumbersome, topheavy, impracticable when speed was required. Then came a "printing typewriter," automatic in its action. But it required the same ribbon punched paper tape. Too slow for rush matter, but good enough on "day and night message" and less important stuff.

Similar automatic printing apparatus followed, but all of it required the same old tape-punched paper ribbon. And while these inventions were being tried out, replaced and re-replace with improved apparatus the good old, reliable Morse telegrapher was doing business at the old stand.

Along about the year 1904 some misguided genius of a Morse telegrapher improvised a very cumbersome sending apparatus which required a couple of dry cells to operate it. Instead of the "key" functioning vertically, it functioned horizontally. To the right it produced a series of "dots," and to the left, dashes. It reduced the number of movements required in ordinary hand sending by two-thirds but it was too bulky.

When Jim Coffey, at that time in the employ of the old Scripps-McRae association at Cleveland, Ohio, analyzed this sending apparatus, he remarked: "Hell, I can beat that without trying." A few weeks later Jim began shooting Morse over the old Cleveland-Chicago Scripps circuit at high speed. Dots came through like hail on a tin roof and the dashes were something marvelous. The Scripps gang in Chicago stood it as long as they could without becoming inquisitive over a very crowded news circuit. It remained for Jim Corrigan, then chief of the division, to explain to us that Coffey was trying out his invention the "Vibroplex," on us. Coffey became proficient on his "model," and finally sold the patent rights. Thereafter he was known as the first telegraph operator in the United States to own an automobile. Corrigan told the "gang" on the wire that Coffey came to work and went home in his new "gas buggy" but wasn't "upstage" about it.

Shortly after this invention—which, incidentally, is in use in slightly improved form today—the Yettman typewriter was tried out on the patient and silently suffering Morse receiver. The Yettman was a typewriter, universal keyboard, and could be used for either sending or receiving. At the lower back part of the Yettman was a cylinder arrangement that, when connected with the line, transmitted regulation Morse characters, as the letters were struck on the keyboard by the transmitting typist. The resulting Morse characters were automatically perfect—over circuits not more than 300 miles in length—and, when transmitted evenly and smoothly by an experienced Morse operator who could both listen to the resultant dots and dashes, and use the "touch" system on the keyboard while he read copy. The Yettman, also, had a spring-operated motor to revolve the transmitting cylinder. It failed to achieve popularity with either operators or telegraph companies.

Thereafter followed various inventions, the most efficient and popular among which was the "automatic printing telegraph" using the tape-punching system, but improved to carry over longer circuits and to work efficiently through minor wire interference. The telegraph companies used these for message work in the eastern part of the United States. Their use gradually spread westward, and when efficiency was sufficiently established, Kent Cooper, then inspector for the Associated Press, caused the printers to be tried out on the shorter eastern leased wire circuits. The system proved satisfactory and today it has spread to the Pacific coast and from the northern to the southern boundaries of this country.

But the automatic printer is by no means the "last word" in automatic telegraph or telephone work. While they are used on many brokers' circuits for transmitting market quotations, a newer invention is being installed over the western part of the United States. This latest apparatus is described as a magnifying ticker service—that is, it resembles the old "gold and stock" ticker, over which market and stock quotations were printed by telegraph on a ribbon of paper, but the newer arrangement uses a magnifying lens and an automatic shutter to flash the quotations on a blackboard or screen, much as motion pictures are reproduced.

Radio communication is advancing rapidly. It, too, is animating the automatic typewriter and the early objection of lack of secrecy has been overcome.

But despite all, the Morse man continues to hold his own.

TWO ECUADOR DAILIES CLOSED BY POLICE

El Guante of Guayquil and El Dia of Quito Suppressed on Dictator's Order—Press Congress Cables Protest

Plants and offices of El Guante, of Guayaquil, and El Dia, of Quito, two of the largest daily newspapers in Ecuador, on June 10, were closed by police forces at the order of the Dictator, Dr. Isidro Ayora, and with the previous approval of his ministers. No reason was given in the Associated Press cable, which said that all the dailies have protested against this violation of press freedom.

The Ecuadorian Press Association is a member of the Press Congress of the World, and the following cablegram of protest was sent to the dictator.

"Press Congress of the Word, composed of journalists and press associations of all countries, including Ecuador, protests closing of plants of El Guante and El Dia as an affront to education and civilization. Urge lifting of ban in interest of good government and personal liberty of citizenry.

"PRESSCONGO,
"James W. Brown, Secretary-Treasurer."

El Guante, of Guayaquil, was founded 16 years ago as a political weekly. Later it was made a daily, and grew until it now ranks with El Telegrafo, of the same city, as one of the two largest papers in Ecuador.

El Dia is the second in circulation at Quito, the capital of Ecuador.

Both of the papers closed are liberal. El Guante is owned by a stock company. El Dia is under private ownership and belongs to Dr. Jaramillo.

Private cables received in New York, which have been able to evade the censorship said to exist in Ecuador, tell that Rosendo Aviles, one of the biggest shareholders of El Guante, has been imprisoned. Mr. Aviles has been editing the paper since the middle of last March.

Eleodoro Aviles, another large stockholder, was exiled in December, 1925, and came to the United States. He was a member of the First Congress of Pan-American Journalists held in Washington last April. He sailed on the S. S. Santa Ana, Grace Line, June 10, for Ecuador.

Alvarez Lara, manager of the El Guante, who also attended the Pan-American journalists congress in Washington, remains in New York.

Ecuador has been under a dictatorship since July 9, 1925. The Ecuadorian press, with a very few exceptions, has been campaigning for a restoration of civic constitutional rights, and the two papers closed have been leaders in this action.

In the last available figures, Philadelphia has 779 office buildings, 541 hospitals, asylums and other buildings used for charitable purposes, 312 colleges and libraries, 1,036 churches, and 356 hotels.

Titusville (Pa.) Herald will reach its 61st birthday June 13.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg. Boston

in Detroit—

Free Press city circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

THE DETROIT "FREE PRESS"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

SERVICE
THE CHARLES PARTLOWE COMPANY
America's Largest Circulation Building Organization
-RESULTS COUNT-
6th Floor OCCIDENTAL BLD. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Greater Merchandising Service offered, than any other Milwaukee paper.

THE MILWAUKEE LEADER

"Unawed by influence and Unbribed by Gain"

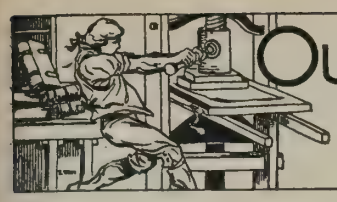
Advertising Representatives

FRALICK & BATES
Chicago, New York, Atlanta, Los Angeles

Florida's FASTEST GROWING NEWSPAPER

The Miami Tribune

FRANK R. FILDES
PUBLISHER



We shall be pleased to see any newspaper man during the Philadelphia Convention and to talk over with him his classified advertising problems

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED

SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK

Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

TO Philadelphia belongs the credit of publishing the first American book to deal in a practical way with American Journalism, so far as I have been able to learn. This book, "Secrets of the Sanctum," was written by A. F. Hill and was published in Philadelphia in 1875 by Claxton, Remson and Haffelfinger.

Briefly, it attempts to give an inside view of an editor's life, though it is dedicated to the editor, the reporter, the correspondent, the proof reader, the compositor, the press man and—to the devil. The book is valuable because of the portraits of editors of yesterday. The chapter on "The Reporters" can still be read to advantage.

Here is what the city room of the New York Tribune looked like 50 years ago:

> The walls are covered with maps. A perpendicular viaduct, for communication between the counting, editorial and composing rooms, with speaking-pipes, copy boxes and bells, run from the low ceiling through the center of the room like the succulent branch of a banyan tree. A small library of books relating to city affairs leans against the viaduct. A water pail and a tin jar of ice water occupy one corner of the room. Paste pots and inkstands are scattered over the desks in lazy confusion. Bits of blotting paper and scores of rusty looking steel pens are strewn about the tables. A dozen reporters are seated at a dozen small green desks. Some are writing, a few are reading, and two are smoking briarwood pipes. The City Editor arrives at the office at 10 A. M., and immediately overhauls the morning papers, reading the advertisements with special care. Every announcement of a political meeting, lecture, horse race, excursion, real estate sale, execution, hotel opening, steamboat-launch, etc., is clipped out and pasted in a blank book. At noon the reporters enter and copy their assignments from the book, drawing a line under each of their names, to assure the City Editor that they are aware of their detail and will attend to it.

Mr. Hill's book may be occasionally picked up at the second hand stall for a dime, but at best a quarter.

* * *

PEOPLE who live in glass houses shouldnt throw stones at reporters is the text from which Silas Bent preaches a lay sermon in The Atlantic Monthly for June. This sermon entitled "Journalism and Morality" outlines changes which have taken place in American Journalism—as he sees them.

Bent begins with a story of how he stole a telegram which a wife, who had eloped with a millionaire manufacturer of cosmetics, sent from Tucson to her daughter. Exultant and not ashamed, Bent put the telegram on the desk of the city editor who took it into an editorial conference—rather odd behavior in his opinion.

After the conference the city editor remarked to Bent, "You are aware that you have committed a felony?"

Bent nodded. Then the city editor continued, "This newspaper cannot countenance such conduct and will make no use whatever of information obtained in that way. If I did not realize that you acted from overzeal I should be compelled to discharge you. As it is, you will be permitted to remain on the staff, on probation."

That afternoon the paper printed a first page story from Tucson where the runaways were registered under an assumed name at the leading hotel. Bent's comment is that "if 'no use whatever' had been made of the information in the stolen telegram, then some obscure reporter out West must have been blessed suddenly with clairvoyance."

Other cases somewhat similar are given in the article before Bent begins to draw conclusions. Considerable attention is paid to the matter of faking the news after which this comment is made:

> With the multiplication of the agencies of news-gathering the excuse for faking disappeared. The pressure on the news columns became so great that it was a question, not of finding sensational stuff to print, nor of manufacturing it, but of selecting according to certain standards from the mass at hand.

In Mr. Bent's opinion the scoop is no longer found in American journalism because it was found not to pay dividends: the exclusive story lasted only through one edition and was forgotten in 24 hours. More important factors in circulation are such things as "superior mechanical equipment the employment of 'colyumists' and feature writers, prize contests and crossword puzzles."

Another point stressed by Mr. Bent is that when a newspaper of today distorts the facts in a story it does so not to print a sensation but to serve some political or financial end. He believes that newspapers are chary of such coloring or faking because when detected, as it must be sooner or later, the circulation and advertising are impaired.

The expression of opinion on the editorial page, according to Mr. Bent, has been subordinated to a mere recital of facts acceptable to a large circulation. This same circulation as it has grown has imposed a greater common denominator of taste to please. The editorial policy is conservative because the capital investment is large.

The change that has taken place in reporting is thus outlined:

> The good reporter in this year of grace differs widely from the good reporter in the first decade of the century. Individual exploits have gone out of journalism as they have gone out of war. Those that I have sketched here as fairly characteristic of the day's work—although, to be sure, some of them are high spots—are obsolescent, perhaps quite obsolete. When the spur to get a scoop ceased to be felt, reporters began to work in groups instead of singly, against one another. If there are several ends of a story to be covered, the work is apportioned among them, and they get together later to share what they have gathered. If a celebrity is to be interviewed, it is done en masse. The technique of reporting is co-operative. There is no special initiative, because there is no real competition in getting at the facts. And the facts, when written, must be in accord with a rigid formula. Everybody around a newspaper, excepting the sports writers, is pouring stuff into a mould.

The old New York Sun which, according to Mr. Bent, once "stimulated reporting with a flavor" has now "joined the melancholy array of grave stones in Mr. Munsey's cemetery." Mention is made that modern news reporting "will never make a good writer of any man or woman." The comment is added, however, that those who have the makings may well hang around the city room, "not for the training but for the closer look at life it affords."

After insisting that the day's grist comes out a standardized product when put through the newspaper mill, Mr. Bent calls attention to one advantage of such a manufacturing process:

> News is graded and valued much more accurately than in the old days. If you will pick up your competing morning newspapers, and glance at their first pages, you will see that—without any prearrangement—they display the same news in their show-windows, with about the same emphasis. Although it is still impossible to define news satisfactorily, it is nevertheless possible to put it into a perspective, at any moment, which trained newspaper men will agree is the right perspective for that time and place. Its worth can be estimated as accurately as horsemen gauge the value of horseflesh.

Has the reporter become atrophied? "Yes," answers Mr. Bent. "He accepts listlessly the statements handed out to him by lawyers, well-meaning propagandists and publicity agents."

By way of illustration Mr. Bent gives two instances which he says have come under his observation. The first, a speech delivered by a famous railroad executive in New York City, is thus described:

> In advance of the occasion a publicity bureau, calling itself a "counselor in public relations"—for this is the patter of the trade—sent to the newspapers and to the news agencies a copy of the address, as it had been dictated to a stenographer. But when the railroad man found his audience responsive he departed, after the first few paragraphs, from the manuscript. He is noted for his sharp tongue, and he has pronounced opinions. The upshot was a much livelier and more interesting speech than he had intended to make. The reporters who were sent as a formality to the meeting, after verifying the fact that the speaker was there and was talking, went on their way with the prepared copy in their pockets; and the next morning no New York newspaper had the real news of the evening, although one of them printed the "canned" speech in full.

Whether Mr. Bent who, incidentally, used to report for the New York Times ever reads EDITOR & PUBLISHER is open to question. Campaigns, whatever may be true in the daily newspaper field, have not been abolished by EDITOR & PUBLISHER which right now is campaigning to can "canned stuff."

* * *

AMONG the items which should be marked in The Nation for June 16 are: the editorial about the attempts to interfere with the freedom of the press; the special article on "The British General Strike" which tells how the story was covered by London newspapers; the letter, "Truth in Advertising," which takes up the decision by the Federal Trade Commission concerning the Ostemoor mattress; and the interesting skit "In the Driftway" which deals with the organ of Greenwich Village—The Quill.

This quatrain ought to bring a smile and possibly a desire to see The Quill:

> If your verse is very vile,
> You might send it to The Dial.
> If your verse is viler still—
> Send, oh, send it to The Quill.

"SKIPPY"

By PERCY CROSBY

The best juvenile comic strip. Combines great humor, excellent drawing and emphatic adult appeal.

A feature you can't afford to miss

JOHNSON FEATURES, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service

Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original

Most Artistic and Finest

blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

RADIO

PROGRAMS
NEWS NOTES
FEATURES

Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers

Send for samples and prices

AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St.
Chicago

features* SINCE 1899

WEEKLY
Camera News, Fashion, Feature and Children's Pages; House Plans; Automobile Cartoon.

3-A-WEEK
Hints for the Motorist; Handicraft in the Home.

DAILY
Cross-word Puzzles, Dots and Cut-outs; Radio; Noozie; Fashion hints; 1 col. Comics; Portraits; Gillilan's Letters; News-Maps, also The Ad-route (house organ).

The International Syndicate
Baltimore, Md.

Among The Newspapers Publishing

Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series

Chicago Journal
Detroit News
Toledo Blade
Omaha Bee
Peoria Star Journal
Philadelphia Sun
Buffalo Times
Louisville Courier J'l
Oakland Post Enquirer
Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript

Why Not Join This List of Papers
Wire for Terms and Territory

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief
Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

THE WELFARE COMMITT
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

AD TIPS

George Batten Company, McCormick building, Chicago. Placing account of J. N. Collins, Minneapolis, manufacturers, candy.

Norris L. Bull, 774 Main street, Hartford, Conn. Has secured account of the Billings & Spencer Company, Hartford, manufacturers drop forged tools, special forgings and forging machinery.

Campbell-Ewald Company, Detroit, Mich., is sending contracts generally to newspapers on General Motors Company, Detroit.

Witt K. Cochrane Advertising Company, 30 North Dearborn street, Chicago, is preparing a list on Enoz Chemical Company, Chicago.

Cole-MacDonald-Wood, Inc., Detroit, Mich., will hereafter be known as MacDonald-Ramsdell-Wood, Inc.

David Advertising Company, St. Paul, Minn., is handling the distribution of advertising of the St. Paul Bottling Company, St. Paul. The company is extending its appropriation and will advertise in towns as fast as it can secure distribution.

Dollenmayer Advertising Company, Minneapolis, is preparing a list on Pillsbury Flour Mills, Minneapolis.

John H. Dunham Company, 431 North Michigan avenue, is handling the account of Art Metal Radiator Cover Company, Chicago, which will make up its list during the month of July. F. L. Sheppy is in charge of the company's advertising.

Erwin, Wasey & Co., 844 Rush street, Chicago, is adding new towns to the list on Carnation Milk Products Company, Oconomowoc, Wis.

Farnsworth & Brown, Inc., 2 West 45th street, New York City. Now handling the following accounts: Allen Auto Specialty Company, New York City, manufacturers shutter fronts; the Calculagraph Company, New York City, manufacturers Calculagraph Time Recorders; Cullingsworth, Inc., New York City, men's clothing; L. Sonneborn Sons, Inc., New York City, manufacturers motor lubricants; Zeller Lacquer Manufacturing Company, New York City, manufacturers lacquers.

Ferry Hanly Advertising Company, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, is issuing contracts to newspapers in scattered territory on J. A. Folger Company, Kansas City. Giving orders on National Fruit Flavor Company, New Orleans (Orange Squeeze), to a list of newspapers.

R. Marshall, 6553 Woodward avenue, Detroit. Handling the following accounts: Anchor Concrete Machinery Company, Adrian, Mich., concrete products equipment; the Knickerbocker Company, Jackson, Mich., contractors' machinery; Nichols Centrifugal Products Corporation, Detroit, centrifugal pipe process; McCracken Machinery Company, Sicux City, Ia., sewer pipe machinery; Globe Furniture and Manufacturing Company, Northville, Mich., church, lodge and home furniture; C. H. McAleer Manufacturing Company, Detroit, automobile polishes; C. E. DePuy Company, Pontiac, Mich., stock food; Supertile Machinery Company, Huntington Park, Los Angeles, Calif., tile making machinery; the Rocbond Company, Van Wert, Ohio, plastic magnesia stucco.

Myers-Beeson-Golden, Inc., Pershing Square Building, New York City. Has secured the following accounts: Mot-Acs, Inc., New York City; United States Sand Paper Company, Williamsport, Pa., makers of Mapbrand sandpapers and emery cloths; Stetson Drug Corporation, New York City, distributors of Stetson tablets for indigestion.

Northwestern Advertising Company, St. Paul, Minn., may put on a special fall campaign on Allen-Qualley Company (Juior Candy Bar), St. Paul, advertising to the school and college trade.

P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, 45 Bromfield street, Boston. Placing account of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company, Brockton.

Olson & Enzinger, Inc., Century Bldg., Chicago, Ill. This agency is now handling the following accounts: Cracker Jack Company, 512 South Peoria street, Chicago, Ill., manufactures "Cracker Jack" and "Angelus" Marshmallow; Great Lakes Golf Corporation, Milwaukee, Wis., manufactures golf clubs.

Richardson-Briggs Company, Cleveland, is adding new towns to the list on Cummer Products Company (Energine), Cleveland, O.

Robbins & Pearson Company, 390 E. Broad street, Columbus, O., has been appointed by the J. H. Grayson Manufacturing Company, Athens, O., manufacturers of Rayglo heaters, to direct its advertising.

Roche Advertising Company, 310 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, a new organization, will place the advertising of the Studebaker Corporation of America, South Bend, Ind., the Chero-Cola Company, Columbus, Ga., newspaper accounts, as well as several other accounts advertising in various media, starting July 1.

F. R. Steel Company, 201 East Ontario street, Chicago, is giving copy orders to a list of newspapers on M. & M. Laboratories, Chicago (a fluid to save gas).

Sweet & Phelps, Inc., 210 E. Ohio street, Chicago. Has secured account of the Patent Novelty Company, Fulton, Ill., manufacturers general household articles.

Washburn Crosby Company, Minneapolis. Plans to use magazines exclusively for advertising for the fiscal year June, 1926, to June, 1927. There will be no newspaper advertising during that period.

Frank B. White Company, 76 West Monroe street, Chicago. Handling account of the Anderson Box Company, Indianapolis, manufacturers of Blue Ribbon Master Breeder chick boxes.

Canada Bars U. S. Editor's Car

Refusal of the customs department of Canada to allow the outing editor of the Tacoma Daily Ledger to drive his car in British Columbia while gathering material for a series of scenic articles to be run in the Ledger, caused officials of the Automobile Club of British Columbia to denounce the regulations as extreme and absurd. George E. Housser, chairman of the legal and legislative committee, stated that his investigations showed the rule old fashioned, and referred more to horses and buggies than to automobiles. His remedy would be to allow border officials to use their own discretion in admitting automobiles into the country for business purposes.

Four towns in the United States have Democratic and Republican newspapers published under the same management.

Supplies and Equipment

Rebuilt
GOSS & HOE
PRESS
BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

Fight hot-weather fatigue

Fresh, cool, invigorating air — supplied by Sturtevant Ventilating Fans — would keep your men working at top-notch efficiency during the hot summer months.

B. F. STURTEVANT CO.
Hyde Park, Boston, Mass.
Branch Offices in Principal Cities

Sturtevant
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
Ventilating Fans

PRESS CONTROL
C-H
"Safest System in the World"

For large and small plants

Cutler-Hammer Controllers for presses of every size and for every type of motor-driven machine.

Address all communications:
The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

CUTLER-HAMMER

Modern Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—A real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT SLUG FEEDER
Eliminates the Metal Furnace
Printers Manufacturing Co.
1109-17 Transportation Bldg.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Standardize Your Title To Perfection With Hardened Steel Newspaper Headings That Last Forever

A. J. SOSSNER
363 West Broadway
New York

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work, also Goss Sextuple.

HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple, Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.

DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.

Available For Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Block

Hoe Quick-Lock-Up Flat Casting Mould

The throwing of a single Lever locks this Hoe Flat Casting Mould which is carefully designed and constructed for perfect Balance as well as Quality and Durability.

Made in three sizes—five, seven and eight columns.

If It's a Hoe, It's the Best.

R. HOE & CO., Inc.
7 South Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
Also at DUNELLEN, N. J.
504-520 Grand St., N. Y. City
7 Water Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Buyers and sellers of equipment meet face to face in EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS

(Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

White space charge at same rate per line per insertion as earned by frequency of insertion. Special rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. The Editor & Publisher reserves the right to classify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE.

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want more business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 1841 Broadway, New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

Not June Brides But June Bargains—Weekly and job plant; exclusive field New York. Receipts $17,000; net profit, $5,000; price $15,000, third cash. Weekly and job plant, exclusive field, county seat Virginia. Receipts $12,000; net profit $5,000; price $13 000, half cash. J. B. Shale, Times Building, New York.

Two Important Newspapers, located respectively in Illinois and Texas, are available for purchase in a private way on a basis of capitalizing profits at 15%, involving from $300,000 to $500,000 on each property. Please give financial references. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Newspapers for Sale

Exclusive Afternoon Field, Kansas county seat 15,000; A. P.; offered for quick turn at slightly less than four times annual return to owners. Financial references first letter. A-590, Editor & Publisher.

Small Afternoon Daily for sale in fast growing Eastern Carolina town. Only daily in five counties. Unlimited opportunities. A-553, Editor & Publisher.

Trade Paper Wanted

Wanted to Buy—Trade paper now showing profit and in field which will support bigger promotion. All correspondence strictly confidential. Address A-583, Editor & Publisher.

CIRCULATION

Premiums

Suppose You Were a Woman. You would want a dish dryer. It eliminates 30 minutes in the kitchen. Price 60c. F. O. B. No finer premium on the market. The Steel Co., Box 203, Palmyra, N. J.

Premiums of every description. Your Publisher takes no risk. C. R. Bailey, Hoboken, N. J. Formerly New York. Estab. 1888.

Promotion

Circulation—When quick, additional circulation coverage becomes necessary, remember that our twenty years in this one line of endeavor is your proof against experimenting. Write or wire Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell Block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Circulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Centre Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesmanship Club Campaigns.

Circulators Convention discussion on promoting R F. D. circulation with dinnerware was important. R U getting mail circulation under this new, cheap plan? Ask us how. The Albright China Co., 104 W. 5th St., Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

For Worth (Texas) Recorder and New York Bolletino dela Sera are the new customers this week. For samples of a live, alert up-to-date service, write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Circulation—In a city of 400,000 inhabitants there is a morning paper published which is seeking the services of a real live circulation manager; a man who can create honest circulation without high-pressure methods and can show 100 per cent on his A. B. C. audits. Must be experienced in economy and at the same time he will be privileged to spend money judiciously if it means extra circulation. Position will be open by July 1st. All communications will be treated confidentially. State age, salary desired and references. Address A-587, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager wanted by afternoon paper city 35,000 in Carolina. Prefer young man that's an assistant whose record entitles him to move up. Clean, honest, a hustler, best of reference. State salary expected. A-582, Editor & Publisher.

Editor Wanted for Trade Journal; experienced man with Editorial and Managerial Capacity, by well-established growing Monthly now in its fourth year, amply financed and with extraordinary opportunity for development in its field —the Dairy Industry, which is one of the four largest industries. A man of initiative and aggressiveness required. He will be placed in a position that will bring unusual rewards for effective service. Write in confidence, giving particulars of experience, stating salary wanted, etc. President, P. O. Box 834, Detroit, Mich.

Experienced News Man, high class, wanted to join me in conducting evening paper, large, important field. No money required, but best of references. Address A-592, Editor & Publisher.

Pressman wanted to run Duplex sextuple straight-line press; excellent working conditions, steady position. Excellent living conditions. Start in two or three weeks. Newspaper within one hour and half from New York. A-576, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Man desires connection with daily newspaper on Pacific Coast. 6 years' experience, 3½ years as advertising manager, 10-14 pages daily. Capable, steady, conscientious worker. References. Address J. L., Box 14, Pendleton, Ore.

Advertising Manager of Michigan daily seeks voluntary change. Experienced and aggressive, with thorough knowledge of building permanent linage as well as features. Judicious staff director with clean, productive record. Would be glad to correspond with live newspaper planning for greater effort. A-579, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager—Advertising Solicitor, both producers, fully experienced, ambitious. Now employed. Will connect with progressive newspaper, any location. A-589, Editor & Publisher.

Attention Newspaper Owners: We know of a newspaper publisher who took a second newspaper in 1918 and within eight years increased the circulation of that newspaper 11,000 net paid daily. No premiums, no contests, but the right kind of knowledge put this newspaper over and today it is the outstanding newspaper in its city. The profits followed along with the increased circulation and the newspaper was recently sold at 500% more than it could have been purchased for in 1918.
If you are a newspaper owner and need this man you will thank us for calling your attention to him. He is without question one of the best newspaper publishers in the United States. If you are looking for a man who will add thousands of dollars in value to your newspaper, make a profit, create a standing and following, this is the man you want. Address A-591, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Assistant to Publisher—A man fortified with years of experience, now employed as advertising director, is seeking above position. Can satisfy interested publisher concerning ability, energy, and integrity. Trained in the fundamentals governing the administration of the successful newspaper. Address A-572, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, successful record, young, now employed, is seeking connection with larger paper. Familiar with ABC and all phases of circulation work; has experience from ground up. South or Southwest preferred. A-580, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation Manager—15 years' circulation experience, 10 years as Circulation Manager on largest papers in South. Know Circulation Auditing, Promotion, Office Owned and Independent Systems. Have also had experience on combination Morning and Evening Circulation. Will be glad to make trip at my expense for personal interview with Publisher desiring services of Circulation Manager. Can furnish satisfactory references from my employer. Inquiries treated confidentially. A-558, Editor & Publisher.

City Circulation Manager.—Ten years of first class experience. Very successful handling boy carriers, also men carriers. Fine record as a promotion man. Real circulation builder. Best of reasons for seeking change. First class references from past and present employers. Twenty-nine years of age, married. Circulation Manager, 1422 Allegheny St., Atlanta, Ga.

City or Managing Editor with twenty years' experience, available June 20th because of sale. A news executive with successful record. Best of recommendations. A-543, Editor & Publisher.

City Editor, married, wants to change fields. Consider desk, telegraph or local, or street. Guarantee satisfaction. Must pay $50. Will be available on two weeks' notice. Address A-588, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager—Healthy, vigorous, neat and refined appearance, possessed with energy and ability to sell and train a staff to sell, now employed, desires a change. Last year's record over 300,000 lines gain. A-556, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Advertising Manager; four years' experience on papers in cities of 100,000; now employed as Sales Manager of advertising lines, but wish to return to newspaper field; have good record for linage increase on previous publications. A-581, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager—Of leading daily in Illinois town of 90,000 desires change. Young man, well educated and a producer, four years' experience. Well versed on real estate accounts. Best of references. Write A-586, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial—Do you need City News, Managing or Feature Editor? Not Unemployed. Credentials that will satisfy; age 34, married; 10 years' desk experience, university education; now executive in big organization; ask $60 to $75 per week and can earn it. Write A-578, Editor & Publisher.

Editor-Engineer—Will edit House Organ for Transportation Company, Public Utility Co., Manufacturing Co., or get up catalogue, advertisements or historical booklets or descriptive matter. 3½ years' experience as Department Editor of Magazine and Electrical Engineer of a number of years' standing. A. Barnett Green, Hotel Wellington, 7th Ave. and 55th St., New York.

Field Representative—Widely experienced, energetic man wishes to join publisher's staff as confidential research man or field secretary. Has original plans for this work. Twenty years connection with publishing, writing, advertising, promotional work, newsprint paper. Executive capacity, but available for subordinate connection to demonstrate qualities. Has published own small magaine for several years. Holds substantial public position; confident public speaker; has addressed scores of varied gatherings. Served in U. S. Army and Navy holding executive rank. Widely traveled matured; seasoned. Highest type commercial and personal references. (Ability as amanuensis.) Right man to relieve overburdened general manager of many problems. Wishes to engage exclusively with magazine or news paper publishing enterprises. A-544, Editor & Publisher.

Live Wire, Young Man with 15 years of newspaper experience in executive capacities, wide acquaintance among publishers, thorough knowledge of national field and newspaper's requirements, desires connection with high-class organization of publishers' representatives. Chicago territory preferred. Can sell space. High-class references. Address A-584, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Fourteen years on largest metropolitan dailies, thoroughly competent if given co-operation. A-549, Editor & Publisher.

Newspaper Executive, practically trained in all departments of newspaper making, provincial and metropolitan, is available for immediate connection, where proven constructive ability, seasoned experience and pleasing personality will find permanency and congenial environment. Formerly business manager prominent New York City daily. Recently, a Hearst business executive. Excellent references. Consider any location. A-574, Editor & Publisher.

News Editor, city, telegraph. Hard worker seeks connection with middle-west daily. Address A-557, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Office Manager, now connected with a New York suburban newspaper, will be available about July first. Has been in charge of business management. A-546, Editor & Publisher.

Young Man with special training and fifteen years' experience in newspaper work desires permanent connection with good daily in Middle West. Capable of serving in capacity of business manager, advertising manager, accountant, or publisher's assistant. Best of character and business references. Address A-585, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Equipment Wanted

Flat Shaver wanted to make 4-column cuts. Please give make and condition, also best price. Lansing Capital News, Lansing, Mich.

FOR SALE

Florida bi-weekly newspaper with job plant. City has 12,000 population, county seat. Circulation, 3,000; advertising rate, 50 cents an inch. Weekly revenue, $500 for newspaper. Job plant does $15,000 annually. Price for both, $25,000. Terms to suit.

PALMER, De WITT & PALMER

Newspaper Properties

350 Madison Ave., NEW YORK

Successful Performance

This firm has a record of almost 15 years of successful performance in the difficult work of

PURCHASE, CONSOLIDATION, SALE AND APPRAISAL

of newspaper and magazine properties throughout the U. S.

HARWELL & CANNON

Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT

Reporters

Copy readers

Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.

THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

PUBLISHERS!
Secure your Executives through the Classified Department of
EDITOR & PUBLISHER

DOLLAR $$ $$ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

SUGGEST the slogan "We Wash Cars Clean" to one garage or wash-stand in your city. If kept before the public over a period of time the phrase will get wonderful results. It increased business for firms in Lebanon, Ind. and Frankfort, Ind.—Davis O. Vandivier.

A "Made-In-Evansville" Week launched by a newspaper brought real results in the way of advertising and good will. At the suggestion of the newspaper, local stores features in their sales and in their advertising copy, goods actually made in that city. The manufacturers of special apparatus also "came through" with good advertising accounts for the week. The stunt was highly successful from every angle and it is planned to repeat it again next year.—B. A. T.

Now it is timely to run a page of golf advertisements. The Evening Mail, Halifax, did this recently. The page was headed with "Fore." A write-up told of the three championship golf meets to be staged on Halifax courses in 1926, and around the reading matter were advertisements for golf apparel, equipment, etc.—V. G. Dawson, Halifax.

Every classified manager who wishes to increase his linage of farm advertising should note the comments of Dale Bessire in the current issue of Farm and Fireside. Mr. Bessire who owns 12,000 apple trees in Brown County, Indiana, tells how he built up his business through sales to the auto tourist. He began 12 years ago with 1,200 apple trees. He says he has tried selling through commission men, selling direct to the wholesaler, selling straight to the city consumer, but has finally decided that the best way is to sell at the farm in small lots to the family that wants and needs the apples. Not only can the roadside stand be advertised effectively in the classified columns, but every week-end, at least, should furnish the occasion for a Touring page layout with stories on interesting trips and ads gathered from garages, filling stations, refreshment stands, and farmers' roadside stands along the route.—Norman J. Radder, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

H. W. Brown & Co., gift and novelty merchants, of Milwaukee, Wis., are following the news-ad form of several large department stores, by publishing each Sunday in the Milwaukee papers a very attractive advertisement in news form entitled "Brown's Shop News."—Reuben Levin.

A farm edition of a middle-western newspaper went across big. In the edition, practically all of the advertising was directed to the farmer and every farm home within 50 miles received a copy. It was also a good stunt from a circulation viewpoint as results later proved. —B. A. T.

Considering the number of people who will be traveling this summer it should be possible in many places to run a page of "suggestions for the trip," down the center of which a column or two of news about, or letters from absentees might be printed.—Fremont Kutnewsky.

The Denver Post publishes each day in the lower left-hand corner of page one, a vacation season reminder to "take the Post with you on your vacation." Appended to the reminder is a handy coupon stating "please change my Post from ———, my present address, to ———," with blanks for subscriber's name, city and state. According to the subscription department, the reminder is adding many summer subscriptions weekly.—M. S. M., Denver.

The Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel at stated times during the week runs a "Vacation and Tourist Guide." Newspapers in states that are noted for their fishing or summer resorts can profit by similar ads which represent special railroad and steamship excursions, advertisements of leading resorts, and also of stores catering to all the needs of the vacationist.—Wilbur Polson, Milwaukee.

Do your stores advertise specials for Suburban Day, usually Friday or Saturday? In Racine, Wis., the police department co-operates with the newspapers and the advertisers in getting out-of-town customers and those in the territory surrounding the town to feel more than welcome in parking their cars. The cars don't get stickers if they stay an hour and a half in a one hour limit street as the visiting cars contain a guest card furnished by the department stores which reads, "This card entitles you to park your car on the streets of Racine, Wisconsin as long as you wish. There is no time limit for you." The card is signed by order of the chief of police.—Thora Eigenmann, Bloomington, Ind.

One of the Boston papers recently ran a very interesting story on the work of the railroad detective. It described several interesting cases and outlined in detail the work of these officers whose duty it is to keep the crooks from entering the city and to protect the crowds from pickpockets etc. Any paper could easily work up a story of this type and the public is always interested in stories that have the spice of adventure in them.—C. E. Pellissier, Boston, Mass.

For papers which cover small suburban towns a source of many personal items may be created by having placed at one or two of the most popular stores in each town a box with a slotted top, for the reception of such items, written out. Put up a placard and perhaps carry a note in the items for that town. Probably the items should be signed as a guaranty of truth, although this is not always done. A surprising amount of copy will find its way into such a box.—Guy M. Chase, Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

CONFLICT of game and sport associations among each other has been almost traditional in the past. The Milwaukee Journal published an excellent story in a recent Sunday issue on the co-operation in Wisconsin between the various outdoor groups for the preservation of the state's forests, game, landscape, etc. Similar stories may be worked up in other states by getting in touch with the heads of the various outdoor organizations and possibly with the state conservation board or commission.—Ruben Levin, Madison, Wis.

Through a contest staged by the Denver Post to determine "the most heroic dog in Colorado" the paper obtained several columns of stories of intense interest to animal lovers. The contest was conducted in co-operation with a local kennel-club show and the winning dog was presented with a medal of honor.—M. S. M., Denver.

You'll be surprised with the response of women readers of your newspaper to a "How I Improved My Appearance" column and contest. Offer $5 weekly for the best letter on this subject and pay $1 for each letter published. The pulling power of this feature is tremendous.—G. Smedal, Jr., Minneapolis, Minn.

A $5 bill that everybody seems to be working for in Seattle and which makes a miraculous amount of "copy"—good live material each day—is the five-spot offered for "My Best Fish Story," run under this title by the Post-Intelligencer. —C.M.L.

How To Play GOLF
By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game
24 LESSONS
Illustrated
For release daily
KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

BY UNITED PRESS
AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK
UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

Mary Marshall
FASHION WRITER is sending a
COMPLETE DAILY AND SUNDAY FASHION FEATURE and a
DAILY FASHION NEWS SERVICE FROM PARIS
Authoritative Entertaining
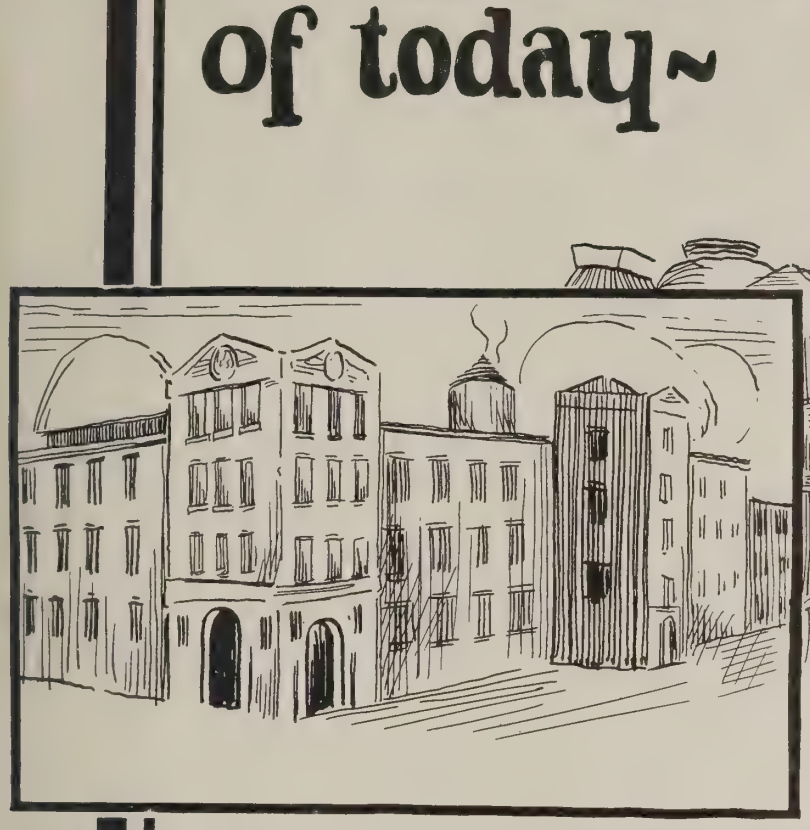
Full of Ideas
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York



COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS
International News Service
"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"
63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service
Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.
4 page ready-print color comics.
Write for samples and rates
NEA SERVICE INC.
1200 W. 3RD STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO

THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.
Columbian Mutual Tower
MEMPHIS, TENN.
CREATORS OF LOCAL DISPLAY FROM A NEW SOURCE
Our Business Review and many other feature pages now running in more than 80 leading American and Canadian newspapers. Write or wire for our representative.

Yourself and Your Body
By Wilfred T. Grenfell
Illustrated by the author
Dr. Grenfell has done for anatomy what Van Loon did for history and anthropology in "The Story of Mankind"
24 Illustrated Articles
The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

A Typical Southern scene of today~

Follow this Business movement Southward!

In this favored region are to be found all the factors of a great industrial development—a favorable climate both winter and summer—soils that produce abundantly the crops of the north and the west—a variety of the raw materials in abundance—water powers—developed and undeveloped coal and iron sufficient to last for centuries—growing local markets with proximity to the consuming centers, and with adequate transportation systems which serve the South. All these factors combined make for a greater and more prosperous South.

The South wants and needs your products,—and no greater opportunity exists today for the advertiser of meritorious products seeking a greater market.

Advertise to the great prosperous group—through the most direct medium—the daily papers.

The papers listed below are ready to show you how you can distribute your products in the most efficient and economical manner.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Mobile News-Item .....(E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register .....(M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register .....(S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
†Daytona Beach News..... (ES)	5,731	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903.....(S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
*Lakeland Ledger .....(E)	5,173	.03	.03
*Miami Herald .....(M)	48,108	.11	.11
*Miami Herald .....(S)	60,006	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star .....(E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel .....(M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal.....(E&M)	9,805	.06	.06
†St. Petersburg Independent.....(E)	11,917	.055	.055
Tampa Telegraph (M) 12,850.....(S)	25,280	.06	.07
*Tampa Times .....(E)	23,325	.08	.08
†Tampa Tribune (M) 34,841.....(S)	53,762	.09(.11S)	.09(.11S)
*West Palm Beach Post.....(M)	12,243	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald .....(E)	14,246	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald .....(S)	14,547	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph .....(M)	24,035	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph .....(S)	24,439	.08	.08
Savannah Morning News (M), 21,015.(S)	22,204	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
*The Lexington Leader.....(E)	19,640	.06	.06
*The Lexington Leader.....(S)	19,531	.06	.06
Paducah Sun .....(E)	9,255	.04	.04
NORTH CAROLINA
†Greensboro Daily News.....(M)	27,485	.08	.07
†Greensboro Daily News.....(S)	31,505	.09	.08
†Raleigh News and Observer.....(M)	33,515	.08	.08
†Raleigh News and Observer.....(S)	36,318	.09	.09
†Winston-Salem Journal .....(M)	13,702	.05	.05
†Winston-Salem Journal .....(S)	13,720	.05	.05
*Winston-Salem Sentinel .....(E)	18,259	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State .....(M)	23,663	.07	.07
Columbia State .....(S)	24,338	.07	.07
Greenville News .....(M)	21,704	.075	.07
*Spartanburg Journal .....(E)	4,613	.05	.05
*Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,860.....(S)	9,856
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times .....(M)	30,203	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times .....(S)	30,230	.10	.10
*Memphis Commercial Appeal.....(M)	100,934	.18	.18
*Memphis Commercial Appeal.....(S)	129,219	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner .....(E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner .....(S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
*Danville Register and Bee.....(M&E)	14,313	.05	.05
*Danville Register (Sunday).....	9,065
*Newport News Times-Herald.....(E)	7,968	.05	.05
*Newport News Daily Press.....(S&M)	5,413
*Roanoke Times & World News...(M&E)	25,772	.08	.08
*Roanoke Times .....(S)	16,076	.07	.07
*Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader..(E)	6,855	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.

 A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925.

† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

WHERE CONFIDENCE COUNTS

MORE than ten million "new investors" have been added to the nation's security buyers since the war.

The most direct path to this market of increased and diversified buying is the authoritative, comprehensive and clearly written financial page of the daily newspaper.

The institution which has done most to make possible the authoritative, complete and clearly written financial page is the financial service of The Consolidated Press Association.

In no other department of a newspaper does confidence in the news columns represent as definitely confidence in the advertising columns.

Consolidated Press financial pages have the confidence of their readers because of the accepted authority, integrity and thoroughness of C. P. A. financial writers.

The newspaper which publishes these dispatches is assured of a responsive following and assured of it exclusively because it offers its readers something which they cannot get elsewhere.

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

New York
Eighth Floor
World Building

Chicago
Third Floor
Daily News Building

San Francisco
Third Floor
Bulletin Building

Paris
Fourth Floor
19 Rue d'Antin

THIS ISSUE:—FULL ACCOUNT OF PHILADELPHIA ADVERTISING CONVENTION

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 — The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America — 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 5 | NEW YORK, JUNE 26, 1926 | By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign | 10c Per Copy

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

Because the Whole Family Is Interested

It's plain economy to sell all members of the family at once —rather than singly. This is effectively done in Chicago because all members of the family read the Photogravure Section of The Chicago Daily News.

The Chicago photogravure advertising of the Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. (current schedule, 10,000 agate lines) appears exclusively in

The Saturday Photogravure Section of

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

First in Chicago

The

Chicago Daily News

Now uses exclusively the

METROPOLITAN DRY MAT

The proficiency of the mechanical departments of this great newspaper is a by-word with newspaper publishers. Plant after plant has followed the practices and installed machinery and processes adopted by it. The first question asked of salesmen is "Does The Chicago Daily News use it?"

The mere announcement, therefore, that The Chicago Daily News has adopted the METROPOLITAN Dry Mat for exclusive use is all that need be said about this really wonderful dry mat.

Installations in 30 to 60 days.

WOOD FLONG CORPORATION

501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

"Johnny, Get the Sunpaper"

¶ When mother tells little Johnny or little Mary to get the Sunpaper, she doesn't give them the pennies and start them down to the corner store.

¶ The Sunpaper is already at the house—right outside the door—delivered there by a Sun Carrier. All Johnny has to do is to open the door and bring it in!

¶ That's the way it is with the Sunpapers—Morning, Evening and Sunday—they are delivered to the homes of Baltimore. That's why we always speak so proudly and so confidently of the fact that Sunpaper circulation is home circulation.

¶ The newspaper that is assured of a welcome in the home is the newspaper that is read from the first page to the last by the whole family. In Baltimore, you can assure yourself of a cordial welcome, a permanent seat at the family table, by letting the columns of the Sunpapers introduce you.

¶ Then when Johnny gets the Sunpaper, he'll bring in your message, too!

May Average Net Paid Circulation

Daily (M. & E.) . . .	252,330
Sunday	192,051

A Gain of 7,468 Daily and 6,526 Sunday Over May, 1925

JOHN B. WOODWARD
Bowery Bank Bldg.,
110 E. 42d St., New York

GUY S. OSBORN
360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

MORNING EVENING SUNDAY

Baltimoreans Don't Say "Newspaper"—They Say "SUNpaper"

THE slogan "In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"—is not simply a slogan. It expresses an actual condition. The average Philadelphian, not conversant with circulation and advertising statistics, would tell you that there was nobody who did not read The Bulletin—because nearly everybody does.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

Net paid daily average for six months ending March 31, 1926:

533,169 copies a day

The circulation of The Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper and is one of the largest in the United States.

The Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

NEW YORK
247 Park Avenue
(Park-Lexington Building)

CHICAGO
Verree & Conklin, Inc.,
28 East Jackson Boulevard

SAN FRANCISCO
Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
681 Market St.

DETROIT
C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
321 Lafayette Boulevard

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 | NEW YORK, JUNE 26, 1926 | No. 5

International Advertising Association Is New Name Adopted For A. A. C. W.

Large Attendance at Many Brilliant Ceremonies—Woodbridge Reelected and Denver Next Meeting Place—New Officers Elected and Annual Session Voted a Success

The convention opens! The photograph shows a part of the huge assemblage of advertising men and women gathered in the auditorium of the Sesqui-Centennial exposition, Philadelphia, for the opening session of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

ASSOCIATED Advertising Clubs of the World passed to the list of abandoned titles Thursday afternoon when the Philadelphia convention sitting at the University of Pennsylvania formally ratified the change in name to International Advertising Association, as recommended to the convention by the Joint Assembly, which also passed out of existence as a result of its legislation to reorganize the world advertising body.

C. King Woodbridge of New York was reelected president by unanimous vote, his nomination being moved by Don Gilman of San Francisco and John W. Longnecker of Hartford, Conn., before the Joint Assembly, in which was formerly vested the power to name officers.

Rowe Stewart, general manager of the Philadelphia Record, was elected secretary of the I. A. A. He is the first newspaper man to hold this office in the international association, and his election was recognized as due in part to the long-continued demand of the daily press for more active part in the management of the association. Mr. Stewart was president of the A. A. C. W. in 1920-1921, taking the office after Charles E. Otis of Cleveland declined to serve although duly elected.

Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, was named treasurer. The office of secretary-treasurer has been held for several years by Jesse H. Neal, executive secretary, of the Associated Business Papers, Inc., who found his private duties too pressing to permit his continuance in the advertising association office. He placed Messrs. Stewart and Sisson in nomination.

Denver, Colo., was selected as the meeting place for 1927, after several other cities, including Washington, D. C., had asked the privilege of entertaining the next convention.

The name of the National Advertising Commission was changed by dropping the "National," in recognition of the more intense international scope planned for the association under the new regime.

It was voted to admit to membership on the Advertising Commission three representatives or the National Better Business Bureau, three from the sustaining members, three from the women's clubs, and one from each district of the affiliated advertising clubs. The joint assembly delegated its functions to the enlarged commission.

Lou E. Holland, of Kansas City, past president of the A. A. C. W. and president of the National Better Business Bureau, was elected to membership on the I. A. A. executive committee.

Dues paid to the international body by members of affiliated clubs will be from $1.50 to $2 per year.

The executive committee was authorized to continue publication of Associated Advertising, official organ, or to substitute bulletins to the presidents of affiliated clubs and other executives of the advertising movement.

Jesse H. Neal, secretary-treasurer, reported that the number of clubs in the association had been reduced from 314 to 253 during the past year, due to house cleaning conducted by headquarters. A number of clubs enlisted in the association under the Neosho plan several years ago, were eliminated for non-payment of dues. Number of members, however, dropped only from 26,603 to 25,747. Income for the year was $80,125 and expenses were $117,959, a deficit of $37,834.

The cash balance remaining from 1925 was $38,892. Audit of the associations records showed assets to exceed liabilities by $3,000. Mr. Neal and President Woodbridge pointed out that drastic economies had been enforced during the year and that the association had lived within its budget by $15,000. Mr. Neal, who retired after 4 years' service as secretary-treasurer and 16 years in actice work for the Association, received from President Woodbridge on behalf of his friends in the directorate a gold watch. Earl Pearson, general manager, received a gift from H. H. Charles, chairman of the program committee, in recognition of his labors in behalf of the committee. Mr. Pearson was also highly praised by Mr. Woodbridge.

The only resolution adopted by the convention was one of appreciation for the hospitality extended by Philadelphia and its representatives, officials and of the advertising fraternity. Mrs. E. F. Lawson, smilingly telling the assembly that "Philadelphia had killed the visitors with kindness," gave pure Damask British tablecloths to Mrs. Woodbridge and to Mrs. Kendrick, wife of the Mayor; and handkerchiefs to Mrs. Charles, Mrs. Patten, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Stinson and Mrs. Story.

Members of the executive committee were elected as follows:

By the sustaining members, E. T. Meredith, Des Moines, Ia.; by the Advertising Commission, W. Frank McClure, Chicago; Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Bernice Blackwood, Chicago; by the Board of Presidents, Charles Brooke, president of the Detroit Ad Craft Club; retiring president, Lou E. Holland, Kansas City.

HEARST COUNSEL POLLS A. P. MEMBERS ON BOND HOLDING ISSUE

President Noyes Replies That Executive Committee is Considering Reorganization Suggestions—Hearst Willing to Yield Holdings to Effect Equitable Control

THAT there is a movement to reorganize the bond-holding feature of the Associated Press was revealed this week.

Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Star and A. P., president, in a letter addressed to John Francis Neylan, counsel for William Randolph Hearst, replied to a letter which Mr. Neylan recently broadcast to the Associated Press membership on the subject.

Mr. Neylan's letter follows:

"At the recent annual meeting of the Associated Press some interesting matters were developed, particularly during the debate on the question of the admission to membership of the Rochester Times Union.

"I noted that Mr. Adolph Ochs, of the New York Times, stressed the fact that a small percentage of the membership of the Associated Press was entitled to cast 40 votes each on the question of election of directors, these members being the holders of the Associated Press bonds.

"In this connection Mr. Ochs pointed out that by virtue of his ownership of 15 memberships, Mr. Hearst could cast 640 votes at a directorship election.

"I also noted that Mr. Ochs and other advocates of the admission of the Rochester Times Union dwelt upon the fact that only 208 members of the Associated Press held the protest right while more than 1,000 members enjoyed no such privilege.

"The facts developed by these gentlemen convinced me that the situation was inequitable.

"Subsequently I discussed these matters with Mr. Hearst personally and I think you will be interested to learn that he expressed himself immediately as being agreeable to any amendments or modifications which would rectify the present situation.

"He pointed out first in relation to the matter of extra votes on the election of directors that he was perfectly willing to join with the other bondholders and surrender any part or all of the extra votes which attach to his memberships. In other words, if the majority of the members desire that all of the members shall stand on a parity as to voting power on the election of directors, this will be perfectly agreeable to Mr. Hearst and he will be glad to join with the other bondholders in according this right to the non-bondholder members.

"I may state that while there might be some legal question as to the propriety of depriving the bondholders of the extra votes unless the bonds were redeemed, there is no question that the by-laws can be amended legally to accord to every member 40 votes for each membership on the election of directors. In other words, deprive the bondholders of nothing but accord equal voting power to the non-bondholder members.

"In relation to the protest right: Mr. Hearst expresses himself very decidedly in favor of according this right to every member of the Associated Press who has been a member in good standing for a period, say of one to five years.

"He points out that by service ot the Associated Press and observance of its obligations a member contributes his share proportionately to the success of the enterprise as a whole. He points out further that an Associated Press membership has a very definite value and that he is perfectly willing to take any steps necessary to protect the value of the small paper's membership.

"Mr. Hearst holds the view that the exclusiveness of the membership is just as important to a small property as it is to a large one and he is perfectly willing to accord to all his fellow members in the Associated Press the same protection for their rights as he asks for his own.

"To sum up the situation, therefore, Mr. Hearst does not ask that any member or group of members of the Associated Press shall enjoy or continue to enjoy any privilege or protection not accorded to all members, and in spite of the fact that he has paid large sums for memberships because these special privileges have attached, he is perfectly willing in view of the equities of the situation to surrender these special privileges.

"As you undoubtedly know, Mr. Hearst has a larger amount of money invested in Associated Press memberships than any other member, and of course he is vitally concerned from the standpoint of intelligent selfishness—if from no other—in the protection of his investment.

"I am writing you the above frankly because of the fact which was evident to me at the recent convention that an impression was abroad or was sought to be created that Mr. Hearst desired to enjoy with other minority members of the Associated Press some special privileges.

"I would be very grateful if you would let me have your views on this matter with the idea in mind that if it is the wish of the majority of the Associated Press members to place all members on a parity, such a step can be undertaken in an orderly and proper manner and we can all join intelligently in working for the best interests of the organization.

"Very sincerely yours,

"Counsel for William Randolph Hearst."

In response to this communication President Noyes, on June 10, addressed the following letter to Mr. Neylan:

"I have your circular letter regarding the bond question in the Associated Press.

"The Executive Committee of the Associated Press some weeks ago authorized the appointment of a committee to study this question in its different aspects and report to the Board at the October meeting.

"Among the suggestions that have been made is one involving a voluntary reduction in the present holdings and then offering such released bonds together with the unissued ones to members not now holding bonds in proportion to the assessments of such members.

"I am glad to know from your letter that Mr. Hearst is willing to 'join with the other bondholders and surrender any part or all of the extra votes which attach to his memberships.'"

The executive committee of the Associated Press held its regular monthly meeting at New York headquarters, June 23. Those attending included Frank B. Noyes, Washington Star, A. P. president; Adolph S. Ochs, New York Times; Clark Howell, Atlanta Constitution; Elbert H. Baker, Cleveland Plain Dealer; E. Lansing Ray, St. Louis Globe Democrat, and Robert McLean, Philadelphia Bulletin.

A. A. C. W. CHIEF RECEIVING SESQUI KEY

Photograph shows C. K. Woodbridge, president of the A.A.C.W., receiving from Franklin Bache Hunington, a decendant of Benjamin Franklin, the key to the Sesqui-Centennial exposition in Philadelphia, Monday.

Labor M. P.s Boycott Dailies

Scottish Labor members of the British Parliament have pledged themselves not to give news to representatives of the Glasgow and Dundee newspapers that have declared themselves non-union since the general strike. The M. P.s have also asked labor organizations and trade unions to urge their members not to buy the papers. As the principal papers of the two cities have declared non-union, there is little prospect of the boycott being serious in its effect.

N. Y. Herald Tribune Using Comics

Tradition was smashed this week by the New York Herald Tribune, when that newspaper started publication this week of a comic strip on its classified advertising page. The comic chosen was "Petey," by Voight.

PAUL BLOCK BUYS THE TOLEDO BLADE

Purchases Complete Control from Barton Smith—Now Owns Newark, Memphis, Duluth and Lancaster Dailies

Paul Block, president of Paul Block Inc., newspaper representatives, New York, has purchased the Toledo (O.) Blade, one of the oldest and most successful newspapers in the Middle West.

The deal completed this week makes Mr. Block, who has been associated with the Blade for a number of years, sole owner of the property. The paper has been under the control of Barton Smith who has been president and general counsel for the paper as well as trustee for all the stock.

Owners of the Toledo Blade Company, according to the April government statement were: Charles Locke, Dover Foxcroft, Me.; Mabel D. Locke, Brookline, Mass.; Barton Smith, of Toledo as trustee under the last will and testament of Martha H. Locke, who designated besides Charles and Mabel Locke the following heirs; Martha Elizabeth Locke Huntington, Camp Devens, Mass. Dorathea Renee Locke Murray, Brighton, Mass.; Martha Louise Locke Beverly Hills, Calif.; Maurice Allen, San Diego, Calif.; as executor of the last will of Robinson Locke; Robinson Carr Locke, Pasadena, Calif.; Edmund Locke Jr., Beverly Hills, Calif.

Mr. Block, the new owner, is also president and publisher of the Newark (N. J.) Star-Eagle, the Duluth (Minn.) Herald, the Memphis (Tenn.) News Scimitar and the Lancaster (Pa.) New Era.

As the head of Paul Block, Inc., Mr. Block with 30 associates, represents some of the leading newspapers of the country in the national advertising field including the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat & Chronicle, the Washington (D. C.) Post, Syracuse (N. Y.) Post Standard, Worcester (Mass.) Telegram & Gazette, Manchester (N. H.) Union Leader, Scranton (Pa.) Republican, Topeka (Kan.) State Journal and others.

For more than 30 years, Mr. Block has represented newspapers in New York, and is widely known throughout the field. He has always been closely associated with everything pertaining to the advertising and publishing business and has consistently co-operated in the work of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, and the Advertising Clubs of New York, of which he is a charter member.

Paul Block, Inc., maintains offices in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, and Chicago as well as New York.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESS MEET

President James W. Atkins Presides at Hickory Convention

The North Carolina Press Association met in Hickory, N. C., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week for the midsummer convention. James W. Atkins, of Gastonia, president, and Miss Beatrice Cobb, of Morganton, secretary were in charge.

Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman, chaplain of the senate during the Wilson administration, delivered an address on the first night of the convention on "The Newspaper and its Relation to the Public Peace." The fraternity was welcomed to Hickory on that evening by W. A. Self, local lawyer.

Tuesday was devoted to the business of the association. Tuesday evening the Hickory Record was host at a banquet. Addresses were made by Thomas Dixon, author and playwright, and Judge Francis W. Winston.

On Wednesday the members took a trip to Blowing Rock.

A tea was given in honor of the ladies of the convention on the second day at the country club.

A. N. A. E. ADOPTS NEW MERCHANDISING RULES

Committee Appointed to Request Mat Services to Clean Up Their Typography—Agencies Asked to Improve Matrices—Frank T. Carroll Reelected President for Third Term

REVISED standards of merchandising practice were adopted at the closing session of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives in Philadelphia Wednesday. They state in more definite form and bring into conformity with present-day practice the standards originally proposed in 1920 and reaffirmed at the 1922 meeting of the association, and according to Louis Hill, chairman of the committee which presented the code, they represent the results of a detailed investigation among national advertisers and advertising agencies. The text of the new code appears in a box on this page.

Frank T. Carroll, advertising manager of the Indianapolis News, received his third re-election as president of the association, and William E. Donahue, of the Chicago Tribune, was returned as vice-president. Two honorary vice-presidencies were created, the offices going to Lieut. Col. Edward F. Lawson of the London Daily Telegraph, and Dr. Marcel Knecht, general secretary of Le Matin, Paris, both of whom addressed the meeting.

New directors were re-elected as follows: A. L. Shuman, Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Record-Telegram; H. S. Conlon, Grand Rapids Press; W. F. Rogers, Boston Transcript; Frank E. Tripp, general manager of the Gannett, Newspapers, Elmira, N. Y.; J. K. Groom, national advertising manager of the Aurora Beacon-News, Elgin Courier-News, and Joliet Herald-News; Irving R. Smith, Los Angeles Times; John F. Tims, Jr., New Orleans Times-Picayune; and Mr. Donohue.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Don Bridge, national advertising manager of the Indianapolis News and secretary-treasurer of the association for his abundant and intelligent work during his three years in that office. He will again serve during the coming year.

In addition to adopting the new merchandising code, the association approved three resolutions, the gist of which follow:

1. Authorizing the appointment of a committee to ask mat and cut services to local advertisers to clean up their typography, eliminating so far as possible reverse plates and black cuts and borders.

2. Expressing the association's appreciation of the courtesies extended by Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick, newspapers, business and civic clubs of Philadelphia.

3. Requesting advertising agencies to supply matrices of good quality to end the complaints from advertisers and newspapers of poor reproduction.

The A. L. Shuman trophy offered for the best success story of a newspaper advertising campaign was awarded to Mr. Tripp, who offered the story of a campaign carried in the Elmira Star-Gazette since 1923 by neighborhood grocers to offset the competition of the chain grocery stores. Mr. Tripp's story appears in full on page 8 of this issue.

Addresses were made at the closing sessions by Dr. Knecht and Col. Lawson. Dr. Knecht and Leon Renier, Jr., director of Agence Havas, were introduced to the newspaper men by James W. Brown, publisher of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, as the representatives of the French press at the advertising convention. Their appearance on the platform evoked applause that continued for several minutes.

Dr. Knecht, in his address, said that the lack of acquaintance between French and American newspaper men was due to faults on both sides of the Atlantic. He attributed it largely to the individualism of the French, who, unlike their American colleagues, have no liking for conventions. He spoke hopefully of changing this attitude of aloofness and bring about a closer rapprochement between the newspaper editors and business executives of France and the United States. The press in both countries, he averred, is the mightiest force in political and industrial life, and especially so in France, where, he said, it was the only continuing everlasting force. The 15 great newspaper proprietors of France, he said, were virtually kings.

Since his return to France from the United States in 1922, Dr. Knecht said, he had been working ceaselessly to bring the French press to realize the importance of cultivating the friendship of the American newspapers as a path to the sympathy of the American public. His present visit is a part of the plan to make French publishers and manufacturers see the possibilities afforded them by the great American market and to interest Americans in French thought and French products. So far no great tangible results are visible, but he believes that his next visit in October of this year will see the beginnings of closer trade relations.

The French press, he said, had undergone a great change since the war. Prior to 1914 the editor and the managing editor were the all-powerful rulers of French journalism. The advertising solicitor was as a rule a poorly paid and poorly equipped underling and advertising had litle standing as a source of newspaper revenue. Today, he said, the advertising manager of 1914 is in many cases the general manager, in complete charge of the newspaper including the editorial staff.

Col. Lawson described practices of London journalism and answered a score of questions that were popped at him from all corners of the room. He also told some interesting and hitherto unrelated anecdotes of the recent British strike.

The first actual hold-up of the press in connection with the strike occurred, he said, not in the Daily Mail pressroom, but in another paper, which was carrying a Government advertisement appealing for the enlistment of special constables. The pressmen objected to the copy, but a break was averted when the management withdrew the copy, wrongly, in the opinion of Col. Lawson, who spoke strongly against interference with the conduct of a newspaper by unresponsible employes.

The general suspension of London dailies and the absence of advertising in the emerkency editions brought about an unparalleled situation in the city's trade, he said. So great was the hunger for advertising space that one advertiser offered £1,000 for a single 22-inch column in the British Gazette, the government newspaper. The Daily Mail's rate for its 1,800,000 circulation, he said, is £1,500 for a seven-column page. The advertiser's offer was at the rate of $35,000 per page.

Another testimony of what people do when they are deprived of newspaper advertising was offered by Col. Lawson's statement that the Daily Telegraph, his own newspaper, which sells for 2 pence and carries a maximum of 24 pages, printed 3,300 individual advertisements in its first normal edition after the strike. It is one of the two great classified media of London.

President Woodbridge of the A. A. C. W. addressed the Wednesday morning session. He praised highly the association's response, through award of the Shuman trophy, to his request at Houston last year for more stories of successful advertising and urged the newspaper men to give their full support to the greater body when it is reorganized as the International Advertising Association. He said that the officers of the mother association had recognized the importance of the press to its prosperous existence in the nomination of Rowe Stuart, general manager of the Philadelphia Record, to be secretary of the I. A. A.

As usual, the newspaper men had so much to talk about that the time allotted them by the A. A. C. W. program committee proved inadequate and several "outlaw" sessions were conducted. The Monday morning session was largely spent in getting organized, but the afternoon session followed the schedule to the dot. And whatever may be said of other groups and of the general sessions regarding morning drowsiness, it won't be true if applied to the newspaper meetings, which are called to start at nine a. m. and are ready to start several minutes ahead of time.

Walter G. Bryan, president of the Walter G. Bryan Organization, of New York, discussed "Newspaper Efficiency," defining an efficient newspaper as "one which eliminates the things which interfere and energetically and enthusiastically plans its work and works its plan."

B. T. McCanna, manager of publicity of the Chicago Tribune, outlined the Tribune's many public service enterprises and demonstrated the goodwill that accrued to the newspaper through them.

L. E. McGivena, manager of publicity for the New York Daily News, and known to buyers and sellers of advertising as the author of the "Sell it to

(Continued on page 48)

A.N.A.E. group snapped at Philadelphia convention. Left to right: John Riegel, office of Dan A. Carroll, New York; Philadelphia Public Ledger reporter; Frank E. Tripp, Gannett Newspapers; Carl Slane, publisher, Peoria (Ill.) Journal-Transcript; Don Bridge, Indianapolis News; H. C. Carpenter, national advertising manager, Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer & News-Journal; L. S. Belville, Winona (Minn.) Republican-Herald; H. J. Depuy, Danbury, (Conn.) News; and Frank T. Carroll, Indianapolis News and A.N.A.E. president talking with Arthur Robb, managing editor, Editor & Publisher.

NEW A.N.A.E. MERCHANDISING STANDARDS

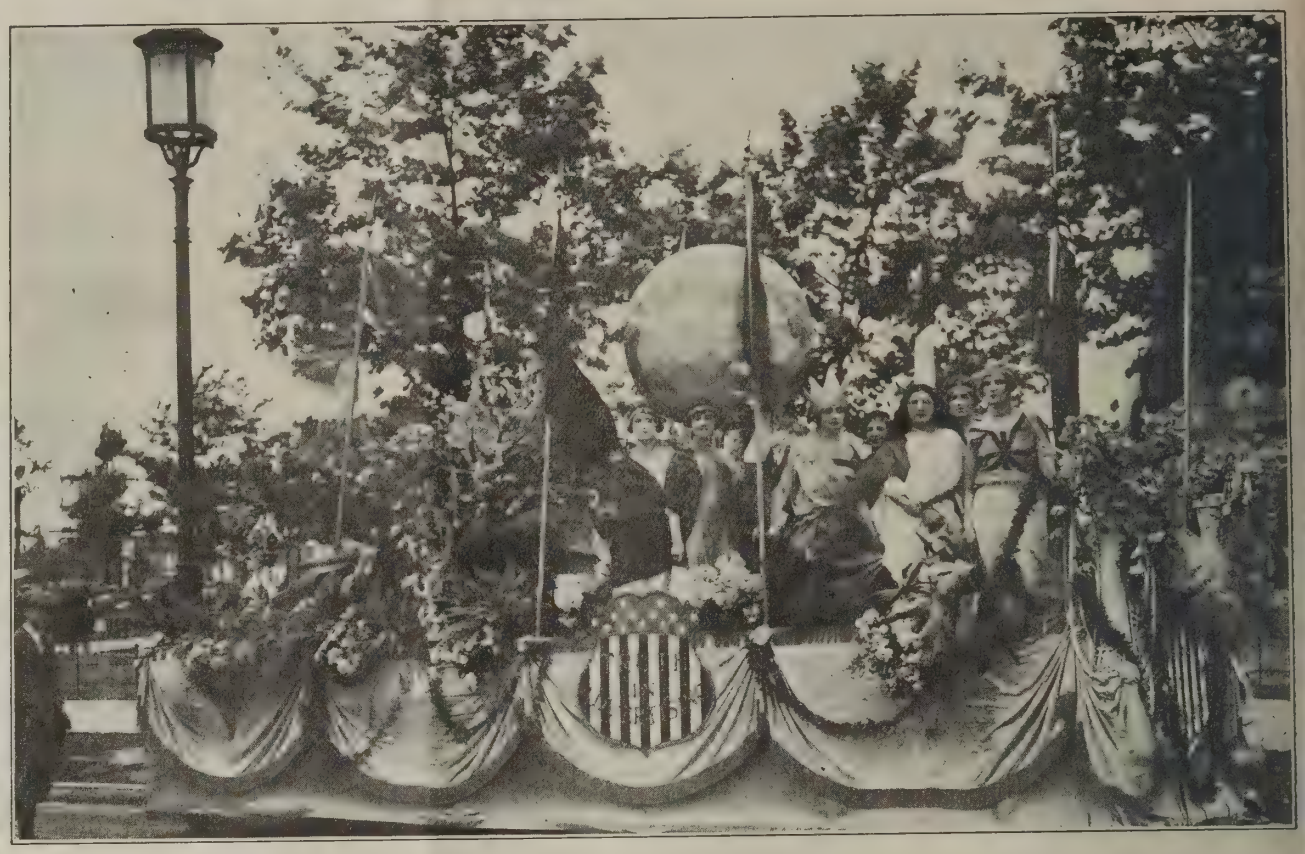
FOLLOWING are the revised standards of merchandising practice adopted by the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives at their Philadelphia convention this week:

It is the opinion of the members of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives, as based upon the results of a detailed investigation conducted among national advertisers and advertising agencies, that the common interests of national advertisers, advertising agencies and newspapers will be served best if the merchandising service policies of newspapers are based upon the following general principles:

1. Since the cost of merchandising service is a part of a newspaper's overhead, the publication should confine its activities and advertisers should limit their requests to those functions that the newspaper can perform cheaper or more efficiently than the advertiser or his agency can do them; all functions that the advertiser or the advertising agency can handle to better advantage should be eliminated as economically unsound.

2. The newspaper should tell the advertiser or advertising agency what service will or will not be given; the buyer of space should be satisfied if he secures all of the service that is available to any other advertiser under similar circumstances.

3. Newspapers should give honest and efficient service when it is promised and employ men who are capable of providing it.



4. Merchandising service which has definitely established its practical value to national advertisers and advertising agencies should not be used by the newspapers as the principal sales argument in soliciting national advertising.

5. Service should not be given to the new advertiser that is not available to the old customers; neither should service be given to the advertiser who is hard to sell if the same service is not available to the regular advertiser.

SCENES AND FIGURES IN WEEK'S WHIRL OF EVENTS

Benjamin Bache Huntingdon, great-great-grandson of Benjamin Franklin in Poor Richard Club section of A. A. C. W. pageant

One of the most attractive floats in the A.A.C.W. parade in Philadelphia, Monday, was that shown above designed by the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs. Those enacting the tableau are members of the Federation.

Above is the Baltimore float in the A.A.C.W. parade held in Philadelphia, Monday.

Photograph shows a group of French journalists, delegates to the A.A.C.W. Philadelphia convention who called on President Coolidge at the White House, Monday. They are (left to right): Marcel Knecht, general secretary of Le Matin, Paris; Leon Renier, vice-president of the Havas News Agency; and Robert Remy, American correspondent for the Havas Agency.

COLORFUL PAGEANTRY AT ADVERTISING CONVENTION

Philadelphia organizations joined with advertising men and women in staging a parade through the principal streets of the city, Monday, opening day of the A.A.C.W. convention. The photograph shows the Poor Richard Club of Philadelphia dressed in Benjamin Franklin costumes and carrying loaves of bread.

Joan of Arc, of the Kline Club, winner of the silver cup in the A.A.C.W. parade held in Philadelphia, Monday

Searchlight illuminating City Hall area—In the background is William Penn's famous statue atop the City Hall.

The photograph shows (left to right): H. R. Swartz, president of R. Hoe & Co., and treasurer, New York Advertising Club; Gil Hodges, New York Sun; C. C. Green, president, New York Advertising Club; and Clifton Jackson, secretary, snapped at the Philadelphia A. A. C. W. convention.

In the front row (left to right), is Mayor and Mrs. W. F. Kendrick of Philadelphia, "Benjamin Franklin," H. Innes and Howard C. Story of the Poor Richard Club. Mayor and Mrs. Kendrick with "Franklin" acted as hosts to the thousands attending the A.A.C.W. convention in Philadelphia this week.

Left to right—Sheldon R. Coons, advertising sales director of Gimbel Bros.; Adam L. Gimbel, of Saks, NewYork City; Paul M. Mazur, of Lichtman Bros., New York City.

HOW ADVERTISING SAVED ELMIRA GROCERS

Story of a Three-Year-Old Campaign, Which Won A. N. A. E. Prize Cup, of Successful Fight for Life Won for Small Stores Against Chains by Newspapers

By FRANK E. TRIPP
General Manager Gannett Newspapers

Mr. Tripp's account of the campaign won the cup donated by A. L. Shuman, Ft. Worth Star Telegram and Record-Telegram, for the best idea for development of local advertising submitted to the meeting of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives. Stories which won honorable mention will appear in subsequent issues.

IN March, 1923, the independent retail grocers of Elmira, N. Y., had reached a panicky situation as the result of constant inroads being made in their business by chain food stores.

Unable to compete with the prices offered by the chain store, slowly, the scattered independent grocers were seeing their business disappear and at a meeting of the Retail Grocers Association which the writer attended he heard several of them frankly state that they were at the point of closing stores which had been in existence as long as twenty years.

This meeting, back in 1923, was called to discover if there were some means which would save the independent grocer. The writer at that time was advertising manager of the Elmira Star-Gazette. He was invited to the meeting to discuss the advertising phase of their problem. Of the fifty or more independent grocers present only three of them had ever advertised and their advertising was decreasing in results because of the price competition of the chain store advertising.

The grocers laid their cards flat on the table and frankly admitted that they were in trouble, that they saw no means of competing with the low price situation. A chain food store had been established in the neighborhood of every one of them. The independent grocer was carrying the slow credit customer and furnishing the whole neighborhood with perishable foods and the chain store was walking away with the big volume and all the cash business.

Present at the meeting was the manager of the Elmira Wholesale Grocery Company, a wholesale house which had been established and was owned by independent grocers. This institution also was about discouraged.

Analysis of the situation proved it to be entirely a price problem. Out of the discussion, which lasted into the small hours of the morning, grew the now famous Elmira system of "Serv-U Save-U Grocers," who today are the most progressive and most prosperous food dealers in the city.

As the result of that meeting the Elmira Star-Gazette has carried since the first week in April 1923 a full page of food advertising every Thursday for this group of grocers, samples of which are attached. As the result of this activity on the part of these grocers other food advertisers doubled their space and non-advertisers jumped into the newspaper. The food linage of the Elmira Star-Gazette in a city of 50,000 people in 1925 was 700,000 lines, nearly double the food linage carried in the best year prior to 1923. Food linage in Elmira is second only to department stores. (In a gross business of 7,500,000 lines.)

The smallest linage used by the "Serv-U Save-U Grocers" in any one year since they started was 120,000 lines.

But the greatest value to the Star-Gazette has been that the 28 leading independent grocers in the city, each the leading grocer in a distinction neighborhood, have become so sold on newspaper advertising that no food salesman can place his goods on the shelves of Elmira's leading grocers without backing his line with newspaper advertising. These men show no interest whatever in the magazine pages and various other forms of advertising, but insist on newspaper support. It has resulted in a complete tie-up in the food situation in the columns of the Star-Gazette. No food salesman can be in Elmira an hour hardly before the Star-Gazette knows he is working there.

In the twenty-five years' contact with various newspapers the writer has never seen a piece of advertising which presents such far reaching value to a publication as this one, nor which automatically supplies such a secure and constant stream of linage. Solicitation of food linage in Elmira has almost ceased the last three years, so automatically has the business rolled in.

Because we expect to be asked how it was accomplished we are going to include the whole brief story.

Being a battle of price from the start we analyzed for the grocers the system they would have to follow if they got results. We told them that by some means, even if it meant a big loss, they must provide not less than six leaders a week which would compare in price with the prices offered by the chain stores, that they should use full pages, feature the specials at the low prices and fill the rest of the page with attractive items shaded as low as they could and still represent a profit. It was a tough job to sell these small merchants on this idea. If they were going to be forced out of business, they knew no reason why they shouldn't quit wtih their present loss, rather than increase it. Finally they agreed to try it for three weeks, but not until the manager of the wholesale house, operated by them, agreed to sell them the specials at his actual cost. The result was that the specials flashed out a cent or two under the prices quoted by the chain stores. Nobody made any profit on them. In fact the wholesale house lost the handling cost, but the effect was magical.

Almost from the very hour that the first full page carrying the specials and other items appeared every one of these stores began to see results. Two of the items advertised on the first night were sold out in every store in a few hours.

For the first few weeks the sales continued almost exclusively on the specia items and the grocers were inclined t be discouraged, but gradually the trend o business into their stores of old customer who had left them and new faces the had never seen began to work its wa into their general line and by the end o three months there was a waiting list o other grocers anxious to join the plan Today the grocers who are members o the "Serv-U Save-U Grocers" value thei membership as highly as the newspape values its A. P. franchise.

The wholesale reduction has continue through the years. Each week their ow wholesale house, which now is in healthy condition, delivers its specials a cost. But today these grocers are n dependent entirely upon their own whole sale house for these features.

Every wholesale house in the com munity is glad to serve them on th same basis. Today they each week as for bids from the wholesalers on speci items which they wish to offer. The lo bidder gets the order and the result they are able to offer prices on a standard food lines, including all canne and package goods and even potatoes a flour at prices as low and often muc lower than the forty odd chain stor with which they compete.

Very frequently manufacturers standard lines arrange with them dire for specials. Prominent among these a such goods as Shredded Wheat, Roy Gellatin, Kirkman Soap, Oxhart Pro ucts, Harris Extracts and a long li which might be named. They have al established their own brand of flo which they call Old Home Flour, man factured by one of the largest milli companies in the country. They ha their own brand of coffee, oleo, etc.

In short, they have established ther selves into a chain store organization their own, although each is an ind pendent dealer. They have not even corporated. They have a committ which meets every Monday and arrang all of the items and the prices. No pa ticipating grocer can change the decisi of this committee. He must sell at t price given him and he must have t goods in stock.

Elmira was the pioneer of this id which now is operating in modified for in many cities throughout the countr The president of the "Serv-U Save Grocers" makes an average of a speech month on the success in Elmira befo the grocers of some other city. Syracu was the first to copy the plan and n it may be found in almost every state the Union.

The outstanding feature of it all is th every man among them frankly adm that it was the newspaper advertisi which made the plan succeed and nev has there been a suggestion that the a vertising be curtailed.

Frank E. Tripp, Gannett newspapers, receiving the A. L. Shuman Cup from President Frank T. Carroll, after Tuesday's meeting of the A. N. A. E.

Page spread taken by Elmyra Grocers under Tripp Plan.

EYE-WITNESS STORY OF CARL MAGEE'S TRIAL

Fighting Editor Acquitted of Manslaughter by Directed Verdict on Judge Leahy's Own Testimony That He Sought Magee Out to Attack Him—No Defense Evidence Submitted

By E. H. SHAFFER
Managing Editor, New Mexico State Tribune

CARL C. MAGEE, editor of the Albuquerque (N. M.) State Tribune, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, has received justice in San Miguel county.

A judge in that county on Wednesday evening, June 16, ordered a jury to acquit the editor of a charge of manslaughter. The instructed verdict came at the end of the state's case and was based entirely on evidence offered by the prosecution.

Then after the jury had dutifully signed the verdict acquitting the editor it voluntarily issued an informal statement asserting that if the case had been placed in its hands it would have freed Magee on the strength of the state's evidence.

The editor went to Las Vegas Monday evening, June 14, to stand trial on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the accidental killing on August 21, 1925, of John B. Lassetter who had rushed to the aid of the editor as he lay on the floor trying to ward off an attack of former Judge D. J. Leahy, a bitter political enemy who sent him to jail in 1924 for contempt of court and who had the year previously sentenced him to prison on the same charge. In both instances Governor James F. Hinkle issued pardons, the second reprieve becoming effective after Magee had spent two days and nights in the San Miguel county jail.

Carl Magee

The New Mexico editor was exonerated of blame for the tragic accident that took the life of Lassetter without having introduced a line of evidence in his own behalf. After Judge Luis E. Armijo had instructed the jury, District Attorney Chester Hunker, Las Vegas, a Republican, said the judge's course was the only one to pursue in view of the evidence introduced.

Court convened in West Las Vegas Monday evening for the selection of jurors to try the case, which had attracted state- and nation-wide attention. Seated on the raised dais from which Judge D. J. Leahy, once presided was Judge Luis E. Armijo, the first Spanish-American judge ever to be elected in New Mexico and one of the youngest jurists in the United States. He is 38.

Judge Armijo, heavy set, dark, with alert, keen black eyes, swung nervously on his swivel chair as the tedious process of jury selection wore on throughout the afternoon. The judge, facing the heaviest docket in years, was quick to utilize every spare moment. When the jury selection lagged for a moment he would direct Sheriff Lorenzo Delgado to bring in a defendant who would be arraigned, bail set and trial date fixed, before the prisoner knew what had happened.

About four hours were consumed in selection of 12 men during which the state exhausted its right peremptory challenges and the defense only four of its 12.

The jury as finally composed consisted of 9 Spanish-speaking Americans and three "Anglo-Americans," necessitating the use of an interpreter throughout the trial. The jurors were, without exception, men who worked hard for a living. Their clothing was not of the latest cut, nor was it expensive. Their faces were browned by years of exposure to New Mexico sun and wind. But their glowing eyes missed no feature of the trial, no facial expression of a witness. Throughout the hearing the 12 crouched forward absorbing the running tale of the dramatic and tragic night of Aug. 21.

At one side of the little court room, seated at the head of a long golden oak table sat Sheriff Lorenzo Delgado, characterized by women correspondents as the "most handsome peace officer of the southwest." It was Sheriff Delgado who escorted Carl Magee to the jail up a side street in June, 1924, and who declined to honor a pardon issued by Governor Hinkle until habeas corpus proceedings had relieved him of responsibility in the matter.

At a table directly in front of the judge sat the defendant and his three attorneys, Judge R. H. Hanna, formerly Justice of the Supreme Court, and a veteran in every one of Magee's previous legal battles; Attorney General Fred E. Wilson, whose continuance in the case was permitted by virtue of his being docketed before he was appointed Attorney General last winter, and J. S. Vaught, reputed one of the cleverest cross examiners in the southwest.

It was Hanna and Wilson who were disbarred by Judge Leahy because they proposed in his own court to show that he was corrupt on the occasion of one of Magee's criminal libel trials. The two sat mute in the same court in 1924 when the editor again faced criminal libel and contempt of court charges brought by Leahy. Counsel, said the editor commenting at that time, was more valuable out of jail than in, hence it was arranged that they should withdraw appearance.

In one corner of the room stood the press table, about which were gathered representatives of the United Press, Associated Press, International News Service and correspondents for various New Mexico papers. In an adjacent room were installed leased wires and special telegraph loops.

At another table sat District Attorney Chester A. Hunker, bulking large in stature, slow, deliberate. His actions indicated that he himself did not believe the evidence in the case warranted the hope of a conviction nor did he assume the role of a driving, charging prosecutor bent on the worst he could do to the defendant. One of his questions when challenging jurors was: "Do you think you can hear this evidence with justice to Mr. Magee as well as to the state?"

Thursday morning the state plunged quickly into presentation of evidence and by night had put 8 witnesses on the stand, including former Judge Leahy.

It was Judge Leahy who established without doubt that the editor had fired in self defense. His testimony was a frank and startling admission of his animosity toward the editor and of his decision to punish him outside of the law since his efforts to reach him "within the law" had failed because of Governor Hinkle's pardons.

There was a tense moment in court as the big ex-jurist strode to the witness box, his head thrown back belligerently, his cold gray eyes defiantly searching the court room. He sat perfectly at ease in the witness chair, answering questions in deliberate emphatic tone, occasionally rubbing his hands together and frequently grinning mirthlessly as some phase of his own testimony amused him.

After a few preliminary questions and answers Leahy plunged voluntarily into his story of the events that led to the shooting. He spoke coldly, deliberately.

"I saw Magee sitting on the divan in the hotel lobby," he said. "I went over to Magee and the reason I did so was this: In one of his numerous articles about me he had stated in substance that he would like to meet me man to man and he would take me to a cleaning. This was the first time I had seen him since I left the bench. I did not feel I should start any difficulty as long as I occupied that position, but when I saw him there I instantly concluded I would give him the opportunity to meet me man to man. I said, 'we meet man to man now you ———.' He didn't say anything and I hit him. I immediately struck three blows but I am not sure that the last one landed."

Leahy went on to tell how he struck the editor, told of the bullet from Magee's revolver striking his arm and of how he kicked the editor as he lay on the floor. He admitted asking a companion if he had a gun.

"I kicked him in the ribs," the ex-judge said on later questioning.

On cross-examination Leahy was asked what he had in mind that caused him to attack Magee.

"His editorials," replied Leahy, "that and the desire to punish him. I tried to punish Magee through the law and through intercession of the Governor was prevented from doing so. I felt that physical punishment administered by myself was the only thing left. I didn't feel I should do it while I was a judge. It was my choice that we should not meet while I was on the bench but after I left the bench I felt differently about it.

"I did not carry the idea in my mind but I felt that if we ever met it would immediately come back in my mind," Leahy said.

"I had the feeling I would like to punch him," he continued, "when I saw I couldn't reach him through the laws under the state government as it was constituted."

Leahy told the court he had often said he would like to whip him while he was still on the bench but could not recall ever having made that threat after his departure from it.

June Wheaton, the first state witness called, in simple phrases drew a vivid picture of the tragedy. Wheaton, a mechanic, was dressed in khaki. He wore no tie.

"I saw Judge Leahy walk up to the settee, knock Carl Magee off on the floor and proceed to beat him up," he testified. "I saw Carl Magee kick at Leahy, then there was some shooting. Leahy walked up to me and said: 'I'm shot. Have you got a gun? I'll kill that ———.'"

Mr. Bernice Huyck, a reporter for the Las Vegas Optic, was a witness for the state. The editor, as a member of the State Insane Asylum Board, was giving her an interview when the tragedy occurred. She had rather rough sailing under cross-examination and she did not attempt much to conceal her resentment at efforts of Attorney Vaught to prove a discrepancy in a story appearing in the Albuquerque Morning Journal, and her testimony at the inquest. She was the Journal correspondent and sent them the story. She declared the story appeared with variations from the version she originally gave the paper.

Other eye-witnesses were called to establish facts of the shooting and their testimony was unanimous that Judge Leahy knocked the editor from the divan as he himself admitted he had. In cross-examination it was brought out that the blow was struck from behind, knocking the editor to the floor.

The state rested suddenly. Judge Armijo announced a night session. As the audience moved slowly from the court room attorneys for the editor an-

(Continued on page 51)

"I EXPECT TO GO ON WITH MY FIGHT"

Carl C. Magee telegraphed the following statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER after his acquittal last week:

"AT your request I am saying a few words to the editors of America regarding my acquittal at Las Vegas. Of course I am glad to be free from legal entanglement, but the great thing for me is the testimony of Judge Leahy that his assault was due to his determination to punish me physically because I defeated his efforts as Judge to curb the freedom of the press; succeeded in my determination to drive his court out of its alliance with a corrupt political ring, and made a victorious fight to force him from the bench. He did not charge me with contributing otherwise to the attack. In other words, the vital thing to me was for the public to know that I am not a barroom brawler; that I sought no physical encounter; that I was where I had a right to be and was attending to my own business, and that the unprovoked assault came out of a clear sky because I had made a concrete newspaper fight for our most fundamental American rights. This confession from Leahy leaves my self-respect unimpaired.

"This affair has not altered my plans or determination. New Mexico is improving rapidly in a political way. I expect to go on with my fight until we bring the complete establishment of our constitutional fundamentals in this state. The price I have paid is not too high, although I shall regret until I die that my hand held the pistol that accidentally killed Lassetter. The court's decision makes it clear that the blood of this young man is on Leahy's hands; not on mine. I thank American editors for their uniform fairness to me. "CARL C. MAGEE."

DAILY TO CARRY FIGHT AGAINST COURT SECRECY TO SUPREME COURT

Madison Capital-Times Attacking Right of Judge to Impose Silence Upon Witnesses—Case of Wide Interest to Newspapers

A DECISION from the Supreme Court of Wisconsin respecting freedom of the press and the right of courts of justice to conduct proceedings in secrecy is the goal sought for by the Madison Capital Times in its present fight against secrecy in the Dane county circuit court.

That decision, if it is obtained, may be of far-reaching interest to newspaper men of the nation and may set a precedent for attacking the practices of judges in other states which restrict freedom of newspapers to publish their proceedings.

The Capital Times is in an awkward position in its present suit. For in order that its test case be a success and be carried to the Supreme court, the newspaper does not want Judge Hoppman to dissolve an injunction issue imposed upon it several months ago when the trial of the slayer of a policeman was in progress.

That order enjoined the Capital Times from publishing anything that transpired during a court hearing conducted at the time of the trial of the slayer to determine whether prejudice was being stirred up in Madison in favor of the slayer as the Capital Times had charged in several editorials.

Philip L. La Follette, district attorney of Dane county, representing Judge Hoppman, has filed a counter brief arguing for a dissolution of the injunction on the grounds that the emergency that existed during the trial of the slayer has passed.

The Capital Times is now seeking to carry the matter to the Supreme Court and hopes that Judge Hoppman will refuse to dissolve the injunction. It will seek to settle these claims:

1. There is no warrant in law for holding the proceedings of a court behind closed doors.

2. That a newspaper cannot be enjoined from printing testimony given in a court except where expressly provided by law in the cases of minors and salacious testimony.

3. That a court cannot enjoin a witness from repeating the testimony he has given in a court.

Attorney William H. Spohn, appearing for the Capital Times in the court of Judge Hoppman last week, argued that:

"There is no statute in Wisconsin prohibiting anybody from publishing what went on in the court room. Where prohibitions have been made they have been grounded on the power of the court to punish for contempt.

"There may be a question as to whether or not the proceeding was one in open court while the court was in session. The court will recall that it expressly states that it was sitting as a court when it made the order."

In its argument for publication of what took place during the hearing over which an injunction had been placed, the Capital Times declared that:

"Since the court has commented on the evidence, there can be no possible objection to the community reading what the witnesses said, and that is the only purpose of the motion.

"The Capital Times and William T. Evjue, its editor, have sought counsel. That would seem to be the right of the newspaper and its editor. The court has enjoined the editor of the paper from stating what he was questioned about in the court room. The editor is prohibited from seeking the advice of counsel as to whether or not the injunction is valid.

"The injunction is entirely too broad since it purports to seal the mouth of William T. Evjue and to prohibit him from discussing the situation with his lawyers."

No good has ever come from holding a judicial investigation behind closed doors, Attorney Spohn argued, in closing.

"Pursuant to our constitution that jealously guarded freedom of speech, and under it newspapers flourish," concluded Mr. Spohn. "The censored press is a subservient press. If the censorship be for a bad purpose, the result is the same.

"There can be no censorship of the press, and no freedom of the press. It makes little difference, probably, what any particular witness testified in the last hearing. But is important to the community that it have a right to learn what witnesses say when they are in the court room.

"A newspaper would not be truly performing its function if it submitted to the slightest infringement of its rights to freely publish the facts and its sentiments on all subjects free from interference, judicial or otherwise, being responsible for the abuse of such privilege."

A decision on the injunction is being awaited from Judge Hoppman. The Capital Times will carry the case to the Supreme Court as soon as he refuses to dissolve the injunction.

U. S. ADVERTISING LEADERS HONORED BY FRANCE

ADVERTISING leaders of the United States were honored by France this week.

Dr. Marcel Knecht, head of the French delegation on Thursday night presented decorations of the French Republic on those named below.

By the President of the Republic of France: Chevalier of the Legion of Honor upon C. K. Woodbridge, New York, President, International Advertising Association and Lou E. Holland, Kansas City, past president, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

By the Minister of Labor, Republic of France: Order of Social and Civic Service, gold cross, upon Rowe Stewart, Philadelphia, chairman, Poor Richard Club Convention Committee; Order of Civil Merit, gold cross, upon Paul Meyer, New York, publisher, Theatre Magazine; James Wright Brown, publisher, Editor & Publisher; C. C. Green, president, Advertising Club of New York; Howard C. Story, president, Poor Richard Club, Philadelphia.

Order of Social and Civic Service, silver cross, upon Edward E. Pidgeon, New York, dramatic editor, Journal of Commerce; H. R. Swartz, treasurer, Advertising Club of New York; bronze cross, same order, upon Clifton D. Jackson, secretary, Advertising Club of New York and Earle W. Pearson, general manager, International Advertising Association.

The presentations were made when advertising delegates were the guests of the French group Thursday night at the first performance in this country of the film based on Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables." The French delegates chartered the Forrest Theatre for the occasion.

N. Y. Times Printing Sectional Rotos

Three new tabloid sectional rotogravure sections are now being issued with the Sunday edition of the New York Times. Territories represented are New Jersey, Westchester, and Long Island. Each tabloid section, containing 16 pages, is only distributed in the territory in the interests of which it is published. News pictures of interest to the respective communities are reproduced.

OHIO NEWSPAPER TRANSACTION

Lima Gazette Purchased by Morning Star and Suspended

The Lima (O.) Morning Star purchased the Lima Gazette and discontinued its publication with the issue of June 19. The Star also has leased the entire first floor of the Gazette building and will move in as soon as alterations have been made.

The purchase included press, equipment, good will, circulation, foreign advertising and syndicate features. Frank L. Maire represented the Star in the negotiations and W. L. Galvin the News.

The Gazette was recently purchased by the Lima News published evenings and Sunday morning. A. E. Clayden represents the News in the national advertising field.

EDITORS REJECT SPACE TRADING PLAN

Long Island Group Fails to Accept Membership in Booster Group in Exchange for Ad Space—All Officers Re-elected

Rejection of a free advertising plan sponsored by the Long Island Association whereby Long Island publishers were to be given memberships in the group in exchange for advertising space was a feature of the annual business meeting and outing of the Long Island Press Association held at Rockaway Beach, Monday, June 21.

The proposition of the Long Island Association was presented by George Schubel of that group. Jesse Merritt of the Farmingdale Post, speaking for the Press Association, declared he did not think it good policy for the publishers to donate space for memberships, and suggested that individual publishers pay cash for their memberships and sell their space to the Long Island Association in a regular manner.

An advertising committee was formed by the publishers to discuss methods of promotion for the coming year. The members of this committee were: A. J. Ball, Richmond Hill Leader-Observer; Hugo Seeselberg, Flatbush Observer; Jesse Merritt, Farmingdale Post; G. D. Bacon, Rockville Center Owl; and Joseph Arnold, Greenpoint Home News.

A resolution was unanimously adopted, requesting the Post Office Department to discontinue the printing of envelopes at less than cost in competition with publishers who run job printing plants.

All officers of the Association were re-elected for another year. They are: Frank Marlowe, Greenpoint Home News, president; Mrs. Adelaide Huntington, Seacliffe News; Alfred J. Ball, Richmond Hill Leader-Observer; and Frank E. Johnson, Sayville Suffolk County News, vice-president; Vernon A. Williams, Hempstead Enquirer, recording secretary; Miss Freda Fisher, Bellmore Courier, financial secretary; Mrs. Mabel Witte Merritt, Farmingdale Post, treasurer.

After adjournment of the business meeting, the publishers were guests of the Chamber of Commerce of the Rockaways at a shore dinner. George Le Boutellier, vice-president of the Long Island Railroad; J. J. Rieter, New York Telephone Company, and Richard J. Gipson, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Rockaways, spoke.

Other speakers at the dinner were William H. Neel of the New York Times; Major Robert Crestwood of the New York Herald Tribune, and W. L. Woodward of the Long Island Railroad.

The remainder of the day was spent in amusements provided by the Chamber of Commerce of the Rockaways. A theatre party in the evening concluded the outing.

Yelverton Seriously Ill

William H. Yelverton, formerly with the Consolidated Press in Washington, and previous to that with several Southern newspapers, is seriously ill in the Homan Sanatarium, El Paso, Tex.

PROGRAM READY FOR S. N. P. A. MEETING

Twenty-fourth Annual Convention to Be Held at Grove Park Inn, Asheville, N. C., July 6-8—Golf Important Feature of Gathering

The program for the 24th annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association to be held at the Grove Park Inn, Asheville, N. C., July 6-8, was announced this week.

Golf to be played afternoons during the gathering is an important feature of the annual affair.

As issued by the association, the program follows:

TUESDAY, JULY 6

Convention called to order by President Walter C. Johnson.

Roll call; introduction of guests; report of president; report of secretary-treasurer; report of manager; election of new members; appointment of special committees.

Reports of committees:

1. Advertising (Edgar M. Foster, Chairman).
2. Agency Relations (Membership Confidential). Report by Victor H. Hanson.
3. Business Office Affairs (John A. Park, Chairman).
4. Editorial Affairs (Robert Lathan, Chairman).
5. Labor (F. C. Withers, Chairman).
6. Postal and Legislation (Col. Robert Ewing, Chairman).
7. Washington and Lee School of Journalism (Major John S. Cohen, Chairman).
8. Traffic Affairs (Cranston Williams, Chairman).

WEDNESDAY, JULY 7

Introduction of guests; further consideration of reports of committees; symposium; report of committee on nominations; election of officers.

THURSDAY, JULY 8

Introduction of guests; symposium; reports of special committees: auditing, resolutions, memorials.

Selection of 1927 meeting place.

Adjournment.

Many entertainment features have been provided. At 4 p. m. Tuesday there will be an automobile tour for those not playing golf, followed by a reception and tea given by the Asheville Citizen at 5:30. At 8 p. m. Prof. Ben J. Potter will give an organ recital. Evening speakers will be Oscar Wells, president of the American Bankers Association and Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press.

The A. P. film showing how news is gathered all over the world will be shown.

On Wednesday there will be golf in the afternoon, and a card party for the ladies. At 9 p. m. the delegates will gather to hear addresses by Dr. Frank Bohn and Dr. Gus Dyer, the latter of Vanderbilt University.

TENNESSEEANS TO ORGANIZE

Publishers of State to Form a Press Association July 9

Tennessee publishers and printers have been called to meet Friday, July 9, at 10 a. m. in Nashville for the purpose of organizing a state press association.

Those calling the meeting are Laps D. McCord, Jr., Pulaski, and J. W. Womack, McMinnville, of the Middle Tennessee Press association; C. W. Brooks and Allison Simonton, of the West Tennessee Press association; and S. M. Frame and H. O. Eckel, of the East Tennessee Press association.

The meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce in Nashville and the visitors will be entertained in that city.

Although each of the three divisions of the state has for several years had separate press associations, there has been no state press association.

WHAT INFORMATION SHOULD PUBLIC BE DENIED?

Suppression of Lies and Unprovable Hearsay Is Important Duty of Press and Is Behind Law of Libel and Privilege Now Being Argued in Texas

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Libel law was a topic under discussion at a recent meeting of the Texas Press Association at San Antonio.

The questions brought out are of general as well as local interest, and are taken up this week in the 15th article obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

WHAT "information" should be denied readers of a newspaper?

The answer to this question is obvious, but, in the light of current clamor of a certain section of the press of this country, it is plainly in need of restatement.

Suppression of lies and unprovable rumor is an important duty of the press, and is behind the law of libel and its construction as it is being argued today in Texas.

A provision of the Texas statute, accounting as privileged and therefore not actionable "a fair, true, and impartial account of public meetings, organized and conducted for public purposes only" has been construed by the state's special supreme court as coming under the rules applying to fair comment and criticism, this court has held that comment and criticism of "motives" is not privileged.

The Texas press is virtually united in objecting to this court ruling, claiming that criticisms of acts and motives of public officials are very often inseparable, and that, therefore, it has become impossible for newspapers to make a "fair, true and impartial account of public meetings."

"The people are denied adequate information of the discussion of candidates seeking their votes," in the words of the Dallas News, expressed in a recent editorial.

The situation in Texas is not unique, according to Carl Helm, of the Hearst Bureau of Libel Survey, conducted under the direction of William A. DeFord, chief counsel of the Hearst Corporations.

No newspaper in Texas denies that the truth is a defense in libel litigation has for many years been uncontroverted. The same fact is true throughout the nation. It is common law. Texas newspapers can safely criticize the motives of public officials, if they can prove the motives by established facts.

The Dallas News believes that the provision of the libel law should be amended, "for the reason that it has been construed to mean something else than what it says."

"If the people really want true, fair and impartial reports of such (public) meetings, then this provision should be amended so as clearly to define what are public meetings and what part of the proceedings should be reported," the editorial in the Dallas News reads.

"The law declares to be privileged true, fair and impartial reports of judicial, executive and legislative proceedings, and the courts have upheld these provisions. If the people want newspapers also to publish what takes place in public meetings, what is said, and shown as to the conduct of government and the fitness of candidates for office, the people will say so, and the newspapers will furnish the reports. If the people do not want such reports, the newspapers will acquiesce, or they have attempted to report the public meetings only in a desire to render public service."

"Well, what is the public service a newspaper can best render?" asked an important member of the bar, and a newspaper lawyer, when the question of "privilege" as it is being argued in Texas was brought to him by EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Facts, facts, facts! he answered his own question. The greatest value of a newspaper is as a broadcaster of facts. Are newspapers going into the business of spreading unprovable hearsay, political claptrap and lies? Assuredly that is not the purpose of a free press.

And yet were newspapers privileged to report "fairly and truly" public meetings in the course of which lies and slander were passed by fiery politicians, without the restraint and the necessity of proving the libel they repeat, there would be more "bunk" set afloat even than there is today.

To bring the question and lay it neatly on the publishers' own doorsteps imagine a "public meeting" called by anyone at all to be held at Times Square, New York.

One after another speakers might get up and tell damnable lies about the various newspapers in the city and the motives of the publishers in handling the news in the manner they do. Fortunately for all concerned, publishers as well as any other individual, freedom of the press does not permit the spreading of lies without the penalty of possible heavy libel damages.

In New York state, and in other states generally, the interpretation of "privilege" has been that the press is permitted to publish a fair and true report of "public and official" proceedings. Official is inserted to place responsibility in responsible hands. By public and official meetings is meant reports of judicial, executive and legislative proceedings. To the fair minded that is as it should be.

As told by another important member of the bar, and a noted newspaper lawyer, another imagined case illustrates the point.

A man introduces a bill in the state legislature which is plainly in the interests of the railroads. A newspaper can prove and publish that the railroads alone will benefit by the bill; that the public is being mulcted; but a newspaper cannot say that the railroads hired the legislator to serve them, unless the newspaper is able to prove it. Then the truth is justification for the published alleged libel.

A man might introduce such a bill and not be bribed to do it. Certainty and provability of facts is a newspaper's surest defence.

"You can't make up your facts," this lawyer said. "You've got to have true facts. And a newspaper is held responsible in court if it permits some outsider to imagine facts for it."

The rule of privilege in one libel suit is now being argued in New York. The case has not yet been before a trial jury.

A doctor, engaged in the manufacture of vaccines, widely advertised that his remedies could cure 80 per cent of the diseases this world is heir to, including tuberculosis and epilepsy. One vaccine was claimed as being powerful enough to treat 35 different diseases.

A publication printed the facts about this doctor under the ironic heading "Vaccines for Broken Legs." It criticized the doctor's claims as being extravagant and declared that a high degree of skill was needed in the use of potent vaccines. It called the doctor a faker, a charlatan, and a menace to the community. It classed the doctor's advertising as preposterous.

Is that "fair comment and criticism"? That is the question being argued. When the doctor sued for libel, the defendant, replying to the pleading, moved for dismissal of the suit on the grounds that the article complained of was privileged as fair comment and criticism. The appelate division of the New York supreme court has ruled out the right of privilege, and the question is next to be argued before a jury.

The publication must prove the truth of all the charges it has made against the doctor. Defense attorneys are confident of success, because, they maintain, the inferences regarding the doctor were drawn from established facts.

If the defense cannot prove the facts, the doctor is entitled to collect damages.

The Texas law is the same in this regard. The widest latitude is permitted newspapers in publishing fair comment and criticism about candidates for public office and on questions, such as medical theories, which are of public concern. But, to be libel-proof anywhere the comment and criticism must be based on established and provable facts.

Sidney Samuels, Fort Worth lawyer, has asserted that a new libel law is not needed for Texas and that if publishers seek a substitute for the present statute they will put themselves in the light of seeking "license rather than liberty."

In other words they will be attacking the fundamental and worthy theory behind all libel law, which is restraint against widerspread repetition of lies. The only information that should be denied readers is false and misleading information.

G. B. Dealey, president of the Dallas News, has said:

"Newspapers will have abundant libel troubles unless newspaper makers get it clearly in their minds that individuals have rights that must be respected, and they will not get needed amendments of the libel law if they put themselves in the attitude of seeking license rather than liberty, nor unless they learn such simple things as that the truth already is a defense, * * * * unless they seek to suppress the erroneous statements of friends rather than featuring them, tickled, as is a child, with a pat on the back."

Mr. Dealey's paper only recently argued editorially that the fact of an "innocent error ought not to be a complete bar to recovery if the publication really is libellous and has harmed," and cited as illustration the following incident:

"Some years ago a Texas newspaper published a very brief dispatch relating that a fruit canner had filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. It transpired that no such petition had been filed; the correspondent had been misled. The canner notified the publisher of his error. An adjuster was sent to see him. He had already placed the case with a reputable law firm. The canner was a man of high character, reputation and standing. The prospect seemed anything but rosy for the publisher. But the lawyers volunteered to stand out of the way of a settlement, and the canner and adjuster went to it. They found that the canner had sustained a loss of $750 by reason of the refusal of twenty-eight carloads of fruit by jobbers, and the piling up of demurrage charges on the cars. It was further agreed that probable losses amounted to $750 more. The canner agreed to accept $1,500 in settlement, further stipulating that his town was to be "written up." He got the cash, literally "on the barrel head," and the write-up in due course. The publisher felt that it was just for him to make this payment and to charge it up to the hazards of the business and he still so feels."

OCHS HONORED BY NEW YORK UNIVERSITY

THE honorary degree of Doctor of Letters was conferred upon Adolph S. Ochs, New York Times publisher, at the recent 94th annual commencement of New York University. Photograph shows the publisher receiving his degree. At extreme left is Prof. James Melvin Lee, director of Journalism, New York University, and writer of "Our Own World of Letters" for EDITOR & PUBLISHER, who conducted Mr. Ochs to the rostrum.

Conger Joins Booth Newspapers

Beach Conger has been appointed Detroit representative and special writer of the Booth newspapers of Michigan by Edmund Booth, editorial director of the Booth papers.

DAILY'S HEADLINE ATTACKED

Attorney Attempts to Have Paper Cited for Attempt of Court

"Sensational, startling, unBritish, unethical" and "unfair" were the adjectives used recently in describing an eight column streamer on the front page of the Peterboro (Ont.) Examiner, "DWYER CHILD NEVER LEARNED A PRAYER," by F. D. Kerr, K. C., defending counsel, during a sensational trial here.

Kerr made the remarks in an attempt to have the Examiner cited for contempt of court. The attempt failed.

BUFFALO STAR TABLOID, MERGED BY CONNERS

Evening Daily Suspended Monday and Features Incorporated in Consolidated Morning Paper—Many Staff Shifts

With the suspension of the Tabloid Buffalo Star on June 19, publishers of the Buffalo Courier and Express were confronted with the problem of endeavoring to find positions for the veterans of the editorial staffs of three newspapers. In this problem every effort was made to recognize long and valued service, with the result that veterans of the three newspapers now form the staff of the single publication which has succeeded them.

In announcing the merger of the newspapers and the termination of publication of the Star as such the following announcement was made on June 18.

"Since the merger of the Courier and Express every effort has been made to put into the pages of that great morning newspaper every worthwhile feature obtainable. Some such features have been appearing regularly in the Daily Star.

"With a view to making the Courier and Express the most up-to-date and interesting newspgaper in the country, it has been decided to merge the Daily Star with the Courier and Express, effective Monday, June 21, and by that process bring into the pages of the combined new morning paper all of the fine features for which the Star was noted.

"With tomorrow afternoon's issue the Star leaves the afternoon field, but takes its place Monday morning in the morning field, merged with the Courier and Express."

The Star was two years old. It succeeded the Buffalo Enquirer, former afternoon paper of W. J. Conners, founded in 1891.

In less than six months Buffalo's list of daily English newspapers has been reduced from six to three, through suspension of the Buffalo Evening Post and the subsequent merger of the Express, Star and Courier.

Burrows Matthews, former publisher of the Buffalo Express, is now editor of the Courier and Express and president of the publishing company, of which William J. Conners, Jr., is editor. The other principal executives and the publication with which they formerly were connected, are: managing editor, John D. Wells, Courier; feature editor, John Tranter, Star; night city editor, C. H. McChesney, Courier; day city editor, Fred T. Turner, Courier; financial editor, Fred M. McLennan, Express.

The staff also includes these executives: telegraph editor, C. H. Newman; rotogravure, E. L. Wathen; chief editorial writer, M. W. Willner, associate, Frank Hammond; sports, William Kelly, associate, Horace W. Lerch; Sunday, W. E. J. Martin; society, Mary Swan; women's organizations, Ann Harlow.

George Earle, formerly of the Buffalo Express, becomes Sunday editor of the Buffalo Times. Frank Morrison of the Express and Gordon Hollier of the Courier have joined the Times editorial staff and Pat Harris, former Star photographer, is now with the Times. A staff of 20 reporters has been retained from a combination of the three former newspapers' staffs.

The first edition of the Sunday Courier and Express was one of 134 pages, said to have been the largest Sunday newspaper issued in Buffalo. A new rate card is now being issued by the combined publication.

Hastings Host to N. E. Publishers

Charles H. Hastings, publisher of the Lynn (Mass.) Item was host recently to the New England Newspaper Alliance at the Tedesco Country Club in Swampscott. Members of the alliance will be the guests of William J. Pape, publisher of the Waterbury (Conn.) Republican-American at his plant in September.

CHANGES ON HERALD TRIBUNE

W. J. Fenton, Assistant City Editor Joins Times—Succeeded by Roney

Several staff changes took place this week on the New York Herald Tribune.

Walter J. Fenton, assistant city editor, and for almost eight years a member of the staff in various capacities, resigned last week to join the staff of the New York Times.

Mr. Fenton came to the Herald Tribune immediately after the war, before which he had spent a number of years on the New York World. Garner P. Roney succeeds him as assistant city editor.

Barr Gray, of the reportorial staff, was transferred to the financial editorial department, and Ned MacIntosh from the copy desk to the general staff.

Bert McDonald, formerly of the New York Evening Post, has been added to the staff. Other recent additions to the staff are: Richard T. Crandell, Hartwell Hatton, R. S. Kain, Charles Willis Thompson, and John Curley, who was formerly with the Paris edition of the Herald Tribune.

DAILY LOSES $15,000 LIBEL APPEAL

Texas Court Says Malice Entered Into San Antonio Express Attack on Police Chief — Article Printed in 1917

On the heels of Supreme Court decisions reversing one libel suit each against the San Antonio Express and the San Antonio Light, and a decision in the Austin Court of Civil Appeals reversing and remanding for new trial a suit against the San Antonio Evening News, the Texas Supreme Court has affirmed judgments of the lower courts awarding $15,000 damages to F. H. Lancaster against the San Antonio Express.

Lancaster sued as the result of an alleged libelous article published Dec. 23, 1917, when he was chief of police at San Antonio. Both he and the judge of the Corporation Court were criticized by the publication during a campaign against vice.

Actual malice in publication of the article was found by jurors trying the case, and that finding was sustained by the Court of Civil Appeals.

"Consequently, we can not disturb it here, unless it can be said there is no evidence tending to establish actual malice," asserted the opinion written by Judge Ben F. Powell. "We have reviewed the record carefully and can not make such a statement."

Continuing, the opinion stated: "We have no disposition to bridle the press of the state. It is rendering a valuable service to the people. In fact, we are heartily in favor of the freedom of the press. But we do not wish to be unmindful of the corresponding importance to every man of maintaining his reputation for honesty and integrity. This reputation is dear to him. It is the most valuable asset of any man. It is in no sense less valuable simply because a man may hold a public office.

"When a newspaper charges a person with corruption, it must do so truthfully, or at least base its charge on a state of facts which might be deemed probable cause to justify such a charge. There is a vast difference between mere inefficiency in office and corruption therein. Of course, inefficiency may reach the point where it is a cause for removal, but not generally so. A man may be honorable and hold his head erect, although inefficient. But he can not face his fellowmen in confidence when he is corrupt or when newspapers have given him that reputation. In singling out individuals and charging them with corruption in office, the press is dealing with a situation of most vital import to the person attacked. As we view it, it is just as serious as it would be to shoot him with a gun or stab him with a knife. Great caution should be exercised in doing so."

READING TRIBUNE SOLD TO JOHN H. PERRY

Chain Publisher Merges Latest Purchase with His Reading Times—Two Papers Left in Field—Morning and Evening

John H. Perry, publisher of the Reading (Pa.) Times and other dailies, this week purchased the Reading Tribune and suspended it June 23. The deal was between Mr. Perry and Robert Grey Bushong, representing the Tribune Publishing Company. The consideration was not disclosed. Mr. Perry purchased the plant and circulation of the Tribune. The plant was said to be inventoried at $100,000.

JOHN H. PERRY

Elimination of the Tribune leaves two papers in Reading, the Times, morning, and the Reading Eagle, evening, both members of the Associated Press.

"Reading is an ideal two-paper town," Mr. Perry said to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, announcing the transaction. "Elimination of the extra daily is a great thing for the city in a newspaper line. Merchants formerly afforded smattering coverage in four papers, may now get intensive coverage using both dailies."

Mr. Perry claimed his Reading Times this week signed up with Pomeroy's department store the largest advertising contract ever placed in that city.

The contract, to run two years, calls for minimum expenditure of $90,000 and maximum of $120,000 a year.

Besides the Times, Mr. Perry is publisher of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Journal, and the Pensacola (Fla.) Journal and News.

Stokes Succeeds Jackson in Austin

A. M. Jackson, advertising manager of the Austin (Tex.) American-Statesman for the past year, and for the Austin American prior to that time, has resigned to become retail manager of the Hicks Rubber Company of Amarillo, Tex., one of the 32 stores of the Hicks organization. M. Y. Stokes, of Lampasas, Tex., who came to Austin from Ardmore, Okla., succeeds him as advertising manager of the Austin newspapers.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR ELIZABETH TIMES

Joseph Stricker Temporarily in Charge to Continue Publication to June 29—Hearst Group Purchased Daily Last October

Joseph Stricker was appointed temporary receiver of the Elizabeth (N. J.) Times by Vice-Chancellor Joseph Backes of Newark on June 21. He had orders to continue publication until June 29, when the Times Publishing Company must show cause why the receivership should not be made permanent.

The receiver was named on the application of the American Steel Chase Company of New York and the United American Metals Corporation of Brooklyn, whose combined claims total $2,740.

The Times was purchased from L. F. Sawvel last October by a Hearst group, which included Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Evening Journal, and Edgar Shaw. Beginning Oct. 1, it was sold daily at one price with the New York Journal, and Sunday with the New York American.

Mr. Brisbane's office referred queries regarding the receivership to counsel for the Times Publishing Company, who declined to discuss the situation.

HEARST'S N. Y. JOURNAL BUYS

Purchases Block Uptown and Revises Plans for 6-Story Tower Building

Holdings of the New York Evening Journal, Hearst paper, in the uptown area bounded by 11th and 12th avenues and West 54th and West 59th streets, reached a total of 160,000 square feet this week, when it exercised its option to purchase additional property.

The New York Journal, Inc., planned to improve the site with an uptown printing plant for the Hearst publications, but this was abandoned when additional space was purchased and a plant erected in the block bounded by South and Water streets, Catherine and Market Slips.

Revised plans filed last week call for a six story tower building. Original plans filed last January were for a four-story building.

JAPAN HOPES TO CUT HIGH PRESS RATES

Tetsuo Kuwayama, Vice Minister of Communications, Answering Editor & Publisher Attack, Promises New Radio Station by 1930

Japan is planning to build a new radio station to be completed within five years that will cut press tolls between this country and America, Tetsuo Kuwayama, Vice Minister of Communications, said June 22, in a dispatch to the New York Times. He was answering charges made in an editorial in EDITOR & PUBLISHER, June 12.

The editorial, headed "Japanese Radio Blockade," charged the Japanese government with "standing in the way of cheap rates to and from the Far East." It was cabled to Nippon Dempo, Japanese news agency, by the United Press Associations, and was widely published in Japan.

Kuwayama said that Japan is planning to care for the increased traffic which would follow lower rates and therefore opposes reduction of the press rates at present. He declared he fully appreciated the importance of a greater exchange of news between Japan and America, believing that such inter-communication would bring about mutual understanding.

"I believe, however," he said, "that this is impractical at present, as the wireless and cable services are already too congested.

"The government plans the erection in 1930 of a special wireless station for American communication, when lower rates will be possible."

The chief of the Telegraph Bureau stated that Japan had suggested to the Radio Corporation of America the erection in California of a station large enough to send and receive from the Iwaki station, near Tokio, but he said the Radio Corporation is ignoring the suggestion.

He also said if the Japanese newspaper agencies erect a station here and give it to the Japan Wireless Company which has a monopoly, the government undoubtedly would sanction lower rates.

This proposition has been made to the government by a combination of newspaper agencies, but this is the first indication of the government's favorable attitude.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER in its editorial charged that the Japanese government refuses to accept the proposal of the Radio Corporation of America, whereby press wordage cost would drop from 2 cents to 10 cents in Japan-American traffic.

"Why any enlightened government will stand in the way of easy exchange of press information in this day and age is beyond understanding," the editorial read. "News is the flag of progress through the sound principle of understanding. A free exchange of information across the Pacific would untie a thousand perplexing knots the diplomats have failed to loosen."

NEW YORK STATE PUBLISHERS AT ITHACA CONVENTION

New York State Publishers' Association at Ithaca, N. Y., meeting on Thursday, June 17. Picture taken on the terrace of Willard Straight Hall, Cornell University

NEW YORK WEEKLY PUBLISHERS "GO TO SCHOOL" TWO DAYS AT ITHACA

Better Representation in National Field Discussed at State Press Meet—President Conrath Named Press Congress Delegate—Editorial Page Analyzed

SIXTY publishers of weekly and small daily newspapers composing the New York State Press Association held a two-day session last week and considered plans for celebrating their 75th birthday at their next meeting. It is the oldest active state press association.

The meeting was largely under the tutelage of Prof. Bristow Adams, who directs the large volume of publications in connection with the agricultural journalism courses at Cornell University. Prof. Adams welcomed the publishers Saturday morning and outlined the university's interest in the weekly newspapers of the state.

President Elmer E. Conrath, Cuba Patriot, in his response emphasized the importance of the country weekly in maintaining American ideals in a part of the nation not touched by foreign influences and pledged the support of the press association to the annual newspaper institutes held by the College of Agriculture.

Mr. Conrath was appointed to represent the Press Association at the Press Congress of the World to be held in Geneva in September.

Improved representation of the weekly press in the national advertising field was discussed in executive session, and no action was made public.

President Farrand, of the University, was the chief speaker at the evening banquet of the association. He emphasized the educational value of the press. Jared van Wagenen, a Cornell graduate and the fifth generation of his family to own his farm, told what the farmer did and did not want to see in his weekly newspaper. He did not want news of world or national events, which he declared were adequately covered by the metropolitan newspapers, which all intelligent farmers read. He did want local news written sympathetically and with understanding.

David S. Cook, assistant to Prof. Adams, gave a lecture illustrated with home-made lantern slides on "The Histology and Morphology of Insignificant but Important Attachments." He referred at length to the button—just that.

Another entertainment feature was the exhibition of the United Press film on its news activities around the world.

Editorial pages and advertising rates and contracts engaged the discussion of weekly publishers Saturday at the concluding session in Barnes Hall. Prof. Adams wound up the meeting with a criticism of the front and editorial pages of the many weekly newspapers which were on display at the convention.

While no definite judgment of the papers was made, and no prizes were awarded, Professor Adams listed what he considered the best of the pages on exhibition. He would give first place for front page, the "show window" of the paper, to the Liberty Register. For second and third choices, respectively, he named the Ramapo Valley Independent and the Depew Herald.

Close competitors in first page merit were the Rhinebeck Gazette, published by Jacob H. Strong, winner of the N. E. A. cup for the best editorial page and three times prize winner at contests in connection with Farmers' Week at Cornell University; and the Brockport Republic, owned by Peter A. Blossom, former president of the New York State Press Association.

The Rhinebeck Gazette was adjudged as having the best editorial page, from the point of make-up and content, of any paper represented. Others mentioned for their outstanding merit in editorial pages were the Fredonia Censor and the Endicott News Dispatch. Professor Adams ventured the opinion that the weekly publications of the Long Island district are, on the whole, better than in any other part of the state.

There developed at this final session a discussion over the necessity of an editorial page in country weeklies. A few members indicated that they did not entirely believe that an editorial page is indispensable.

The majority sentiment, however, was that the editorials are a favorite section of a rural paper, that they should deal almost entirely with local questions and with national or international developments only when they affect the particular community which the paper services.

Contrary to the opinion expressed by some that the editorial page is not widely read, instances were cited to show that the public reads these weekly editorials as diligently as it does the community news, and that it thinks about them. A survey recently conducted in one small community was brought up to show that the readers paid a great deal of attention to editorial opinion as expressed by the editor of their weekly. Six months prior to the survey, the paper had published an editorial which had not pleased the readers of the conservative community, and they still remembered it—the editorial continued to "stick in their crops."

Professor Adams led a brief discussion on the make-up of the weekly editorial page. Most of the editors agreed with the idea of dividing this page between editorial matter and features. He advised the placing of cartoons on this, rather than on the first page, since they are usually of particular editorial significance.

President Elmer E. Conrath inserted the suggestion that one editorial a week, dealing with a local subject, upon which the editor has thought deeply and which is well written, should usually be sufficient for any small weekly newspaper.

N. Y. DAILIES PLAN TO ADVERTISE STATE AS NATIONAL MARKET

PLANS for advertising New York State as a market were outlined to the New York State Publishers Association by Frank E. Tripp, general manager of the Gannett Newspapers, at its summer meeting in Ithaca, last week. Approval was given to the committee's plans as so far developed. They call for simultaneous publication in all of the newspapers of the state, including those of New York City of copy designed to appeal directly to the manufacturers of the region, who according to Mr. Tripp include about 3,000 active or potential national advertisers. This method of developing national accounts in their local fields has been largely neglected by newspapers in the past, Mr. Tripp declared. Funds will be raised for the production of necessary art work and copy by assessment of the association membership.

J. B. Bingham, executive secretary of the association, reported to the membership on the progress of several labor conciliation and arbitration proceedings, with special attention to the arbitration between the Utica publishers and typographical union. Mr. Bingham's report was made in executive session.

The American Institute of Printing and Publishing, plans for which were outlined by members of the New York State association to the A. N. P. A. in April, is moving toward consummation. Ground for the site has been taken on option by President Frank E. Gannett and the proposed institute will be incorporated by the directors of the association, under a resolution proposed by J. D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse Post-Standard. Funds for the institute have been promised to the extent of $100,000 by New York City publishers the meeting was told by Mr. Gannett and Ross W. Kellogg, director of the Empire State School of Printing.

Frederick H. Keefe, publisher of the Newburgh News and chairman of the legislative committee of the publishers' association, the Associated Dailies, and the New York State Press Association, reported to all three on his success in stemming adverse enactments by the recent legislature.

He called special attention to the threatened clean books law, which, while aimed at salacious books, magazines, and general literature, might by the loose terms of its construction, be turned against newspapers which offended innocently as well as those which apparently were not concerned with conserving good taste and morality in their columns.

He cited his argument against the proposed law prohibiting the identification of a girl or woman victim of criminal assault. The newspapers of New York State, he said, needed no such law, for their own codes of operation did not permit the branding of an innocent victim of such a crime. He was heard to the

(Continued on page 44)

15,000 ATTEND A. A. C. W. INSPIRATIONAL SERVICES

Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Sounding Keynote at Huge Sunday Afternoon Meeting Extols Power of Advertising Writers to Increase World's Happiness—Mayor Kendrick Welcomes Delegates

Banquet of Board of Club Presidents of the International Advertising Association held at the Poor Richard Club, Philadelphia, Tuesday evening.

"MAN'S power to conjure images in the creative force behind a greater civilization of the future," declared the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, in his keynote address before the inspirational session of the A. A. C. W. Sunday afternoon. His audience, the largest which has yet crowded into the new municipal auditorium on the sesqui-centennial grounds, was estimated to number more than fifteen thousand persons.

Dr. Cadman, speaking on the topic, "Advertising and Imagination," extolled the power of the advertising writer to increase the world's happiness and ability to lead a more interesting life.

Official welcome to the city was delivered by Philadelphia's mayor, S. Freeland Kendrick, who coupled with his greetings a plea that the advertisers appoint a special committee to confer with the officials of the sesqui-centennial association on the best means of advertising the exposition to the world.

President Woodbridge, in his response, acted immediately upon the mayor's request and named Samuel C. Dobbs, Atlanta manufacturer and a past president of the A. A. C. W., to head the committee.

"It is my fervent hope," said Mayor Kendrick, "that this exposition may inspire a new feeling of understanding among nations and that the sesqui-centennial may be the means of bringing about a new declaration of Independence that will effect peace on earth, goodwill to men."

In similar vein was President Woodbridge's response.

"We are here, my friends, representing 14 different countries, 30,000 individuals," he said. "It may seem strange to some of you to say that advertising is the cause of our being in Philadelphia, but not so, my friends, for advertising is the moulder of public opinon and public opinion is the motive power of modern nations.

"Advertising, then is too great a power to be trifled with, too mighty to be misused, too inspiring to be untrue. We use this power as makers, sellers, and buyers of advertising. We intend to use it as a public benefit. As a public benefit, advertising will become the stabilizer of business, and business talks a common language, the language of trade. Trade follows the flag of mutual understanding, and let us remember that nations live by doing business.

"This association is but one of many in which the spirit of co-operation among men has developed a desire for advertising of high ideals and advertising that will create common understanding of those ideals for the purpose that nations may dwell together in greater harmony; and I say to all of you who have come to Philadelphia it seems to me indeed fitting that we should come to this city of brotherly love to pursue further the objects of our association."

Following the musical program which opened the meeting, the Divine blessing was evoked by Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, D. D., rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church.

Howard C. Story, president of the Poor Richard Club of Philadelphia, welcomed the delegates in the name of advertising.

"We believe that Poor Richard represents the real Philadelphia which is rich in American ideals and which is often called the greatest American city, and birthplace of advertising, and is now celebrating the Sesqui-Centennial, the 150th anniversary of the birth of this great nation of ours," he said.

"The man who had a large part in supplying our ideals with his guiding impulses is the patron saint of the Poor Richard Club, Benjamin Franklin—the great printer, journalist, diplomat, inventor, philosopher, and Father of Advertising.

"Our new club house, the doors of which are wide open to receive you, was dedicated to Franklin, and we are carrying on the sound influence of his wonderful personality, building well for city and for advertising.

"Poor Richard seems to thrive on responsibilities. We have built and finished a $300,000 club house and assumed responsibility to act as host for this big Convention which begins today, all in one year. Again we say we are happy that you are with us and may we hope that you will get much good out of this international business Congress. We also hope to so entertain you that you will truly say in Philadelphia there'll be nothing blue but the sky."

H. H. Charles, former president of the Advertising Club of New York, presented the official program to the meeting and upon motion of Rowe Stewart, past president of the A. A. C. W., who presided at the inspirational session, was awarded the convention's thanks.

Among those who occupied the platform besides Mayor and Mrs. Kendrick and their retinue, were:

Samuel C. Dobbs, past president of the A. A. C. W.; Benjamin Bache Huntingdon, great-great-grandson of Benjamin Franklin and an honorary member of the Poor Richard Club; Charles C. Green, president of the Advertising Club of New York; Dr. B. F. Martin, Dubuque, Ia.; Jesse H. Neal, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. C. W.; W. Frank McClure, chairman of the National Advertising Commission; Miss Ethel B. Scully, who represents the women's clubs on the executive committee; Mrs. Bernice Blackwood, president of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs, and Andre Kaminker, representing Etienne Damour, president of District 17 of the A. A. C. W.

Prior to the ceremonies at the sesqui-centennial auditorium, the delegates were received by Mayor Kendrick at Independence Hall in the room where the Declaration of Independence was signed. Mayor Kendrick stood before the rostrum and shook the hand of each distinguished guest as he was introduced by Messrs. Story and Stewart.

"You are standing on holy ground," the Mayor said. "Here gathered men whose courage and spirit of sacrifice made possible this great nation. In the outer corridor you will see the Liberty Bell, whose voice for liberty was heard round the world.

"I am sure that the spirit of Benjamin Franklin, the patron saint of advertising, is here with us today and that William Penn, from the tower of City Hall, nods his blessing to you.

"We hope that you will carry back to your homes a vision of the greatness of our city and our hospitality."

Gimbels Entertain Ad Women

Five hundred women members of the advertising delegation in Philadelphia were entertained Wednesday noon by Gimbel Brothers Store at luncheon. Ellis A. Gimbel welcomed the visitors. Other addresses were made by Mrs. John Hanna Cross, chairman of the committee on arrangements, and Miss Blanche Fisher, assistant director of advertising of the store.

French Delegation Shows Film

The French delegation to the Philadelphia advertising convention invited all delegates to attend an exhibition of their film, Hugo's "Les Miserables" at the Forrest Theatre, Thursday evening. The delegation engaged the theatre for the occasion.

AGENCY MEN ANALYZE NEW TRENDS

Space Buying Work for a Specialist—Say Improvement of A. B. C. Statements Is Needed—Many Advertisers Join in Interesting Debate on Methods

By JAMES M. MOSELY

HOW one manufacturer recently created 154,084 agate lines of local advertising for newspapers as a by-product of a national advertising campaign was related by Guy H. Richards of Erickson Company, Inc., agency, New York City, in his talk on the 22d on "The work of the media department" at the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

The agency submitted to each newspaper which was to carry 15,000 line contracts in scores of cities a complete plan of action for lining up space from the local dealers in advance of Congoleum Week. A letter from the agency accompanied a portfolio of material, outlining how a year previously newspapers had benefitted by selling tie-up space and a number of definite ways to go about it. Hundreds of mats were furnished without charge.

"This type of service is but a side-issue of the work of the media department, but is only one of many ways an agency can help a client get more value out of his appropriation at the same time it provides more linage for the newspapers. I estimate that altogether, the campaign to which I refer obtained an aggregate of 300,000 lines paid for by dealers, or 100 lines by dealers for every 300 we placed.

"Through check-ups with other agencies, I believe that more than 300,000,000 lines of collateral advertising were created for the newspapers last year by advertising agencies, paid for by the local dealers to take the benefit of the manufacturer's advertising which was running in the newspapers at that time.

"Before an agency can bring to bear its knowledge of media, it must first know all about its client's product, his market, all about his sales program, and his problems in general. Only if it has this basic knowledge can it make intelligent recommendations. A clear insight into its client's business, a dispassionate unprejudiced view of media values, and a selection from the one to fit the needs of the other are essential."

The three jobs for a media department, he declared, are to study media values, deal with publications and handle the large amount of detailed labor involved in placing and checking orders. Instead of buying circulation, he pointed out, an agency really is buying a market, attention value, and human reactions. The size of the appropriation should not be permitted to raise havoc with appraisals.

Mr. Richards poked fun at the attitude of certain manufacturers who try to dominate the buying of space on snap judgment. He declared that since there are 25,000 publications with 250 million circulation, space buying should be done by a specialist. Direct communication with readers should be one source of information for such a specialist. Another source should be A. B. C. statements which cover 129 million circulation, but which should be available for more.

Improvement and amplification of present A. B. C. statements is much needed and when brought about should not attempt to deal with quality, he gave as his view, and told how his agency maintains over five thousand folders with information about the most frequently used publications.

H. E. Lesan, president of the H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency, New York City, was in charge of the agency sessions, which were under auspices of the American Association of Advertising Agencies at Bennett Hall, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Roy S. Durstine of Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., New York City, president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, opened the sessions with an outline of the scope of the modern advertising agency, pointing out that, although the detail of preparing and placing is important, the real contribution of the agency to business is creative. He explained that advertising agency service has not been standardized because agencies are essentially individualists and, to some extent, specialists, they vary in size and are at various points of evolution.

Many fields in which changes in economic and social conditions offer new advertising oportunities for the agency to develop new accounts were suggested by R. S. Simpers of McLain-Simpers Organization, Philadelphia.

"The advertising agent is that specialist in the field of advertising because he has been the great creative factor in its development," this agency executive stated. "The time is past when an agency can obtain enduring business by the mere submission of copy and pictures or by superficial inducements alone. The agent who peddles his services which are merely incidental to our work cannot survive in competition with those who sell their work for its truly professional value.

"Not in all the tremendous growth of advertising has there been greater opportunity for development of new accounts. The successful advertising agent will be the one who most vigilantly watches, who most thoroughly studies, and who is most alert in recognizing the advertising opportunities created by the fundamental trends of our times."

As examples of how current trends open up chances for new advertisers, he cited the income tax laws which gave bank and insurance companies a new way to advertise, how style changes make it possible to advertise new commodities, such as even razors to women. The coal strike gave a chance to push a substitute for coal. Prohibition paved the way for new advertisers of soft drinks, candies, etc.; oil as a fuel led the way for advertising of oil burners. The smoke nuisance in cities has suggested advertising of various articles; bus transportation just now is heading up as a big future advertiser, and numerous other changes have brought and are bringing opportunities which the advertising agency man should seize upon.

To show the shift of advertisers to work with agencies, Mr. Simpers took figures of an architectural magazine, which indicated that now as contrasted with five years ago, the majority of its advertisers work through an agency and that these have shown the largest increase in space.

"The big task of advertising is to select from the entire population with as little waste as possible those people who are able to buy and make them willing to buy when they are ready, or, in some cases, to stimulate both willingness and readiness," Paul T. Cherington, formerly of the Harvard Business School, and now with J. Walter Thompson Company, New York, gave as the keynote for agency research in an address on "Getting the facts through a survey."

"Everybody is a prospect for drinking water because no one could live more than a few hours without it," he said, "but only a few would be prospects for diamonds at high prices.

"Special conditions, such as local preference and racial influences have to be taken into consideration. For instance, there are more Irish in New York than Dublin, more Jews than in Palestine and more Italians than in Rome. It is vital to get a true cross-section of one's prospects.

"Simple and short questionnaires include questions of fact, such as 'Do you use so-and-so?' which may be answered by 'Yes' or 'No' or questions of opinion. The former is easier to tabulate. It should cover enough to give a real cross-section—statisticians opine that there should be at least 1,000. It should be planned to give the maximum of information as cheaply as possible and to show up any unusual conditions which may exist.

Mr. Cherington recalled an experience in which he had supervised an investigation among 250 carefully chosen jewelers. The manufacturer had insisted on at least three or four thousand being covered. This was done, but the results varied only 2 per cent from what had been found about the 250.

"In recent years much progress has been made in the study of methods of reaching prospective or possible future buyers," the speaker commented. He referred to a survey of magazine subscribers carried on at Cincinnati under the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

"Facts must come first in every advertising campaign" Milton Towne of the Joseph Richards Company, New York City, emphasized and gave an example from his experience to show how this may be applied to increase sales.

"The old order was inspiration first and fit in the facts after. 'Think me up an idea that will increase my sales and I will advertise" straight-armed the manufacturer. 'I will,' said the agency man blithely. On such shallow foundations were erected certain familiar advertising edifices that are now being shored up to permit the building of sounder, deeper sub-structures."

Centrality in advertising copy formed the theme of a talk by Robert Tinsman of the Federal Advertising Agency, New York, who laid down these rules for a productive advertisement:

1. It must be planned to arrive.
2. It must tell the truth to be believed.
3. It must be attractive to be read.
4. It must be demonstrable to sell.

"Advertising is apparently leaving the journalistic phase and coming into the art phase" W. H. Beatty of the Newell-Emmett Company of New York said on "Art."

He decried the tendency of many to imitate as due to laziness, which he said in some cases is almost snobbish. He declared prettiness a danger in art when stupidly administered.

"A lot of us are buying names in buying art and a lot of us are buying atmosphere, some of it almost a vacuum," he commented. "The real test of good art is: will the public understand it? Can the public read it and get the story? Successful advertising must have a balance of copy, art and type for best work."

Greetings from the Advertising Club of Dublin were brought by Patrick T. Montford, formerly advertising manager of the Dublin Freeman's Journal, who claimed advertisers are overlooking a sales opportunity in skipping Ireland.

"More than $50,000,000 is being spent to develop the water power of the River Shannon," he explained. "About a year from now there will be enough electrical power available to take care of half a million homes. Manufacturers of electrical equipment and appliances who are on the job can reap a harvest about a year from now.

"American automobile manufacturers also are overlooking a chance for sales. Our market, popular impressions to the contrary, is able, willing and ready to pay for what it buys."

The many collateral services rendered by the modern agency were described by Fred J. Ross of the F. J. Ross Company, New York, on Wednesday morning. He selected from his own experience the marketing of a soap to show how the agency helped create the name, package and entire plan of sales attack.

The application of business principles to the internal operation of an agency was discussed by Harrison Atwood of H. K. McCann Company.

He listed the main departments of a large agency as management, contact, market research, media and space buying, copy, art, mechanical, contract and order, accounting, central control, and new business. In many instances, he said, standards of practice, records and instructions are in written form.

Leon Renier, Jr., commercial manager of the Agence Havas, Paris, was introduced to the group as also was Marcel Knecht, general secretary, Le Matin, Paris, who spoke on the modernizing of the buying habits of the French, their increased purchasing power and willingness to spend for travel and luxuries and their desirability as a market.

Eugene McGuckin, head of the Eugene McGuckin Company, Philadelphia, estimated that if advertisers had to try to do for themselves what agencies do for them, it would cost them treble what it does now and newspapers and magazines would have to increase rates greatly.

FROM THE WHITE HOUSE

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE sent the following message to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, and read by President C. K. Woodbridge at the opening general session Monday morning:

"Please extend to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World my cordial greetings and good wishes. Your organization is representative of a new field of activity where high principles and right leadership is vital. I am sure that your convention will bring a fuller sense of the duties as well as the advantages which advertising carries with it.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

CLASSIFIED MEN PLAN CO-OPERATIVE PROMOTION CAMPAIGN—RE-ELECT NAX

Association Votes to Employ Agency to Prepare Copy for Simultaneous Use in Member Papers—Green Describes B. B. B. Clean-up Work

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

C. W. NAX, of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat was re-elected for a second term as president of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers at its seventh annual convention held in Philadelphia in connection with the meeting of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Other officers elected were: Walter W. Murdock, Detroit Free Press, first vice-president; James A. Doherty, Providence Journal and Bulletin, second vice-president; Harold A. Dryden, of the Peoria Star was re-elected as secretary and Jas. McGovern of the Albany Knickerbocker Press was selected as treasurer. W. R. Huffman, Tulsa World, C. A. Sargent, Miami Herald, and H. D. Coff, of the New York American were elected to fill the vacancies on the board of directors.

Fred L. Tate, of the Toronto Star was selected as a member of the National Commission, to fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of W. W. Miller, New York Times, to the display advertising field.

C. C. Armstrong, of the Cleveland Press was named editor and manager of the Classified Journal, monthly magazine of the Association. The by-laws were amended to admit to associate membership classified managers of farm papers and newspapers of foreign countries.

The only speech of the four day convention which was held in Price Hall of the University of Pennsylvania was that of E. L. Green, Manager of the National Better Business Bureau. Mr. Green pointed out how the classified investigation work of the Bureau was started by the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers and carried on with their co-operation. During the past year more than 400 bulletins were issued by the Bureau, giving detailed information as to the operating methods of questionable advertisers. These bulletins are merely informative, Mr. Green pointed out and made no recommendations, but placed the responsibility of determining whether the copy should be published up to each newspaper. Mr. Green stated that the greatest value of the bulletins was the fact that they were awakening in the minds of newspaper executives a greater realization of the value of excluding from the classified columns all fraudulent or misleading advertising. One of the greatest difficulties in endeavoring to stamp out bad classified advertising is the lack of standardized rules of censorship on the newspaper. To overcome this, Mr. Green suggested that the Association get all its members and newspapers not in the Association to adopt a simple broad standardized set of censorship rules, particularly regarding help wanted advertising. Mr. Green submitted such a set of rules for the consideration of the Association which decided to carry out the suggestions. The first session Monday morning was called to order by President Nax, who outlined the progress of the Association during the past year, showing that it had more members than ever before and had done more for its members than before. Almost 100 members were registered. Harry Gwalney, of the Milwaukee Journal was appointed chairman of resolutions committee and J. H. Butler, of the Houston Chronicle, chairman of the nominating committee.

After organization the chair was turned over to Walter W. Murdock of the Detroit Free Press, who conducted a round-table discussion on the subject. "Fundamentals of Salesmanship Applied to Classified Advertising" topics dealt with were, the selection of employees, preliminary training of salespeople, methods of paying sales men so as to produce the greatest results.

The second session was devoted to the subject of "developing voluntary business," and was presided over by Mr. Gwaltney. Not only were the principles of developing this type of business discussed but many delegates told of successful methods which they had used. It was the consensus of opinion that voluntary advertising was essential to a successful strong classified advertising medium and that the ways of building it was to make the paper productive to advertisers and make it easy to insert an advertisement in the paper. The next session was devoted to "Promotion" and lead by C. L. Perkins of the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

At this session it was pointed out that the advertising of the classified advertising columns was the most important essential in the building of strong classified medium since by proper promotion readers could be created for the classified advertisements, thus bringing greater results to the advertisers, in turn creating more advertisers and solving in a great degree all of the selling problems. Every newspaper was urged to do not only more promotion but more intelligent promotion, making display space in a newspapers own columns the backbone of all campaigns. To supplement the local campaigns used by the various members, it was decided that the Association should employ an advertising agency to prepare a campaign of a general nature to sell the public on the "market place" aspect of the classified columns and their efficacy in supplying all the existing needs of mankind. This campaign is to be released to members at cost and as far as possible each piece of copy is to be run in all papers on the same dates giving the campaign all the aspects and advantages of a national campaign.

R. E. Seiler, of Los Angeles, acted as chairman of a session devoted to "Service," at which the importance of rendering complete and satisfactory service to the advertiser was essential.

The final meeting was led by Fred L. Tate of the Toronto Star and dealt with a discussion of credits and collections.

SUIT AGAINST AGENCY FOR ACCOUNTING ENDS

Litigation Brought by Clem Shaver, as Democratic Party Chairman, Against Van Patten, Inc., Is Dropped by Order of Justice Ford

Suit of Clem L. Shaver, as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, against Van Patten, Inc., New York advertising agency, was discontinued June 21, by Supreme Court Justice Ford in New York. Van Patten, Inc., had the contract for placing campaign advertising during the John W. Davis Presidential campaign in 1924.

By Justice Ford's order both the suit of the committee against Van Patten, Inc., for an accounting of the funds paid by the committee for the advertising, and the counter claim of the agency, filed as a separate action, for nearly $85,000 for breach of contract, are dropped. The Van Patten suit was based on allegations that the committee promised to place $600,000 worth of advertising with the Van Patten agency, and requested the latter to plan a national campaign on that expenditure, and then spent less than $100,000.

An examination of the papers this week disclosed that the negotiations for withdrawal of the actions started after the Van Patten agency had been directed to give full particulars of its counter claim for 15 per cent commission, based on the expenditure of $600,000.

BRITISH VISITORS TO PHILADELPHIA

A group of British degelates to the Philadelphia A.A.C.W. convention. They are (left to right): Thomas Philpot, Herman Backkert, Wallace Attwood, Cecil Bernstein, G. C. Bowman and Mark Goulden.

Baldus Heads Catholic Press

Simona A. Baldus, managing editor of the Extension magazine, Chicago, was elected president of the Catholic Press Association of the United States and Canada, which ended a four-day convention in Detroit, Mich., last week.

Albuquerque, N. M., Merger

The Albuquerque (N. M.) Herald, evening, and the Albuquerque Journal, morning, are now being published as a single paper with morning, evening and Sunday editons under the Journal masthead. T. M. Pepperday is publisher.

Distinctive Circulation of The New York Times

THE NEW YORK TIMES has the largest number of readers of high quality of any newspaper. It appeals to intelligent, thinking persons.

Conviction and lasting confidence are most firmly established among intelligent persons. Their good will, once acquired, not easily swayed, is the most valuable asset an advertiser can have.

The New York Times has the largest circulation of any standard size New York morning newspaper and a larger circulation than any New York evening newspaper except the Evening Journal. The net paid average daily and Sunday sale of The Times for the six months ended March 31, 1926, was 392,695 copies—a gain of 10,690 over the record of the previous six months and a larger gain than any other New York morning newspaper of standard size.

In New York City and its suburbs the average daily and Sunday circulation of The Times is greater than that of any other standard size New York newspaper except the Evening Journal.

But it is not so much to the quantity as to the quality of its readers that The Times draws attention. The Times is strictly a newspaper. The Times is unequaled in its enterprise in assembling complete and accurate news, in the promptness and ability with which it presents the most reliable report of whatever interests intelligent readers throughout the world.

The Times offers nothing but its own high quality of news, and has thus gained the strong interest and confidence of the thinking people, who bought in the month of May an average of 366,421 copies on week days and 611,521 copies of the Sunday edition.

The confidence of readers and advertisers extends to the advertising columns of The Times. For years The Times has been the advertising leader in the greatest market in the world.

In five months of this year The Times published 12,843,818 agate lines of advertising, a gain of 1,322,484 lines over the corresponding period of 1925 and an excess over the second New York newspaper of 4,765,934 lines.

In May, this year, The Times made a greater growth in advertising over the corresponding month of last year than any other morning newspaper in the United States.

In advertising, as in circulation, The Times takes greater pride in quality than in volume. The Times subjects all advertising to censorship, and declines the fraudulent and misleading.

The Times refuses more advertising than any other newspaper.

$25,000 IN ADVERTISING PRODUCED $100,000,000

Appropriation of Maine Legislature Increased—Tourist Business 30 Per Cent in 1925, Coe Tells A.A.C.W. Delegates

"Twenty-five thousand dollars appropriated by the Maine Legislature in 1925 for advertising the State resulted in 30 per cent increase in resort and tourist business over any previous year" said Harrie B. Coe, manager, Maine Publicity Bureau, addressing the Community Advertising Session at the international advertising convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in Philadelphia Wednesday. "This money was used exclusively for newspaper and magazine advertising and it was specifically stated in the campaign that not one cent of it would be used for salaries or overhead expenses.

"In June, July and August 20,679 automobiles registered at the Publicity Bureau's office in Portland, and using the American Automobile Association's figure of an average of three and one-eighth persons to a car, shows that more than 60,000 people were served in that way. They represented every state in the Union and many foreign countries. Letters, keyed to the newspaper and magazine advertising, were received to the number of 10,221, all properly answered.

"Each person vacationing in Maine that year averaged to spend $90.53, thus the tourist business brought into the State of Maine last year nearly $100,000,000 One summer hotel alone had receipts of over $500,000 chiefly from out of state people.

"What has all this brought to the State of Maine?" said Mr. Coe in summing up. "In addition to the $100,000,000 left by the tourists, which seeps through all the channels of business life, the records of the register of deeds offices throughout the State show more than 2,000 sales of land and buildings to non-residents during the past year.

"Industrial and recreational projects under way are estimated at $175,000,000. The largest of these is the Passemaquoddy project, which proposes to harness the tides of the sea to generate power, and which is a project of $100,000,000. No doubt many will say this has nothing to do with tourist business, yet the fact remains that Dexter P. Cooper, the man who is putting over the project which has recently received favorable consideration by the Federal Government in Washington, first went to Passamaquoddy Bay 17 years ago as a summer tourist. The Insull interests are developing a $4,000,000 hydro-electric project on the Androscoggin River. The Lucerne-in-Maine project in the vicinity of Bar Harbor, a cottage and club house colony, is a $5,000,000 development. Other similar projects are springing up all over the state.

"That is the story of Maine in a nut shell. It shows merely a start of what has been done to back industrial and agricultural development, for the best way to bring such opportunities before the people is to bring them to Maine to play and our slogan has been 'Bring them to play, persuade them to Stay.'"

Butterick Magazines to Merge

Merger of the Delineator and the Designer, Butterick magazines, effective with the November issues, was announced last week by S. R. Latshaw, president of the Butterick Publishing Company. The combined magazine will be known as the Delineator. The Delineator was founded in 1869 under the name of the Metropolitan Monthly. Its name was changed in 1875. The Designer, founded in 1887, is published by the Standard Fashion Company, Butterick subsidiary. Mrs. William Brown Meloney will continue as editor of the merged magazines.

MRS. CAROTHERS LEADS WOMEN'S AD CLUBS

Mrs. Blackwood Retires to Seek Post on A. A. C. W. Executive Board—Hazel Ludwig New Vice-President

Mrs. Minna Hall Carothers of New York received the unanimous vote of the 650 members of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs for the presidency. She succeeds Mrs. Bernice Blackwood of Chicago, who retires to run for membership on the executive committee of the A.A.C.W., filling the place now held by Miss Ethel B. Scully. Mrs. Carothers has been vice-president of the women's group and will be succeeded in that post by Miss Hazel Ludwig of St. Louis. Mrs. Ellen S. Patten, Philadelphia advertising expert, withdrew on Tuesday in favor of Miss Ludwig.

Mrs. M. H. Carothers

Speakers at the luncheon at which the association's business meeting was held included Lt. Col. E. F. Lawson of the London Daily Telegraph; Edith M. Burtis, syndicate writer for the Public Ledger; and Miss Ludwig, who is manager of the research department of the D'Arcy Advertising Company and a past president of the Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis.

Hearst Sues for Libel

William Randolph Hearst on June 17, acting for his son William Randolph, Jr., filed suit for $125,000 damages for alleged libel against the Los Angeles Record. The case involved a wrecked automobile.

McCLURE AGAIN HEADS AD COMMISSION

Warfel Re-elected Executive Secretary, Burbach Vice-Chairman—Kettredge Succeeds Hatfield as Secretary

W. Frank McClure of Chicago was re-elected for his ninth term as chairman of the National Advertising Commission at its meeting in Philadelphia Monday during the A. A. C. W. convention.

Robert A. Warfel of New York was re-elected executive secretary; George M. Burbach, advertising manager of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and representative on the commission of the Association of Newspaper Advertising executives, was re-elected vice-chairman. E. H. Kettredge of Boston was chosen secretary, succeeding Charles V. Hatfield of St. Louis, who resigned after 10 years' service.

The National Advertising Commission is composed of 81 representatives from the 27 departmental bodies of the Association and meets four times during the year for conduct of the Association's business and execution of major policies.

N. Y. Newspaper Club Seeks New Home

A new home is being sought by the Newspaper Club of New York, to be occupied when its present lease expires the first of next year. The board of directors has appointed a committee to seek better quarters.

C. H. K. Curtis Donates $50,000

Cyrus H. K. Curtis has presented Drexel Institute with a $50,000 cash gift. He designated that the fund be spent at once for equipment and apparatus. Mr. Curtis is a member of the Institute's board of trustees. Two years ago he gave $100,000 in an endowment campaign conducted by Drexel.

ENWRIGHT BUYS TWO POUZZNER PAPERS

Boston and Lynn Publisher New Owner of Lawrence Evening Telegram and Sunday Sun—Mrs. Pouzzner Retains Lowell Telegram

Frederick W. Enwright, publisher of the Boston Telegram and Lynn Telegram-News, this week purchased the Lawrence (Mass.) Evening Telegram and Lawrence Sunday Sun from the estate of the late Benjamin F. Pouzzner of Lowell. Although the purchase price was not made public, it is understood to be in the vicinity of $375,000, at which sum Mr. Pouzzner bought the Telegram plant several months ago.

Mr. Enright will take over the management of the papers at once he announced.

Mrs. Pouzzner retains control of the Lowell Sunday Telegram, which was also owned by her husband.

The sale was made through Palmer, DeWitt & Palmer, newspaper brokers, New York.

"MY IDEAL GIRL" By 48 Famous Men

Each Article Illustrated with Half-Column Cut in Mat

Rudolph Valentino, Ziegfeld, Jean Patou, Milton Sills, Douglas Fairbanks, James Montgomery Flagg, Ted Shawn, Cecil DeMille, W. T. Benda, Rod LaRocque, Will Irwin, Josef Hofmann—these are only a few of the contributors to this great woman's page series.

LEDGER SYNDICATE
INDEPENDENCE SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Only the readers of a newspaper count with shrewd advertisers as "circulation."

In Brooklyn, the Standard Union circulation has been built without a gift scheme of any description.

R. J. R. Stevenson
President

LARGEST DAILY CIRCULATION IN BROOKLYN OF ANY BROOKLYN NEWSPAPER

A People Who Follow The Advertised Product

Residents of the Times Area

Trenton, N. J.

In this territory you increase the per cent response per dollar spent in advertising.

In Trenton industry is represented most every important product which the world needs and uses in its everyday life.

Cover this market completely through

The Trenton Times

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building, New York City
Waterman Building, Boston, Mass.
Atlantic Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

WORLD CO-OPERATION SUPREME ISSUE TODAY

Barton Urges I. A. A. to Join with U. S. Chamber of Commerce in Seeking Reasons for Hatred of U. S. Abroad—Woodbridge Urges World Peace at Opening Session

"WHAT Is There Left for Advertising to Do?"

The program committee asked the question for Bruce Barton to answer at the opening general session of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, held at the Philadelphia Academy of Music, Monday morning.

Mr. Barton answered the question in a manner new to gatherings of the Associated Clubs, where the note of international good will has been sounded for years past by speakers representing many races. With the flags of 14 nations drooping gracefully about the Truth medallion of the A. A. C. W. suspended above his head, Mr. Barton proposed that the A. A. C. W. offer its services to the United States Chamber of Commerce in a survey to find out why the entire world hates the United States.

"Is there a man in this audience who has not experienced a deep sense of apprehension as he surveys America's limitless prosperity and the precarious condition of America in the world?" asked Mr. Barton. "We have a major portion of the world's wealth and almost a monopoly of the world's envy, jealously and resentment. Not an entire monopoly, for Frenchmen still hate Germans, and Italians hate Austrians, and Poles hate Russians. But every nation hates us. Whether we deserve it or not, whether we have acted generously or meanly, whether we have been wise or merely pennywise, the fact remains that there is in the present bitter feelings of the nations the making of a conflict which could not only hurl us down from our present high position, but would, in destroying us, destroy civilization itself.

"What is the remedy? Must conditions drift until a crisis brings destruction? Must the old fashioned machinery of diplomacy be relied upon alone to deal with conditions which as all history since 1914 has proved are far beyond its capacity? Isn't there some way in which the business brains of all the world can be brought to bear upon this universal problem?

"Ought not advertising in its largest aspects to be the imagination of business? Is it not our function to leap ahead of the present in our thinking and to dare to concern ourselves with problems which are frankly beyond our own unaided power? We have such a function, I believe, a definite responsibility. If I were a member of the resolutions committee, I should move to lay before the convention a resolution to this effect:

"WHEREAS, the members of the Associated Advertising Clubs are men and women who have been trained in the analysis of markets, in the discovery and charting of sales difficulties, and in the formulation of sound selling policies, and whereas, the greatest danger which confronts American business is the growing distrust and ill feeling on the part of other nations toward America, RESOLVED: That the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World offer their services to the United States Chamber of Commerce for the conducting of a world survey, seeking to analyze the underlying causes of ill feeling toward America, and to spread the facts before the American people. To the end that the causes of this distrust and resentment may be removed in so far as it is within the power of American business to remove them; and that the business men of the whole world may co-operate in the establishment of a new basis for confidence, security and peace."

No such note was sounded by the other speakers of the morning session, all of them from foreign lands. Telegraphed greetings from the President of the United States, cables from Japan and from Milan, Italy, and a message of regret for his absence from Senator Paul Dupuy, proprietor of Le Petit Parisien, of Paris, were read to the delegates by President C. K. Woodbridge. Response to the president's greeting was made by George H. Patterson of Sydney, Australia; Jonkheer Willert Hoogland of Amsterdam, Holland, George S. Oettle, South Africa; B. W. Tingle, Montreal, P. Q.; Andre Kaminker, representing President Etienne Damour of District 17, A. A. C. W.; Dr. Marcel Knecht, for the press of France, and Sir William Veno, Manchester, England.

"Co-operation between all the peoples of the world is the supreme issue before mankind today," President Woodbridge opened his address. "This ideal can only be attained by voluntary association of large groups striving toward the common goal of companionship. It is not through international courts and political conferences that complete co-operation can best be brought about; it is through the closer association of business men and women. Advertising can do much toward furthering the ideal of universal co-operation."

Sir William Veno, responding for England, said that the small size of the British delegation—it numbers about 40— was due to the recent strike, "which had dislocated business to some extent."

Affirming the great development of advertising in France, Dr. Marcel Knecht, speaking for himself and for Leon Renier, Jr., as representative of the French Press, recalled that "the first conditions of a sound and useful advertising were the worldly diffusion of the newspapers as well as their national and local influence. There is no advertising without industrial and business production, and no advertising without the press."

"We need more foreign advertising in our French newspapers, and we must bring more French advertising to the American press, but we are not a wild and deserted island which needs the visit either of a new Christopher Columbus of advertising or the first encouraging words of missionaries of publicity. France and its press are progressive. They would not have chosen as their delegates to this great convention men like ourselves who believe especially in youth, in improvement, in international good will and reciprocal exchanges, if that had not been the case."

Likening the advertising and selling and journalism of the world to a League of Nations which should know no frontiers, Lieut. Col. Lawson discussed advertising in world terms.

"To advertising men, I say there should be no frontiers," he declared. "They are the forerunners and companions of trade and therefore pioneers of peace and civilization. Advertising is one of the greatest unifying influences in the United States, and in international scope, it is God's own way of forming an entente cordiale which makes the other ways not worth a farthing."

Sir Henry Thornton, K. B. E., chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, pointed out the necessity for advertising.

"In the railroad world, the agate line, which you of the advertising fraternity employ as a unit of measurement, plays a large and useful part," Sir Henry said. "That is true particularly in the development of passenger business and respect to those railways which are greatly interested in presenting the allurements of transportation to tourists. Advertising to tourists has kept abreast of the general improvement in advertising as a whole and as an outgrowth of the old time-table ads of 10 or 15 years ago, we have today the highest type of sale copy, prepared and presented by experts—advertising which excites the reader to travel and which is inducing countless thousands to turn their faces toward the beauty spots of America and Canada."

"If I wrote a book on salesmanship telling everything that I knew about it, the book would not be salable, because it would include only one page, and that page would be one of less than fifty words," said Edward S. Jordan, president, Jordan Motor Car Company. "Those words would probably be something like this:

"If you want to sell anything, you must be able to speak the English language, first. You must be able to speak it so that you can be heard in an ordinary room. You must tell what you think about your own product and tell it to all the people you possibly can, and that is all there is to salesmanship.

"The story about advertising is very much the same and quite as simple. The trouble with selling and advertising is that there are too many clever people connected with the business who are trying to make it complicated instead of making it simple. So I am going to give you a few fundamental answers to a few simple, fundamental questions and tell you how I apply them to my own business.

(Continued on page 24)

HELM

The Man Who Makes Figures Talk

Distributed by

CURRENT NEWS FEATURES, INC.
EVENING STAR BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D. C.

if you have something to SELL—

—and it's good.
—and you want other folk to know it's good.
—thrifty folk who have money and the habit of spending.
—people who live in the prosperous Cleveland market

then—
you must tell them about it through

The Ohio's Greatest Newspaper
Cleveland News
DAILY and SUNDAY

Represented by Geo. A. McDevitt Co.
250 Park Ave., New York
914 People's Gas Bldg., Chicago

NEW YORK GRAPHIC SYNDICATE

Chooses Certified Dry Mats

By Courtesy of New York Graphic Syndicate

To insure the best possible reproduction of its popular features, the New York Graphic Syndicate, after using various brands of mats, has chosen Certifieds.

We welcome them to our happy family of newspaper feature services.

How about your service? — Certifieds can mean just as much to you.

Getting the facts does not obligate you in any way.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y.
for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds
MADE IN U. S. A.

THE New Journalism!

NEWSPAPERS furnish most of the information which our brains digest to provide the life-blood of public opinion.

You select food for yourself and family with considerable care. Wisdom dictates that you select your food for thought with equal care.

In twenty-four cities spread from coast to coast, more than a million and a half families are doing this through the pages of Scripps-Howard newspapers.

SCRIPPS-HOWARD

These newspapers offer a daily mental diet so sanely balanced as to stimulate development of that citizenship which is the nation's greatest asset and future hope.

Liberal on every economic question, fearlessly independent on every political issue, tolerant in the broadest sense of the word on every social problem, Scripps-Howard newspapers have created a new journalism more truly American than anything that has preceded it.

Because, for nearly half a century, they have remained free from fettering political, financial and social alliances, these newspapers have been able to serve the public with a singleness of purpose that has merited and won nation-wide recognition.

A virile, brilliant, dynamic force in American journalism, sound in editorial policies, clean and alive in daily news and features, Scripps-Howard newspapers have captured the imagination and hold the confidence of their readers throughout the nation.

SCRIPPS-HOWARD NEWSPAPERS

MEMBERS AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS — MEMBERS OF THE UNITED PRESS

Cleveland (Ohio) - - PRESS	Denver (Colo.) - - EXPRESS	Youngstown (Ohio) TELEGRAM	Terre Haute (Ind.) - - POST
Baltimore (Md.) - - POST	Toledo (Ohio) - - NEWS-BEE	Ft. Worth (Texas) - PRESS	Covington (Ky.) KENTUCKY POST*
Pittsburgh (Pa.) - - PRESS	Columbus (Ohio) - CITIZEN	Oklahoma City (Okla.) - NEWS	Albuquerque (N. Mex.) STATE-TRIBUNE
San Francisco (Calif.) - NEWS	Akron (Ohio) - TIMES-PRESS	Evansville (Ind.) - - PRESS
Washington (D. C.) - NEWS	Birmingham (Ala.) - POST	Knoxville (Tenn.) - - NEWS
Cincinnati (Ohio) - - POST	Memphis (Tenn.) - - PRESS	El Paso (Texas) - - - POST
Indianapolis (Ind.) - TIMES	Houston (Texas) - - PRESS	San Diego (Calif.) - - SUN

 Kentucky edition of the Cincinnati Post.*

ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC.
National Representatives
250 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.
Chicago Seattle Cleveland
San Francisco Detroit Los Angeles

THIS PUBLISHER MAKES HIS PLANT HIS HOME

Philadelphia Inquirer's $10,000,000 Structure "Built on Air" Over Freight Yards, With Dream Palace on 12th and 13th Floors, Where Col. James Elverson, Jr., Owner, Lives

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Editorial executives of the Philadelphia Inquirer work among American art masterpieces collected by James Elverson, Sr., whose son has his own fabulous gallery in his home on the 12th and 13th floors of the Elverson building.

These are but two hitherto unpublished details of the Inquirer plant, told in the second and last chapter of a history of the newspaper and its present publisher obtained by Editor & Publisher. How a press room and delivery room are operated from the third floor are also told in this article.

WHEN Col. James Elverson, Jr., returns to Philadelphia from abroad, July 1, he will go straight from the train to the $10,000,000 plant of the Philadelphia Inquirer, his paper, because he is a publisher who makes his office building his home.

The 12th and 13th floors of the Elverson building, completed in July last year, belong personally to Mr. and Mrs. Elverson and are fitted up as only a millionaire's two-story apartment can be furnished. It has its own electric refrigeration plant, a novel incinerating system, and, besides these modern practicalities, its many rooms are furnished with all the beauty and luxury money can buy. Here too are hung the paintings of Mr. Elverson's art collection which includes a $50,000 Corot, "Les Baigneuses," purchased only recently.

Col. Elverson, one is told, enjoys his work as publisher enormously, and likes to remain near to it. When he closes his desk for the day in his offices on the third floor, he simply steps out to the elevator and is whisked upstairs to his comfortable salon, his library, his lounge, and his dinner. Because he keeps so close to his work, he knows personally many of the 1,400 men and women employed by the Inquirer. He is never away from his work long, unless it is for a short yachting trip on "L'Allegro," a trim little steamer, to his winter home in Florida, or for a houseboat party on board his "Golden Days," named for the weekly magazine started by his father, and the gold mine of the Elverson fortune.

Fifty-seven years old, Col. Elverson is in the prime of life and in splendid physical condition, with the exception of an eye infection contracted at the Sesqui-Centennial grounds just before he left on his last trip abroad. Warned by his doctor that he should not leave Philadelphia until his eyes were healed, he was determined to visit England for personal business reasons, and consequently ordered his doctor, Benjamin Franklin Baer, to pack up and come with him.

It was this same venturesome spirit that prompted him to build the present Inquirer building, which is unique in many details, but chiefly for the fact it is a huge manufacturing plant, office building, and publisher's home combined and "built on air." The Elverson building stands directly over the Philadelphia & Reading freight yards that run under Broad street, Philadelphia.

The idea of building a newspaper plant directly over the freight yards was as new in this century as Christopher Columbus's discovery of America in the fifteenth. Publishers were too polite to scoff openly at Mr. Eleverson's proposal, but they most certainly watched the building grow with considerable interest.

The first year of occupation has demonstrated that Col. Elverson's idea was sound, according to H. E. Blackman, the publisher's righthand man. The theory was that the Inquirer's plant would be a combination paper storehouse and producing site, and Mr. Blackman said that in the first year $100,000 has been saved in the cost of paper storage alone. Beneath the Elverson building is a railroad siding, capable of holding a train of 11 freight cars, and the lower floors are used to store advance supplies of newsprint.

Rolls of newsprint to be fed presses cannot be seen on the pressroom floor. This is because they are fed upward from the second floor of the building, known as the "reel room" into the presses direct. The entire plan of transporting the paper supply has been designed to obviate the needless hauling and labor formerly necessary.

Paper is taken directly from waiting freight cars to the storage room and from there in specially constructed cars to the reel room. A supply of between four and five thousand tons of paper is kept in the building at one time, which, however, is only enough for three weeks' editions of the Inquirer. Between 60 and 70 carloads of paper arrive at the Elverson building's unloading platform every week.

Workers have found it has increased pressroom speed and efficiency to have this important mechanical department of the newspaper on the third floor, adjacent to, and unpartitioned from the delivery and mailing room, instead of, as is customary, in the basement. Four lines of sextuple presses, comprising 48 units, and one high-speed Wood press, capable of printing 72,000 24-page papers an hour feed the delivery room. There is space left also for the addition of two more lines of presses.

Five lines of central moving belts carry the papers in bundles of 50 already counted by the presses to the shipping clerks at the far end of the press room. These shipping clerks take them from the central belt as they pass, wrap and tie them, and drop them through openings in their counting tables to a lower belt, which in turn convey them to spiral shutes. Down these chutes the papers slide right on to the floors of trucks, and then are conveyed to newsdealers throughout the city and to trains for the army of Inquirer readers.

All this manufacturing detail of publishing is dear to Col. Elverson's heart. But there is another side of his nature. Like his father before him, he is a patron of American arts.

Charles H. Eustis, editor-in-chief of the Inquirer, and his editorial writers work in rooms that glitter with the oil and watercolor creations of American artists. These rooms are on the fifth floor of the Eleverson building, a floor well worth a visit as an art gallery. A sum of $250,000 is represented in these beautiful paintings. And, in his own home seven flights higher up, Col. Elverson has his own private collection.

The first six floors of the Elverson building are given over to business, executive, and editorial offices. The offices of the business manager and treasurer are located on the second floor. On the same floor all of the advertising solicitors, for both display and classified advertising, have their headquarters. In addition to Col. Elverson's own suite on the third floor are the offices of the circulation, accounting, and bookkeeping departments, John T. Custis, managing editor, and Harry B. Nason, Sunday editor, occupying the front of the fourth floor, together with the financial, business, and society editors, while the main editorial room is at the rear on the same level.

The whole plant, one is told, represents the materialization of Col. Elverson's ideas of newspaper publishing efficiency. Seeing it, one wonders at the training of the man, who has so impressed his personality on a building, workmanlike and efficient within, and yet artistic and pleasing to the most discriminating. There are no building regulations in Philadelphia, which forced Col. Elverson, for instance, to stagger the upper floors of his building, and give over considerable valuable space for the tower with its golden dome that stands 340 feet from the street.

A few incidents of the Colonel's youth explain him. Col. Elverson was not the pampered son of a millionaire. His father early made it plain that he must win his own spurs. At 11, James Jr., was interested in stamp collecting, a hobby he has not yet quite forgotten.

"Why not go into the stamp collecting

(Continued on page 46)

40 INTERTYPES

are being used by

No Standardized Intertype Has Ever Become Obsolete

THE LARGEST HOME-DELIVERED CIRCULATION ON THE PACIFIC COAST

Is concentrated in Semi-Tropical America, the Market Where Home Delivery Counts Most.

Send for new Los Angeles survey showing how sectional climate, crops and industries, affect selling and advertising; and how the Los Angeles Times by fitting the field has built up the largest body of subscribers—fastest-growing circulation—and largest advertising patronage within 1,000 miles. Address PROMOTION DEP'T:

Los Angeles Times

Or Eastern Representative: Williams, Lawrence & Cresmer Co., 360 N. Michigan Blvd., Chicago; 285 Madison Avenue., New York.

CIRCLE THESE 33 COUNTIES ON YOUR OHIO SALES MAP

One of the Most Resourceful Markets in the Middle West for National Advertisers

(Thoroly Covered by The Columbus Dispatch)

1926 Population	1,372,073
Number of Families	348,599
Number of Dwellings	330,333
Number of Autos	265,315
Manufacturing Establishments	3,069
Number of Wage Earners (industrial)	87,461
Total Value of All Productions	$551,201,000
Number of Banks	361
Bank Deposits in 1925	$306,759,000
Number of Income Taxpayers	61,990
Number of Towns	1,198

Dispatch Daily Average Paid Circulation 106,451

Advertisers planning to exploit the Ohio market will receive complete cooperation from the information and service bureau of

The Columbus Dispatch

OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

HARVEY R. YOUNG, Adv. Dir.

O'MARA & ORMSBEE, INC., Representatives
New York Chicago Detroit San Francisco

WORLD CO-OPERATION SUPREME ISSUE

(Continued from page 20)

"Almost everybody is thinking superficially. Very few people are thinking fundamentally. There is a simple, fundamental answer to every problem which arises in your own life, in your own business, in connection with your selling, a simple, very simple, fundamental answer. Now I will give you a few illustrations, first some that are more or less facetious.

"People say to me, 'Why is Henry Ford the greatest manufacturer in the automobile industry,' I could give them five million words on that if I wanted to but why not put it in a few simple words, a simple, fundamental, true answer? Henry Ford is the most successful manufacturer in the automobile industry because he was the first man to build an automobile for the other fellow. All of the other early manufacturers built cars in which they liked to ride, themselves.

"Advertising in the advertising pages of a publication must compete in reader interest with the reading matter in the publication, and if you can't put romance, if you can't put jazz into your advertising you are whipped, they won't read it. There are too many pages in the publication. They won't pick you out and read your copy unless it is as interesting as the copy inside the publication. They may see your name. They may get a reiterating impression of your name, but they won't read it and they won't write 150 to 200 letters a week commenting upon it.

"There is nothing to this whole problem of advertising and selling except thinking in terms of fundamentals, thinking in terms of ourselves, how we feel about things, how the other fellow feels about it, and if you think from his point of view and write it from his point of view, he will read it and like it and talk about it, and then you will have advertising.

"There have been so many clever people in this country that most young fellows don't remember this simple thing that was the first line in the copybook, and Henry M. Leland who built that wonderful car, the Cadillac, expressed it to me in a few words about ten years ago. He said.

"'Young man, if you want to be successful always remember one thing. Every young man reaches a point in his career when he has to choose one of two courses. If he chooses to be smart and foxy and clever, he will meet a lot of competition because there are so many people trying to do that. If he is just plain old fashioned honest, he will be so damned unique he will be immediately successful.'"

"It seems to me that as advertising men and advertising clubs we have two great responsibilities towards advertising," said Mr. Gilman, San Francisco, vice president, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. "The first of those responsibilities is truth in advertising, and this is being ably and well taken care of. Our second responsibility is toward the improvement of the practice of advertising. It seems to me quite natural that as advertising men we should have organized ourselves into clubs for the purpose of discussing advertising in its relation to our business or advertising as we practice it day by day in our business.

"I believe one of the outstanding contributions was made by the Detroit Advertising Club in its Aircraft Corporation, a dummy corporation such as has been promoted by the Educational Department of the Associated Clubs. I understand that this Corporation was formed complete within the club in open meeting, and they discussed all those corporate matters necessary in its formation and carried through production to advertising and selling, in the end distributing prizes for the best advertisements for the various media considered."

W. Frank McClure who had just been re-elected for the ninth time as chairman of the National Advertising Commission, emphasized the manner in which co-operation by the advertisers of the country to stamp out fraud and inaccuracy in advertising has saved the public incalculable money annually. He also appealed to the association to institute steps to dissipate the widespread impression that advertising is an addition to the cost of marketing a product and therefore a load on the consumer.

"The proposition as presented by the National Commission to undertake to investigate and present to the public the economics of advertising is so important that I hope that we will grasp the size of the problem," commented President Woodbridge.

"To be effective, I quite agree with Mr. McClure that that investigation must have the unanimous support, not only of the National Commission membership as a particular branch of our association but also of the individual clubs, located not only here but on the other side of the water, not only the individual clubs but the very individual groups who are specifically within our organization doing such effective work, carrying on vigilance under bans of the Better Business Bureau.

"With the impetus given to this plan by the National Commission, we can put behind this the force of our 30,000 members, we can make this job an effective job and do something that is much needed for advertising."

E. D. Gibbs, former president of the A. A. C. W., has been named chairman of the committee.

Bayard Dominick of New York, speaking on "The Success of the Better Business Bureau," said:

"One of the greatest things the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World have done in a concrete way was to establish these Better Business Bureaus as autonomous entities in individual cities. They enable the business men of the local community to join hands in protecting their own interests and those of the buying public in the community at the same time."

Mr. Dominick estimated that the Bureau in New York has saved the consuming public at least $100,000,000 that otherwise would have been the profits of stock swindlers and merchants of inferior products from the investments of gullible people.

Louis Wiley, business manager, New York Times, offered the following resolution on the death of Frank A. Munsey:

"The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World record with sorrow the death of Frank A. Munsey, a constructive force in the development of American advertising. He was a courageous and successful publisher, who throughout his clean and up-right career represented the highest principles of journalism. His princely gift to the Metropolitan Museum of Art is a notable contribution to the nation's cultural progress and places his name high on the roll of America's benefactors."

The motion to adopt the resolution was seconded and carried by a unanimous rising vote.

With Leon Renier, Jr., of the Agence Havas, as honorary chairman and Past President Lou E. Holland presiding, the convention moved to its close Thursday morning. Hon. William M. Jardine, Secretary of Agriculture, and Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, were the principal speakers. Others on the program were Judge C. E. Lobdell, fiscal agent, Federal Land Bank, Washington, D. C., and Laurice T. Moreland, of the George Batten Company's Boston office.

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin discussed "leadership" in his address Thursday.

"I want to discuss with you some of the problems and responsibilities that seem to me to attach to your relations, as business men in general and advertising men in particular, to the leadership of the American social order," he said.

"We have, it seems to me, gradually drifted into a conception of leadership that is radically different from the conception of leadership upon which our public was founded. The other night I spent an hour with a frightened conservative who thinks that the American Republic is surrounded by sinister enemies on whom we must keep a watchful eye. I agreed with him about the existence of these enemies; I did not agree with him about the identity of these enemies.

(Continued on page 49)

Leading All Other Daily Newspapers in the Albany Area

1st in Paid Advertising Lineage

Circulation With Complete Coverage

The Times-Union
Albany, N. Y.

ROME WASN'T BUILT IN A DAY AND IT TOOK US OVER SIX YEARS TO BUILD THIS SERVICE OF VALUE

Our COMPLETE checking service handles the entire detail work of suplying "checking proofs" to every agency and advertiser promptly—and—efficiently.

WE DO IT ALL

from a few complete copies.

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.
538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

New England's Second Largest Market

When Providence Gains You Gain

The 1925 report of the Providence Clearing House Association indicates that the total volume of business transacted in the territory in and around Providence exceeded in every month that of the corresponding month of 1924. The figures were

1925	- -	$717,576,500
1924	- -	621,855,500
Gain	- -	$ 95,721,000

The Providence Journal
and
The Evening Bulletin

with a combined circulation of 105,000 plus, give you excellent coverage of the large part of this constantly growing market.

Providence Journal Company
Providence, R. I.

Representatives
CHAS. H. EDDY CO., Boston New York Chicago
R. J. BIDWELL CO., San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

New Telephone Installations

Demonstrate Population Growth

OAKLAND-CALIFORNIA

INDUSTRIAL CAPITAL of the WEST

AND TRADING AREA

Show Telephone Installation Increase of 33% Since 1922

91,054 TELEPHONES

LISTED IN NEW DIRECTORY

(MAY, 1926)

Exclusive Associated Press Service — United Press — Consolidated Press Association

Oakland Tribune

ONE OF THE WEST'S GREAT NEWSPAPERS

OAKLAND'S ONLY LOCALLY OWNED, LOCALLY CONTROLLED DAILY

The foremost newspaper in this great, growing metropolis—meeting the demand of every advertiser for the proper medium by which he may reach the 550,000 people in Oakland and trading area.

The average net paid daily and Sunday circulation of the OAKLAND TRIBUNE is more than 75,000—92% City and Suburban circulation, distributed almost wholly by carrier delivery—and 8% Country circulation.

The OAKLAND TRIBUNE is a charter member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

National Representatives

WILLIAMS, LAWRENCE & CRESMER CO.

285 Madison Avenue, New York City

360 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago

THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE OWNS AND OPERATES RADIO STATION K L X

EDITORIAL

OUR LIFE STANDARD

TAKE a map of the world and think of it as a huge ball upon which are creeping a billion and three-quarters bipeds, all striving for creature comforts. Compare the material condition of Asia's nine hundred millions with our own. Consider the disparity of the average European's material standard in relation to the fortunate position of the average American. The fight for life is grim in Africa, India, islands of the sea and in many other lands. What a startling revelation the common American's home comfort would be to the bulk of the world's population, whose quest is not much above the acquirement of sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

Upward, constantly upward, moves our material status. Starving poverty is now unknown in our land. Rags and tatters are seen in no street. The minimum standard calls for a change of clothes at the week-end; three good meals per day, with meat, fresh vegetables, bread and butter, sugar and spice and nourishing drink, at least once daily, and fruit at least weekly; the working day is no longer from sun-up to sunset, and the American woman is not a beast of burden; our children possess as birthrights time for free education and play; machinery has lifted the heaviest burdens from the backs of men.

A few random news items, found in the columns of the daily press, give rise to these thoughts and comparisons: 3,600,000 automobiles are being marketed in this country this year; remember your mother at Monday's washboard as you read that 600,000 electric washing machines are being sold in the United States this year; in a comparison with 1916, 60 per cent increased volume of factory-made goods are being produced with only 25 per cent more workers; 12 per cent larger farm crops are being produced by fewer men and women than ten years ago; steel mills are yielding 86 per cent larger tonnage with 56 per cent more workers; average wages in many leading lines of trade are increased over a year ago, 14 per cent in the tobacco industry, 7 per cent in the automobile tire industry, 7.9 per cent in book and job printing, 5.6 per cent in the candy trade, etc.; statistics show important increases in the number of families moving from the large cities to suburban districts.

Every day's news adds to the evidence of the success of mass production and mass distribution of the comforts of life in America. Advertising carries the flag of this beneficent movement.

No New York newspaper exposed the grafting politicians in a conspiracy with milk and butter adulterators, but reported the news when it broke as a routine matter, which makes veterans smile and say it couldn't have happened in the good old times.

AN AMERICAN ENGLISHMAN

THE first Englishman the sixty-odd American newspaper correspondents in London have ever elected as the president of their organization, the American Correspondent's Association of London, is Robert J. Prew, well known to the craft in America for his Universal Service despatches and his several visits to this country.

Indeed it is said of Mr. Prew that he is the "most American Englishman in London." This not only acknowledges his study of American problems but an extensive acquaintance with American personalities. He has served as chief of the London Universal Service bureau since 1919, following eight years in Paris for New York Times and the Hearst newspapers. He was formerly of the staff of the Continental Daily Mail.

The American newspaper man visiting Fleet Street is pretty certain to encounter "Bob" Prew at "78," where he unfailingly dispenses information and encouragement to more such "birds of flight" than any single subject of His Majesty, George V. It is a subject of congratulation that the American correspondents in London have honored this generous spirit and skilful international reporter.

The management of Woolworth's stores would be dumfounded by their increased profits through newspaper advertising, but while we see this clearly those remarkably clever merchants cannot see beyond window displays.

There was a little city, and few men within it, and there came a great king against it, and besieged it, and built great bulwarks against it.

Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man.—Ecclesiastes IX; 14, 15.

HENRY FORD'S GIFT

HENRY FORD is the advertising genius of this age. He possesses, more than any man of the day, a genuine talent for publicity. Every public gesture of this manufacturer throws radiant light on his product. He knows how to create good-will in broad sweeps. No other manufacturer in America could possibly have presented to the Prince of Sweden an article of thrice the value of a Lincoln car and received from the newspaper press such unanimous first-page acknowledgment. A few weeks ago Ford's faithful friend, Edison, was riding the Prince around in "my good little Ford," while cameras snapped and reporters dashed to the nearest telegraph office to file this undoubted news. Mr. Ford takes his business seriously. The public respects him and his products. He is as zealous for his cause as was Barnum or Wanamaker. He is a hustler and his impulses are intelligent. What would seem like rank free publicity in others, appears legitimate news in the case of Henry Ford. In many respects the man is remarkable, but in no way is his genius more marked than in advertising. It is a gift few men possess. In this advertising age, it opens the door to wealth.

Western Union agents are asking newspapers for free publicity; when that grand old institution quits piking and advertises for business its profit sheets will amaze its stockholders. Millions of Americans don't know how to use the Western Union.

CONVENTION SUCCESS

THE Philadelphia convention demonstrated the vitality of the world-wide advertising movement, as will be amply demonstrated to those who did not attend by the accounts contained in this issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

The convention was a brilliant success. The attendance was large and the program offered a feast of soundly constructive information to men and women engaged in various phases of paid publicity.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER congratulates the organization upon the change of name. As indicated in this column last week the leaders of organized advertising found the word "clubs" in the old A. A. C. W. title confusing and embarrassing inasmuch as it seemed to indicate that the organization was social, whereas it represents an economic movement of world-wide importance. Very sensibly a new name was selected: International Advertising Association. This tells the story, perfectly. It is in every way appropriate.

C. K. Woodbridge's energetic and intelligent administration was fitly recognized when the honor of the presidency was again conferred on him. He is surrounded by an able body of executives. It looks like good weather for the organization during the coming year. Denver was a good selection for the 1927 meeting. It cannot be said that the organization fails to accommodate its wide-flung membership.

Immense impetus was given to the international organization by the presence at Philadelphia of the delegations from France and the British Isles, with scattering representation from other foreign countries. If anyone has doubted the spread of the American advertising idea the addresses that the foreign delegates made during this week should dispel the thought. Their pleas for intensified and more practical relationships among the peoples of their lands and our own countrymen amounted to much more than "hands across the sea." These men offered a program of obvious mutual benefits.

Philadelphia's proverbial hospitality was showered on the advertising delegates. Aside from the business of the convention the week was a social success. Those who arranged the program and events earned the enduring gratitude of the visiting host.

On to Denver!

If you know all there is to know about advertising, you need not read the proceedings of the Philadelphia convention, but if you have room for dollar-making ideas and want a broad vision of the industry, better plunge in.

A QUEER CASE

AN editor lies in a cell in the Humboldt County jail, in Eureka, Cal., serving a thousand days for alleged contempt of court. The sentence was pronounced by the judge of the court which the editor is said to have insulted. The Governor of California has refused to pardon the man, also holding that the sentence is not excessive.

The case, insofar as it has been reported, is not entirely clear to us, but we have a definite feeling that it deserves investigation from the outside. The convict is Alfred Lindsley, of the Humboldt News of Eureka.

An editorial in San Francisco Chronicle seems to indicate that Lindsley was not a popular man in the town, for reasons not stated, and makes it evident that his conviction was relished by some of the more powerful influences of the community. However, the Chronicle regards his sentence as excessive and questions the arbitrary nature of the judge's power, under democratic institutions.

An associate of Editor Lindsley, in a telegram to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, says that Lindsley incurred the enmity of District Attorney Hall, of Humboldt County, when in his paper he attacked the district attorney's alleged practice of compromising liquor cases for revenue and maintained a "large force" of employees known as the county "dry squad." Lindsley was arrested for the publication of these articles, charged with criminal libel. Following his arrest the editor charged in four separate issues of his bi-weekly paper that his arrest was the result of politics and was intended to silence his newspaper.

The articles were held by Superior Judge Denver Sevier to be in contempt of court. Deputy District Attorney Paul Gibson swore to affidavits of contempt.

In behalf of the editor it was claimed that his attacks upon the district attorney were not personal, but concerned the conduct of his office. But Judge Sevier ruled that the language of the articles cast opprobrium on the district attorney and he held the editor guilty of contempt, assessing the limit fine of $500 on each of four counts or one day in jail for each two dollars fine, totaling one thousand days.

The editor refused to pay, saying he was unjustly accused, and began serving his sentence. His attorney, S. E. Metzler, is now fighting the legality of the committing judge's decision before the Supreme Court of California.

In refusing to pardon the man, Governor Richardson issued a statement filled with side-slams at Lindsley, his lawyer and with a peroration on "sob-sister" journalism.

There are too many familiar earmarks of bureaucratic politics and pompous judicial dignity in this case to permit it to go unnoticed. Whether the editor was a popular member of the town's singing circles is beside the point. He had the right to attack the conduct of the district attorney's office if he kept within the facts. If he was unjustly arrested, he had the right to carry the case to the public in his paper.

The high-handed business of judges sending men to jail for contempt of their courts, with no opportunity for trial before a disinterested tribunal, is one of the gravest free press questions of the day. It is unreasonable and wholly out of line with our theory of justice. Something seems to tell us that Editor Lindsley has received a raw deal.

Complainant, jury, judge, executioner all in one—is that American?

PERSONAL

EDMUND BOOTH, editor of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press, and editorial director of the Booth Publishing Company of Michigan, has sailed for abroad with his family for a rest and vacation.

John F. D. Aué, publisher of the Burlington (Ia.) Hawk-Eye and president of the Iowa Press Association, was re-elected president of the Greater Burlington Association when directors met last week to organize for the year.

Frank G. Huntress, publisher of the San Antonio (Tex.) Express and News has been in New York on business the past ten days.

M. M. Landon, editor and manager of the Bath (N. Y.) Advocate, is taking an extended vacation in Silver Creek, N. Y., endeavoring to regain his health. Frank A. Tabor of Syracuse is acting in his stead.

Carl August Bagel, representing A. Bagel Printing Press, Duesseldorf, Germany, spent the past week in New York City visiting newspaper plants and job printing establishments. Mr. Bagel will visit Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco before returning home.

W. F. Muse, editor of the Mason City (Ia.) Globe-Gazette, accompanied by his daughter Elizabeth, arrived in New York, Wednesday, June 16, on the liner Olympic, after a two months' tour of Europe.

John Redmond, editor of the Burlington (Kan.) Daily Republican, will drive to California and other Pacific states on his vacation beginning July 1.

Lotus H. Loudon, founder and manager of the Anaheim (Cal.) Bulletin, is making a motor trip with his family to New York City. Mr. Loudon expects to be gone two months.

Richard B. Quinn, editor of the Guymon (Okla.) Tribune, has been appointed United States marshal of the western Oklahoma district, succeeding the late Ewers White.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

HERBERT B. FAIRCHILD, advertising manager of the New York Sun, has returned from a mid-western trip.

Carlisle N. Grieg of the New York Evening Journal has returned to the sales promotion department of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Alfonso Johnson, president of the Northeast Missouri Publishers and Printers Association and manager of the Columbia (Mo.) Missourian, has joined the Dallas News as business editor.

Ralph L. Milnes has returned to the San Antonio Express advertising soliciting staff after several months with M. Halff & Bro., San Antonio, as advertising man. L. Henderson, formerly on the Express advertising staff, has joined the Builders Equipment Company.

Paul J. Skamser, advertising manager Superior (Wis.) Evening Telegram, has returned from a three weeks' vacation at Tucson, Ariz. He also visited Carl Magee, "fighting editor," at Albuquerque.

Norris E. Inveen, national advertising manager of the Tacoma Daily Ledger, has been appointed manager of the automotive section of the Sunday Ledger. The national advertising department will continue to be directed by Mr. Inveen. Howard Perry, formerly automobile editor of the Ledger, is now with the Portland Oregonian in the display department.

Gene Charles, who recently sold the Republican County Democrat at Belleville, Kan., has assumed management of the Burr Oak Herald during the absence of Editor Ross.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

VINCENT G. BYERS, city editor of the New York Evening Post returned this week from a two months' vacation abroad.

Forrest Davis of the staff of the New York Herald Tribune covered the Eucharistic congress in Chicago for his paper.

J. Wilson Roy, dramatic editor and critic of the Cleveland Times since its launching in March, 1922, has resigned. His plans are not yet ready to be announced.

Carlyle Burrows, art editor, New York Herald Tribune, has gone to Utah to visit Zion National Park and from there to his home in Salt Lake City.

Joseph Meyers, former editor of the Ponca City (Okla.) News has been made news editor of the Tulsa Tribune.

John Riis, son of the late Jacob Riis, has resigned as financial editor of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader to become educational publicity director of the Richmond Comumnity Fund, succeeding Bent Taylor, who has gone to Charlotte, N. C., as director of the Charlotte Community Fund.

Howard W. Palmer, formerly city editor of the Watertown (N. Y.) Times, has resigned as assistant secretary of the State Public Service Commission to become editor and manager of the Greenwich (Conn.) Press.

Victor M. Friar, financial editor of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette is in charge of raising the fund of $7,500 for the expenses of the New England Advertising clubs convention which is to be held in Worcester, Nov. 8 and 9.

Charles L. Hughes, who underwent an operation for appendicitis on May 3, has resumed his duties at the Warren office of the Providence Journal.

John Booker, formerly managing editor of the Sapulpa (Okla.) Herald, has been made telegraph editor of the Tulsa Tribune.

P. Krushan has resigned from the news bureau of the Canadian Pacific Railway to join the staff of the Montreal World.

W. G. Sibley, of Gallipolis, O., editorial writer on the Chicago Journal of Commerce, was given the degree of doctor of humane letters at the commencement exercises at Rio Grande College, Rio Grande, O., a few days ago.

Floyd Casebolt is now managing editor of the Waxahachie (Tex.) Daily Light and Weekly Enterprise, succeeding W. A. Ownby, resigned.

Oscar L. Stevens, managing editor of the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot Ledger, has returned from a three months' European trip, during which he visited Italy, Switzerland and France.

R. V. Ruthven of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, has joined the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press as rewrite man.

Floyd Taylor of the night rewrite staff, New York Herald Tribune, is on a month's leave of absence to visit his home in Los Angeles.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

THE Marquis de Valdeiglesias, editor and publisher of La Epoca of Madrid, is visiting this country for the first time. Arriving the second week in June, he is making a rapid inspection tour of American industries, planning to return to Spain sometime in July. At present he is in Chicago. He hopes to make America another visit within a year or two to see the Spanish missions of California.

MARQUIS DE VALDEIGLESIAS

The Marquis has been head of La Epoca for more than 50 years. The paper is very conservative and is considered the organ of the higher classes in Spain.

As editor, the Marquis, who has had several trying experiences with the Spanish government, does not wholly condemn the new regime, the dictatorship of Primo de Rivera, whose treatment of the press has been particularly harsh.

"The policy of my newspaper is adverse to the policies of the Prime Minister," he said in an interview. "This does not, however, prevent me from recognizing the merits of his system. Among many things which General Rivera has done, I may say that the establishment of respect for law and the promised settlement of the Moroccan question are enough to make him widely respected and well liked in Spain.

"True, as a conservative and parliamentarist, I cannot agree with certain methods of the government, as I think they are inappropriate and even useless under the present circumstances. In my opinion, Rivera could have obtained the same political and economic results if he had respected the constitutional rights of the individual as is done in every civilized nation."

James "Doc" Watson has resigned as assistant city editor of the Montreal (Que.) Herald to join the staff of the Montreal World.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

RICHARD CHOATE from Toronto (Ont.) Star, to telegraph staff of the Montreal (Que.) Star.

J. E. Champagne, from Montreal

(Continued on page 30)

AMONG the 100 users of the Central Press Association's daily full page news pictorial—the World's Best Picture Page—are the following representative newspapers:

Atlantic City Press Union
Binghamton Press
Birmingham News
Buffalo Times
Canton Repository
Dallas Times-Herald
Denver Times
Elmira Star-Gazette
Kansas City Post
Miami Herald
Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph
Portland, Me., Press-Herald
Richmond, Va., News-Leader
Rochester Times Union
San Antonio Express
San Diego Tribune
San Jose Mercury-Herald
Schenectady Gazette
St. Paul Dispatch
St. Petersburg Times
Wichita Eagle
Wilmington, Del., Journal

Write or wire today for samples and prices. Partial service supplied to papers that can not use the page daily.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

P. S.—We also produce a Weekly Full Page Sports Pictorial for Saturday or Sunday release.

Letters in Praise of the work of

A. A. MILNE

Have Been Written By

The President of the United States

38 State Governors

6 Cabinet Members

3 Justices of the Supreme Court

11 Rear-Admirals, U. S. Navy

12 Major-Generals, U. S. Army

88 Prominent Clergymen

89 Noted Actors and Actresses and Many Others

Milne's Golden Fleeces of Verse and Prose, with Illustrations by Bert Salg

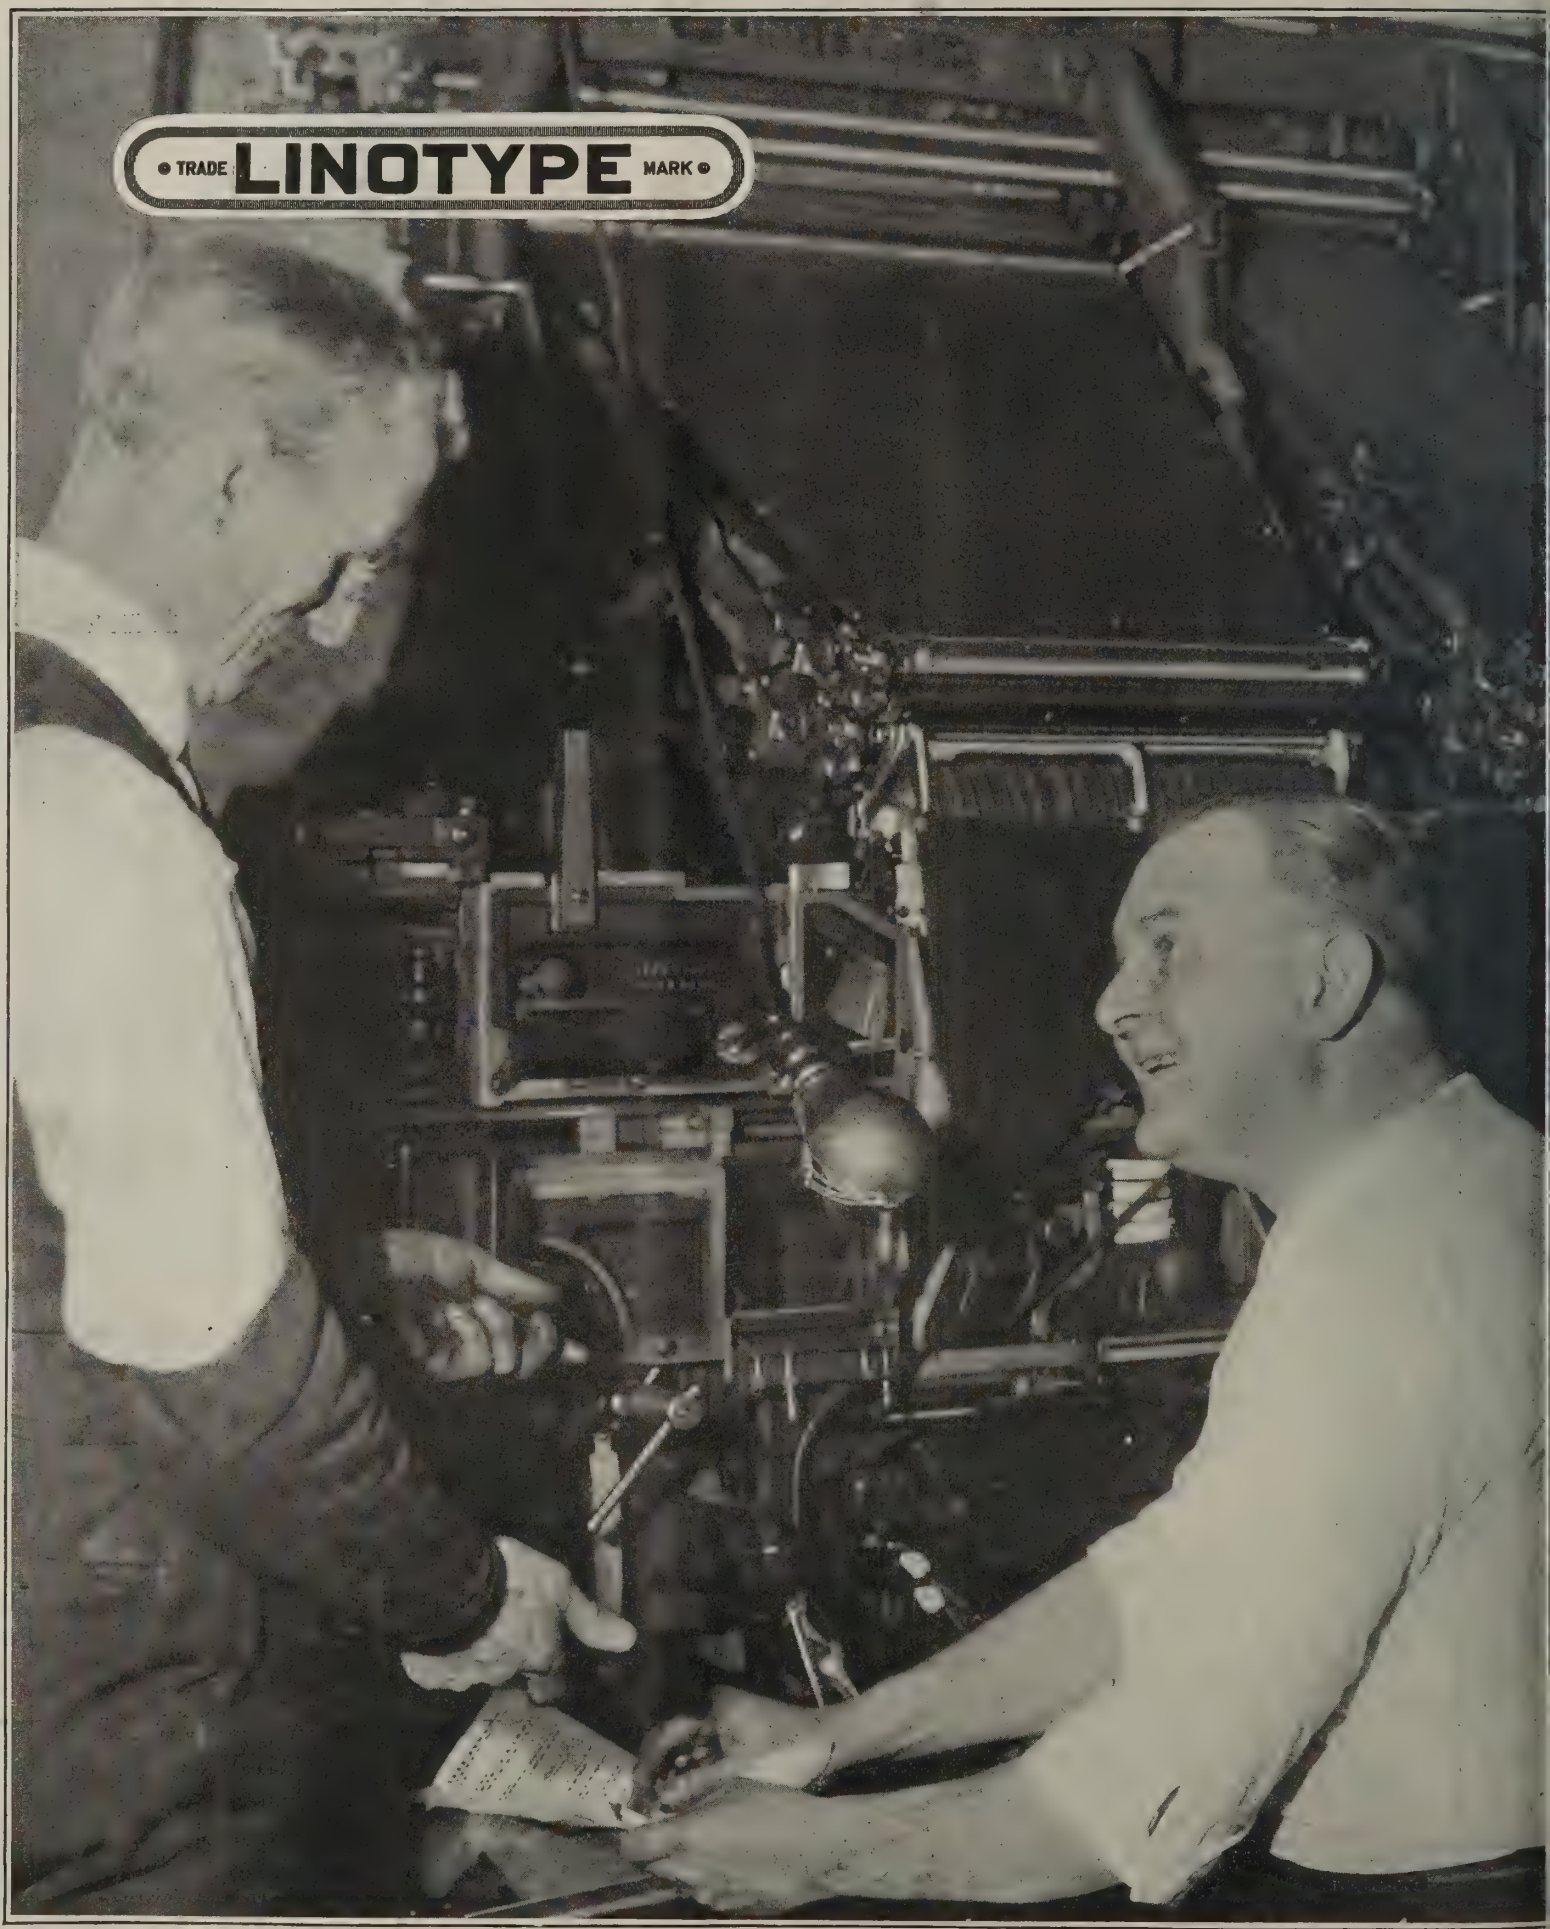
Are Now Appearing As

A Regular Weekly Feature



No One Is Too Hurried,
No One Is Too Worried,
To Rollick With Milne
In The Funshine!

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

GIVE THEM THE BEST THERE IS

GIVE THEM THE BEST THERE IS

GIVE THEM THE BEST THERE IS

Composed entirely on the LINOTYPE

GIVE THEM THE BEST THERE IS

GIVE THEM THE BEST THERE IS!

¶ They're a loyal bunch; these men who make newspapers. They love the game and they love their paper with a profane devotion that you won't find equalled in any other business. And when things are going badly in the front office and the ghost ceases to make his weekly round, they'll stick to the ship as long as there is a roll of paper to feed to the presses—and weep when they write "30" on the end.

¶ Of course they'll get the paper out—somehow—with any old junk equipment that happens to be around the shop; but it won't be as good a paper as either they or you would like it to be and they won't have quite the joy in their work that is due them.

¶ For they are good workmen and a good workman deserves good tools. Only the best is good enough.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS Brooklyn, New York CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

GIVE THEM THE BEST THERE IS

GIVE THEM THE BEST THERE IS except for the hand-set title line

532.26.6-F2

PERSONALS

(Continued from page 27)

(Que.) La Patrie, to business staff, Montreal (Que.) World as accountant.

John O. Kykyri, from police reporter, Duluth (Minn.) News-Tribune, to night telegraph editor, Jackson (Mich.) Citizen-Patriot.

Joseph Morris, from the United States Daily, Washington, D. C., to Tulsa Tribune.

R. O. Dudley, from telegraph editor, Indianapolis Star to copy desk, Cincinnati Enquirer.

Manton L. Marrs, from Denver Post, to Tulsa Tribune.

Alvin Wilson, from linotype operator, Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Daily Advance to Ogdensburg Republican-Journal.

Ray Sicard, from reporter, Duluth (Minn.) News-Tribune, to telegraph editor, Superior (Wis.) Evening Telegram.

MARRIED

WILLIAM C. RICHARDS, special writer on the staff of the Detroit Free Press, to Miss Rosemary Handibo, daughter of the late James E. Handibo, of El Paso, Tex., last week. Mr. and Mrs. Richards will tour Europe for their wedding trip, sailing from New York on the Majestic, June 23.

Donald Fry, Spokane (Wash.) Chronicle editorial staff, to Miss Margaret Munchausen of Spokane, June 2.

Eugene V. Carlquist, of the Davenport (Ia.) Times staff, to Miss Georgia B. Shaffer, June 17.

T. R. Keniston, San Antonio correspondent of the Associated Press, to Miss Marjorie Wyman of Omaha, formerly in the society department of the Lincoln (Neb.) Star, at San Antonio recently.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

GALVESTON (Tex.) NEWS, special section in connection with Gengler Grocery Store's 75th anniversary.

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star, 36-page annual vacation and travel guide, in tabloid form, June 10.

Auburn (Wash.) Globe-Republican, 60-page special edition Friday, June 18, in observance of the city's new $200,000 water system.

WITH THE SPECIALS

CONE, ROTHENBURG & NOEE, Inc., special representatives, New York, have been named to represent the Kewanee (Ill.) Evening Star-Courier, recently purchased by the Lee Newspaper Syndicate. The Greensboro (N. C.) Daily News, which has been represented by Cone, Rothenburg & Noee, Inc., North and West, has appointed that company its representative in the South.

Columbus (Miss.) Daily Discoverer, John L. Tait, publisher, has appointed Benjamin & Kentnor Company, New York, its special representatives.

Hawley D. Ely and Donald B. Millar have joined the Chicago force of the Williams, Lawrence & Cresmer Company, publishers, representatives.

George F. Wiers has been appointed to the Chicago staff of M. C. Mogensen & Co., Inc., national newspaper representatives, San Francisco, as salesman.

Before joining Mogensen & Co., Wiers was with Gilman, Nicoll & Ruthman, Chicago newspaper representatives.

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency, New York, has been named national advertising representatives of the Lima (O.) Morning Star.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

ASSOCIATED PRESS office in St. Paul has added several feet of floor space to its traffic-editorial room in the Dispatch building.

Robert Prew, London correspondent of the Universal Service, has been elected head of the Foreign Correspondents Club in London.

A. F. Harrison, formerly superintendent of the eastern division of the Consolidated Press Association, has been made general superintendent, and has moved his headquarters from New York to Washington. L. F. Parton succeeds Mr. Harrison in New York as eastern superintendent. Parton also continues as editor of Current News Features, Inc.

J. F. Arize has been appointed manager of a new bureau opened by International News Service in Raleigh, N. C. He was formerly Norfolk correspondent for I. N. S. This news agency is now operating a state circuit in North Carolina.

Victor Knauth has joined the London office of the United Press. He was formerly associated with the San Francisco Chronicle and the Springfield Republican.

J. N. Atkinson, formerly a member of the Associated Press staff in London, has been put in charge of the International News Service bureau in Vienna. Mr. Atkinson worked on the Richmond Times-Dispatch before joining the A. P.

Harry W. Frantz, United Press correspondent, left Arica last week and is returning to New York by way of Chile, Argentina and Brazil.

Ed Keen, vice-president and European manager of the United Press, returned to London headquarters this week from a vacation spent on the Continent.

Richard Chaplin has joined the New York staff of International News Service.

Carl Turner, manager of the International News Service Pittsburgh (Pa.) bureau, will leave June 28 on an automobile vacation trip through the east.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

AMONG the recent shipments of additional units from the New York works of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., were one 16-page superspeed unit for the Cleveland Press, two units for the Springfield (Mass.) Republican and one 16-page superspeed unit for the Wilmington (Del.) Journal.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

GEORGE F. CALBERT, formerly of the Bogard (Mo.) Dispatch and the Dexter Messenger, has purchased the Tina (Mo.) Interior Journal.

A. A. Gillispie, for 22 years owner of the Rexford (Kan.) News, has sold the paper to J. P. Phillips of the Colby Free Press. ..

Homer L. Huffman, formerly of the Dewitt (Neb.) Times-News, will revive the Arcadia (Neb.) Tribune, having leased the old plant from S. W. McCoy and Ronald Furse.

D. R. Huffaker, editor of the Collinsville (Tex.) Times and Pottsboro Times, has purchased the Whitesboro News-Record from B. M. Harrison, who has been elected school superintendent at Littlefield.

Jesse L. Day and sons have sold the Wewoka (Okla.) Daily Times to S. J. Hardy, until recently editor of the Wewoka Capital-Democrat. Grady Webster has returned to the editorship of the Capital-Democrat after several months absence.

ASSOCIATIONS

NEW YORK SUN CLUB will hold its second annual excursion on Sunday, June 27. The steamer Machigone has been chartered to take the club members up the Hudson to Sunset Park, at Indian Point.

Alfonso Johnson, business editor of the Dallas News and Journal, has been re-elected president of the DALLAS ADVERTISING LEAGUE. He is the first newspaper man to fill that office.

Officers of the ADVERTISING CLUB OF BALTIMORE have been elected as follows: President, E. Lester Muller; vice-president, R. E. Stapleton; secretary-treasurer, N. M. Parrott; counsel, Walter V. Harrison.

WASHINGTON PRESS ASSOCIATION will be represented at the annual meeting of the State Chamber of Commerce to be held at Yakima, June 24, 25 and 26 by Hill Williams, A. S. Hillyer, Fred Wolf and Chapin Foster. Fred W. Kennedy, manager of the press association, will sound the keynote of the convention with his address on "The Awakening of Washington."

SCHOOLS

DEAN H. F. HARRINGTON of the Medill School of Journalism, accompanied by his wife, have gone for an extensive trip to New York and Boston. They will return to Frankfort, Mich., where they will spend the month of August at their lodge.

Joseph W. Piercy, professor of journalism at the University of Indiana is a visiting professor at the University of Washington summer school. He is teaching two classes, News Writing and Magazine and Feature Writing.

Ninety-one students are enrolled in the summer session of the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri. This is the largest enrollment that the summer term has ever had. Fifty-eight are men and 33 women.

Four 4-day tours of Missouri will be made by students of the school of journalism, University of Missouri, this summer, to obtain features and news articles for papers of the state. Prof. Frank L. Martin, of the school, will direct the tour.

John E. Stempel has resigned as instructor in journalism and director of publicity at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., to do graduate work at Indiana University. He will be part-time instructor in advertising in the department of journalism there. His successor at Lafayette College has not yet been named.

FLASHES

PILSUDSKI had to change a Diet th disagreed with him.—Philadelph Record.

Congress may end the discussion l passing a bill in favor of nice growi weather for the farmers.—Toledo Bla

Congress passes bills. The taxpaye pay them.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Statistics indicate that juries are hu more frequently than murderers.—W Street Journal.

As we gather it, the trouble wi popular government in Europe these da is that it is so terrifically unpopular.- Seattle Times.

"An educated man earns more," sa the Washington Post. Well, perhap but he doesn't always get it.—Phil delphia Inquirer.

This is the puzzling year when y simply cannot tell a man's age by h hatband.—Milwaukee Journal.

Lecturer says a man never forgets t days he has spent on a farm. And th may be the chief obstacle in the way the back-to-the-farm movement.—Lit Rock Arkansas Gazette.

Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus sa he is overwhelmed by the magnitude everything in America and it sounds if he were paying his own expenses. Columbus State Journal.

What is the difference between t French House of Deputies and t American House of Representative The former are bulling the franc, wh the latter are franking the bull.—Chica Daily News.

PEJEPSCOT PAPER COMPANY

Manufacturers for Over Fifty Years of

NEWSPRINT

Combining the Three Essentials of Quality

Strength • Cleanliness • Color

Colored Newsprint a Specialty

Daily Capacity

160 TONS

MILLS IN THE STATE OF MAINE, U. S. A.

Sales Office: • 42 Broadway • New York, N. Y.

You may deal with these 28 Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication. Under the "Iowa plan" they pledge uniform cooperation throughout the state in marketing your goods.

Industries now surpass field crops—in Iowa

Because Iowa is the foremost agricultural state, we are likely to lose sight of her industrial wealth.

The output of her 3,420 factories for 1925 was estimated at $775,000,000—more than her total field production.

Iowa has the world's largest factories of both cereals and washing machines. (It is estimated that two-thirds of the world's washing machines are made in Iowa).

She also has the largest factories in the production of baskets, buttons, butter, calendars, steel furnaces, stump pullers, wall plaster, crackers and macaroni. The cement, brick and tile and meat packing industries are among the important ones in Iowa.

When we add Iowa's great agricultural resources it is easy to understand why her per capita taxable wealth is 51% above the Nation's average.

Iowa's population is about evenly divided between rural and urban dwellers. But no matter where they live, all Iowa people have at least one habit in common—the daily reading of the daily newspaper.

There is hardly a family in the state that does not read one of these 28 leading dailies every day.

Let us show you how our "Iowa plan" will help you in the actual marketing of your goods.

Rates and full information upon request.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

From Stenographer to News Room is Mabel Abbott's Story—Bertha Cook Space Buyer for Foote & Morgan—Women's Ad Club of Chicago's Last Meeting

SHOULD Mabel Abbott, reporter on the staff of the New York World, ever care to pull up stakes and leave the newspaper business, she has always an anchor to windward, since she entered the news room from the stenographer's desk, and can fill either job competently today.

MABEL ABBOTT

It was in 1913, when she was secretary for the managing editor of the Seattle (Wash.) Sun, that Miss Abbott made the change. Then followed a long distance hard luck record, but she held to the title of newspaper woman. The Sun failed and the staff tried unsuccessfully to run the paper co-operatively for four months.

After a short subsequent experience on the Tacoma (Wash.) Times, Miss Abbott joined the staff of the Chicago Herald just before it was sold to the Examiner in 1917. Miss Abbott was covering a Billy Sunday revival at the time, and continued the assignment for the Herald-Examnier, before joining the Chicago Daily News.

Next she worked for the Detroit News, becoming New York correspondent for that newspaper.

During 1919 and 1920 Miss Abbott was associated with NEA Service, Inc., where much of her best work was done. She reported the political conventions of 1920, and was the only woman reporter to follow Cox on his Presidential campaign. For awhile, she was manager of NEA's Kansas City bureau, where she had five states to cover.

Returning to New York in 1921, she did space work for the New York World, and then was given regular work in that paper's Sunday department. Only a short while ago she was transferred at her own request to the World's news department.

Miss Abbott has ridden an elephant at the head of a parade, has been to the bottom of a tank in a diving suit, and has done many other "stunts" for newspapers. She prefers straight news reporting.

"Stenography, the ability to write shorthand, is really not of great use to a newspaper reporter," Miss Abbott said this week. "But I'm glad I've kept it up, because I will always have something to turn to, should I tire of newspaper work, or should newspapers tire of me."

Handling eight important accounts for Foote & Morgan, New York advertising agency, is Miss Bertha Cook, space buyer, who has had 12 years' experience in advertising. Miss Cook has been three years with Foote & Morgan, and, in addition to space buying does considerable research work for that agency.

After being graduated from high school, Miss Cook went immediately into advertising work, starting in the advertising department of the Remington Arms Company. Her next step was as assistant to Percy Bromfield in the space buying department of the Martin V. Kelly Company, an advertising agency, and then she became associated with the advertising department of the H. W. Johns-Manville Company.

Miss Cook was head of the auditing and checking department of Murray Howe & Co., when that concern was purchased in 1921 by the William H. Rankin Company, and she remained with the latter agency as space buyer until 1923, when she joined with Foote & Morgan.

In her present position, Miss Cook is in close contact with newspapers of the country, and is constantly seeking statistics on local market conditions. She said she finds EDITOR & PUBLISHER's annual Space Buyer's Guide of great aid in her work.

Conducting the Better Business Bureau of Seattle, Wash., is Miss Hazel M. Britton. A college woman, she brought to bureau work in advertising a background of practical experience gained with the Old National Bank and Union Trust Company of Spokane, Wash.

Virginia Anne McKenzie, of the Superior (Wis.) Telegram's advertising staff was awarded first prize for the best all-round story on the Minnesota Arrowhead country as a vacation land. Through the Duluth Herald, a nationwide contest was sponsored by the Minnesota Arrowhead Association to collect a number of stories suitable for publicity and advertising purposes. The award was $25. Miss McKenzie conducts a department "Shopping with Annabelle Lee" on the Telegram.

Women's Advertising Club of Chicago held its last dinner meeting of the year June 15 at the Congress hotel. Trophies won by the club this year and in previous years were on display at the meeting.

Mrs. W. S. Thomas, society editor in Texarkana for 10 years has resigned from the Texarkana Gazette to chaperon a party of Arkansas Teachers' College students on a trip to Europe.

Eleanor Kelly, cashier on the Superior (Wis.) Evening Telegram is spending two weeks in New York.

Miss Katherine Bartlett of the Boston (Mass.) Globe sailed from New York last week for a Caribbean cruise.

Miss Betty Avery, society editor, Wichita (Kan.) Eagle was married to George R. Temple, Wichita business man.

The marriage of Marie C. Blanchard, literary editor of the Toledo (O.) Blade and daughter of Negley Cochran of the Scripps-Howard New York staff to William C. Hartough of the Toledo News-Bee was announced recently. Mr. Hartough formerly was with the Louisville Herald, Terre Haute Star, St. Louis Times and Kansas City Times.

Julia Harpman, feature reporter of the New York Daily News, is writing the story of Gertrude Ederle's second attempt to swim the English Channel for the Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate. With her abroad is her husband, Westbrook Pegler, formerly with the United News, now with the Chicago syndicate.

Clifford J. Laube, assistant city editor of the Daily News, burst into poetry when Miss Harpman left, writing a poem called "Julia Goes to Sea," which began:

"When as our Julia goes to sea,
A heartless piracy she plays
To steal from our poor treasury
Her gentle self, her golden ways.
Yet call her not too pitiless
A pillager, for there is left
On all she touched a wistfulness
To plead forgiveness for her theft."

Arkansas Daily Suspends

The Texarkana (Ark.) Inter-State Journal, after publication as an afternoon daily for about two months, suspended with announcement that it hoped to resume within a short time.

CLASSIFIED FOR REAL ESTATE

Provides Best Opportunity of Maki Sales, Perkins Tells Realtors

The greatest single force for maki real estate sales is the classified colum of the daily newspapers with a gener circulation, C. L. Perkins, manager of t classified advertising department of t Chicago Herald and Examiner told t advertising conference of the Nation Association of Real Estate Boards its annual meeting in Tulsa recently.

In supporting his claim Mr. Perki cited figures to prove that classified a vertising reaches a class of readers wh are in the market for the goods adve tised through the columns. Else, contended, they would not read the new papers.

Mr. Perkins said in part:

"Last year $1,500,000,000 was spent advertising in the United States, of whi $720,000,000 was spent in newspapers. this amount $175,000,000 was spent f classified real estate advertising. If w assembled here can make the expenditu of this sum more productive, the tim will be well spent.

"Circulation has nothing to do with t efficiency of a classified advertising m dium. The important thing to know abo a newspaper is how many of its reade consult its classified columns, not ho many people read its news colum There are many examples where new papers with small circulation but high developed classified reader interest pr duce better results for classified adve tisers than papers with large circulati and small classified reader interest.

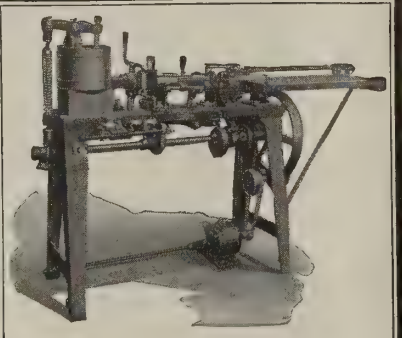
"The only efficient method is to a vertise everyday.

"Several years ago I made a caref analysis in several cities. Several hu dred people who secured results fro their classified advertisements were que tioned as to how many insertions we printed before the actual purchas answered. In 72 per cent of the cas the profitable answer came after the a vertisement had been printed more th three times."

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.



Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN

NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC

H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

Cast Leads, Slugs, Rules on the Elrod

All the leads, slugs and plain rules you need cast on the Elrod at a cost but little above the actual cost of the metal. This is what the Elrod brings you. Let the Elrod bring to your paper a new freedom from material worries.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Ave., Chicago
San Francisco—New York
Atlanta—Boston

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Your Display Advertisements

Must First Attract Favorable Attention

The big element in the success of a newspaper advertisement is its appearance. Clean, bright advertisements, set in attractive, clean-cut faces command attention and produce results for your advertisers!

It stands to reason that worn, broken, battered type cannot create an atmosphere of snappy freshness to up-to-the-minute merchandise. This, then, is the real secret of the tremendous success of the Ludlow—the reason why the country's successful newspapers, large, medium-sized and small have almost universally adopted the Ludlow System for producing ads and heads.

Regardless of what your idea of the best method of setting run-of-the-hook ads and heads may be, the system that sets the advertising of the nation's leading papers will be of interest to you. Let us tell you about it.

Ludlow Typograph Company
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
Boston: 261 Franklin Street
New York: 63 Park Row

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Announcing

Scheerer, Inc.

Serving Midwest Daily Newspapers

CHICAGO - 35 E. WACKER DRIVE
NEW YORK - 200 FIFTH AVENUE

Effective July 1, 1926

merging the business of

CARPENTER & COMPANY
AND
H. EDMUND SCHEERER
IN ASSOCIATION WITH
W. F. KENTNOR
(Formerly Secretary of Benjamin & Kentnor Co)

H. EDMUND SCHEERER . President and Treasurer
W. F. KENTNOR . . . . Vice-President
ALLYNE V. CARPENTER . . . Secretary

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

A SPECIAL article in EDITOR & PUBLISHER last week devoted considerable space to William Cobbett, the fighting editor of Philadelphia. By strange coincidence a new volume about Cobbett (Dodd, Mead & Co.) has just appeared from the pen of Gilbert K. Chesterton, whose contributions to the London Sphere have delighted many American readers. Strange to say, Mr. Chesterton originally intended to open his book with a chapter entitled "The Neglect of Cobbett," but because of the renewed interest in this "fiery journalist" he calls his opening chapter, "The Revival of Cobbett." Chesterton always wields a brilliant pen and, in this case, a sympathetic pen.

Chesterton tells how Cobbett was a self-made man, outlines the tragedy of the "patriot," but in mentioning Cobbett's visit to America omits all details of his press battles in Philadelphia. He does, however, insert the following comment, "All the time he had wandered on the bare baked prairies under the hard white light of the western skies, he had remembered the high green fields of his father's farm and the clouds and the comfort of the rain."

For the quiet hour after the last edition has gone to press a literary treat is in store for those who read the chapter entitled "The Rural Rider." Cobbett's "Rural Rides" is the volume that makes his place secure in English literature. Indeed, the influence of Cobbett's writings may easily be seen in those of his latest biographer, Gilbert K. Chesterton.

The life of Chesterton has long been intertwined with that of Fleet Street, London. He, too, has his rural rides, in fancy if not in fact. What have they taught him? Let him answer in the concluding words of his volume about Cobbett:

> I discovered, at least, that even in all that labyrinth of the new London by night there is an unvisited hour of almost utter stillness, before the creaking carts begin to come in from the market-gardens, to remind us that there is still somewhere a countryside. And in the stillness I have sometimes fancied I heard, tiny and infinitely far away, something like a faint voice hallooing and the sound of horse-hoofs that return.

* * *

WHEN Oswald Garrison Villard analyzed "Sex, Art, Truth, and Magazines" in an article contributed to The Atlantic Monthly passing mention was made in this department. A pamphlet reply now appears from the pen of Bernarr Macfadden under the title, "Plain Speech on a Public Insult." Those interested in the controversy may obtain a copy of this pamphlet upon application to the Macfadden Publications, Inc., 1926 Broadway, New York City. No notice of this pamphlet, however, has yet appeared in The Nation.

* * *

JORGE A. MITRE, editor and publisher of La Nacion of Buenos Aires, delivered an interesting address before the delegates to the Pan-American Press Congress when they were guests at the breakfast given by the American Association of Advertising Agencies at the Hotel Commodore, New York City, on Thursday, April 22, 1926. This address, "Certified Circulation," has been printed in pamphlet form and may be obtained upon application to the New York representative of La Nacion, W. W. Davies, 383 Madison Avenue, New York City.

* * *

ADVERTISING managers will get a tip or two from Earl P. Stone's reply to the question, "Why Do Consumers Ask for a Product by Name?" printed in Trade Winds for June. Mr. Stone is vice-president of the Minute Tapioca Company and Trade Winds is published by the Union Trust Company of Cleveland.

* * *

THOSE who edit and publish community weeklies ought to find considerable profit in "Some Ideas That Have Paid," with which Vernon M. Vierth opens The Iowa Journalist for June. A copy can doubtless be obtained upon application to Frederick J. Lazell, Director of the School of Journalism, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Ia. P.S.—Those who get a copy should not overlook two editorials: "Choose Your Newspaper," and "Anti-Social News," in which a journalistic bathtub is suggested for the prurient press.

* * *

NEWSPAPERS which have conducted straw ballots should be interested in "The Wets and the West," which George Fort Milton contributes to The Century for July. The lower deck of the head reads, "Votes in the Newspapers and Votes in the Elections." "Straw polls are a joke," according to Mr. Milton. "The wets vote in the newspaper. The drys vote in the election." Such is the assertion made about the general Western trend.

* * *

JAMES KERNEY, editor and publisher of the Trenton Times, has just published "The Political Education of Woodrow Wilson" (The Century Company). While the book will be mentioned more in detail in a later issue I may say in passing that the volume pays considerable attention to the part played by newspaper men as teachers of politics to the former professor of politics at Princeton University.

* * *

WHILE "the ultra-sensational newspaper was established for the purpose of appealing to the mob mind" and may lay its primary stress on "sex, gold and blood," N. A. Crawford, who is the Director of Publications of the United States Department of Agriculture, does not think that the remedy lies in the suppression of the news of crime and other anti-social acts.

Writing in The Christian Advocate, he says:

> A practice common today in the interests of sensationalism consists in selection of news in general, and selection of features of a given news story, which will appeal to the instincts of the herd. The distorted effect thus given is similar to the effect produced by exaggeration, but the method is different. The facts as stated may be strictly accurate, but they are selected facts.

Mr. Crawford names "the exact means by which a psychological appeal is made to the herd mind" as follows: exaggeration, "sex, gold, and blood," personification, catch-words (such as "war," "patriotism," "plot," "bolshevist," "radical," etc.), and make-up; "A confused jumble of type styles and sizes, arranged with a definite effort to avoid balance—defended on the grounds that it is a faithful representation of nervous urban life in the United States."

He thinks suppression of this type of news would "be followed by a vast outbreak of primitive, apparently unmotivated acts of violence and criticism." Since "the release which is obtained through reading sensational matter is a real release, a genuine social safety-valve," he would seek other remedies. One of them would be "a re-education of the public on a strictly realistic basis, a re-education which shall aim to get rid of rationalization and to reduce reverie, 'day-dreaming' to its normal place in thinking."

* * *

TO promote good will for a bank is doubtless the purpose of "News and Progress," a pamphlet published by the Bank of Manhattan. The booklet, however, does contain several chapters of special interest to newspaper people, even though it was printed for public distribution.

The chapter, "From News Letter to News Paper," is an interesting historical resumé from the days when John Campbell printed his Boston news letter in 1704 down to the present time. The next chapter answers the question, "What is News?" Chapter IV tells how the newspaper has become the market-place of the community.

Remaining chapters develop in detail ideas suggested in Chapter IV. Their contents are well indicated by the paragraph at the close of the last chapter:

> So much we know, yet we do not fail to recognize that the contribution of the American newspaper is civic, educational, moral and inspirational as well as economic. Moreover, it is the great force that binds America together. In its columns—news, editorial, advertising—may be discovered its essential function—to integrate the one hundred and seventeen millions Americans into one American people.

The illustrations are especially appropriate and add a charm to the booklet. Copies may be obtained upon application to the Bank of Manhattan, New York City.

Our national fire loss is at the rate of $16 every second

Time's Hand Rests Lightly on the Concrete Masonry Home

Concrete building units such as concrete block or concrete building tile put the masonry house within the reach of everyone.

Reasonable first cost, freedom from upkeep and depreciation, great stability, maximum fire safety, are outstanding advantages secured with concrete masonry units. Speed of construction is another.

In whatever form concrete is used, it stands alone as the one structural material that grows stronger with age.

While concrete block and tile are particularly adaptable to residence construction, they are equally suitable for schools and industrial buildings.

Before you build, investigate concrete masonry. Remember that the utmost of quality and value follows the use of concrete building units.

Ask for your free copy of "A Book of Beautiful Homes"

PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION
33 W. Grand Ave., Chicago

A National Organization to Improve and Extend the Uses of Concrete

Offices in 31 Cities

The Great Empire of The Southwest is literally spending millions of dollars.

The thoughts, actions and habits of Southwesterners are influenced by their

Weekly Newspapers

Our organization represents 325 weekly newspapers in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, and we can furnish complete market information on this territory.
A letter to our Dallas office will bring you some very interesting figures.

The H. L. Grable Co.

"National Advertising Representatives of Weekly Newspapers"
TEXAS—OKLAHOMA—NEW MEXICO

NEW YORK
25 East 26th St.
Phone Ashland 9127

PHILADELPHIA
Widener Bldg.
Phone Rittenhouse 9698

CHICAGO
123 West Madison
Phone Central 3021

DALLAS, TEXAS
606 Mercantile Bank Building

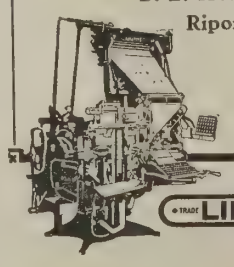
From the Linotype Mailbag



"Appreciated by the Country Publisher"

"Permit us to thank you for the fine service you gave our telegraphic order of the 15th. The goods arrived O.K. this morning and needless to say they are already in use.

"It is such service as this that is more especially appreciated by the country publisher who does not as a rule carry any great supply of parts on hand.

"Again, thank you."

E. L. Howe Printing Co.
Ripon, Wisconsin.

With the November Issue The DELINEATOR and the DESIGNER will be combined in one magazine to be known as

DELINEATOR

In appearance and in content, the new Delineator will be a magazine distinguished from any publication in the women's field today.

It is the fixed intent of the publishers to make a magazine for that comparatively large number of American women who have critical taste and the means to gratify it.

This influential class is not restricted to the few nor does it include the millions. It is composed largely of the wives and daughters of substantial men in business and the professions.

These women and girls are interested in the latest authors, the smartest fashions, the most advanced information for directing their households.

The new Delineator will mark both an evolution and a revolution. It will appeal to these women with an intensity and to a degree that has no precedence.

The price of the new Delineator will be 25 cents.

The guaranteed circulation, from the November issue, will be 1,250,000.

The present guaranteed circulations of The Delineator and Designer are 1,700,000.

Obviously, the advertiser for some time to come will be receiving several hundred thousand excess circulation.

The new Delineator, November issue, closes September 1.

THE BUTTERICK PUBLISHING COMPANY

S. R. LATSHAW, President

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Advertising Program Behind Lambert Pharmacal Company's Sales Gain—Delco Expansion Due to Newspaper Advertising—Jewelers Seek $2,000,000 Fund

AN advertising program that calls for expenditure in excess of $3,000,000 for 1926 is an important factor behind a 50 per cent increase in sales and and earnings of the Lambert Pharmacal Company's quarterly report announced last week. The manufacturers of Listerine reported for the first quarter of this year earnings of $995,917, compared with $701,538 in the corresponding quarter of 1925, a 42 per cent increase. Current earnings are running more than 50 per cent above those of last year, officials say.

More than $4,400,000 has been spent on advertising by this concern during the last four years. The advertising expense in 1925 was $2,100,000. The account is handled by Lambert & Feasley, New York advertising agency, with Frank Mace account executive.

On account of the nature of the business and the absence of any necessity for large capital expenditures, directors of the Lambert Pharmacal Company have followed the policy of declaring dividends covering a major portion of earnings each year, there being no need to have in the business any substantial amount over $1,000,000, which is approximately the amount shown in the balance sheet.

Sales in the first two months of this year were $470,000 in excess of sales in the same two months in 1925, and sales in that period were $365,000 in excess of the corresponding 1924 period. More recent months this year have shown an even greater rate of increase.

Newspaper advertising, according to officials, has made necessary a $100,000,000 expansion program started this week by the Delco Light Company, Dayton, O. Immediate plans call for construction of a $20,000,000 factory addition, one mile long, at Moraine City, near Dayton. The new factory will be used entirely for construction of electric refrigerators.

The National Jewelers' Publicity Association is seeking to raise $2,000,000 to educate the public about jewelry styles and to popularize the slogan "Gifts that Last." John Drake, 239 Springfield avenue, Newark, is executive secretary of the association. P. J. Coffey is president. The association has announced that $700,000 has been subscribed already towards the fund.

The American Leather Producers, Inc., co-operative association of tanners, is now placing its advertising through Frank Seaman, Inc., New York advertising agency. Use of newspapers is included in the advertising program now being planned, with space being purchased in newspapers in 26 cities. Copy is expected to start in August. T. R. Elcock, is account executive, handling the campaign.

Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., New York, has been appointed to handle the advertising of the American Optical Company, Southbridge, Mass.

Charters were granted June 17 at Dover, Del., to 44 drive-it-yourself automobile corporations, with a total capitalization of $32,605,000. The "Mother" corporation is the Hertz Drivurself Corporation, capitalized at $30,000,000. The Hertz Drivurself Stations, Inc., was capitalized at $2,500,000.

Hertz advertising is handled by the World Wide Advertising Corporation, New York. E. M. Scholz, president of this agency, was in Chicago this week, discussing advertising plans for the new drive-it-yourself corporations. EDITOR & PUBLISHER learned.

The forty-two other companies all bear the name of the Hertz Drivurself Station, Inc., each capitalized at $2,500,000. These companies will operate in Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Indiana, Idaho, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Montana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Vermont.

Nestle Laboratory of Hair Research, New York, is expanding its newspaper advertising schedule as rapidly as distribution is perfected. Beginning with a campaign in New England newspapers, advertising was later spread on in New York, and present plans contemplate a move westward through the northern section of New York state, to Pittsburgh, Chicago, and eventually the Pacific Coast. The account is handled by Foote & Morgan, New York agency. Miss Bertha Cook is space buyer.

An appropriation of $2,500,000 for advertising Miami in the newspapers and magazines of the country is being considered by the Miami Chamber of Commerce and city officials. Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce is considering a $50,000 budget for its advertising—a total of $3,000,000 for advertising space telling the "real" story of Miami.

School Janitor Wins Daily's Cup

One of the practical ways by which the Minneapolis Tribune co-operates with the Minneapolis public schools consists of awarding a silver trophy to the neatest janitor-engineer in the system. At this year's inspection and review at Central High School, 400 janitor-engineers lined up before the judges. J. Walter Monahan of the Cooper School won and was given possession of the cup for one year. H. F. Miller, engineer of the Tribune building, presented the daily's trophy.

Misleading Advertising Charged

Charges that the Mizner Development Corporation, developers of Boca Raton, Fla., placed misleading advertising in magazines and newspapers were made this week by Guy A. Reed, New York carpet manufacturer, in a suit filed against the corporation in Jacksonville, Fla. Appointment of a receiver for the corporation was argued and Judge R. M. Call in the Jacksonville U. S. District court took the case under advisement. A large number of the statements in the advertisements are untrue or should have been known to be untrue by the corporation, the petitioner alleged. It is alleged the corporation has outstanding liabilities amounting to several million dollars.

PRINTING SCHOOL FOR NEW ENGLAND PRESS

Newspaper Association Announces Course at Springfield to Start July 1, Combating Shortage of Printers —Instruction Free

A school for printers, sponsored by the New England Daily Press Association, will start July 1, at Springfield, Mass., Frank E. Phillips, association manager announced this week.

Students will be given a four months' course free and will be placed on New England newspapers upon graduation.

In making the announcement, Mr. Phillips said there was no intent on the part of the New England group in sponsoring the school of combating the International Typographical Union, or "anything else excepting combating a shortage of printers."

The union has been attacking schools of printing conducted by publishers, preferring to further the I. T. U. bureau of education.

Members of the N. E. D. N. A. are cooperating in promotion of their printing school by inserting advertisements of the Springfield course in their newspapers. Decision to sponsor the school was reached recently by the association's board of governors. William J. Pape Waterbury Republican-American, is association president.

"There is no excess of operators or compositors in New England, union or non-union," Mr. Phillips said. "This is a situation sought by organized labor as a means of keeping less efficient of their numbers at work, getting more and more money in salaries, and enforcing through a shortage of trained labor, conditions to which publishers should not agree."

Novel Circulation Promotion

The Biloxi-Gulfport (Miss.) Daily Herald recently used small silhouette cuts of its carrier boys on their bicycles as a border around two facing inside pages as a novel circulation promotion feature. The border of cuts occupied space 3½ inches around the page. Under the picture of each carrier was the name of the town in which he carries papers. A portion of the border was made up of cuts of the paper's delivery automobiles. Over the cuts ran the line "These boys, bicycles and automobiles deliver the Daily Herald every afternoon."

Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be u... ing. A happy medium has been effected. It is easier to read than seven point ... rea... re... st... the... appr... every one interested in the conservation of vision; for it is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that ... the day when artificial ... though not ... of the typ... last few ... ter th... and ... ab... t... ders gives good legibility even wh... solid. Cast on seven point bod... Point Ionic gives the effect ... leaded—and with a de... word-count over the ... The first paper ... as the Evening ... a trial of s... t of th... n ... re enthusi... , and reader... s of commen... e of the most appre... Joseph H. Salov, a lead... st, and past president o... Optometric Association ... addressing the editor o... ning News: "It would b... or any one else wh... unt of good that wil... recent change in th... use in the makeup o... s was not recognized ... so acknowledged b... ted in the conservatio... is the accumulated un... on the eyes, due to th... l and poor type used i... ers, that hastens the da... al aid must be sought. Al... versed in the nomenclatu... you have been using for th... ays, it is of a style and charac... t immediately makes itself fel... is far more readable and comfort... e than the former style. I am sur... that there are many thousands ... readers who, possibly unknowingly, fe... the added comfort." After several yea... of investigation and experimentatio...

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

...ne line... ...g. The eve... ...particularly ad... ...of newspaper s... ...advantage of t... ...ation of visio... ...ut is restf... ...onotor...

Study the design of this NEW face

Linotype 6½ Point Ionic No. 5

See how perfectly it meets the difficult requirements of modern newspaper printing conditions. Notice the full, round contours of the letters; no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink, no fine lines to break down in stereotyping.

Ask the nearest Linotype Agency for copies of newspaper set in this face and compare it with the body type you are now using both for legibility and word count. You will find it easier to read than 7 point faces and that it gives the same word count as a 6 point.

The 6½ Point Ionic is made with italic and small caps and also in combination with Bold Face No. 2.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

No dull Summer IN Los Angeles!

Keep your schedules active – in June, July, and August!

Los Angeles Examiner

PENNSYLVANIA

The KEYSTONE STATE

~ The State of high wages and steady work!

		Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call	(M)	31,400	.10	.10
Allentown Call	(S)	22,349	.10	.10
††Beaver Falls Tribune	(E)	6,553	.03	.03
††Bethlehem Globe Times	(E)	13,272	.06	.06
††Bloomsburg Press	(M)	7,673	.04	.04
Chester Times	(E)	18,295	.06	.06
††Coatesville Record	(E)	6,783	.035	.03
Connellsville Courier	(E)	5,928	.02	.02
Easton Express	(E)	25,473	.08	.08
Erie Times	(E)	28,596	.08	.08
††Greensburg Tribune Review	(EM)	14,883	.05	.05
††Hazleton Plain Speaker	(E)	19,852	.07	.06
††Hazleton Standard-Sentinel	(M)
Mount Carmel Item	(E)	4,307	.0285	.0285
Oil City Derrick	(M)	8,588	.04	.04
Pottsville Republican and Morning Paper	(EM)	15,346	.08	.07
Scranton Times	(E)	43,230	.13	.12
Sharon Herald	(E)	7,236	.0357	.0357
Sunbury Daily Item	(E)	5,224	.03	.03
Washington Observer and Reporter	(M&E)	17,589	.06	.06
††West Chester Local News	(E)	11,860	.04	.04
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader	(E)	26,204	.06	.06
††Williamsport Sun and Gazette & Bulletin	(ME)	28,000	.09	.09
††York Dispatch	(E)	19,632	.05	.05

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.

††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

EVERY ONE of the dailies listed here covers a territory known for its busy factories, that employ workers steadily—the year 'round and pay good wages to satisfied workers.

Each of these communities is the trading area for rich farming country as well as mining towns where men work hard, earn big wages and have money to spend.

For the National Advertiser, Pennsylvania is an ideal market—easy to reach, distribution is simplified, and the daily papers offer the best and most direct medium.

PHILADELPHIA WOMEN ENTERTAIN OVERSEAS DELEGATES

MEMBERS of overseas delegations were entertained Sunday night by the Philadelphia Club of Advertising Women celebrating their 10th anniversary at a dinner and reception at the Ritz-Carlton. Mrs. Ellen S. Patten, president of the Philadelphia Club, welcomed the delegates. A musical program was rendered by Mlle. Jeanne Modave, Belgian cellist, and the Arion String Quartet. Among the guests were Sir William Henry Veno, advertising advisor of the Veno Drug Company, Ltd.; Sir Robert Baird, managing proprietor Belfast Telegraph; Col. E. Watts Allen, C. B. E., general manager Civil Supply Association, London; Lt. Col. Edward Frederick Lawson, president of the Advertising Association, England; Mrs. Lawson; Ivor Nicholson, director and business manager, National Magazine Company, Ltd., London; William Beveridge Robertson, advertising manager Amalgamated Press, Ltd., London, and Mrs. Roberston, and William M. Teasdale, advertising manager London & Northeastern Railway.

Among the speakers were President Woodbridge, Past President Rowe Stewart, Mrs. Bernice Blackwood, president of the Federated Women's Advertising Clubs; Miss Ethel Scully, member of the A. A. C. W. executive committee, Sir Robert Baird, Sir William Veno, Col. Lawson and others.

The reception committee comprises Mrs. G. A. Wiedemann, Mrs. E. G. Poret, Mrs. Thomas E. Ash, Mrs. Leonard Ormerod, Mrs. John H. Sinberg, Mrs. Rowe Stewart, Mrs. Edward B. Finck, Mrs. A. C. Delaplaine, Mrs. Ross Anderson, and Mrs. H. Ennis Jones.

BAYNE BUYS IN DULUTH

Purchases Control of News Tribu from James E. Rockwell

Reed Taft Bayne, who last Novem joined the Duluth News Tribune as v president and managing editor, recer purchased control of the publishing co pany from James E. Rockwell. Bayne has been elected president editor of the paper.

Ray D. Handy retains his stock in company and continues as treasurer general manager. J. H. Jordan, adver ing manager, has been named busir manager and Walter Hard, managing tor.

Before coming to Duluth Mr. Ba was managing editor of the Supe (Wis.) Telegram.

It was stated that Mr. Rockwell, v Charles R. Adams, formerly manag editor of the News Tribune, has p chased a daily in another section of country.

For the First Three Months of 1926

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

printed 7,355,276 lines of Advertising and thus moved up from twelfth t SIXTH place among the newspapers o the United States.

The only newspapers printing a greate volume of advertising during that perio than The Tribune were the Miam Herald, the St. Petersburg Times, th Detroit News, the Chicago Tribune an the New York Times.

The Tribune covers the rich Sout Florida territory of 24 counties and 19 cities and towns, with a population o 713,943.

That's Why Its Advertising Volum Grows

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency, National Representatives.

TRAINING OF SALESMEN TOLD TO TEACHERS

Curtis Executive Outlines What Qualities Are Sought in Prospective Solicitors Before Advertising Professors

By James M. Mosely

How the Curtis Publishing Company selects and trains its advertising representatives was explained by Earl M. Wilson, manager of the New York office, in a talk Tuesday night at a dinner of the National Association of Teachers of Advertising and Marketing, at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia.

"The average age of our publishers' representatives is about 33 years," he explained. "We prefer to get a man when he is about 30 years old after he has had seven to nine years practical business experience following his education. Our staff of 100 to 115 men are recruited from all walks of life, each with an experience and fund of information. Sometimes the man has had three or four jobs.

"The first thing we want to know about a prospective salesman is what sort of a personal background he has had. Who is he? What did he do in school? Was he carefree or a worker? Was he fairly good in his studies? Could he get along with other people? Was he a leader in some branch of school activity?

"After receiving an application from a man who looks good to us, we are conservative about taking him on. We have him interview us a number of times and probably have him wait for three or four months so that when he does join us he knows we take our business seriously. When he is with us, we give him whatever time he needs to find himself without putting on him for a while any definite production responsibility. He has behind him our research department and the experience of co-workers.

"The qualities we require in a man—and the ones teachers of advertising should foster if it is possible—are energy (advertising is a poor place for a lazy man), imagination (controlled, not flighty), common sense (many errors and crimes blamed on advertising should be charged to lack of common sense), more psychology, the ability to discern important facts and brush aside non-consequentials, and sincerity."

The agency point of view on what the schools can do to shape advertising material was contributed by Fred J. Ross of the F. J. Ross Company, New York City.

"Can you not set the material a little more finely?" he asked. "The agencies must be exacting. They have to be. They need better material. They are not receiving the supply of material of caliber, trained or untrained, sufficient to meet the demand. Will it not be possible to set higher standards for education of the young men in advertising?

"It is good to see a young man from college who has a definite idea of what he wants to do in life. The number who call on us agencies without any such idea is astonishing.

"We wish the college graduate would take the advertising business more seriously. It is no field to enter for excitement or as a game or just for making money. At present we have to try to sift out and get our own material. Some day we hope we can depend on your schools for it.

"The young man about to enter advertising should be taught the function of policy which must lie behind all advertising efforts. He should be taught to be at his ease in the use of English. He should be taught the ethics of advertising."

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest
Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
The only paper in St. Petersburg, Florida, whose application has been accepted by Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

Good Reporters make Good Newspapers

THE backbone of the newspaper is its news gathering staff. Lacking intelligently-collected and well-written news, no paper can be successful. Every successful newspaper has based its accomplishments primarily on the efforts of its reporters.

THE COPY DESK MAKES GOOD REPORTERS

THE COPY DESK, the keystone of the City Room, is the preceptor of the editorial staff. The Copy Desk cannot create good stories, but by its work of editing and by its surveillance of the work of the staff, can instil into the reporters its best conceptions of news gathering and writing. Thus the Copy Desk is likewise an all-important factor in the making of a paper.

NEW YORK COPY DESK TRAINING

NEWSPAPER MEN everywhere who wish to avail themselves of Copy Desk Training by the methods in use on the best New York newspapers will be interested in the new Home Study Course of the Newspaper Institute. This training in practical newspaper writing and editing in the New York manner was written by a newspaper man of 20 years' experience in the metropolitan field. A dozen New York staff writers contribute lectures on various phases of newspaper work.

It is the most complete and most practical training in newspaper work available by any method of instruction outside a New York editorial office, and contains many inside stories of how big news stories of recent years were handled. The Course is sold on reasonable terms. For catalog and special arrangements for members of the press, use the coupon.

Newspaper Institute of America
25 West 45th Street
New York

Newspaper Institute of America, Dept. 86
25 West 45th Street, New York
Send me, without obligation, complete information on your course in Newspaper Writing, also information on Special Press Enrollments.
Mr. / Mrs. / Miss. .....
Address .....
Occupation .....

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Watson Davis Explains Functions of Science Service—Prof. Norton to Interpret Foreign Affairs—Fitzhugh Green Handles Comm. Byrd's Reception

Babe Ruth, handled by the Christy Walsh Syndicate, showing E. H. O'Hara, publisher of the Syracuse Herald, a wrist watch presented him by an admirer.

EWSPAPERS soon will never "dare to go to press" without including ne scientific copy within its columns," atson Davis, managing editor of ience Service, Washington, D. C., told mbers of the American Association College News Bureaus in convention Lafayette, Ind., June 18. Mr. Davis cribed science news as "truly inter- ional."

"Science is even more international n music, world politics, or interna- nal exchange," he said. "A foreign ntry which may care little whether not Coolidge is president, may eagerly sp and utilize a seemingly insig- cant result from a foreign research oratory."

Mr. Davis told how the late E. W. ipps endowed Science Service, which s organized five years ago. It has , he said, the co-operation of the three ling scientific societies of the country he American Association for the Ad- cement of Science, the National ademy of Sciences, and the National earch Council.

Today Science Service has established in preparation 15 different features use by newspapers," he continued. is estimated that one-fifth of the ulation of the United States is reached its product every day. This institu- for the popularization of science, le operating first in the newspaper l, because through the newspapers largest number of people can be hed with the smallest effort, time, expense, is now entering other fields, as book and magazine publication, form and radio lectures."

---

new weekly feature interpreting ign affairs, written by Prof. Henry redge Norton, is being offered by New York Herald Tribune Syndirof. Norton is described by the licate as having had vast experience ll foreign countries of importance. is said to number among his friends ervatives, radicals, prime ministers, revolutionary leaders. He is author everal books, and has contributed to y magazines and newspapers, includ- Century, World's Work, Asia, Cur- History, Living Age, New York ld Tribune, New York Times, New Sun, Christian Science Monitor, chester Guardian, Amsterdam Tele- h, Brussels Soir, and Tokio Japan rtiser.

---

ltzhugh Green, general manager of George Matthew Adams Service, is g as personal representative of Com- ler Richard E. Byrd, first man to fly to the North Pole, who arrived in New York from his adventure on June 23. Mr. Green has himself made many trips to the arctic with polar expeditions.

Alexander Hamilton of the editorial department of the Metropolitan Newspaper Service, sailed from New York, June 24, on the S. S. "Majestic," bound for England and the continent on business for the syndicate. Mr. Hamilton has been a member of the Metropolitan staff since 1924. He is a great, great grandson of Alexander Hamilton of Colonial days, and also a grandson of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. Max Elser, Jr., president of the syndicate, would not disclose the purpose of the trip.

The Conde Nast Newspaper Service, New York, is now running a weekly house plan as part of its daily "House & Garden" service.

A prosperous condition in the newspaper field was reported this week by Philip Dietz, of the sales staff of the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate, following his return from a six weeks' trip through the south and middle west. Mr. Dietz called on more than 100 newspapers, and in not one office did he hear any grumbling about "poor business." Everywhere he heard comment on the large increase in national advertising.

A combination offer is being made by the Ullman Feature Service, Washington, D. C., of "That Motor Car of Yours," by William Ullman, and "The Trend of Business," by Herbert S. Hollander.

Philip D. Stong is now editor of the North American Newspaper Alliance, with offices in New York headquarters. Mr. Stong was formerly associated with the Associated Press and the Des Moines Register. John R. Coulter, assistant general manager of N. A. N. A., is on vacation, canoeing and fishing on the Connecticut River. He will return to New York in about two weeks.

Helen Keller, deaf and blind lecturer and author, is writing a daily feature "Be of Good Cheer" for the Famous Features Syndicate, Inc.

Leslie Fulenwider, president of Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., is in the south on business. W. L. Wardell, vice-president in charge of sales, has returned from the west to the New York office.

BRIDGEPORT

INDUSTRIAL CAPITAL OF CONNECTICUT

Bridgeport has more than 400 manufacturing establishments producing over 5000 different commodities.

Its diversified industries make Bridgeport an exceptionally prosperous market. There are no general dull times. The flow of income is steady and continuous.

The Bridgeport trading area embraces almost a quarter of a million people—all potential buyers of advertised products.

You can cover this fertile market profitably and thoroughly at one cost through the

BRIDGEPORT POST & TELEGRAM

Over 95% of The Post & Telegram's circulation is concentrated in the city and suburban territory.

THE BRIDGEPORT POST-TELEGRAM
THE BRIDGEPORT SUNDAY POST
BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

GILMAN, NICOLL & RUTHMAN
National Representatives
New York Chicago Boston San Francisco

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

E. H. Brown Starts Own Agency in Chicago—Rankin Gets All Hollywood Accounts—Hanson Moves to Own Building—Potter Partner in Prehn-Mackey Company

EDWARD H. BROWN has started an advertising business of his own at Chicago under the name of the E. H. Brown Advertising Agency. For the past five years he has been out-of-town classified advertising manager of the Chicago Herald & Examiner.

S. F. Merena has joined the new business as an account executive.

The Wm. H. Rankin Company of Chicago and New York will handle all the newspaper and magazine advertising of the Hollywood interests, Hollywood Beach Hotel and Port Florida during the coming year.

During the past year the Hollywood interests have had three advertising agencies, including the Rankin Company.

The Joseph E. Hanson Company, of Newark, N. J. has announced the removal of its offices from 12 Washington Place, to its own building at 85 Lincoln Park, corner of Pennsylvania Ave., Newark.

Douglas Potter has become associated as a partner in the Prehn-Mackey Company, agency, New York. Potter was formerly with the George L. Dyer Company, agency, New York City.

Completion of plans for the opening of offices in the Johnston building, Charlotte, N. C., by the Elias C. Lyndon Advertising Company, Inc., under the management of E. C. Lyndon, formerly connected with the Ivey organizations, has been announced.

The company will open with an authorized capital of $75,000 under a charter recently granted. Officers are announced as F. H. Bierman, president; E. C. Lyndon, secretary and general manager, and Everett C. Bierman, treasurer.

The agency will handle chamber of commerce, textile, real estate, mercantile and bank advertising.

Mr. Lyndon, who will be in active charge, was advertising manager of the local Ivey store for several years until 1925, when he resigned and affiliated himself with the Carl J. Bailliott Agency, of Greensboro.

Edwin J. Sommers, formerly with the F. R. Steel Agency, has now joined the merchandising staff of the Chicago Office of the C. E. Brinckerhoff Organization of Chicago and Cleveland.

W. Austin Campbell Company, advertising agency, has moved to larger quarters at Suite 709-15 Broadway Arcade building, Los Angeles. W. Austin Campbell heads the company bearing his name, while Norman J. Boroughs, realty advertising man, is vice-president. Research and statistics are under the direction of C. F. Remington, and sales and technical counsel is directed by Glen L. Codman, Merle Cox and Ernest Forestal are in charge of the art department, while F. F. Pohlman is the chief copy executive.

AD TIPS

Thomas M. Bowers Company, 304 South Wabash avenue, Chicago. Issuing orders to newspapers on the Atlantic hotel, Chicago.

Brandt Advertising Company, 431 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will place the advertising of the Rub-No-More company, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Critchfield and Co., 14 E. Jackson boulevard, Chicago. Sending out contracts to newspapers generally on Firestone Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio.

John H. Dunham Company, 431 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Handling accounts of the Walbert Manufacturing Company, Chicago, which plans to start extensive advertising late in the fall, and the account of Thorardson Electric Company, Chicago. The Dunham company will make up their list soon.

Albert Frank and Co., 134 S. La Salle street, Chicago. Is issuing resort copy to metropolitan cities on the Shoreland Hotel, Chicago.

James Greene Co., Atlanta, Ga. Sending out schedules to southern papers on Davis Mfg. Co. (Fly-Flu), Knoxville, Tenn.

Henri, Hurst and McDonald, 58 East Washington street, Chicago. Making up the list for the Federal Telegraph & Telephone Co.

Kling-Gibson Company, 310 South Michigan boulevard, Chicago. Placing the account of the Trimm Radio Company, Chicago, and expects to make up a list shortly.

Martin Advertising Agency, 37 West 39th street, New York City. Has secured account of the Tannersville Chamber of Commerce, New York.

William H. Rankin Company, 435 N. Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will handle all the advertising of the Hollywood interests, Hollywood Beach Hotel and Port Florida, during the coming year.

Fred A. Robbins Co., 360 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Compiling a regular list of newspapers on Burgess Battery Company, Madison, Wis.

Charles H. Touzalin Company, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Issued orders to a list of newspapers on Vesta Battery.

Williams and Cunnyngham, 6 North Michigan boulevard, Chicago. Giving copy orders to College Inn Cooked Food Company, Chicago, to a small list of newspapers, chiefly metropolitan dailies. Thirty to forty cities are being used in a list of newspapers being made for the Western Clock Company, La Salle, Ill., to advertise a pocket watch.

Buffalo News Changes Type Style

The Buffalo Evening News has changed the style of its main body type from seven point face on seven point slug to seven point on an eight point slug, thereby improving its reading qualities, according to Marc A. Rose, managing editor.

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA
Producers of
SPARTAN TYPE METAL
Since 1866
LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE COMBINATION
Stocks in Principal Cities

HARTFORD TIMES WINS T. D. TAYLOR SUIT

Defense Claimed Fraud and Misrepresentation Influenced Signing of Contract for Advertising Plan—Judge Holds No Right of Accounting

A verdict favoring the Hartford Times in the suit brought against it by Thomas D. Taylor was handed down by Justice Edwin S. Thomas of the United States district court in Hartford, June 16.

Mr. Taylor brought suit in equity against the Times to recover damages and to secure an accounting of profits because of a signed contract by which the Times obtained a plan for securing classified advertising. The case had a long trial that started in New Haven and wound up in Hartford at which a large volume of testimony was introduced.

Judge Thomas upheld the defense of the Times that there was misrepresentation in the securing of the contract through Mr. Taylor's representing himself as the publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph when that connection had ceased three years before. He also found that Mr. Taylor deliberately used that previous connection with the intent to secure whatever advantage it would bring him. He also upheld the contention of the Times that there was a lack of consideration in the plan which Mr. Taylor sponsored. His decision stated that "the 'plan' was not a 'plan' and that its use would not accomplish the results promised for it."

He declared that there was no breach of contract and if there was a breach in the failure of the Times to use the plan there still would be nothing before him by which he could determine "even in the most speculative manner the extent of the damage." He held that no right of accounting exists.

Longmont (Col.) Times Elected to A.P.

The Longmont (Col.) Times has been elected to membership in the Associated Press. Ray S. Lanyon is publisher.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

June 28-29—Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Assn., convention, State College, Pa.

June 20-July 1—National Editorial Assn., 41st annual convention, Los Angeles, Cal.

July 2-4—Amateur Press Assn., meeting, Philadelphia.

July 5-8—Twelfth District, A. A. C. W., meeting, San Francisco.

July 6-8—Southern Newspaper Publishers Assn., annual meeting, Asheville, N. C.

Arthur Ruhl Marries in Berlin

Arthur Ruhl, Berlin correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, was married on June 11, to Zinaida Yakounchikoff, a Russian, at the Russian Church in Berlin. After a honeymoon in London they will come to the U. S.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

Bloomsburg, Pa., Press Says—

"Since the installation of our super-excellent DUPLEX TUBULAR press, we have had real joy in our office."

DUPLEX PRESSES
FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS
Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

AN UNDER-DEVELOPED ADVERTISING FIELD

Church advertising will be one of the very important phases of the international advertising convention in Philadelphia this coming week. It is to be the theme of ministers and laymen who will occupy the pulpits of seventy-six Philadelphia churches on June 20th, convention Sunday.

The value of advertising to churches will be fully discussed at the Tuesday and Wednesday sessions of the Church Advertising Department, June 22 and 23, in Room 200, College Hall, University of Pennsylvania, particularly with reference to newspapers as one of the most important mediums.

The discussions will be helpful and valuable to newspaper men who are developing church advertising in their papers. Are you planning to cover these meetings?

Church Advertising Department
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS,
383 Madison Avenue
New York, N. Y.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

ADVERTISING DEFINED

"ADVERTISING conducted on the best accepted modern lines is in simple language the news about a man's business told to the public he seeks in an attractive, convincing way, and always told honestly."—T. A. Grehan, advertising manager, Independent Newspapers, Ltd., Dublin.

* * *

PRODUCT MUST BACK UP ADVERTISING

"TIME is the supreme test of every product. Good advertising will sell anything once, perhaps twice. Only real merit will sell a thing over and over again. Continued success is the crucial test of everything."—Franklin Dorset, Whittet & Shepperson, addressing Insurance Advertising session, A. A. C. W. convention, Philadelphia.

* * *

NEWSPAPERS BEST FOR IMMEDIATE SALES

"THE volume of our present business has been turned from the magazines as a medium to the newspapers, because newspapers get quicker action and more intimate action, especially in matters of real sales and not matters of mere publicity. We differentiate in the matter of immediate sales and publicity. We give precedence in seven cases out of ten to the newspapers rather than the magazines for immediate results."—Frank Presbrey of Frank Presbrey Advertising Agency, before New York Times advertising staff.

* * *

SELLING AD PROGRAM TO SALES FORCE

"ANY advertising plan to get the best results must be specific in showing the salesman how the advertising can help him directly and personally. If this could be brought home to every individual salesman not only would his sales increase but it would react to make advertising more effective and consequently add to the income of the organization for which he is working."—William A. Hart, Advertising Director, E. I. duPont deNemours & Co.

* * *

MODERN NEWSPAPERS SERVE PUBLIC

"TODAY the public gets local, state, country and world-wide news, all supplied indiscriminately as to quantity, regardless of expense in obtaining it, relative importance alone being considered. Today when a public service is to be performed in righting a political wrong it is the newspaper that initiates it. Today when a hospital needs an endowment, the committee's first thought is to enlist the support of the newspapers."—N. R. Hoover, Circulation Manager, New York World.

N. A. N. A. SENDS OUT TWO GLOBE-RACERS

. S. Evans, Detroit, and Linton Wells, New York, Start Out to Beat Present Record for Speed Around World —Goldstrom Loses

With John Goldstrom, former reporter f the New York Evening World, stuck Siberia, the North American Newsaper Alliance has sent two more reorters from New York in a race against gainst time around the world.

Edward S. Evans, Detroit, and Linton Vells, New York, made a dramatic getvay from the Puliter Building early the morning of June 16. The two en were guests at a dinner given by the . A. N. A., and, still in their evening othes, they were rushed aboard a coast uard patrol boat, which set out down le harbor under forced draft to catch le Aquitania. By not sailing on the ner, the globe-circlers picked up half an ur on the normal running time to ngland.

At the start of the race in front of e Pulitzer Building, John Henry Mears, esent record holder, who went around e world in 1913 in thirty-five days, enty-one hours, thirty-five minutes and ur-fifths of a second, shook hands with ans and Wells and wished them godeed.

DAILY FOR MOVIE FOLK

arbara Worth Times," Using U. P., Published on Location

Samuel Goldwyn Productions, Inc., is uing a daily newspaper for members the cast filming the "Winning of Barbara Worth," now on location in a Nevada desert. The United Press report is being used.

The Goldwyn organization has erected three movie cities, Rubio, Kingston and San Felipe on the desert wasteland, between Gerlach and Winnemucca, Nev., 35 miles from the nearest town. Collectively the three are known as Barbara Worth, Nev., and will accommodate at times more than 2,000 inhabitants, during the location period.

The daily paper is called the Barbara Worth Times, and will be continued for three months, according to present plans. It will be sold throughout Nevada and mailed to motion picture exhibitors throughout the country.

John Miles, U. P. correspondent, is handling the pony wire to the Goldwyn Camp.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization
Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg., LOS ANGELES

I Want To Get My Hand In Again!

A year from now I'll likely buy a daily

I want a year's job on a daily paper, first paper, second paper, last paper—just so the work is at the office of publication.

I know the newspaper business as it was five years ago. Pressman at fourteen, make-up at sixteen, circulation manager at eighteen, city editor at twenty, advertising manager at twenty-two, publisher's rep. at twenty-five.

At thirty I am beginning to realize on the result of four years' work as publisher of a trade journal, started from nothing, twenty thousand in the issue after we sold it.

Revenue from the sale of this publication is beginning to come in. I will eventually invest this money in the newspaper field. While I accumulate enough to be useful I believe practical newspaper experience will be worth while.

I have embarked in a business that requires close study of the daily press. My income for the coming year has been estimated at about twelve thousand dollars. I'm willing to pass this up for a lot less in newspaper work, but prefer a commission or bonus arrangement that will give a chance at profits rather than a stiff salary.

I believe I can sell advertising again, build volume and increase revenue, alone or with a staff.

I believe I can direct the staff of any newspaper or any department, and increase efficiency and revenue.

I'll turn my job over at the end of a year, with a competent understudy ready to step in. I'll guarantee not to buy opposition.

Now in New York—able to sell this business within a month—ready to go anywhere.

A telegram will bring a long distance phone call to arrange a conference—at once.

BOX A 600
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
TIMES BLDG. NEW YORK CITY

$5,000,000 YEARLY BUSINESS OF PEN FIRM CREDITED TO NEWSPAPERS

Sheaffer Company of Ft. Madison, Ia., Automatically Increases Advertising as Sales Mount—Dominating Space Used in Dailies and College Papers

By HAMMOND EDWARD FRANKLIN

Specimen of dominating newspaper copy used to sell a pen

AN early start for fall business by getting sales and advertising activities lined up and ready to release before July has been one factor in the growth within 13 years of an annual sales volume of more than $5,000,000 for the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company, Fort Madison, Ia.

The company put out its first Lifetime Pen at $8.75 retail but sold only a small amount in its first year's volume of $100,926.82. Most of the sales were on low-price pens. Now more than half of the company's sales are on the $8.75 pen. National newspaper advertising has helped much in bringing this about.

Sales the second year were twice the first and each year since, except 1921, an increase has been enjoyed.

A study of the repairs on returned pens enabled the company to effect various improvements, such as adding a gold band to strengthen the cap and eliminate breakage, putting new and more costly material in the barrels (finally Radite, unbreakable), a heavy gold clip, etc., at the same time the increase in volume of sales obviated the necessity of raising the retail price. A lifetime guarantee, unconditional, was put behind the pen. All repairs were made free. If the old one could not be fixed, the customer was given a new one, regardless. This policy continues.

No advertising, other than giving pens to dealers, was used from 1913 until 1917 when the first campaign was released. That year sales went ahead $130,976.13. In 1918, the sales increased $380,666.34, showing the accumulated value of the previous year's advertising. For several years magazines only were used.

In 1922, the plan of utilizing newspapers was put into effect and has been continued with notable success. The company bases its expenditure on a percentage of past sales and current monthly sales, so that if it gets a jump, it promptly "steps up" the appropriation. The line is sold direct to stationery, drug, jewelry and department store retailers.

The company declines to sell for punch board or premium purposes. On any orders received direct, it sends a check to the dealer for the profit. It has become "choosy" of just what type of dealer carries the line and expects a representative stock to be ordered. The dealer's profit depends upon the amount of stock carried. It is planned on a sliding scale.

In the early history of the company, the officers did the marketing. In 1919, 20 salesmen were trained and put to work. At present about 75 men handle the line under a contract which pays them a commission after they have reached a certain pre-determined amount. The salesman also has a quota higher than this amount. A club for salesmen who sell more than $100,000 worth of pens gives a special incentive to live workers. The average sales per man in 1925 were over $77,000, a gain of $13,000.

"The addition of newspapers brought about a quick response and helped us chalk up further sales increases," an officer of the company commented. "Each year we have added more papers to our list as certain territories were brought up to a point that made intensive sales work profitable."

The newspapers have co-operated in running stories in their merchandising papers, giving local trade information, encouraging window displays and otherwise.

Three peaks appear in the fountain pen business. The first is in June when graduates and brides flourish. The second is in September when schools and colleges open and the third (and usually the sharpest) comes in the Christmas buying rush. However, through advertising and sales work, leading fountain pen makers, such as Sheaffer, have gone a long ways to even up sales, even during warm summer weather. Fountain pens and pencils are much more staple twelve months than some years ago.

C. K. Hart, the advertising manager, recently explained:

"Before July of the year we have ordinarily perfected what we believe to be a most effective campaign to follow for the fall or opening of school period. The program is likely to include more concentrated effort on the part of ou salesmen and backing them with adver tising in magazines, trade papers, news papers, college papers and by general pro motional work.

"We concentrate a little more effor in August even than June and July.

"By limiting our distribution to choice of dealer, based on moral stand ing, credit, etc., we increase the value o the Sheaffer franchise to the dealer. protects him in many ways, mainl granting him an opportunity to make liveability profit on the Sheaffer lin We have but one set of discounts ope to all Sheaffer accounts.

"We consider college newspaper adver tising effective. This year we plan t run in about a hundred to a hundre and twenty college papers dominatin space in each one, at about the same in tervals and the same period as we wi appear in general newspapers.

"Our newspaper list, we believ blankets the United States. We believ newspaper advertising is one of the mos

NEWSPAPER
ENGINEERING AND CONSTRUCTION PROBLEMS
Solved by specialist eight years with Boston Post
EDWIN S. PARKER
Structural Engineer
15 Exchange Street
Boston
Am. Soc. C. E. Boston Soc. C. E.

Get Circulation During the Dog Days
That old fallacy that circulation could not be obtained during the summer is no longer taken seriously by aggressive newspapers.
Of course business is harder in July than in December but I can get it. I have one of the best crews in the country—all clean, respectable salesmen and with them I can get you all the circulation you want quietly and at low cost.
Let me show you what I have done for other papers and what I can do for you.
F. J. Marks Circulation Service
2524 E. 73d Street, Cleveland, O.

A SINGLE ADVERTISING APPROPRIATION
Will cover the two publications that reach those who control the national advertising of the United States and Great Britain.
EDITOR & PUBLISHER
New York
and
ADVERTISING WORLD
London, Eng.
have entered into an agreement in respect to editorial and advertising representation in their respective fields and thereby afford a single source of information and service for those interested in international marketing and advertising.
Combination Advertising Rates for 12 Insertion Contract
Full Page .....$280.00 per insertion
Half Page ..... 145.00 per insertion
Quarter Page ..... 82.50 per insertion
You are cordially invited to communicate with EDITOR & PUBLISHER, Suite 1700 Times Building, New York, for further details of circulation, editorial policy and mechanical requirements of ADVERTISING WORLD. This office can be of great assistance to manufacturers who desire information in regard to marketing conditions of Great Britain. Publishers of leading American newspapers will also avail themselves of this opportunity to deliver their messages to the largest advertisers of Great Britain, many of whom are keenly interested in the markets of America.
Editor & Publisher
1700 Times Building
Broadway at 42d St.
New York, N. Y.
Telephones:
Bryan 3052 - 3053 - 3054 - 3055 - 3056
able Address: E DPUB, NEW YORK
Advertising World
14 King Street
Covent Garden, W. C. 2
London, England
Telephone: Gerrard 7615
Cable Address:
ECOPUBLISH, RAND, LONDON

not the most, powerful factor in pres- day merchandising. At least, we de- id upon it greatly for our success. The fact we have grown from almost hing to a leader in the business dur- the past 13 years and greatly due the consistent use of newspaper ad- tising, is sufficient proof to us that, n properly handled, this medium will out in a most satisfactory way. We usually run dominating space— y of sufficient size when possible to e up over the half fold in the page. many instances, we run copy full page ize. This is particularly true in some he leading cities, such as New York, ladelphia, Boston and Los Angeles. some of the lesser towns of a hun- l thousand, we may run 960 line copy perhaps in some of our smaller cen- , we would run 378 lines."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Spread of a Rumor

EDITOR & PUBLISHER: Your story 'Cancer Cures" brought to mind an inal bit of unfavorable publicity h has been given to beauty shops of in many of the larger cities of the try. The story seems to travel lly from mouth to mouth gradually ing its way into the newspapers. In y instance, however, it tells about an mpetent operator at the leading de- ment store beauty shop of the town wing water upon the head of a cus- r who fainted during a permanent operation, in consequence electro- g her.

ing an editor of a trade publication is field, the story has been sent to y subscribers or correspondents from ss than ten large cities during the two months. However, the origin e tale, it immediately becomes ex- ngly popular because a great number omen are not acquainted with the y and simplicity of the permanent ng process.

MARIE H. CALLAHAN,
Managing Editor,
Modern Beauty Shop, Chicago.

Praise from Sir Hubert

EDITOR & PUBLISHER:—Please per- e to extend my heartiest congratula- on the great Convention Number of DITOR & PUBLISHER. You and your have gotten out a wonderful maga- It has an amazing amount of ial in it, both editorial and advertis- that is of interest to every man cted with the publishing business. rt work is some of the finest I have seen. Altogether, the magazine is hing that you and your associates well be proud of for years to come.

Cordially yours,
ARTHUR CAPPER.

Libels on the Craft

EDITOR & PUBLISHER: The world has always despised the bird that fouls its own nest. Some so-called newspaper men apparently love to belittle the independence and honesty of the Press. The article in "The Independent," from which you quote in your last issue to hand, is an example of this.

The man who maintains that the Press as a whole and the majority of correspondents deliberately refuse to give anything but one-sided statements of events, is not speaking the truth. We have, of course, intellectual prostitutes among us—both editors and writers—but we mark them and know them for what they are.

This is not merely theory. Let me give my own experience. For over three years I was in Russia for the Chicago Daily News, at a time when feeling in America was very bitter against all forms of Communism. In my despatches I had often to write in a way that could not have been palatable to many of our readers. I had to do this, not because I like Communism—I hate it—but because my duty as an honest reporter was to give the facts as I saw them.

During that time my Editor never directly nor indirectly instructed me to modify my tone. He never suppressed my despatches nor altered them in any way.

My two leading colleagues in Moscow were Walter Duranty, of the "New York Times" and the correspondent of the Associated Press. The "New York Times" is pronouncedly anti-Bolshevist in its editorial columns, but it gave—and still gives—Walter Duranty the freest hand describing things as he saw them.

I lived in the next room for a very long time to the correspondents of the Associated Press. We met daily and freely discussed everything together. I never heard a single suggestion from them that they had received instructions to write to please public opinion in America. Their job was to give the facts and they did it.

I have had the same experience with great English newspapers. Some years ago I was sent by the London Daily Mail to examine conditions in one foreign country. My conclusions were not altogether in accord with the editorial policy of the paper. The Daily Mail printed my despatches in a prominent place and expressed quite frankly in its editorial columns its own views on the matter. The Government of the country concerned tried to silence me by offering me the post of propagandist agent. Then big financial influences were brought to bear to have my work stopped. Lord Northcliffe did not yield an inch.

My experience was, of course, the ordinary experience of decent workers employed by honest papers, and honest papers are still, thank God, the great majority among the English speaking nations.

It makes me, as it must make many of my fellow newspapermen, angry to hear the never-ending libels on our craft.

Yours very faithfully,
F. A. MACKENZIE

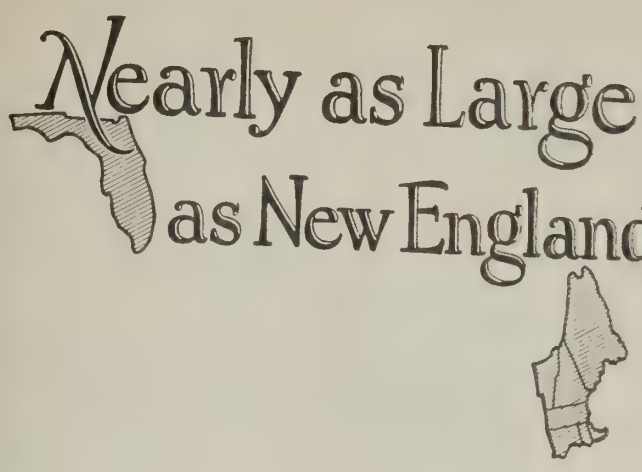
London, June 14, 1926.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies



KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

Nearly as Large as New England

Florida is the second largest state east of the Mississippi River. Having an area of 58,666 square miles, it is almost as large as the six New England states—Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.

Florida now has nearly one and a half million permanent residents and an equal number of winter visitors. Already a great market, imagine how much greater it will be a few years hence. It has been predicted by high authorities that Florida, with its remarkable climate and fertile soil, can and will support a population of fifteen millions, almost twice the present population of entire New England.

Obviously Florida is a market worth cultivating. And now is the time for the manufacturer and producer to come to Florida with advertising.

In planning an advertising campaign, remember that no outside medium covers this state so completely and economically as the Associated Dailies.

ASSOCIATED DAILIES of Florida

510 Clark Bldg. Jacksonville, Florida

Bradenton News
Clearwater Sun
Daytona Beach Journal
Daytona Beach News
Deland Daily News
Eustis Lake Region
Ft. Lauderdale News
Ft. Myers Press
Ft. Myers Tropical News
Ft. Pierce News-Tribune
Ft. Pierce Record
Gainesville News
Gainesville Sun
Jacksonville Florida Times-Union
Jacksonville Journal
Key West Citizen
Kissimmee Gazette
Lakeland Ledger
Lakeland Star-Telegram
Lake Worth Leader
Melbourne Journal
Miami Daily News
Miami Herald
Miami Illustrated Daily Tab
Miami Tribune
New Smyrna News
Ocala Central Florida Times
Orlando Morning Sentinel
Orlando Reporter-Star
Palatka News
Palm Beach Daily News
Palm Beach Post
Palm Beach Times
Pensacola Journal
Pensacola News
Plant City Courier
St. Augustine Record
St. Petersburg Independent
St. Petersburg News
St. Petersburg Times
Sanford Herald
Sarasota Herald
Sarasota Times
Stuart Daily News
Tampa Times
Tampa Tribune
Winter Haven Chief

TABLOIDS CENSURED BY STATE DAILIES

New York Publishers Request Suppression of Names of Women in Assault Cases to Avoid Restrictive Legislation

Two brief sessions were held at Ithaca last week by the Associated Dailies of New York State, a group composed of publishers of one newspaper in each city represented. Their meetings, presided over by Charles H. Congdon, publisher of the Watertown Times, were devoted to shop topics and were executive.

F. H. Keefe

Formation of a New York State group of newspapers to be represented jointly in the national advertising field was discussed at this meeting, as it has at several during the past two years, but no conclusions were announced. C. H. Spencer, publisher of the Newark (O.) Advocate, explained the workings of the Ohio Select List to an executive session which followed the joint banquet with the New York State Press Association.

As a sequel to the report of the legislative committee rendered by Frederick H. Keefe, publisher of the Newburgh News, the association adopted a resolution censuring newspapers which offended against good taste in the publication of salacious news or identification of the innocent victim of a criminal assault. Special reference was made to stories which have appeared in New York tabloid newspapers.

No formal addresses were made at the annual dinner. Entertainment was furnished by three Cornellians. Romeyn Berry, graduate manager of athletics, told two humorous stories with a moral; Prof. Walter King Stone told four funny stories chiefly about the good old days before Volstead; and Dr. Louis Agassiz Fuertes astounded his hearers with a scientific lecture on "somnology," illustrating by personal effort several various human snores in common use.

C. H. Mackay Honored by Italy

Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, has been made Commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy by King Victor Emmanuel III. Mr. Mackay's company recently helped establish direct communication between the United States and Italy through cables to the Azores to link with the new cable laid by the Italians from the Azores to Italy.

STATE DAILIES ADVERTISE NEW YORK STATE

(Continued from page 13)

finish without comment, he said, but his argument was scuttled by the submission in evidence of a New York tabloid carrying full details, including the name, address, and picture of a girl rape victim, together with a detailed account of the crime. Letters sent to New York City publishers elicited only two answers, both of which opposed any form of regulation by law.

Merwin K. Hart, Utica manufacturer and representative of the Associated Industries, Inc., asked the newspaper men to find more news interest in the affairs of industry, other than in the accounts of strikes, disputes and other occurrences adverse to the ordered conduct of business. He outlined plans for a state survey of industries, covering value of output, annual turnover, wages paid now and in the past, and declared that the enterprise as its various stages were completed would afford ample opportunity to the newspapers for constructive service to the business men of their communities.

L. B. Palmer, manager of the A. N. P. A., a luncheon guest, detailed the expansion program of his association, explained the new schedule of dues, and gave some excellent advice on the present newsprint situation.

Newspapers are now using practically all of the newsprint tonnage on the market, he stated, despite an increase in production of 14 per cent in little more than a year. Newsprint manufacturers' stocks at the mills are now about 2½ days' supply at present rate of consumption, while publishers' stocks on hand and in transit approximated 28 days' supply according to most recent figures.

These indications, he said, did not point to any acute situation now, but they did show the necessity of building up publishers' stocks during the slack summer season against the expected fall bulge of advertising. Careful use of newsprint during the coming months will also permit the manufacturer to increase the stock on hand at the mills. There is plenty of paper for all, Mr. Palmer emphasized, with no scare of a shortage in the immediate future and none in prospect if ordinary management cautions were taken by the publishers whenever opportunity afforded.

W. J. Pape, publisher of the Waterbury Republican and American, and president of the New England Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, was also a luncheon guest and told the association of a proposal that a school for printers be established in New England along the lines of that so successfully conducted by the New York publishers at Ithaca. Sherman H. Bowles, publisher of the Springfield Republican and News and Springfield Union, was also present. He inspected the Ithaca schools of printing and engraving thoroughly under the guidance of Director Kellogg.

The summer banquet was held prior to the meeting with Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, and Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell University, as speakers.

In the golf tournament which preceded the meeting, Arthur D. Hecox, general manager of the Albany Knickerbocker Press and News, won first prize in Class A, with a gross of 88, a handicap of 17, and a net of 71. A. C. Deuel, Niagara Falls Gazette, was second, with 88-16-72, and E. D. Corsón, publisher, Lockport Union-Sun and Journal, was third, with 81-6-75.

In Class B, Kent Cooper carried off first prize with 97-25-72; and L. B. Palmer tied with H. M. Hall of the Jamestown Journal, both netting a 78. Mr. Palmer's gross was 99, less his 21 handicap, while Mr. Hall scored a 95, less his handicap of 17.

Prizes were donated by the association.

VANDERBILT UNDER TREATMENT

Young Publisher of Vanishing Tabloids Abroad for Health

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., president of Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., is in Europe, being treated by Continental specialists for the injury of his jaw sustained in the World War.

The young publisher has had considerable trouble with this war injury. In April he was being treated at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and left a sick bed to go to Miami and later to New York to make final efforts to avert a crash of his properties, when his father Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt refused to advance more money after loaning about $1,500,000 to his son's publishing venture. His papers are now in receivers' hands.

HOME NEWS FOR TEXANS

Dallas Times-Herald Issues Tiny Editi at A.A.C.W. Convention

The numerous tall and heavy gent men sporting Texas hatbands arou Philadelphia read the spot news of th home state in the Daily Times-Hera of Dallas, which issued a four-pa three-column letter-size newspa packed with Dallas datelines, incl ing a daily report of the Texas Lea baseball games. The news was brou to Philadelphia over the Times-Hera leased wire to the Public Ledger off

H. U. Clayton acted as editor and bert Swinsky as advertising manager the convention edition.

New Washington Paper

The Twin City Times, published Pasco, Wash., published its first pa June 8.

America's Complete Newspape

New York Herald Tribun

We shall be pleased to see any newspaper man during the Philadelphia Convention and to talk over with him his classified advertising problems

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building · Philadelphia

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
THE LEADING NEWSPAPER I GRAND RAPIDS—THE ONL DAILY IN SEVEN OTHE CITIES
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN — 50 East 42nd St. New York City
J. E. LUT — Tower Buildi Chicago, Ill.

creating Impression!
nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.
The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium—ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it
J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St., New York
Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago

WE'RE ALWAYS BUSY—WHY?
AUTOMOBILE PRIZE CAMPAIGNS
Get the Circulation
Get the Money For It
Get It Quickly
Get It Right
Conducted on THE KENDALL PLAN
We would like to know more of your circulation building methods and charges Without obligation to us, you may submit details terms etc
Our last Campaign was run
Name of paper City
By Title State
Should we use a Campaign we would want it to start about
Eighteen consecutive successful years of "Knowing How." Wire or write for details, references, etc.,
W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY
At present conducting third campaign within six years upon the WHEELING, W. VA., INTELLIGENCER.

Detroit
Fourth Largest City
Complete coverage with one paper.
The Detroit News
Offers advertisers unusual opportunities

THE WELFARE COMMITT
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGER ASSOCIATION
Can supply you with com petent circulation men capacity and ability capab to take entire charge of you department or to fill impo tant posts in the departmen
Address the Secretar Treasurer please, Mr. Cla ence Eyster, care St Building, Peoria, Il.

NEWSPAPERMEN TESTIFY IN SENATE'S PENNSYLVANIA PRIMARY PROBE

Writers Figure Conspicuously in Campaign Fund Investigation —Correspondents Kept Hopping by Sensational "Breaks" in Big Story

By BART CAMPBELL

(Washington Correspondent, EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

MILLIONS of printed words already have been spread over the press of the United States by another U. S. Senate campaign "slush fund" investigation.

Since a special Senate committee began on June 9 to uncover staggering sums spent in the three-cornered Senatorial battle-royal beween Senator Pepper, Congressman Vare and Governor Pinchot in the Pennsylvania Republican primary, newspaper editors and reporters have figured conspicuously in the hourly grinding out of reams of copy, slugged "LEAD SLUSH" or, "ADD SLUSH."

From early morning until late at night, lead pencils have blazed the way for typewriters in recording startling revelations of the mounting cost of public office. Reporters have bent patiently to the exacting task of writing new leads and running stories at the sacrifice of sleep and leisure. Long, uncertain, sweating hours of a national presidential convention have never imposed heavy burdens more relentlessly upon mental and physical endurance to supply the wants of newspaper desk men and newspaper readers. Night sessions have intensified the exhausting grind of furnishing fresh copy.

Newspaper editors and reporters have also appeared as witnesses.

James L. West, chief of the Capitol staff of the Associated Press, and member of the Standing Committee of the Senate and House Press Galleries, has directed the coverage for his service.

Paul R. Mallon, for the United Press; Raymond Clapper, for the United News; William K. Hutchinson, for the International News Service; Fraser Edwards, Edward L. Roddan and John A. Kenedy for the Universal Service and the Hearst newspapers, have all joined in the work.

Staff correspondents and syndicate writers covering the story included:

Allan Davis, Walter Long and Bart Campbell, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; Joseph Barton and Frederic William Wile, Philadelphia Record; John Cummings and Paul J. McGahan, Philadelphia Inquirer; Samuel W. Bell, Robert B. Smith and Warren Wheaton, Philadelphia Public Ledgers and New York Evening Post; Wilbur Morse, Philadelphia Daily News; William I. Grunlish and Robert M. Ginter, Pittsburgh Gazette-Times; Henry Hall, Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph; Theodore A. Huntley, Pittsburgh Post; Leo R. Sack, Pittsburgh Press and the Scripps-Howard Ohio papers; Frank K. Boal, Pittsburgh Sun; Arthur Sears Henning and William J. Lawson, Chicago Tribune; Harry B. Gauss, Chicago Daily News; Charles Michelson and Elliott L. Thurston, New York World; Lewis Wood and L. C. Speers, New York Times; Robert Barry, New York Evening World; John Snure, New York Herald-Tribune; Arthur W. Hachten, New York American; Arthur W. Crawford, New York Commercial; Albert W. Fox, Washington Post; G. Gould Lincoln, Washington Star; Roy A. Roberts, Kansas City Star; Charles G. Ross and Raymond P. Brandt, St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Flora G. Orr, St. Paul News and other Scripps-Howard western newspapers; Theodore Tiller, Baltimore Sun; Kenneth R. Watson, Birmingham Post and other Scripps-Howard Southern newspapers; Charles S. Groves, Boston Globe; Robert B. Choate, Boston Herald; William G. Gavin, Boston Traveler; Theodore G. Goslin and Oliver McKee, Jr., Boston Evening Transcript; Robert L. Norton and Ralph Coolidge Mulligan, Boston Post; Henry Suydam and John S. Billings, Jr., Brooklyn Eagle; James L. Wright, Cleveland Plain Dealer; W. C. Murphy, United States Daily; David Lawrence, Consolidated Press Service; Jay G. Hayden, Detroit News; Nixon S. Plummer, Detroit Free Press; Carl D. Ruth, Cleveland News; Mark Thistlethwaite, Indianapolis News; Everett C. Watkins, Indianapolis Star; Laurence Todd, Federated Press; Robert R. Lane, Newark Evening News; James P. Higgins, Newark Star-Eagle, and Charles O. Gridley, Portland Oregonian.

Several times newspaper editors and reporters have stepped into the center of the picture when doubt was cast by witnesses upon newspaper accuracy or truthfulness. On one occasion Samuel S. Schwab, city editor, and Herman H. Anderson, Louis Wilgarde and George B. Beck, Jr., reporters for The Philadelphia Public Ledgers, were called to the stand to refute a sworn repudiation by Frank X. O'Connor, a Philadelphia magistrate, of a story carried by the morning edition of those newspapers in which he was quoted he was offered $150,000 if he would quit fighting Congressman Vare in South Philadelphia.

On another occasion Mayor Charles Kline, of Pittsburgh, challenged the account carried by the Pittsburgh Press, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, of a speech he delivered in the midst of the Pennsylvania campaign to Pittsburgh city employees in which he has quoted as ordering them to turn in for Senator Pepper and the rest of the Pepper ticket or run the risk of being fired as "cheaters."

William A. White, city editor of the Pittsburgh Press, and Frank Kury, one of his reporters, who together made a survey of political conditions in Pittsburgh before the Pennsylvania primary election on May 18, were backed up by other members of the staff of that newspaper, in making short work of Kline's denial. They supported the speech credited to Kline with a stenographic report of it.

Incidentally the revelations of the use of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 by or for the three Republican Senatorial candidates in the campaign preceding the Pennsylvania primary election, which the investigation has thus far developed, was considered as providing adequate justification for the articles written from Pittsburgh by Leo R. Sack, Washington correspondent for the Pittsburgh Press, in which he charged extravagant use of money by the Mellon interests and others. Sack's articles, appearing in the Scripps-Howard newspapers, were read into the Congressional Record by Senator Pat Harrison and other Democratic Senators when they forced the present investigation, as was reported in EDITOR & PUBLISHER at the time.

Joseph N. Mackrell and Roy D. S. Schooley, are among the former Pittsburgh newspapermen who have appeared before the investigating committee as office holders and politicians playing a leading part in the campaign on one side or the other. H. J. Hollister, of the Pittsburgh Post, headed a long line of those who acted as publicity men for one or another headquarters which included Edward J. Hunter, for Governor Pinchot, and Paul Gottlieb, for Vare.

The advertising aspects of the campaign, reported in EDITOR & PUBLISHER recently, as representing a total expenditure of $1,000,000, have been barely touched by the investigation so far. There has been ample statement by witnesses, however, that a considerable proportion of the money expended by the rival Senatorial candidates in Pennsylvania went for newspaper and other forms of advertising.

A Profitable market for National Advertisers—

INDIANA

The state of prosperous communities

A study of the various communities and cities of Indiana—Fort Wayne, Gary, Lafayette, South Bend, Terre Haute, Marion, La Porte, Indianapolis and Connersville—will convince any national advertiser that here are individual markets, wonderful in their prospects.

You can reach all of these centres, noted for their industrial and commercial activities, as well as for their agricultural business through the one group shown below.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
Columbus Republican (E)	4,912	.03
††Connersville News-Examiner (E)	4,681	.025
††Decatur Democrat (E)	3,215	.025
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (M)	35,247	.08
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (S)	28,468	.08
Fort Wayne News-Sentinel (E)	43,365	.10
Gary Evening Post-Tribune (E)	15,514	.06
†Hammond Times (E)	17,127	.06
Huntington Press (M&S)	4,079	.025
††Indianapolis News (E)	128,341	.25
Lafayette Journal & Courier (M) 7,878 (E) 13,583	21,461	.06
††La Porte Herald-Argus (E)	6,726	.04
Marion Chronicle (E)	9,364	.04
†Shelbyville Democrat (E)	4,012	.025
South Bend News-Times.. (M) 9,751 (E) 16,603	26,354	.07
South Bend News-Times (S)	24,500	.07
††South Bend Tribune..(S) 21,431....(E)	22,254	.06
††Terre Haute Tribune (E&S)	23,442	.06

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
†Government Statement, October 1, 1925.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

OREGON PRESS FIGHTS STATE GRANGE

Denounces Move by Latter Body to Restrict Reporting of Public Meetings—Mallery Reelected President

Action was taken at the nineteenth annual convention of the Oregon State Editorial Association, held in Prineville, June 18-19, opposing the recent action of the Oregon State Grange which would limit newspapers in their effort to cover the news of public bodies. The Grange, at its recent convention in Baker, went on record in favor of a state enactment which would tie the hands of newspaper reporters in covering meetings of public and semi-public organizations until such time as the officers of these bodies regarded it as advantageous to issue a statement of the proceedings.

Oregon editors in a formal resolution adopted condemned the Grange proposal, which they said would curtail the legitimate activities of the press. The Association will resist the passage of any such legislation as is contemplated by the Grange.

Despite the objection of a representative of the Grange, who was present, the Editorial Association also voted to instruct its legislative committee to prepare a bill to be introduced at the next Oregon legislature for the abolition of the publication of the so called Candidate's Pamphlet. This pamphlet, which contains the platforms of candidates in the Primary, is sent by the the Secretary of State, under the present law, to every qualified voter before the primary election.

Roseburg was chosen as the 1927 convention place and the Southern Oregon city has promised to hold one of the meetings at Bandon, a Pacific beach resort within easy driving distance of Roseburg.

The following officers were elected: A. Lea Mallery, Tillamook Headlight, president (re-elected); Hal E. Hoss, Oregon City Enterprise, secretary (re-elected); directors, Ralph Cronise, Albany Democrat Herald; B. W. Bates, Roseburg News Review; George Aiken, Ontario Argus and Lionel Gordon, Marshfield Southwestern Oregon Daily News. Mr. Hoss was chosen as the Oregon director of the International Press Foundation.

Strong support was voiced in support of the Kendall and Cummins bills now befor Congress which would prevent the Post Office Department from soliciting and taking orders for printed envelopes. This practice was termed unfair competition.

In a resolution on publicity the Association urged publishers "to turn a deaf ear to appeals for free space."

An Oregon-Washington newspaper conference was endorsed.

The plan for the establishment of a press at the University of Oregon, to be known as the John Henry Nash Press for fine printing was endorsed by the association.

PUBLISHER MAKES PLANT HIS HOME

(Continued from page 22)

business?" his father asked him. Why not? The elder Elverson did not consider it wise to give his boy any amount of money he wanted to buy his stamps, but he was willing that he should earn the money for himself.

Thus at 11, James Jr., became the president and indeed, "the whole works," of the Keystone Stamp Company, of Philadelphia. His father gave him the use of a job press at his plant, and on it the boy printed all his circulars and other advertising matter he thought fit to use to promote his business. The stamp company really became well known among those who care about the hobby. It was financially successful, and Elverson accumulated a very valuable stamp collection for himself, a collection he prizes most highly to this day. And at the same time, by working after school on the job press at the plant, he was becoming acquainted with the printing business.

Elverson, Jr., graduated from the Episcopal Academy near Philadelphia, and finished his education in Paris and Berlin. When he returned to this country, still in his twenties, his father thought his son had enjoyed a scholar's leisure long enough, and put him to work at the very bottom of the newspaper business. First he solicited advertising for the Inquirer, and later became a reporter for the paper. With Anthony J. Drexel Biddle and other wealthy Philadelphia boys of his day, whose fathers believed in having their sons work for their living, Elverson formed a sort of Latin-Quatier in Philadelphia. These boys were as hard up as are the great majority of young men beginning in business or in a profession.

Col. Elverson thus worked up slowly through all departments of the paper. He won his present position on merit as well as by inheritance.

"He knows more about the business than anyone he employs," Mr. Blackman said to me about his chief. "He likes it all; he really enjoys it. He is a thorough-going, far-seeing, venturesome newspaper publisher."

NEW SOUTHERN DAILY TO START JULY 4

Columbus (Miss.) Discoverer to Enter Morning and Sunday Field—John L. Tait Publisher—Local Men Interested

The Columbus (Miss.) Discoverer, a morning and Sunday newspapers, will be launched Sunday, July 4, with John L. Tait, former St. Louis agency man and for 14 years of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal staff as president and publisher. Control of the publishing company is owned by Mr. Tait.

The minority stock is scattered among 30 of the leading business men and advertisers of Columbus, there being two stockholders among the officers of each bank in the city. The secretary of the company and business manager of the paper is Jack Senter, who resigned as assistant manager of the American Type Founders Company in St. Louis to accept the position. George Y. Banks, president of the First National Bank in Columbus and of the Banks Hardware Company is vice-president and J. S. Marx, a local newspaper man and capitalist, is treasurer and cashier. Lester Moore, manager of the job printing department, which will be separately conducted, is one of the publishers of The Craftsman, and is from Texarkana, Ark. The Benjamin and Kentnor Company of New York and Chicago will be the national advertising representative of the paper.

The paper will start with a guaranteed circulation of 4,000, Mr. Tait told EDITOR & PUBLISHER, although the first issue will run 10,000 copies. The Discoverer will have the International News leased wire service, and features from several syndicates. A four page color comic section will be a part of the Sunday edition.

Mr. Tait, until this June, was first vice-president of the Fisher Brown Advertising Agency of St. Louis.

Vandenberg Given Honorary Degree

Arthur H. Vandenberg, editor-in-chief of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald and author of several volumes of history, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws at the 61st annual commencement of the Council of Hope College, Holland, Mich., June 16, "for conspicuous and brilliant service to the school, the church, the state and the nation."

A London Labor Editor Jailed

Following a recent police raid on the premises in London of The Workers' Weekly, a labor paper, and the finding of certain matter intended for publication and alleged to be of a nature likely to cause disaffection among the civilian populace, Thomas Alfred Jackson, acting editor of the paper was sent to prison for two months. Jackson stated that the matter seized by the police was only intended to be verified, and not necessarily for publication.

in Detroit—

Free Press city circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

THE DETROIT "FREE PRESS"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.

Member A. B. C.

URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Still Gaining!

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS
and
Baltimore American

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments of
New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American
are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400

Chicago Office:
F. E. CRAWFORD
Western Manager
913 Hearst Bldg.

Detroit Office:
FRANKLIN PAYNE
Representative
1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y.
Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia
Waterman Bldg. Boston

Regional Advertising
at Regional Rates
in
The Christian Science Monitor
An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions
Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request
ADVERTISING OFFICES
Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, London, Paris, Florence, Kansas City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland
"Buy What You Can Use"

CLINE SYSTEM
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
QUALITY NAME SERVICE NAME
CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control

is used by

Los Angeles News
Los Angeles, Calif.

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.

It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest

O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young
Publisher

2,000 TAKE PART IN BRILLIANT PAGEANT

Two-Hour Parade Held Monday Evening in Blaze of Light — Blare of Bands and Flashing Costumes Added Splendor

Philadelphia was a city of brilliant light Monday while the pageant of advertising wound its way down Broad street for almost two hours.

William Penn stood atop the city hall where the procession debouched below him, his back to the ceremonies while his shadow was thrown on clouds thousands of feet above him by the 450,000,000 candle-power searchlights turned skyward by an army unit which opened the ceremonies.

Thousands of electric lights gleamed along "Egyptian Way," a stretch of Broad street three blocks long, specially decorated for the recent Shrine convention and left to make bright the path for future sesqui-centennial celebrations.

Red and gray, blue and gold, navy blue and silver, flashed past the packed sidewalks and window casings as a hundred bands played quicksteps for the long line.

The Poor Richard Club sent out several platoons of Ben Franklins in velvet coats and tri-cornered hats, each Ben Franklin portraying his patron saint's entry into Philadelphia with a yard and a half of bread under each arm.

Soldierly close-order marching and drills were executed by smartly uniformed policemen of the Pennsylvania railroad which had several sections in the line, including a silvered model of a locomotive with bell tolling, the wheels rolling and polished valve-rods flashing points of silver in the bath of incandescence which flooded the line of march.

Scotch pipers with the drummers who can beat either side of the great bass with either hand and do so; the Reading Railroad Seashore band in uniforms that would have graced the shoulders of prewar Austrian officers; string bands, whose banjo, bell, and violin players wore tiny electric lights on their velvet shoes and miners' lights on their fancy caps; a graphic model display of Philadelphia's new water power development at Conowingo; several patrols of Artisans, a Philadelphia benevolent association which seems to specialize in tricky marching stunts—all of these and a few hundred other elements contributed to a spectacle the like of which has never been seen at an A. A. C. W. convention and seldom in Philadelphia, where they are rather accustomed to spectacular pageants.

For instance, there are the New Year Shooters, as Philadelphian an institution as scrapple or cinnamon buns, who broke their long time custom of parading in costume only on New Year's Day to grace the Monday night advertising celebration. There were 2,000 of the mummers in line in costumes ranging from the grass of a hula hula dancer to gorgeous bandbox creations that might have come from the Follies in New York —and may yet be seen there. It should be noted here that though many of the costumes were feminine, the Shooters were all of the other persuasion.

The floats, which numbered more than 100, covered most of Philadelphia's many industries. The Philadelphia Bulletin, as usual telling the world that "nearly everybody" reads it, showed two floats depicting family scenes with every one of the folks from daddy to the youngest of five children taking their evening dose of news from the Bulletin by the fireside. A lumber firm was represented by two great truckloads of timber, trailing a forest scene.

The pick of the city's beautiful young women, with a number of recruits from Atlantic City and Florida, gave the citizens any number of sights that were by no means difficult to look upon. They manned the floats in evening dress, in bathing suits that left no attractive line unseen, in costumes of Betsy Ross and the Civil War. They tossed candy and cantaloupes to the throngs which lined the sidewalks, they wore the sombrero and chaps of the rodeo, they donned powdered wigs and silk breeches and led divisions, mounted on the milk-white horses that tradition demands. One of them smiled from the apex of a pyramid of Bell telephones, each of which flashed a light and rang its tinkling bell several times a second. In fact, there was little that they didn't try a smile at.

Automobiles, most of which were apparently contributed for the occasion by a St. Louis manufacturer, rolled slowly in several divisions, bearing the marshals, distinguished guests, and the foreign delegations to the convention. Motor cycles manned by marines, police and members of the Shooters, thundered up and down the street keeping the parade in line and in motion. One racing car with its unmuffled exhaust roaring like a million saw-mills in action, called attention to Atlantic City's new speedway and the coming motor races.

E. T. Stotesbury was grand marshal of the pageant, his motor rolling near the head of the line. Preceding him was the float of the Poor Richard Club, "Miss Poor Richard," judged by many impartial Philadelphians to be the finest of the lot. Theodore E. Ash, of the club, was marshal of the parade, with Benedict Gimbel, Jr., as assistant marshal.

BRITISH A. A. C. W. DELEGATES ARRIVE ON "BERENGARIA"

English advertising men, bound for the Philadelphia convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, photographed aboard the Berengaria as they reached New York harbor, late last week.

PENN PICTURE PRESENTED

Col. Lawson Speaks for Sir Charles Higham at Poor Richard Luncheon

A picture of William Penn receiving the charter to Pennsylvania from King Charles II was presented to the Poor Richard Club, Tuesday noon, by Col. E. F. Lawson, head of the British delegation to the A. A. C. W. convention. Col. Lawson spoke in behalf of Sir Charles Higham, the donor of the painting. He spoke briefly on the division of English feeling on the independence of the American colonies during the Revolutionary era and said that all bitterness had long vanished.

Other speakers at the luncheon were Sir William Henry Veno and Eric Field of the British delegation, and Howard C. Story, president of the Poor Richard Club, who accepted the painting.

N. Y. TIMES HOST TO FRENCH DELEGATES

Tenders Luncheon to Overseas Advertising Men in Private Dining Room in Times Annex— Ochs a Speaker

The French delegates to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in Philadelphia were entertained at a small luncheon in the private dining room on the 11th floor of the New York Times Annex, Thursday, June 17.

Adolph Ochs

Place cards bearing the French Coat of Arms and the names of the guests in gold lettering prepared by the members of the Times staff, were at each plate. A few guests were present in addition to ten members of the staff of the Times.

Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the Times, made a brief address of welcome. Dr. Marcel Knecht, general secretary of Le Matin, Paris, and also general secretary of the French Paris Provincial Newspaper Publishers Association and an honorary member of the Advertising Club of New York; M. Leon Renier Jr., commercial manager of Agence Havas; C. K. Woodbridge, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World; Louis Wiley, business manager, the Times and Dr. John H. Finley of the editorial staff of the Times, spoke briefly.

After the luncheon, a picture was taken of the delegates and guests and they were then conducted through the Times plant.

Those in attendance were:

French Delegates: Dr. Marcel Knecht; M. Leon Renier, Jr.; M. Adrian Muller; M. Gillis Duroulet; M. Andre Kaminker; M. Henri Dumay, Jr.

Guests: C. C. Green; Reginald Colley; E. E. Pidgeon; Hecter Fuller; Paul Meyer; James Wright Brown; C. King Woodbridge; Bernard Gimbel; F. W. Hume.

Representatives of the Times: Adolph S. Ochs; Louis Wiley; Arthur Hays Sulzberger; J. O. Adler; John H. Finley; H. A. O'Donnell; Arnold Sanchez; C. McD. Puckette; T. D. Palmer; F. T. Birchall.

A. P. GIVING BY-LINES

T. T. Topping Credited for Dispatch from Druse War Zone

A definite break from the Associated Press's old custom of anonymity occurred this week, when a by-line was run over a dispatch from T. T. Topping, A. P. correspondent, now in the Druse-French war zone.

The dispatch was dated from Damascus, June 22, and presented a graphic picture of conditions along the Syrian front.

For about a year now, the Associated Press has been running by-lines over stories sent to South American members, but anonymity has been preserved in this country. The tendency towards giving correspondents public credit for their work was seen recently when a note was sent out to editors with a dispatch from Doorn describing affairs of the ex-Kaiser, telling them it was written by Elmer Roberts, now chief of the Paris bureau, but formerly assigned to Berlin.

"America" Pageant Washed Out

Heavy rain Wednesday forced postponement of the patriotic pageant "America's Message," to be presented for the advertising delegates at the sesqui-centennial grounds, Philadelphia, that evening. The spectacle was promised for Thursday evening, weather permitting.

Newspaper Poet Wins Verdict

Berton Braley, newspaper poet, was awarded a favorable verdict by a jury in White Plains, N. Y., June 16, in trial of three damage suits brought as the outcome of an automobile collision near Peekskill, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1922. Mr. Braley's home is at Oscawana Lake.

A. N. A. E. ADOPTS NEW MERCHANDISING RULES

(Continued from page 5)

Sweeney" series of promotion advertisements, took as his title "No Place for a Plumber." He discussed the need of definite knowledge, close study, and trained personnel in the conduct of a newspaper promotion campaign.

Miss Grace Walton, advertising manager of Julius Kayser & Co., opening the Tuesday morning discussion of national advertising, outlined the successful newspaper campaigns of the manufacturing company whose advertising she directs. Miss Walton's address revealed facts similar to those she narrated for EDITOR & PUBLISHER in the issues of Jan. 9 and March 27, 1926.

Roy S. Durstine, secretary-treasurer of Barton Durstine & Osborn, Inc., and president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, applied some caustic surgery to the old sore spot of the charge that advertising agencies exist not by creating new business for newspapers but by taking business already established by other agencies.

Mr. Durstine based his statements on a survey which covered 48 advertising agencies. He said that of 631 new accounts, 471 became newspaper advertisers and that with reports from five of the 48 agencies missing, the new annual total business brought to newspapers was $18,700,000.

He added that the average showing of 13 new accounts for each agency was a refutation of the assertion that agencies only take business from each other.

I. R. Parsons, advertising director of the New York Telegram, and formerly a department store advertising manager, apparently convinced his audience, that though he had never been connected with a newspaper before, he was certain of his ability not only to merchandise a newspaper, but to conduct it. He drew several analogies between the business of a newspaper and of retail store to prove his assertion.

"In a newspaper we are manufacturing something to sell," he said. "We are seeking news, buying news, manufacturing news features, producing mechanically 36 to 60 sheets of paper folded twice, and we are attempting to sell what we have manufactured. In fact, let me go further with the parallel. In any store, for instance, we have counters and show-cases and windows. On them and in them we display our wares. By the attractive way we display our wares, and advertise our wares, and by the value of the wares themselves, and by the way we treat and serve our customers who come to look and to buy our wares, will our sales go up or down.

Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Sun, talked on the development of modern retail newspaper advertising. He found conditions steadily improving, with advertisers eliminating false claims and comparative prices, getting copy to newspaper offices in time for attractive reproduction, demanding and approving better typography.

An interesting discussion of special editions brought out the general opinion, expressed best by Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, that the best way to handle special editions was to eliminate them.

Mr. Wiley, when gently chided about the special edition that the New York Times will soon issue in honor of its 75th anniversary and which will include only the business of firms more than 75 years old, pleaded nolo contendere and promised that the Times would solicit no advertising for the edition which would commemmorate its 100th anniversary in 1951. It was also the general view that special editions or sections at high rates should not be encouraged.

Norman S. Rose, of the Christian Science Monitor, which in recent years has issued a number of excellently edited and liberally patronized special editions for localities in every corner of the world, informed the convention that the Monitor would no longer publish such numbers. The card rate was charged for all editions, without any premiums or advances, and the expense of getting the business was out of proportion to the revenue, he stated.

Almost all of the speakers who touched upon the topic, "Should a newspaper combat merchants who advertise untruthfully?" answered the question affirmatively. They considered dishonest advertising as calling for their protective efforts for their own interest and those of honest merchants patronizing their columns.

"I tell the local dealers to save their money," was the succinct answer given by J. K. Groom, 70 years old and the perpetual youth of Aurora, Elgin, and Joliet, he represents the only newspaper in each of those Illinois cities. The question was "What should be the attitude of newspapers toward requests from periodical publication advertisers urging the newspaper to sell so-called 'tie-up' advertising to retailers."

A brief discussion of the Association's Standard of Merchandising Practice, adopted in 1921, demonstrated a general feeling that the code needed no revision.

Presentation of the Shuman cup to Mr. Tripp came during the Tuesday afternoon session, Joe Simpson of the Philadelphia Bulletin serving as chairman of the committee which judged the papers submitted and awarded the prize.

Mr. Shuman declared himself so satisfied with the result of the first competition of its kind the association has ever held that he will offer another cup next year in a contest on another phase of newspaper advertising, not yet determined.

Honorable mention was accorded by the judges to J. Mead, a copywriter of the Columbus Dispatch; Herbert W. Smith, a copy-writer for the Dallas News and a former professor of advertising at the University of Missouri and to E. J. Treffinger of the Richmond (Ind.) Item.

Classified advertising occupied most of the Wednesday morning session, addresses being made by W. W. Murdock, classified advertising manager of the Detroit Free Press, and Frank McCabe, classified advertising manager of the New York World.

"So many newspapers believe in advertising, talk advertising, sell advertising but use very little themselves," said Mr. Murdock. "Classified promotion is absolutely essential to the building of classified. A small box regarding the classified should be on the front page of your paper every day calling attention to the classified columns. Readers scattered throughout the paper with similar reference to this section are very helpful. Display ads should be used and in this way you reach not only your own readers, but readers of other newspapers. Whenever a page ad is run in your own paper, broadsides made of this on thintex paper should be mailed out. Broadside promotion in your own newspaper, billboards, street cars, novelties, or any other kind of good advertising is of great value in building classified.

"Every ad that goes into the paper should be censored. Any advertisement that lacks cleanliness, wholesomeness and truthfulness, or that might be misleading to the smallest extent should not be published in a modern classified section.

"Classified advertising should be properly indexed. Every ad should start with a key word and be in alphabetical order.

"Some newspapers abbreviate ads to such an extent that unless you have lived in the town several years, regardless of how much you know about classified advertising it is impossible for you to understand the advertisements. Even a skilled cross word puzzle worker would have difficulty in ferreting out the advertiser's message in some ads."

Mr. McCabe cited many examples from his own long experience on the World in proof of statements that classified advertising is a more valuable asset to newspapers than display copy, because of its intensely local character, its contacts with intimate personal and business relations of newspaper readers, its comparatively high revenue value and low cost of production and its ability to hold readers on a newspaper's list.

The tabloid newspapers, he said, had made no inroads upon the circulation of newspapers having strong want ad pages.

William B. Bryant, publisher of the Paterson (N. J.) Press-Guardian, entertained the advertising executives with reminiscences of his past fifteen years as a newspaper publisher and of his earlier career as an advertising, circulation, and mechanical department executive in New York.

BLANCHARD PRESIDENT OF UTILITIES GROUP

In Speech Gives Eight Reasons for Public Utility Advertising—British Delegate a Speaker

Frank L. Blanchard, manager of publicity for H. L. Doherty & Co., New York, was elected president of the Public Utilities Advertising Association, A. A. C. W. departmental, Wednesday.

"Banks are far more liberal in their terms to companies that have been regular advertisers than toward those that do not advertise," said Mr. Blanchard in his address June 23.

He mentioned eight specific purposes for which advertising can be profitably used by public utilities companies:

1. To sell the company's securities, service and merchandise.

2. To keep stockholders and customers informed regarding the affairs of the company and thus promote their interest in it."

3. To make known to the general public the company's policies, its methods of doing business, its personnel and its plans for improving its service.

4. To defend its self when unjustly attacked, and especially by politicians who hope to promote their candidacy for office.

5. To oppose legislation that would hamper the physical operations of the company, or impose financial obligations that would be unjustly burdensome.

6. To promote public good will by encouraging thrift, promoting safety, building up commercial enterprises and helping to make the city a better place in which to live.

7. To give reasons why it has applied to the State Utility Commission for permission to raise its rates.

8. To present arguments for the renewal of its franchise.

W. M. Teasdale, advertising manager of the London and Northeastern Railway, spoke on railway advertising in Great Britain.

"So far as my own company is concerned," said Mr. Teasdale, "I refuse to place any advertisements until I know everything pertaining to the financial side of the particular traffics affected. One of the results of this is that I find occasions when I have to refuse to sanction any advertising expenditure for some particular service or facility. Because I consider the proposition is not marketable. At first the railway official was astonished to find an advertising man who declined to advertise. He now, I hope, realizes that advertising is conducted on just as scientific principles as the running of his trains."

"The last two decades have witnessed no greater accomplishment than the building up of friendly relations and mutual confidence between public utility companies and the public whom they serve," said Martin P. Rice, manager of advertising, publicity, and broadcasting, General Electric Company.

"This accomplishment was brought about by the adoption of the following fundamental principles; absolute honesty as the only policy; service to customers, the public utility slogan; complete publicity; and customer ownership."

"The enormous volume of trade in the United States is proof of the stimulating force of advertising which has increased consumption, raised the standard of living and added incalculably to the wealth of the country," said Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times in his address on "Newspapers and Public Utilities."

AGENCY ASKS FREE ADS THROUGH REPORTERS

Coast Firm Again Offers Payment for All "News" Stories on Caterpillar Tractors Wormed Into News Columns by Staff Men

Watch out for graft advertising for "caterpillar" tractors in news columns!

EDITOR & PUBLISHER warned editors some weeks ago that the K. L. Hamman advertising concern, of Oakland, Cal., was offering to bribe employes of newspapers as a means of obtaining graft space.

The sponsors of this nervy new wrinkle in parasitic publicity are persistent, as is shown by a follow-up letter sent to newspaper men of the Pacific Coast. This document attempts to stress the "news value" of caterpillar stories and pictures, perhaps to sooth the conscience of employes of newspapers tempted by this outsider to put advertising in his employers' columns, or foist it upon some other publisher, and receive a reward from an advertising agency.

Here is the Hamman follow-up, as addressed to the city editor of a western newspaper man who forwarded it to EDITOR & PUBLISHER as an example of sly press agentry:

June 15, 1926.

Dear Mr. ————: Have you been on the lookout for "Caterpillar" Tractor stories, as suggested in our recent letter?

Since first making our offer to writers, we have mailed checks to a number who have successfully placed feature articles and photographs in magazines and newspapers. The Trade Journal field is especially inviting.

Editors of such publications, as you know, are always interested in material describing new and better methods developed through the use of modern machinery, such as "Caterpillar" Tractors—especially if it is shown how such methods have reduced costs and increased efficiency.

There is no reason why you should not share in the money to be made by writing about the many interesting activities of "Caterpillar" Tractors in industry and agriculture; and incidentally, you will be doing the editors and the public a real service.

To any writer who is a recognized contributor to reputable publications, the "Caterpillar" Tractor Co. will, if desired, give a personal letter of introduction to the nearest "Caterpillar" dealer. The dealer, in turn, will be glad to supply leads which may be followed up to advantage.

Perhaps the story will be found on a nearby construction or subdivision project, on a ranch or on the county or State highway system—"Caterpillars are used by the hundreds in road building, industry and agriculture.

Don't forget we are anxious to help you by supplying photographs, technical information and "leads." Assuming, of course, that no contribution will find its way into print unless it has practical value and reader-interest, we will at least duplicate the payment you receive from an editor for any article featuring the "Caterpillar" in text or illustration.

Cordially yours,

JAS. C. KNOLLIN,

In Charge of News Service.

(Italics ours.)

Not content with direct offers to newspaper men the Hamman concern is also attempting to route caterpillar copy through established syndicates. Several syndicate managers notified EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week that they had received proposals from Hamman's agent suggesting that they broadcast pictures and "stories" for their client, the Caterpillar Tractor Co., "largest manufacturer of tractors," according to the letter, but in this respect engaged in the smallest and meanest advertising business that has come to the attention of EDITOR & PUBLISHER in many months.

Naturally, reputable syndicates ignore the Hamman proposal.

VANDERBILT'S MIAMI TAB SUSPENDS; NEW RECEIVER APPOINTED

Paper Quits June 17 After Negotiations for Sale Fall Through —Employees Demand Wages—John W. Brodix Named Receiver When Inglis Resigns

(Special to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

THE Miami Illustrated Tab, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., publisher, has taken its place in the newspaper graveyard after a career of 18 months.

The tabloid had been in the hands of a receiver for four days when it suspended E. A. Inglis, Miami real estate operator, had been named receiver. The Tab made its appearance for the last time Thursday morning, June 17. It was 5 p. m. of that day before negotiations under way for sale and continued publication fell through and the receiver announced suspension.

Mechanical employees of the tabloid publication left their posts first and were followed soon after by employes in the other departments. The Tab office is at 70 West Flagler, which for years has seen the publication, first of the Daily News (which has a 99 year lease on the building) and then the Tab, first issue of that paper coming off the press on the morning of Jan. 12, 1925.

Auditors are busy taking an inventory of the property and auditing the books of the defunct newspaper. Advertisements for a receiver's sale are being printed.

The latest development in the Miami situation has been the resignation this week of E. A. Inglis, receiver, and the appointment of John W. Brodix of Miami in his stead. Brodix is the personal representative in Miami of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

Back salary due to almost all of the Tab employes will be first payment made after the sale of the property, Mr. Inglis stated after the suspension.

As late as 4 p. m. on the day previous to suspension of the publication efforts at a sale were continued, a conference with three prospective purchasers being held in the office of Mr. Inglis, but the effort fizzled and at five o'clock Mr. Inglis sounded the death knell.

"It was the only thing left for me to do," said Mr. Inglis. "The employees could not be paid and have not been paid for some time. Rent money also was long overdue and there were no funds in sight to straighten out the mess. The thing had to stop."

In the meantime, Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., publishing organization of the Tab, was operating under a court order to vacate the West Flagler property. The order was handed down by Acting County Judge Shippey on complaint of the Daily News under the name of News Tower, Inc., alleging failure to pay rent. The action was brought under the landlord and tenant's act and the court order named June 20, as the day to vacate the property. As a result equipment of the Tab is being moved out to make way for a drug store.

The Miami Illustrated Tab took its position as a morning and Sunday daily along with the tabloid newspapers started by Mr. Vanderbilt in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Just previous to the first issue of his Miami paper, Mr. Vanderbilt came to Miami and sent communications to be printed in Los Angeles under his own name in which he said things about Miami and Florida which appeared to some to be so unfair that Mr. Vanderbilt was invited before one of the civic clubs and asked to explain and this he did, blaming the articles on his poor health.

A stock selling campaign was carried on in Miami and many representative Miami citizens purchased stock. On the board of directors appeared the names of Alfred I. DuPont, financier and manufacturer; and Ray A. Baker, former director-general of the U. S. Mint. The national advisory board was reported to include King G. Gillette of safety razor fame; Robert Fielder of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, Mr. DuPont and others.

Mr. Vanderbilt's entrance into Florida journalism was marked by an ambitious publication program. He had a large staff, largely recruited from his California newspapers. Expenditures were made on a large scale and prosperity appeared to reward the efforts but as time went on it became apparent that the newspaper never was able to become self supporting and pay a dividend to the stockholders.

Frequent changes in the personnel attended the progress of the newspaper and reached a climax when early in the present year, Mr. Vanderbilt unexpectedly appeared one day and proceeded to dismiss 100 employees. In their place came more executives and employees from California.

Several weeks ago Mr. Vanderbilt announced from New York that his family had withdrawn their support of his newspapers after investing more than $1,000,000. The San Francisco Daily Herald shortly afterward was ordered to suspend publication and The Illustrated Daily News of Los Angeles was placed in the hands of a receiver, discontinuing its Sunday issue.

The Miami Illustrated Tab, also hard hit, suspended its Monday morning issue and drastic cuts in the personnel were made. Employees began to complain that pay checks were not forthcoming. Efforts to sell additional stocks were unsuccessful

Then came the receivership and "30" for the Miami Illustrated Tab.

WORLD CO-OPERATION SUPREME ISSUE

(Continued from page 24)

He thinks that representative government is being undermined by the philosophy of alien reds; I think that representative government is being undermined.

"By the practices of native voters.

"Every successful enterprise must be adequately financed—and farming is of course no exception," said Judge Lobdell. "Farm financing logically arranges itself into three divisions: First—The plant, to adopt the manufacturer's term, that is, the farm and its equipment. Second—Operating expenses—such funds as are necessary to plant, cultivate and harvest the crop, including fertilizer, and meet the general going expense. Third—Carrying and marketing credit—funds necessary to carry and market the crop in an orderly fashion in substantial response to conservative demand.

"In less than eight years of actual operation the Federal Land Banks have loaned more than a billion and a quarter of dollars to approximately four hundred thousand farmers, in every quarter of the country and upon every type of agricultural land.

"With nearly 5,000 Farm Loan Associations making service accessible in every community in the country, with the banks in abundant supply of funds and with other agencies competing for the business and meeting our terms and plans—as they must—the problem of farm credits would seem to be pretty well solved."

Miss Moreland said that the successful woman is no longer a headline.

"There are several other material and personal reasons beside the war for the place which women occupy in business and the profession today," she declared. "Increased cost of living, the breaking down of social barriers, increasing democracy of the world, and the granting of suffrage, have all resulted in the fact that women are now taken more or less as a matter of course in business.

"There are, I think, only two professions without women—the Army and Navy. 'One out of every five women have it'—'it' in this case being a job by which she is entirely or partially self supporting."

Three Presidents in Monitor Delegation

Three presidents of advertising organizations were among the Christian Science Monitor's delegation to the A. A. C. W. convention. Those present were Norman S. Rose, advertising manager; Don. E. Gilman, manager, San Francisco office, who is president of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs and a vice-president of the A. A. C. W.; Herman M. Craig, of St. Petersburg, president of the Florida association; Adah M. Graves, president of the Women's Advertising Club of Cleveland; George E. Munro, manager, New York office, and Florence E. Gill, manager, Philadelphia office.

FORRISTAL HEADS RETAIL ADVERTISERS

Executive of Foley Brothers, Houston Named President of A. A. C. W. Departmental—Copy Ideas Discussed

The Associated Retail Advertisers elected George B. Forristal, Foley Brothers Dry Goods Company, Houston, Tex., president; Catherine McNellis Fowler, Dick & Walker, Wilkesbarre, Pa., first vice-president; David Lampe, The Hub, Baltimore, second vice-president. Directors: Maurice O'Connell, Gilchrist Company, Boston; E. W. Clarke, Wm. Taylor & Sons, Cleveland; Lucille Babcock, E. E. Atkinson & Co., Minneapolis; Horace Ryan, T. S. Ayres Company, Indianapolis; Shelden R. Coons, Gimbel Bros., New York. Members of the Advertising Commission: Frank Black, Wm. Filene Sons Company, Boston; Mr. Coons and Mr. Forristal; secretary-treasurer, Esther Lyman, B. D. M. Read, Bridgeport.

"Department store advertising has gone through many changes in the last 25 years," said I. R. Parsons, advertising manager of the New York Telegram. "By and large it has established standards of merchandise presentation, copy, illustration and style that have been followed by the national advertisers.

"This has come about logically, for I believe all advertising experiences, those experiences which touch merchandise and merchandising in selling, distributions, turnover, delivery, advertising costs, copy, illustration, typography selection of media, and elimination of waste and the application of economic advantage come in due time to the advertising manager of a department store."

MERGER OF "SPECIALS" ANNOUNCED IN N. Y.

Carpenter & Co. and H. Edmund Scheerer, Consolidate to Form Scheerer, Inc.—W. F. Kentnor Joins Firm as Vice President

Carpenter & Co., and H. Edmund Scheerer, newspaper representatives have been consolidated effective July 1, it was announced this week.

The new firm will be known as Scheerer, Inc. The incorporators are: H. Edmund Scheerer, Pres. & Treas.; W. F. Kentnor, Vice President, and Allyne V. Carpenter, Sec'y. The consolidating of the newspaper lists of these two firms gives to Scheerer, Inc., one of the strongest lists of its kind in the country. Offices will be maintained in Chicago and New York.

The announcement also carries the news that Mr. W. F. Kentnor Sec'y of Benjamin & Kentnor Company, has resigned to accept the Vice Presidency of the new firm.

New Star Adcrafter

Harry Bressler, director of the Star Adcraft Service, New York, and Mrs. Bressler, are parents of a son, Edward C., born June 16.

PENN PUBLISHERS TO HEAR E. C. HOPWOOD

President of American Society of Newspaper Editors Banquet Speaker at Summer Meeting, State College, June 28-29—Program Announced

Erie C. Hopwood, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, will be a speaker at the annual banquet at the summer convention of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association at State College, Pa., June 28-29. His subject will be "Building on News." Dean Charles W. Stoddart, member of the College Administration Committee, will also speak. John L. Stewart, of the Washington (Pa.) Observer and Reporter, and association president, will be toastmaster.

E. C. HOPWOOD

The banquet is slated for the evening of the first convention day. It will be the chief social event of the comprehensive program drawn up for members of the big Keystone State newspaper group, which represents the consolidation of the Pennsylvania Associated Dailies, the Pennsylvania Weekly Newspaper Association, and the Pennsylvania State Editorial Association.

Separate meetings for daily and weekly divisions are planned.

Co-operation in selling a market, a keynote subject, will open the convention Monday morning, with Jason Rogers, publisher of the Advertisers Weekly, and former publisher of the New York Globe, the speaker.

Then members of the daily division will discuss the matter of renewal of scale with the typographical union, due to come up for many papers the first of the coming year. Mechanical problems will be given consideration, such as the use of oil burners for melting metal.

William S. Fish, Coudersport Enterprise, is chairman of the weekly divisional meeting. Discussions will be led by George R. Fry, Newport News; John G. Zook, Lititz Express; and Charles M. Meredith, Quakertown Free Press. Mr. Fry will talk on possible saving by elimination of representatives in the foreign field.

Reports of committee chairmen will be made June 29 by the following: Hawley Quier, Reading Eagle, labor; W. L. Sanborn, Lansdale, Pa., newsprint; E. J. Stackpole, Harrisburg Telegraph, transportation; Howard Reynolds, Quarryville Sun, finance; Irving Heywood, Conshohocken Recorder, postal; George J. Campbell, Pittsburgh Legal Journal, legislative; and Charles M. Meredith, Quakertown Free Press, daily and weekly departmental divisions.

The association is divided into six regional groups, headed by the following publishers, who will make reports the same day: W. L. McLean, Philadelphia Bulletin; W. R. Lynett, Scranton Times; Mr. Stackpole, Harrisburg Telegraph; Paul R. Eyerly, Bloomsburg Press; E. A. Sweeney, Greensburg Tribune; and W. D. Fish, Coudersport Enterprise.

Howard Reynolds, Quarryville Sun, treasurer of the association, will also report.

George E. Graff, publisher of the Williamsport Sun and Gazette, and champion newspaper golfer of Pennsylvania, has invited golf fans among association members to luncheon at the Centre Hills Country Club, June 29. The annual tournament will be held that afternoon. Mr. Graff has held for two years the "Paste Pot Trophy," a cup donated by the Philadelphia Bulletin.

In a letter addressed to all members, Mr. Graff challenged them to come out in force to compete for their association golf award.

SMALLER PAPERS WITH HIGHER RATES URGED BY WANAMAKER EXECUTIVE

Joseph H. Appel, Advertising Director, Says Modern Newspaper Overburdened with Advertising—Forsees a Decrease in Reader Interest—Store Host to British Delegates

SMALLER newspapers carrying less advertising at a much higher rate were advocated by Joseph H. Appel, advertising director of the John Wanamaker, New York department store, at a luncheon given June 19, at the store by Rodman Wanamaker to the British delegates to the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in Philadelphia this week.

"With advertising of a century ago that cost the merchant $30 a year for unlimited space with the assurance that 'no respectable house would overdo the thing,' we are confronted with an advertising expenditure in the newspapers and magazines of $875,000,000 a year, with expenditure of from one to three million dollars by individual advertisers—are we not rushing along too fast?" he asked.

"Plainly the larger daily newspapers of America are being overburdened with advertising. Many of the larger magazines are suffering with the same disease. They are burdensome in form. They are losing reader interest—both in the editorial and advertising columns. They are not read as closely as they were, or with as much interest. Picture papers and magazines are growing more popular.

"Plainly advertising is being overdone. Some day this overdone advertising may kill the goose that lays the golden eggs, and both advertisers and publishers will be the goose.

"Is it not time to restrict advertising in space, to limit the amount to each advertiser in any one issue? Publishers will say then rates must increase. Well, they are increasing now. If publishers will cut out and cut down much of the fluff they now publish, present their news and features with some of the terseness now employed in advertisements, and then show advertisers that higher rates are necessary, I believe advertisers will co-operate to make a more readable, a more interesting, a better balanced newspaper, and a better advertising medium. They will gladly pay higher rates per line because each line of advertising will become more productive and advertising generally and newspapers as well will become of more service to the public."

In welcoming the overseas guests Mr. Appel paid a tribute to the London press during the recent strike.

"To Colonel Lawson and his brother publishers of Great Britain we want to say a special word in which I am sure all America unites," he said. "It is this:

"In the recent strike you wrote again a ringing Declaration of Independence for the press of the world, in refusing to accept the dictates of any group of society. At great financial cost to newspapers, to British business and to the nation at large you declared that the press shall not be censored except by the principles of truth and justice and civilization's code of morals and manners.

"And I cannot refrain, in passing, from offering our congratulations to Mr. Brown on his very fine convention number of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, in which among many other good articles, he publishes the very significant statement of Sir William Veno, another of our distinguished guests, that the British movement for the purchase of British goods alone must fall because it is unsound—smashing it with this pertinent query: if other nations adopt the same policy what will happen to the commerce of the world?"

Mr. Appel then talked of the history of retail advertising, quoting authorities who declared John Wanamaker to be the inventor of modern store advertising.

"If, as has been stated, John Wanamaker invented modern department store advertising—and, by the way, Mr. Brown's EDITOR & PUBLISHER in this week's issue, says the same thing—such advertising began with John Wanamaker's pioneering in publicity, first with his new kind of store in 1877, then with his inauguration of the Wanamaker conversational style of advertising in the early 80's—and his use of full newspaper pages beginning sometimes in 1888," he declared.

"It is, therefore, pertinent at least to inquire whether the pioneering of John Wanamaker did not inspire the great volume of advertising, both local and national, which today makes possible the great newspapers and magazines of America and without which they could not render their great service to the public.

"National advertising of manufacturers followed—it did not precede—the local advertising of stores.

"No authentic figures are available prior to 1915, but in that year the volume of national advertising in the United States and Canada was only $55,000,000 in the newspapers and $22,665,280 in the magazines against local advertising of $220,000,000 in newspapers alone—a ratio of one to three. In 1925 the national volume was $220,000,000 in the newspapers and $130,000,000 in the magazines, a total of $350,000,000 against a volume of $525,000,000 of local advertising, including classified, in the newspapers.

"The grand total of newspaper and magazine advertising in the United States and Canada for 1925 was therefore $875,000,000. The year's increase in newspaper advertising revenue alone throughout the United States in 1925 was approximately $100,000,000, of which increase one-ninth was in New York—the increase being due approximately one-third to increase in rate and two-thirds to increase in linage."

Other speakers were Mayor Walker, C. K. Woodbridge, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World; Charles C. Green, president of the New York Advertising Club; Colonel E. F. Lawson, proprietor of the London Telegraph, who spoke for the British delegation; Adrian Muller, representing the French delegation, and Rowe Stewart.

Twenty-three of the British delegates, several of the French delegates and about seventy-five members of the New York Advertising Club attended the luncheon.

"Newspaper Wedding" in Chicago

A newspaper wedding was performed June 19 in the Hearst Square studio of WEBH, the Edgewater Beach Hotel-Chicago Herald and Examiner radio station, when Dayton L. Johnson and Miss Llora Ruth Yahr, both of Milwaukee, Wis., were married. The bridegroom has been connected with the advertising and promotion department of the Wisconsin News. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Carwardine, religious editor of the Herald and Examiner, and Alexander Cameron of the advertising department of the Chicago Evening American acted as best man.

Washington Group Meets

Newspaper editors and publishers of Pierce and King counties met in Puyallup, Wash., Saturday, June 26, for a general conference on newspaper problems and policies.

Lawyer Sues Oklahoma Paper

N. S. Corn, county attorney of Dewey county, Oklahoma, has entered suit for $5,000 against John Disbrow and Mrs. Ada Disbrow, editor and publisher of the Camargo (Okla.) Comet, alleging improper criticism of his conduct of a murder case.

WORLD DOESN'T HATE US, SAYS VENO

BRUCE BARTON'S challenge to organized advertising that it seek the reasons why the world hates the United States, flung down in his Monday morning address before the first general session of the A. A. C. W., met a strong rebuttal from across the Atlantic on Wednesday.

Sir William Veno, head of the 1925 British delegation to Houston and an exceedingly active member of the present group, denied energetically that the world—or at least the parts of it that he knows—entertain any but the kindliest feelings for Uncle Sam and his boys and girls. Sir William's rejoinder was delivered at the International Trade Conference on Wednesday, when he was presiding over the afternoon session.

He cited the ovations which greeted the American delegation to the London A. A. C. W. convention in 1924 and the similar reception accorded the delegates of the American Bar Association. He said flatly that Mr. Barton was mistaken in his judgment of world feelings.

Other speakers at the Wednesday morning session of the international trade conference were Dr. Julius Klein of the U. S. Department of Commerce, who stated that the commerce of the world was back to its pre-war level and growing steadily; and Eric Louw, trade commissioner for South Africa, who finds Americans thoroughly ignorant of the people and commercial accomplishments and possibilities of his territory.

"I have met men," he said, "who seem to think that lions and tigers are shot as easily in Cape Town as cashiers and jewelers in New York."

Too many American manufacturers are neglecting foreign markets and losing money thereby, declared Eric Field, director of Erwoods, Ltd., London.

"When the United States manufacturers do wake up to the possibilities of the English market," he declared, "many of them will be too late, because American products are already widely copied in England."

Sinclair Wood, director of Advertising & Publicity, Ltd., London, addressed the afternoon session on the importance of research in international advertising.

Baltimore Men Await Jail

The three Hearst editors and the two Hearst photographers recently sentenced to one day in jail each by Judge Eugene O'Dunne are going about their business with the possibility that they will one day be called to drop pencils and cameras and serve the sentence hanging over their heads.

Bills of exceptions on which the appeal to the Court of Appeals will be based have been prepared and the case has been sent to the Court of Appeals, but no date has been fixed for argument. It is expected that the date will be sometime in the October term of court.

Illinois Group Holds Outing

More than 150 newspaper publishers and editors of Kane, McHenry, Will and DuPage counties, Illinois, and their wives and friends were guests of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company last week when the newspapermen gathered at Warrenville for their annual meeting. A dinner was served by the company. George Smith, Wheaton publisher, had charge of the party at Wheaton where the summer vacation camp was visited. An informal program was given later in the afternoon.

Spanish Edition for McAllen, Tex.

The McAllen (Tex.) Morning Telegram has started publication of a daily edition in Spanish. James Marion Bird is publisher.

New Paper at Orange, N. J.

The Orange and Maplewood, N. J., communities will have a new daily paper to be started this fall.

CITY FUNDS SHOULD PAY FOR ADVERTISING

Taxation Advocated to Raise Money for Community Campaigns by A. A. C. W. Speaker—Would Eliminate Publicity Demands on Newspapers

"When a community endeavors to tell its story to the world and obtains the desired objective in increased population, additional industries and payrolls, more and better homes, churches, schools, playgrounds and recreation spaces, every citizen of that community, directly or indirectly, benefits from the consequent development and growth of the city," said Martin Keet, secretary, Sunbury (Pa.) Chamber of Commerce, at the Community Advertising session of the international advertising convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in Philadelphia Wednesday. "But does every citizen thus benefiting, bear his proportionate share of the cost of the advertising which obtained these results?

"Ordinarily the chamber of commerce or similar civic organization undertakes the job of broadcasting the city's advantages to the world. The scope of its effort is limited only by its financial resources. Its revenues are dependent upon the co-operation of the progressive citizen to whom the expenditure of a few dollars a year for membership dues or fees is not an obstruction to his vision of the future. Yet, that other citizen who scoffs at the well-intentioned effort of his progressive neighbor, is content to share equally in the benefits that accrue but will not help to pay the freight. The burden falls upon only a comparatively few.

"Restricted by lack of sufficient funds for proper advertising expenditures, the chamber of commerce is confronted with one of two alternatives; it must either stage a 'drive' or 'campaign' for contributions for its advertising fund, in which event the comparative few again must contribute time, service and money, or, it must recourse to the courtesy of the newspapers. The newspaper is asked and expected 'in the interest of the community,' to gratuitously donate its space for 'publicity.' Now, space is the only commodity the newspaper must sell to provide its bread and butter. Not even the citizen who rides free on the prosperity vehicle which community advertising sets in motion, would expect the merchant to give away his bread and butter. Why shouldn't the city, like the merchant, pay for its advertising space?

"In these days of constantly directed effort toward reduction of taxation, national, state and municipal, it is perhaps treading upon questionable, if not dangerous ground, to suggest the expenditures of municipal revenues for community advertising. Yet, if the results obtained from a properly planned and directed advertising campaign be as beneficial to the city as a whole as the paving of streets, the laying of sewers, the improving of the water supply, would it be amiss to permit the people to determine the propriety of the expense?

"Additional taxation is never exactly welcomed. Yet the opposition therto recedes as the resultant advantages are realized and enjoyed. If the citizenship is willing to entrust the expenditure of its funds for other public improvements to its regularly elected officials, why isn't it reasonable to trust them with the expenditure of funds for this purpose?

"Whether or not the question of municipal appropriation for community advertising is yet of sufficient importance to warrant more definite consideration, is perhaps a matter of opinion; it at least offers a basis for discussion. But it occurs to me that here is an opportunity for research by such committee or committees as may be appointed to look into the subject more fully. The data presented at this time is more or less cursory. In fact no effort was attempted to learn how the problem is being solved in such States which have enacted the necessary legislation nor what results are being obtained by this method."

MEIGS NEW PUBLISHER CHICAGO HEARST DAILY

Advertising Manager of Evening American Now Directing Herald & Examiner—Succeeded by McNamee

M. C. Meigs, since 1917 advertising manager and assistant publisher of the Chicago Evening American, has been made publisher of the Chicago Herald and Examiner. The promotion was announced in a letter from William Randolph Hearst to Roy D. Keehn, president of the Illinois Publishing Company.

M. C. Meigs

W. M. McNamee, assistant advertising manager of the Evening American, will fill the position vacated by Mr. Meigs.

The new publisher of the Herald and Examiner is only 43 years old. He was born on a farm and followed the plow until he was 17, when he went to Racine, Wis., to sell threshing machines and steam engines for the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company. At the end of a year the company sent him to South America with headquarters at Buenos Aires. For the next four years he represented the company in the Argentine and kindred countries, and in England, France and Portugal.

In order to perfect himself in the Spanish and Russian languages, Mr. Meigs entered the University of Chicago where he became one of the institution's greatest athletes. In 1905 he played on the championship University of Chicago eleven. It was while a student at the University that he became associated with the Hearst organization. He became the campus correspondent for the Chicago Examiner.

W. M. McNamee

Upon leaving college he returned to the J. I. Case Company as advertising manager, but in 1914 he returned to Chicago as an advertising solicitor for the Examiner.

Mr. McNamee, the new advertising manager of the American, started with the old Examiner in 1909 as a classified advertising solicitor. He left there in 1912 as an assistant classified manager and in 1913 joined the Chicago American staff as local advertising representative. After being shifted to the western foreign office as sales representative he was finally made western foreign manager for the paper and was advanced two years later to national or foreign advertising manager, which position he held until 1921, when he became assistant advertising manager. He was educated at the University of Illinois.

EVENING HERALD
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation
Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.
IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY
REPRESENTATIVES:
H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

STORY OF TRIAL OF CARL MAGEE

(Continued from page 9)

nounced they would present a motion for an instructed verdict of acquittal.

Long before the hour for the night session the little court room was jammed with men and women drawn by the feeling that "something was about to happen." Opposing counsel took their places. Mr. and Mrs. Magee entered and took a position at one end of the table. Judge Armijo threw away a half smoked cigar and mounted the rostrum. He called court to order and Attorney Fred Wilson rose to argue the motion for an instructed verdict immediately after the jury had been ushered from the room.

Mr. Wilson argued for an instructed verdict because: 1. No evidence had been introduced proving the crime of manslaughter had been committed; 2. No evidence had been introduced showing the shooting was unlawful. 3. No evidence was introduced showing the killing was in the commission of an unlawful act. 4. Evidence introduced by the state affirmatively showed the defendant acted in self-defense. 5. Evidence by the state showed the homicide was accidental, without intent and not under heat of passion due to any act of the deceased.

Attorney General Wilson argued his motion for perhaps 15 minutes. District Attorney Hunker, declining to concede that the editor shot in self-defense, read a Supreme Court decision which he considered similar.

"I prosecuted that case myself," interrupted Judge Armijo, "and I don't believe it is similar."

"Then if the court concedes that the defendant shot in self-defense there is no use going on with this case," remarked Hunker.

"That's just what I concede and I'm going to sustain the motion," replied the judge conversationally and the trial was over.

There was no demonstration in court although many friends of the editor slipped quietly down to the railing to congratulate him.

"There was nothing else the court could do under the circumstances," District Attorney Hunker said, while waiting for the jury to return.

The jurors having signed the verdict and been dismissed, filed by the editor, shaking hands cordially.

The Albuquerque State Tribune was on the streets with the story within 20 minutes after the verdict was signed.

There was little surprise over the state of the verdict. There was much satisfaction expressed at the San Miguel county court procedure. The trial was orderly and all bars were down. Not a single objection to any question was raised by either defense or prosecution. There was an honest and successful effort to get at the facts in order that justice might be done.

The editor publicly expressed his appreciation of the fair treatment he received at the hands of the Court, sheriff, prosecuting attorney and all the press associations.

He even expressed his gratitude toward Judge Leahy for admitting frankly that it was his drive for a free press that ultimately caused the ex-jurist's attack on him.

NEW DAILY PLANNED FOR SCRANTON, PA.

W. J. Pattison, Former Scranton Republican General Manager and Business Men Backing Venture—Will Start as P.M. Paper July 4

A new afternoon newspaper is scheduled to start in Scranton on August 1 to be known as the Sun. It will be published afternoons by the Scranton Sun Publishing Company. The application for a charter is to be filed by Attorney Walter Hill of Scranton this week.

The application is to carry the signatures of William F. Hallstead, Scranton financier, Bernard Connell, head of the Scranton Button Company; W. J. Pattison, formerly general manager of the Scranton Republican; Mark Edgar, formerly secretary of the Scranton board of trade and T. J. Duffy, for years advertising manager of the Scranton Republican and prior to that managing editor of several newspapers in the city. The Sun also has the financial backing of 20 other Scranton business and professional men.

The new paper is to be independent in politics and will be located at 314-316 Adams avenue, Scranton. A three story building of partial steel construction has been leased and will be altered to meet the needs of the publication. The company has ordered a Hoe sextuple press and is to install ten type setting machines. So far the names of the news staff have not been revealed. There will be an intensive circulation drive launched a month before the newspaper makes its appearance.

The Sun will be a two cent daily. It has not announced what wire service it has arranged for.

Batavia Times to Enlarge Plant

John Lennon & Son Company have been awarded a contract for construction of a two story addition to the plant of the Batavia (N. Y.) Times.

New Advertising Book

CHICAGO.—Lloyd D. Herrold, associate professor of advertising of the School of Commerce at Northwestern University, has written a new book, "Advertising Copy, Principles and Practice," which has just been published by the A. W. Shaw Company.

There Are No Other Newspapers Covering South Jersey Completely

From the Standpoint of the National Advertiser

CAMDEN COURIER
The MORNING POST

60,000 Circulation
Combination Rate

National Representatives:
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?

We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.

It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.

Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.

When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.

Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration
The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

400 NEWS MEN COVER CATHOLIC MEET

Dispatches Filed in a Dozen Languages at Eucharistic Congress— Photographers Get Unusual Opportunity

More than 400 newspapermen, many of them from foreign lands, covered the twenty-eighth international Eucharistic Congress at Chicago this week by word and picture. It was one of the largest and most cosmopolitan groups ever to represent the press on a single story and the news dispatches were filed in a dozen languages.

Reservations for newspaper correspondents to cover the Congress came from virtually all the larger metropolitan newspapers in the United States and nearly 100 correspondents and special writers were registered from foreign newspapers. The press committee of the Congress reserved 400 rooms at one of Chicago's downtown hotels to make certain that all visiting newspapermen were taken care of. Most of these rooms were occupied.

Covering this meeting of 1,000,000 church people presented one of the most difficult tasks ever attempted. Every large city in this country sent hundreds of delegates to the Congress and most of the visiting newspaper writers were assigned to cover the activities of their home town group, leaving the general story to the press associations, which were equipped with special staffs and impressive wire facilities. Commercial telegraph companies placed a staff of 40 telegraph operators at each of the larger sessions of the Congress and in addition handled thousands of words from their main and regular branch offices.

At the general meetings in Soldiers' Field, where on the first day approximately 400,000 people assembled, newspaper writers were assigned to positions in two large press boxes, built almost directly in front of the 125-foot altar before which the solemn pontifical high masses were celebrated. At the dozen or more sectional meetings, which were held simultaneously on the afternoon of each day, smaller groups of correspondents were accommodated.

Everywhere were telephones and telegraph instruments, transmitting the news and feature stories by wire to a multitude of newspaper offices.

But this mammoth gathering of people gave the newspaper photographers one of the most unusual opportunities of the century for working with vast masses of people. From every point of vantage in the huge stadium, photographers were posted with cameras. Some of their "shots" were of such exceptional character that one Chicago newspaper ran a "souvenir supplement," rolled it in wrappers, and sold it on specially constructed stands throughout the loop district at five cents a copy. The supplements were extensively filled with pictures of the great throng in Soldiers' Field.

Because of the terrific traffic congestion between the Stadium and the newspaper offices, photographers found extreme difficulty in getting their plates back in time for editions. To meet this emergency one Chicago newspaper chartered a speed boat, anchored it in Lake Michigan off the Stadium site, and rushed the plates up the lake shore, down the Chicago River, and into the back door of its engraving room. This paper scored a beat of nearly three hours on one of the most brilliant pictures of the crowd.

Keehn Sails for Abroad

Roy D. Keehn, president of the Hearst publications in Chicago, sailed June 19 from New York for Paris. Mr. Keehn will spend two months in Europe with his wife, touring France, Germany, Switzerland and England.

SCOTFORD RE-ELECTED

Jackson Citizen-Patriot M.E. Again President of Michigan A.P. Members

George W. Scotford, who recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the Jackson (Mich.) Citizen-Patriot, was elected president of the Michigan Associated Press Editorial Association at the annual meeting of that organization held at Adrian last Sunday. Mr. Scotford is now managing editor of the Citizen-Patriot.

A. L. Miller, publisher of the Battle Creek News and Enquirer, was re-elected vice-president, and David J. Wilkie, A. P. correspondent in Detroit, was re-elected secretary. Arthur R. Treanor, of the Saginaw News-Courier, was re-elected to represent Michigan on the central division advisory board. Members named to act on the state advisory board were Louis Weill, of the Port Huron Times Herald; G. H. D. Sutherland, Ludington News; and A. C. French, Monroe Evening News.

The meeting next year will be held in Jackson.

Dillon Joins B. B. B. Staff

E. N. Dillon, formerly with the Los Angeles Examiner, recently with the Bronx Home News, New York, has joined the National Better Business Bureau to assist in financial investigations, succeeding H. J. Donnelly.

Seek to Affirm Medill Trustees

Citing the death of the original trustees of the estate of Joseph Medill, who died in 1899, a friendly suit has been instituted in Chicago by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson to obtain court recognition and sanction for the present acting trustees—Mrs. Patterson, Katherine McCormick, Orrin Carter, and Joseph Medill Patterson.

Boston Circulators Hold Banquet

Members of the Boston Evening American's circulation department staff held a get-together banquet at the Hotel Westminster, Boston, last week. George E. Curren, a member of Gov. Alvan T. Fuller's council, officiated as master of ceremonies. Entertainment was furnished by numerous acts from various Boston theatres.

Picture Editor to Wed

Morris Gilbert, picture editor of the New York Herald Tribune, is to be married on June 30, to Miss Grace Ross, of New York City, at St. Luke's Chapel.

STATE TO ADVERTISE

Premier of New South Wales Offers £10,000 from State Funds

The Labor Premier of New South Wales, Australia, Hon. J. T. Lang, is to make available the sum of £10,000 for advertising to "boost Australian goods." The amount is to be conditional on the manufacturers and vendors of Australian goods spending a like amount over and above their usual expenditure for the same purpose. Mr. Lang believes that Australia imports too much from England and the United States.

Labor Premier Lang is so biased against imports that he is prepared to give Australian goods a 30 per cent preference over foreign goods and a 20 preference over British goods. He is the first Premier to advocate state advertising, it was declared.

Reece Publishing Florida Paper

N. E. Reece, former editor and publisher of the Pratt (Kan.) Daily Tribune, is now editor and publisher of Arcadia (Fla.) Arcadian, a semi-weekly. He went to Florida last fall after disposing of his interests in the Tribune several months before.

St. Regis Earnings Announced

Net income of the St. Regis Paper Company for 1925 was $1,041,056, equal, after preferred dividends to $2.40 a share earned on common stock. This compares with $1,054,799, or $3 a share in 1924. Gross revenue for the year was $9,175,651 and operating income was $1,401,409.

Recommended for Federal Post

Anthony Czarnecki of the editorial staff of the Chicago Daily News has been recommended to President Coolidge by Senator Charles Deneen of Illinois for the post of customs collector at Chicago. Mr. Czarnecki was formerly an election commissioner.

Delaware Paper Mill Sold

The Nonantum paper mill, at Newar Del., which has been owned by Curt Brothers and Curtis Brothers Compar for 80 years, has been sold to Herbe W. Mason of Arden, Del. It will l operated as heretofore and will retain i present name.

Sales Forum for Business Staff

A forum in which present and pa methods of salesmanship were compare and discussed was held recently by th advertising department of the India apolis Star with Roy L. Johnson, ma ager of the Richman Bros. Company, a the speaker.

Flushing Daily Installs New Press

The Flushing (N. Y.) Evening Journ is now printing from its new Goss hig speed low-construction "unit-type" qua ruple press. It is equipped with tw folders, and is 28 feet in length.

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

have you been following the remarkable growth
of the Detroit Times

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

120 West 42nd Street New York

Take a Leaf from the Book of Other Advertisers

More than 85% of the National Advertising in the Miami Trading Zone is being placed in the Miami Herald.

Comparative figures, based on the past nine months (Sept., 1925, to May, 1926, inclusive) are as follows:

The Herald: 200,825½ Lines
Second Paper: 108,332½ Lines
Herald Lead: 92,493 Lines
—or more than 85%

The Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher.

THE TELEGRAM

now has the largest paid circulation in

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday

guaranteed.

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

Represented Nationally by

The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

CHARLES L. HOLMES DEAD

Stockholder and President of Waterbury Republican and American Dies

Charles Leyland Holmes, 63, president of the Waterbury (Conn.) Republican and American, died suddenly, June 16, while fishing in a pond on his country estate in Middlebury, Conn.

Mr. Holmes became interested as an investor in the Waterbury Republican in 1902, and steadily increased his holdings in that newspaper, until, at the time of his death, he was the largest minority stockholder of the combined newspaper property publishing the American and Republican.

On graduating from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1888, Mr. Holmes went to Appleton, Wis., where he assisted in starting and operating the first commercial sulphite wood pulp mill in the United States.

He had been president of the Waterbury dailies for 25 years.

London Times Leader Writer Dead

William Stebbing, 90, for 30 years on the staff of the London Times as leader writer and second to the late T. J. Delane in the editorship, is dead, according to news reaching this country.

W. E. Boselly, of World Staff, Dies

William E. Boselly, 70, superintendent of the composing room of the New York World, died June 21, at his home in Brooklyn. He had served the World since 1890. In 1899 Mr. Boselly was president of Typographical Union No. 6. He was one of the 258 members present at the World's Quarter Century Association meeting held May 10.

N. Y. Sun Baseball Team Organized

The New York Sun has organized a baseball club. Suits have been ordered and several games are already scheduled. Harry Schoen, of the engraving department, is manager and Robert Grant, of the pressroom, is captain.

300 Compete in Daily's Race

Three hundred runners competed in the eighth annual four-mile road race of the Chicago Daily News in Lincoln Park, June 19. Winners were awarded medals and other trophies by the Daily News.

Italy Bans News Agencies

Abolition of local news agencies operating in Rome and elsewhere in Italy on a commercial basis has been ordered by the government.

Capt. Patterson in Alumni Parade

Capt. Joseph Medill Patterson, New York Daily News, and Chicago Tribune, paraded with the Class of 1891 at class day exercises held by Yale in New Haven this week.

Higham Prescribes U. S. Energy

Sir Charles Higham, British advertising agent, in a speech at the Old Colony Club in London, June 23, suggested that if grumbling executives of British firms would spend six weeks in the United States they would come back "re-energized and electrified." He urged English business men to adopt American selling methods.

features SINCE 1899

WEEKLY

Camera News, Fashion, Feature and Children's Pages; House Plans; Automobile Cartoon.

3-A-WEEK

Hints for the Motorist; Handicraft in the Home.

DAILY

Cross-word Puzzles, Dots and Cut-outs; Radio; Noozie; Fashion hints; 1 col. Comics; Portraits; Gillilan's Letters; News-Maps, also The Ad-route (house organ).

The International Syndicate

Baltimore, Md.

NEW YORK TIMES MAN IS DEAD IN LONDON

Leonard R. Holme Was Connected with New York Newspaper in U. S. and England for 21 Years—Was 53 Years Old

Leonard R. Holme, 53, member of the London staff of the New York Times, died in London, June 17.

Mr. Holme was born at Brighton, England. He was the son of the Rev. Robert Holme, vicar of Crewkerne, and of Elizabeth Lyon Holme. After attending the Crewkerne grammar school he entered the famous Westminster school in London as Queen's scholar and went thence to Jesus College, Cambridge, as a Rustat scholar. He was graduated from Cambridge with history honors and was a Hulsean Prize man. After graduation he went to Canada, where he became Professor of History at Bishop's College in the Province of Quebec.

Later Mr. Holme entered the newspaper field, becoming city editor of the Montreal Gazette. From Montreal he went to New York, where on January 1, 1905, he joined the staff of the New York Times. He remained there ten years, covering some of the most important news stories in that period. Returning to London after the outbreak of the World War, he joined the New York Times London staff in 1917 and remained actively at work there until his death.

THOMAS P. COATES

Chicago Herald and Examiner Promotion Manager Drowned

Thomas P. Coates, manager of the promotion department of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, and for 27 years in the Hearst service, was drowned June 14, when he fell into the canal at 119th street and Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago.

Mr. Coates, although a newspaper veteran, was only 45 years old. When only 16 he joined the United States army, by lying about his age, and served in Cuba in the Spanish-American war. His first newspaper work was done in 1898 in the Philippines, where he served as a war correspondent in that group which included Richard Harding Davis and Richard Henry Little.

For nine years he remained there, then returned to Chicago, his birthplace, and joined the staff of what was then the Examiner, now the Herald and Examiner.

Chicago Agency Executive Dies

Murray Springer, 52, vice president of the Crosby-Chicago advertising agency, 29 Quincy street, Chicago, died suddenly June 2 at his home. He had been in the advertising business in Chicago for the past 20 years, having come from Lisbon, O., in 1902.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.

Complete Feature Service

Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original Most Artistic and Finest

blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.

Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President

373 4th Ave., New York City

Writers Narrowly Escape Drowning

Walter Schramm, news editor of the Toledo Blade, Helen Murphy, of the Blade staff, and V. K. Richards, the Blade's dramatic critic, narrowly escaped death when a squall overturned their canoe in the Maumee River, Toledo. Schramm and Richards together took Miss Murphy to shore.

A. P. Man Dies in Sofia

Svetozar Tonjoroff, 56, Associated Press correspondent at Sofia, Bulgaria, and former Boston and New York newspaperman, died in Sofia last week. He was night editor of the Boston Advertiser from 1897 to 1901, and also had been employed on the editorial staffs of the New York Press, New York Evening World, New York Mail, Providence Journal and Worcester (Mass.) Spy. He was an associate editor of Munsey's Magazine, and a contributor to the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies' Home Journal and other magazines.

Obituary

FRANCIS M. MORRIS, retired pastor and father of Charles E. Morris, editorial writer for the News League of Dayton, Ohio, and Edgar L. Morris, general manager of the Springfield (O.) News, died recently at Wapakoneta, O.

GEORGE SANBORN, 84, pioneer editor of the Fonda (Ia.) Times and one of the oldest residents of Fonda, died June 13. He edited the Times from 1879 to 1901 and was widely known in historical circles of Iowa for his history of Pocahontas county, a 900-page book.

MRS. NELLIE E. HOLDEN, wife of William H. Holden, Boston editorial and political writer, died at the Deaconess Hospital, Brookline, Mass., last week.

JEFFREY BLACK, 32, only son of Mrs. W. B. Bonfils, the "Annie Laurie" of the San Francisco Examiner (also Winifred Black of the King Features Syndicate) was drowned at Carmel Beach, Cal., June 19. Black was swimming with Paul Phelan of the Examiner and Sidney Robertson, a former reporter, and was swept out to sea.

"SKIPPY"

By PERCY CROSBY

The best juvenile comic strip. Combines great humor, excellent drawing and emphatic adult appeal.

A feature you can't afford to miss

JOHNSON FEATURES, Inc.

1819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Publishing Company Incorporated

The Newton (Mass.) Progress Publishing Company, Inc., of Newton, has been granted a charter to do a printing and publishing business under the laws of Massachusetts. The capital is $25,000 and the incorporators are Rupert C. Thompson, Clifton C. Mowry, Thomas L. Goodwin and James P. Gallagher, all of Newton, and Clement Hernandez, of Waltham.

Among The Newspapers Publishing

Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series

Chicago Journal — Philadelphia Sun
Detroit News — Buffalo Times
Toledo Blade — Louisville Courier J'l
Omaha Bee — Oakland Post Enquirer
Peoria Star Journal — Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript

Why Not Join This List of Papers

Wire for Terms and Territory

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE
Covering the World

NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief — Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

RADIO

PROGRAMS NEWS NOTES FEATURES

Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers

Send for samples and prices

AUDIO SERVICE

326 West Madison St. Chicago

MR. FIXIT AIDS PUBLIC IN CIVIC MATTERS

Dallas Journal Furnishes Connecting Link Between Citizens and City Officials—His Complaint Column Popular

The man of the hour in Dallas is Mr. Fixit of the Dallas Journal. Mr. Fixit presides over a column designed primarily as a connecting link between the citizenship and its public officials.

Frequent complaints from readers of the Journal regarding minor civic matters convinced the editor that he could render city-wide service by publishing such complaints, suggesting the remedy and inviting others to report apparent faults in the public service.

The theory that nearly every person has something to kick about and is willing to kick publicly if his identity is not revealed was abundantly justified by the immediate and voluminous response.

From the two or three questions contained in Mr. Fixit's debut about ten weeks ago the feature has grown until it provokes an average of 20 complaints a day touching nearly every function of city and county service and even extending to neighborly relations.

It would bankrupt a city of 250,000 inhabitants, covering 36 square miles, to employ enough men to discover every bad hole in the streets, every weed-grown lot, every stagnant pool, every noisy dog-pack, but there is some individual citizen who known about and is inconvenienced by each of these specific cases. He reports them to Mr. Fixit.

The city officials get the complaint immediately. They are glad to have it and in nine cases out of ten they give it immediate attention. If results don't show the original complainant is asked to make a complete report to Mr. Fixit.

Every complainant is required to sig his name, give his address and the exac location of his complaint, but he is as sured his name will not be publishe Having that assurance he does not hesi tate to make his complaint; first, be cause he likes to see something he ha said or written get into the newspape and, second, because he feels he is al most certain to get relief.

The Journal is devoting to the featur an average of a column a day on fou days of the week and on the two othe days it attempts to use up the accumul tion sometimes as much as six column

Supplies and Equipment

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work, also Goss Sextuple.

HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple, Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.

DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.

Available For Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Block

Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS

ALL TYPES

SEND for LIST

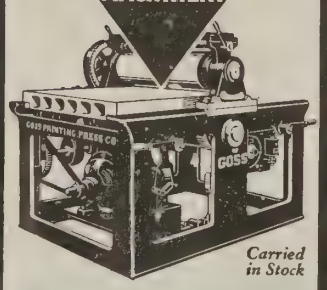
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

Fight hot-weather fatigue

Fresh, cool, invigorating air — supplied by Sturtevant Ventilating Fans — would keep your men working at top-notch efficiency during the hot summer months.

B. F. STURTEVANT CO.
Hyde Park, Boston, Mass.
Branch Offices in Principal Cities

Sturtevant REG U.S. PAT. OFF.
Ventilating Fans



Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

GOSS STEREOTYPING MACHINERY

Carried in Stock

Some outstanding and exclusive features of The Goss Combination Wet and Dry Matrix Roller: Patented stretching roller produces dry mats without a wrinkle. Both ends of cylinder are set at same time. Heavy cast-iron cylinders with forged steel shafts. Extra heavy bed—no racks—large enough to run chase with columns crosswise. Rolls wet mats in 11¼ seconds; dry mats in 22½ seconds. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT SLUG FEEDER

Eliminates the Metal Furnace
Printers Manufacturing Co.
1109-17 Transportation Bldg.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

FOR BETTER PRINTING use
Herrick Inks
Cost more. Worth it.

No substitutes. Made from the best materials.
Specializing to requirements of each pressroom.

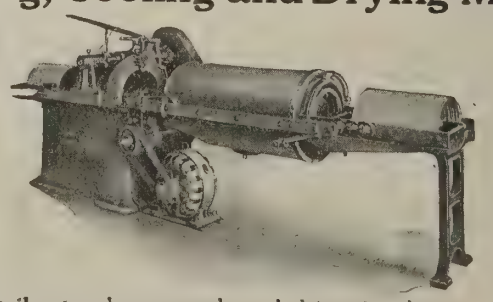
Ask the Publishers who use them.

WM. C. HERRICK INK CO., INC.
401 West 33rd Street
New York City
Factory: Rutherford, N. J.

Newspaper Conveyors

take the papers in a steady stream, as fast as the presses can deliver them, up, overhead, around corners, through a ceiling or a wall to wherever they're wanted for mailing or delivery. Eliminating waste and delay by their speedy, dependable operation they are profitable equipment for papers large or small. Newspaper plants from London to Tokio have been using them for years.

Let us tell you how you can speed deliveries from your presses.



The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Mfrs. of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN
CUTLER-HAMMER

Publishers!

Under "Equipment For Sale" on the Classified page are listed bargains in used Equipment that may mean a considerable saving if you are in the market for any of the particular items advertised.

The "Editor & Publisher" is your market place. Buy Used or New Equipment advertised in its columns.

Hoe Automatic Curved Plate Finishing, Cooling and Drying Machine

Trims, tail-cuts, shaves, cools and dries six plates a minute.

R. HOE & CO., INC. 504-520 Grand St., New York City
7 South Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILL. also at DUNELLEN, N. J. 7 Water Street BOSTON, MASS.

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

White space charge at same rate per line per insertion as earned by frequency of insertion. Special rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. The Editor & Publisher reserves the right to classify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want more business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 341 Broadway, New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

Truly Bargains in Desirable Weekly Papers—We have recently listed desirable weekly papers with and without job plants. They nearly all occupy exclusive fields; have good circulations and earning handsome dividends. J. B. Shale, Times Building, New York.

Western Pennsylvania Weekly, only paper in county seat of large county. Profitable business and splendid equipment. Available for $21,500 on terms. Prop. 1450x. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Newspapers for Sale

Exclusive Afternoon Field, Kansas county seat 5,000; A. P.; offered for quick turn at slightly less than four times annual return to owners. Financial references first letter. A-590, Editor & Publisher.

Newspaper for Sale—Daily and Sunday, New England, 100,000 population. Plant in fine condition. Price reduced $100,000 by insurance on life of late owner; $50,000 to $75,000 cash required. About $250,000 annual business. Inquiries confidential. Address A-599, Editor & Publisher.

CIRCULATION

Premiums

Dish Dryers Appeal to every woman. They save 30 minutes after each meal. Price 60c. each. Order a sample now. Thirty-seven newspapers offering them. The Steel Co., Box 203, Palmyra, N. J.

Promotion

Circulation—When quick, additional circulation coverage becomes necessary, remember that our twenty years in this one line of endeavor is your proof against experimenting. Write or wire Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell Block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Circulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Centre Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesmanship Club Campaigns.

Real Tangible Results for the leading daily, city of 150,000. Production 2,100 subscriptions from 1st of June at a net saving of 60 per cent of the usual promotion cost. Let us produce circulation for you with small dinner sets. The Albright China Co., Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

Passaic Daily News and Perth Amboy Record are the new customers this week. For samples of a live, up-to-date service, write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Classified Advertising Promotion Manager—To assume full charge of classified promotion department of two artists and copywriters. Department must turn out new copy daily, prepare broadsides, blotters, sales letters and plan campaigns and assist a large sales force to increase production by merchandising promotion to advertisers. This post is considered by promotion men as one of the best opportunities to use one's talents. If you have the qualifications to manage, are a self-starter, understand classified advertising in its entirety, know how to write copy, know typography and layouts, and having these qualifications are one who works, write for appointment, stating age, past experience in the classified field, salary desired. If you are the man, you will sell yourself by your letter. Box A-604, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager, experienced, wanted; capable of increasing three pages daily, seven pages Sunday, in the largest morning and afternoon papers in the State, with the only Sunday paper in the city of 144,000. Southwest. Submit full qualifications in first letter; age, salary, etc. A-594, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Man, 45 years old, 20 years' experience in all phases of newspaper advertising work. Best references as to character and ability. Salary, $40 week to start. Address Ad Man, 214 Perrin avenue, Lafayette, Ind.

Advertising Manager and Newspaper Executive wishes connection June 28. Twelve years' experience—retail accounts, manager national, manager special features, statistical and circulars promotion preferred; age forty; married; Christian; arts graduate. Prefer growing suburban paper. A-593, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager with successful record on both metropolitan and medium sized dailies; capable of materially increasing linage in a publication needing a man of proven ability. Have the personality, initiative and experience necessary to organize and develop all classes of newspaper advertising. Only interested in permanent connection where results will be rewarded. Write for my record and interview. A-597, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Assistant to Publisher—A man fortified with years of experience, now employed as advertising director, is seeking above position. Can satisfy interested publisher concerning ability, energy, and integrity. Trained in the fundamentals governing the administration of the successful newspaper. Address A-572. Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, successful record, young, now employed, is seeking connection with larger paper. Familiar with ABC and all phases of circulation work; has experience from ground up. South or Southwest preferred. A-580, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager who can make you proud of your next A. B. C. audit. A hustler who knows how. References and proven record. What have you? Address Circulation Manager, 434½ 19th avenue, Moline, Illinois.

Circulation Manager—At present employed. Married, thirty-three years old, efficient and reliable. Thoroughly understand organizing department, and can produce results at minimum cost. Eastern publication preferred. References and reason for change gladly furnished. At liberty July 15th. Address A-596, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager—Have had vast experience in constructive circulation building, both city and country. Fully conversant with A. B. C. records. Employed at present, but wishes to make change. Age, 31, married. Can furnish best of references. A-595, Editor & Publisher.

City Editor, married, wants to change fields. Consider desk, telegraph or local, or street. Guarantee satisfaction. Must pay $50. Will be available on two weeks' notice. Address A-588, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Advertising Manager, 28 years of age, 8 years' experience on metropolitan newspapers: at present employed in city of over 168,000. Over 25,000 ads gain in 1925, and over 350,000 lines. Present paper second in field, but running neck and neck with leading paper in Classified. If you want a man who can solve your Classified problem and who knows how to train and manage a department, get in touch with me at once. Present paper gaining better than 3,000 ads per month over 1925. Have managed Classified Departments of Accounting and Collection to the satisfaction of two publishers. Prefer Eastern or Middle Western newspaper in city over 100,000. Best of references. Will mail copies of promotion used on gains made during 1925 and 1926 to interested parties. A-601, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager—Healthy, vigorous, neat and refined appearance, possessed with energy and ability to sell and train a staff to sell, now employed, desires a change. Last year's record over 300,000 lines gain. A-556, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Advertising Manager; four years' experience on papers in cities of 100,000; now employed as Sales Manager of advertising lines, but wish to return to newspaper field; have good record for linage increase on previous publications. A-581, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Composing Room Superintendent wishes position where efficiency and ability are desired. Fourteen years in charge of one plant, now in charge of composing room of morning and afternoon paper. Prefer to go South on morning paper, but intend making a change, and would like to hear from manager or publisher desiring a reliable, permanent man. Can give reference. A-598, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial—Do you need City News, Managing or Feature Editor? Not Unemployed. Credentials that will satisfy; age 34, married; 10 years' desk experience, university education; now executive in big organization; ask $60 to $75 per week and can earn it. Write A-578, Editor & Publisher.

Editor—16 years' experience with first class newspaper, wants position as managing, assistant managing or city editor, afternoon paper city 200,000 or less. Married, 34, hard, fast, accurate worker. Reliable. Not floater. Wants something permanent. Available now because of sale. Excellent references. A-602, Editor & Publisher.

Managing, City, Telegraph Editor—Aggressive, hard worker, seeks connection on daily, town 20,000-35,000 population. Ten years' experience. Address, A-603, care Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Four years managing editor Staten Island Advance; two years city editor, Camden, N. J., Courier; four years, City Hall reporter Philadelphia Evening Ledger, and three years City Hall reporter and political writer Philadelphia Record, seeks managing or city editor post on afternoon daily in city of 40,000 to 200,000 population. Best of references from owners or executives of all papers. Address St. John McClean, Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Managing Editor or News Editor—Must make change because of wife's health, 35 years old with record of uncommon achievements in daily field. Desires city under 100,000 where there is opportunity to build downtrodden paper; 15 years' experience. Address A-528, Editor & Publisher.

Motion Picture Critic wishes to syndicate criticisms and news being written in spare time for semi-monthly organization paper. Style is "free-and-easy," semi-humorous. Excellent service for smaller publications desiring this type news at modest rates. Beaumont, Post Office Box 48, Station O, New York City.

Newspaper Executive, practically trained in all departments of newspaper making, provincial and metropolitan, is available for immediate connection, where proven constructive ability, seasoned experience and pleasing personality will find permanency and congenial environment. Formerly business manager prominent New York City daily. Recently, a Hearst business executive. Excellent references. Consider any location. A-574. Editor & Publisher.

News Editor, city, telegraph. Hard worker seeks connection with middle-west daily. Address A-557. Editor & Publisher.

News Editor—Experienced newspaper man, employed in responsible position on editorial staff of metropolitan newspaper, desires executive place on smaller daily. Am 28, university graduate, and have spent the last 10 years in active newspaper work. Thoroughly familiar with all branches of editorial department, including make-up. A-605, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Two years' experience reporting and rewrite, seeks position on daily or weekly. A-606, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Duplex Tubular Printing Press, 16-page, for sale. Due to purchase of Journal by Sun, this fine machine will be released about July 10. Prints modern 8-column paper any size up to 16 pages, including 14 pages. In perfect condition. Specimens of work sent. Also other newspaper machinery, including Hoe Saw & Trimmer, Hoe Mat Rolling Machine now used on dry mats, Proof Presses, etc. For prices and terms, address Lewiston Daily Sun, Lewiston, Me.

Goss Comet and Duplex Flat-bed Presses for immediate delivery. Good condition guaranteed. Also several good bargains in stereotype presses and machinery. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Hoe Dry Mat Roller, new only one year ago. Alternating current motor, 40 seconds travel. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Four Rebuilt Model 5 Linotypes for sale at bargain prices; equipped with gas metal pots and individual electric motors. Register Publishing Co., Danville, Va.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Linotypes, Intertypes, Ludlows—8 machines, 3 complete Ludlow equipments; 4 Thompson type casters, large stock of foundry type. Peckham Machinery Co., 1328 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Printing Plant for sale, consisting of one Linotype machine Model 14; 3 Linotype machines, Model 8; 8 Linotype machines (rebuilt), Model 5; 3 Intertype machines. One 32-page Hoe Quad 4 plate wide press. The above complete, with motors and the highest type of electrical installation, conveniences and fixtures; about 9,000 feet of floor space on two floors, premises having two entrances. Lease runs for five years from May, 1926. Price complete and clear, $72,500. Plant can be seen at 5 Crosby street or 22 Howard street, New York, between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. any weekday.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Type Foundry Equipment and Stock—Sold on account owner's death. Large stock of best metal type, with 4 machines, $15,000. Peckham Machinery Co., 1328 Broadway, N. Y.

Two 10x15 and Two 12x18 Job Presses for sale, including Miller feeders, in first-class condition. The Johnston Tinfoil & Metal Co., 6106 So. Broadway, St. Louis, Mo.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Web Presses, Flat Bed—Goss, 4—8 page, now running, $2,300.00; Duplex double drive, 4, 6, 8-pages, motor, $4,400.00. Erected your plant by Duplex Press expert. Peckham Machinery Co., 1328 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Web Presses, Stereotype—Goss Straight line, 24-page; Hoe, late design, 32-page; Potter, 16-page; Erected your plant at special prices, to save removing and storage. Peckham Machinery Co., 1328 Broadway, N. Y. City.

PERSONAL

Desire Address of John Littmer, press expert. Answer through these columns.

FOR SALE

Florida bi-weekly newspaper with job plant. City has 12,000 population, county seat. Circulation, 3,000; advertising rate, 50 cents an inch. Weekly revenue, $500 for newspaper. Job plant does $15,000 annually. Price for both, $25,000. Terms to suit.

PALMER, De WITT & PALMER

Newspaper Properties

350 Madison Ave., NEW YORK

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON

Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT

Reporters

Copy readers

Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

WITH World War veterans already looking forward to the Legion convention in Paris in 1927, the Los Angeles Times is launching a special circulation campaign to be participated in by members of the Legion, and with special inducements offered to them. The campaign will give many former soldiers a chance to earn their way to Paris. Endorsement of the Times' plan has been given by the county council of the American Legion, and is being given wide publicity by the Times. The same idea should be readily adaptable to the circulation department of any newspaper.—HAROLD J. ASHE.

A page of "Thrift Items for Saturday Night Shoppers" is run each Saturday in the Marion (O.) Star. The page is made up of uniform 2x5 advertisements, the page being sold for a three months' run each period with the advertisers already on the page having preference for renewal of the space they desire. The plan has been a good puller for the Saturday evening issue.— B. A. T.

Many more individuals and firms would purchase and display the American flag on holidays if the flag dealers and bunting people were a little more aggressive in their advertising. These local merchants should prove a fertile field for an advertising solicitor prior to July 4th. —C. M. L.

An advertising page known as the A B C Special is published occasionally in Topeka this Week, a magazine issued weekly at Topeka, Kans., and devoted to the interests of that city. This page may be worked out in a number of ways but carrying out the general plan makes it attractive and catchy in appearance while a large amount of advertising may be used in a small space. This general plan is to let each lettter of the alphabet represent a business firm whose name begins with the letter. Each advertising line begins with that letter and the page is thus blocked into 26 advertising spaces with one firm taking a line between each block. One block or one twenty-sixth of the advertising represents the plan as follows:

UP-TO-DATE—

Men wear
iddleton's (734 Kansas)
ade to easure suits

* * Yellow Cabs—Insured * *

In this case the Yellow Cab Company took the space between the blocks as well as four of the letters. This advertising between the blocks is particularly valuable to concerns that do business with the general public.—CAROL JOYCE, Topeka, Kan.

As it is becoming more and more the custom for persons to store valuables before taking long auto tours or vacations, a group of stores companies may be grouped at this season of the year, for making an appeal to those taking vacations and wishing to protect their property in the meantime.—C. M. L.

Look through your ad service and find a few four-leaf clover mats and, if possible, the mate of a horseshoe. Your art department or engraver can make them also. Then, lay out a double truck using the art. Make spaces for 15 merchants and sign them up for a 10-week contract for "Lucky Wednesday Sales." It's easy to write tie-ups. —DAVIS O. VANDIVIER.

ST. LOUIS WOMEN WIN

Toledo Trophy Awarded for Most Constructive Ad Work During Year

The Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis was awarded the Toledo Trophy Cup for having done the most during the past year to advance breadth in advertising and for having made the most constructive contribution to the art.

Nineteen clubs competed for the trophy, which is offered annually by the Women's Advertising Club of Toledo, Ohio.

The cup was presented to the St. Louis Club at a Tuesday noon luncheon by Miss Ethel B. Scully, the only woman on the executive committee of the A. A. C. W.

Whitehead Directing Perry Chief

G. E. Whitehead, formerly advertising manager of the Newton (Ia.) Daily News has been named resident publisher of the Perry (Ia.) Daily Chief, and has taken over active management of that paper.

Most states have somewhere within their borders one or more towns of communities that are operating on a cooperative or possibly communistic plan—like the communist village of New Llano in Louisiana, for instance. Such towns are generally found to be without police men or jails, without loafers or deadbeats, without lawyers, and with neither wealth nor poverty.—R. LEVIN.

A great many church societies, fraternal organizations and other groups have "press committees," "publicity chairmen," and various others, charged with the duties of getting news of the organization and advance notices of meetings to the newspapers. Most of those so appointed know nothing of what the newspaper want. Prepare a sheet or a booklet for their instruction and see that each one gets a copy. Cover just the things they ought to know, make it interesting and not too dictatorial. It will save much time for copy readers.—GUY M. CHASE

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

PRIZE contests of all kinds are now the fad in all newspapers. One Iowa newspaper is offering prizes from $5 to $50 each for photographs of the oldest vehicles in that state; old costumes which were in vogue, 25 to 50 years ago, action pictures, animal photographs and the like. A great deal of interest has been aroused by this contest. Why not offer a season prize for the best picture taken on a motor trip or camping trip, the photograph of the largest fish caught in your state during a certain period, etc.? Many interesting photographs could be obtained in this manner.—GEORGE SMIDAL.

Some town and village laws of New York State, and doubtless of other states too, require the posting of legal notices, in addition to publication. Usually such posting is made on telephone poles and trees with the usual unsightliness. Bulletin boards, erected and maintained by your paper (and that fact painted on the board) will help rid your community of eyescores. Besides it will be a good-will builder for you.—G. HARRIS DANZBERGER, Hartsdale, N. Y.

"My Favorite Summer Pastime"—a contest for girls 17 or over, with prizes of $5 for each letter published, 300 words or less, and a weekly prize of $10 for the best, is run by the Chicago Daily News. Accompanying snapshots are invited. How they put in Saturday half-holidays and hours saved by daylight schedules is the theme.—T. E. R. Chicago.

What's the crop outlook in your county and state for this year. Your Farm Bureau agent or Grange officials will doubtless tell you, and Extension Service workers will furnish you with facts on the natural wealth from the soil that will likely be produced. And why not a state survey of your crop forecast, with the state's Secretary of Agriculture aiding?—WILLIAM A. MILLEN, The News, Burlington, Vt.

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service

Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.

4 page ready-print color comics.

Write for samples and rates

NEA SERVICE INC.
1200 W. 3RD. STREET.
CLEVELAND, OHIO

LET YOUR READERS MEET

"America's Best Known Couple"

The Married Life of Helen and Warren

By Mable Herbert Urner

will fill your Sunday fiction bill

The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

How To Play GOLF

By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS
Illustrated

For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS

International News Service

"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"

63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.

Columbian Mutual Tower
MEMPHIS, TENN.

Let this organization with years of careful study and a personnel of experienced representatives secure for your newspaper the advertising appropriation of industrial plants, manufacturers, wholesalers and others in your city who are now spending their money for other forms of advertising.

Write us details

Briggs' Proven Feature Pages Will Solve Your Problem

BY UNITED PRESS

AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK

UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

"Soch a Life"

By J. L. LEIBSON

A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in

One Thousand Word Stories

Illustrated by the well known artist

ALBERT LEVERING

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York

The world takes what NEW ENGLAND makes~

Advertise to the people who supply the world's machinery~

WORCESTER'S looms, Taunton's silverware, Haverhill's textiles, Fall River's cotton goods, the world-famous machine tools of Providence, and so on down the line, jewelry, machinery, clothing, fire-arms, and hundreds of other items—all manufactured in New England and used throughout the world.

Good workmanship and pride in maintaining a standard quality has created the demand for these products and this demand has kept New England's towns and cities prosperous.

That is why New England is such a good market for the National Advertiser and the daily papers listed here will help you reach this most concentrated populous area.

The dailies listed below are your key to one of the biggest markets in the United States. National Advertisers cannot afford to ignore it.

MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,852,356

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Attleboro Sun .....(E)	5,845	.03	.03
Boston Globe .....(M&S)	287,590	.50	.50
Boston Globe .....(S)	332,282	.55	.55
*Boston Transcript ....(E)	38,807	.20	.20
Boston Post .....(M)	377,443	.60	.60
Boston Post .....(S)	349,596	.55	.55
Fall River Herald-News (S)	23,150	.06	.06
Fitchburg Sentinel ...(E)	11,828	.06	.045
*Haverhill Gazette ....(E)	15,729	.065	.05
††Lynn Item .....(E)	16,699	.065	.05
††Lowell Courier-Citizen and Evening Leader ..(M&E)	21,918	.07	.07
New Bedford Standard Mercury (M&E)	33,321	.10	.10
New Bedford Sunday Standard (S)	28,806	.10	.10
North Adams Transcript (E)	9,918	.0425	.035
††Pittsfield Eagle .....(E)	17,011	.05	.05
Salem News .....(E)	21,398	.09	.07
††Taunton Gazette ....(E)	9,279	.05	.04
Worcester Telegram-Gazette (M&E)	92,314	.26	.23
Worcester Sunday Telegram (S)	51,096	.19	.16

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Population, 443,683

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Concord Monitor-Patroit (E)	5,215	.0375	.025
††Keene Sentinel .....(E)	3,887	.036	.023
Manchester Union Leader (M&E)	29,368	.13	.10

RHODE ISLAND—Population, 604,397

††Newport Daily News..(E)	6,271	.0336	.0293
Pawtucket Times .....(E)	27,849	.07	.07
Providence Bulletin ..(E)	68,315	.18	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(M)	36,416	.11	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(S)	70,518	.18	.18
Providence News ....(E)	29,123	.08	.08
Providence Tribune....(E)	21,961	.10	.09
Westerly Sun .....(E&S)	4,950	.025	.025
Woonsocket Call ....(E)	14,508	.05	.05

VERMONT—Population, 352,428

Barre Times .....(E)	7,112	.03	.025
††Bennington Banner ....(E)	3,144	.0125	.0125
Brattleboro Reformer ..(E)	3,370	.03	.0175
Burlington Free Press (M)	11,234	.05	.05
Rutland Herald .....(M)	11,038	.04	.04
††St. Johnsbury Caledonian-Record (E)	4,055	.03	.0175

CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,380,631

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Bridgeport Post-Telegram (E&M)	42,743	.15	.15
Bridgeport Post .....(S)	21,162	.10	.10
Hartford Courant ....(M)	33,003	.08	.08
Hartford Courant .....(S)	56,274	.11	.11
Hartford Times .....(E)	53,121	.13	.13
Middletown Press ....(E)	8,359	.0325	.03
††New Haven Register (E&S)	46,218	.14	.13
New London Day.....(E)	12,054	.07	.045
††Norwich Bulletin ....(M)	12,724	.07	.05
Norwalk Hour .....(E)	6,107	.04	.04
††South Norwalk Sentinel (E)	5,043	.04	.035
Stamford Advocate ..(E)	10,329	.05	.04

A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, March 31, 1926.

††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

(B) Combination rate Daily Journal and Eve. Bulletin.

Increasing Sales

In the World's Greatest Market

TO sell their products to the people of the great New York market, national advertisers use more space in The Sun than in any other New York evening newspaper.

They prefer The Sun because it has demonstrated its superior ability to create and increase consumer demand—to stimulate sales over the dealer's counter—to produce results in the territory where the largest results are available.

During the first five months of 1926 National Advertisers used 1,754,822 agate lines in The Sun. This was 420,926 lines greater than the volume used in the second New York evening newspaper.

NATIONAL ADVERTISING

New York Evening Newspapers • First Five Months, 1926 and 1925

	1st 5 Months 1926	1st 5 Months 1925	Gain
The Sun	1,754,822	1,586,690	168,132
2nd Evening Paper	1,333,896	1,214,476	119,420
3rd Evening Paper	804,050	706,338	97,712
4th Evening Paper	635,306	537,434	97,872
5th Evening Paper	389,200	369,770	19,430

A distinct advantage of The Sun as a medium for National Advertisers is the fact that it is a home newspaper and reaches all members of the family.

Eighty-two percent of The Sun's circulation is distributed after 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon, when New Yorkers begin to go home with their newspapers. Ninety-seven percent of its readers live in the New York city and suburban trading area.

Among the intelligent, prosperous, able-to-buy people of New York—the people who constitute the best market for the National Advertiser—The Sun has a larger home circulation than any other weekday newspaper.

For twelve consecutive months The Sun has published more Total Advertising than any other New York evening newspaper

The Sun

280 BROADWAY NEW YORK

BOSTON	WASHINGTON, D. C.	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO	LOS ANGELES
Old South Building	Munsey Building	208 So. La Salle St.	First National Bank Building	Van Nuys Building
PARIS	LONDON	BERLIN	ROME	PEKIN
10 Boulevard des Capucines	Trafalgar Building	14 Unter den Linden	25 Piazza Mignanelli Roma 6	8 Hsi La Huntung

THIS ISSUE:—SEMI-ANNUAL CIRCULATION AND RATE SURVEY

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 6 NEW YORK, JULY 3, 1926 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. Possessions $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10 CENTS Per Copy

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

Not to be taken from this room

Tell It to Sweeney—Hessel did, twice!

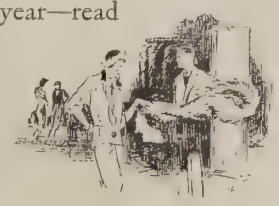
MEET Morris Hessel, master merchandiser. Five years in the retail fur business, out of wholesale; fifteen in this country, out of Austria; and only thirty in this world. Ten years ago, with William Weinberg and Ben Hertz, he started manufacturing fur coats. The firm knew how to make fur coats. They also had certain convictions: that a good reputation exceeded rubies, that their word outweighed gold, that honesty was the only practicable policy in a business where others sometimes assumed it wasn't. The trio is a simple partnership even now. Every check bears three signatures. Each partner bears triple responsibility.

Business from the start was good. The war came and business was better. The 1920 slump came, and business was terrible—but not for Hessel, Weinberg and Hertz. They had airtight contracts made in the spring of 1920 at prevailing prices for fall deliveries. John Wanamaker said it was time to deflate, and did so drastically. John Wanamaker was one of their customers. Morris Hessel observed the situation. A silent young man, one of his characteristic expressions is "It's reasonable." What Wanamaker's was doing seemed reasonable. So H. W. & H. adjusted all their orders to lower fall prices, or cancelled them altogether—although their pelts on hand had been bought at peak prices. They will show you Wanamaker's framed letter of commendation. This step cost $75,000 and wiped out four years surplus.

Morris Hessel was tired of manufacturing when he couldn't control sales, and decided to try retailing. The trio opened a retail store on Sixth Avenue, corner of Thirty-seventh Street, a single frontage with salesrooms one flight down. To distinguish the store from their wholesale business, they called it Wilson's.



They started advertising through a local agency, using various papers. John Glass of The News stopped in one day, early in January 1922 and saw Morris Hessel. Hessel is one of the world's champion long-distance listeners. He thought the News rate too high, but agreed that a low rate paper might not be the best business getter. Glass asked him to test his copy, to ask customers where they saw the advertising.

Hessel tested all Spring, until the season was over. In July, he cancelled his 2500 line contract with The News, paid the short rate, and signed a new contract for the lowest rate he could get. Between August '22 and September '23, Hessel, Weinberg & Hertz used 110,886 agate lines in The News. They drew customers by thousands, and absorbed their entire factory output. Their unit of sale averaged $100, and still does. There are interesting exceptions to this average, however. People in the business sent their friends to Wilson's. Women who knew values came to save money. One actress bought a sable wrap for $10,000. Her friends think it was made for her in Paris. Sounds reasonable!

Hessel, Weinberg & Hertz carried out their usual policy. The slogan of Wilson's was "Truth in Furs." Every price tag tells the name of the actual skin used and the price in plain figures. Every coat is guaranteed against defects in manufacture for one year, and the purchase includes an insurance policy against theft or loss.

The News is proud of this account, because much of Wilson's success came from The News. Morris Hessel will tell you so; 90% of all the store's advertising has gone into The News. On their third contract, between September '23 and April '24, Wilson's used 102,502 lines; on the fourth, between May '24 and February '25—111,044 lines. And last year—read on, to the . . . . .

* * *

SECOND CHAPTER—A year ago, the partners decided to expand. Selling more fur coats than anybody else in New York and working Wilson's to capacity all the time, they needed more room. So they opened a new store, for a better type of business. Thirty-sixth Street, a hundred feet off Fifth Avenue—Selbert's, Ltd. The store is named from a combination of syllables in the partners' names. It was expensively fitted, newly staffed—a Fifth Avenue store throughout. They contracted for hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of new stock.

It was a serious step. "If this flops," said Weinberg, "it's back to shirt-sleeves and the bench for us." So they considered advertising very seriously—where the new business was to come from. They didn't expect it out of The News, and were even afraid to compete with themselves in The News.

They opened last August. Ten newspapers were used, with only "representative" copy used in The News. Forty thousand dollars were spent the first month. Almost as much the second. They checked sales constantly. And found that despite the competition of nine other papers, The News produced the highest quota of sales per dollar spent. So a major share of Selbert's copy has since gone to The News. The Hessel, Weinberg & Hertz contract for both stores, from February '25 to February '26, ran 199,840 lines—and Wilson's closed this season with a volume of more than $900,000. Selbert's reached $800,000 in its first year, with the average unit of sale slightly in excess of $200. The Sweeneys can read all price tags! And if you know any newspaper which has equalled this record for productivity, we'd be much obliged to learn of it.

* * *

THIRD CHAPTER—This outfit won't be satisfied with Thirty-seventh Street forever. If some real estate man has a lease expiring in a year or so on some desirable Fifty-seventh Street store, or on the Avenue near Fifty-seventh Street, we suggest he see Morris Hessel about that time. And when the third shop starts, we know that The News will again produce a record of higher-unit sales.

If at this point we have to tell you why you should Tell It to Sweeney, the average family in New York, through The News—you're hopeless! A million circulation is an inexhaustible market for anything, including your product. The News has more than a million every day. The small page gives advertising more visibility, more reader attention, more effectiveness, less advertising competition—at lower cost. The national rate is now $1.40 per line, lowest per thousand circulation in New York. We usually have a rate increase every Fall. If your Fall schedule isn't in our shop, please get it in as soon as possible. Thank you.

THE NEWS
New York's Picture Newspaper
25 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK
Tribune Tower, Chicago

June Averages
DAILY . . . 1,060,644
SUNDAY . . 1,217,554
These are the largest circulations in America

Modern Press Equipment in the South

NET CIRCULATION YESTERDAY 43,679

This Paper Receives by Direct Wire the Full Associated Press and International News Dispatches

NORFOLK LEDGER-DISPATCH

HOME EDITION

The Weather

Richmond Times-Dispatch

Average Circulation for Week Ending June 19, 1926
Daily - - - - 52,184
Sunday - - - 57,671

Boxer Gets Long Term For Robbery

THE WEATHER

Kentucky's Greatest Newspaper

HERALD-POST

MORNING EDITION

VOL. XCVIII, NO. 186. LOUISVILLE, KY., TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 15, 1926 Price THREE CENTS—On Trains FIVE CENTS

THE PAID CIRCULATION of the Houston Post-Dispatch in Houston territory was 6272 MORE THURSDAY Than It Was One Year Ago

Houston Post-Dispatch

HOUSTON
Population of metropolitan city 863,676.
Greatest Inland Cotton Port.
World's largest cotton compressing point.
Big Oil Refining Point.
Where 17 railroads meet in steamship Zone.

Only Birmingham Newspaper With Full 24-Hour, Seven-Day-A-Week ASSOCIATED PRESS Service

THE BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD

HOME EDITION

THE HOUSTON PRESS

EXCLUSIVE HIGH-SPEED LEASED WIRE SERVICE OF THE UNITED PRESS. WORLD'S GREATEST AFTERNOON PRESS ASSOCIATION.

HOME EDITION

Markets
Today's Stock Prices Complete in Six o'Clock Edition

Jacksonville Journal

CITY EDITION

FORMERLY THE FLORIDA METROPOLIS - FOUNDED 1887

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT

THE PALM BEACH POST

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

TIMES CLASSIFIED ADS

Chattanooga Daily Times

THE WEATHER

For we are Burden Bearers all,
And each should bear his own;

Yet I'll not let my brother fall,
Or struggle on alone.—C. Harrison Riley

Fashion

WINSTON-SALEM JOURNAL

2 CENTS A COPY

SHOWERS

The Charleston Daily Mail

FINAL EDITION

LEASED WIRE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VOLUME LXXXIII. NOT AFRAID TO PRINT THE NEWS CHARLESTON, W. VA., WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 16, 1926 —12 PAGES TODAY'S NEWS TODAY PRICE 5 CENTS

TWO "DRYS" WIN NOMINATIONS IN

Paralytic Stroke Fatal to Princeton Man at Latonia

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY IDEA

USE DRASTIC TACTICS IN VOTE FRAUD PROBE

BECKLEY MEN'S AUTO INJURIES

These newspapers—leaders in the South—are operating or have ordered Scott "Multi-Unit" or "Straight-Unit" newspaper presses, realizing in this modern equipment the greatest speed durability, accessibility and safety.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office & Factory - - - - - - - - - - Plainfield, New Jersey, U. S. A.
New York Office - - - - - - - - - - - - - 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office - - - - - - - - - - - - - 1441 Monadnock Block

Cable Address: WALTSCOTT, NEW YORK

first!

The New York Herald Tribune is first in volume of national advertising lineage in the New York weekday morning field.

The Herald Tribune took first position for the month of March, 1926, and has held this position as well for April and May*

Thus the Herald Tribune has entered its FOURTH CYCLE of SUCCESS.

The FIRST CYCLE came with the successful consolidation of the New York Herald with the New York Tribune.

The SECOND CYCLE appeared when the circulation of the consolidated Herald Tribune continued to show a steady growth—a growth which continues today.

The THIRD CYCLE was evident in 1925, when the Herald Tribune gained 3,218,864 lines of advertising — over 1,000,000 lines more than the combined gain of the Times, American and World.

The dominant position of the Herald Tribune in the New York morning field, as proved by its leadership in volume of national advertising published on weekdays, makes the Herald Tribune the logical keystone for any campaign designed to reach the influential people of New York, the world's greatest market.

*Figures compiled by N. Y. Eve. Post Statistical Dept.

NEW YORK

Herald Tribune

FIRST TO LAST — THE TRUTH: NEWS ~ EDITORIALS ~ ADVERTISEMENTS

CHICAGO Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Michigan Ave.
DETROIT Woodward & Kelly, Fine Arts Building
SAN FRANCISCO Thomas Emory, 618 Market Place
BOSTON Carroll Judson Swan, 933 Park Square Bldg.

WHEN you consider that a daily average of 533,169 copies of The Bulletin are being sold, that practically every copy reaches each of the 530,000 families in the Philadelphia retail trading area—then you realize the force of our slogan, "In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"—it's a simple statement of fact.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

Net paid daily average for six months ending March 31, 1926:

533,169 copies a day

The circulation of The Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper and is one of the largest in the United States.

The Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

NEW YORK
247 Park Avenue
(Park-Lexington Building)

CHICAGO
Verree & Conklin, Inc.,
28 East Jackson Boulevard

DETROIT
C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
321 Lafayette Boulevard

SAN FRANCISCO
Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
681 Market St.

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 | NEW YORK, JULY 3, 1926 | No. 6

Elimination of Weak Papers Continues; Survivors Rule Advertising Field

Many Consolidations Indicated by Semi-Annual EDITOR & PUBLISHER Tabulation of Circulations and Advertising Rates—Steady Increase Shown in Both of Latter Elements, as Dominance of Daily and Sunday Press Wins General Recognition by National Advertisers

ACCELERATION of the movement toward consolidation of newspapers the purchase and elimination of ancially weak enterprises is notable in e semi-annual tabulation of newspaper culations and advertising rates pre- nted in this issue of EDITOR & PUB- SHER. While the total number of morn- g papers show an increase from 427 430, the number of evening newspapers opped from 1,581 to 1,560 since the bulation published in the YEAR BOOK. he latter figures were based on circula- n returns for the six months ending pt. 30, 1925, and corrected to Jan. 15, 26. The current statistics are based circulation returns as of March 31, 26, and are corrected to June 15, 1926. Because of the numerous suspensions d mergers the circulation totals are no ubt smaller than they should be to esent a true picture. Gains are shown every one of the three classifications morning, evening and Sunday, the lat- r making the largest proportionate owth. No account is taken in the tals of the figures for consolidated wspapers, which will be shown in true portions in the next tabulation, cover- g the Sept. 30 statements.

Morning newspapers, which had a tal net paid circulation as of March , 1926, of 12,791,965 copies daily, gained 1,578 copies, or 2.8 per cent.

Evening newspapers, which distributed total of 21,761,975 copies daily to paid bscribers according to the latest figures, ined 492,993 copies, or 2.3 per cent.

Sunday newspapers, which showed a tal net paid circulation of 24,455,822 pies per issue, gained 1,101,200 copies, 4.7 per cent.

All of the above comparisons are with e figures for Sept. 30, 1925.

Advertising rates, which are quoted on e basis of those applying to 5,000-line ntracts on general advertising, have vanced in all three groups, with six- y morning papers (Sunday issues ex- ded) having the largest increase. This probably due also to causes of which e tabulation takes no account—new en- rprises and consolidations. Rate in- eases are the rule in mergers, some blishers applying the working standard adding the rates of both newspapers d deducting 25 per cent in setting the sic rate on the new card pending the mplete amalgamation of the old circu- tions.

Another factor in the jump of morn- g paper rates may be traced to the rge increases in circulation noted by e metropolitan tabloids, with conse- uent and frequent additions to the rate hedule. Still another, not at all negli- le in the aggregate, is the steady step- ng-up of rates by morning paper pub- lhers in small cities and towns where e schedules in the past have hardly forded a living revenue.

The total morning newspaper rate Sunday excluded) increased from $33.- 5 six moths ago to $37.744—an ad- vance of $4,549, or exactly 13.7 per cent.

Total evening newspaper rate (Sunday excluded) increased from $72.373 to $74.- 546—a gain of $2.173, or 3 per cent.

Total Sunday newspaper rate (daily excluded) increased from $54.243 to $56.- 376, a gain of $2.133, or 3.9 per cent.

In the evening field the elimination process has taken the form of suspension rather than consolidation, as has been the rule in the morning changes. The eve- ning process tends to decrease, rather than increase, the advertising rate total.

The rate per line per million circula- tion gives a direct measure of the in- creased cost of space in newspapers.

Morning newspapers' rate per line per million is, for the time being, at its highest point, but it is still far the low- est-cost advertising medium known for the results it produces, in the space- buyers' hands. The figure is $2.95, an increase of 29 cents, or 10.9 per cent over the tabulation of January.

Evening newspapers' rate per line per million circulation is now $3.42, an in- crease of 3 cents, or eighty-eight hun- dredths of one per cent over the last previous figures.

The rate per line per million circulation of all daily—morning and evening news- papers—is $3.24, an increase from $3.13 of 11 cents, or 3.5 per cent.

Sunday newspapers' rate per line per million circulation is $2.30, about which it has fluctuated slightly for the past six years. The present figure is a decrease of 2 cents, or eighty-six hundredths of one per cent from the last statistics.

The Sunday figure is now lower than it was in the business depression of 1921.

All of the comparisons which have been cited are taken from the box on this page, giving the comparative circula- tions, advertising rates, rates per line per million circulation, and the increases or decreases shown by the latter since 1921.

It is in no such small percentage units that the cost of newspapers' production has advanced, or ever advances. It never decreases. A recent wage increase to newspaper printers in a large Eastern city amounted to more than 16 per cent, with back pay at the same rate for seven months.

A publisher who goes into the spot market for newsprint tonnage to handle the unprecedented volume of advertising that has come his way since the 1926 contracts were entered pays considerably more than 25 per cent above his contract price to get the stock promptly delivered.

If he considers a new building to care for the ever-increasing volume of printed pages and their prompt distribution to subscribers, he finds that the cost of building material has often advanced considerably between the conferences with his architect and the swinging into posi- tion of the first steel girder. Buildings that the architect had planned for a cost of $200,000 have in more than one case cost the publisher $250,000 or even $300,- 000 before the presses began to roll on their new foundations.

Apparently the newspaper business is well into the first stages of the economic growth that was marked in a number of other industries about 25 years ago.

It is well away from the days when the editor was the prime individualist of the community, giving pungent advice to friends and enemies and receiving sometimes their friendship, sometimes the business end of a long black whip, in re- turn for his advice, and at most a meagre sustenance from the revenues of the newspaper.

It is also getting past the era of the publisher's monarchy—a day when the publisher alone obtained a modest re- turn for his capital and his investment, with the results to the community and to advertisers constantly hampered by lack of means to give service, and the employees getting hardly more than a pittance.

The newspaper of today is a substan- tial part of its business community—often the largest single unit. Editorially, it does a large variety of services which were the dreams of progressive news- paper men little more than a decade ago. Its circulation has been developed in- tensively and extensively on a scale that even the dreamers of a few years ago might have called impossible. And its volume of advertising would have been considered fantastic had it been suggested to even present-day executives in 1916.

The volume of national advertising in newspapers has increased from an esti- mated $75,000,000 in 1914 to $225,000,000 in 1925.

The total volume of business in 1925 was estimated by EDITOR & PUBLISHER at $736,000,000, which is doubtless much more than double the revenue of 1914. No statistics of the kind are available for that year, but the linage figures indicate the truth of the "more than double" state- ment.

All of this striving for speedy distribu- tion, intensive cultivation of the local field and the suburban trading areas for new circulation, this constant increment in the number of pages of advertising have called for constant new capital ex- penditures. Returns on capital cannot be delayed without inviting disaster, as many a newspaper owner can testify from his experience of the past seven years, and the publishers who remain to serve their communities are getting their returns from the only available source—the charge paid by the advertiser.

Their product is continually more valuable and more costly to produce and its selling price has increased, but by no means in proportion to the increased cost of production. The newspaper of the present day is organized to pay its ex- penses by the card rate on a calculated volume of advertising, and its profits come from the excess of advertising over that calculated figure. And usually, the latter figure is the volume of advertising carried last year.

Yet, as was hinted a few paragraphs back, the newspaper today remains the medium which will carry the advertiser's name and attributes wherever he wants them carried and at the lowest possible cost. That fact has been stated so often, backed up by indisputable evidence, that it need not be rehearsed here.

Space-buyers tell of incidents which

(Continued on page 36)

BASIC FACTS FOR THE BUYERS AND SELLERS OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING SPACE

MORNING PAPERS

Period	Number of Papers	Total Net Paid Circulations	Total Agate Line Rate	Rate per Line per Million Circulation	Difference in Rate per Line per Million Circulation as of June 15, 1926
6/15/26	430	12,791,965	$37.744	$2.95	.....	....	.....
12/31/25	427	12,440,387	33.195	2.66	Increase	$0.29	10.90%
12/31/24	429	12,365,215	33.581	2.71	Increase	0.24	8.85%
12/31/23	426	11,475,071	30.651	2.70	Increase	0.25	9.22%
12/31/22	426	10,809,619	27.529	2.52	Increase	0.43	17.06%
12/31/21	427	10,144,200	25.952	2.59	Increase	0.36	13.89%

EVENING PAPERS

6/15/26	1,560	21,761,975	74.546	3.42	.....	....	.....
12/31/25	1,581	21,298,982	72.373	3.39	Increase	0.03	0.88%
12/31/24	1,585	20,634,222	68.496	3.32	Increase	0.10	2.92%
12/31/23	1,610	19,978,632	66.667	3.33	Increase	0.09	2.70%
12/31/22	1,607	18,898,322	63.116	3.34	Increase	0.08	2.39%
12/31/21	1,601	18,279,480	60.009	3.29	Increase	0.13	3.94%

SUNDAY PAPERS

6/15/26	551	24,455,822	56.376	2.30	.....	....	.....
12/31/25	548	23,354,622	54.243	2.32	Decrease	0.02	0.86%
12/31/24	539	22,219,646	51.098	2.29	Increase	0.01	0.43%
12/31/23	547	21,463,289	48.672	2.27	Increase	0.03	1.32%
12/31/22	546	19,676,725	45.829	2.33	Decrease	0.03	1.28%
12/31/21	545	19,041,413	44.253	2.32	Decrease	0.02	0.86%

(See EDITOR & PUBLISHER ready reckoner on page 4)

A QUICK ESTIMATE CAN BE MADE OF A CAMPAIGN'S COS IN NEWSPAPERS OF ANY OR ALL STATES

Circulations and Rates of 430 Morning, 1,560 Evening and 551 Sunday Newspapers Given in Deta Are Summarized by States and Nationally for U. S. and Canada for Use of Buyers and Sellers of Newspaper Space

State	POPULATION 1920 Census	Number of English Language Daily Newspapers MORN.	EVE.	TOTAL	Total Net Paid Circulation MORNING	EVENING	TOTAL	Joint Minimum Advertising Rates MORN.	EVENING	TOTAL	NUMBER SUNDAY PAPERS	TOTAL SUNDAY CIR'N	SUN A R
Alabama	2,348,174	3	20	23	71,391	210,008	281,399	$ .23	$ .893	$1.123	9	218,561
Arizona	334,162	7	8	15	40,333	30,982	71,315	.275	.289	.564	8	47,335
Arkansas	1,752,204	6	27	33	76,641	75,021	151,662	.311	.595	.906	7	128,086
California	3,426,861	40	103	143	834,676	1,150,465	1,985,141	3.362	4.453	7.815	43	1,492,946	4
Colorado	939,629	8	29	37	47,633	244,694	292,327	.266	1.089	1.355	11	342,025
Connecticut	1,380,631	6	26	32	97,898	314,928	412,826	.350	1.142	1.492	6	177,663
Delaware	223,003	2	2	4	8,509	38,167	46,676	.05	.120	.170	1	13,934
District of Columbia	437,571	3	4	7	118,054	217,876	335,930	.850	.580	1.430	3	305,922
Florida	968,479	24	35	59	228,992	215,721	444,713	1.163	1.382	2.545	32	381,958	1
Georgia	2,895,832	5	20	25	131,125	218,708	349,833	.375	1.034	1.409	15	456,515	1
Idaho	431,866	5	6	11	30,905	22,442	53,347	.220	.182	.402	6	43,706
Illinois	6,485,280	14	100	114	1,229,127	1,619,656	2,848,783	2.321	4.736	7.057	22	2,522,825	3
Indiana	2,930,390	19	91	110	321,493	661,037	982,530	1.020	2.763	3.783	17	401,508	1
Iowa	2,404,021	4	42	46	115,094	561,903	676,997	.310	2.029	2.339	10	318,745
Kansas	1,769,257	9	45	54	117,467	241,729	359,196	.434	1.362	1.796	13	219,885
Kentucky	2,416,630	9	21	30	147,174	229,348	376,522	.460	.823	1.283	12	264,130
Louisiana	1,798,509	4	10	14	149,822	163,241	313,123	.370	.538	.908	5	334,317
Maine	768,014	5	6	11	97,427	68,291	165,718	.285	.238	.523	1	33,042
Maryland	1,449,661	5	10	15	198,172	370,010	568,182	.458	.843	1.301	3	370,010
Massachusetts	3,852,356	11	56	67	880,043	1,229,735	2,109,778	1.905	4.145	6.050	11	1,561,326	2
Michigan	3,668,412	5	51	56	241,172	1,036,198	1,277,370	.605	2.722	3.327	13	1,036,198	1
Minnesota	2,387,125	4	30	34	170,244	574,657	744,901	.363	1.651	2.014	7	571,786	1
Mississippi	1,790,618	4	11	15	11,417	56,471	67,888	.105	.360	.465	7	11,417
Missouri	3,404,055	10	55	65	695,378	976,623	1,672,001	1.661	2.460	4.121	16	1,198,461	2
Montana	548,889	9	8	17	58,542	31,147	89,689	.310	.238	.548	11	58,542
Nebraska	1,296,372	7	17	24	135,532	263,588	399,120	.351	.922	1.273	8	332,743
Nevada	77,407	3	6	9	6,774	10,249	17,023	.066	.144	.210	3	6,774
New Hampshire	443,083	1	9	10	14,281	42,474	56,755	.055	.220	.275	..	.....
New Jersey	3,155,900	7	29	36	110,780	586,732	697,512	.401	1.855	2.256	10	189,917
New Mexico	360,350	1	6	7	5,102	17,210	22,312	.05	.187	.237	1	5,102
New York	10,385,227	29	96	125	2,980,960	3,172,003	6,152,963	7.179	9.311	16.490	28	5,030,692	8
North Carolina	2,559,123	11	28	39	147,521	135,692	283,213	.551	.826	1.377	16	207,123
North Dakota	646,872	3	9	12	18,794	41,653	60,447	.075	.255	.330	2	25,598
Ohio	5,759,394	23	112	135	476,051	1,992,425	2,468,476	1.391	5.337	6.728	29	1,258,220	3
Oklahoma	2,028,283	12	39	51	46,704	254,610	301,314	.551	1.336	1.887	26	289,122	1
Oregon	783,389	8	20	28	123,289	254,858	378,147	.400	.902	1.302	10	291,775
Pennsylvania	8,720,017	32	125	157	1,147,833	2,116,402	3,264,235	2.846	6.209	9.055	16	1,725,154	3
Rhode Island	604,397	2	8	10	38,689	117,113	155,802	1.82	.557	1.639	3	84,853
South Carolina	1,683,724	6	9	15	71,445	56,026	127,471	.285	.294	.579	8	96,184
South Dakota	636,547	3	12	15	33,696	67,361	101,057	.120	.410	.530	2	26,149
Tennessee	2,337,885	6	15	21	249,901	277,824	527,725	.430	.811	1.241	10	371,875
Texas	4,663,228	20	82	102	313,805	643,484	957,289	1.212	2.896	4.108	47	804,666	2
Utah	449,396	1	5	6	42,925	65,498	108,423	.09	.274	.364	4	112,779
Vermont	352,428	2	8	10	24,305	30,614	54,919	.09	.164	.254	..	.....
Virginia	2,309,187	9	17	26	132,470	181,021	313,491	.401	.715	1.116	10	171,718
Washington	1,356,621	10	23	33	389,020	175,482	564,502	.655	1.425	2.080	11	381,861	1
West Virginia	1,463,701	10	20	30	88,634	93,603	182,237	.443	.619	1.062	11	155,458
Wisconsin	2,632,067	2	44	46	68,800	588,366	657,166	.193	2.039	2.232	5	360,428
Wyoming	194,402	1	5	6	5,925	18,629	24,554	.03	.171	.201	3	16,788
Total U. S. English Language Daily Newspapers	105,710,620	430	1560	1990	12,791,965	21,761,975	34,553,940	37.744	74.546	112.290	551	24,455,822	56
Territory of Hawaii	255,912	1	2	3	11,074	17,773	28,847	.06	.095	.155	1	17,440
Newspapers as of Oct. 1, 1925		427	1,581	2,008	12,440,387	21,298,982	33,739,369	$33.195	$72.373	$105.568	548	23,354,622	$54
Newspapers as of Apr. 1, 1925		425	1,571	1,996	12,164,806	20,896,604	33,061,320	32.951	71.901	104.852	545	23,078,648	52
Newspapers as of Oct. 1, 1924		420	1,585	2,015	12,365,215	20,634,222	32,999,437	33.581	68.496	102.077	539	22,219,646	51
Newspapers as of Oct. 1, 1923		426	1,610	2,036	11,475,051	19,978,632	31,453,683	30.651	66.667	97.318	547	21,463,289	48
Newspapers as of Oct. 1, 1922		426	1,607	2,033	10,806,055	18,874,273	29,780,328	27.540	63.105	90.645	546	19,712,874	45
Newspapers as of Oct. 1, 1921		427	1,601	2,028	10,144,260	18,279,480	28,423,740	25.952	60.099	86.051	545	19,041,413	44

READY RECKONER FOR DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF THE DOMINION OF CANADA

Province	POPULATION 1920 Census	Number of English Language Daily Newspapers MORN.	EVE.	TOTAL	Total Net Paid Circulation MORNING	EVENING	TOTAL	Joint Minimum Advertising Rates MORN.	EVENING	TOTAL	NUMBER SUNDAY PAPERS	TOTAL SUNDAY CIR'N	SUN A R
Alberta	588,454	1	5	6	12,717	72,740	85,457	.055	.255	.310	..	.....
British Columbia	524,582	4	7	11	27,420	134,910	162,330	.180	.402	.582	3	84,548
Manitoba	610,118	1	4	5	22,097	87,907	110,004	.075	.216	.291	..	.....
New Brunswick	387,876	2	5	7	22,326	24,995	47,321	.07	.141	.211	..	.....
Nova Scotia	523,837	3	7	10	32,044	28,462	60,506	.169	.108	.277	..	.....
Ontario	2,933,662	4	36	40	252,670	522,878	775,548	.585	1.492	2.077	1	186,706
Prince Edward Island	88,615	1	1	2	5,303	3,308	8,611	.030	.020	.050	..	.....
Quebec	2,361,199	3	12	15	57,036	404,077	461,113	.220	1.005	1.225	..	.....
Saskatchewan	757,510	3	4	7	24,672	36,474	61,146	.110	.130	.240	..	.....
	8,775,853	22	81	103	456,285	1,315,753	1,772,038	1.494	3.769	5.263	4	271,254

For explanation and interpretation of this table see pages 3 and 36. All rights reserved. Copyright 1926, by Editor & Publisher Co.

N. E. A. CONVENTION OPENS IN LOS ANGELES

500 Editors Present at Wednesday's Opening Session—Hotaling's Report Shows Best Financial Situation in Years—644 New Members Added—Coolidge Sends Greetings—Prizes Awarded

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

OS ANGELES, June 30—Greeted by President Coolidge in a message to ıe effect that "a free press, ably and onscientiously edited, has from the first eer one of the staunchest pillars of our ational edifice," the forty-first annual onvention of the National Editorial Asociation got under way here this mornıg with 500 editors and their wives, epresenting 38 states of the nation, in ttendance.

Such gatherings are of "vital benefit to ıe government," the President's message ontinued.

The editors were welcomed by Goveror Friend W. Richardson of California nd by Mayor George E. Cryer, Los ngeles. In his response Frank O. dgecombe, publisher of the Geneva Neb.) Signal and president of the N. . A., advocated the strengthening of ate editorial associations. President dgecombe also advocated participation f state associations in directing national dvertising, particularly with reference) the rural press.

"The N. E. A. is like a great snowball -each year it rolls forward and becomes ırger and stronger," H. C. Hotaling, xecutive secretary of the Association deıared in delivering his annual report Vednesday.

The financial assets nave increased by 2,000 during the past year, he declared, ıe cash balance of May 1, being $12,-07.41 against $10,462.60 on May 1 a year go. New members added since last ear's meeting totalled 644.

The Washington bureau maintained by ıe N. E. A. with W. L. Daley in charge as never been so active as during past ear, Mr. Hotaling stated. Hundreds of legrams and thousands of bulletins ealing with legislative matters were sent) members. The N. E. A. is not disouraged at the tabling of the bill to olish government printing of return ldresses on envelopes, and "feels that ctory will yet be achieved."

An endowment fund of $100,000 to be ised by donations of $1,000 each by 00 men, the interest to be used in payg part of the overhead of the organation, was suggested by Mr. Hotaling. his would leave funds received from ies and membership available for ineased efforts and activities. The N. E. . secretary offered to launch the enowment fund drive with a $1,000 rsonal donation.

The N. E. A. Engraving Department, unched in 1922 with a total business for e first month of $14 did a business of ,461.60 in April of this year, the report ated.

The Editor & Publisher Cup for the eatest community service rendered by paper during 1925 was awarded the eneva (Neb.) Signal, edited by Presint Edgecombe.

The Bonnet-Brown Corporation Cup r the best advertising showing made ring the past year was won by the ingfisher (Okla.) Times. The cup fered for the best editorial page went to e Freehold (N. J.) Transcript. In the st weekly contest the cup offered by esident Edgecombe was awarded the alton (N. J.) Reporter.

The delegates were guests at noon at a ecial luncheon at which Marcus Lowe, os Angeles theater magnate, and the mbassador Hotel management were sts.

During the afternoon session Charles . Meredith of the Quakertown (Pa.) ee Press, reported on the legislative mmittee's activities, confining his report work done on efforts to get a bill rough Congress halting government velope printing.

During the late afternoon and evening e delegates were guests of the Beverly ills Chamber of Commerce, and were taken through the picture colony and plants at Hollywood.

Yesterday the delegates were guests of Orange County, enjoying a barbecue lunch at the expense of the county, and later being guests at the home of C. C. Chapman, one of California's most noted Citrus growers. A feature of the afternoon was the meeting of President Edgecombe, blind editor, with Henry Kuchel, also blind, for 40 years editor of the Anaheim (Cal.) Gazette.

Two stops were made in Kansas by the N. E. A. special train carrying 300 editors from the East and Midwest to the convention. On June 25, the party halted at Hutchinson to join with citizens of that community in paying homage to the late President Harding, who was editor of the Marion (O.) Star.

President Harding was in Hutchinson June 23, 1923, on his way to Alaska, and worked for a short time as a "hand" in the Kansas wheat harvest. About a month later he lay dead in a San Francisco hotel.

School children of Hutchinson collected a fund to raise a granite memorial shaft in the wheat field where the President worked. It is near the Santa Fe trail and visible to the thousands of motorists who pass.

The N. E. A. delegates participated in the dedication of the shaft, the principal speaker being Frederick Snyder of the Walter Hines Page Foundation, and special Press Congress of the World representative of Editor & Publisher.

On June 26, the editorial party stopped in Liberal, Kan. An early morning "cowboy breakfast" was served out-of-doors by the Liberal Chamber of Commerce, with cowboys serving. An automobile trip over the city was the next event of the day, after which the editors were taken on an 80 mile trip through the wheat fields. At 10 p. m. the special train left for the West.

Frank O. Edgecombe, N. E. A. President

N. E. A. AD COMMITTEE URGES COST RESEARCH

SINCE the majority of country publishers are still without definite cost information gathered from the production of their own newspapers, the present time does not seem auspicious for advocating a further increase in rates, the Advertising Comimttee of the National Editorial Association declared in its report at the annual convention of that body in Los Angeles this week. The Committee stated, however, it was firmly convinced by the cost data in its possession, that an advance is warranted.

Continuance of the prevailing rates was recommended. The scale, per inch, is:

For 500 or less circulation 25c.
For 1000 or less circulation 30c.
For 1500 or less circulation 35c.
For 2000 or less circulation 40c.
For 2500 or less circulation 45c.
For 3000 or less circulation 48c.
For 3500 or less circulation 51c.

"The inability of the rural weekly press to offer the national advertiser an organized, systematized service covering certain definite areas of uniform cost and at a minimum buying cost is the condition which stands between the country press and a more general use of its advertising service by national advertisers," the report stated.

"Aside from the cost of the service, the cost of doing business with the average rural publisher makes the general use of the service prohibitive to many advertisers. While there has been much improvement in this respect in recent years, national advertisers complain that the detail of placing orders in rural weekly newspaper offices is expensive and discouraging and that it is directly due to a lack of business organization in newspaper offices. The remedy suggests itself. Consolidations and eliminations have greatly reduced the number of rural newspapers with the inevitable result that there are better newspapers and better equipped business offices.

"Primarily the problem of increasing the volume of advertising is one of organization and standardization. Each publication which fails to affiliate with the state and national press organizations is not only retarding its own development but is helping to keep away from all publications of its class a large volume of business which no other class of publications is so well fitted to handle."

Adoption of the 12 em column by rural papers was urged in the report.

"The necessity of materially increased revenue or marked decrease in production costs is conceded by all who have given the matter serious consideration," it stated. "The metropolitan press several years ago set a good example for their country brothers in adopting the cash in advance policy in their circulation departments. It would seem to your committee that they have again pointed the way whereby the country weekly may add materially to its advertising revenues and at the same time reduce to some degree their cost of production by changing from the 13-em to 12-em column newspaper.

"This plan has been given careful and thorough trial by many country publishers in various parts of the country with apparently unanimous approval.

"The size of a regular six-column 13-em page is 13⅜ inches wide by 19¾ inches long or 118½ column inches. By using 31x44 stock, which will be furnished by all paper houses, and reducing the measure to 12 ems, increasing the length of the columns to 20½ inches, allowing half-inch margins on sides and three-quarter inch top and bottom, giving the sheet the appearance of the city daily, gives 143½ column inches to the page—over 21% increase of printed matter.

"The adoption of the 12-em column automatically increases advertising rates approximately 20 per cent and in many instances does away with the necessity of additional pages, which cost from $24.00 to $33.00. Your committee is convinced that this plan is worthy of serious consideration by country publishers.

"In concluding this report your committee wishes to stress the apparent necessity of the establishment of better business methods by country publishers. These methods include accurate accounting; prompt and business-like attention to correspondence; and last—but far from least—the acquisition of accurate and uniform production costs in the individual plants.

"Your committee is firmly convinced that adequate advertising rates will not be generally obtained until there is established in the majority of offices a real business compass in the form of an adequate and truth giving Cost System. By no other means will it be possible to open the eyes of country publishers to the true conditions in their own plants and what it actually costs them to produce an inch of advertising. Speed the day when we may delete the word guess and substitute in its place the far safer and more satisfying word know."

Members of the advertising committee who submitted the report were: E. K. Whiting, Owatonna (Minn.) Journal-Chronicle, chairman; W. H. Bridgman, Stanley (Wis.) Republican; and C. L. Hobart, Holden (Mo.) Progress.

N. D. BECKER ELECTED HEAD OF INTERTYPE

Former President of Hammond Typewriter Company Succeeds H. R. Swartz, Who Becomes Chairman of Board

Neal Dow Becker, lawyer and one-time president of the Hammond Typewriter Company, was this week elected president of the Intertype Corporation,

Neal Dow Becker

New York and Brooklyn, succeeding H. R. Swartz, named chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Becker has long been a prominent figure in commercial foreign trade and legal circles. Outside his private legal practice he is particularly well known as treasurer and director of the Federated American Chambers of Commerce of the Near East, Inc., an organization promoting American export business in the Near East. He also serves in a like capacity for the School of Foreign Travel, Inc. He has been consul general of Bulgaria in the United States since 1922.

Graduated from Cornell University in 1905, Mr. Becker started to practice law in New York City in 1907. From 1913 to 1924 he was president of the Hammond Typewriter Company. During this period he directed the advertising of this concern. His predecessor had not believed in advertising. Mr. Becker did. He promptly raised an advertising appropriation of less than $10,000 a year to more than $100,000 annually. The Hammond firm specializes in export business, and Mr. Becker expects to capitalize on the experience gained as chief executive of this concern in his new association with the Intertype Corporation, already established on an international scale.

"We are planning to make a special drive in foreign countries," Mr. Becker informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Like many another executive, Mr. Becker can call himself a former newspaper man. In the summers of 1904 and 1905 he worked as reporter on the staff of the Buffalo Courier. Between the ages of 7 and 14, he also sold papers in a small town outside Buffalo.

Mr. Swartz, the new chairman of Intertype's board, is also president of R. Hoe & Co., printing press manufacturers, and is treasurer of the Advertising Club of New York.

New Jersey Daily Planned

G. Clifford Jones, publisher of the Weekly Courier, serving the Oranges and Maplewood in North Jersey, has announced the Courier will enter the daily field in the fall. A publishing company capitalized at $250,000 has been organized, $200,000 of which is to be issued and the balance held in reserve.

Sedalia Republican Suspends

The Sedalia (Mo.) Republican, an afternoon newspaper established in July, 1925, has ceased publication. The announcement was made by W. E. Hulburt, business manager. The paper was established by C. B. Heber and Paul Page, formerly of Springfield, Mo. C. B. and Heber Page have returned to the directory publishing business of their father, Charles Page, of Springfield. Paul Page has gone to St. Louis.

NEW TABLOID STARTED IN MONTREAL

Morning World Launched Monday With John H. Roberts, Former Montreal Sun Publisher as President—Leslie M. Roberts M. E.

The Montreal (Que.) Daily World, a morning tabloid, started publication Monday of this week sponsored by a company headed by John H. Roberts, former publisher of the Montreal Sun. Mr. Roberts is president of the publishing company, and Leslie M. Roberts is secretary-treasurer and managing editor.

Howard S. Smith, formerly of the telegraph desk, Montreal Star, is assistant managing editor.

The new paper is being served by the Universal Service, New York Graphic mat service, Toronto (Ont.) Star mat and photo service, Wide World and International News Reel photo service.

R. Kada, formerly of the University of Illinois, is in charge of the art department. James R. Watson, formerly with the Montreal Herald, is city editor.

Charlie Milne, formerly of the Montreal Star is sporting editor, and Miss Evangeline K. Roberts, society and women's page editor. Andrew St. Marie, formerly of the Halifax Herald, holds the mechanical superintendency. M. Champagne, formerly of Montreal La Patrie, is chief accountant.

MANKATO DAILY SUSPENDS

Field Too Small for Two Papers Says Herald Publisher

MANKATO, Minn., June 30.—The Mankato Evening Herald, Olive J. Quane publisher, established May 24, suspended tonight.

Announcement of suspension stated that five weeks had convinced the owners that the Mankato field did not warrant a second daily paper. O. J. Quane, founder, formerly was part owner of St. Peter (Minn.) Herald Weekly, and is well known in Minnesota journalistic circles.

The Herald was independent in politics.

Fultz Retires from Olmypia News

Hollis B. Fultz, for many years editor of the Olympia (Wash.) News, has sold his interest to Sam L. Crawford, who has been news editor of the paper, and to Frank E. Satterlee, business manager. Incorporation articles of the new company show its name to be the News Publishing Company and its capitalization $16,000. Fultz, who was a secretary of the late Governor Louis F. Hart, is editing the State Capitol Review, political weekly.

New Washington Daily Announced

The Clarkson (Wash.) Evening World is a new paper scheduled to start July 1. It will have the afternoon report of the Associated Press. Owners and publishers are Leslie R. Kuehl, of Clarkson, and Wallace B. Stainton, of Lewiston, Idaho.

Kansas City Star Bidding Extended

The period for submission of bids for the purchase of the Kansas City Star has been extended from June 30 to July 9 by trustees of the William Rockhill Nelson estate. The postponment was made at the request of one bidder.

CLANG! CLANG! HERE COMES "INVALID" REPORTER

FRANK CARSON, executive news editor of the Chicago Herald & Examiner worked an ingenious idea last week to bring his reporters to the office through the crush of people and the tangle of traffic at Soldiers Field during the sessions of the Eucharistic Congress.

The writers were literally carried out on stretchers.

An ambulance and crew were borrowed by the Herald & Examiner and stationed near the center of activity.

When it was necessary to get news to the office a convenient person in distress needing hospital care was always available. The "patient" was shoved into the daily's ambulance, a reporter hopped aboard, and the vehicle went clanging through the crowds with right of way maintained by traffic policemen.

Deadlines, consequently, held no worry for the Herald-Examiner staff.

PERMANENT RECEIVER FOR ELIZABETH TIMES

Joseph E. Stricker Appointed Under $10,000 Bond—Arthur Brisbane Disclaims Connection With New Jersey Paper

Joseph E. Stricker was appointed permanent receiver on June 29 for the Elizabeth (N. J.) Times, daily and Sunday paper. His bond was set at $10,000.

Petition for receivership was filed by the American Steel Chase Company of New York, with a claim of $2,740 and the American Metals Corporation of Brooklyn, with a claim of $2,022.

Arthur Brisbane has disclaimed any connection with the papers, it was stated in the petition. Credit had been advanced to the newspaper on the strength of his name, it was said in the petition.

The paper was bought last October by a group of Hearst executives. The Times' daily editions were sold in combination with the New York Evening Journal, of which Mr. Brisbane is editor, and the Sunday paper was sold with the New York Sunday American.

NEW FLORIDA DAILY PLANNED

Miami Beach Beacon, Weekly, to Change Field in November

The Miami Beach (Fla.) Beacon, established as a weekly newspaper in August, 1925, has been incorporated for $20,000 and will be issued as a daily in November, Kent Watson, publisher, announced this week.

Incorporators are: Mr. Watson, president; Kasa Sutherland, daughter of the United States Alien Property Custodian, vice-president; Joseph E. Quirk, secretary, and Alton B. Little, treasurer.

The stock in the Beach Beacon Publishing Company, was underwritten by business men of Miami Beach and not offered as a public issue.

The offices of the newspaper will remain temporarily in the Fenway building and, pending the erection of its own printing plant, the newspaper will be printed by the General Printing Company.

Mr. Watson said negotiations are under way for the purchase of part of the machinery used by the defunct Miami Illustrated Daily Tab.

Oklahoma Weekly Moves

M. J. Webber has moved the plant of the Slick (Okla.) Times to Mounds, Okla., and the paper will be known hereafter as the Mounds Times.

CRANE NEW PRESIDEN OF N. J. PRESS

Elizabeth Journal Publisher Succe Robertson — Libel Survey Sub mitted—Ede to Teach Journalism Classes

Frederick L. Crane, publisher of Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal, was elec president of the New Jersey Press A sociation at seventieth ann meeting held Lake Min waska, N. June 26, succe ing F. A. R ertson, of t Washington (J.) Star.

FREDERICK L. CRANE

Other offic chosen were: E mund H. C penter, Wo bury Democr vice-preside John W. Cl Summit Herc secretary, and W. B. R. Mason, Bou Brook Chronicle, treasurer.

The following were chosen memb of the executive committee: William Bryant, Paterson Press-Guardian; W liam A. Haffert, Sea Isle City Tim E. V. Savidge, Hopewell Herald; D. Moreau, Flemington Democrat; Rudol E. Lent, Passaic Daily News; Guion Wilson, Long Branch Record, and F. Robertson, Washington Star.

An associate membership was acco ed W. F. Oakley, American Press A sociation, New York.

Guion P. Wilson, Long Branch Reco reported as chairman of the commit on libel laws of New Jersey, subm ting drafts of three bills suggested adoption by the legislature. The rep was referred to the executive committ

Carl R. Woodward, of Rutgers, a nounced the date of the fall newspa institute as October 4 and 5.

P. C. Foster, of the Elmer Tim urged action on the practice of placi unaddressed third class mail matter letter boxes. This was referred to t executive committee. Similar action w taken on the matter of governme printed return cards. The associatio protest on this practice will be sent the National Editorial Association.

R. E. Lent, chairman of the comm tee of the Association on the School Journalism at Rutgers University, a former president of the Association, r ported that the legislature had increas its appropriation for carrying on t work of the school. This enables t employment of an assistant professor full time as co-worker with Profess Allen Sinclair Will for the coming ye Associated Press printers will be install in the class room.

It was announced that Hubert R. Ed city editor of the Newark Evening New had accepted the associate professorsh He will start work in the fall and w retire from the city editorship of t News, but will continue his associati in an editorial capacity. Mr. Ede h been on the editorial staff of the Ne for 12 years, and has been city edit since 1922. Lloyd M. Felmly, State e itor, has been appointed Ede's successo Felmly's successor as State editor Joseph T. Scarry, who has been assista State editor.

The Association renewed its appropri tion of $100 for a scholarship in journa ism, to be awarded to the most deservi student of the course during the ne school year.

All of the young men graduates of th year's class in journalism have obtain employment in New Jersey newspaper it was announced.

New Press Foreman for N. Y. Po

Joseph Oswald, formerly with the Ne York Herald-Tribune, has been appointe foreman of the New York Evening Post pressroom, succeeding Frank Sullivan.

ESSE H. JONES PURCHASES HOUSTON CHRONICLE

etirement of Marcellus E. Foster, Founder and Editor for Quarter of a Century—No Change in Policy Or Personnel Except Promotion of Executives

OLLOWING the announcement of the sale of Marcellus E. Foster's in- st in Houston (Tex.) Chronicle, nded by him 25 years ago, to Jesse H. es, already a leading stockholder and ictor of the publishing company, notice given that there would be no change he policies or personnel except that in responsible positions would be pro- ed.

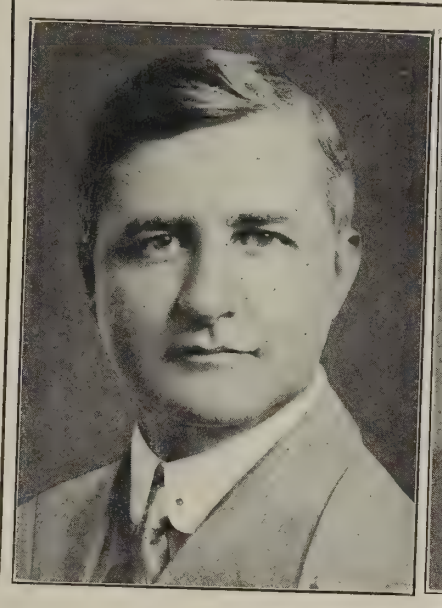
r. Jones succeeded Mr. Foster as ident of the Houston Chronicle Pub- ng Company. Mr. Foster announced s retirement from active newspaper , except that he would continue his mn signed "Mefo" on a permanent s in the Chronicle. He left with his ly this week for Los Angeles and friends that he expected to travel, y, write and rest, but would retain ome and private real estate invest- s in Houston.

B. Gillespie, who has been manag- ditor and an official of the company, now become the active head of the r as vice-president and editor and share with Mr. Jones direct control e Chronicle's policies. G. J. Palmer ne vice-president and general man- George W. Cottingham was pro- d to the managing editorship.

his statement announcing promotions Jones pointed out that Mr. Gillespie been associated with the Chronicle its first edition 25 years ago, start- s city editor, and is now, from point ars in service, the dean of Texas ging editors. "He will be assisted," atement continued, "by George W. gham (news editor for four years), oted to managing editor, and by a editorial staff, who for the most have been with the Chronicle for years. These include: M. E. Wal- city editor; William C. Repass, C. D. Waide, feature; F. S. Will- d A. B. Foster, oil and art gravure; Talmage, commercial; W. K. Dun- d Kenneth Todd, sports and radio; Belle M. Costello, society; Miss D. MacCorquodale, music, and Wakefield, amusements and special ments.

. Palmer has had long years of ex- e as a newspaper executive, and assisted by Steve Kelton, for al- decade manager of national ad- g, and G. L. Mims, in charge of g and finance."

r important members of the cle staff include: E. C. White, ion manager; H. A. McCelvey, r of local advertising; Jake But- anager of classified advertising; ox, secretary; Walter B. Nail, erintendent of the mechanical de- t; Walter S. Lang, superinten- the mailing room; Turner Pope, of the press room; John R. dge, foreman of the stereotyping ent, and James H. Gibson, man- engraving and art gravure de- t.



gard the publication of a news- Mr. Jones said further in his nt, "as a distinct public trust and to be treated lightly or abused sh purposes or to gratify selfish

A great daily newspaper can re- ower for good only so long as it uenced by unworthy motives and t by the desire for gain.

ewspaper that can neither be or bullied is the greatest asset or state. . . .

success or failure of a particular of little consequence compared all-important principle of a fear- honest newspaper. This I in- Chronicle shall always be."

I. Jones, given the title of "city by his Houston friends, owns a down-town buildings and is a r official of numerous business s. His interests also include k realty. During the last presidential campaign he was chairman of the national finance committee of the Democratic party. Several months ago he was chosen as director-general of the Texas Centennial Exposition and has announced he will devote much time and attention in behalf of the success of this project. In 1917, during the war, he became director-general of military relief work of the American Red Cross, and in 1918, by appointment of President Wilson, he was made member of the Red Cross War Council, going abroad with the late Henry P. Davison to assist in organizing the League of Red Cross Societies of the World. Mr. Jones was born in 1874 in Robertson County, Tenn., and began his Texas career in the lumber business, later branching into investment banking.

Jesse H. Jones

Marcellus E. Foster

Marcellus Elliott Foster, who was born Nov. 29, 1870, at Pembroke, Ky., began his newspaper work with the Huntsville (Tex.) Item. From there he graduated to the old Houston Post, under Col. R. M. Johnston, where he rose from the position of reporter to managing editor. In 1901 he left the Post to establish the Chronicle, which started as a four-page, six-day-a-week daily with about 6,000 circulation. During the 25 years he headed the Chronicle the paper grew to a circulation of more than 75,000 daily and over 85,000 Sundays.

For the past seven years Mr. Foster has, under the pen name of "Mefo," contributed a daily column to the Chronicle. He threw the weight of the Chronicle's influence into a fight against the Ku Klux Klan, that paper being looked on as an outstanding opponent of the hooded order in the Southwest. Mr. Foster has served as a regent of the University of Texas, his alma mater.

Public announcement of the sale of Mr. Foster's stock to Mr. Jones was made in a first page spread in the Chronicle last Friday evening. For weeks this change had been rumored and was often denied. Mr. Jones' statement of the future plans and policies was published in the editorial columns, together with editorial appreciations of Mr. Foster's professional career by members of his staff.

On Sunday Mr. Foster published in a three-column editorial a remarkable statement concerning his own mixed emotions of unhappiness at parting and happiness to be relieved of responsibility and paid tribute to his associates. He recounted the services and virtues of his companions, naming the heads of departments and many men and women workers in the ranks of the big newspaper organization. The staff surprised him by presenting him with an oil painting of himself seated at his office desk.

In a subsequent editorial addressed to the readers of the Chronicle Mr. Foster said, in part:

"You and I have had many talks together for the past 24 years. I began visiting some of you when I was just thirty and you were in your 'teens. Some of you started with our first little group of a few thousand souls. We have added to our family daily and yearly until now there are 77,000 assembled every afternoon, and on Sundays we have a great feast with 90,000 seated around the table. . . . . During all these years you and I have either agreed or disagreed. You know that I have dictated the policies of the paper and you have held me responsible. When you didn't like what I said you wrote me about it; if you disagreed very seriously you wrote those awe-inspiring words, 'Stop my paper.'

"That's the privilege you people out there have—you who read The Chronicle—that right is yours. You vote on your paper each day. That makes this the most precarious business in the world. One may build a paper until it is a great pulsating power, with vast machinery and a staff of many brainy men, but no one can insure that paper's life. All the money in the world can not guarantee it. You can not BUY readers.

"Newspapers come and they go. They are here today—proud and boastful—and tomorrow they are slowly sinking wrecks, deserted by crew and passengers.

"Let the public get the impression that a great newspaper is run only for personal gain or power—and not for the good of the public—and its patronage soon begins to wane. Let the breath of scandal—some authentic report of the paper being debauched or bribed—reach the public ear, and the assets of that publication quickly dwindle.

"The Chronicle has grown and prospered because you had confidence in us. You felt that your trust was not misplaced. And that is what has been of more value to me than all financial success—the fact that you, the reader, had FAITH.

"Now that I am giving up the active management, I hope you will continue to have faith. The paper is passing into competent hands. In another column I have tried to tell you something of those men who have worked for me and you.

"I will not be here to guide them, but I believe they will maintain those ideals I have fostered. God help them if they do not—for I will not—I can not.

"After today I am merely a free lance writer. What I say in my column will be my own thoughts. As usual, I will not expect you always to agree. I love you just as much when you write me a scolding letter as I do when you send those kind flattering words . . . . Dear reader, I thank you for what you have done for me and The Chronicle.

"'You old men shall dream dreams; you young men shall see visions.'

"I will dream of the past, and I pray and trust that those who succeed me will have that vision which has ever been before me.

"That vision is you—the reader.

"'My companion, my guide, mine own familiar friend'—I bid you farewell."

NEW FT. SMITH DAILY LAUNCHED JULY 1

Company Capitalized at $100,000 Publishing Evening Journal—C. E. Palmer, Former Texarkana Publisher Heads Group

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Ft. Smith, Ark., July 1.—The Fort Smith Journal Publishing Company, capitalized at $100,000, began publication of an afternoon newspaper, the Fort Smith Journal today.

The incorporators are C. E. Palmer, A. L. Hendricks, Rudolph Ney, Hugh Lathrop, I. H. Nakidemen, James A. Folts, A. B. McColm, C. H. Harding, Charles F. Holt, Fred Browne and Ben B. Johnston.

C. E. Palmer, who was formerly owner of the Texarkana Four States Press and Texarkana Journal, is president of the Company, and the directors consist of those named as incorporators. Dr. Charles S. Holt is vice-president, Hugh Lathrop, secretary and Arthur B. McColm, treasurer. Lathrop and McColm are from Texarkana, where they were formerly associated with Palmer.

More than 87 Leading Fort Smith business and professional men are stockholders in the Company.

A large two-story brick building containing 14,000 square feet of floor space and located in the central business district, has been leased for ten years and fitted up into a modern newspaper office.

Five Intertypes are being installed. A 28-page Hoe unit press with color cylinders has been ordered and delivery promised Aug. 1. In the meantime the paper will be printed on an 8-page Cox duplex.

Virgil Tomlin, long identified with the newspapers of Fort Smith, will be associate editor, and J. Ed Howe, former city editor of the Texarkana Journal, will have the same post on the Fort Smith paper.

Harry Cross Joins Herald Tribune

Harry W. Cross, who has been writing sports for the New York Times, joined the sporting staff of the New York Herald Tribune, June 28. Cross is a Harvard graduate, class of 1905, and worked first on the Waterbury (Conn.) American as a general reporter. In 1909 he went to the New York Times as a sports writer and worked there for 11 years. Then he became sports editor of the New York Evening Post for 4 years, and went back to the Times two years ago, where he has been covering the Giants.

Colorado Editors Meet July 23-25

One hundred and fifty editors of Colorado are expected to convene at Alamoso, July 23-25 for the annual meeting of the Colorado Editorial Association.

NEWSPRINT STOCKS LOW, PALMER TELLS PENNSYLVANIA PUBLISHERS

A. N. P. A. Executive Also Discusses Free Space Evil at State College Meet—Headquarters Moved to Williamsport—Golf Tournament a Feature

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 29.—More than 100 Pennsylvania editors and publishers tonight closed a two-day summer outing meeting of the Pennsylvania Publishers Association, held at Pennsylvania State College here. It was the first summer gathering since the new organization replaced the three Associations that formerly held sway in Keystone newspaper circles.

JOHN L. STEWART

The outing was an immense success, both from the standpoint of the program arranged by Manager Albert W. Fell, of Williamsport, and in the scenic and recreational facilities offered in the Nittany Valley in central Pennsylvania's mountains.

Attention of newspapers generally to the amount of newsprint on hand was called by L. B. Palmer, A. N. P. A. manager, during the business sessions. The amount of publishers' stocks of newsprint on hand at the end of May was only a 26 days' supply, he said, compared to 28 days a month earlier and 34 days for May of last year. The supply in the mills at the end of May was only two and a half days' production, compared to a normal condition of five days.

L. B. PALMER

Mr. Palmer stated that he felt the best way to combat the free space evil was to have one man on the staff trained to identify press agent material at a glance when there is any question about it.

An important action taken at the convention was the removal of headquarters of the Association from Harrisburg to Williamsport, Dietrich Lamade of the Williamsport Grit was named delegate of the Association to the Press Congress of the World to be held in Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, in September.

Meetings opened Monday morning, daily and weekly publishers gathering separately for discussion of mechanical and business problems. A tour of the college campus and farms came in the afternoon following a meeting of Associated Press members at luncheon, addressed by Edward McKernon, Eastern division superintendent, New York.

Erie C. Hopwood, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and president, American Society of Newspaper Editors, was the principal speaker at the banquet Monday evening. He talked on "Building News" and defined news as "any marked departure from ordinary social routine." In discussing selection of news he said that in a one week survey he found that government affairs are featured on first pages more than double the amount for any other class of news.

"News has four definite obligations," Mr. Hopwood declared. "It must have accuracy, and to insure it there must be better paid reporters. News must be complete and comprehensible; must be interesting and free from bias. We cannot afford to lose the confidence of the public, and there has never been a time like the present when news was more free from bias."

Dean C. W. Stoddart, of the College Administrative Committee, told of the college service to the state. Ross Kellogg, of the Empire State School of Printing was unable to attend and his place on the banquet program was filled by Mr. McKernon who told how newspapers are molding civilization with the increased efficiency of gathering and disseminating news.

"Laying down nothing but cold facts without biased comment by newspapers is compelling readers to think for themselves," declared the A. P. executive.

Jason Rogers, publisher of Advertisers Weekly, was unable to attend the meetings to give two scheduled talks.

From the start of the meeting high interest was shown in the annual golf championship tournament and the awarding of the "Paste Pot Trophy" offered each year to the winner by the Philadelphia Bulletin.

A score of golfers enrolled for the tournament Tuesday afternoon. It was won by Frederick A. Godcharles, former publisher of the Milton Miltonian, who retains the trophy for a year. W. T. Winsor, present publisher of the Miltonian, was runner-up with second low net score, winning a golf bag offered by the Mergenthaler Linotype Company. H. M. Turner, Towanda Review, had the second low gross score, winning cigaret case donated by John L. Stewart, president of the Association and publisher of the Washington (Pa.) Observer. Claude G. Aikens, State College Times, has second low gross score and won golf balls given by Dietrich Lamade. George E. Graff, Williamsport Sun, previous holder of the cup, had the most par holes in scores above 100, winning golf balls donated by L. B. Palmer, manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association for making the highest score, Dietrich Lamade, Williamsport Grit, won cigars offered by Paul Eyerly, of the Bloomsburg Press. Mr. Graff was host at luncheon for members preceding the tournament.

More than half of the visitors made a midnight visit to the Bellefonte Night Airplane Landing Field and saw Aviator Smith make his landing and get away under powerful flood-lights. There were many other side trips and attractions enjoyed by the publishers. Many brought their wives and children, the groups being housed in two new dormitories at the College. Meetings and the banquet and golf tournament were held at the Centre Hills Country Club on the outskirts of the town.

Following is a list of those attending the convention:

John L. Stewart, Washington Observer, president of the Association.
A. W. Fell, Williamsport association, manager.
Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Reitinger, Associated Press, Philadelphia.
Mr. and Mrs. Eben A. Ayers, Associated Press, Harrisburg.
Edward McKernon, Eastern division superintendent, Associated Press, New York.
Howard L. Christman, Washington Observer.
James H. March, Beaver Falls Tribune.
E. L. Freeland, Beaver Daily Times.
C. L. Shuck, Monessen.
Ernest G. Smith, Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader.
Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Heywood, and Irving Heywood, Conshohocken Recorder.
Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Walker, Saltsburg Press.
Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Harris, Tamaqua Evening Courier.
Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hower, Bryn Mawr Home News.
Ed C. Lowrey, Warren Tribune.
Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stevenson, Mrs. H. C. Gillespie, Titusville Herald.
E. Arthur Sweeny, Miss Sweeny and Mrs. R. W. Herbert, Greensburg.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Cook, Sayre Evening Times.
Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Aiken, Sharon News Telegraph.
Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Eyerly, Bloomsburg Morning Press.
Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Kniss, Mifflinburg Telegraph.
Charles Lindig, Mifflinburg Telegraph.
Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Wamsher, Miss Kulp, Edward Yerger, Norristown Times Herald.
Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Michener, Harrisburg Telegraph.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Yeager, Miss Yeager, Mr. Arthur M. Yeager, Ephrata Review.
George J. Campbell, Pittsburgh Legal Journal.
Mr. and Mrs. Dietrick Lamade, Williamsport Grit.
Erie C. Hopwood, Cleveland Plain Dealer.
George E. Graff, Williamsport Sun.
Walter H. Savory, Mergenthaler Linotype Company, New York.
W. R. Lynett and E. J. Lynett, Scranton Times.
Howard Reynolds and Mr. J. Horace Reynolds, Quarryville Sun.
Hawley Quier and Robert M. Zeller, Reading Eagle.
H. W. Young and E. B. Williamson, York Dispatch.
I. Z. Buckwalter and A. E. McCollough, Lancaster Intelligencer, News Journal and Sunday News.
W. D. Fish, Potter Enterprise, Coudersport.
G. J. Robbins, Coudersport.
Thomas J. Finn and H. M. Turner, Towanda Daily Review.
A. W. McDowell, W. C. McDowell and W. B. Ramsay, Sharon Herald.
John R. Dershuck and Henry Walser, Hazleton Plain Speaker and Standard Sentinel.
Floyd Chalfont and Paul M. Yost, Waynesboro Record Herald.
Albert Stirling and Don Roseman, Pittsburgh, Intertype Corporation.
L. B. Palmer, New York.
W. G. Naylor, NEA Service, Inc., Cleveland.
Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Caparell, King Features, New York.
D. W. Smyth and D. A. Brown, Scott Paper Company, Plainfield, N. J.
Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Stackpole, Harrisburg Telegraph.
Lewis Dewart, J. S. McCombs, Sunbury Daily.
F. A. Kimball, New York.
Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Rank, Barnesboro.
Franklin Moore, Harrisburg.
George J. Fisher, Harrisburg Telegraph.
John C. Dye, Norristown Times-Herald.
Carl Sprout, Harrisburg Patriot.
G. J. Robbins, Whitesville (N. Y.) News.
Mrs. H. B. Heywood, Jenkintown Tim Chronicle.
Frederick A. Kimball, New York City,
Ross M. Blair, Pittsburgh Legal Journal.
Frederick A. Godcharles, Milton.
F. G. Hastings and P. G. Hastings, Mil Evening Standard.
R. J. Kennard, State College Times.

ADVERTISING STAFF MEETS

Chicago Tribune Executives Guests Col. McCormick on Outing

A general convention of all Chic Tribune advertising departments was h in Chicago, June 28-30, with E. W. P sons, advertising manager, presiding. Members of the eastern division under J. J. Evans Hessey, and western representatives under N. L. Lucius, manager of the Pacific Coast division, were present.

E. W. PARSONS

One day was devoted to national advertising. Speakers for the three-day meeting were: W. E. Macfarlane, ager, classified advertising departm Dan McMahon, manager, national a tising; Will Donohue, manager, advertising; Ben McCanna, manager iness survey; Clyde Benham, ma automobile advertising, and Fred Sl manager of copy and art departme

On Wednesday the business of the vention closed at noon, and in the noon the men were the guests of R. R. McCormick for their annual o at Cantigny Farm, near Wheaton,

Hanway A. P. Advisory Mem

J. M. Hanway, publisher of the (Wyo.) Tribune and Herald, was r recently as the Wyoming member Association Press advisory board, Mountain division. John C. Fle managing editor of the Cheyenne une-Leader, was elected chairman Wyoming association.

Old Tax Charge Dismissed

Charges of failure to accoun federal taxes due on membership the Chicago Press Club, lodged years ago against Clyde W. Mo then president. Tomo Thompson L. F. Miller, were dismissed by Attorney Edwin A. Olson, June Chicago.

Million to Sell Florida Fru

It is now announced that the p before the Florida citrus growe sociation is to invest $1,000,000 in tising.

Pennsylvania publishers and their wives photographed before the Centre Hills Country Club during their business meeting and outing Monday and Tuesday at State College, Pa.

RACTION INTERESTS AWAKEN TO ADVERTISING

wspaper Space Now Looks Good to Trolley and Bus Concerns—$4,500,000 Being Spent on Promotion This Year—$10,000,000 Predicted Within Five Years

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

many years the great traction iant lay sound asleep to advertis- uite comfortable on the feather bed nopoly. Five years ago it began n its eyes and stretch. Competi- was the alarm clock. Then first nts of the awakening giant were of ising.

921, not a dozen electric railways country were advertising con- ly. Today nearly 400 companies ing many kinds of advertising, in- $4,500,000 annually on promotion.

ublic is kept informed about ctric transportation system by s of newspaper advertisements by the Erie Railways Comnd the Erie Coach Company.

y appropriation of $10,000,000 ve years is the present predicpresent appropriation isn't Labert St. Clair, director of g of the American Electric Association, said this week. urging all members of our as- to do more advertising, to go heir own media—car cards—purchase space in newspapers. any sections of the country, rs are, already being used. executives are eager to learn ertising. What they want are suggestions."

urely is a field for local advercitors and also for advertising he American Electric Railway n complains that the business t of a newspaper "only calls ocal traction company to sell e in a special edition or on an page." They rarely bring structive merchandising ideas. gencies, it is claimed, haven't ply enough into local traction ave generally failed to go to of the matter and work out program," Mr. St. Clair

S. Storrs, managing director nerican Railway Association, believer in advertising. His is doing all it can to make dvertise. The local contact however.

month the association will a list of about 800 electric npanies a large portfolio re- hundreds of advertisements that have been used successfully by traction companies in various parts of the country, meeting a universal demand for advertising ideas.

"Traction companies are today transportation merchants," Mr. St. Clair said. "They have much to sell, much to tell. The advent of the bus, far from putting the street car out of business, has come as a stimulant to greater effort. Three hundred street car companies are today running busses, supplementing their track lines.

"But the business managers of newspapers have not shown a great deal of ingenuity in suggesting helpful newspaper copy. They have wasted their energies on special editions, rather than sales ideas, as far as traction companies are concerned."

The portfolio the association is sending out to its members will show at least nine different angles for traction advertising.

In the first and obvious place, there is transportation to be merchandised. The feather bed of monopoly has been pulled away, and traction concerns, awake to competition, must dig for passengers and freight. Some companies are now holding bargain sales of tickets.

Other companies are preaching safety in paid space. It has been estimated that four per cent of the gross income of electric railways is eaten up annually by payment of accident damages. The Youngstown (O.), Municipal Railway has found it pays to remind people of danger by copy placed in Youngstown dailies. In a recent advertisement in El Paso, Tex., newspapers the El Paso Electric Company pointed out the dangers attached to kite flying.

"There is danger of serious injury from kite flying, where there are electric wires," this advertisement read. "Kite flying is great fun, but it should be done where there is plenty of room for it. Parents are urged to co-operate with us by warning their boys and girls to avoid flying kites near electric wires."

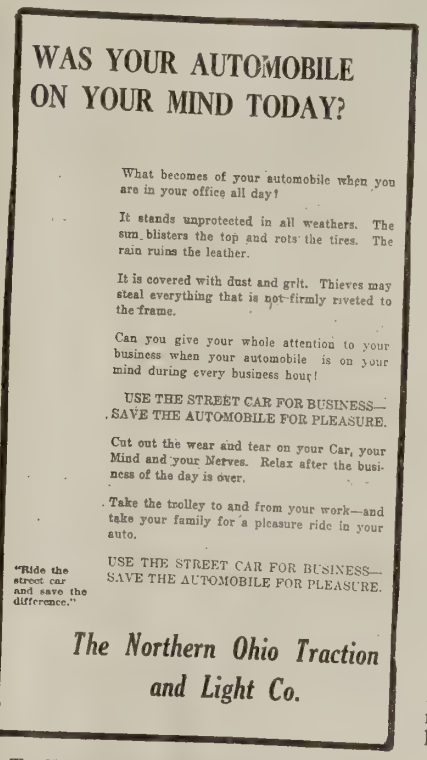
"Watch Your Step," warns an advertisement placed in a Syracuse paper by the New York State Railways. The text pointed out the danger of slipping when stepping from a street car, when crossing a street, when boarding a car.

"Protect yourself," the copy concluded. "You can do away with a great deal of 'chance' if you 'watch your step.'"

"Lose a Minute and Save a Lifetime" is the slogan of the Youngstown Municipal Railway, used in the safety campaign mentioned above. Five commandments were stressed in the newspaper advertisements:

"Cross streets only at street intersections. Look both ways before crossing a street; look out for approaching automobiles and street cars before stepping off a curb, look behind before turning your machine or wagon upon the car tracks; and safeguard the children and teach them to be safe."

All simple reminders, but necessary, and constantly in need of repetition.



What traction companies term "the parking evil" is also being attacked in the advertising columns of newspapers.

Main streets, the traction companies contend, are being blocked for through traffic by parked cars. The congested condition resulting is dangerous to human lives. A thorough advertising campaign against this "evil," was conducted by the Northern Texas Traction Company, using newspaper space. It did not talk generalities. A reporter was sent by the company to various congested districts of Fort Worth, and what he found was told in paid copy.

The text of one advertisement in the series explains the system probably applicable in many another city. It reads:

"Parking around the First Baptist Church of Fort Worth on Sunday is becoming an alarming problem—and a most difficult and tiresome task. When you get ready to go to church or Sunday school on either this coming or some future Sunday morning, think of the many tiresome parking experiences you have had—and then—remember that you don't have to park your street cars."

An advertisement used by the El Paso

WAS YOUR AUTOMOBILE ON YOUR MIND TODAY?

What becomes of your automobile when you are in your office all day?

It stands unprotected in all weathers. The sun blisters the top and rots the tires. The rain ruins the leather.

It is covered with dust and grit. Thieves may steal everything that is not firmly riveted to the frame.

Can you give your whole attention to your business when your automobile is on your mind during every business hour?

USE THE STREET CAR FOR BUSINESS—SAVE THE AUTOMOBILE FOR PLEASURE.

Cut out the wear and tear on your Car, your Mind and your Nerves. Relax after the business of the day is over.

Take the trolley to and from your work—and take your family for a pleasure ride in your auto.

"Ride the street car and save the difference."

USE THE STREET CAR FOR BUSINESS—SAVE THE AUTOMOBILE FOR PLEASURE.

The Northern Ohio Traction and Light Co.

Trolley companies contend the automobile is for pleasure and the street car for business and are endeavoring to impress this point by use of paid newspaper space as shown above.

Electric Railway Company capitalized on the time frequently wasted by motorists, who drive "all over town trying to find a place to park." The copy argued that if the auto was only being used for transportation to and from business, the owner could save time and money by riding the trolley.

"Boost the community and the community will boost you" is the attitude that has been taken by other wide-awake traction companies and money is being spent to advertise various sections, the development of which will aid the trolley line.

"Street Cars Build Homes," was the headline of a newspaper advertisement run by the Southern Ohio Public Service Company.

"Adequate, progressive economical street car service is the thing your community must have for social and industrial growth," is the essence of the message conveyed.

Then electric railways are being urged to tell their communities about their personnel. Conductors and motormen are being considered more and more as the salesmen of the line. Telling about these employees, their training, and the service they are instructed to give, is thought to be one way to sell the traction company to the people through advertising.

The majority of trolley lines throughout the country are fighting the paving tax, and the suggestion recently went out from the headquarters office of the American Electric Railway Association that newspaper advertising be used as a weapon. The suggestion was accompanied by a series of advertisements in matrice form. Three states and 50 cities have been granted relief from the paving tax, but it is common elsewhere to tax traction companies to pay for paving between the rails and two feet on each side. Where relief was granted advertising was responsible. The association contends that the tax dates back to horse car days when cedar blocks between the rails were worn away by the horses. The series of newspaper advertisements planned to combat this tax are built around the slogan "The Damage Died with Dobbin."

Intelligent financial statements published in newspapers as advertisements have proved beneficial to some trolley companies. The effort is being made to eliminate technical terms, to tell the financial story, for instance, in terms of car riders.

Another advertising trend in the traction field is the use of paid space in obtaining franchises. Twenty years ago franchises were obtained by dark political intrigue. Now advertising campaigns are conducted in newspapers to sell the franchise to the people.

While some traction companies are hammering the bus lines in their copy, others are assimilating bus lines and are running supplemental advertising campaigns to boost both transportation units. And while editors in many sections of the country are calling for a five-cent fare, consistent advertising has made a variable charge possible.

"Results pay a high tribute to the power of advertising," Mr. Storrs has said. "When our industry began telling its story to the public, one-sixth of its local mileage was in bankruptcy and the rest was headed for a crash.

"Today practically every large property has emerged from receivership. The nickel fare, or any fixed fare appears to have been shaken off for all time.

"Nor is the monetary result the only one from this publicity. It was quickly realized that advertising is wasted unless service goes with it, and as a result, service has greatly improved."

THOMPSON GOLF WINNER

Pittsburgh Man With Low Gross of 82 in I. A. A. Meet

Robert Thompson, of Pittsburgh, led the field in the annual convention golf tournament of the International Advertising Association over the Manufacturers Club course, Philadelphia, Friday, June 25. Representing the Pittsburgh Advertising Club he shot a low gross of 82 and won a silver bowl donated by Cyrus H. K. Curtis.

Harry Donahue, of the Poor Richard Club, won a silver plaque donated by E. T. Stotesbury with a low net of 79, and Ray Neill and John C. Martin, both of the Poor Richard Club, tied for second place with low nets of 77 each, the prize for which was a silver pitcher donated by Rodman Wanamaker.

J. B. Mackenzie, of the Poor Richard Club, was chairman of the committee in charge of the tournament.

Bimba Appeal Up in October

The appeal case of Anthony Bimba, the Brooklyn, N. Y., editor, charged with blasphemy in an address at Brockton, Mass., will come up at the October term of superior court in that city.

Muskogee Press Sold

Properties of the Eastern Oklahoma Publishing Company, publisher of the Muskogee (Okla.) Press, afternoon newspaper, have been sold to Ben B. Wheeler for $20,100. Wheeler announced that publication of the daily will continue under the same name.

HOW LIBEL LAW PUNISHES CARELESSNESS

Punitive Damages May Be Awarded in Some States for Inadvertent Errors Introduced as Evidenc of Malice—Theory Is to Warn Publishers Never to Offend Again

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Publishers in states where the libel law and its interpretation by the courts permits assessment of heavy punitive damages in cases of slight error are in constant peril of paying out huge sums for small mistakes, difficult to avoid in the rapid sweep of the news.

Harold Cross, member of the New York bar, and secretary of the New York Herald Tribune, this week explains the law of his state in this regard, in the 16th article of a series stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

Editor & Publisher is seeking information regarding punitive damages in other states, and would appreciate the co-operation of its readers in forwarding data to the writer of this series.

CARELESSNESS is a crime, anyone will admit; and newspaper men have more reason to be careful than many. It is always fair, on the other hand, to make the punishment suit the crime, and the penalty for inadvertent newspaper carelessness seems in many an instance to be too severe and unjust.

New York libel law is probably more harsh in regard to carelessness than that of most other states. Newspapers in many states, in fact, have already obtained legislative relief from heavy punitive damages, except where there is real malice. In others, as in New York, publishers stand in constant peril of punishment, in addition to liability for compensatory and special damages, for what is frequently mere inadvertent error.

Typographical errors, misspelling, cases of mistaken identity, slips in make-up, slight exaggeration and over-play are frequently classed by courts as evidences of wanton carelessness and therefore subject to punishment without limit.

The situation as it exists in New York and in those states where reform has not yet been accomplished by legislative enactment was described for the writer by Harold Cross, member of the New York firm of Sackett, Chapman, Brown and Cross, attorneys for the New York Herald Tribune. Mr. Cross is secretary of the Herald Tribune, and is also a lecturer on libel law at the Pulitzer School of Journalism, Columbia University, New York.

"At the present time in New York," Mr. Cross explained, "a jury may award punitive damages, in addition to and as distinguished from compensatory damages, if it finds that there was actual malice in the libellous publication. The courts have defined actual malice to mean either personal ill will (which may be evidenced by proof of the existence of spite, or by the severe character of the publication) or such gross carelessness as is equivalent to wanton disregard of the plaintiff's rights.

"Stated in that form the rule does not appear unnecessarily harsh, but as a matter of fact, the courts allow evidence of any carelessness, however slight, to go to the jury on the issue of actual malice.

"The result is that in practically every case, in practically every libel suit, newspaper publishers are subjected to the peril of an award of punitive damages.

"The theory behind the law of punitive damages is that a publisher should be punished for actual malice as a warning never to offend again. Is that just where there has been mere negligence without wanton recklessness?

"There is no limit to the amount of punitive damages that may be awarded by a jury. For example, in a recent case a jury awarded $75,000 as punitive damages in addition to the amount which the jury thought compensated the plaintiff for his mental anguish and the loss of his reputation.

"We thus have a situation where a publisher may be punished without limit for mere carelessness, besides being required to make good to the plaintiff a sum to cover his loss of reputation.

"The injustice becomes apparent when it is realized that when a publisher is convicted by a jury of criminal libel, the utmost penalty that can be inflicted is fixed by statute. The maximum fine for criminal cases amounts to only a few hundred dollars. In a civil case, where no criminal issue is being litigated, there is absolutely no limitation to the punishment that can be inflicted."

Mr. Cross illustrated his point by citing a case where punitive damages were awarded against the New York Tribune.

The Tribune published a story of a fist fight sent in to the paper by an out-of town correspondent. It was published by another New York newspaper at the same time. The correspondent's source of information was in error. There had been no fist fight, and a libel suit was brought against the Tribune.

"The correspondent had served the Tribune for more than 20 years," Mr. Cross declared. "Never before had he been guilty of error or carelessness. Nevertheless, the court charged the jury that it might find actual malice because the newspaper had not communicated before publication with the person libeled, who lived in a distant city.

"It may well be doubted, whether in any other field of human relations it is considered gross carelessness and recklessness to rely on the trustworthiness of an employe who has served more than a score of years without a known or alleged mistake.

"Such injustice has been recognized and corrected by legislative enactment in some states, where the statutes provide in effect that although a plaintiff may recover damages for his loss of reputation and for his pain and suffering and for any actual pecuniary loss if the article was libellous and neither true no privileged, he cannot recover punitive damages, unless he shows either that the newspaper has been guilty of actual ill will or that he requested a retraction, which the newspaper refused to publish. The proper law, to my mind, is one that leaves libel plaintiffs free to recover their full compensations for loss of reputation, mental anguish and pecuniary loss, but protects the publisher from punishment, except where punishment is actually deserved."

The newspaper machine is a human machine, worked at high speed, and it is well nigh impossible to prevent errors from creeping in, and laws permitting the introduction of mere carelessness as evidence of actual malice are unjust.

Newspapers are generally, and they should be, prompt in correcting errors, but, Mr. Cross pointed out, editors closing the door to one libel by correction or retraction are apt to step into another case, unless they are extremely careful.

"In true journalism it is a proper policy to publish a fair correction of any inaccurate statement, if it is desired by the person aggrieved, as promptly as practicable after the fact of error has been ascertained," Mr. Cross said. "The policy is applicable in the case of disparaging statements which are not sufficiently severe to be defamatory in a legal sense.

"It is a policy of fair play that makes an appeal and is effective in reducing damages and in rebutting whatever evidence the libel plaintiff may happen to have of what the law terms is 'actual malice.'

"An explanatory or corrective statement to be most effective in the defense of a libel action should be full and frank, but care should always be taken that it does not contain anything defamatory of others and that it does not assume a legal responsibility that the newspaper did not assume in the original publication.

"For example, the original publication may be the report of one side of a case in a judicial proceeding and therefore privileged. The other party to the controversy might desire reference to his side of the case, and, in ordinary circumstances, is entitled to it; but the publisher should nevertheless take care to have it plainly appear that the statement of his side is explanatory and not in any sense a correction or retraction.

"Thus, suppose the Herald Tribune publishes an article saying that an action for fraud has been started by Tom Brown against John Smith. The story sets down the circumstances of the alleged fraud as outlined in some pleading or statement submitted to a court or on which a court has taken judicial action. Smith, the defendant, contends there is no fraud, and asks that reference be made to his side of the controversy.

"The publication of Brown's original statement charging Smith with fraud, although libellous, was privileged. If, in its statement published on the instance of the defendant, the Herald Tribune were to assume the truth of Smith's contention of innocence, it might put itself in the position of charging Brown, plaintiff in the fraud suit, with perjury.

"In short, explanatory statements, whether they are mere explanations or corrections or retractions, should, from the standpoint of defense in libel s be freely published in proper cases, care should be taken that these st ments will neither libel others nor barrass the newspaper if a suit brought"

The New York World has in Bureau of Accuracy and Fair I established in 1913, a highly efficient tem of making prompt and fair co tions when they are due.

All complaints of error are immedi turned over to Isaac D. White, d tor of the bureau, who sees that the investigated and if the newspape wrong that justice is promptly giv

"We have found that it pays to h all complaints with promptness and cision," Mr. White said to Editc Publisher. "In addition to ma straightforward and adequate pr corrections when we are at fault, w lieve in writing personally a repl every complainant, enclosing a cli of the correction and expressing on gret that the error was made."

File after file of complimentary ters in the office of the New World's Bureau of Accuracy and Play testify to the public favor in this careful system of handling paper mistakes is held. The ma of complainants are satisfied witl fair play given by the bureau, a not carry the error to the courts.

FAREWELL GESTURE OF A SOCIETY EDITOR

Reprinted from F. P. A.'s "Conning Tower," New York World, June 22

Here in this cubby-hole, littered with papers,
I've watched the old world at its comical capers,
I've talked on the phone to the socially prominent,
The weak-voiced sisters, the stern and the dominant,
The poor-but-grand, and the rich-and-lordly,
And elegant ones who conversed quite boredly;
I've cheered my soul with overmuch reading
And begged for pictures in tones most pleading;
Times have been when I've given them blessing
Because they were kind beyond all confessing—
As one at a horse show sees gallant steeds prancing,
So I have observed Society, dancing,
Made notes on flowers, and persons, and dresses,
And left unprinted some obvious caresses.
I have smiled at their airs and ignored their passion,
And shrugged my shoulders, "So this is Fashion!"
And this is the end: I leave to-morrow;
I shall write a book to drown my sorrow!

ELIZABETH MALCOLME DURHAM

ANNOUNCE NEW PRI IN HARVARD AWAR

Advertising Competition Now Reward for Trade Paper Camp and Local Drives in Cities 100,000—Total $12,000

Two new prizes of $2,000 each been added to the list of the Harva vertising Awards, it was announc week by Dean Wallace B. Donh the Harvard Business School. awards were founded in 1923 by E W. Bok.

The new prizes are offered f best advertising campaign which publicity for industrial products t industrial, trade, or professional jo or for the best campaign executed in cities of 100,000 population or le

The awards of former years inc $2,000 prize for the best nation local campaigns aimed to adverti cific products, a $2,000 prize for th est accomplishment in advertising r toward reducing wasteful expe four prizes of $1,000 each for inc advertisements and a gold medal tinguished services to advertising.

A jury to be chosen later wil the awards on the merits of the p and execution of the campaigns material to be considered for thes must be submitted, according to nouncement, before Dec. 31, 1926, awards will be made early in Jan

Kaltenborn on Wrecked T

H. V. Kaltenborn, associate e the Brooklyn Eagle was a passe the Cape Cod express, wrecked at ton, R. I., June 26, with a loss lives. After ascertaining that the passengers in his car were he collected details of the wre warding them to the Eagle on a the nearest telegraph station.

Correction

In an advertisement appearin week's Editor & Publisher Intertype Corporation it was in stated that there were 40 inste Intertypes being used by the (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal.

The Home Newspaper Sells The Home Purchasing Agent

Detroit News During First Five Months of 1926 Leads In Every Type of Advertising Dependent On the Home

THE DETROIT NEWS has peculiarly been the home newspaper since its inception. Fresh, vigorous, clean and independent, it has from the start made itself indispensable to the home, and as a result has led in circulation for more than half a century. Being the home newspaper it was only natural that The News should so conduct its editorial columns as to give the woman of the household, no less than the man, articles and news of special appeal.

Its Women's Pages have thus become the most widely read of any in the Middle West. Hundreds of thousands of letters received annually by the Women's Editor testify to the interest these pages hold. Advertisers were not slow to grasp the significance of so strong an appeal. They know that the woman is directly or indirectly responsible for 90% of the household purchases. Consequently, they have continued to place more and more of their advertising in the columns of The News.

Listed here are the classes of advertising conceded by all to be those that are dependent on reader interest for results. It will be noted that The Detroit News carries more advertising than both other Detroit papers combined in all but a few classifications and that even in these The News leads.

In total advertising The News likewise carries more lineage than both other papers combined. During the first five months of this year, as during all of 1925, The News led all other newspapers in America in advertising.

Note the Lead of The News in These Classifications

Space in Inches	News	2nd Paper	3rd Paper
2 Automobiles	61,741	52,939	32,208
1 Dept. Stores	194,739	55,944	55,570
1 Drug Stores	6,625	296	1,594
1 Electrical	12,800	3,781	3,350
1 Footwear	10,284	5,077	4,481
1 Furniture	109,187	9,695	28,907
1 Grocery and Food Products	37,973	11,668	13,269
1 Hardware and Sport Goods	4,313	2,178	1,406
1 Household Articles and Equipment	10,928	3,639	2,692
1 Jewelry, Watches, etc	15,547	1,614	9,107
2 Musical Instruments and Supplies	12,362	5,061	7,785
1 Radio	19,526	6,006	7,053
1 Rotogravure	13,264	1,826	.....
2 Tobacco	10,601	7,442	7,328
1 Toilet Articles and Shops	9,968	4,111	4,598
1 Men's Wear	38,219	14,215	12,652
1 Women's Wear	85,994	12,895	15,292

Key: (1) The Detroit News has more than all other Detroit newspapers combined.

(2) News leads.

The Detroit News

335,000 Sunday Circulation The HOME Newspaper 320,000 Week Day Circulation

LIBEL SYMPOSIUM TO FEATURE S. N. P. A. CONVENTION NEXT WEEK

Southern Laws to Be Surveyed with View of Possible Revision 200 Reservations Received for Meeting at Asheville—Johnson Plans to Retire

THE twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association at Grove Park Inn., Asheville, N. C., July 6, 7 and 8 will be the largest in point of attendance the association has ever held. More than 200 publishers and members of their families will be present when the convention is called to order Tuesday morning, July 6.

Walter C. Johnson

President Walter C. Johnson announces all sessions will begin promptly at 9 a. m. and adjourn promptly at 1:30 p. m.

The program for the opening day includes reports of the officers, nominations, and the beginning of the reports from the different standing committees. A feature of Wednesday's program will be the election of officers, and for the closing day a symposium has been listed.

Announcement has also been made from S. N. P. A. headquarters in Chattanooga that special consideration will be given to libel laws in an effort to obtain laws in Southern States which are considered fair to the publishers.

A special memorial service will be conducted in memory of members of the Association who have died during the past year. A special service has also been arranged for the memory of Edgar M. Foster, business manager of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner who died June 20. He was president of the S. N. P. A. in 1907-8 and was in charge of the S. N. P. A. advertising campaign.

A feature of the entertainment program will be golf tournaments of eighteen holes, at the Asheville County Club at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, July 7. Members of the S. N. P. A. will contest in one section while guests and all others in attendance will be invited to contest in other sections.

Twenty or more prizes of practically equal value are offered by various auxiliary concerns in each section. Medal scores will count. Handicaps both straight and kickers must be established by the golf tournament committee by or before Tuesday, July 6. Prizes will be displayed at Grove Park Inn Tuesday, July 6. Walter H. Savory is chairman of this committee and serving with him are Richard Wasson, and Elmer E. Clark.

Announcement is also made that the ladies and gentlemen attending the convention will be guests of the citizens of Asheville on an automobile tour of the city and environs Tuesday afternoon. At the conclusion of the drive they will be tendered a reception and tea by the Asheville Times and the Asheville Citizen.

Ladies' entertainments for Wednesday and Thursday afternoons in the lobby of Grove Park Inn, will be arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. Walter C. Johnson, chairman; Mrs. V. H. Hanson, Mrs. George K. Kohn, Mrs. C. A. Webb, Mrs. D. W. S. Elias, Mrs. W. O. Boger, Mrs. Charles K. Robinson, Mrs. L. E. Fisher and Mrs. Randall Harris.

Officers are of the opinion that one of the most profitable features of convention will be discussions of trade topics in the hours set aside for symposiums, on Wednesday and Thursday. They state that subjects of vital concern to every newspaper in the Association will be taken up. Everyone interested will be invited to participate.

Maj. Allen Potts, of the Richmond (Va.) News Leader will preside over the Labor and Mechanical departments discussions. H. Galt Braxton of the Kinston (N. C.) Free Press will preside over the advertising topics.

W. A. Elliott, of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times Union and L. K. Nicholson, of the New Orleans (La.) Times Picayune, will preside over the editorial topics.

President Johnson is completing ten years continuous service as an executive of the S. N. P. A. and it is understood he will ask for retirement to the ranks pledging his active interest in the affairs of the Association. He will recommend that appropriate recognition be made next year of the 25th anniversary of the S. N. P. A. A report will be made by James B. Nevin, editor of the Atlanta Georgian and chairman of a special committee as a result of the conference last fall at Vanderbilt University to consider the best means of bringing about co-operation between Southern newspapers and institutions of higher learning.

The committee reports as well as those of the officers have been prepared and will be presented in booklet form to all members of the Association in order that the reports may be discussed at length.

President Walter Johnson will leave Chattanooga Saturday by automobile and will drive through the country to Asheville with his wife and two children arriving there Sunday night. Secretary-Manager Craston Williams will also arrive in Asheville Sunday night.

Moran on the Equator

Casey Moran former editor of the Dawson City (Alaska) Dagger has just brought out the first number of the Maracaibo (Venezuela) Tropical Sun, leaping from the Arctic Circle to the equator. Maracaibo is at present the scene of an oil boom. Editor Moran produced a 12 page tabloid size with no type smaller than ten point and with foreign speaking printers who composed by matching type and copy. "There is no doubt about it," apologized the globe-trotting editor in the first number "this is a h—— of a looking Ne(u)spaper." He explained that the printers ran out of w's before the editorial page was reached.

Labor M. P.s Boycott Dailies

Scottish Labor members of the British Parliament have pledged themselves not to give news to representatives of the Glasgow and Dundee newspapers that have declared themselves non-union since the general strike. The M. P.s have also asked labor organizations and trade unions to urge their members not to buy the papers. As the principal papers of the two cities have declared non-union, there is little prospect of the boycott being serious in its effect.

LIBEL SUIT DISMISSED

Judge Acts Speedily Without Calling Defense Witnesses

Justice Charles H. Brown of the New York State supreme court, sitting at Mayville, dismissed the libel suit brought by Albert Woodward against the Jamestown (N. Y.) Morning Post without hearing defense after the plaintiff had presented his case.

Mr. Woodward contended an article published in the Post relative to a raid on a dance pavilion operated by him so injured his business that he was compelled to suspend. State troopers said the newspaper had reported only actual happenings, then this testimony, brought out in cross examination of plaintiff's witnesses, was sufficient to cause dismissal of the action.

Woodbridge to Address Coast Clubs

C. King Woodbridge, president of the International Advertising Association, will address the annual convention of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs Association, meeting in San Francisco, July 5-8. Mr. Woodbridge will return east via Seattle, Minneapolis and Chicago, stopping to address the National Retail Furniture Institute in Grand Rapids, July 15.

Adopts Eight Column Page

The Albany (Ore.) Democrat-Herald, which recently changed its body type from eight point to seven, on July 1, increased its page size to eight columns.

BRIDGEPORT TIMES SOLD BY KENDALL CRESSEY

New Owners to Be Announced Later—Former Owner Bought Paper in 1925 After Leaving Hearst Boston Daily

Kendall B. Cressey, president of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Times Company, publishing the Bridgeport Times, issued the following statement to the Bridgeport newspapers Tuesday morning of this week:

"I have as of this day sold my controlling interest in the Bridgeport Times Company, and have resigned as president and treasurer. I have also resigned as editor and publisher of the Times. The names of the new owners of the Times will be announced at such time as they may desire."

Mr. Cressey took control of the old Times Publishing Company in November, 1924, and became the actual owner of the Bridgeport Times at the time he organized his new corporation, the Bridgeport Times Company, on Feb. 1, 1925.

At the time Cressey sold the Times, he was the owner of 90 per cent of the common stock and 80 per cent of the first preferred stock.

Mr. Cressey said he would make no plans until fall. With Mrs. Cressey he will spend July and August on a vacation.

Mr. Cressey purchased the Bridgeport Times shortly after his resignation from the Hearst service. He had previously been publisher of the Boston Daily and Sunday Advertiser.

New Directory Gives

Jacksonville

a Population of 180,070

R. L. Polk & Company, announces Jacksonville's population, exclusive of South Jacksonville, is 180,070.

With a daily city circulation of 26,000, the Florida Times-Union is serving 72% of this population. (Figures based upon the official 5 readers to a paper). In addition to this impressive city coverage, the Florida Times-Union leads all other Florida publications in state circulation.

The Florida Times-Union

JACKSONVILLE

DAILY 53,000 SUNDAY 70,000

THE WATERTOWN STANDARD

Northern New York's Leading Newspaper

announces effective July 1st

ADDISON B. PARKER

Publisher and General Manager

ADDISON B. PARKER, for seven years Deputy Secretary of State of New York, the man who managed the campaign that elected Nathan E. Miller, Governor of New York, the man who for four years has been General Manager of the Watertown Standard, now becomes Publisher and General Manager.

Mr. Parker's advancement is just one step in a series which is making the leadership of Watertown Standard in the Northern New York field even more dominant than it is today.

WATERTOWN STANDARD

WATERTOWN, NEW YORK

Largest total circulation.
Largest home delivery.
Largest Department Store advertising volume.
Most local advertising.
Largest classified volume.

Watertown, the hub of Northern New York's great dairy and paper manufacturingindustries, a rich market for national advertisers.

NORTHERN NEW YORK'S LEADING NEWSPAPER

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

OF the mistakes of newspaper editors we have heard enough and to spare in the magazines. E. W. Howe who has a lot of fun editing a monthly "devoted to indignation and information' chats in his current issue about "The Mistakes of Magazine Editors." Ed. knows a thing or two about fiction for he once wrote "The Story of a Country Town." Of this book the great American critic, Charles Dudley Warner, once said, "The book is one of the small number of genuine American books which cannot be left out when we reckon up our literature of fiction." Warner was not only a good critic but also an able newspaper man —as all who worked with him on the Hartford Courant can testify.

* * *

BETWEEN assignments or between takes a rattling good short story to read is "Extra! Extra!" which Robert E. Sherwood, editor of Life, contributes to Scribner's Magazine for July. It leaves the reader still wondering what the "Extra" was about, but realizing that he has read a little chapter from life's real story.

* * *

CLARENCE S. BRIGHAM, librarian of the American Antiquarian Society at Worcester, Mass., is author of a pamphlet that will interest all editors and publishers who are collecting material relating to the history of journalism in the United States. This particular pamphlet deals with the various newspapers which for various reasons have appeared printed on wall paper. A copy may be obtained upon application to Clarence S. Brigham, American Antiquarian Society, Worcester, Mass.

* * *

THE fourth edition of "Population and Its Distribution," compiled by the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency, is now off the press. For advertisers this volume has five helpful features.

Of these five possibly the most important is the listing of 679 retail shopping areas, each one of which represents a shopping district with commercial rather than poltical boundaries. A complete set of maps is an excellent supplement to this feature.

Another feature, given for the first time in this edition, is the extension of population and income tax figures to counties. It makes it possible to determine sales quotas on the basis of population per income tax per county.

A new compilation of retail and wholesale dealers adds to the attractiveness of the volume. Eighteen trades are covered by states and counties: they include automobiles, drugs, hardware, grocery, etc.

Another one of these features is the listing of chain stores in every city with a population of over 25,000. So far as I know "Population and Its Distribution" is the first to have such figures within the covers of a book.

The last of these features may be found in the population figures for 1925. These are based on state censuses and federal estimates. Cities and towns in each state are grouped according to population. This feature makes this book especially valuable for the editorial rooms. The chief appeal of the volume is of course to those who work in the advertising department.

* * *

IN "Business Ethics" (The Ronald Press) may be found considerable material relating to the ethical advance in advertising. Frankly, however, one of the best things in the volume is a quotation from a pamphlet that came from the pen of Claude C. Hopkins of the Lord & Thomas Agency in Chicago. He received the request from an editor of a paper to write his views regarding sensational newspapers. He had been a strenuous fighter for clean advertising and this particular editor evidently thought the campaign would be started for clean news columns. The pamphlet by Mr. Hopkins is entitled "Sensational Newspapers" and the quotation given in "Business Ethics" is as follows:

> The sensational newspaper does more to promote law and order than all the policemen, all the jails in existence. "Death by Moonshine" is the greatest temperance lecture ever written. The picture of a car in a tree, with the headline, "Going 60 Miles an Hour" is the greatest speed eradicator. "Banker Goes to Jail" is the chief protection for our money.
>
> Sensational newspapers, at the cost of a few cents daily, tell us the wages of every sort of sin. It would cost one a fortune in fines, perhaps, to learn as much as he learns at one breakfast table. It would take a hundred years in jail, a score of divorces and two score of beatings to learn what he learns for some 25 cents a week.

* * *

> Many of us, at some points of life's journey, meet infatuations. Most of us do not exhibit them. What is the reason? It lies mainly in the sensational newspaper.
>
> We are dressing some night for a dinner to meet the attractive lady. As we dress we glance over the headlines, and we see, "The Husband's Revenge." We never need to wade far into details to keep us in line for that evening.
>
> Next time it may be, "Wife Leaves Home." Next time, "Wife Shoots Rival." There is always something in the papers which keeps us fairly tame.
>
> Again one thinks of writing the lady a letter. He jots down an outline of what he would say. Then he glances at a paper, and there, behold, is a copy of his letter, almost word for word. It was used that day as evidence in a divorce case or a suit for breach of promise. The letter begins, "My Heaven's Eyes" and ends, "Your Baby," just like the letter proposed. Then somehow that letter looks rather silly.
>
> The idea of a bungalow with an underground passage holds strange infatuation for some men. But when one is ready to draw up the plans he reads of a man who possessed such a love nest and who shot himself on a lonely road.

* * *

ALFRED A. KNOPF will publish this month "Agricultural Journalism" by Nelson Antrim Crawford, director of information of the United States Department of Agriculture and Charles Elkins Rogers, professor of Industrial Journalism, of the Kansas-State Agricultural College. This field of journalism has not been previously covered in book form and each of the authors has had practical experience both in writing agricultural articles and in teaching agricultural journalism. Only recently Mr. Crawford was director of the Department of Agricultural Journalism at the Kansas State Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kan.

* * *

THE School of Journalism at the University of Oregon publishers monthly a house organ for the newspaper folk of that state. It is called Oregon Exchanges. The current issue opens with an interesting interview, "Journalism and Diplomacy," which E. E. Brodie, editor and publisher of the Oregon City Enterprise, recently gave to Jack Hempstead, a junior in the school. Mr. Brodie, it will be remembered, was in 1921 elected president of the National Editorial Association and more recently was United States minister to Siam from which he returned about a year ago to resume his editorial duties on the Enterprise.

* * *

CHARLES ANDERSON DANA used to recommend the Bible to cub reporters for its style. Other editors are making continued reference to the beauty of the King James version. Consequently the pamphlet, "The English Bible," by William D. Melton, president of the University of South Carolina, ought to be on the shelves of the newspaper library. A copy can be obtained by Addressing President Melton, University of South Carolina, Columbia, S. C.

* * *

A LITTLE over a year ago William Allen White, editor of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette, delivered a series of lectures at the University of North Carolina on American citizenship. These lectures, somewhat elaborated, have now appeared in book form under the title, "Some Cycles of Cathay" (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.). America, according to Mr. White, has passed through three major political cycles: the Revolutionary cycle, the Anti-Slavery cycle, and the Populist cycle. Mr. White also believes that each one of these cycles is a part of the still larger cycle of the growth and development of democracy in America. Editorial writers who obviously are interested in currents of modern thought and tendencies of political parties will find this volume stimulating and worth perusal, even though they may not agree with everything that is said by the Sage of Emporia.

The chapter which especially challenges thought is the one with which the volume concludes, "What of the Future?" The answer given by Mr. White is:

> The race never has seen even one stage ahead upon its journey. Is it not presumable that democracy and its ideals are established to gather men into some vast unity for another flight? Surely these impassioned voices crying across our times for justice, surely all this clanging of machinery, all this hiving in industry, all this organizing of commerce, all this levelling up of democracy, all the aspirations of the prophets of our age for the natural rights of man and the call of brotherhood that have been massing men by millions over the earth with a common mind and a quickening heart, surely these signs and wonders are portents of a new order. Surely we are pipping at the shell of a larger destiny.

* * *

THE latest book to come to my desk is "Printing Ink" (Harper & Bros.) by Frank B. Wiborg, one of the founders of the great firm of Ault and Wiborg, manufacturers of printing inks. The book will be reviewed in this department at an early date.

Extra Issued on Editor's Birthday

The Middletown (N. Y.) Times-Press recently issued an extra edition in honor of the 69th birthday of Henry P. Powers, Goshen editor. Lead position in the extra carried a story telling of the gift of a fountain pen to the editor by the newspaper's staff.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S Circulation Organization

Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg., LOS ANGELES

No dull Summer in Los Angeles!

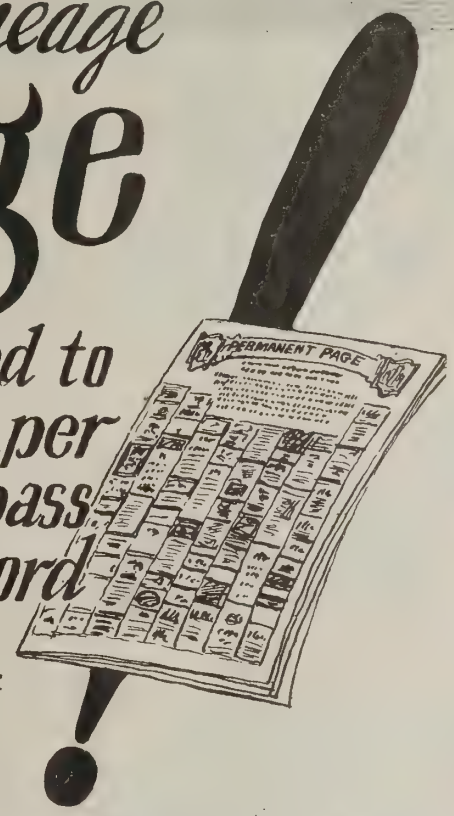
Keep your schedules active - in June, July, and August!

Los Angeles Examiner

The DAILY OKLAHOMAN OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES

thoroughly and alone cover the Oklahoma City Market

Agricultural authorities predict a 60,000,000 to 80,000,000 bushel wheat crop for Oklahoma—which should yield an income of from sixty-five to ninety millions of dollars.



Moreover, this income is "spendable" and with other crop prospects should assure the greatest fall business in Oklahoma's history, barring possibly two war years.

The Oklahoman and Times thoroughly and alone cover the entire Oklahoma City market—the great Central and Western portions of the state—which will share largest in Oklahoma's bumper wheat crop.

E. KATZ SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENCY

New York Chicago Kansas City Detroit Atlanta San Francisco

A man may be proud of his ancient Lineage but new lineage is required to make a newspaper proud and surpass last year's record

This Pride Can Be Attained by Using One or More of

BRIGGS' PROVEN FEATURE PAGES

Which will Add 100,000 to 500,000 Lines to Your Annual Lineage—Created from a NEW SOURCE.

The Briggs Organization is equipped to create new business principally from manufacturers, industrial plants, jobbers, wholesalers, and others who are now spending their appropriations in forms of advertising other than newspaper display. Briggs' men are competent, especially trained for developing this heretofore untouched field for newspaper publishers. They can make long term contracts grow where no contracts have grown before. The Briggs Organization does not interfere in any way with the regular staff.

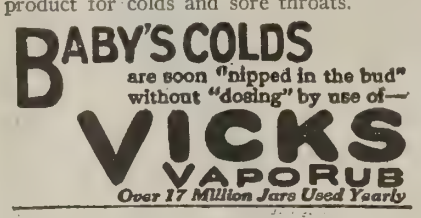
IF YOU HAVE A PROBLEM, WE CAN SOLVE IT BY PROMOTING FOR YOU ONE OR MORE OF OUR TWELVE FEATURE PAGES. MORE THAN EIGHTY LEADING DAILIES THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA ARE USING THESE PAGES TO ADD TO THEIR LINEAGE.

FEATURE EDITIONS

Our special edition department, consisting of the highest class trained men in this particular field, is now in a position to handle special sections, such as rotogravure (tabloid or full size), feature editions in black and white and anything in the way of special editions whenever the occasion warrants. Write or wire us. We will gladly present further details to you without obligation.

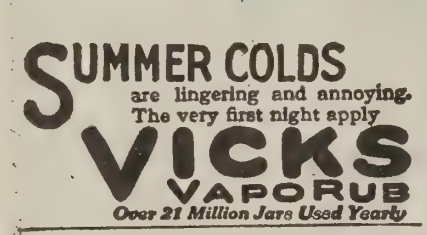
Thomas W. Briggs Co.

HOME OFFICE - COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER
MEMPHIS, TENN.



Largest Organization of its Kind in United States and Canada

VICK'S, SEASONAL PRODUCT, RUNNING COPY THROUGH SUMMER MONTHS



Reminder Ads First Run, Then Copy Stressing Value of Product for Hot Weather Ailments—Serves as Strong Link Between Seasons of Big Sales

By HAMMOND EDWARD FRANKLIN

ANY manufacturer who considers his business seasonal, and who wonders what he can do to make it at least a little less so, should consider the plan now being followed by the Vick Chemical Company of Greensboro, N. C., makers of Vick's VapoRub, a proprietary product for colds and sore throats.

Small in size but having both reminder and sales value—Three specimens of Vick's summer copy for dailies

Here, if anything, is a product which is seasonal in appeal. In cold weather, it is evident it would meet its real demand. Ever since the product was put on the market 25 years ago, the company planned its advertising to appear in newspapers during the winter season and offer its product for colds and allied ailments in small, persistent space.

Eight or nine years ago it occurred to an executive of the company that it would be well to keep some advertising running through the hot weather, not with the idea of pushing Vick's for special summer needs, but as sound policy in keeping the product before the public to a certain extent all the time, in season and out—"keeping everlastingly at it."

The company simply ran the same reminder advertisements in the summer as the winter.

"The idea dawned on us that Vick's did have a number of summer uses covering summer ailments which we had been overlooking in our enthusiasm in getting distribution throughout the whole of the United States," outlined C. A. Holland to EDITOR & PUBLISHER the other day.

"Four years ago we decided to run a special summer newspaper campaign featuring the use of Vick's for such summer ailments and inconveniences as summer colds, sunburn, bites and stings, etc., and hay fever in the late summer and fall."

About 25 per cent of the firm's annual appropriation for advertising was used for this campaign. Apparently the public had been well convinced of the value of the product for colds, but was not yet won to the new hot weather uses for the result in direct sales the first season was nothing to get excited about. However, the company felt its policy was right and its persistence would be bound, over a period, to affect summer sales and widen the consumption of the product at the same time it kept the name constantly before the public in off months.

The advertising department the same year prepared a year-'round set of small, one-inch reminders covering both winter and summer ailments. By the use of aluminotypes, a full set of these plates will last two or three years and this concern happens to be one which isn't afraid of using the same copy over again for a number of seasons when it believes it is using its space to advantage.

"We send all our papers complete sets of these basic reminder advertisements," Mr. Holland explained further. "In the fall, we pick out 15 or 20 of those we want run during the winter months and send instructions to run these and file away all the others for future use.

"Then in the spring, we pick out those we want run during the summer and have the winter plates filed away. Each summer for the last four years we have been running a light series of reminder advertisements taken from our full-year schedule."

The summer copy bears, in large hand letters, a single summer trouble, such as burns, hay fever, bites, stings, sore throat, sunburn, baby's colds, summer colds, head colds, with two lines of copy and the name, Vick's VapoRub, "over 21 million jars used yearly."

The company states:

"We are not setting the woods on fire with our summer sales, but we do believe it is possible to create a bigger summer demand. Moreover, we have a lot of faith in keeping our name persistently before the public and, aside from a direct sales effort, our summer reminder copy ties up nicely with our heavier winter schedule which preceded it and which will be in order again with the coming of cold weather.

"For our summer advertising, we use practically our full list of papers. This includes around 1,200 dailies and 600 weeklies with a total circulation of almost 20,000,000.

"We don't see any reason why manufacturers of products which are not strictly seasonable should have such a big problem in maintaining their sales during the summer months with judicious advertising coupled with a little extra merchandising to fit the season."

The financial statement of the Potter Drug & Chemical Corporation, another firm which believes in summer advertising and which markets Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum, recently has been issued. It shows a surplus of $2,030,249. Among its assets are $643,828 in cash on hand, $654,476 in accounts receivable, more than half a million dollars worth of machinery and real estate and securities and other assets, to boot. Its only liability is the inconsequential sum of $58,139 in accounts payable. The company's balance sheet shows a financial position which may well be the envy of any corporation.

Yet this concern, which distributes its line through every drug and department store in this and many other countries, has never had a salesman on the road. It depends entirely on demand from the consumer created by advertising which runs all the year in nearly every newspaper and which is just as constant in the summer as the winter.

"Putting up the shutters and going out to play golf just because it's summer and because it is thought a slump in sales is inevitably is folly," a New York business man declared recently, "and American executives ought to be keen enough to realize it."

Canadian Paper Exports Increase

Canadian exports of pulp and paper in May showed a considerable increase over the previous month according to the report issued by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association. Total exports for the month were valued at $13,143,410 as compared with $10,994,458 in April and with $12,451,667 in May, 1925. Exports of wood-pulp in May were valued at $3,756,685 and exports of paper at $9,386,725 compared with totals of $3,163,773 and $7,830,685 respectively in April.

W. C. Watson, Publisher, Dead

William C. Watson, 65, vice-president of the Bristol (Pa.) Courier died at his home in Bristol June 29. He had been in the newspaper business about 50 years, and was a former president of the Bucks County Press Association.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

Pe l Printing Company
Penn Yan, New York

Says—

"We consider the Duplex Model A Flatbed perfect mechanically, positively dependable, and by far the most profitable of any of the present day methods of printing a weekly newspaper."

DUPLEX PRESSES
FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

PEJEPSCOT PAPER COMPANY

Manufacturers for Over Fifty Years of

NEWSPRINT

Combining the Three Essentials of Quality
Strength • Cleanliness • Color

Colored Newsprint a Specialty

Daily Capacity — 160 TONS

PEJEPSCOT PAPER COMPANY ★ MAINE ★

MILLS IN THE STATE OF MAINE, U. S. A.
Sales Office: • 42 Broadway • New York, N. Y.

BUFFALO THE WONDER CITY OF AMERICA

To Financial Advertisers Seeking Business in Buffalo—

TO SECURE greatest possible results from financial advertising it should reach the investment buyer of the FUTURE as well as the investor of the present. In the Buffalo territory the News reaches and influences both.

The News is read in more than 140,000 homes in Western New York. Average daily circulation for May was 142,907.

The News has the interest of the investing public because it gives complete financial and business news—all the news and quotations of all the major markets.

The News gives TODAY'S financial news TODAY—when interest is most keen.

The News has unusual reader interest and influence because of its authentic news service and its well-known policy of protecting its readers by careful censorship of all advertising.

The market for financial advertisers is steadily increasing because new people are constantly reaching higher ground financially.

Reach both prospective and present investors in Buffalo by directing your advertising message to them through the paper they read—the News. It can be done effectively and at moderate cost.

Cover the Buffalo Market with the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

A. B. C. Mar. 31, 1926
134,469

EDWARD H. BUTLER, Editor and Publisher

Present Average Over 142,000

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York City

Waterman Building
Boston, Mass.

Atlantic Building
Philadelphia, Pa.

Tribune Tower
Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, Jr., Atlanta

N. Y. DAILY NEWS WINS $100,000 LIBEL SUIT

Two Weeks' Trial Ends in Victory for Defense in Action Brought by Mrs. S. L. Robertson—DeWitt Pleads Truth of Article

After two weeks' trial, a jury in Justice Philip J. McCook's part of New York supreme court returned a verdict for the defendant, June 25, in a $100,000 libel suit brought against the New York Daily News by Mrs. Sarah L. Robertson, of East Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Robertson's action, the seventh instituted by her against New York and New Jersey dailies for the same alleged libel, was based upon a story published in the Daily News, Feb. 24, 1925, which was an account of her confession to the charge of conspiring to defraud Lloyd's insurance company of $76,000 by framing a robbery of her insured jewels. Of the seven suits Mrs. Robertson has lost five and won two. The latter are on appeal. Tried in New Jersey courts on the conspiracy charge, Mrs. Robertson was acquitted. Then she started bringing libel actions against newspapers that had published her earlier confession.

She claimed she had not confessed to framing the robbery and asked damages.

MacDonald Dewitt, of Dewitt and Van Aken, attorneys for the News, in his summation to the jury said the issue at stake was whether the News' story of the confession was true or false.

"The issue is not whether or not the plaintiff is guilty of any crime," he said. "That has all been taken care of by the New Jersey authorities. The issue is whether or not the defendant, the New York Daily News, is guilty of publishing a false report, a serious crime in the conduct of the newspaper business."

Mr. Dewitt claimed in defense that the article complained of was published as a matter of news in the ordinary routine of business, and that it had been published with fairness to the plaintiff and with truthfulness to the public.

"While the plaintiff had demanded that the News print a retraction, I had advised my client that no retraction could be printed without the publisher of the News stultifying himself, because the original article was true," he said.

The lawyer asserted that both charges in the article the plaintiff had alleged were false and malicious were fair and true reports. These two charges, he pointed out, were: first, that the plaintiff had staged a hold-up at her home in Deal, N. J., for the purpose of defrauding Lloyds, and, secondly, that after she had been arrested, she had confessed to public authorities that she did stage the fake hold-up.

Mr. Dewitt showed to the satisfaction of the jury that the jewels which the plaintiff had taken from a safety deposit box to the Hotel McAlpin in New York on the Friday preceding the alleged hold-up and which she claimed were stolen by hold-up men were subsequently found in the kitchen closet of one of her friends in New York City where the plaintiff had secreted them on the Monday following the alleged hold-up.

Under cross examination by Mr. Dewitt, Mrs. Robertson was involved in many contradictions. The attorney brought out that the estate of the plaintiff's second husband which she had testified was worth more than $1,000,000 was in fact only $109,000, that she had been in continuous litigation for almost 30 years, and that shortly before the "hold-up" she needed money so badly she had had to pawn some of her jewels.

This was vehemently denied by Mrs. Robertson, but she was confronted with a letter she herself had written, stating that she had pawned some of her jewels to pay back taxes.

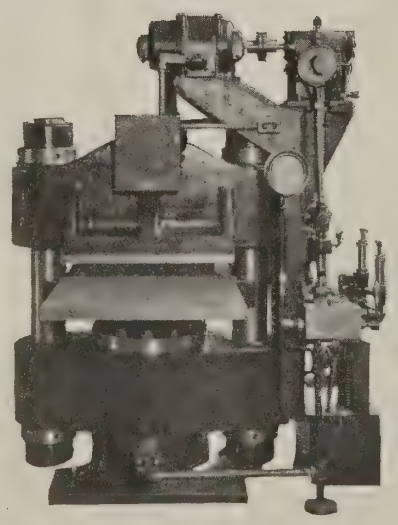
During the trial one of Mr. Dewitt's assistants was approached by Edward Roth, a bystander in the courtroom, who asked him if he wanted the jury "fixed." The assistant immediately reported to Mr. Dewitt who informed the judge. The man was arrested and was held in $500 bail pending examination of his past records.

PRESS STUDENTS SAIL

Party of 49 Leaves Montreal to Study Foreign Papers

A party of 49 newspaper men and women and teachers and students of journalism from 14 states and British Columbia embarked from Montreal, Thursday, as members of a European journalism tour conducted by Prof. E. M. Johnson, of the University of Wisconsin. The party will visit Canada, England, Scotland, France, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland.

Editors and proprietors of European newspapers and American correspondents will lecture to the party in European capitals. Prof. Chilton R. Bush of the University of Wisconsin Course in Journalism and Prof. Johnson will lecture on shipboard on Comparative Journalism.



S. C. Press Meet July 13-16

The fiftieth annual meeting of the South Carolina Press Association, is to be held at Myrtle Beach, July 13-16. Robert Lathan, editor of the Charleston News & Courier is president of the group.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

July 5-8—Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs Assn., 10th District, International Advertising Association, annual convention, San Francisco.
July 6-8—Southern Newspaper Publishers' Assn., annual meeting, Asheville, N. C.
July 13-16—South Carolina Press Assn., annual convention, Myrtle Beach, S. C.
July 16—Idaho State Editorial Assn., annual meeting, McCall, Idaho.
July 19-24—International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union of North America, meeting, Los Angeles, Cal.
July 21-23—North Carolina Press Assn., annual convention, Hickory N. C.
July 23-24—Northeast Nebraska Editorial Assn., annual convention, Homer, Neb.
July 23-25—Colorado Editorial Assn., midsummer meeting, Alamosa, Col.
July 23—American Photo-Engravers Assn., annual convention, Detroit.

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS

Direct Pressure Under Complete Control. Fast, Positive, Non-Vibrating Hydraulic Operation. The first successful hydraulic matrice moulding press to be introduced into this country.
Birotadruck Presses are now in operation on the plants of The New York Times (3 presses), New York Herald-Tribune (2 presses), Boston Globe, Cleveland Press and Dallas News.

AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42d St., New York City

CERTIFIED COLD STEREOTYPING

Has replaced wet mats and steamtables in the plants of these representative Southern newspapers

Our Policy:

One Size
all mats 20" by 24"

One Quality
only the best we can make
—used by
The New York Times
Cleveland Plain Dealer
Detroit Times
and several hundred others

One Price
15 cents on standing order

ASHEVILLE (N. C.) TIMES
CHATTANOOGA (TENN.) TIMES
CLARKSBURG (W. VA.) TELEGRAM
HOUSTON (TEX.) POST-DISPATCH
JACKSON (MISS.) NEWS
ST. PETERSBURG (FLA.) INDEPENDENT
SAVANNAH (GA.) NEWS

What your fellow publishers in the South, North, East, and West have accomplished with Certified Dry Mat Cold stereotyping, you can, too.

¶ Have you received your copy of our booklet, "The Certified Road to Simplified Newspaper Stereotyping"? It's free upon request.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y.
for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds
MADE IN THE U. S. A.

BECAUSE for nearly half a century the Scripps-Howard newspapers have remained free from fettering political, financial and social alliances, these newspapers have been able to serve the public with a singleness of purpose that has merited and won nation-wide recognition.

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

He exposes quack medios.—Frederick E. Shapiro.

FREDERICK E. SHAPIRO, managing editor of the Philadelphia Daily News, Macfadden tabloid, has been battling a little more than a year now to introduce tabloidism to the Quaker City, and, after some mechanical setbacks at the start, has, he believes, at last hit his stride.

Philadelphia's circulation story more than elsewhere has as its main theme distribution. The city sprawls over some 129 square miles, a maze of winding narrow thoroughfares, and speed in manufacturing the newspaper product and getting it out to streets and homes, is considerably more than half the problem. And that half is now being met.

The original plant where the Daily News started publication in March, 1925, was inadequate. On Jan. 1, of this year, Bernarr Macfadden purchased a controlling interest in the paper and by April the News moved into its present home, and the editorial product which Mr. Shapiro is now putting out, is beginning to claim new highs in circulation figures.

"What has surprised me," Mr. Shapiro said this week in an interview, "is the progress we have made without much expenditure on promotion. Tabloid circulations have usually been rolled up to the tune of many prize contests, but during our first year we have had comparatively few of them. We have offered small prizes for letters to the editor, have used theater tie-up contests, and have attracted girl readers by vacation trip offers, but the amount of money we have spent in this way has been remarkably small."

The 15 months' experience with the Daily News has been Mr. Shapiro's first in Philadelphia.

Last week the News started a series of articles uncovering practices of "quack" doctors in Philadelphia. A reporter named Nelson Phillips was thoroughly examined by a reputable doctor and found to be in good physical condition. Then he called on a number of advertising "M. D.'s," who found he was the victim of gastritis, bad blood, and had in his veins the deadly streptococci germs, all within a few hours after he had been examined by the regular physician.

Philadelphia apparently has a large "quack area," which was badly in need of exposure.

Mr. Shapiro, who is only 30 years old, came to Philadelphia from Washington, where he was night editor of the Washington Herald. Prior to that he was on the Washington Post, was night editor of the Newark (N. J.) Ledger, and on the copy desk of the New York Evening Telegram. He has also worked for the St. Louis Republic and the St. Joseph Gazette.

U. P. WIRE REORGANIZATION

High Speed Circuit Linking More Than 16 Newspapers Started June 28

Virtual reorganization of the United Press day wire service became effective June 28, when a new high speed printer circuit, linking more than 16 client newspapers and all leading bureaus, went into operation.

The new fast printers supplement the regular Morse wire, and, according to Hugh Baillie, U. P. business manage triples the news service.

Among client papers on the new ci cuit are: Baltimore Evening Sun, Balt more Post, Washington News, Akr Times Press, Youngstown Telegra Cleveland Press, Columbus Citizen, Ci cinnati Post, Toledo News Bee, Detro News, Detroit Free Press, Winds (Ont.) Border City Star, Indianapo Times, Milwaukee Journal, St. Lou Star and Kansas City Post. The wi is operated from 6 a. m. to 6 p. daily.

On June 7, the U. P. opened a hi speed printer wire from the New Yo office to the Bridgeport Star, Waterbu (Conn.) Democrat, Waterbury Ame can, Hartford Times, New Haven Unio and Boston Traveler. Seven days lat another printer circuit was opened between Denver, Col., and the A buquerque (N. M.) State Tribune a the El Paso Post.

WE'RE ALWAYS BUSY—WHY?

AUTOMOBILE PRIZE CAMPAIGNS

Get the Circulation
Get the Money For It
Get It Quickly
Get It Right

Conducted on THE KENDALL PLAN

We would like to know more of your circulation building methods and charges Without obligation to us, you may submit details terms etc

Our last Campaign was run _____

Name of paper _____ City _____

By _____ Title _____ State _____

Should we use a Campaign we would want it to start about _____

Eighteen consecutive successful years of "Knowing How." Wire or write for details, references, etc.,

W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

At present conducting third campaign within six years upon the WHEELING, W. VA., INTELLIGENCER.

GET THE RIGHT PEOPLE WORKING FOR YOU AND YOU GET THE RIGHT RESULTS

Our COMPLETE checking service handles the entire detail work of supplying "checking proofs" to every agency and advertiser promptly—and—efficiently.

WE DO IT ALL

from a few complete copies.

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.
538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO
79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

6½ pt. Ionic No. 5

COMBINES

The word count of 6 point and the legibility of 8 point

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They had been curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY
Brooklyn, New York
SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS
CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO
Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

Again! —the Big Stores of New York Indorse the City's Favorite Home Newspapers!

AT THE END of last year it was shown that the seventeen leading department stores of New York placed 22.5% of their combined 1925 advertising lineage in THE WORLD and THE EVENING WORLD. This practical demonstration of confidence on the part of the most important group of merchants in America, whose advertising policies are the subject of constant study and analysis by the best-informed experts in the advertising field, indicated beyond question the power of these two newspapers in moving merchandise from the retailers' shelves. The figures for the month of May in several important classifications go still further toward establishing THE WORLD and THE EVENING WORLD as indispensable units in any advertising campaign designed to sell goods in the New York market.

The World The Evening World

As Indicating Its Appeal to Women—

The Dry Goods advertiser centers the major appeal of his copy on the woman of the home. THE WORLD was the only standard morning paper to increase its Dry Goods lineage last month. The figures are:

	Gain	Loss	Per Cent.
THE WORLD	2,906	.....	1.5%G
Second Paper	....	11,306	2.6%L
Third Paper	....	13,260	4.0%L
Fourth Paper	....	35,968	12.2%L

As Indicating Its Cultural Appeal—

Book Advertising in the weekday WORLD was greater than all three of its standard morning competitors combined. Its gain of 7,892 lines, or 177%, was alone greater than the total Book Advertising carried by its three competitors. As indicating its appeal to a leisure class. THE WORLD'S gain of 80% in Railroad Advertising and 25% in Steamship and Travel Advertising outdistanced all other gains in these classifications in the weekday morning field.

As Indicating Its Value to Builders—

The unprecedented building activity throughout the New York Metropolitan Area is reflected in a gain of 614% in the advertising of Building Material in the weekday WORLD.

This is double the ratio of gain registered by the next nearest morning paper to show an increase in this classification, and is important as indicating the vastly increased recognition accorded THE WORLD by the advertisers of every product that enters into the construction of the home.

As Indicating Its Appeal to Women—

THE EVENING WORLD, as in the case of THE WORLD, was the only New York evening paper to increase its Dry Goods lineage in the month of May. The figures:

	Gain	Loss	Per Cent.
EVENING WORLD	70,344	.....	18.2%G
Second Paper	.....	9,322	1.8%L
Third Paper	.....	46,210	41.4%L
Fourth Paper	.....	93,584	16.4%L
Fifth Paper	.....	115,412	81.5%L

As Indicating Its Household Appeal—

As the outstanding evening paper of home influence, it is only natural that THE EVENING WORLD in May stood first in its gain in advertising of Foodstuffs, its increase being more than the combined gains of the only two other papers reporting increases.

	Gain	Loss	Per Cent.
EVENING WORLD	7,252	.....	16.0%G
Second Paper	3,918	.....	6.0%G
Third Paper	3,076	.....	6.0%G
Fourth Paper	....	1,468	3.0%L
Fifth Paper	....	2,662	22.0%L

As Indicating Its General Usefulness—

THE EVENING WORLD is built for the New York home. In its conception of the needs of the community it serves, its handling of the day's news, its superior feature pages, it has always kept the home uppermost in its considerations.

While it enjoys the reputation among newspaper men of "turning more quickly" than other papers in its field on the big news-story of the moment, its street sales due to ephemeral reasons have never been a factor compared to the bulwark of the day-in-and-day-out purchasers who carry it into the home for the evening's reading.

Pulitzer Building—New York

Tribune Tower—Chicago

TRENTON TIMES BUYS STATE GAZETTE

James Kerney Will Continue Publication of Both Morning and Evening Papers—Plants Consolidated but Chief Executives to Remain Unchanged

James Kerney is now editor and publisher of the two newspapers published in Trenton, N. J., the Times, evening, and the State Gazette, in the morning field. The State Gazette was purchased by the Times this week, the change in ownership becoming effective with the issue of June 29.

JAMES KERNEY

The State Gazette, one of New Jersey's oldest newspapers, was purchased last November by Ferdinand W. Roebling, Edward C. Rose and Frank D. Schroth. Mr. Schroth was editor and publisher of the Gazette, and he is now assistant publisher of the consolidated papers. Mr. Roebling and Mr. Rose have retired from the newspaper field.

"Operation of both papers from the same plant will make for increased efficiency," Mr. Kerney said in a statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "We do not expect to make any important changes in the executive staffs."

Mr. Kerney has been actively engaged in newspaper work since 1895. He has been editor of the Times since 1903.

During the World War, Mr. Kerney, at the suggestion of President Wilson, went to France to direct the distribution to European countries of all official information regarding American war activities. He left this country early in 1918 and remained overseas until shortly before the signing of the armistice. He is author of "The Political Education of Woodrow Wilson."

Mr. Schroth, the assistant publisher, is a newspaper man of long experience. He received his early training on the Trenton Times and for more than 15 years was political writer for the New York Tribune and the Philadelphia Record.

The State Gazette was founded in 1792 by Matthias Day, a practical printer. Prior to its purchase in November by Roebling, Rose and Schroth it was published for 25 years by the State Gazette Publishing Company, consisting of Henry W. Comfort, president; Charles B. Case, secretary; and Charles H. Baker, treasurer and general manager.

Minnesota Editors Hold Outing

The Northern Minnesota Editorial Association held its 18th annual outing at Winnipeg, Manitoba, June 24 to 27.

Cambridge News Service Formed

A charter of incorporation was granted University News Service, Inc., of Cambridge, Mass., last week, to conduct a business "to collect and dispose of news items, notices and information." The capital is given as 1,000 no par value shares. The incorporators are Richard Donovan, Arlington; Leo J. Dunn, Roslindale; John H. Powers, Winchester, and Elizabeth G. Barry, Brighton.

Former Publisher Now Bank Executive

George D. Buckley, at one time publisher of the Chicago Herald Examiner, was this week elected vice-president of the National City Bank of New York. He has been associated with the bank for the last year. Mr. Buckley was also formerly president of the Crowell Publishing Company. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago, Class of 1906.

BOMB WRECKS HOME OF WHEELING EDITOR

Theory is Bootlegging Organization Was Seeking Revenge or Intimidation of H. C. Ogden, Intelligencer's, Chief—No One Injured

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

WHEELING, W. Va., June 29—Federal and state officials are working on the theory that a bootlegging organization was seeking to intimidate H. C. Ogden, editor of the Wheeling (W. Va.) Intelligencer, whose home was damaged early Wednesday morning by explosion of a dynamite bomb. The Intelligencer has attacked bootleggers strenuously in recent editorials.

The bomb, placed on the rear porch of Mr. Ogden's home exploded about 3:15 o'clock in the morning of June 28. The porch was wrecked, doors and windows in the rear of the house blown in, and considerable damage done.

Members of the family sleeping in the rear of the house narrowly escaped injury from glass blown into the bed room. The explosion rocked houses in the neighborhood for half a mile around.

No definite clew to the perpetrators of the outrage has been found.

Perjury Charge Against Editor

Accused of falsely swearing to the number of times a bankruptcy notice ran in his newspaper, William Viktora, editor of the Muscoda (Wis.) Progressive, will get a preliminary hearing July 7 on a charge of perjury in the court of Judge C. W. Burous, Lancaster. The charge is the outgrowth of bankruptcy proceedings of Ellis A. Lee, a printer employed by the paper.

OVER 100 NEWSPAPERS ARE NOW USING OUR

Hardened Steel Heads

THAT LAST FOREVER

Among them are the following Southern Publishers:

RICHMOND TIMES DISPATCH
TIMES PICAYUNE
MIAMI HERALD
SAVANNAH NEWS
COLUMBUS LEDGER
CHATTANOOGA NEWS
LOUISVILLE COURIER JOURNAL
ABERDEEN AMERICAN

A. J. SOSSNER
363 West Broadway, New York

It's all in the Control

THERE'S many a pitcher with a swift delivery and a bunch of good curves who is dropped back into the ranks of the bush leaguers because he hasn't got "control."

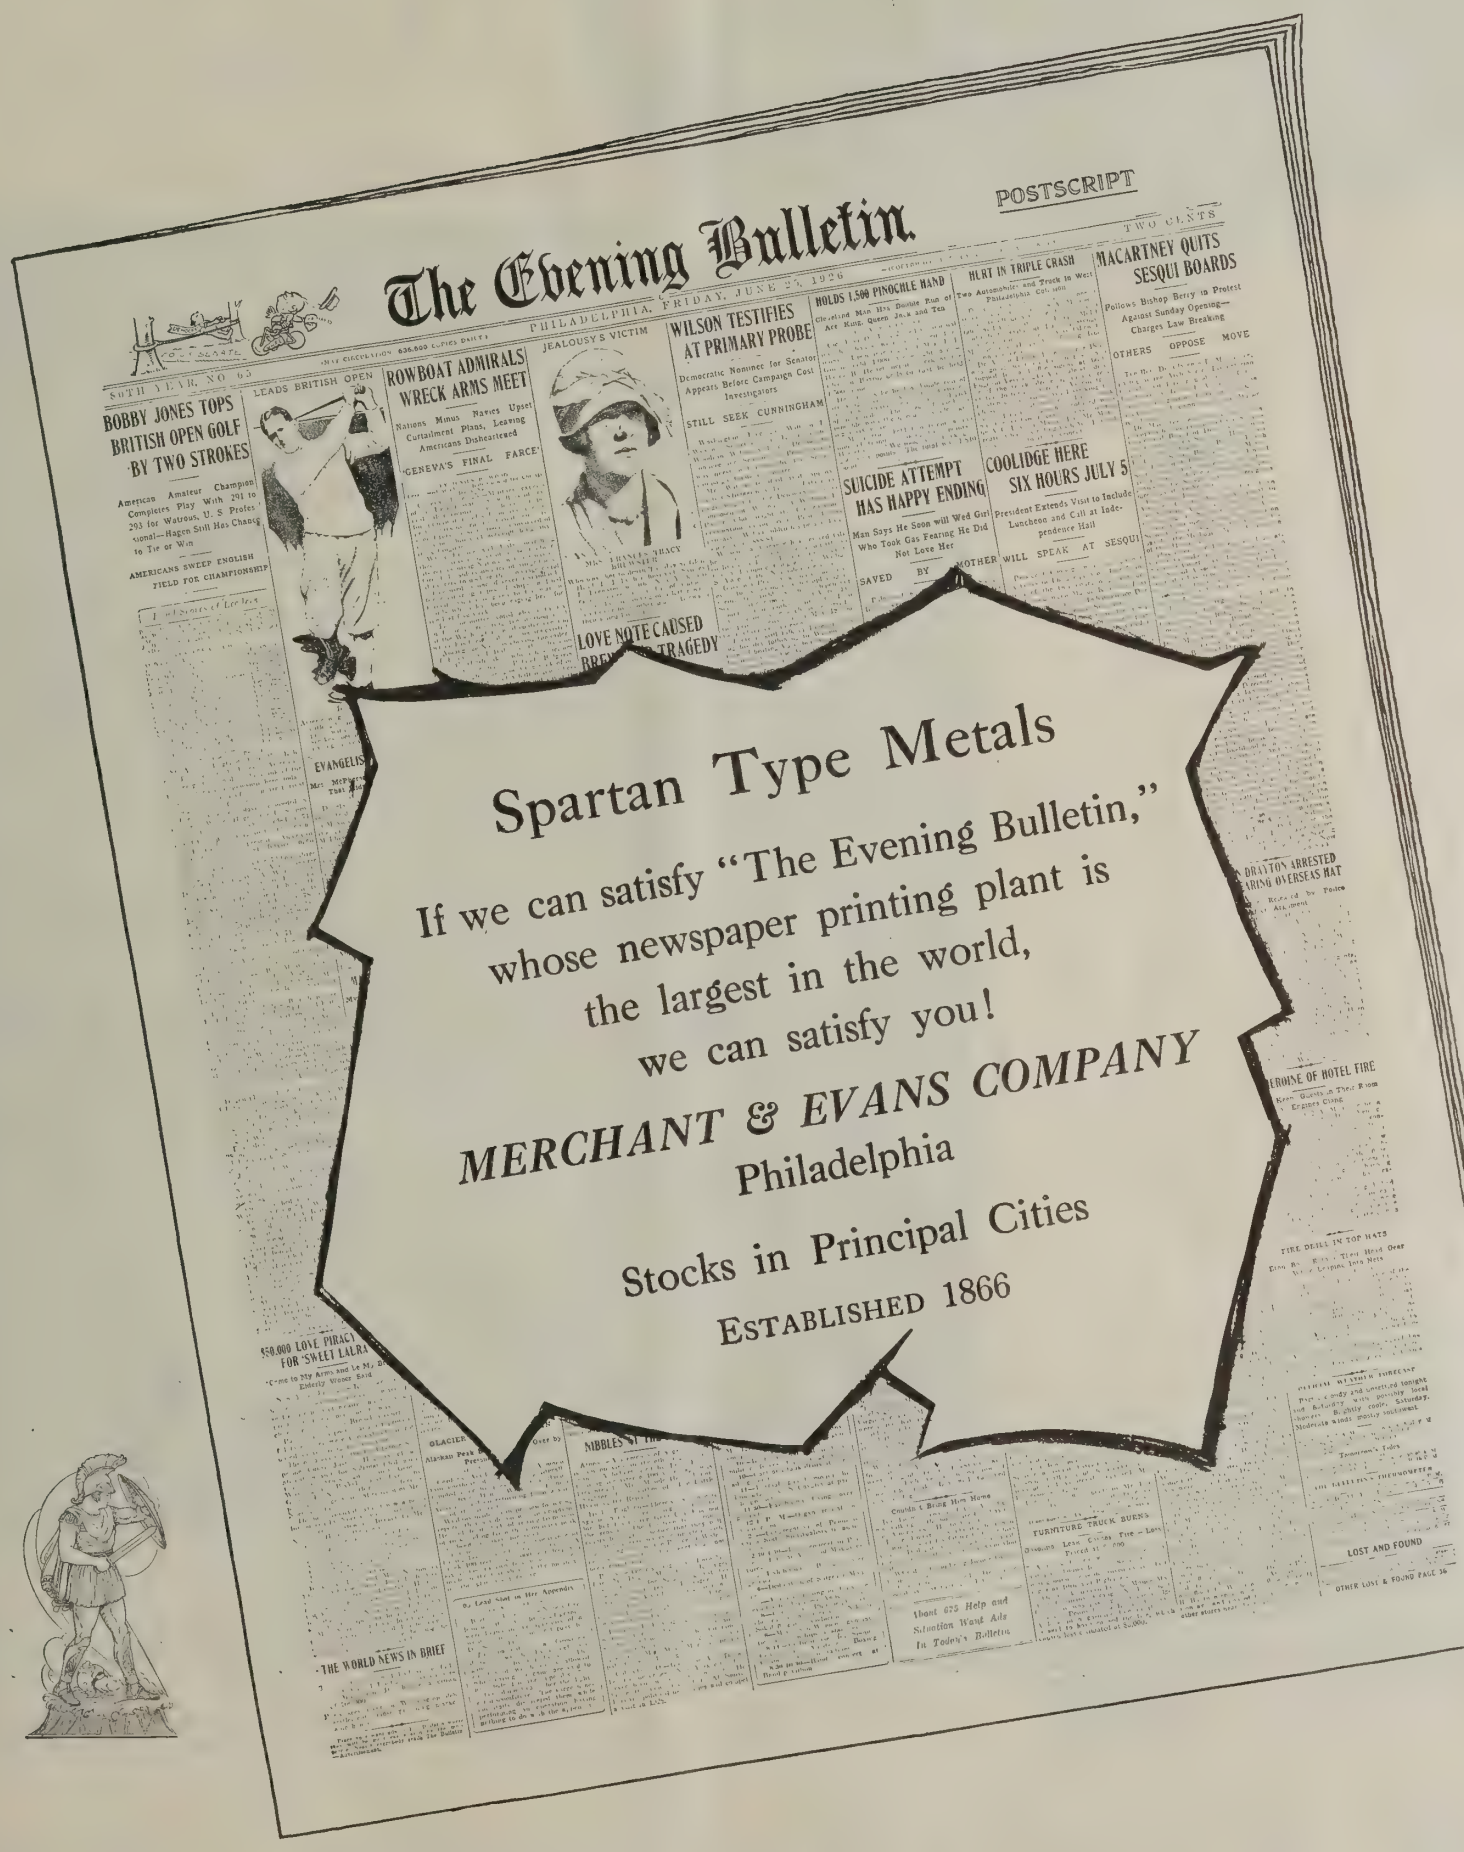
And there's many a good job spoiled on many a good press for the same reason—lack of good control.

Your presses are under instant, perfect control when they are equipped with

Cline-Westinghouse Universal Control Push Button System

Simplicity, convenience and the highest degree of safety of any press control apparatus are combined in this equipment. Every part of it is made stronger than it would ever need to be to meet the most serious emergencies or the most exacting demands which could be made on it. Motors and controllers are made together, shipped together. Twenty-five years of specialized experience of Cline engineers have made Cline System the "Standard of the World."

Specify Cline System for all your printing needs



CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.

Eastern Office
Marbridge Bldg.
47 W. 34th St.
New York

Conway Bldg.
111 W. Washington St.
CHICAGO

Western Office
First Nat'l Bank Bldg.
San Francisco
Calif.

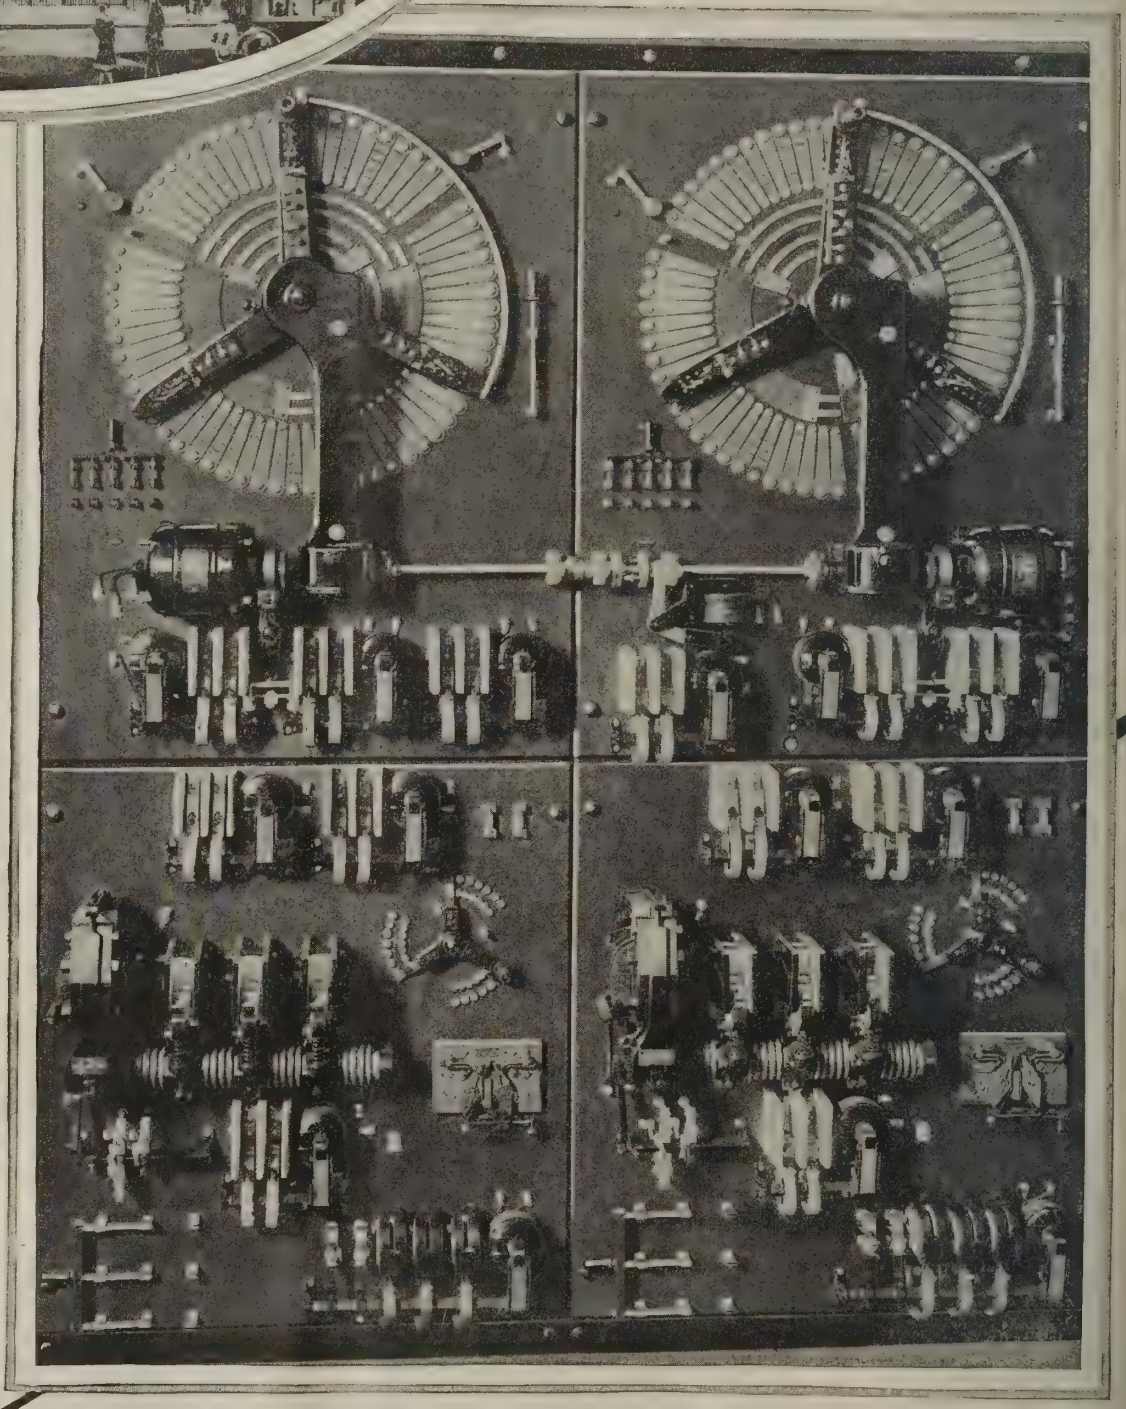
CLINE SYSTEM — CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO — QUALITY SERVICE SAFETY — CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Spartan Type Metals

If we can satisfy "The Evening Bulletin," whose newspaper printing plant is the largest in the world, we can satisfy you!

MERCHANT & EVANS COMPANY

Philadelphia



Stocks in Principal Cities

ESTABLISHED 1866

for the

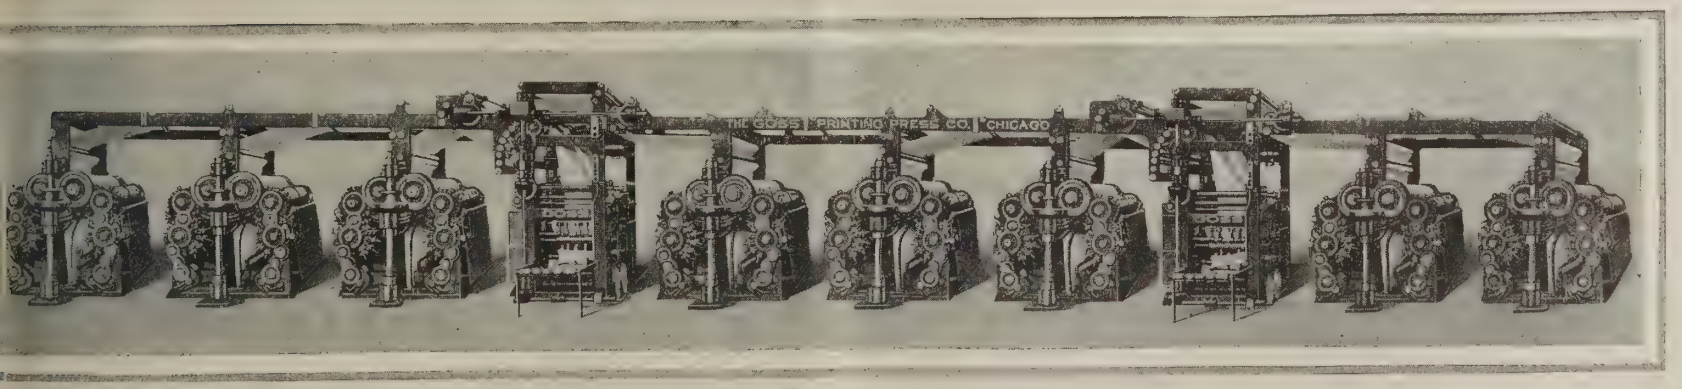
General Electric CR6230 full automatic push-button operated control for two 100-h.p., 3-phase, 60-cycle drives—for independent or synchronized operation.

Apply the proper G-E Motor and the correct G-E Controller to a specific task, following the recommendations of G-E specialists in electric drive, and you have G-E Motorized Power. "Built-in" or connected to all types of industrial machines G-E Motorized Power provides lasting assurance that you have purchased the best.

MOTORIZED POWER
-fitted to every need

GENERAL

GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY, SCHENECTADY, NEW YORK



Fort Wayne News-Sentinel G-E Control

Control by G-E—always a mark of the highest distinction—has been given further significance by the introduction of the new General Electric CR6230 a-c. press-control.

This control is especially adapted to the operation of unit-type presses from an alternating-current source of supply.

Its performance marks a distinct advance in press-room operation. Smoothness of acceleration and retardation, extremely wide range of printing speeds, and exact nicety of control with any number or combination of units have been achieved to an extent hitherto believed impossible with a-c. slip-ring motors.

Publishers whose plants are located in an alternating current zone—who seek the utmost in press production at minimum operating expense—who desire the most reliable and effective rather than the cheapest—are invited to investigate. Complete information at your nearest G-E office.

The six-unit Goss Press (with provision for two additional units) installed in new plant of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel is driven by G-E motors and operated by the CR6230 control.

230-11

GENERAL ELECTRIC

SALES OFFICES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

MUSSOLINI CUTS SIZE OF ITALIAN PAPERS

Fascist Economy Plan Limits Newspapers to Six Pages—Personal Journalism Declared Doomed in Italy —Press Approves

Personal journalism in Italy is doomed, Signor Turati, secretary general of the Fascist Party declared in Rome June 30, to an Associated Press correspondent, following the announcement of drastic new press regulations.

The regulations reduce all newspapers to no more than 6-pages in size.

Fascism, Turati said, is determined to bring out the educational and moral aspect of the press.

Fascist newspapers unanimously approve the changes. In addition to elimination of detailed foreign correspondence, sporting art, and literary news and accounts of court cases, particularly crimes, will gradually be dropped, the semi-official Rome Tribuna declared.

"We will have dry newspapers, restricted to the most essential comments," says Il Tevere, extreme Fascist organ, adding ironically: "Alas, we won't know whether the new sect of worshippers of tape-worms started on the banks of the Potomac."

The Impero sees the cut in the size of newspapers as the work of a genius, declaring that daily journalism has become a scandalous waste ot paper.

The Tribuna says Fascism desires faithfulness to fundamental central ideas and brief, succinct, basic consideration.

COLLEGE DAILY WINS $35,000 LIBEL SUIT

Action Against Columbia (Mo.) Missourian Grew Out of Campaign for City Manager Form of Government —"Truth" Was the Defence

The Columbia (Mo.) Missourian, the general daily newspaper published by the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri, last week won a $30,000 libel suit filed against it by Ira L. Davis, a member of the Columbia city council.

The suit grew out of a campaign for city manager form of government in Columbia.

The plaintiff alleged that he had been libeled in an article which stated that a public accountant's audit of the city expenditures showed that he had been paid a sum of money for machinery lent to the city.

The Missourian based its defense on the truth of the article. The newspaper filed a demurrer to the evidence given in court and the court held that the article was true and that it was not libelous and ordered the jury to return a verdict in favor of the Missourian.

GERMAN DAILY MOVES

Milwaukee Herold Now Printing From New Three-Story Home

The new home of the Milwaukee Herold and Sonntagspost, Milwaukee's German language daily, is completed and was occupied by all departments Monday.

The new structure contains three stories and basement with a frontage of 100 feet by 150 feet deep. Alleys on both sides of the building and a clearing in the rear gives light from all sides. It is conveniently located at 178-194 Seventh street between Grand avenue and Wells street. The entire frontage is finished in terra cotta brick. The newspaper completely refurnished its office with new desks and office equipment. The composing room is refurnished with new steel type cases and make-up tables. Monotype casters provide new type daily. Twelve linotypes machines were moved from the old plant to the new plant in 24 hours. The moving took place immediately following the last edition of the Milwaukee Sonntagspost, the Sunday issue, on Saturday night and was set up and ready for operation by Monday morning. Complete dry mat equipment has been installed in the stereotype department.

The Milwaukee Herold has a high speed sextuple press with a capacity of 48 pages installed by the Goss Printing Press Company. Color fountains provide for color work.

The newspaper will occupy the entire main floor and basement of the new building. The second and third floors will house the North American Press, large printing and binding establishment.

The Milwaukee Herold was established in 1858. It has been housed in the Brumder Building, 105 Wells street, for the past 30 years.

The Herold officers are: President, Herman O. Brumder; vice-president, H. H. Coleman; treasurer, George F. Brumder; secretary, Herbert P. Brumder.

ADVERTISING REDUCES COST TO CONSUMERS

So Food Man Declares in Urging National Campaign to "Advertise Advertising"—Says Public Has Wrong Idea

A cooperative campaign by advertisers "to advertise advertising" was suggested by Austin W. Carpenter, sales manager of the Larrowe Milling Company of Toledo, at a joint convention last week in Buffalo of the Mutual Millers and Feed Dealers Association and the Eastern Federation of Field Merchants.

Mr. Carpenter declared interests are at work endeavoring to poison the minds of consumers of food stuffs with the idea that large advertising campaigns of the producers of these commodities are adding greatly to retail cost. He declared his own company's large but judicious investment in advertising had been largely responsible for an increased sales volume which had enabled it to reduce its per unit cost of producing its product to the lowest point of all time in spite of higher wages, purchase of new equipment and other added costs.

The speaker recommended that large advertisers of food products get together in a national advertising campaign to convince consumers of the merits of advertising in reducing ultimate consumer cost of merchandise. He asserted repeated experience has shown the consumer profits more by advertising than the producer and cited the development of the automobile industry in this country to prove his contention.

Journalism Professor Advanced

Dr. S. V. Sanford, head of the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, University of Georgia, has been made dean of the University and president of Franklin College, liberal arts division, by the board of trustees. John E. Drewry, adjunct professor of journalism was promoted to associate professor.

252,330

was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

May, 1926

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of May, 1926, was 192,051.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

CALIFORNIA WINS VIRGINIA PIRATE CHEST

CALIFORNIA has won the Virginia Pirate Chest, the first prize in the National Editorial Association contest. It was awarded at the 1926 convention of the Association in Los Angeles this week. Last year Virginia agreed to unearth her treasures and make suitable presentation of them at the convention to the State obtaining most member ship for the association. The above is replica of the chest and a tablea depicting its burial, together with th pirate queen whose tongue had becom too sharp for her lord and master. Th scene is the coast near Cape Henry, V where the picture was taken.

Capper Birthday Picnic, uly 14

Senator Arthur Capper, publisher of the Topeka Daily Capital and head of the Capper Publications, will give his annual picnic for Topeka children in celebration of his birthday at Garfield Park, Topeka, July 14. This is the 18th annual celebration of the event. M Capper has leased the park for the en tire day, with all of the concessions. Fre transportation will be furnished the chil dren to and from the park as well a free admission to all of the amusement and free refreshments. A large at tendance of children is anticipated.

The INDIANAPOLIS

In the 26 publication days of May, The Indianapolis News published 416,232 lines of national advertising, surpassing the new record of 396,486 lines in April, both of which exceeded every other month in history. For 8 consecutive months a new record each month!

Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42nd
NEW YORK

J. E. Lutz
Tower Bldg.
CHICAGO

NEWS

Frank T. Carroll,
Advertising Director

Buffalo Had Six Dailies Now It Has Only Three

ADVERTISING problems relating to coverage of Western New York have been simplified overnight by the merger of the Buffalo Courier, the Buffalo Express and Buffalo Daily Star.

From three daily papers with combined circulations of more than 160,000 we have developed one great metropolitan morning paper, alone in its field and reaching an audience heretofore accessible only by the use of three separate media.

One Sunday paper has been created from two which had a combined circulation of more than 170,000 copies. This paper, the Sunday Courier and Express, will have the largest circulation of any newspaper in the state outside of New York City.

In cleaning up the Buffalo situation we feel that we have rendered a signal service to the advertiser, giving him a medium that will thoroughly cover the Western New York field at the lowest possible cost.

Buffalo Courier
BUFFALO AND EXPRESS

W. J. Conners, Jr., Publisher — Burrows Matthews, Editor

LORENZEN & THOMPSON
19 W. 44th Street, New York
Publishers' Direct Representatives

EDITORIAL

If thou seest the oppression of the poor, and violent perverting of judgment and justice in a province, marvel not at the matter: for he that is higher than the highest regardeth; and there be higher than the high.—Ecclesiastes; 8.

MEETING CHARGES OF MALICE

IT is often a simple matter for a zealous lawyer to distort a newspaper's attitude toward a libel claimant into one of malice. We have all watched the shyster as he wept on the jury's shoulder with some such false but telling argument as this: "This brutal editor had no pity for this poor woman. This libelous article drags her in the mire for the mere sake of sensation and that, gentlemen, was for profit. This article plainly shows that the writer held my client in contempt and gloried in her misfortune and that the editor of the paper became a party to that malicious attitude when he published this libel," etc.

Every reporter should carry in his pocket a letter of instruction from his editor, which outlines the policy of the paper toward persons and institutions written about in the news. The same general instructions should be printed and conspicuously hung in the city room. These instructions should be approved by local counsel. The following dozen points are offered as the basis of general instructions: (1) This paper, as a matter of honor and decency, subscribes to the principle of live and let live and has no prejudice or grudge against any person, class, race, party or institution which lives within the law; (2) reporters and editors are instructed to act the part of gentlemen in their work and write of strangers with full consideration of their rights and interests; (3) it is the reporter's business to relate to the public through the medium of the newspaper those facts concerning people and things of which society by custom is entitled to have knowledge; (4) accuracy of statement, insofar as it is possible to discern and describe truth, is demanded of every writer for this paper; (5) any writer who uses his privilege to vent personal ill-will toward any person or institution written about, or for any other selfish end, is disloyal to this newspaper and violates the first tenet of the code of ethics governing American journalism; (6) the principle upon which this newspaper's editorial conduct is founded is one of service to the public welfare, and your treatment of individuals must be consistent with this policy; (7) freedom of the press is not a license, but a grave obligation; (8) keep faith with individuals with whom you come in contact, even as you keep faith with the readers of this newspaper; (9) you are trusted not to invade private rights of individuals without sure warrant of service to readers of this paper; (10) investigate before you write and by all means avoid mistakes, but if you do make a mistake and discover it, report promptly to your editor and thus give him opportunity to make such correction as may be possible; (11) act and write fairly, impartially, decently, carefully, with the sole object of telling the readers of this newspaper what they are entitled to know concerning the world in which they live; (12) in other words, play the part of a gentleman, good journalist and good American.

Secret of youth: Every morning begin your newspaper experience all over again.

A CLASSIC EXAMPLE

IF by chance any reader of Editor & Publisher, who is interested in local advertising, missed reading Frank E. Tripp's thrilling story of how newspaper space saved the independent grocers of Elmira, N. Y., from annihilation by chain store competition, it is respectfully suggested that last week's issue of this newspaper be consulted without delay.

It is a classic example of enterprise, public service and common-sense methods of meeting the science of the chain store. Moreover, Mr. Tripp's achievement, which won for him the Shuman cup, is one of the most inspiring stories we have heard in the advertising field in many a day.

Is the chain grocery store a problem in your city? With page 8 of last week's Editor & Publisher in hand any enterprising newspaper man might proceed to make local application of the Tripp plan. Indeed, the success of the Elmira grocers may suggest a means of relief from chain store opposition for local merchants in other lines of trade.

In our opinion, the important lesson to learn from Mr. Tripp's story is that when newspaper men get ground-floor understanding of local merchandising problems and apply the magic of the newspaper, they are in big business for themselves, their papers and their communities.

JAPAN'S STRANGE REPLY

ANSWERING an editorial recently appearing in Editor & Publisher and widely reproduced in the Far East, Tetsuo Kuwayama, Japan's Minister of Communications, did not dispute our claim that his Government is standing in the way of reasonably priced radio communication across the Pacific, but promised relief—in four years. The Minister told of a Government project to erect a new Japanese radio station that would cut press tolls between America and Japan and said that service might be expected in 1930.

This, of course, permits the matter to stand where it is. It is inconceivable that an enlightened nation would permit the temporary profits of a communications monopoly to embarrass the exchange of public information upon which two great peoples are forming opinions in international affairs. Pacific press rates are prohibitive. Japan is responsible for the blockade. If that nation desires to open the channels of news she may do so in four months, rather than four years.

Italian newspapers are reduced to six-page maximum, but what good are six or 60 pages if editorial expression is controlled by a dictator?

JULY FOURTH, 1776

HOW did the principal newspapers of England record the big "flash" of 150 years ago?

Hayden Church recently investigated the subject for the North American Alliance and found that it was not until five weeks after the signing of the Declaration of Independence that the news reached London. Even then editors did not get excited about it, but gave their first pages to theatrical news, letters to the editor, financial advertisements and casual gossip, while the tidings from Philadelphia were tucked into obscure corners of back pages.

Morning Post alone commented editorially on the news, with the following classic bunk:

> "Though the Congress have at last carried out their favorite point, in voting, by a small majority, the United Colonies free and independent states, it will prove the most impolitic measure they could have devised; it has already driven most of the dispassionate members from their councils and caused a general desertion through their camps; if their declaration of independence was founded on view of forming allies with some powerful European, the absurdity of the idea will soon be manifest."

The "absurd idea" was realized almost immediately.

Mr. Church found that in Revolutionary days four or five weeks were required for news to reach England from America and, though the first blood was spilled for American independence on April 19, 1775, it was not until May 30 that the people of England learned how "the embattled farmers stood, and fired the shot heard round the world." Washington became Commander-in-Chief of the American Army on July 2, but England did not learn of this until September 4. The news of the signing of Thomas Jefferson's epochal declaration on July 4, reached London, August 12. Five days later the historic document was published in full text by the leading English newspapers. But there was no comment on the fact that this was one of the greatest expositions of principle ever committed to paper, editors merely attempting to discount it by disparaging remarks about "defiance," "empty gesture" and "ill-advised act."

Prophesy was poor editorial stuff then as now.

A PRIZE OFFER

C. W. BARRON, publisher of the Wall Stree Journal, this week gave a demonstration o what he thinks the card advertising rates o the daily press amount to and also reveals his franl judgment of average editorial responsibility.

He sent to publishers a circular letter advising tha he was interested in the sale of certain books b Swedenborg, offered for a price in the name of Boston agent. Enclosed was a publicity article o 574 lines, illustrated by portraits of Swedenborg Galli-Curci and Mr. Barron himself. There was als enclosed a display book advertisement of 308 lines and this is what Mr. Barron said he was willing t do:

(1) Publication of the article, giving publicity t the books, to a public singer, to Barron and to Henr Ford's Dearborn Independent, "entitled" the news paper to a single insertion of the display advertisemen at regular rates.

(2) If this proposal was accepted the publishe should ask for a mat or plate of the illustrations.

(3) "This and ANY FURTHER ADVERTIS ING (the caps are ours) should be billed to Doremu and Company Advertising Agency, of which agency am also president," said Mr. Barron.

(4) Request was made for two copies of the pape containing, not the display advertising, but the pub licity, addressed to Mr. Barron's palatial home, "Th Oaks," Cohasset, Mass.

Aside from the point of subsidizing editoria columns, our readers may be interested in a strictl business analysis of the famous Wall Street publisher' proposal:

Newspaper in Middle West town with 3,400 circula tion publishes the Barron publicity and display adver tisement. At regular national minimum rate of cents per line the publicity would displace space worth $11.48. The display advertisement of 308 lines figure $6.16, less 92 cents for Mr. Barron's advertisin agency, or a net of $5.23, assuming that the agenc does not discount the bill 2 per cent for early pay ment. The paper retails for 2 cents a copy and as checking copies go to the agency and 2 more go t "The Oaks" it would be fair to charge off 8 cent for copies, and naturally a couple of letters will b written, costing five cents each. It looks like a trans action worth about $5 to the publisher of this news paper. On that basis Mr. Barron will have succeede in cutting the card rate by approximately two-thirds

This is one of the poorest and most transparen business proposals that has ever emanated from Wal Street, which is uttering a mouthful. But we d not doubt that "The Oaks" will be littered wit marked copies of newspapers. Editor & Publishe offers 100 shares of Nutmeg, pf., as a prize to an advertiser who will work Barron's wrinkle on th Wall Street Journal.

Harry Thaw succeeded in getting first page spreads across the land on a faked wife reconciliation story, neatly hooking the publicity to a book advertising venture. Who's looney now?

CAN'T BE DONE

HEYWOOD BROUN points out that the show "Bunk of 1926," went broke and closed, no because of the play jury, the district attorney the police or the efforts to suppress it, but because the public rejected it. It lost money every week except the one following the play jury's demand that it be closed. Mr. Broun thinks the moral is that the American public can be depended upon to decide for itself what is fit or foul.

This is also the case with newspapers. No positively indecent newspaper can force its way through to success in this country. A few newspapers come to mind as we write, whose amateur editors attempt short-cuts to circulation by occasional exhibitions of pruriency, but we observe reactions of thud force each time they try it. Not one is a sound success. Mr Broun says that theatre-goers need no guardianship and that goes for newspaper readers, too.

Put a stubborn executive problem on the operating table in the presence of the staff and perhaps the office boy will be able to tell how it may be safely amputated.

PERSONAL

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, editor of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette, accompanied by Mrs. White sailed June 23 for Europe.

Bernard M. Wynkoop, editor and manager of the Jackson (Mich.) Citizen Patriot, and Mrs. Wynkoop, have sailed from New York for a two months' trip abroad.

Fritz Schotthofer, editor of the Frankfurter Zeitung, Berlin, has been visiting his brother Joseph Schotthofer, near Salem, Ore. He came to this country at the request of Columbia University and the Carnegie Institute to speak upon industrial conditions in Germany.

Judge King Dykeman, publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, was the principal speaker at the graduation exercises at Hill Military Academy, Portland, Ore., recently.

S. G. Goldthwaite, publisher of the Boone (Ia.) Republican-News, who attended the reunion of his class at Brown University, Providence, R. I., was in New York the past week on his way home.

Ben S. Mickel, owner-editor of the Soldier (Kan.) Clipper, was recently reappointed postmaster of Soldier.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

G. B. WILLIAMS, secretary-treasurer of the Geneva (N. Y.) Daily Times, will leave shortly for a three weeks' hiking and canoeing trip in the Puget Sound region.

Joseph L. Jernegan, for the past five years assistant classified advertising manager, Chicago Herald and Examiner, has joined the display advertising staff in the automobile department.

Norman F. Rall, of the cashier's department, Newark Evening News, is making an automobile trip to the West.

Anton Jepperson, of the business staff, Mason City (Ia.) Globe Gazette, left July 3 for a three-month's automobile trip through the West.

F. O. Larson, business manager, Tulsa (Okla.) World is in New York on business. Mr. Larson also attended the advertising convention at Philadelphia.

Earle A. Smith has joined the advertising staff of the Mason City (Ia.) Globe Gazette, succeeding Lester Laidig who resigned to join Hess Bros., Rockford, Ill.

Paul W. Denman has been promoted from advertising manager to business manager of the Plant City (Fla.) Daily Courier. Norman C. Moyse, solicitor, has been made advertising manager.

Elmer T. Ellison formerly with the Mason City (Ia.) Globe Gazette has been named advertising manager of the Newton (Ia.) Daily News. Frederick Schnerler is taking his place on the Gazette staff.

Henry J. Auth, general manager of the Newark Star-Eagle has returned to his desk after an illness.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

WARRE B. WELLS, of the New York Herald Tribune's London office, will arrive early in July for a visit to this country. Wells was the Irish correspondent for the Herald Tribune, and covered the Irish rebellion.

T. E. Brooks, city editor, Altoona Tribune, has been promoted to news editor.

Stuart P. Sherman, book editor of the New York Herald Tribune will deliver a course of lectures on literature at the summer session of the University of Colorado, Colorado Springs, during July and August.

George Egbert recently joined the Knoxville Free Press staff.

Bruce Rae, of the New York Times staff and Ishbel Ross, his wife, of the New York Herald Tribune, have left for a three weeks' vacation in Canada.

James A. Stuart, managing editor of the Indianapolis Star and former editor of the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times, visited the News-Times office while in Denver for the recent convention of Rotary International.

Leland F. Stowe, staff reporter, New York Herald Tribune, sails in about two weeks for Paris to become assistant to Wilbur Forrest, Herald Tribune correspondent in Paris. Stowe will take the place of Foster Dulles, who returns to this country for a leave of absence.

George Breed of the Orange bureau staff of the Newark Evening News, is spending his vacation at Cape Cod.

Waite Arnold recently joined the Tulsa (Okla.) World reportorial staff.

Fred Ross has been named automobile and sports editor of the Vancouver (Wash.) Evening Columbian.

T. Y. Brownlow, is the new editor of the Republic News-Miner. R. A. McCall, recent editor and manager, has gone to Peyette, Idaho, to continue in newspaper work.

David Lidman, who recently left the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch to manage a theater in Bethlehem, Pa., will rejoin the Richmond newspaper.

Marshall Smith, real estate editor, Tulsa (Okla.) World left Monday for a two weeks' tour through Eastern Oklahoma.

Miss Lillian Franklin, reporter for the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch, will leave shortly for a vacation in Bermuda.

Edward Connelly, formerly of the New York Journal of Commerce, is in charge of the newly established insurance department of the New York Herald Tribune.

Sol Abramson, junior at the University of Oregon, is worknig this summer as copy reader on the Vancouver (Wash.) Evening Columbian.

Eugene V. Lokey has left the New York Herald Tribune's financial department to join the New York Times.

Dave Herman has been made assistant sporting editor of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch vice George Netherwood, who has been made sporting editor of the Petersburg (Va.) Index-Progress.

Arthur Tiernan recently resigned as assistant sports editor, Indianapolis Star to become advertising manager of the Carl H. Wallerich Auto Sales Company of Indianapolis.

Paul Robarts, city hall reporter, Tulsa (Okla.) World has returned from a two-weeks' vacation in the Ozark Hills.

Robert G. Tucker, dramatic editor, Indianapolis Star has been granted a leave of absence. He plans to spend the summer months in Los Angeles.

Fred O. Seibel, until recently cartoonist on the Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker-Press, is now chief cartoonist of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

CHARLES E. ROGERS, associate professor of industrial journalism at the Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kan., was recently appointed head of the department of journalism, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. Nelson Antrim Crawford.

CHARLES E. ROGERS

In 1919, Mr. Rogers joined the staff of the Kansas State Agricultural College. Since then, the journalism enrollment has doubled and the department faculty has increased from four to six instructors.

Mr. Rogers is co-author of a new journalism text book, entitled "Agricultural Journalism" and is also the publisher of two bulletins "Stories Farm Paper Editors Want," and "How to Gather and Write Farm News."

He is vice-president of the American Association of Agricultural Editors, and is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, University of Oklahoma, '14, and of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism.

H. Sunby-Hansen, Joseph B. Phillips, Harold A. Holbrook, and Edwin B. Lough are recent additions to the New York Herald Tribune staff.

Jack Grimes, proofreader, Tulsa (Okla.) World and Mrs. Grimes are parents of an eight-pound boy.

Homer M. Price has returned to the Marshall (Tex.) News as editor. He founded the paper several years ago and sold in 1925.

Paul R. Leach, Washington correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, has returned to the Chicago office of the News.

Ray Humphreys, for three years general assignment man on the Denver Post, has resigned to devote his time to fiction.

W. A. S. Douglas of the Baltimore Sun has been named Chicago correspondent.

Martin Stevers, formerly with the Chicago editorial office of Liberty, is now a member of the Chicago Tribune's business survey, preparing copy for WGN, radio station.

Henry Justin Smith, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, has left with Mrs. Smith for a two-months' stay in Paris.

(Continued on page 30)

Worth While Fiction

THREE months ago the Central Press Association inaugurated its present policy of supplying to its clients fiction by noted American authors. This step forward has met with the warm approval of the hundreds of users of our service.

Our first serial number under the new policy was "That Terrible Thorne Girl," by Frederick Arnold Kummer. It went over big everywhere. On June 28 we started releasing a splendid new serial by Samuel Merwin. Papers subscribing for our service now will receive back installments of this serial without extra charge.

These serials are a part of our regular daily budget service, which includes a splendid line of features, editorial cartoons by Cargill, up-to-the-minute news mats, sports, women's page material, etc. Write or wire today for samples and prices.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

DICKEY'S DOGS

Bark You a Glorious Fourth of July!

They "Speak" for themselves — Let them speak to your readers.

WHISTLE
for Buddie, Bucky,
and Angus

the Inimitable Creations
of
ROBERT L. DICKEY
The National Dog Artist and they will come for a romp!

Once-a-week — In 3-Col. Size

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

(Continued from page 29)

Charles L. Lancaster, city editor of the Pittsburgh Sun, has left on a vacation trip to Florida.

Elias Tobenkin who spent eight weeks in Russia making a survey of conditions there for, the New York Herald Tribune, arrived in New York June 19.

Charles Milne has joined the staff of the Montreal (Que.) Daily World as sporting editor.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

W. M. WATT from reporter to copy desk, Tulsa World.

H. L. McCleary, from San Antonio Evening News reportorial staff, to night news editor, Waco News-Tribune.

George W. Munford, from night telegraph editor, Jackson (Mich.) Citizen Patriot, to staff, Springfield (Ill.) State Register.

Edward F. Hall, from New York Herald Tribune staff, to New York Times.

George S. Willard, from Waterloo (Ia.) Tribune, to Jackson (Mich.) Citizen Patriot as night state editor.

James F. Bechtel, from reporter Cincinnati Commercial, to Jeffersonville (Ind.) Evening News, as reporter.

WITH THE SPECIALS

HOWLAND and Howland, newspaper representatives, New York, have been appointed to represent the Asbury Park (N. J.) Press, effective Aug. 1.

Kelly-Smith Company, New York, has been appointed to represent the Watertown (N. Y.) Standard.

J. P. McKinney & Son, special representatives, New York, have been named to represent the Newburgh (N. Y.) Daily News.

MARRIED

HENRY CABOT LODGE, 2nd, of the staff of the New York Herald Tribune's Washington bureau, to Miss Emily E. Sears, of Boston, at Beverly, Mass., July 1. Mr. Lodge has taken a six months' leave of absence from his paper and with Mrs. Lodge will tour Europe.

David J. Whichard, Jr., proprietor of the Greenville (N. C.) Daily Reflector, to Miss Virginia Young Suther, of Goldsboro, N. C., recently.

Finley P. Curtis, Johnson City, Tenn., newspaperman, to Miss Ruth Wyatt, of Columbus, Miss., in Knoxville recently.

James W. Wilson, manager, Lankersheim (Cal.) Press, to Mrs. Nena Evelyn Smith of Hollywood.

Ewing C. Scott, son of Charles F. Scott, owner and editor of the Iola (Kan.) Register, to Miss Dorothy Carnine at Colorado Springs, June 24.

C. N. Coghlan, circulation manager, Youngstown (O.) Telegram, to Miss Ruth Fitzgerald of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, June 19.

George Trotter of the Chicago Tribune composing room, to Miss Marie Byrnes, May 22.

John Hunton of the classified department, Chicago Tribune, to Miss Maryellen Rogers, June 26.

James D. Murphy, classified ad solicitor for the Chicago Tribune, to Georgia M. Henrici, June 19.

Alvin H. Ursprung of the Chicago Tribune's composing room, to Miss Johanna Bauer of Milwaukee, June 19.

Robert E. Williams, city editor of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, to Miss Anna Cowan Strong, in Raleigh, June 26.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

STANWOOD (Wash.) NEWS was recently purchased by C. F. Brown former part owner and editor of the Palouse Republic.

Colfax (Wash.) Commoner was recently purchased by S. E. Ratliff.

Manhattan Beach (Cal.) News is now being edited by Edwin H. Badger, formerly publisher of the El Segundo (Cal.) Herald.

East Long Beach (Cal.) Star-Progress has been sold by R. M. Durkee to T. F. Pfanstiel and W. J. Brunton.

A holding company headed by Fred M. Harrison, of the Gallatin (Mo.) North Missourian, has purchased the Gallatin Democrat and the two papers will be merged later. Herschel M. Colbert was former owner of the Democrat.

Norman H. Parks, editor and publisher of the Holtville (Cal.) Tribune, has sold his interest in the paper to George Bennitt of Hollywood. Bennitt was formerly connected with the El Centro (Cal.) Imperial Valley Press.

Phil L. Nicar, receiver for the Mishawaka (Ind.) Enterprise, announced June 25 that the business had been sold to Ralph H. Jernegan, formerly a stockholder. Jernegan will continue the publication of the paper.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

KANSAS CITY JOURNAL, 32-page section devoted to the Piggley Wiggly Bird Stores in Greater Kansas City, June 21.

Bellefontaine (O.) Daily Examiner, 22-page special sale number, June 19.

Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press, tabloid Vacation Guide section June 13.

Houston Chronicle, 12-page section commemorating 39th anniversary Levy Brothers Dry Goods Company, June 21.

Boston Sunday Herald, 86-page annual summer resort number, June 27.

Quincy (Mass.) Patriot Ledger, high school graduation number, June 24.

Amarillo (Tex.) News-Globe, 126-page edition in honor of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, June 20.

Boston Evening Transcript, 80-page annual summer resort and travel edition, June 26.

Peekskill (N. Y.) Evening Star commencement number for gradautes of local high school, June 22.

Chelsea (Mass.) Evening Record, 16-page "Trade In Chelsea Week" edition, June 25.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

WORK on a new home for the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Daily Times has been started. The building will be two stories high and of the latest type newspaper construction. New equipment has been ordered.

Rushville (N. Y.) Community Leader has purchased a site and will erect a new building.

Additional space in the building of the Burlington (Kan.) Daily Republican has been provided for a new Duplex press, John Redmond is editor and publisher.

Toronto Mail and Empire is installing an 8-Unit Z-Pattern Superspeed Balcony Type Hoe press.

ASSOCIATIONS

RICHMOND ADVERTISING CLUB and the Retail Merchants' Association of Richmond staged a golf tournament recently under the auspices of the News-Leader. Several cups were given by the newspaper.

More than 100 members of the BRITISH COLUMBIA INSTITUTE OF JOURNALISTS were the guests of the Union Steamship Company and the P. G. E. railway on an outing trip to Rainbow Lodge, Alto Lake, recently.

INDIANA REPUBLICAN EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION gathered in Fort Wayne in a four-day session last week to lay plans for the coming election campaign.

WASHINGTON PRESS ASSOCIATION is carrying on a campaign of development called the "Awakening of Washington" through its news and editorial columns with the purpose of awakening the people of that state to the possibilities of its future.

MEDINA (N. Y.) ADVERTISING CLUB plans to issue a quarterly journal to be known as The Golden Rule in the interests of farm trade shopping in that city.

MISSOURI STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION will hold its fall meeting at Cape Giradeau, Sept. 23-24-25. The editors will assemble in St. Louis the morning of Sept 23 and take a boat down the Mississippi to the convention city, arriving at 5 p. m.

Henry E. Miller, head of the advertising agency bearing his name, was recently elected chairman of the local chapter of the CALIFORNIA ADVERTISING SERVICE ASSOCIATION. Miller succeeds Barton A. Stebbins, of the Logan & Stebbins agency. Maurice M. Mummert of Stutzman & Mummert was elected secretary, succeeding Milton S. Weinberg of the Milton S. Weinberg Agency.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

LEO T. HEATLEY, assistant city editor, is acting city editor of the Standard News Association, New York, during the vacation of Gerald D. Murray, city editor, who is spending a month in Canada.

ON THE MECHANICAL SIDE

FRED TALCOTT has resigned from the pressroom of the Chicago Herald and Examiner to take over a large orchard in Texas which he inherited.

Printing Exhibit Planned

A printers' exposition under the auspices of the Club of Printing House Craftsmen will be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, opening Labor Day, Sept. 5, 1927, and closing Sept. 17.

FLASHES

One puzzling thing is how these women who do the shooting ever manage to conceal the weapon.—Nashville Banner.

A Washington lady weighing 330 pounds is charging her husband with cruelty by beating her and dragging her around the room. A beauty parlor would charge her a stiff bill for similar services.—Dallas News.

"What," queries the fashion department of the Omaha Bee, "has become of the old-fashioned sash?" It still abounds, dearie, only nowadays it is called a skirt. —New York World.

It is becoming harder for girls to get by with stockings that are not silk all the way.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

Farm relief, in the old days, consisted of a tall unshorn individual who was paid $30 a month and found.—Detroit News.

"When does cider change to vinegar?" inquires an earnest seeker. Well, in these piping times of prohibition, very rarely indeed.—Nashville Banner.

We shudder to think what scientists would reconstruct if they should dig up some well-known skulls of this age.—West Palm Beach Post.

AN UNDER-DEVELOPED ADVERTISING FIELD

Church advertising will be one of the very important phases of the international advertising convention in Philadelphia this coming week. It is to be the theme of ministers and laymen who will occupy the pulpits of seventy-six Philadelphia churches on June 20th, convention Sunday.

The value of advertising to churches will be fully discussed at the Tuesday and Wednesday sessions of the Church Advertising Department, June 22 and 23, in Room 200, College Hall, University of Pennsylvania, particularly with reference to newspapers as one of the most important mediums.

The discussions will be helpful and valuable to newspaper men who are developing church advertising in their papers. Are you planning to cover these meetings?

Church Advertising Department

ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS,

383 Madison Avenue

New York, N. Y.

CONTINUOUS COMPOSITION

ON THE TRADE LINOTYPE MARK MODEL 26

MENSE SURPLUS

that with the undry to pay them and he you you that contract and is now much w he came in.
d J. Danziger
nd Company
f the country
e in Stamford is Clougher's as as a short-would like to he admitted.
that was so
The whole
n September,
o come back,
was a short-
he never dis-
of office.
e first check,
hard. H. Fox
m he wanted that came in im he should lter Danziger other's home about 90 per N "This is a
he answered,
ıy questions.
few others."
Sunday night
restaurants.
..tinue pay-
and the whip
ıe could shut or occupancy friend. They ty-five times and Danziger
Othe District hadn't made er in the year was, 1925, he we $100,000."
he charges in t upon which
-said that he o telephoned ın his valet," nager's home llagher came tomobile and n Miss Helen
d they, saw it
erward as she when in the uman events hat with the undry to pay
tell you that contract and ofhow much as coming in ziger and Co.
T telephoned SSMiss Helen me she saw it
tomobile and ordinary time

LARGE RECEIPTS FOR NEW LOAN

Mellon Announces Refunding of Securities is Unnecessary for First Time Since the War.

DEBT CUT OF $85,000,000

Income and Other Tax Payments Will Run Beyond the Earlier Estimates of Treasury.

WASHINGTON—Government receipts from income taxes and other sources are exceeding estimates by so wide a margin that it will be possible to meet all current expenditures for the rest of the fiscal year and retire approximately $333,700,000 of the short term debt which matures on June 15 without resort to further borrowing this month, according to an announcement made today by Secretary Mellon.

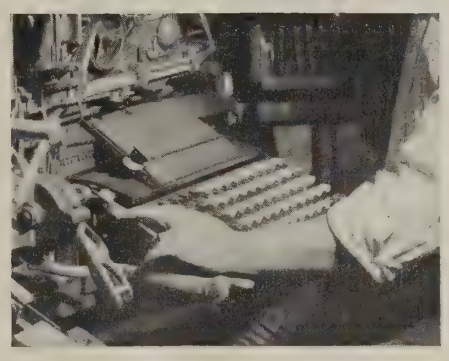
This means that, for the first time since the Government started its program for handling the public debt following the end of the World War in 1919, there will be no quarterly offering of short term securities for refunding purposes. It also indicates that the surplus of ordinary expenditures over ordinary receipts at the close of the fiscal year on June 30 may be $400,000,000 or more, and that public debt retirement

Body Type: 6½ Point Ionic No. 5

STENOGRAPHER, one familiar with calculations. Address F 29, P. O. Box 3443.

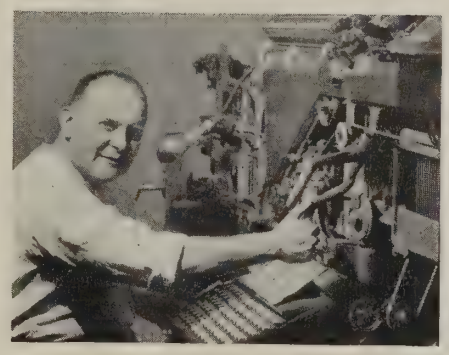
TELEPHONE OPERATOR, for night work, on private branch; good pay; steady work; state age and experience. P 518, Ledger Office.

YOUNG LADY for clerical work; good writer; state age, experience and salary expected. Address "E-55," P. O. Box 3500.

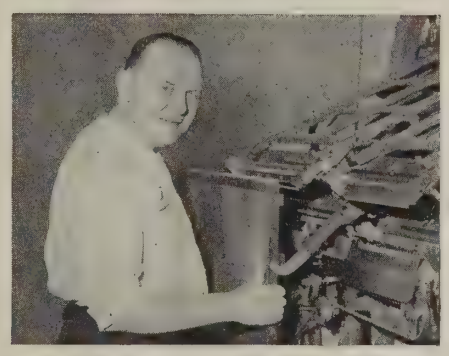


YOUNG LADY for general office work; state experience and salary. P 419, Ledger Office.

DESIRABLE TRAVELING POSITION will be vacant Dec. 1; acceptable applicant must be 28 to 45 years old, with high-school or college education; an unmarried woman or widow without incumbrance preferred; pleasing personality and adaptability essential; no investment necessary; no experience required; position permanent, with advancement; will pay right party excellent salary.



5½ Point No. 4 with Bold Face Cond. No. 2



You can carry your display heads in the two auxiliary magazines (two fonts of caps and figures)

A touch on the shift-key changes the keyboard action to one of the main magazines and you can set the sub-head

Lift a lever and the other main magazine is instantly brought into operative position ready to set the body matter

If you want other faces for classified or display ads, the magazines can be quickly changed and are all interchangeable with other Linotypes

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

530.28.7-P

COMPOSED ON THE LINOTYPE IN CLOISTER AND CLOISTER BOLD, DISPLAY IN NARCISS

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Merritt Bond, Former M. E. of New York Evening Post, Joins Barton, Durstine & Osborn—Joseph Agency Opens Unique Building in Cincinnati—Denver Agent Visits New York

MERRITT BOND, former managing editor of the New York Evening Post, who was succeeded July 1, by Ralph Renaud, formerly of the New York Herald Tribune, has joined the staff of Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., New York advertising agency, effective July 6.

Mr. Bond came to New York from Philadelphia to become managing editor of the Evening Post in February, 1924, shortly after that newspaper was purchased by Cyrus H. K. Curtis. He had been managing editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

After attending the University of Delaware, Mr. Bond started newspaper work as district man for the Philadelphia Bulletin, and later became a desk man for that newspaper. He transferred to the Evening Public Ledger in 1917 as assistant city editor, becoming city editor a year later. He was appointed managing editor in 1923.

Joseph Advertising Agency, Cincinnati, has opened its new building at 1801 Reading Road.

The building is designed of brick and stucco, ornamented with rough stones. At the top of the building is a gilded ink well, 6 feet in diameter. In the well is a quill, 10 feet tall.

Mr. Joseph came from Baltimore in 1908. He opened the agency in September, 1909. He is past president of the Advertising Agencies Council of Cincinnati.

Hart Conway Company, has been incorporated at Rochester to engage in a general advertising and publicity business. It has a capital of $25,000. Principal directors are Henry L. Hart and William E. Conway, Rochester.

James A. Henderson, manager of the Denver office of the H. K. McCann Company, visited New York this week, following the Philadelphia advertising convention.

C. C. Winningham, Inc., Detroit advertising agency, has been appointed advertising and merchandising counsel for Larned, Carter & Co., makers of "Headlight" overalls and pants. The Winningham organization was recently incorporated and now occupies enlarged headquarters in the General Motors Building, Detroit.

James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies will address the American Photo-Engravers' Association, meeting in Detroit, July 23.

The team representing Calkins & Holden, Inc., defeated Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., 17 to 5 on June 25, becoming champion of the Advertising Agency Baseball League of New York. The championship nine was awarded a silver trophy donated by the Walker Engraving Company, and each member of the team received a silver loving cup donated by the New York Herald Tribune. Many advertising men saw the game.

Correction

A correspondent at Hickory, N. C., last week sent to EDITOR & PUBLISHER the mis-statement that the mid-summer convention of the North Carolina Press Association had occurred last week, whereas it is scheduled to take place July 21, 22 and 23. A wire correction came too late. EDITOR & PUBLISHER regrets the error.

New Plant for Nebraska Daily

The McCook (Neb.) Daily Gazette has announced plans for erection of a new two-story modern plant, 25 x 100 feet, with a full basement. The Gazette on July 1 this year celebrated its second birthday, having gone to a daily from a semi-weekly. H. D. Strunk, is editor and publisher.

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Pennsylvania Railroad's Advertising Begins with $500,000 Appropriation—A. & P. Stores Plan to Increase Newspaper Space—Church & Dwight to Advertise

WITH an appropriation of $500,000, the Pennsylvania Railroad has resumed advertising, using newspaper space in chief cities along its main line. J. Walter Thompson, Inc., handles the account.

The newspaper copy, according to present plans, will not run simultaneously. The campaign began last week in New York newspapers, and copy this week was placed in Chicago. The copy, 6,000 line display space, emphasizes the extent, speed and comfort of Pennsylvania service.

This is the first time the Pennsylvania has advertised nationally since the World War. In addition to newspapers, magazines and radio are being used.

The "lion's share' 'of an increased advertising appropriation will go to the newspapers, it was announced this week by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company's headquarters office in Jersey City, N. J. A half million dollars has been added to the chain store company's present appropriation of $1,500,000. In addition to use of newspaper space, a magazine campaign is also being planned. A. G. Peart is director of advertising.

For the first time in its 80 years of history, the Church & Dwight Company, New York, manufacturer of Arm and Hammer brand and Cow brand baking soda (bicarbonate of soda), will shortly begin to advertise nationally. The account has been placed in the hands of Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., New York advertising agency.

The first advertising developed will take the form of a six months' newspaper campaign in cities and towns throughout New England, featuring medicinal and personal hygienic uses of bicarbonate of soda as well as its culinary purposes.

A sum of $250,000 has been appropriated to be spent in American newspapers and magazines this fall advertising the attractions of Cuba as a vacation and health resort. The announcement was made in New York by Augustin Aguero of the Cuban National Tourist commission, Havana. The account is directed by the Tampa, Fla., office of the Caples Company, New York.

Aguero said Gen. Gerardo Machado, president of the Cuban republic, is giving his active support to the work of the commission and it was through his efforts that the $250,000 was appropriated.

Newspapers will be used to promote sale of the product of the Three Feathers Malt Extract Company, Cincinnati, which has just placed its advertising account with the M. L. Staadeker Advertising Agency, Cincinnati.

The California Prune Growers Association, with headquarters in San Jose, Cal., has appropriated $100,000 to advertise Sun-sweet prunes. A campaign is being planned by the San Francisco office of the H. K. McCann Company.

The Jacobson Manufacturing Company, Newark, N. J., manufacturer of Depend-oil Home Heaters, has appointed the William H. Rankin Company, New York advertising agency, to direct its advertising campaign, now running in Eastern newspapers. Another new Rankin account is that of the Lepel Ignition Corporation, New York. Magazines and newspapers will be used.

Yost Advertising Company, St. Louis, announces a newspaper advertising campaign for "No-Mo-Nox," a chemical for reducing carbon in automobile motors, manufactured by Frier-Sturges, Inc., St. Louis.

Alice Foote MacDougall, New York, coffee and pottery, is planning to use newspapers and magazines in separate campaigns placed by W. I. Tracy, Inc., New York advertising agency.

O. C. Harn, manager of advertising of the National Lead Company, and president of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, has been elected president of the New York Sales Managers' Club.

Frank L. Erskine, who recently returned after having been advertising manager of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company, Brockton, Mass., for the past 35 years, last week was presented a 32nd degree Masonic diamond ring by his business associates. The presentation was made at a banquet at which Major Patrick F. O'Keefe, president, P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston, president. Lester D. Morse has been appointed advertising manager of the Douglas company to succeed Mr. Erskine.

Harry King Tootle, who recently resigned as promotion manager of King Features Syndicate, to go with the Fruit Dispatch Company, has been appointed assistant to the vice-president and general manager with offices in the Whitehall Building, New York. The Fruit Dispatch is the selling subsidiary of the United Fruit Company and this year is reported to be spending $500,000 in advertising.

Tribute Paid to Frank A. Munsey

The owners' committee of the New York Newspaper Publishers Association paid tribute to Frank A. Munsey late owner of the New York Sun and the New York Evening Telegram, in a resolution passed June 27.

DeFord's Term as Commissioner Ends

William A. DeFord's term as commissioner of the Board of Transportation of New York City expired this week. Mr. DeFord is the chief counsel of the Hearst Corporation. The political post carried a $15,000 a year salary.

Daily Host to Newsboys

Newsboys and carriers of the Chicago Daily Journal were guests of the paper June 28 at the Journal's annual newsboys' night at White City, amusement park.

H. D. ROOSEN CO.

INKS

News, Comic, Rotogravure

Leaders in High Grade Colors

16 East 43rd Street New York City

Arthur S. Thompson
Manager, News Ink Dept.

The Ludlow--

A Great Factor in Building Beauty and Dignity

IN writing us recently Mr. Charles S. Bates, Advertising Manager of the Miami Herald, paid the Ludlow the following unsolicited compliment: "We consider our Ludlow equipment indispensable and credit it with being a great factor in building beauty and dignity into advertising copy appearing in our columns."

Ludlow Typograph Company
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
New York: 63 Park Row
Boston: 261 Franklin Street

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

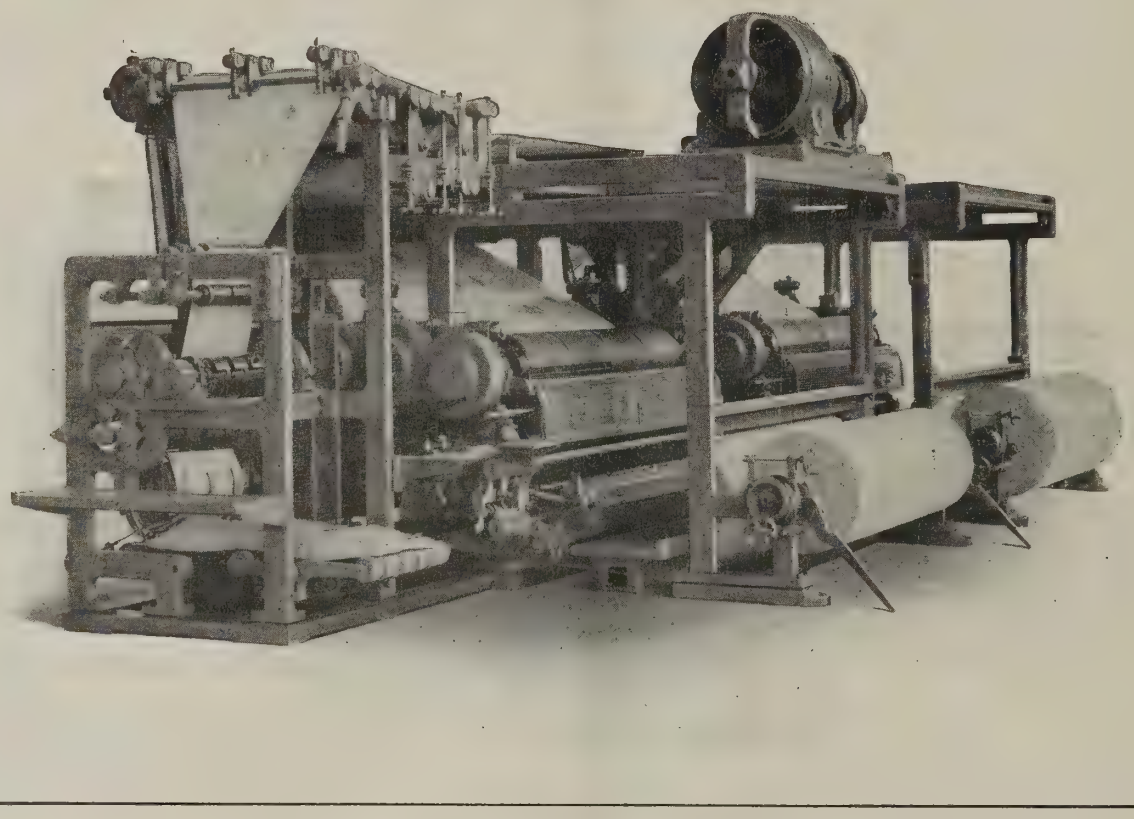
The Newspaper of Today is the Most Direct, Acceptable, Completely Covering, Readily Available, Economical and Resultful of All Advertising Mediums.

NEWSPAPER advertising now, more than ever, demonstrates its immediate availability, its instant adaptability, and its speedy responsiveness. You may send your sales message to every nook and corner of this broad land tomorrow if you like, or you may select your spots and sections, a score, a hundred, a thousand cities and towns, as you desire, or as manufacturing and transportation conditions advise.

We are the National Advertising Representatives of Twenty Progressive Newspapers in that many fine cities of the United States.

Our several offices are the offices of each of those publications, where complete files and data of all kinds concerning both field and publication are in readiness for anyone interested. Our traveling representatives are thoroughly familiar with the publications and the fields in which they circulate.

We are at all times prepared—in conjunction with their respective service departments—to provide valuable and useful merchandise surveys and information reports that will assist the manufacturer of any commodity, either in opening up the territory, or in extending distribution already under way.



We bring to the advertising agency an intimate, complete and down-to-the-minute knowledge of market conditions and possibilities and of publicity outlets in the fields we cover, that will enable it to act with the decision, speed and assurance so largely contributing to satisfactory and successful service to its clients.

9 East 37th Street . . NEW YORK
Tribune Tower . . . CHICAGO
Chemical Building . . ST. LOUIS
Healey Building . . . ATLANTA
Sharon Building . SAN FRANCISCO
Higgins Building . LOS ANGELES

THE JOHN BUDD COMPANY

National Advertising Representatives of Newspapers

The BEE-LINE Press
Enables the Smaller-City Da

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORP

y Publisher to Step Out of the FLAT-BED Class—

And into Modern, Economical Rotary Press Production

BECAUSE the BEE-LINE Press is expressly designed for the smaller-city daily publisher, it enables him to get away from the many limitations of flat-bed printing and adopt modern, economical, metropolitan-daily production methods sooner than any other existing press.

It produces a handsome sheet at high speed and low operating cost. It is compact, convenient and ultra-modern. It is easy to handle and cheap to install—requiring no pit.

The BEE-LINE Press is built in standard-size units; requires only a small, within-reason investment; and may be purchased on easy terms.

RATION, 501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

ELIMINATION OF WEAK NEWSPAPERS; SURVIVORS RULE THE FIELD

(Continued from page 3)

show that the newspaper fight is no longer defensive. It is not the solicitor's business nowadays to fight for the "newspaper's share of business" in competition with magazines, car cards, etc., etc. His principal antagonist is the man from another newspaper in his own city or one from a nearby metropolis which has presented a plausible story of universal coverage within a titanic radius.

The newspapers are first, where they were last if at all, on the lists of many national advertisers who have learned that national advertising with spotty distribution is largely money wasted. Last of all to realize the change, it seems, were the newspaper advertising men, whose old defensive-offensive program has become obsolete during the past twenty-four months.

Here is a story in point, related to the newspaper men's meeting at the Philadelphia advertising convention a few days ago:

"When a man comes to our office with an advertisement," the speaker said in substance, "one of the first things we do is to impress him that newspaper advertising is not on trial. Its ability to move goods that people want or might be induced to want has been proven long ago. We tell him to consider whether his product is exactly what he says it is and whether its market is actually what he thinks it is.

"If his advertising doesn't bring the results that he expected, we do not let him take the attitude of running down our newspaper or newspaper advertising in general. We prove to him that his copy or his product is at fault, or that he has chosen the wrong time, place, or price at which to sell it and we help him to remedy the defective condition whenever possible. But we do not let him doubt newspaper advertising!"

That would have been tall talk for a newspaper man even five years ago, but the hundred or more men in the meeting room at Philadelphia accepted it as commonplace. The "inferiority complex" ghost has been exorcised.

Detailed figures or circulation and advertising rate, together with other such interesting data as the population of the city and trading area, date of establishment of each newspaper and the authority for its circulation figures (Government Statement or A. B. C. reports), appear on following pages of this issue. The usual valuable summary, known to EDITOR & PUBLISHER readers for the past nine years as the "Ready Reckoner" of the cost of a campaign of advertising in one state, a group of states, or the entire nation, appears on page 4.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER would appreciate prompt notification of any errors that may be noted in the tabulation. Corrections will be promptly published.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILIES OF U. S. WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

Circulation Figures Are Average Net Paid for Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, as Filed with Government or A. B. C. Advertising rates are those on General Contracts, effective June 1, 1926, on 5,000 lines. Copyright 1926 by the Editor & Publisher Co.

ALABAMA

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
15,000	38,000	1911	Albany	Albany-Decatur
				Daily	(e)	3,736	.03*
		1924	Andalusia	Star	(e)	1,706	.025*
17,734	78,000	1882	Anniston	Star	(e)	5,512	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,512	.035*
230,000	600,000	1870	Birmingham	Age-Herald	(m)	34,994	.09*
				Sunday edition	(s)	50,699	.11*
		1888		News	(e)	76,974	.18*
				Sunday edition	(s)	88,952	.18*
		1921		Post	(e)	48,536	.10*
10,034	.....	1908	Dothan	Eagle	(e)	1,996	.032*
4,936	.....	1889	Eufaula	Citizen	(e)	.....	.018
17,000	65,000	1889	Florence	Times-News	(e)	5,175	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,175	.05*
19,125	150,000	1925	Gadsden	Star	(e)	3,163	.025*
		1867		Times	(e)	5,897x	.05357*
8,018	50,000	1910	Huntsville	Times	(e)	3,502x	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,592x	.025*
65,000	220,000	1881	Mobile	News-Item	(e)	11,993	.05*
		1814		Register	(m)	20,427	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	32,096	.10*
				Combined Daily	(me)	32,420	.13*
65,000	376,000	1828	Montgomery	Advertiser	(m)	15,970	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	22,621	.08*
				Journal	(e)	17,889	.06*
		1888		Times	(e)	7,589	.06*
		1910		News	(e)	2,575	.014*
4,960	.....	1888	Opelika	Times-Journal	(e)	5,714	.035*
15,589	54,697	1825	Selma	Sunday edition	(s)	5,714	.035*
11,500	.....	1907	Sheffield & Tuscumbia	Tri-Cities Daily	(e)	2,350	.035*
6,546	.....	1909	Talladega	Home	(e)	1,501	.021*
5,696	.....	1892	Troy	Messenger	(e)	.....	.018*
11,996	.....	1832	Tuscaloosa	News-Times Gazette	(e)	4,200	.036*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,200	.036*

ARIZONA

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
9,205	60,000	1914	Bisbee	Ore	(e)	1,803	.032
		1898		Review	(m)	4,082	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,082	.035*
9,916	.....	1901	Douglas	Dispatch	(m)	3,174	.036*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,174	.036*
8,500	.....	1913	Globe	Arizona Record	(m)	2,100	.036*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,100	.036*
6,689	15,000	1919	Miami	Bulletin	(e)	2,271	.036*
		1878		Silver Belt	(e)	2,125	.036*
5,199	.....	1914	Nogales	Herald	(e)	2,472	.036*
45,000	165,000	1880	Phoenix	Ariz. Gazette	(e)	12,265	.06*
		1890		Ariz. Republican	(m)	20,098	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	22,072	.08*
5,010	.....	1881	Prescott	Courier	(e)	3,526	.021*
		1864		Journal-Miner	(m)	3,484	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,484	.03*
30,000	50,000	1877	Tucson	Arizona Star	(m)	5,559	.0375*
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,662	.0375*
		1870		Citizen	(e)	4,674	.0375*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,925	.0375*
4,320	15,000	1925	Yuma	Herald	(e)	1,846	.03*
		1906		Sun	(m)	1,836	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,836	.03*

ARKANSAS

3,311	.....	1921	Arkadelphia	Siftings Herald	(e)	1,050	.014*
11,000	100,000	1903	Blytheville	Courier-News	(e)	4,120	.035*
4,500	.....	1920	Camden	News	(e)	950	.018*
4,564	.....	1908	Conway	Log Cabin Democrat	(e)	1,199	.014*
25,000	75,000	1921	El Dorado	News	(m)	6,277	...
				Times	(e)	2,743	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	9,020	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,327	.07*
2,429	.....	1881	Eureka Springs	Times-Echo	(e)	.....	.011*
5,362	.....	1894	Fayetteville	Democrat	(e)	2,020	.028*
35,000	150,000	1907	Fort Smith	Southwest American	(m)	12,624x	...
		1882		Times-Record	(e)	8,447x	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	21,071x	.08*
				Southwest Times-Record	(s)	23,706x	.08*
3,477	.....	1876	Harrison	Times	(e)	1,000	.015*
9,112	85,000	1871	Helena	World	(e)	.....	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.025*
4,790	.....	1923	Hope	Star of Hope	(e)	.....	.018*
20,500	.....	1880	Hot Springs	New Era	(e)	.....	.025*
		1877		Sentinel-Record	(m)	3,517	.036
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,517	.036
9,384	.....	1903	Jonesboro	Sun	(e)	2,218	.02*
		1906		Tribune	(e)	2,057	.021*
100,000	.....	1871	Little Rock	Arkansas Democrat	(e)	25,919	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	30,733	.07*
		1819		Arkansas Gazette	(m)	39,358	.10*
				Sunday edition	(s)	47,946	.12*
		1917		News	(e)	10,701	.03*
5,000	.....	1916	Malvern	Record	(e)	.....	.01*
3,453	25,000	1898	Mena	Star	(e)	770	.011*
3,500	.....	1901	Newport	Independent	(e)	700	.014*
6,306	.....	1895	Paragould	Press	(e)	1,250	.025*
19,280	.....	1881	Pine Bluff	Commercial	(e)	7,266	.035*
		1886		Graphic	(m)	5,437	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,437	.03*
2,691	.....	1906	Prescott	News	(e)	.....	.007*
3,318	30,000	1910	Rogers	Post	(e)	1,281	.015*
6,025	30,000	1924	Russellville	Courier-Democrat (e) (new daily)			.014*
2,836	.....	1890	Searcy	Citizen	(e)	530	.007*
2,590	.....	1910	Siloam Springs	Register	(e)	.....	.014*
4,522	15,000	1920	Stuttgart	Arkansawyer	(e)	800	.014*
30,609	35,000	1876	Texarkana	Gazette	(m)	9,428	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	9,870	.06*

*(Figure effective from March 7, '26, to March 31, '26. Consolidation of the Four States Press, Texarkana Journal, and Texarkanian took effect on March 7, '26.)

CALIFORNIA

28,806	.....	1909	Alameda	Times-Star	(e)	4,243	.03
24,000	37,000	1924	Alhambra	xPost-Advocate	(e)	6,380	.04*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
7,500	25,000	....	Anaheim	Bulletin	(e)	3,945	.04*
24,229	30,000	1886	Bakersfield	Californian	(e)	9,167x	.045*
		1886		Echo	(m)	3,176x	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,468x	.04*
55,886	.....	1877	Berkeley	Gazette	(e)	7,401	.045
6,763	15,000	1903	Brawley	News	(e)	1,850	.025*
12,500	18,000	1906	Burlingame	Advance	(e)	2,775	.03*
7,028	23,000	1904	Calexico	Chronicle	(e)	1,382	.021
10,000	17,000	1869	Chico	Enterprise	(e)	2,193x	.03*
		1853		Record	(m)	2,120	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,120	.025*
2,935	.....	1916	Coalinga	Record	(e)	1,040	.025*
8,700	15,000	1877	Colton	Courier	(e)	1,483	.025*
2,000	.....	1863	Colusa	Sun	(e)	885	.021*
1,449	6,000	1918	Corning	Observer	(e)	725	.021*
5,687	10,000	1906	Corona	Independent	(e)	897	.021*
3,400	.....	1909	Dinuba	Sentinel	(e)	1,546	.025*
5,464	25,000	1901	El Centro	Imperial Valley Press	(e)	2,600	.032*
2,200	4,200	1912	Escondido	Times-Advocate	(e)	780	.021*
19,865	31,800	1872	Eureka	Humboldt Standard	(e)	4,906	.03
		1852		Humboldt Times	(m)	5,182	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,609	.03
54,966	125,000	1922	Fresno	Bee	(e)	26,660	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	25,661	.08*
		1876		Republican	(m)	29,257	.10*
				Sunday edition	(s)	29,712	.10*
11,000	35,000	1889	Fullerton	News-Tribune	(e)	3,753	.035*
3,800	10,000	1925	Gilroy	Dispatch	(e)	976	.025*
13,536	40,000	1913	Glendale	News	(e)	7,634	.06*
		1921		xPress	(e)	5,857	.04*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
5,500	15,000	1863	Grass Valley	Union	(m)	1,582	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,583	.025*
							.007*
2,500	.....	1906	Gridley	Globe	(e)	1,595	.025*
5,888	.....	1891	Hanford	Journal	(m)	1,595	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,634	.025*
		1886		Sentinel	(e)	680	.029*
5,000	.....	1925	Hawthorne	Leader	(e)	(New Daily)	.021*
5,000	20,000	1925	Hayward	Review	(e)	645	.014*
2,500	.....	1919	Healdsburg	Tribune	(e)	1,187	.021*
2,781	.....	1909	Hollister	Free Lance	(e)	5,045	.05
100,000	.....	1905	Hollywood	Citizen	(e)	Free	...
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,817	.05*
		1921		xxNews	(e)	2,975	.032*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
12,000	25,000	1923	Inglewood	News	(e)	36,041	.12*
140,000	160,000	1888	Long Beach	Press-Telegram	(e)	34,658	.12*
		1924		Sunday edition	(s)	12,570	.07*
		1923		Sun	(m)	12,570	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	171,606	.39
1,000,000	1,350,000	1903	Los Angeles	Examiner	(m)	393,168	.70
				Sunday edition	(s)	104,516	.22*
		1871		xxExpress	(e)	182,313	.42
	xx (In a number of towns this circulation is sold in combination with local paper)
		1911		Herald	(e)	91,394	.30*
		1923		Illustrated Daily News	(m)	76,034	.30*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.036
		....		Journal	(m)	(New Daily)	.042
		1925		Journal of Commerce	(m)	56,138	.12*
		1895		Record	(e)	135,210	.27
		1881		Times	(m)	199,240	.37
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,250	.025*
4,250	14,500	1903	Madera	Tribune & Mercury	(e)

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

GLISH LANGUAGE DAILIES OF U. S.—CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

CALIFORNIA—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
898	12,000	1900	Martinez	Gazette	(e)	1,178	.021*
		1911		Standard	(e)	1,397	.029*
000	30,000	1859	Marysville	Appeal	(m)	2,226x	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,223x	.03*
		1884		Democrat	(e)	2,601x	.03*
320	32,000	1880	Merced	Sun-Star	(e)	3,671	.035*
000	45,000	1890	Modesto	Herald	(m)	3,346x	....
				News	(e)	7,510x	....
				Combined Daily	(me)	10,856x	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,374x	.06*
500	15,000	1926	Monrovia	Messenger	(e)	(New Daily)	.029*
		1909		News	(e)	.....	.025*
516	25,000	1876	Monterey	Peninsula Herald	(e)	2,893	.03*
757	.....	1889	Napa	Journal	(m)	1,750	.018*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,750	.018*
		1872		Register	(e)	2,197	.021*
800	550,000	1922	Oakland	Post-Enquirer	(e)	47,507x	.13*
		1874		Tribune	(e)	74,735x	.18*
				Sunday edition	(s)	74,543x	.18*
934	20,000	1910	Ontario	Report	(e)	3,715	.03*
500	15,000	1908	Orange	News	(e)	2,572	.025*
340	.....	1872	Oroville	Mercury	(e)	.....	.025*
		1877		Register	(m)	1,643	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,643	.025*
417	12,500	1898	Oxnard	Courier	(e)	1,625	.021
		1924		Tribune	(m)	1,522	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,522	.025*
974	.....	1902	Pacific Grove	Review	(e)	.....	.018*
500	15,000	1892	Palo Alto	Times	(e)	2,806	.04*
000	.....	1919	Pasadena	xxPost	(e)	10,232	.05*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
		1886		Star-News	(e)	18,123	.075*
		1925		Sun	(m)	8,645	.036
226	18,000	1894	Petaluma	Argus	(e)	2,575	.021*
		1884		Courier	(m)	1,650	.018
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,650	.018
000	35,000	1910	Pomona	Bulletin	(m)	3,454	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,454	.03
		1885		Progress	(e)	4,271	.03
100	.....	1924	Placerville	Republican	(e)	.....	.025*
000	15,000	1908	Porterville	Recorder	(e)	2,158	.025*
104	.....	1885	Red Bluff	News	(e)	1,350	.02*
000	13,000	1852	Redding	Courier-Free Press	(e)	1,256	.018*
		1897		Searchlight	(m)	1,630	.021*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,630	.021*
580	36,420	1890	Redlands	Facts	(e)	3,049	.03*
500	15,000	1922	Redondo Beach	xxBreeze	(e)	2,662	.03*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
026	.....	1923	Redwood City	Tribune	(e)	1,347	.025*
843	30,000	....	Richmond	Independent	(e)	3,604	.03*
		1900		Record-Herald	(m)	2,730	.029*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,730	.029*
000	40,000	1885	Riverside	Enterprise	(m)	4,098	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,098	.03*
		1885		Press	(e)	6,424	.03*
000	175,000	1857	Sacramento	Bee	(e)	47,330	.12*
		1851		Union	(m)	12,705	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,505	.07*
308	15,000	1872	Salinas	Index	(e)	1,932	.025*
		1888		Journal	(m)	1,380	.021*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,380	.021*
000	38,749	1894	San Bernardino	Sun	(m)	8,601	.028
		1865		Telegram (and Index)	(e)	2,641	.027
				Combined Daily	(me)	11,242	.055*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,870	.055*
231	142,026	1925	San Diego	Independent	(m)	(New Daily)	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.05*
231	142,026	1881	San Diego	Sun	(e)	20,534	.06*
		1868		Union	(m)	25,698	....
		1895		Tribune	(e)	23,701	....
				Combined Daily	(me)	49,339	.12
				Sunday Union	(s)	33,581	.11
284	1,275,636	1855	San Francisco	Bulletin	(e)	64,175	.16
		1856		Call & Post	(e)	101,098	.23
		1865		Chronicle	(m)	86,798	.26
				Sunday edition	(s)	149,122	.31
		1880		Examiner	(m)	167,025	.35
				Sunday edition	(s)	346,510	.65
		1903		News	(e)	68,120	.15*
000	105,000	1851	San Jose	Mercury-Herald	(m)	17,146	.075*
				Sunday edition	(s)	17,842	.075*
		1883		News	(e)	5,615	.04*
000	76,893	1888	San Luis Obispo	Tribune	(m)	2,108	....
				Telegram	(e)	2,111	....
				Combined Daily	(me)	4,219	.045*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,108	.045*
000	40,000	1906	San Mateo	Times & News-Leader	(e)	4,257	.04*
...	60,000	1903	San Pedro	xxNews	(e)	5,488	.04*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
		1912		Pilot	(e)	3,838	.035*
000	61,375	1905	Santa Ana	Register	(e)	10,233	.045*
000	40,000	1880	Santa Barbara	News	(e)	6,903	.04*
		1863		Press	(m)	6,303	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,663	.04*
000	20,000	1907	Santa Cruz	News	(e)	2,965	.03*
		1855		Sentinel	(m)	2,980	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,980	.03*
943	.....	1918	Santa Maria	Times	(e)	1,220	.014*
000	60,000	1877	Santa Monica	xxOutlook	(e)	8,887	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.075*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
000	15,000	1889	Santa Paula	Chronicle	(e)	1,712	.025*
758	.....	1857	Santa Rosa	Press-Democrat	(m)	8,804	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,804	.05*
		1880		Republican	(e)	6,289	.035*
296	.....	1858	Stockton	Independent	(m)	8,055	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,055	.04*
		1895		Record	(e)	16,749	.07*
000	15,000	1912	Taft	Midway Driller	(e)	3,634	.03*
000	13,500	1886	Tulare	Advance-Register	(e)	2,267	.03*
630	15,000	1904	Turlock	Journal	(e)	2,450	.029*
000	.....	1868	Vallejo	Chronicle	(e)	1,524	.025*
		1897		News	(e)	1,246	.018*
		1867		Times-Herald	(m)	2,197	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,197	.03*
000	.....	1908	Venice	xxVanguard	(e)	3,314	.03*
	xx (Sold in combination with the Los Angeles Evening Express)
000	.....	1925	Ventura	County Star	(e)	1,710	.025*
		1902		Free Press	(e)	1,548	.03*
		1902		Post & Democrat	(m)	2,003	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,003	.025*

ing newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government state-- April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

The San Francisco Call

First in Evening Circulation

In Prosperous San Francisco

where salaried employees and wage earners "bring home the bacon" to the tune of $82,265,330 per year.

Most of this money goes to the 7,884 retail stores to buy both necessities and luxuries for San Francisco's 557,530 inhabitants.

Direct this great buying power to your product through

THE SAN FRANCISCO CALL

The government statement for April 1st, 1926, gives the Call a total net paid circulation of

101,098

With an average of four persons to each family the Call reaches 409,392 readers.

The total net paid circulation of the Call for one week, beginning June 21, was: Monday 105,920; Tuesday 105,216; Wednesday 141,875; Thursday 108,542; Friday 109,052; Saturday 111,174.

Average for week ending June 26 was 113,629. Average for June with three days to go is 106,874.

The San Francisco Call

CHARLES S. YOUNG, Publisher

National Advertising Representatives:

HERBERT W. MOLONEY
Times Bldg.
New York

JOHN H. LEDERER
910 Hearst Bldg.
Chicago

KARL J. SHULL
Transportation Bldg.
Los Angeles

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

CALIFORNIA—Continued

City	Population Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
8,250	17,500	1859	Visalia ..... Delta	(m)	1,783	.025*
			Sunday edition	(s)	1,783	.025*
		1892	Times	(e)	1,695x	.025*
5,013	.....	1868	Watsonville ..... Pajaronian	(e)	1,560	.021
		1876	Register	(m)	1,904	.025*
			Sunday edition	(s)	1,904	.025*
7,997	18,000	1900	Whittier ..... News	(e)	3,333	.03
4,000	.....	1877	Willows ..... Journal	(e)	998	.018*
12,000	16,000	1923	Wilmington ..... Journal	(e)	1,780	.02
5,400	18,000	1877	Woodland ..... Democrat	(e)	2,249	.036*
		1866	Mail	(m)	1,604	.036*
			Sunday edition	(s)	1,604	.036*

COLORADO

2,250	5,000	1885	Aspen ..... Democrat-Times	(e)	455	.011
10,989	.....	1889	Boulder ..... Camera	(e)	2,340	.018
		1906	News-Herald	(e)	2,410	.021*
4,551	12,000	1925	Canon City ..... American	(e)	1,262	.02*
		1906	Record	(e)	1,798	.02*
35,723	50,723	1872	Colorado Springs .... Gazette	(m)	4,777	...
			Telegraph	(e)	6,853	...
			Combined Daily	(me)	11,630	.07*
			Sunday edition	(s)	11,469	.07*
2,325	.....	1893	Cripple Creek ..... Times-Record	(m)	.....	.018*
			Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.018*
275,000	350,000	1906	Denver ..... Express	(e)	14,865	.05*
		1892	Post	(e)	147,115	.30*
			Sunday edition	(s)	237,614	.40*
		1859	Rocky Mtn' News	(m)	28,681	.18*
		1870	Times	(e)	23,723	.18*
			Combined Daily	(me)	52,404	.23*
		1859	Sunday edition	(s)	54,857	.15*
		1892	Durango ..... Democrat	(m)	1,687	.018*
			Sunday edition	(s)	1,687	.018*
		1881	Herald	(e)	.....	.018n*
3,000	8,000	1899	Florence ..... Citizen	(e)	844	.014*
16,875	30,000	1873	Fort Collins ..... Express-Courier	(e)	4,613	.035*
			Sunday edition	(s)	4,613	.035*
3,818	9,500	1908	Fort Morgan ..... Times	(e)	1,460	.021*
11,340	25,000	1893	Grand Junction ..... Sentinel	(e)	3,963	.025*
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,960	.025*
12,000	18,000	1916	Greeley ..... Tribune-Republican	(m)	1,712	...
		1903	Tribune-Republican	(e)	2,922	...
			Combined Daily	(me)	4,634	.03*
10,883	30,000	1903	La Junta ..... Democrat	(e)	1,400	.021*
4,500	30,000	1897	Lamar ..... News	(e)	2,074	.029*
4,959	.....	1880	Leadville ..... Herald-Democrat	(m)	3,321	.025*
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,321	.025*
5,848	12,000	1898	Longmont ..... Call	(e)	1,520	.021*
		1892	Times	(e)	1,530	.021*
5,279	.....	1923	Loveland ..... Reporter-Herald	(e)	1,965	.021*
3,980	12,000	1882	Montrose ..... Press	(e)	.....	.025*
45,000	97,000	1871	Pueblo ..... Chieftain	(m)	7,455	.04
			Sunday edition	(s)	10,064	.04
		1901	Star-Journal	(e)	10,092	.05*
			Sunday edition	(s)	11,229	.05*
4,689	.....	1924	Salida ..... Record	(e)	.....	.018*
7,500	50,000	1910	Sterling ..... Advocate	(e)	4,356	.04*
2,000	.....	1894	Telluride ..... Journal	(e)	598	.015*
10,900	50,000	1880	Trinidad ..... Chronicle-News	(e)	3,211	.02*
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,211	.02*
		1915	Picketwire	(e)	3,325	.025*

CONNECTICUT

50,579	.....	1884	Ansonia ..... Sentinel	(e)	6,879	.04*
175,000	236,975	1890	Bridgeport ..... Herald	(s)	44,865	.10*
		1883	Post	(e)	29,300	...
		1891	Telegram	(m)	13,443	...
			Combined Daily	(me)	42,743	.15*
		1911	Sunday Post	(m)	21,162	.10*
		1919	Star	(e)	9,882	.05*
		1790	Times & Farmer	(e)	8,814	.05*
20,620	.....	1871	Bristol ..... Press	(e)	4,570	.025
22,325	.....	1880	Danbury ..... News	(e)	7,412	.021*
164,184	373,000	1837	Hartford ..... Courant	(m)	33,003	.09
		1913	Sunday edition	(s)	56,274	.13
		1841	Times	(e)	53,121	.13*
23,000	40,000	1914	Manchester ..... Herald	(e)	4,572	.025
38,907	78,000	1886	Meriden ..... Journal	(e)	7,277	.03
		1860	Record	(m)	8,439	.03
25,000	50,000	1884	Middletown ..... Press	(e)	8,359	.03
15,051	.....	1895	Naugatuck ..... News	(e)	4,068	.03
70,000	104,074	1878	New Britain ..... Herald	(e)	12,392	.05
		1855	Record	(e)	11,264	.05
218,000	290,000	1766	New Haven ..... Journal-Courier	(m)	18,760	.06
		1812	Register	(e)	46,218	.135
			Sunday edition	(s)	46,218	.135
		1892	Times-Leader	(e)	15,548	.06
		1871	Union	(e)	14,830	.05
			Sunday edition	(s)	14,830	.05
29,000	70,000	1881	New London ..... Day	(e)	12,054	.045
		1890	Globe	(e)	.....	.011
30,150	34,000	1871	Norwalk ..... Hour	(e)	6,107x	.04*
32,747	50,000	1870	So. Norwalk ..... Sentinel	(e)	5,043	.025
29,685	75,000	1850	Norwich ..... Bulletin	(m)	12,724	.05
		1888	Record	(e)	3,791	.03
45,000	80,000	1892	Stamford ..... Advocate	(e)	10,494x	.045
20,623	.....	1874	Torrington ..... Register	(e)	5,082	.03
116,366	140,000	1881	Waterbury ..... Republican	(m)	11,529	...
			American	(e)	12,376	...
			Combined Daily	(me)	23,905	.08
			*Sunday edition	(s)	15,476	...

(*Sunday edition sold only in combination)

		1881	Democrat	(e)	9,995	.04
12,330	18,000	1877	Willimantic ..... Chronicle	(e)	3,250	.03
8,248	.....	1888	Winsted ..... Citizen	(e)	2,230	.02

DELAWARE

117,727	250,000	1866	Wilmington ..... Every Evening	(e)	15,795x	.05
		1888	Journal	(e)	22,372x	.07
		1880	Morning News	(m)	8,509x	.05*
			Combined Daily	(me)	30,881x	.09*
		1881	Sunday Star	(s)	13,934x	.06*

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

City	Population Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
475,966	697,551	1906	Washington ..... Herald	(m)	54,029	.15*
			Sunday edition	(s)	121,978	.28*
		1894	Times	(e)	54,289	.18*
			Combined Herald & Times	(me)	108,318	.25*
		1921	News	(e)	65,078	.18*
		1877	Post	(m)	64,025	.20
		1878	Sunday edition	(s)	77,124	.22
		1852	Star	(e)	98,509	.22*
		1905	Sunday edition	(s)	106,820	.22*
		1926	United States Daily new daily	(m)	.....	.50

FLORIDA

1,534	.....	....	Avon Park ..... Twin Cities Sun	(e)	(New Daily)	.04
3,868	.....	1922	Bradentown ..... Herald	(e)	3,200	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,200	.04
8,500	16,000	1925	Clearwater ..... Herald	(m)	3,000	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	5,000	.04
		1914	Sun	(e)	3,516	.03
12,000	15,000	1882	Daytona Beach ..... Journal	(m)	4,013	.05
			Sunday edition	(s)	4,269	.05
		1905	News	(e)	5,695	.04
			Sunday edition	(s)	5,961	.04
12,000	20,000	1915	DeLand ..... News	(e)	3,675	.03
1,193	.....	1923	Eustis ..... Lake Region	(e)	....	.02
			Sunday edition	(s)	....	.02
15,915	.....	1910	Ft. Lauderdale ..... News-Sun	(me)	6,104	.06
			Sunday edition	(s)	6,104	.06
15,000	.....	1911	Fort Meyers ..... Press	(e)	3,550	.03
		1922	Tropical News	(m)	4,688	.04
			Sunday edition	(s)	4,688	.04
6,000	.....	1922	Fort Pierce ..... News-Tribune	(e)	2,021	.02
		1925	Record	(m-Sun)	(New Daily)	.03
5,286	31,000	1925	Gainesville ..... News	(e)	(New Daily)	.02
		1881	Sun	(m)	2,763	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	2,763	.03
4,500	.....	1925	Haines City ..... Herald	(e)	1,526	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	1,526	.03
12,500	75,000	1925	Hollywood ..... News	(m)	(New Daily)	.05
			Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.06
2,114	.....	1926	Homestead ..... Leader	(e)	(New Daily)	.03
102,471	300,000	1866	Jacksonville ..... Times-Union	(m)	49,903	.12
			Sunday edition	(s)	59,239	.15
		1887	Journal	(e)	25,020	.08
		1879	Citizen	(e)	2,282	.02
4,500	.....	1924	Kissimmee ..... Gazette	(e)	1,620	.02
	*(Figures to Feb. 1, '26)
24,700	60,000	1924	Lakeland ..... Ledger	(e)	5,173	.04
			Sunday edition	(s)	5,442	.04
		1911	Star-Telegram	(m)	4,954	.04
		1925	Star-Telegram	(s)	5,283	.04
1,106	.....	1925	Lake Worth ..... Leader	(e)	3,196	.03
87,350	125,575	1910	Miami ..... Herald	(m)	48,108x	.11
			Sunday edition	(s)	60,006x	.12
		1904	News	(e)	43,189x	.11
			Sunday edition	(s)	42,810x	.11
		1924	Tribune	(e)	16,220	.10
7,500	.....	1895	Ocala ..... Star	(e)	1,650	.02
22,255	65,000	1876	Orlando ..... Reporter-Star	(e)	8,492x	.04
			Sunday edition	(s)	....
		1912	Morning Sentinel	(m)	9,962x	.04
			Sunday edition	(s)	11,349x	.04
7,241	17,650	1900	Palatka ..... News	(e)	3,175	.03
9,523	20,000	1894	Palm Beach ..... News	(m)	....	.10
			Sunday edition	(s)	....	.10
38,000	72,416	1898	Pensacola ..... Journal	(m)	5,849x
		1885	News	(e)	3,956x
			Combined Daily	(me)	9,805x	.04
			Sunday edition	(s)	9,093x	.03
8,000	22,000	1884	Plant City ..... Courier	(m)	(New Daily)	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.03
6,192	12,000	1894	St. Augustine ..... Record	(e)	3,382	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,382	.03
125,000	.....	1925	St. Petersburg ..... News	(e)	10,672	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	14,177	.10
		1908	Independent	(e)	11,917	.03
		1884	Times	(m)	12,143	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	12,143	.03
10,432	15,000	1920	Sanford ..... Herald	(e)	2,621	.03
12,000	30,000	1925	Sarasota ..... Herald	(m)	2,914	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	2,914	.03
		1924	Times	(e)	2,914	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	2,914	.03
7,100	30,000	1925	Sebring ..... American	(m)	2,179	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	2,179	.03
		1925	Stuart ..... News	(e)	1,464	.03
5,365	22,000	1914	Tallahassee ..... Democrat	(e)	....	.03
		1925	State	(m)	(New Daily)	.03
124,116	300,000	1925	Tampa ..... Telegraph	(m)	14,087	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	21,959	.03
		1891	Times	(e)	23,325	.03
		1892	Tribune	(m)	32,954	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	52,217	.10
1,442	....	1925	Vero Beach ..... Press	(m)	(New Daily)	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.03
20,296	40,000	1908	West Palm Beach .... W. P. B. Post	(m)	12,243x	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	14,046x	.03
		1922	Palm Beach Times	(e)	12,346	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	12,346	.03
5,000	25,000	1924	Winterhaven ..... Florida Chief	(e)	3,820	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,820	.03

GEORGIA

11,555	.....	1892	Albany ..... Herald	(e)	5,952	.03
9,010	150,000	1879	Americus ..... Times-Recorder	(e)	2,572	.02
20,000	250,000	1832	Athens ..... Banner-Herald	(e)	3,397	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,369	.03
272,000	1,215,736	1868	Atlanta ..... Constitution	(m)	68,079	.15
			Sunday edition	(s)	108,292	.15
		1906	Georgian	(e)	58,070	.15
		1913	Sunday American	(s)	131,606	.20
		1883	Journal	(e)	68,314	.15
			Sunday edition	(s)	118,940	.15
60,000	350,000	1785	Augusta ..... Chronicle	(m)	11,059x	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	11,340x	.03
		1892	Herald	(e)	14,246	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	14,547	.03
14,413	.....	1901	Brunswick ..... News	(e)	....	.03
			Sunday edition	(s)	....	.03

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

An Important Announcement Concerning Reading, Penna., An Important Advertising Field

The Reading Times, a John H. Perry newspaper, on June 21st purchased the circulation, plant and equipment of the Reading Tribune and the latter paper suspended publication with its issue of Tuesday, June 22nd.

The Times, published mornings every weekday since 1858, now has a paid circulation in excess of 30,000 copies a day. In addition several thousand subscriptions to the Tribune purchased by Pomeroy's, Inc., Reading's largest department store, are to be fulfilled by the Times for an average period of ten months. However, the Times rate of eight cents per line is based solely upon the reader paid circulation.

Adequate coverage of the rich Reading and Berks County territory requires the use of Times.

The Reading Times

A John H. Perry Newspaper

Represented in the national field by the

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

NEW YORK CHICAGO KANSAS CITY DETROIT ATLANTA SAN FRANCISCO

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

GEORGIA—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
53,000	75,000	1828	Columbus	Enquirer-Sun	(m)	6,732	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,810	.04*
		1886		Ledger	(e)	11,387	.036
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,507	.036
6,538	.....	1908	Cordele	Dispatch	(s)	1,650	.018*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,650	.018*
10,840	397,258	1884	Dublin	Courier-Herald & Dispatch	(e)	1,700	.021*
8,240	17,000	1871	Griffen	News & Sun	(e)	2,571	.025
17,038	40,000	1842	La Grange	Reporter	(e)	2,261	.0215*
65,000	250,000	1884	Macon	News	(e)	15,794	.06
				Sunday edition	(s)	15,854	.06
		1826		Telegraph	(m)	24,035	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	24,439	.08*
6,789	.....	1905	Moultrie	Observer	(e)	1,650	.014*
15,000	40,000	1843	Rome	News-Tribune	(e)	4,168	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,237	.03*
85,000	371,576	1850	Savannah	Morning News	(m)	21,220x	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	22,161x	.07*
		1891		Press	(e)	15,675x	.05*
10,300	.....	1855	Thomasville	Times-Enterprise	(e)	1,600	.014*
3,005	.....	1914	Tifton	Gazette	(e)	1,565	.014*
10,783	.....	1867	Valdosta	Times	(e)	3,016	.02*
18,068	95,000	1883	Waycross	Journal-Herald	(e)	3,120	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,120	.025*

TERRITORY OF HAWAII

11,000	100,000	....	Hilo	Tribune-Herald	(e)	1,818	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,818	.03*
83,327	384,000	1856	Honolulu	Advertiser	(m)	11,074	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	17,440	.07*
		1893		Star-Bulletin	(e)	15,893	.065*
				Saturday edition	(e)	18,825	.07*

IDAHO

23,000	120,000	1901	Boise	Capital News	(e)	10,115	.04
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,115	.04
		1864		Idaho Statesman	(m)	13,983	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	14,709	.06*
6,447	15,000	1906	Coeur D'Alene	Press	(e)	2,113	.021*
8,064	60,000	1905	Idaho Falls	Post	(e)	....	.03*
6,574	.....	1892	Lewiston	Tribune	(m)	4,825	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,825	.03*
5,234	.....	1911	Moscow	Star-Mirror	(e)	1,620	.021*
7,621	.....	1919	Nampa	Idaho Free Press	(m)	4,221	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,221	.03*
20,001	50,000	1924	Pocatello	Idaho State Journal	(m)	4,726	.04*
		1892		Tribune	(e)	5,427	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,652	.05*
8,400	30,000	1922	Twin Falls	News	(m)	3,150	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,184	.03*
		1905		Times	(e)	3,167	.03*
3,500	15,000	1910	Wallace	Press-Times	(m)	2,182	.03

ILLINOIS

27,500	50,000	1836	Alton	Telegraph	(e)	9,985	.04*
40,000	83,000	1846	Aurora	Beacon News	(e)	18,694	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	18,496	.07*
7,111	.....	1890	Beardstown	Illinoian State	(e)	.....	.007
26,000	50,000	1839	Belleville	Advocate	(e)	6,465	.03*
		1855		News-Democrat	(e)	7,035	.025*
7,804	15,000	1892	Belvidere	Republican	(e)	3,358	.021*
7,201	20,000	1922	Benton	News	(e)	2,936	.025*
35,000	170,000	1881	Bloomington	Bulletin	(e)	6,309x	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,265x	.035*
		1846		Pantagraph	(m)	18,843x	.06
17,000	110,783	1868	Cairo	Bulletin	(m)	.....	.022*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.022*
		1899		Citizen	(e)	4,696	.03
12,000	50,000	1912	Canton	Ledger	(e)	4,526x	.03*
		1890		Register	(e)	3,392	.02
6,267	.....	1903	Carbondale	Free Press	(e)	.....	.015*
5,212	.....	....	Carlinville	Enquirer	(e)	.....	.009
15,000	47,000	1884	Centralia	Sentinel	(e)	6,077x	.033
34,023	86,119	1871	Champaign-Urbana	Daily Illini	(m)	4,100	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,100	.03*
		1852		News-Gazette	(e)	13,911	.05*
		1917		Sunday edition	(s)	13,907	.05*
6,615	.....	1840	Charleston	Courier	(e)	2,976	.02*
		1892		News	(me)	.....	.018*
2,970,185	3,500,000	1900	Chicago	American	(e)	488,492	.75*
		1881		Herald & Examiner	(m)	383,936	.55*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,151,978	1.10*
		1844		Journal	(e)	123,771	.24
		1920		Journal of Commerce	(m)	20,654	.26
		1876		News	(e)	401,671	.70*
		1890		Post	(e)	36,021	.18
		1847		Tribune	(m)	700,443	1.00
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,087,990	1.40
7,000	20,000	1908	Clinton	Journal	(m)	2,008	.032*
		1908		Sunday edition	(s)	2,007	.032*
		1895		Public	(e)	2,236	.025*
35,000	132,168	1866	Danville	Commercial-News	(e)	22,147	.065
		1886		Press	(m)	8,894	.04*
		1886		Sunday edition	(s)	8,991	.04*
52,500	176,190	1880	Decatur	Herald	(m)	21,034	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	20,821	.06*
		1878		Review	(e)	20,629	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	19,512	.06*
9,250	32,000	1890	DeKalb	Chronicle	(e)	3,475	.025*
		1914		Independent	(e)	.....	.014*
10,000	27,750	1850	Dixon	Telegraph	(e)	5,024x	.035*
7,285	.....	1895	Duquoin	Call	(e)	.....	.02*
75,000	175,000	1889	East St. Louis	Journal	(e)	11,564	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,677	.05
		1925		News-Review	(e)	7,495	.04
5,336	.....	1862	Edwardsville	Intelligencer	(e)	5,218	.03
4,024	.....	1868	Effingham	Record	(e)	.....	.032
5,004	.....	1921	Eldorado	Journal	(e)	1,430	.018*
		1924		News	(e)	1,129	.014*
30,199	50,000	1871	Elgin	Courier-News	(e)	17,088x	.06*
(Figures from Jan. 1, 1926 to March 31, 1926)
58,000	.....	1872	Evanston	News-Index	(e)	6,729	.04*
21,000	100,000	1848	Freeport	Journal-Standard	(e)	9,613	.045*
4,742	.....	1834	Galena	Gazette	(e)	1,100	.018*
28,207	61,330	1891	Galesburg	Mail	(e)	11,004x	.03*
		1873		Republican-Register	(e)	10,703x	.03*

ILLINOIS—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
12,711	.....	1908	Harrisburg	Register	(e)	4,852	.025
10,986	.....	1923	Herrin	Journal	(e)	2,270	.025*
6,000	.....	1872	Hoopeston	Chronicle-Herald	(e)	1,964	.02*
		1925		Times	(e)	1,631	.02
15,713	40,000	1876	Jacksonville	Courier	(e)	2,622	.022*
		1866		Journal	(m)	3,636	.029
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,700	.029
3,839	.....	1898	Jerseyville	Democrat	(e)	.....	.004
55,000	90,000	1904	Joliet	Herald-News	(e)	19,591x	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	19,358x	.07
16,721	85,000	1892	Kankakee	Republican	(e)	7,861	.035*
		1892		News	(e)	5,736	.02
20,000	40,000	1893	Kewanee	Star-Courier	(e)	4,089x	.02
23,657	40,000	1891	La Salle	Post	(e)	2,100	.02*
		1891		Tribune & Peru Press	(e)	3,989	.025*
5,080	30,000	1922	Lawrenceville	Record	(e)	2,019	.025*
2,279	.....	1896	Lewistown	Record	(e)	1,080	.014*
12,800	30,000	1856	Lincoln	Courier	(e)	3,170x	.025*
		1911		Star	(e)	1,603x	.02*
6,200	.....	1906	Litchfield	News-Herald	(e)	2,175	.02
		1913		Union	(e)	.....	.024
6,714	.....	1894	Macomb	Journal	(e)	6,434	.032*
9,582	.....	1902	Marion	Post	(e)	2,025	.02*
		1908		Republican	(e)	2,908	.02*
3,391	.....	1921	Marseilles	Press	(e)	790	.018*
13,552	23,992	1857	Matton	Journal-Gazette & Commercial-Star	(e)	5,785x	.03*
83,799	125,000	1876	Moline	Dispatch	(e)	11,681	.045*
49,457	30,000	1846	Monmouth	Review-Atlas	(e)	5,416	.035*
4,725	.....	1878	Morris	Herald	(e)	3,041	.02*
7,456	16,000	1839	Mt. Carmel	Republican-Register	(e)	3,320	.02*
2,000	.....	1890	Mt. Carroll	Mirror-Democrat	(e)	1,200	.021*
9,815	.....	1921	Mt. Vernon	Herald	(e)	5,070	.025*
		1892		Register-News	(e)	6,632	.03*
12,580	37,091	1873	Murphysboro	Independent	(e)	4,756	.03*
4,491	.....	1898	Olney	Mail	(e)	4,787	.012*
12,960	48,000	1840	Ottawa	Free Trader Journal	(e)	4,784	.021*
		1884		Republican-Times	(e)	5,389x	.03
6,122	15,000	1889	Pana	Palladium	(e)	1,450	.018*
7,985	.....	1848	Paris	Beacon	(e)	1,871	.02*
		1893		Gazette	(m)	.....	.008*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.008*
		1908		News	(e)	2,761	.02
3,033	.....	1898	Paxton	Record	(e)	.....	.08*
12,086	.....	1853	Pekin	Times	(e)	.....	.03*
91,345	150,000	1880	Peoria	Transcript	(m)	10,314	...
		1871		Journal	(e)	25,253	...
				Combined daily	(me)	35,567	.09
				Sunday edition	(s)	25,259	.09
		1897		Star	(e)	29,874	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	22,497	.07
8,869	.....	1887	Peru	News-Herald	(e)	.....	.025
7,400	18,000	1895	Pontiac	Leader	(e)	3,597	.022
40,000	325,685	1835	Quincy	Herald-Whig	(e)	.....	...
				Morning edition	(m)	.....	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	30,000	.11*
				Sunday edition	(s)	30,000	.12*

Note—Herald and Whig-Journal consolidated June 1, 1926, Publisher's guarantee combined circulation of 30,000.

4,000	10,000	1919	Robinson	News	(e)	2,000	.025
75,000	150,000	1840	Rockford	Register-Gazette	(e)	16,189	.05
		1896		Republic	(e)	10,582	.04
		1888		Star	(m)	14,459	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	14,459	.06
73,033	170,000	1851	Rock Island	Argus	(e)	11,462	.045
5,237	.....	1917	Savanna	Times-Journal	(e)	2,033	.017
3,590	.....	1883	Shelbyville	Union	(e)	1,270	.011
71,835	350,000	1831	Springfield	State Journal	(m)	31,429	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	27,715	.08*
		1836		State Register	(e)	29,162	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	27,099	.08*
11,109	45,000	1854	Sterling & Rock Falls	Gazette	(e)	6,342	.04*
15,000	44,316	1873	Streator	Free Press	(e)	4,550	.025
		1884		Independent Times	(e)	4,532	.025
8,000	38,000	1895	Taylorville	Breeze	(e)	1,996	.018
		1887		Courier	(e)	2,504	.02
10,230	.....	1878	Urbana	Courier	(e)	3,767	.03*
27,000	60,000	1921	Waukegan	News	(e)	3,848	.03
		1899		Sun	(e)	5,114	.03
18,167	60,000	1918	West Frankfort	American	(e)	3,500	.03
5,523	.....	1921	Woodstock	Sentinel	(e)	2,227	.029

INDIANA

4,172	.....	1880	Alexandria	News	(e)	895	.011
		1885		Times-Tribune	(e)	1,325	.014
32,268	100,000	1885	Anderson	Bulletin	(e)	8,904x	.035
		1868		Herald	(m)	8,252x	.035
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,340x	.035
3,392	.....	1913	Attica	Ledger-Tribune	(e)	1,936	.02
4,650	.....	1870	Auburn	Star	(e)	....	.015
9,076	.....	1892	Bedford	Mail	(e)	....	.025
		1892		Times	(e)	3,950	.025
8,000	28,000	1919	Bicknell	News	(e)	3,144	.02
11,595	.....	1877	Bloomington	Telephone	(e)	4,362	.02
		1892		World	(e)	4,405	.02*
5,591	15,000	1899	Bluffton	Banner	(e)	3,085	.02*
		1892		News	(e)	3,170	.02*
9,293	20,000	1888	Brazil	Times	(e)	4,515	.03
10,962	.....	1912	Clinton	Clintonian	(e)	3,078	.025
3,499	8,090	1889	Columbia City	Commercial Mail	(e)	1,450	.021
		1896		Post	(e)	1,350	.014
10,000	40,000	1882	Columbus	Herald	(e)	1,050	.011
		1877		Republican	(e)	4,912	.03*
9,901	17,000	1887	Connersville	News-Examiner	(e)	4,681	.025
10,200	38,000	1848	Crawfordsville	Journal	(e)	2,756	.02
		1848		Review	(m)	5,648	.03*
7,252	.....	1903	Decatur	Democrat	(e)	3,215	.025
3,000	.....	1875	Edinburg	Courier	(e)	....	.02*
33,000	60,000	1892	Elkhart	Truth	(e)	12,702	.04*
24,277	60,000	1892	Elwood	Call-Leader	(e)	3,126	.015
93,601	523,154	1845	Evansville	Courier	(m)	27,302	.07*
		1832		Journal	(e)	12,843	.04*
				Combined daily	(me)	40,145	.09*
				Sunday edition	(s)	29,982	.09*
93,601	523,154	1906	Evansville	Press	(e)	21,441	.05
		1925		Sunday edition	(s)	21,791	.05*
100,000	300,000	1854	Fort Wayne	Journal-Gazette	(m)	35,456x	.08
				Sunday edition	(s)	29,534x	.08
		1833		News-Sentinel	(e)	43,365x	.10*
11,585	26,000	1877	Frankfort	Times	(m)	8,219	.04
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,219	.04

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

ANNOUNCING

THE APPOINTMENT OF

MERRILL C. MEIGS

AS PUBLISHER

CHICAGO

HERALD AND EXAMINER

Chicago, June 21, 1926

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

INDIANA—Continued

City	Population Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
5,050	18,000	1885	Franklin ..... Star	(e)	3,256	.021*
84,000	100,000	1909	Gary ..... Post-Tribune	(e)	15,514	.06
10,000	24,000	1837	Goshen ..... Democrat	(e)	2,376	.015*
		1856	News-Times	(e)	3,368x	.02
5,000	.....	1850	Greencastle ..... Banner	(e)	2,250	.021*
		1906	Herald	(e)	2,185	.021*
4,500	.....	1889	Greenfield ..... Reporter	(e)	2,340	.014*
5,345	.....	1881	Greensburg ..... News	(e)	3,309	.02
		1910	Times	(e)	2,003	.017*
36,004	200,000	1906	Hammond ..... Times	(e)	17,633	.06*
6,183	.....	1893	Hartford City ..... News	(me)	2,462	.02
		1886	Times-Gazette	(me)	2,428	.02
15,000	40,000	1848	Huntington ..... Herald	(e)	3,639x	.025*
		1912	Press	(m)	4,064x	.025*
			Sunday edition	(s)	4,287x	.025*
360,000	800,000	1895	Indianapolis ..... Commercial	(m)	4,235	.06
		1869	News	(e)	130,660x	.25*
		1903	Star	(m)	97,995x	.18
			Sunday edition	(s)	136,329x	.25
		1888	Times	(e)	53,702x	.12*
10,098	18,000	1872	Jeffersonville ..... News	(e)	1,507	.02*
5,273	25,000	1890	Kendallville ..... News-Sun	(e)	2,178	.02*
36,000	51,700	1870	Kokomo ..... Dispatch	(m)	9,412	.04*
			Sunday edition	(s)	11,106	.045*
		1848	Tribune	(e)	9,800	.045*
30,000	85,000	1829	Lafayette ..... Journal-Courier	(m)	7,878	...
		1831	Evening edition	(e)	13,583	...
			Combined daily	(m)	21,461	.06*
18,000	44,000	1880	LaPorte ..... Herald-Argus	(e)	6,726	.04*
6,267	28,000	1891	Lebanon ..... Reporter	(e)	3,314	.025*
5,845	35,000	1898	Linton ..... Citizen	(e)	....	.018*
24,000	50,000	1844	Logansport ..... Pharos-Tribune	(e)	11,893	.05*
		1844	Press	(m)	11,520	.04*
			Sunday edition	(s)	11,520	.04*
6,711	20,000	1849	Madison ..... Courier	(e)	2,961	.02*
		1871	Herald	(e)	1,050	.018*
26,000	54,500	1865	Marion ..... Chronicle	(e)	9,364	.04*
		1889	Leader-Tribune	(m)	9,251	.04*
			Sunday edition	(s)	10,005	.04*
4,895	.....	1889	Martinsville ..... Reporter	(e)	....	.011*
19,475	.....	1881	Michigan City ..... Dispatch	(e)	3,305	.015*
		1882	News	(e)	4,839	.035
22,168	.....	1924	Mishawaka ..... Enterprise	(e)	....	.025*
2,800	.....	1896	Monticello ..... Journal	(e)	1,285	.015*
5,284	9,000	1867	Mt. Vernon ..... Democrat	(e)	1,350	.015*
42,000	150,000	1890	Muncie ..... Press	(e)	11,666	.045
		1889	Star	(m)	24,130x	.07
			Sunday edition	(s)	15,527x	.07
22,992	60,000	1888	New Albany ..... Tribune	(e)	....	.02*
17,000	32,000	1841	New Castle ..... Courier	(e)	4,221	.025
		1908	Times	(e)	3,045	.02
5,000	15,000	1888	Noblesville ..... Ledger	(e)	3,305	.025*
14,000	28,600	1893	Peru ..... Chronicle	(m)	3,100	.015*
		1884	Journal	(me)	3,882	.03*
		1921	Tribune	(e)	4,357	.025
4,338	.....	1894	Plymouth ..... Democrat	(e)	2,512	.026*
		1851	Pilot	(e)	2,524	.02
5,958	15,000	1887	Portland ..... Commercial-Review	(me)	2,310	.015
		1915	Republican	(e)	2,540	...
		1908	Sun	(e)	2,065	...
			Combined daily	(e)	4,605	.025
7,132	29,201	1846	Princeton ..... Clarion News	(e)	3,139	.018
		1860	Democrat	(e)	3,008	.02
2,912	.....	1897	Rensselaer ..... Republican	(e)	800	.016*
28,000	72,000	1878	Richmond ..... Item	(m)	13,093	.05*
			Sunday edition	(s)	13,790	.05*
		1831	Palladium	(e)	12,358	.05
3,720	17,000	1923	Rochester ..... News-Sentinel	(e)	2,810	.025*
5,850	22,000	1840	Rushville ..... Republican	(e)	2,977	.02
7,348	.....	1879	Seymour ..... Tribune	(e)	2,439	.018*
9,701	26,000	1880	Shelbyville ..... Democrat	(e)	4,018	.025
		1854	Republican	(e)	....	.017*
117,867	300,000	1908	South Bend ..... News-Times	(m)	9,751	...
		1883	Evening edition	(e)	16,603	...
			Combined daily	(me)	26,354	.07*
		1887	Sunday edition	(s)	24,500	.07*
		1873	Tribune	(e)	22,254	.06*
		1922	Sunday edition	(s)	21,431	.06*
4,489	.....	1905	Sullivan ..... Times	(e)	....	.02*
70,000	190,000	1906	Terre Haute ..... Post	(e)	16,812	.04675
		1903	Star	(m)	25,260	.06*
			Sunday edition	(s)	23,693	.06*
		1896	Tribune	(e)	23,323	.06*
			Sunday edition	(s)	23,406	.06*
4,878	.....	1895	Tipton ..... Tribune	(e)	3,098	.02*
5,880	32,000	1861	Union City ..... Times	(e)	2,265	.021*
6,518	.....	1870	Valparaiso ..... Vidette	(e)	2,000	.02*
19,500	75,000	1883	Vincennes ..... Commercial	(m)	5,845	.035*
		1884	Sunday edition	(s)	6,048	.035*
		1879	Sun	(e)	4,287	.02
13,376	42,000	1859	Wabash ..... Plain Dealer & Times Star	(e)	6,043	.04*
5,478	30,000	1850	Warsaw ..... Times	(e)	3,607	.025*
		1860	Union	(e)	2,525	.02*
8,748	31,000	1886	Washington ..... Democrat	(e)	2,754	.02*
		1905	Herald	(e)	2,863	.025*

IOWA

City	Population Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
9,350	25,000	1867	Ames ..... Tribune	(e)	3,018	.03*
5,477	40,000	1871	Atlantic ..... News-Telegraph	(e)	5,250	.04*
14,174	54,300	1865	Boone ..... News-Republican	(e)	4,977	.035*
28,000	145,000	1937	Burlington ..... Gazette	(e)	10,990	.045*
		1830	Hawk-Eye	(m)	10,365	.045*
			Sunday edition	(s)	13,590	.045*
6,316	.....	1899	Cedar Falls ..... Record	(e)	2,021	.025*
51,041	225,000	1883	Cedar Rapids ..... Gazette	(e)	21,012	.07
		1870	Republican	(e)	13,156	.065*
		1902	Sunday edition	(s)	13,544	.065*
8,486	40,000	1894	Centerville ..... Iowegian & Citizen	(e)	4,756	.025*
7,350	25,000	1896	Charles City ..... Press & Intelligencer	(e)	3,156	.025*
27,000	85,000	1858	Clinton ..... Advertiser	(e)	10,653	.045*
		1856	Herald	(e)	10,004	.04*
41,000	101,430	1857	Council Bluffs ..... Nonpareil	(e)	16,268	.06*
			Sunday edition	(s)	16,353	.06*
8,034	26,000	1881	Creston ..... Advertiser	(e)	3,550	.045*
68,000	395,094	1886	Davenport ..... Times	(e)	24,939	.08*
		1855	Democrat & Leader	(e)	13,677	.06*
			Sunday edition	(s)	16,920	.06*
147,500	826,547	1882	Des Moines ..... Capital	(e)	50,738	.14*
		1849	Register	(m)	84,277	...
		1881	Tribune	(e)	84,277	...
		1849	Sunday edition	(s)	149,515	.30*
			Combined daily	(me)	171,320	.30*

IOWA—Continued

City	Population Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
42,811	289,000	1920	Dubuque ..... American Tribune	(e)	17,244	.05*
			Sunday edition	(s)	17,244	.05*
		1836	Telegraph-Herald	(e)	20,497	.06*
			Sunday edition	(s)	20,663	.06*
		1856	Times-Journal	(e)	13,204	.05*
			Sunday edition	(s)	13,170	.05*
5,948	.....	1849	Fairfield ..... Ledger	(e)	4,868	.03*
21,702	464,271	1856	Fort Dodge ..... Messenger & Chronicle	(e)	10,365x	.05*
15,000	35,000	1886	Fort Madison ..... Democrat	(e)	4,898	.035*
15,286	6,708	1840	Iowa City ..... Press-Citizen	(e)	6,708	.035*
17,000	81,972	1847	Keokuk ..... Gate City	(e)	5,610x	.035*
17,500	80,000	1870	Marshalltown ..... Times-Republican	(e)	11,,266	.045*
24,000	105,000	1857	Mason City ..... Globe-Gazette & Times	(e)	13,863	.05*
3,985	.....	1891	Missouri Valley ..... Times	(e)	531	.017*
4,334	.....	1879	Mt. Pleasant ..... News	(e)	1,495	.02
18,173	79,103	1840	Muscatine ..... Journal & News-Tribune	(e)	8,010	.04
8,500	27,885	1902	Newton ..... News	(e)	3,103	.025*
8,525	72,671	1906	Oelwein ..... Register	(e)	3,144	.03*
9,487	.....	1887	Oskaloosa ..... Herald	(e)	5,250	.03*
27,365	150,000	1848	Ottumwa ..... Courier	(e)	13,043	.06*
5,642	.....	1894	Perry ..... Chief	(e)	2,263	.025*
5,494	40,000	1891	Shenandoah ..... Sentinel-World	(e)	4,201	.032*
78,571	400,000	1870	Sioux City ..... Journal	(m)	8,385	...
			Evening edition	(e)	45,877	...
			Combined Daily	(me)	54,262	.13*
			Sunday edition	(s)	45,267	.13*
		1884	Tribune	(e)	53,391	12*
4,120	25,000	1886	Vinton ..... Cedar Valley Times	(e)	5,009	.035*
4,800	15,000	1893	Washington ..... Journal	(e)	3,003	.025*
38,000	200,000	1858	Waterloo ..... Courier	(e)	17,679	.06*
		1879	Tribune	(m)	12,067	.05*
			Sunday edition	(s)	12,479	.05*
6,649	.....	1894	Webster City ..... Freeman-Journal	(e)	2,173	.025*

KANSAS

City	Population Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
5,150	.....	1896	Abilene ..... Chronicle	(e)	....	.014*
		1887	Reflector	(e)	1,387	.014*
14,403	.....	1886	Arkansas City ..... Traveler	(e)	6,024	.04*
17,300	30,000	1877	Atchison ..... Globe	(e)	7,535	.04*
			Sunday edition	(s)	7,638	.04*
4,219	15,000	1892	Augusta ..... Gazette	(e)	1,653	.018*
3,315	13,866	1901	Beloit ..... Call	(e)	1,993	.011*
2,560	15,072	1891	Burlington ..... Republican	(e)	2,712	.021*
2,191	.....	1920	Caldwell ..... Messenger	(e)	1,151	.014*
3,427	.....	1919	Caney ..... Chronicle	(e)	....	.018*
10,286	.....	1892	Chanute ..... Tribune	(e)	2,732	.0225
		1912	Timesett	(e)	4,058	.025*
			(Free circulation paper)
4,698	.....	1898	Cherryvale ..... Republican	(e)	....	.015*
4,473	.....	1914	Clay Center ..... Dispatch-Republican	(e)	1,380	.014*
13,452	.....	1872	Coffeyville ..... Journal	(e)	5,764	.03*
		1919	News	(m)	4,882	.02*
			Sunday edition	(s)	4,882	.02*
3,155	.....	1893	Columbus ..... Advocate	(e)	....	.011*
4,705	.....	1902	Concordia ..... Blade-Empire	(e)	2,976	.029*
2,650	.....	1872	Council Grove ..... Republican	(e)	2,150	.02*
5,061	.....	1911	Dodge City ..... Globe	(e)	2,804	.025*
10,995	.....	1882	El Dorado ..... Times	(e)	4,420	.03*
13,000	27,000	1890	Emporia ..... Gazette	(e)	5,477	.035
10,693	35,000	1862	Fort Scott ..... Tribune-Monitor	(e)	3,350	.025*
2,000	25,000	1906	Frankfort ..... Index	(e)	1,425	.018*
3,954	25,000	1892	Fredonia ..... Herald	(e)	1,565	.018*
5,240	6,600	1890	Galena ..... Times	(e)	1,018	.018*
5,000	35,000	1876	Great Bend ..... Tribune	(e)	3,175	.025*
3,222	.....	1908	Hiawatha ..... World	(e)	3,175	.025*
28,000	75,000	1908	Hutchinson ..... Herald	(m)	8,634	..
			News	(e)	15,358	..
			Combined Daily	(me)	23,992	.09*
			Sunday edition	(s)	8,950	.09*
10,900	40,000	1912	Independence ..... Free Press	(m)	3,551	-021*
			Sunday edition	(s)	3,551	.021*
		1881	Reporter	(e)	3,924	.03*
9,500	25,672	1867	Iola ..... Register	(e)	3,636	.025*
7,533	.....	....	Junction City ..... Union	(e)	2,850	.02*
120,000	149,131	1895	Kansas City ..... Kansan	(e)	22,899	.07*
			Sunday edition	(s)	23,008	.07*
1,520	10,247	1915	Kiowa ..... Record	(m)	....	.012*
			Sunday edition	(s)	....	.012*
15,000	40,000	1854	Lawrence ..... Journal-World	(e)	5,743	.03*
16,902	60,000	1857	Leavenworth ..... Times	(e)	6,903	.035*
			Sunday edition	(s)	6,903	.035*
3,200	.....	1905	Lyons ..... News	(e)	2,045	.02*
4,595	.....	1885	McPherson ..... Republican	(e)	....	.014*
10,112	36,000	1921	Manhattan ..... Chronicle	(m)	2,618	.025*
			Sunday edition	(s)	2,618	.025*
		1909	Mercury	(e)	2,325	.025*
3,943	.....	1897	Neodesha ..... Sun	(e)	....	.014*
9,781	25,000	1885	Newton ..... Kansan-Republican	(e)	3,320	.025*
2,300	.....	1906	Norton ..... Telegram	(e)	1,925	.015*
10,165	22,580	1881	Ottawa ..... Herald	(e)	4,783	.03*
20,000	35,000	1905	Parsons ..... Republican	(m)	4,967	.021*
			Sunday edition	(s)	4,967	.021*
		1871	Sun	(e)	4,531	.03*
20,000	150,000	1886	Pittsburg ..... Headlight	(e)	9,224	.04*
		1915	Sun	(m)	6,837	.04*
			Sunday edition	(s)	6,999	.04*
5,111	38,000	1917	Pratt ..... Tribune	(e)	2,108	.025*
17,000	35,000	1887	Salina ..... Journal	(e)	12,030	.06*
60,026	230,000	1876	Topeka ..... Capital	(m)	39,032	.10*
			Sunday edition	(s)	40,300	.10*
		1874	State Journal	(e)	21,052	.06
7,048	40,000	1901	Wellington ..... News	(e)	2,375	.021*
95,000	281,405	1872	Wichita ..... Beacon	(e)	41,924	.12*
			Sunday edition	(s)	44,531	.12*
		1872	Eagle	(m)	53,883	.15*
			Sunday edition	(s)	65,538	.15*
11,700	37,000	1872	Winfield ..... Courier & Free Press	(e)	4,850	.032*

KENTUCKY

City	Population Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
25,000	100,000	1895	Ashland ..... Independent	(e)	7,413	.04*
			Sunday edition	(s)	8,216	.04*
18,000	38,000	1851	Bowling Green ..... Park City News	(e)	3,181	.025
		1882	Times-Journal	(e)	3,276	.018*
57,121	135,000	1892	Covington ..... Kentucky Post	(e)	26,853	.065*
			Sunday edition	(s)	17,323	.065*
		1892	Ky. Times-Star	(e)	18,840	.07
5,034	.....	1865	Danville ..... Advocate	(e)	2,335	.021*
		1910	Messenger	(e)	2,125	.021*

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

You may deal with these 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication, if you wish. Excellent coverage of the entire state. Uniform marketing help under the "Iowa Plan."

Iowa market approved by national advertisers

The most eloquent O.K. that could be put on any market is the steadily increasing national lineage of these Iowa Daily Newspapers.

In the first four months of 1926, these papers show more than a million and a half lines increase over the same period of last year.

Every one of these 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers contributed to that increase. Not a one but made a substantial gain.

Here are the totals:

In 1925 from January 1st to May 1st, the national lineage in these 28 Iowa daily newspapers was 8,361,705.

In the same four months of 1926 the national lineage was 9,897,253.

The increase is 1,535,548 lines.

These figures show that national advertisers are not unduly stampeded by political thunderings.

They know the underlying soundness of Iowa—year after year. They know the insistence with which Iowa people demand the best in life—luxuries as well as necessities.

You too will find this market worthy of your best selling effort.

You can talk to these people most effectively through the Iowa daily newspapers.

Rates and fuller information upon request.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

KENTUCKY—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
9,805	.....	1900	Frankford	State Journal	(m)	3,197	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,197	.025*
3,145	.....	1899	Fulton	Leader	(e)	.....	.018*
15,500	76,000	1888	Henderson	Gleaner	(m)	2,615	.025*
				Sunday Gleaner & Journal	(s)	3,182	.04
		1899		Journal	(e)	1,265	.015*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,265	...
9,696	60,000	1869	Hopkinsville	Kentucky New Era	(e)	3,900	.025*
48,641	173,534	1870	Lexington	Herald	(m)	17,014	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	16,452	.06*
		1888		Leader	(e)	19,640	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	19,531	.06*
267,981	668,948	1826	Louisville	Courier-Journal	(m)	71,921	...
				Sunday edition	(s)	112,850	.22*
		1884		Times	(e)	67,515	...
				Combined daily	(e)	139,436	.25*
		1878		Herald-Post	(m)	30,811	.12
				Evening edition	(e)	43,066	.10
				Sunday edition	(s)	56,628	.12
5,030	.....	1917	Madisonville	Messenger	(e)	3,129	.025*
6,583	.....	1900	Mayfield	Messenger	(e)	.....	.03*
6,385	.....	1881	Maysville	Bulletin	(m)	1,652	.015*
		1907		Independent	(m)	2,750	.02
		1867		Public Ledger	(e)	1,627	.02
8,045	.....	....	Middlesboro	News	e)	1,806	.025*
23,000	100,000	1884	Owensboro	Inquirer	(e)	6,703	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,990	.03*
		1875		Messenger	(m)	8,018	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,280	.03*
28,800	225,988	1871	Paducah	News-Democrat	(m)	9,196	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,216	.04*
		1898		Sun	(e)	9,266	.04*
5,622	.....	1862	Richmond	Register	(e)	2,498	.025*
7,866	.....	1875	Winchester	Sun	(e)	4,910	.025*

LOUISIANA

17,510	.....	1883	Alexandria	Town Talk	(e)	7,064	.035*
21,782	75,000	1842	Baton Rouge	State Times	(e)	8,310	...
		....		Advocate	(m)	1,400	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	9,710	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,400	...
6,108	.....	1899	Crowley	Signal	(e)	.....	.018*
7,855	.....	1913	Lafayette	Advertiser	(e)	2,515	.025*
13,088	.....	1892	Lake Charles	American Press	(e)	4,372	.035*
25,000	66,000	1909	Monroe	News-Star	(e)	6,347	.04*
412,000	.....	1877	New Orleans	Item	(e)	63,265	.15*
				Tribune	(m)	32,688	.10*
				Combined Daily	(me)	95,953	.20*
				Sunday edition	(s)	84,895	.18*
		1879		States	(e)	52,642	.13*
				Sunday edition	(s)	82,324	.16*
		1837		Times-Picayune	(m)	81,662	.16*
				Sunday edition	(s)	117,735	.20*
3,389	.....	1905	Ruston	Leader	(e)	.....	.015*
72,000	100,000	1895	Shreveport	Journal	(e)	18,726	.06*
72,000	100,000	1872	Shreveport	Times	(m)	34,072	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	48,863	.11*

MAINE

17,954	165,000	1825	Augusta	Kennebec Journal	(m)	11,112	.05*
25,978	320,000	1872	Bangor	Commercial	(e)	19,612	.06
		1889		News	(m)	28,162	.07*
14,731	.....	1860	Bath	Times	(e)	2,087	.012
24,825	.....	1884	Biddeford	Journal	(e)	5,026	.03
		1895		Record	(e)	3,012	.011
24,075	120,000	1893	Lewiston	Sun	(m)	17,085	...
		1861		Journal	(e)	13,784	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	30,869	.10
70,000	200,000	1862	Portland	Press Herald	(m)	34,946	...
		1882		Express	(e)	24,770	...
		1887		Telegram	(s)	33,042	.12
				Combined Daily	(me)	59,716	.17
13,351	50,000	1904	Waterville	Sentinel	(m)	6,122	.03

MARYLAND

11,214	15,000	1884	Annapolis	Capital	(e)	2,450	.021*
797,716	917,000	1773	Baltimore	American	(m)	56,764	.15*
		1872		News	(e)	115,647	.25*
				Combined Daily	(me)	172,411	.35*
				Sunday edition	(s)	154,945	.30*
		1922		Post	(e)	102,438	.20*
		1837		Sun	(m)	124,614	...
		1910		Evening Sun	(e)	119,542	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	244,156	.45
		1901		Sunday edition	(s)	188,285	.35
8,000	60,000	1897	Cambridge	Banner	(e)	1,365	.02*
34,810	100,000	1872	Cumberland	News	(m)	8,330	.04*
		1869		Times	(e)	14,339	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	9,530x	.06*
11,066	60,000	1883	Frederick	News	(e)	4,659	...
		1910		Post	(m)	3,852	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	8,511	.035*
35,000	300,000	1897	Hagerstown	Globe	(e)	2,435	.025*
		1873		Herald	(m)	4,612	...
		1880		Mail	(e)	7,135	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	11,747	.05*
8,000	86,000	1923	Salisbury	Times	(e)	.....	.025*

MASSACHUSETTS

10,036	.....	1888	Amesbury	News	(e)	2,550	.018
23,019	40,000	1889	Attleboro	Sun	(e)	5,628	.03
22,561	.....	1893	Beverly	Times	(e)	5,244	.036
1,950,000	2,574,115	1813	Boston	Advertsier (tab.)	(m)	137,226	.25*
		1904		Sunday edition	(s)	502,565	.75*
		1904		American	(e)	243,721	.50*
		1908		Christian Science Monitor	(e)	104,314	.50
		1872		Globe	(m)	124,047	...
		1878		Globe	(e)	156,112	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	280,159	.50*
		1877		Sunday edition	(s)	332,282	.55*
		1846		Herald	(m)	109,147	...
		1825		Traveler	(e)	141,316	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	250,463	.45*
		1846		Herald	(s)	124,215	.35*
		1887		News Bureau	(me)	11,366	.46
		1831		Post	(m)	377,443	.60*
		1893		Sunday edition	(s)	349,596	.55*
		1921		Telegram	(e)	.....	.25
		1830		Transcript	(e)	35,391	.20*
				Saturday edition (Sat)		55,885	.30*

MASSACHUSETTS—Continued

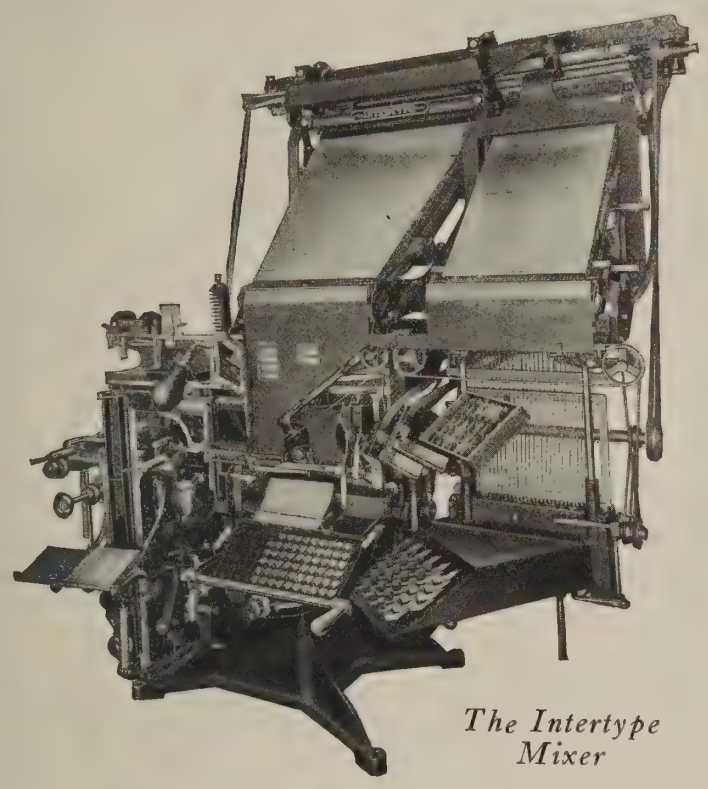
Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
70,599	155,000	1880	Brockton	Enterprise	(e)	23,596	.065*
		1894		Times	(e)	11,274	.045*
47,052	75,000	1890	Chelsea	Record	(e)	3,680	.018
14,180	23,075	1893	Clinton	Item	(e)	2,845x	.0175
130,000	163,000	1885	Fall River	Globe	(e)	8,681	.04*
		1872		Herald	(e)	.....	...
		1859		News	(e)	.....	...

Note—Fall River Herald and News merged June 14 as Herald & News. Herald circulation A. B. C. 3-31-26—17,057. News circulation A. B. C. 3-31-26—5,098. New rate .08*.

44,034	110,000	1838	Fitchburg	Sentinel	(e)	11,828	.055
21,072	40,000	1897	Framingham	News	(e)	4,790	.025
18,730	35,000	1869	Gardner	News	(e)	4,423	.25
22,947	33,450	1856	Gloucester	Times	(e)	7,061	.035
15,462	.....	1900	Greenfield	Recorder	(e)	3,675	.03
55,000	100,000	1877	Haverhill	Gazette	(e)	16,187	.06
		1902		Sunday Record	(e)	12,870	.05
60,203	.....	1898	Holyoke	Telegram	(e)	9,901	.04
		1882		Transcript	(e)	13,667	.05
7,607	.....	1902	Hudson	Sun	(e)	.....	.021
98,000	123,314	1884	Lawrence	Telegram	(e)	7,793	.05
				Sun	(s)	.....	.05
		1868		Eagle	(m)	1,847	...
		1890		Tribune	(e)	20,792	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	22,639	.07
19,745	.....	1873	Leominster	Enterprise	(e)	4,142	.02
112,759	175,000	1845	Lowell	Courier-Citizen	(m)	16,851	...
				Leader	(e)	5,067	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	21,918	.07
		1878		Sun	(e)	.....	.055
		1898		Sunday Telegram	(s)	17,762	.05
109,063	275,000	1877	Lynn	tem	(e)	16,765x	.055
		1898		Telegram-News	(e)	17,839x	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	19,038x	.05*
50,877	.....	1892	Malden	News	(e)	9,543	.06
18,500	40,000	1889	Marlboro	Enterprise	(e)	4,150	.029
18,204	.....	1906	Melrose	News	(e)	.....	.018
13,471	.....	1887	Milford	News	(e)	4,635	.025
131,000	160,000	1807	New Bedford	Mercury	(m)	7,688	...
		1850		Standard	(e)	25,633	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	33,321	.10*
		1907		Sunday edition	(s)	28,806	.10*
		1924		Times	(e)	12,326	.045*
15,784	40,000	1888	Newburyport	News	(e)	5,609	.03
23,500	49,000	1895	North Adams	Transcript	(e)	10,090x	.0425
23,000	40,000	1890	Northampton	Hampshire Gazette	(e)	7,408x	.03
9,238	20,000	1870	North Attleboro	Chronicle	(e)	2,250	.016
47,241	100,000	1892	Pittsfield	Berkshire Eagle	(e)	17,011	.05*
47,876	65,000	1837	Quincy	Patriot-Ledger	(e)	10,428	.055
		1907		Telegram	(e)	.....	.025
45,000	150,000	1880	Salem	News	(e)	21,398	.08
15,000	.....	1923	Southbridge	News	(e)	2,657	.021
148,402	450,000	1824	Springfield	Republican	(m)	20,015	...
		1880		News	(e)	39,790	...
		1892		Union	(m)	32,684	...
		1864		Evening edition	(e)	29,656	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	122,145	.28*
		1926		Union-Republican	(s)	67,211	.21*

(Sunday figures are a two months average)

39,286	60,000	1848	Taunton	Gazette	(e)	9,279	.04
13,025	28,735	1894	Wakefield	Item	(e)	3,025	.04
30,915	.....	1862	Waltham	News-Tribune	(e)	7,200	.035
13,258	40,000	1923	Webster	Times	(e)	2,753	.0225
16,574	42,000	1901	Woburn	Times	(e)	3,800	.025
193,666	441,842	1891	Worcester	Post	(e)	28,706	.085
		1885		Telegram	(m)	41,729	...
		1801		Gazette	(e)	50,585	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	92,314	.24
		1884		Sunday edition	(s)	51,096	.17



MICHIGAN

11,878	60,000	1892	Adrian	Telegram	(e)	10,205	.035*
9,678	19,000	1868	Albion	Recorder	(e)	2,527	.018
14,000	25,000	1899	Alpena	News	(e)	3,457x	.025*
25,471	45,000	1835	Ann Arbor	Times-News	(e)	9,893	.04*
42,500	75,000	1894	Battle Creek	Enquirer-News	(e)	12,430	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	12,676	.05
		1872		Moon-Journal	(e)	11,281	.035
50,000	130,000	1879	Bay City	Times Tribune	(e)	18,794x	.06*
		1923		Sunday edition	(s)	17,555x	.06*
12,233	.....	1886	Benton Harbor	News-Palladium	(e)	6,548	.035
5,000	.....	1864	Big Rapids	Pioneer	(e)	2,374	.013
11,672	40,000	1862	Cadillac	News	(e)	3,555	.025
22,379	60,000	1892	Calumet	News	(e)	2,642	.017
5,642	27,000	1875	Cheboygan	Tribune	(e)	3,131	.012
7,222	25,000	1895	Coldwater	Reporter	(e)	3,331	.02
1,283,822	1,500,000	1873	Detroit	News	(e)	303,598	.45
		1893		Sunday edition	(s)	334,052	.45
		1920		Times	(e)	241,481	.42*
		1922		Sunday edition	(s)	304,779	.42*
		1831		Free Press	(m)	186,160	.40*
		1831		Sunday edition	(s)	259,193	.45*
5,440	.....	1896	Dowagiac	News	(e)	2,177	.018
14,552	27,500	1910	Escanaba	Press	(m)	6,556	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,556	.05
135,000	140,000	1883	Flint	Journal	(e)	37,818x	.10*
		1922		Sunday edition	(s)	33,135x	.10*
7,205	.....	1885	Grand Haven	Tribune	(e)	.....	.015
153,877	375,000	1882	Grand Rapids	Herald	(m)	34,408	.10
				Sunday edition	(s)	31,370	.10
		1890		Press	(e)	88,054	.18*
5,100	25,000	1856	Greenville	Independent News	(e)	2,075	.02*
7,527	100,000	1884	Hancock	Copper Journal	(e)	3,694	.025*
5,476	30,000	1909	Hillsdale	News	(e)	4,720	.02*
12,166	.....	1896	Holland	Sentinel	(e)	2,709	.018*
4,456	100,000	1899	Houghton	Mining Gazette	(m)	6,483	.02
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,483	.02
6,935	.....	1879	Ionia	Sentinel-Standard	(e)	3,330	.018*
8,251	45,000	1921	Iron Mountain	News	(e)	7,014	.035
15,739	45,000	1919	Ironwood	Globe	(e)	5,396	.035
52,000	134,754	1838	Jackson	Citizen-Patriot	(e)	28,934	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	27,570	.08*
55,000	143,000	1833	Kalamazoo	Gazette	(e)	27,062	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	26,751	.08*
82,000	175,000	1921	Lansing	Capital News	(e)	9,409	.04*
		1855		State Journal	(e)	37,519	.10*
9,000	19,831	1869	Ludington	News	(e)	3,690x	.025
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,689x	.025
8,697	32,000	1894	Manistee	News-Advocate	(e)	3,260	.025
12,009	40,000	1884	Marquette	Mining Journal	(m)	7,565	.035
4,270	12,000	1879	Marshall	Chronicle	(e)	2,600	.02
8,807	.....	1861	Menominee	Herald-Leader	(e)	3,646	.025
11,572	35,000	1859	Monroe	News	(e)	5,079	.03
14,823	35,000	1899	Mount Clemens	Leader	(e)	.....	.035
56,240	75,000	1856	Muskegon	Chronicle	(e)	17,155x	.06*

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

One Standardized Intertype Beats Two Ordinary Machines

"We used two machines at the old plant for heads. We are now using one 'CSM No. 2' with nine fonts of matrices and getting better results."—Oliver S. Gusman, Machinist, Houston Post-Dispatch.

The Intertype Mixer

"The big feature that we like especially is the interchangeability of all special equipment—a feature that we have found extremely advantageous. The percentage of errors due to machine trouble has been reduced fully 75 per cent."—R. L. Dudley, Vice-President and General Manager, Houston Post-Dispatch.

These comments are from users of twenty Standardized Intertypes—one from the technical man and one from the "front-office" man. Both of them emphasize profitable features of the Intertype.

Therein lies the secret of Intertype success: the machine is designed to be profitable to users. That is why such a large percentage of Intertype sales are repeat orders.

Some Dixie Users of Intertypes

SCRIPPS-HOWARD NEWSPAPERS	63	HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH	20
LOUISVILLE HERALD-POST	23	MACON TELEGRAPH	10
MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL	18	JACKSONVILLE JOURNAL	15
RICHMOND NEWS LEADER	16	ST. PETERSBURG TIMES	14
WEST PALM BEACH (FLA.) POST	13	MIAMI TRIBUNE	13
		MIAMI NEWS	11

Send for booklet "Profit-Making Intertype Features" and other literature. If you wish to see our local representative, please so state

Standardized INTERTYPE TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION, 1440-A BROADWAY, at 40th Street, NEW YORK

CHICAGO MEMPHIS SAN FRANCISCO BOSTON LOS ANGELES TORONTO LONDON

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

MICHIGAN—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
7,311	.....	1886	Niles	Star	(e)	3,200	.025
12,575	40,000	1892	Owosso	Argus-Press	(e)	7,214	.035
5,064	35,000	1900	Petoskey	News	(e)	1,734	.015
51,000	125,000	1900	Pontiac	Press	(e)	19,655x	.06*
38,000	135,000	1870	Port Huron	Times-Herald	(e)	19,512	.06
20,000	50,000	1925	Royal Oak	Tribune	(e)	5,114	.03
72,000	150,000	1883	Saginaw	News-Courier	(e)	26,408x	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	25,338x	.08*
10,100	35,000	1891	St. Joseph	Herald-Press	(e)	3,451	.018
12,096	.....	1903	Sault Ste. Marie	News	(e)	4,185	.025*
3,829	14,874	1899	South Haven	Tribune	(e)	.....	.015
5,995	25,000	1859	Sturgis	Journal	(e)	3,452	.025
7,500	20,000	1895	Three Rivers	Commercial	(e)	2,541	.02
10,925	30,000	1856	Traverse City	Record-Eagle	(e)	4,992	.03
10,433	18,000	1880	Ypsilanti	Ypsilantian-Press	(e)	3,692	.025

MINNESOTA

8,056	35,000	1897	Albert Lea	Tribune	(e)	4,876	.03*
10,118	35,000	1891	Austin	Herald	(e)	3,885	.03*
7,086	25,000	1903	Bemidji	Pioneer	(e)	2,609	.025*
9,591	.....	1901	Brainerd	Dispatch	(e)	2,360	.018
6,825	36,000	1886	Crookston	Times	(e)	2,987	.02
105,000	325,000	1883	Duluth	Herald	(e)	42,390	.14
		1868		News Tribune	(m)	31,057	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	30,530	.09*
4,630	.....	1905	Fairmont	Independent	(e)	2,504	.017
		1901		Sentinel	(e)	3,412	.029*
11,089	.....	1914	Faribault	News	(e)	4,199	.03*
7,581	45,000	1883	Fergus Falls	Journal	(e)	6,171	.03*
17,132	40,883	1920	Hibbing	News	(e)	3,965	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,965	.025*
		1899		Tribune	(e)	4,710	.03*
3,448	12,000	1911	International Falls	Journal	(e)	1,596	.02*
5,500	.....	1892	Little Falls	Transcript	(e)	2,256	.025*
15,000	50,000	1887	Mankato	Free Press	(e)	7,133	.04*
425,435	500,000	1878	Minneapolis	Journal	(e)	118,860	.25*
				Sunday edition	(s)	162,293	.30*
		1920		Star	(e)	62,614	.14*
		1867		Tribune	(m)	63,759	...
		1876		Evening edition	(e)	67,262	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	131,021	.28*
		1867		Sunday edition	(s)	163,617	.32*
6,884	.....	1883	Moorhead	News	(e)	1,018	.021*
7,258	18,000	1916	Owatonna	People's Press	(e)	2,725	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,725	.025*
8,637	.....	1911	Red Wing	Eagle	(e)	2,120	.021
8,637	.....	1857	Red Wing	Republican	(m)	497	...
				Evening edition	(e)	2,371	...
				Combined daily	(me)	2,868	.025*
13,722	50,000	1892	Rochester	Post-Bulletin	(e)	8,796	.04*
15,873	75,000	1892	St. Cloud	Journal-Press	(e)	4,721	.03*
		1887		Times	(e)	5,364	.035*
281,000	360,000	1853	St. Paul	Pioneer Press	(m)	74,931x	...
		1868		Dispatch	(e)	89,178x	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	164,109x	.28
		1882		Sunday edition	(s)	150,512x	.28*
		1900		News	(e)	88,832x	.17*
				Sunday edition	(s)	62,109x	.14*
8,000	.....	1891	South St. Paul	Reporter	(e)	5,321x	.03
7,735	20,000	1884	Stillwater	Gazette	(e)	1,515	.018*
14,021	.....	1893	Virginia	Enterprise	(e)	3,161	.025*
21,250	60,000	1855	Winona	Republican-Herald	(e)	12,257x	.045*

MISSISSIPPI

25,000	40,845	1898	Gulfport-Biloxi	Herald	(e)	6,372	.03*
7,550	.....	1908	Clarksdale	Register	(e)	4,167	.021
12,500	.....	1926	Columbus	Commercial-Dispatch (New daily)	(e)	.....	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.03*
				Discoverer (New daily)	(e)	.....	...
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.03*
5,498	.....	1894	Corinth	Corinthian	(e)	1,176	.018
11,560	.....	1888	Greenville	Democrat-Times	(e)	1,987	.02*
11,000	175,000	1916	Greenwood	Commonwealth	(e)	2,100	.021
15,115	.....	1917	Hattiesburg	American	(e)	5,971	.05
31,000	220,675	1837	Jackson	Clarion-Ledger	(m)	7,867	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,517	.03
		1891		News	(e)	13,031x	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	12,504x	.05*
17,600	145,000	1911	Laurel	Leader	(e)	4,350	.03*
23,436	248,000	1898	Meridian	Star	(e)	12,623x	.06
				Sunday edition	(s)	12,729x	.06
12,608	237,552	1865	Natchez	Democrat	(m)	3,550	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,950	.04*
18,072	.....	1864	Vicksburg	Herald	(m)	.....	.02
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.02
		1883		Post	(e)	4,694	.03

MISSOURI

3,575	.....	1919	Aurora	Advertiser	(e)	800	.011*
4,665	.....	1919	Boonville	Central Missourian	(e)	1,475	.018*
6,304	50,000	1914	Brookfield	Argus	(e)	2,365	.018*
		....		Budget	(e)	.....	.018*
2,894	.....	1889	Butler	Democrat	(e)	.....	.011*
3,248	.....	1905	Cameron	News-Observer	(e)	.....	.014*
18,000	80,000	1901	Cape Girardeau	Southeast Missourian	(e)	7,914x	.04*
3,218	.....	1881	Carrollton	Democrat	(e)	610	.011*
10,068	.....	1884	Carthage	Democrat	(m)	.....	.018*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.018*
		1884		Press	(e)	3,070	.018
6,772	.....	1860	Chillicothe	Constitution	(e)	2,996	.021*
		1881		Tribune	(e)	.....	.021*
5,098	.....	1884	Clinton	Democrat	(e)	785	.011*
13,000	32,000	1908	Columbia	Missourian	(e)	3,608x	.025*
		1901		Tribune	(e)	4,436x	.03
4,165	.....	....	Excelsior Springs	News	(m)	1,386	.02*
		1889		Standard	(e)	1,695	.021*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,695	.021*
5,595	.....	1916	Fulton	Gazette	(e)	1,720	.018
20,000	138,500	1839	Hannibal	Courier-Post & Journal	(e)	6,607x	.04*
11,686	.....	1905	Independence	Examiner	(e)	3,756	.03
		1913		News	(e)	1,800	.016*
14,490	.....	1900	Jefferson City	Capital News	(m)	4,750	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,750	.03
		1908		Post	(e)	5,108	.02
		1875		Tribune	(e)	4,239	.025*

MISSOURI—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
31,000	250,000	1896	Joplin	Globe	(m)	24,088	...
		1872		News-Herald	(e)	11,282	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	35,370	.1
				Sunday edition	(s)	26,884	.1
550,000	700,000	1854	Kansas City	Journal	(m)	148,301	.2
		1905		Post	(e)	155,586	.2
				Sunday edition	(s)	173,292	.3
				Combined Daily	(me)	302,887	.4
		1901		Times	(m)	247,404	...
		1880		Star	(e)	250,597	...
				Sunday Star	(s)	282,631	.4
				Combined Daily	(me)	498,001	.6
7,213	25,000	1901	Kirksville	Express & News	(e)	5,124	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,124	.0
		1926		Journal	(e-s)	(New Daily)	.0
2,500	.....	1901	Lamar	Democrat	(e)	701	.0
4,695	.....	1923	Lexington	Advertiser	(e)	.....	.0
		1898		Intelligencer	(e)	.....	.0
3,549	30,000	1908	Macon	Chronicle-Herald	(e)	3,139	.0
5,200	40,000	1873	Marshall	Democrat-News	(e)	2,250	.0
4,762	27,744	1910	Maryville	Democrat-Forum & Tribune	(e)	4,398	.0
6,018	22,000	1879	Mexico	Intelligencer	(e)	.....	.0
		1886		Ledger	(e)	1,723	.0
12,808	60,000	1873	Moberly	Monitor-Index & Democrat	(e)	5,174	.0
4,206	.....	1908	Monett	Times	(e)	1,190	.0
3,968	.....	1905	Neosho	Democrat	(e)	650	.0
7,139	.....	1908	Nevada	Mail & Post	(e)	.....	.0
8,042	50,000	1895	Poplar Bluff	Interstate American	(e)	3,087	.0
		1923		Republican	(e)	2,890	.0
3,500	.....	1886	Rich Hill	Review	(e)	.....	.0
8,503	.....	1888	St. Charles	Banner-News	(e)	1,290	.0
		1835		Cosmos-Monitor	(e)	.....	.0
77,939	207,786	1845	St. Joseph	Gazette	(m)	16,432	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	18,017	.0
		1879		News-Press	(e)	40,704	.0
		1897		Stock Yard Journal	(e)	.....	.0
1,000,000	1,300,000	1852	St. Louis	Globe-Democrat	(m)	226,697	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	250,739	.0
		1878		Post-Dispatch	(e)	210,016	.0
		1887		Sunday edition	(s)	384,685	.0
		1888		Star	(e)	115,656	.0
		1907		Times	(e)	70,386	.0
21,144	.....	1889	Sedalia	Capital-Democrat	(me)	7,699	.0
				Combined Sun. ed.	(s)	7,699	.0
		1925		Republican	(m)	(New Daily)	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.0
50,000	90,000	1867	Springfield	Leader	(e)	25,387	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	24,247	.0
		1891		Republican	(m)	18,621	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	18,698	.0
6,951	28,671	1861	Trenton	Republican-Tribune	(e)	2,013	.0
		1871		Times	(e)	1,130	.0
6,500	.....	1913	Warrensburg	Star-Journal	(e)	.....	.0
7,807	.....	1890	Webb City	Sentinel	(e)	640	.0
3,718	.....	1903	West Plains	Quill	(e)	900	.0

MONTANA

56,771	110,000	1889	Anaconda-Butte	Standard	(m)	9,441x	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,789x	.0
16,000	115,000	1901	Billings	Gazette	(m)	6,493x	.0
				Evening edition	(e)	1,963	.0
				Combined Daily	(me)	8,456	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,951	.0
6,183	.....	1911	Bozeman	Chronicle	(m)	2,260	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,260	.0
45,771	110,000	1876	Butte	Miner	(m)	10,024x	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	21,152x	.0
		1913		Post	(e)	11,136x	.0
26,000	80,000	1888	Great Falls	Leader	(e)	3,081x	.0
		1887		Tribune	(m)	12,455x	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	15,007x	.0
5,429	.....	1909	Havre	News-Promoter	(e)	1,711	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,711	.0
12,037	26,000	1886	Helena	Independent	(m)	5,342	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,342	.0
		1900		Record-Herald	(e)	5,762x	.0
5,147	.....	1891	Kalispell	Inter Lake	(e)	2,398	.0
9,200	40,000	1905	Lewistown	Democrat-News	(m)	5,873	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,873	.0
6,326	.....	1909	Livingston	Enterprise	(m)	2,006	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,006	.0
7,937	22,000	1910	Miles City	Star	(e)	2,879	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,098	.0
14,500	50,000	1873	Missoula	Missoulian	(m)	4,648x	.0
				Sentinel	(e)	2,217x	.0
				Combined Daily	(me)	6,865xx	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,290x	.0

NEBRASKA

9,664	29,721	1902	Beatrice	Sun	(m)	5,286	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,286	.0
6,200	35,000	1880	Columbus	Telegram	(e)	3,907	.0
4,930	.....	1867	Falls City	Journal	(e)	3,268	.0
		1874		News	(m)	.....	.0
10,000	41,000	1883	Fremont	Tribune	(e)	6,662	.0
15,000	55,000	1884	Grand Island	Independent	(e)	7,505	.0
12,500	54,171	1905	Hastings	Tribune	(e)	8,563	.0
7,702	.....	1880	Kearney	Hub	(e)	3,564	.0
85,997	350,000	1867	Lincoln	Journal	(m)	24,428	.0
		1889		Evening edition	(e)	13,476	.0
				Combined Daily	(me)	37,904	.0
		1887		Sunday edition	(s)	27,476	.0
		1902		Star	(e)	34,225	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	26,725	.0
8,000	.....	1924	McCook	Gazette	(e)	2,970	.0
6,279	75,000	1858	Nebraska City	Nebr. News-Press	(m)	3,576	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,576	.0
11,000	80,000	1887	Norfolk	News	(e)	9,205	.0
240,000	350,000	1871	Omaha	Bee	(m)	45,721x	.0
				Evening edition	(e)	30,771x	.0
				Combined Daily	(me)	76,492x	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	78,504x	.0
		1899		News	(e)	78,769	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	77,906	.0
.....	.....	1924	South Omaha	Sun	(e)	.....	.0
240,000	350,000	1865	Omaha	World-Herald	(m)	53,863x	.0
				World-Herald	(e)	55,938x	.0
				Combined Daily	(me)	109,801x	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	110,612x	.0

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by a mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

210,084★
(Daily)

266,823★
(Sunday)

★ Average Net Paid Circulation for May, 1926

FIGURES cited here showing the net paid circulation of The Free Press for the month of May—the last current month of record—show an increase over the average net paid circulation for the six months ending March 31, 1926, of 23,904 daily, 7,630 Sunday.

Present circulation as represented by the figures quoted above show an increase over the circulation of five years ago, totaling 71,764 daily, and 79,093 Sunday. In other words, The Free Press has each year added to its permanent circulation over 15,000 families—a growth based alone upon newspaper merit, and not upon so called newspaper "pressure."

With 80.3% of its total circulation concentrated within the local shopping area —an area embracing one of the most prosperous and responsive markets in America, The Free Press is positively indispensable to any advertiser seeking to cover and sell the Detroit market.

A FIVE-YEAR RECORD OF CIRCULATION

	Daily	Sunday
May 1922	138,320	187,730
1923	159,882	222,073
1924	174,212	242,403
1925	182,253	258,354
1926	210,084	266,823

This is an enviable record of growth in view of the fact that The Free Press sells daily for 3 cents or 50% more than the evening papers.

The DETROIT FREE PRESS

VERREE & CONKLIN, INC., National Representatives

New York Chicago Detroit San Francisco

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

City	Population	Trade Area	Date Estab.	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
NEBRASKA—Continued
Plattsmouth	4,190	.....	1904	Journal	(e)	2,100	.011*
Scottsbluff	8,227	.....	1901	Star-Herald	(m)	2,658	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,658	.03*
Wymore	2,613	.....	1916	Arbor State	(e)	290	.011*
York	5,388	.....	1909	News-Times	(e)	2,375	.03*
NEW JERSEY
Asbury Park	15,000	55,000	1885	Press	(e)	9,788	.035
			1879	Sunday edition	(s)	5,476	.035
Atlantic City	60,000	75,000	1896	Press	(m)	22,234	....
			1895	Union	(e)	7,718	....
				Combined Daily	(me)	29,952	.10*
				Sunday Press	(s)	15,693	.08*
			1926	Times	(e)	(New Daily)	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.08*
Bayonne	85,000	.....	1911	News	(e)	10,528	.04*
			1870	Times	(e)	11,535x	.05*
Bridgeton	14,323	.....	1879	News	(e)	6,600	.03
			1886	Pioneer	(m)	.....	.011*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.011*
Burlington	9,049	.....	1868	Enterprise	(e)	5,204	.02
Camden	138,000	350,000	1882	Courier	(e)	45,112	.12
			1875	Post-Telegram	(m)	16,929	.05
				Combined Daily	(me)	62,041	.15
Elizabeth	105,000	175,000	1871	Journal	(e)	24,274x	.08
			1900	Times	(e)	10,200	.06
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,200	.12*
Hackensack	20,000	44,848	1895	Bergen Record	(e)	11,101	.05
Hoboken			1892	Jersey Observer	(e)	42,927x	.11
Jersey City			1867	Jersey Journal	(e)	44,138x	.12*
Long Branch	13,521	40,000	1902	Record	(e)	5,291	.025
Millville	14,691	.....	1865	Republican	(e)	4,600	.03
Morristown	12,548	.....	1826	Jerseyman	(e)	4,811	.03*
			1900	Record	(e)	.....	.025*
Newark	.....	1,000,000	1872	Sunday Call	(s)	74,687x	.14
			1914	Ledger	(m)	39,879	.11
				Sunday edition	(s)	30,831	.11
Newark	.....	1,000,000	1883	News	(e)	116,470x	.21
			1832	Star-Eagle	(e)	88,444	.17
New Brunswick	32,779	.....	1878	Home News	(e)	13,003	.055
				Sunday Times	(s)	10,587	.055
Passaic	.....	165,832	1873	Herald	(e)	13,933x	.05
			1877	News	(e)	14,095x	.05
Paterson	149,000	259,174	1889	Morning Call	(m)	16,704	.06
			1890	News	(e)	13,651	.05
			1836	Press-Guardian	(e)	14,753	.05
			1893	Sunday Chronicle	(s)	12,933	.05
Perth Amboy	42,000	92,000	1903	News	(e)	11,556	.045
Plainfield	30,000	54,000	1884	Courier-News	(e)	9,780	.04*
Trenton	126,000	175,000	1792	State-Gazette	(m)	.....	.06*
(Paper incorporated Dec. 1, 1925)
			1882	Times	(e)	40,647	.13*
			1883	Sunday Times Advertiser	(s)	29,510	.13*
Union City	.....	629,124	1874	Hudson Dispatch	(m)	15,034	.06*
Vineland	6,799	20,000	1872	Journal	(e)	2,873	.025*
Woodbury	7,000	.....	1897	Times	(e)	3,700	.025*
NEVADA
Carson City	2,500	.....	1865	Appeal	(e)	....	.018
			1891	News	(m)	525	.011
				Sunday edition	(s)	525	.011
Ely	2,090	.....	1920	Times	(e)	755	.021*
Goldfield	4,838	.....	1905	Tribune	(e)	347	.029
Reno	12,016	25,000	1876	Gazette	(e)	6,045x	.04*
			1867	Nevada State Journal	(m)	5,004	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,004	.03
Tonopah	4,144	.....	1901	Bonanza	(e)	1,262	.018*
			1915	Times	(m)	1,245	.018*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,245	.018*
Winnemucca	2,800	8,000	1925	Humboldt Star	(e)	1,840	.025*
NEW HAMPSHIRE
Claremont	9,524	19,500	1914	Eagle	(e)	2,100	.011
Concord	24,500	66,013	1809	Monitor & New Hampshire Patriot	(e)	5,206	.03
			1925	Telegram	(e)	2,133	.021
Dover	13,029	.....	1873	Foster's Democrat	(e)	....	.02
Keene	11,210	.....	1799	Sentinel	(e)	3,887	.022
Laconia	10,897	.....	1925	Citizen	(e)	1,526	.011
Manchester	84,000	150,000	1862	Union	(m)	14,281	.11
				Leader	(e)	15,087	.11
				Combined Daily	(me)	29,368	.11
Nashua	28,379	.....	1869	Telegraph	(e)	6,285	.025
Portsmouth	14,877	.....	1884	Herald & Times	(e)	6,250	.025
NEW MEXICO
Albuquerque	18,000	43,096	1910	Herald	(e)	.....	.05
			1880	Journal	(m)	5,102	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,366	.04
			1922	New Mexico State Tribune	(e)	10,608	.05*
East Las Vegas	8,000	.....	1879	Optic	(e)	3,172	.02
Raton	5,544	.....	....	Range	(e)	1,295	.021*
Roswell	7,062	15,000	1903	Record	(e)	.....	.021*
Santa Fe	7,236	.....	1849	New Mexican	(e)	2,135	.025
NEW YORK
Albany	130,000	500,000	1842	Knickerbocker Press	(m)	34,018	.11*
				Sunday edition	(s)	56,924	.16*
			1922	News	(e)	34,444	.10*
				Combined Daily	(me)	68,462	.17*
			1886	Sunday Telegram	(s)	19,609	.06
			1853	Times-Union	(e)	39,689	.12*
Amsterdam	38,000	50,000	1833	Recorder-Democrat	(e)	7,810x	.04
Auburn	36,192	.....	1829	Advertiser-Journal	(e)	3,864	....
			1870	Citizen	(e)	6,389	....
				Combined Daily	(e)	10,253	.055
Ballston Spa	4,800	.....	1798	Journal	(e)	1,100	.014*
Batavia	15,000	50,000	1878	News	(e)	9,148	.04*
Beacon	10,996	.....	1894	Journal	(e)	2,560	.018*
			1883	Herald	(e)	2,375	.018*
Binghamton	74,000	150,000	1904	Press & Leader	(e)	34,806	.10*
			1822	Sun	(m)	20,324	.10*
Brooklyn	2,233,647	2,812,000	1900	Citizen	(e)	43,108	.12
				Sunday edition	(s)	43,108	.12
			1841	Eagle	(e)	73,764	.22
				Sunday edition	(s)	84,997	.22
			1863	Standard Union	(e)	64,329	.20*
				Sunday edition	(s)	55,121	.20*
			1848	Times	(e)	81,640	.18
				Sunday edition	(s)	80,906	.18
Buffalo	545,273	825,000	1834	Courier	(m)	51,254	.1
				Sunday edition	(s)	111,212	.2
Note—Courier, Star-Enquirer and Express merged as Courier June 19. Express circulatio A. B. C. 3/31/26—D, 52,702; S, 58,890; Star-Inquirer, 36,158.
			1880	News	(e)	134,469	.2
			1879	Times	(e)	100,393	.2
				Sunday edition	(s)	104,076	.2
Canandaigua	7,686	30,000	1797	Messenger	(e)	3,155	.0
Catskills	5,000	32,000	1879	Mail	(e)	2,790	.0
Cohoes	26,500	62,000	1884	American	(e)	....	.0
Cooperstown	2,725	.....	1909	Glimmerglass	(e)	....	.0
Corning	20,238	46,000	1884	Leader	(e)	9,326	.0
Cortland	13,294	35,000	1892	Standard	(e)	6,005	.0
Dansville	5,300	.....	1908	Breeze	(e)	1,500	.0
Dunkirk	20,407	55,000	1882	Observer	(e)	4,343x	.0
Elmira	51,067	300,000	1853	Advertiser	(m)	8,326x
			1828	Star-Gazette	(e)	25,834x
				Combined Daily	(me)	34,160x	.1
			1879	Sunday Telegram	(s)	24,698	.0
Flushing	45,000	.....	1879	Journal	(e)	8,300	.0
Freeport	15,000	44,680	1921	Review	(e)	7,991	.0
Geneva	16,000	45,000	1895	Times	(e)	5,040	.0
Glens Falls	20,000	45,000	1904	Post-Star	(m)	9,590	.0
			1879	Times	(e)	7,319	.0
Gloversville and Johnstown	35,000	50,000	1890	Herald	(m)	5,595x	.0
			1887	Leader-Republican	(e)	7,238x	.0
Herkimer	10,910	35,000	1898	Telegram	(e)	3,175	.0
Hornell	15,784	.....	1879	Tribune-Times	(e)	7,634	.0
Hudson	13,000	45,000	1866	Register	(e)	2,852	.0
			1847	Star	(m)	3,458	.0
Ithaca	18,948	35,000	1815	Journal-News	(e)	7,751x	.0
Jamaica	250,000	250,000	1898	L. I. Press	(e)	16,939	.0
Jamestown	45,000	100,000	1826	Journal	(e)	8,702	.0
			1901	Post	(m)	11,722	.0
Kingston	29,000	74,979	1871	Freeman	(e)	8,073	.0
			1881	Leader	(m)	3,642	.0
Little Falls	14,000	25,000	1886	Times	(e)	4,548	.0
Lockport	25,000	45,000	1821	Union-Star & Journal	(e)	8,320	.0
Long Island City	460,000	.....	1876	Star	(e)	22,879x	.0
Malone	8,820	20,000	1905	Telegram	(e)	4,769	.0
Mamaroneck	6,500	24,226	1925	Times	(e)	2,750	.0
Medina	6,237	30,000	1905	Journal	(e)	....	.0
Middletown	20,000	50,000	1870	Herald	(e)	4,002	.0
			1906	Times-Press	(e)	7,127	.0
Mount Vernon	50,382	80,000	1892	Argus	(e)	10,437	.0
Newburgh	35,000	80,000	1885	News	(e)	12,132	.0
New Rochelle	40,000	60,000	1923	Standard-Star	(e)	8,598	.0
New York City	6,500,000	9,500,000	1882	American	(m)	225,081	.5
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,083,911	1.5
			1795	Commercial	(m)	11,480	.2
			1924	Graphic	(e)	141,597	.4
			1841	Herald-Tribune	(m)	285,800	.6
				Sunday edition	(s)	345,484	.6
			1907	Home News	(e)	130,000	.3
				Sunday edition	(s)	130,000	.3
			1896	Journal	(e)	696,447	1.2
			1827	Journal of Commerce	(m)	26,768	.2
			1924	Mirror	(m)	310,333	.5
			1836	Morning Telegraph	(m)	40,586	.2
				Sunday edition	(s)	40,586	.3
Note—Morning Telegraph and Running Horse merged June 1 as Telegraph & Running Ho
			1919	News	(m)	998,617	1.3
			1921	Sunday News	(s)	1,224,063	1.4
			1892	News-Record	(m)	14,009	.8
			1896	North Side News	(e)	....	.1
				Sunday edition	(s)	....	.1
			1801	Post	(e)	31,210	.1
				Saturday edition	(e)	56,596	.3
			1833	Sun	(e)	257,067	.1
			1867	Telegram	(e)	181,937	.4
			1851	Times	(m)	356,471	.7
				Sunday edition	(s)	610,041	.9
			1926	Inquirer	(s)	(New Paper)
			1926	Leader	(s)	(New Paper)
			1882	Wall St. Journal	(me)	29,937	.1
			1893	Wall St. News	(m)	3,260	.1
			1910	Women's Wear	(e)	29,086	.2
			1883	World	(m)	287,970	.1
				Sunday edition	(s)	583,163	.8
			1887	Evening World	(e)	290,106	.1
Niagara Falls	65,000	115,000	1854	Gazette	(e)	20,628	.0
N. Tonawanda	35,000	60,000	1880	News	(e)	4,552	.0
Norwich	8,269	.....	1891	Sun	(e)	2,772	.0
Nyack	8,000	.....	1889	Journal	(e)	2,400	.0
Ogdensburg	18,000	50,000	1926	Advance	(e)	1,529	.0
			1882	News	(m)	....	.0
				Sunday edition	(s)	....	.0
			1830	Republican-Journal	(m)	5,045	.0
Olean	24,000	100,000	1881	Herald	(e)	....	.0
			1860	Times	(e)	8,082	.0
Oneonta	12,057	47,404	1890	Star	(m)	8,108	.0
Ossining	12,000	195,000	1901	Citizen-Sentinel	(e)	....	.0
Oswego	23,626	75,000	1845	Palladium-Times	(e)	10,476	.0
Peekskill	15,868	.....	1921	Star	(e)	3,410	.0
			1900	Union	(e)	2,875	.0
Plattsburgh	10,909	.....	1925	Clinton County News	(e)	(New Daily)	.0
			1894	Press	(m)	4,087	.0
			1811	Republican	(m)	4,301	.0
Port Chester	19,746	42,000	1899	Item	(e)	4,732	.0
Port Jervis	12,000	20,000	1872	Union-Gazette	(e)	3,084	.0
Poughkeepsie	43,000	120,000	1860	Eagle-News	(m)	6,804	.0
			1883	Star & Enterprise	(e)	12,824	.0
			1872	Sunday Courier	(s)	13,916	.0
Rochester	331,530	600,000	1832	Democrat-Chronicle & Herald	(m)	79,664	.2
				Sunday edition	(s)	91,277	.2
(Herald amalgamated with Democrat-Chronicle 2/28/26)
			1858	Journal & Post-Express	(e)	43,188	.1
			1922	Sunday American	(s)	67,581	.2
			1918	Times-Union	(e)	70,406	.2
Rome	26,341	50,000	1881	Sentinel	(e)	8,436	.0
Salamanca	9,878	.....	1904	Republican Press	(e)	2,370	.0
Saratoga Springs	14,000	53,000	1854	Saratogian	(e)	8,233x	.0
Saugerties	4,490	.....	1877	Post	(e)	....	.0
Schenectady	100,000	110,000	1894	Gazette	(m)	23,380	.0
			1855	Union-Star	(e)	15,436	.0
Staten Island	125,000	.....	1886	Advance	(e)	14,817	.0
Syracuse	185,000	450,000	1877	Herald	(e)	47,938	.1
			1881	Sunday edition	(s)	73,449	.2
			1839	Journal-American	(e)	65,326	.1
				Sunday edition	(s)	78,873	.2
(Figures from Nov. 5, '25, to March 31, '26)
			1828	Post-Standard	(m)	55,034	.1
			1917	Sunday edition	(s)	60,039	.1

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

ONLY HOE PRESSES CAN MEET SUCH DEMANDS

Editor & Publisher for April 17, 1926

A Message to Readers of The Evening Bulletin

PRINTING PRESS manufacturers have declared that The Evening Bulletin of Philadelphia operates the largest newspaper printing plant in the world. Notwithstanding this, the printing equipment of The Evening Bulletin is being increased as fast as the builders can deliver more new model printing machines because

The Evening Bulletin gives readers all of the news of the day almost as quickly as it happens.

It must be printed and distributed in time to reach its army of readers before they leave their places of employment, and at practically each of the more than half-a-million homes in Philadelphia, Camden and their suburbs before these families sit down to their evening meal.

News-gathering, editing, setting-up, printing and distributing The Bulletin requires a very large daily working force, not including the many thousands of special correspondents of the Associated Press and other sources of news used daily by this newspaper.

In addition, 158 automobiles and other methods of delivery carry the printed copies of The Bulletin to various neighborhood sections of Philadelphia, Camden and their suburbs, where nearly 10,000 Bulletin carriers obtain their supply for distribution to the homes, offices, factories and shops of Bulletin readers.

THE BULLETIN BUILDING

THE BULLETIN ANNEX

Some of the Special Features in The Evening Bulletin

All the News
Authentic Sports Reports
News from Washington
Foreign Reviews
Accurate Financial Reports
Interesting Photo Page
Activities of Women
Dr. Purvis Sermons
Most Popular Comics
Articles by the Queen of Roumania
Helen Rowland's Clever Chat
Best Serial Stories
Daily Fashion Notes
List of Marriage Licenses
Evening Society Chat
Appetizing Menus
List of Death Notices
Radio Broadcast Programs
Stories from Real Life
Theatrical Gossip and Notes
Motor, Pathfinder and Routes
Letters to the Editor
Etiquette and Personal Notes
Interesting Advertisements
Anne Campbell's and other Poems
The Cheerful Cherub
Daily Love Story
How to Live

and many other interesting and informative articles on subjects too numerous to mention in this space.

ORDER IN ADVANCE

To avoid disappointment please tell your newsboy, newsagent or dealer to serve you with The Bulletin regularly each day.

Readers are requested to notify the Circulation Department if they are unable to obtain copies of The Bulletin. Phone: Bell, Lenox 6000; Keystone, Main 7301

ONE OF THE BATTERY OF NEW STYLE SUPER-SPEED ROTARY PRINTING PRESSES IN THE PLANT OF THE EVENING BULLETIN—PRINTS 1800 EIGHT-PAGE OR 800 FORTY-EIGHT-PAGE BULLETINS A MINUTE

Printing 7820 Forty-eight-Page Bulletins a Minute

The size of a newspaper printing plant is determined by the number of press units employed, and their capacity. In modern practice a printing press capable of producing a 16-page paper is counted as one unit.

The printing plant of The Bulletin consists of five duo-double-sextuple, four double-sextuple and five octuple rotary printing presses, a total of 104 separate press units producing complete copies of The Bulletin at the amazing output listed herewith:

	Per Hour	Per Minute
8 pages	2,346,000	39,100
16 pages	1,173,000	19,550
24 pages	782,000	13,033
32 pages	586,500	9,975
36, 40, 44 or 48 pages	469,200	7,820

Nearly 225 tons of newsprint paper (about 9 freight-car loads) are needed each day to print The Bulletin.

Progress of The Bleeding Bulletin

March Net Paid Daily Average Circulation 551,378 copies

America's Twenty Largest Daily Newspapers

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

28,000,000 Pages

each afternoon

for six days each week

Sixteen more Hoe Superspeed 16-page press units are now being constructed for The Bulletin.

Philip Schuyler in The Editor & Publisher of June 19, 1926, writes:

"What is done daily in that stadium of presses staggers the mind of any man. In much less than the hours of daylight, nearly 28,000,000 pages of news are sped through this one place into 158 trucks to be carried from vantage points by 10,000 boys into a half a million homes."

"The 104 press units in the Bulletin plant produce an average of 1,173,000 16-page papers or 391,000 48-page papers an hour. This amazing press capacity means that 39,100 eight-page copies, or 6,517 48-page copies can be turned out every minute."

Net Production is what counts • Hoe Presses give the maximum

R. HOE & CO., INC.

504-520 GRAND STREET • • NEW YORK CITY

BOSTON • CHICAGO • LONDON • DUNELLEN

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

NEW YORK—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
12,000	17,000	1912	Tarrytown	News	(e)	2,449	.025*
76,000	130,000	1896	Troy	Record	(m)	4,903	..
				Evening edition	(e)	17,776	..
				Combined Daily	(me)	22,679	.06*
		1797		Sunday Budget	(s)	17,850	.05*
		1875		Observer	(s)	15,225	.035
		1851		Times	(e)	18,201	.05*
105,000	300,000	1922	Utica	Observer-Dispatch	(e)	39,241	.09*
				Sunday edition	(s)	....	.055*
		1882		Press	(m)	28,626	.06
33,396	100,000	1894	Watertown	Standard	(e)	17,617	.07*
		1861		Times	(e)	17,241	.08*
5,000	.....	1880	Wellsville	Reporter	(e)	....	.029
28,000	50,000	1907	White Plains	Reporter	(e)	8,574	.05*
110,000	119,497	1889	Yonkers	Herald	(e)	13,120	.07
		1883		Statesman	(e)	6,942	.035*

NORTH CAROLINA

40,000	148,579	1868	Asheville	Citizen	(m)	13,035	.055*
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,398	.055*
		1896		Times	(e)	10,924	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	9,828	.05*
8,750	15,000	....	Burlington	Times	(e)	3,200	.021*
60,000	450,000	1888	Charlotte	News	(e)	17,810	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	18,642	.05
				Observer	(m)	33,455	.09
		1869		Sunday edition	(s)	37,188	.10
12,874	.....	1900	Concord	Tribune	(e)	2,195	.025*
44,000	104,154	1894	Durham	Herald	(m)	11,802	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,973	.06*
2,777	.....	1922	Edenton	News	(e)	1,988	.018*
8,925	.....	1911	Elizabeth City	Advance	(e)	2,964	.025
8,877	50,000	1817	Fayetteville	Observer	(e)	3,500	.03*
45,000	275,000	1905	Greensboro	News	(m)	27,865	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	31,382	.08
		1891		Record	(e)	8,112	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,112	.04*
12,871	21,000	1880	Gastonia	Gazette	(e)	5,609	.03*
11,296	.....	1885	Goldsboro	Argus	(e)	2,818	.02*
		1922		News	(m)	2,300	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,300	.025*
5,772	.....	1894	Greenville	Reflector	(e)	2,655	.025*
5,627	45,000	1914	Henderson	Dispatch	(e)	2,241	.03
3,720	.....	1926	Hendersonville	News	(m)	(New Daily)	.036*
				Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.036*
		1925		Times	(e)	2,250	.025*
14,000	35,000	1915	Hickory	Record	(e)	2,444	.025*
26,500	50,000	1914	High Point	Enterprise	(e)	4,822	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,822	.03
12,000	50,000	1882	Kinston	Free Press	(e)	3,130	.025*
12,000	50,000	1914	Kinston	News	(m)	2,025	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,025	.025*
12,198	.....	1916	New Bern	New Bernian	(m)	3,297	...
		1876		Sun-Journal	(e)	3,062	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	6,359	.04
				New Bernian	(s)	3,297	.04
33,000	300,000	1865	Raleigh	News & Observer	(m)	33,661x	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	36,159x	.09*
		1875		Times	(e)	10,998x	.05
12,742	225,000	1908	Rocky Mount	Telegram	(e)	3,786	.025*
23,000	60,000	1912	Salisbury	Post	(e)	7,188	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,406	.04*
2,000	.....	1882	Scotland Neck	Commonwealth	(e)	1,250	.018*
9,350	.....	1920	Statesville	Daily	(e)	1,850	.018*
5,500	.....	1889	Tarboro	Southerner	(e)	1,945	.02
6,166	125,000	1909	Washington	News	(e)	2,100	.025*
40,000	155,000	1895	Wilmington	News-Dispatch	(e)	4,823	.035
		1867		Morning Star	(m)	7,051	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,803	.05*
10,653	150,000	1902	Wilson	Times	(e)	4,300	.036*
70,000	200,000	1892	Winston-Salem	Journal	(m)	13,768	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,788	.05*
		1882		Twin City Sentinel	(e)	17,728	.07*

NORTH DAKOTA

9,253	100,000	1881	Bismarck	Tribune	(e)	4,379	.03
5,140	.....	1904	Devil's Lake	Journal	(e)	2,400	.025*
30,000	132,000	1878	Fargo	Forum	(m)	6,787	.08*
				Evening edition	(e)	14,617	.08*
				Combined Daily	(me)	21,404	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,893	.06*
18,772	160,848	1879	Grand Forks	Herald	(m)	12,007	.07*
		1906		Evening edition	(e)	5,494	.07*
				Combined Daily		17,501	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,705	.07*
7,500	80,000	1878	Jamestown	Sun	(e)	3,656	.045*
5,168	75,000	1914	Mandan	Pioneer	(e)	2,514	.025*
10,476	125,000	1884	Minot	News & Optic-Reporter	(e)	5,093	.03*
4,783	.....	1906	Valley City	Times-Record	(e)	3,500	.025*

OHIO

200,000	280,000	1869	Akron	Beacon Journal	(e)	51,973	.10*
		1892		Times-Press	(e)	44,031	.09*
		1919		Sunday edition	(s)	33,554	.09*
25,762	60,000	1888	Alliance	Review	(e)	10,740	.04*
11,500	24,627	1850	Ashland	Times-Gazette	(e)	5,148	.025*
28,000	70,000	1888	Ashtabula	Star-Beacon	(e)	9,659	.04*
7,500	60,000	1905	Athens	Messenger	(e)	10,436	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,757	.04*
17,000	95,000	1913	Bellaire	Leader	(e)	6,483	.03
10,000	30,000	1892	Bellefontaine	Examiner	(e)	5,654	.025*
5,776	34,000	1899	Bellevue	Gazette	(e)	2,116	.018*
6,500	35,000	1890	Bowling Green	Sentinel-Tribune	(e)	3,637	.02*
10,425	50,000	1887	Bucyrus	Telegraph-Forum	(e)	.....	.03*
14,304	50,000	1892	Cambridge	Jeffersonian	(e)	11,048	.045*
106,260	250,000	1910	Canton	News	(e)	27,717x	.055*
		1910		Sunday edition	(s)	21,789x	.055*
		1878		Repository	(e)	36,785x	.075*
		1892		Sunday edition	(s)	32,221x	.075*
4,266	10,000	1907	Celina	Standard	(e)	2,265	.014*
19,347	65,000	1830	Chillicothe	News-Advertiser	(e)	4,711	.015
		1800		Scioto Gazette	(e)	6,817	.025*
560,281	600,000	1793	Cincinnati	Commercial Tribune	(e)	58,472	.14
				Sunday edition	(s)	58,472	.17
		1842		Enquirer	(m)	63,372	.17
		1842		Sunday edition	(s)	170,132	.35
		1880		Post	(e)	192,464	.28*
		1837		Times-Star	(e)	149,761	.26

OHIO—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
7,049	.....	1883	Circleville	Herald	(me)	.....	.016*
				Union Herald	(e)	.....	.016*
1,087,670	1,525,000	1879	Cleveland	News	(e)	167,780	.34*
		1848		Sunday edition	(s)	200,858	.37*
		1841		Plain Dealer	(m)	200,239	.38*
		1841		Sunday edition	(s)	266,578	.48*
		1878		Press	(e)	222,637	.37*
		1822		Times	(m)	32,232	.17
				Sunday edition	(s)	32,232	.17
304,000	641,694	1899	Columbus	Citizen	(e)	84,510	.15*
		1864		Dispatch	(e)	106,451	.22
				Sunday edition	(s)	106,451	.22
		1811		State Journal	(m)	47,742	.12
				Sunday edition	(s)	47,742	.12
9,343	.....	1891	Conneaut	News-Herald	(e)	3,055	.0225
12,000	30,000	1917	Coshocton	Tribune	(e)	6,641	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,592	.03*
175,000	500,000	1875	Dayton	Herald	(e)	40,801	.09*
		1808		Journal	(m)	26,336	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	46,128	.09*
				Combined Daily	(me)	67,137	.13*
				Ev. & Sunday	(es)	.....	.13*
		1808		News	(e)	51,394	.10*
		1913		Sunday edition	(s)	46,509	.10*
8,876	20,000	1889	Defiance	Crescent-News	(e)	3,521	.02
10,000	20,000	1884	Delaware	Gazette	(e)	2,448	.014*
		1841		Journal-Herald	(e)	1,372	.011*
5,745	.....	1875	Delphos	Herald	(e)	1,408	.014*
5,524	.....	1899	Dennison	Paragraph	(e)	.....	.014*
11,103	20,000	1848	Dover	Reporter	(e)	6,423	.03*
25,000	55,000	1876	East Liverpool	Review-Tribune	(e)	11,677	.045*
5,750	.....	1915	East Palestine	Leader	(e)	1,650	.014*
25,000	100,000	1898	Elyria	Chronicle-Telegram	(e)	8,733	.04*
17,021	38,304	1886	Findlay	Republican	(m)	8,157	.045*
		1886		Courier	(e)	3,100	.045*
				Combined Daily	(me)	11,257	.045*
11,500	35,000	1860	Fostoria	Review	(e)	3,762	.02*
		1898		Times	(e)	3,154	.013*
12,468	40,000	1840	Fremont	Messenger	(e)	2,352	.015*
		1887		News	(e)	3,885x	.018*
9,000	.....	1893	Galion	Inquirer	(e)	2,709	.015
6,070	.....	1895	Gallipolis	Tribune	(e)	.....	.008*
3,100	.....	1900	Geneva	Free Press	(e)	1,741	.02*
7,104	52,000	1892	Greenville	Advocate	(e)	4,325	.018*
		1921		News-Tribune	(e)	.....	.021*
50,000	87,925	1856	Hamilton	Journal	(e)	11,138x	.0425
		1879		News	(e)	10,449	.045
20,000	50,000	1850	Ironton	Tribune	(e)	7,605x	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,975x	.04*
7,690	35,000	1893	Kenton	Democrat	(e)	2,250	.015*
		1843		News-Republican	(e)	3,025	.015*
14,706	44,000	1890	Lancaster	Eagle	(e)	5,326	.018
		1826		Gazette	(e)	5,634	.0238*
50,000	150,000	1923	Lima	Gazette & Republican	(m)	6,000	.05*
		1896		News	(e)	16,255	.06
				Combined Daily	(me)	22,255	.10
				Sunday News	(s)	.....	.06

(Note—Sunday editions of News & Gazette consolidated circulation on A. B. C. Publisher's Statements March 31, 1926, Gazette 7,088—News 16,900)

				Star	(m)	10,782	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,782	.05*
3,000	.....	1908	Lisbon	Journal	(e)	.....	.018*
39,295	50,000	1921	Lorain	Journal	(e)	7,295	.025
		1879		Times-Herald	(e)	8,268	.03*
27,824	100,000	1924	Mansfield	Journal	(e)	8,011	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,011	.03*
		1885		News	(e)	11,868	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,661	.04*
16,500	25,000	1894	Marietta	Register	(e)	4,967	.03*
16,500	25,000	1864	Marietta	Times	(e)	5,815	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.025*
30,000	150,000	1884	Marion	Star	(e)	13,987	.05*
13,000	100,000	1891	Martins Ferry	Times	(e)	9,658	.04*
4,000	20,000	1898	Marysville	Tribune	(e)	1,934	.015*
25,000	29,000	1863	Massillon	Independent	(e)	8,616x	.04*
1,470	.....	1903	Mechanicsburg	Telegram	(e)	742	.014*
30,000	40,000	1890	Middletown	Republican-News	(e)	4,186	.02*
		1921		Advocate	(e)	11,149	.035*
		1874		American Tribune	(e)	9,152	.025
12,000	34,000	1898	Mount Vernon	Journal	(e)	6,360	.025*
		1893		Sunday edition	(s)	6,831	.025*
26,718	60,000	1820	Newark	News-Signal	(e)	5,603	.025*
		1827		Banner	(e)	3,169	.015*
12,000	40,000	1903	New Philadelphia	Times	(e)	8,384	.03*
13,080	.....	1924	Niles	Times	(e)	1,421	.02*
10,000	32,000	1830	Norwalk	Reflecter-Herald	(e)	3,907	.018*
14,000	30,000	1822	Painesville	Telegraph	(e)	4,316	.02*
18,000	48,000	1888	Piqua	Call & Press Dispatch	(e)	6,017	.025*
4,294	.....	1902	Pomeroy	News	(e)	.....	.014*
42,917	80,000	1921	Portsmouth	Sun	(m)	7,709	...
		1894		Times	(e)	14,833	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	22,542	.08*
		1919		Sun-Times	(s)	14,144	.06*
7,219	.....	1925	Ravenna	Republican	(e)	3,348	.025*
7,000	.....	1902	St. Mary's	Leader	(e)	2,680	.025*
12,000	30,000	1889	Salem	News	(e)	3,481	.018*
24,000	50,000	1822	Sandusky	Register	(m)	10,043	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,430	.035*
		1866		Star-Journal	(e)	9,025	.03*
5,578	.....	1900	Shelby	Globe	(e)	2,500	.014*
8,590	.....	1891	Sidney	News	(e)	3,675	.02*
		1908		Journal	(e)	.....	.014*
70,000	110,000	1817	Springfield	News	(e)	19,765	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	18,421	.05*
		1894		Sun	(m)	15,059	.035
				Sunday edition	(s)	12,586	.035
35,000	150,000	1804	Steubenville	Herald-Star	(e)	16,592	.06*
15,000	43,176	1886	Tiffin	Advertiser	(e)	3,648	.021*
		1845		Tribune	(e)	2,812	.021*
283,000	600,000	1848	Toledo	Blade	(e)	120,845	.26
		1876		News-Bee	(e)	92,845	.22*
		1908		Times	(m)	26,872	.06
				Sunday edition	(s)	49,427	.12
4,271	8,000	1878	Toronto	Tribune	(e)	1,763	.018*
7,260	45,000	1909	Troy	News	(e)	2,657	.014*
6,428	70,000	1895	Uhrichsville	Chronicle	(e)	2,820	.015*
3,779	.....	1879	Upper Sandusky	Chief	(e)	2,820	.015

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

Hot Weather! Quick, sure relief for fagged-out, slowed-down workers!

Fresh, outdoor air—the invigorating force that keeps things moving—that keeps workers in composing-room, press-room and other departments at top-notch efficiency.

Ventilation is of vital importance any time of the year, but especially during the hot summer months. Unless hot, stagnant air is driven out it saps the vitality of workers, causes discontent and slowing-up.

Sturtevant Ventilating Fans for Newspaper Plants give quick, sure relief. They provide a complete change of air every few minutes—expel the stale, enervating air from the inside—draw in the fresh, invigorating air from the outside.

Sturtevant Ventilating Fans can be obtained from stock and quickly installed. No interruption of your operations. Any of the 82 Sturtevant and Graybar Electric Company offices listed below can meet your requirements at once. Phone or write the nearest one. Or show this advertisement to the nearest Electrical Contractor.

B. F. STURTEVANT COMPANY, HYDE PARK, BOSTON, MASS.

Atlanta, Ga.	Chicago, Ill.	Hartford, Conn.	Montreal, Canada	Salt Lake City, U.
Boston, Mass.	Cincinnati, O.	Indianapolis, Ind.	New York, N. Y.	San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo, N. Y.	Cleveland, O.	Kansas City, Mo.	Pittsburgh, Pa.	Seattle, Wash.
Camden, N. J.	Dallas, Texas.	Los Angeles, Cal.	Portland, Ore.	Toronto, Ont.
Charlotte, N. C.	Denver, Colo.	Minneapolis, Minn.	Rochester, N. Y.	Washington, D. C.
	Detroit, Mich.		St. Louis, Mo.

Distributors: Graybar Electric Co. and Leading Electrical Contractors Everywhere

Graybar Electric Company Offices

Albany, N. Y.	Denver, Col.	Minneapolis, M.	St. Louis, Mo.
Atlanta, Ga.	Detroit, Mich.	Nashville, Tenn.	St. Paul, Minn.
Baltimore, Md.	Duluth, Minn.	Newark, N. J.	Salt Lake City, U.
Birmingham, Ala.	Grand Rapids, Mich.	New Haven, Ct.	San Antonio, Tex.
Boston, Mass.	Harrisburg, Pa.	New Orleans, La.	San Francisco, Cal.
Brooklyn, N. Y.	Houston, Texas.	New York, N. Y.	Savannah, Ga.
Buffalo, N. Y.	Indianapolis, Ind.	Norfolk, Va.	Seattle, Wash.
Charlotte, N. C.	Jacksonville, Fla.	Oakland, Cal.	Spokane, Wash.
Chicago, Ill.	Kansas City, Mo.	Omaha, Neb.	Syracuse, N. Y.
Cincinnati, O.	Los Angeles, Cal.	Philadelphia, Pa.	Tacoma, Wash.
Cleveland, O.	Memphis, Tenn.	Pittsburgh, Pa.	Tampa, Fla.
Columbus, O.	Miami, Fla.	Portland, Ore.	Toledo, O.
Dallas, Texas.	Milwaukee, Wis.	Providence, R. I.	Worcester, Mass.
Davenport, Ia.		Richmond, Va.	Youngstown, O.

Sturtevant

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Ventilating Fans

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

OHIO—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
7,621	30,000	1883	Urbana	Democrat	(e)	4,616	.013
				Citizen	(m)	594	.012
				Combined Daily	(me)	5,210	.025*
3,100	30,000	1873	Van Wert	Bulletin	(e)	2,274	.015*
		1863		Times	(e)	2,110	.015*
5,295	.....	1905	Wapakoneta	News	(e)	4,050	.021
35,000	85,000	1870	Warren	Tribune-Chronicle	(e)	11,652	.045*
7,962	.....	1885	Washington, C. H.	Herald	(me)	3,216	.021*
6,687	.....	1898	Wellston	Sentinel	(e)	.....	.011
5,037	40,000	1837	Wilmington	News-Journal	(e)	3,437	.025
9,500	40,000	1887	Wooster	Record	(e)	7,191	.03*
12,000	32,000	1881	Xenia	Gazette	(e)	3,687	...
		1912		Republican	(m)	1,558	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	5,245	.025*
155,153	300,000	1851	Youngstown	Telegram	(e)	33,480x	.08*
		1869		Vindicator	(e)	32,397x	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	30,937x	.08*
40,000	130,000	1885	Zanesville	Times-Recorder	(m)	19,356	...
				Signal	(e)	11,257	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	30,613	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.035*

OKLAHOMA

8,012	.....	1901	Ada	News	(e)	2,445	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,445	.025*
5,100	27,000	1889	Alva	Review-Courier	(e)	2,750	.021*
19,174	50,000	1893	Ardmore	Ardmoreite	(e)	7,119	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,119	.04*
		1921		Press	(m)	7,223	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,223	.04*
18,334	50,000	1904	Bartlesville	Enterprise	(e)	4,447	.03*
		1903		Examiner	(m)	4,300x	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,414x	.03*
15,150	106,444	1899	Blackwell	News	(e)	3,132	...
				Tribune	(m)	8,411	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	11,543	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,411	.06*
12,000	.....	1922	Bristow	Record	(e)	2,484	.032*
10,179	.....	1899	Chickasha	Express	(e)	2,801	.021*
3,425	.....	1910	Claremore	Progress	(e)	.....	.018*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.018*
10,000	40,000	1919	Cushing	Citizen	(e)	2,580	.025*
6,460	.....	1914	Drumright	Derrick	(e)	.....	.036*
8,000	.....	1921	Duncan	Banner	(e)	1,261	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,261	.025
7,340	.....	1900	Durant	Democrat	(e)	2,327	.025*
7,737	.....	1900	El Reno	Democrat	(e)	2,850	.025*
16,576	65,000	1893	Enid	Eagle	(e)	5,816	...
				News	(m)	6,291	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	12,107	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,291	.06*
5,000	20,000	1917	Frederick	Leader	(me)	2,315	.029*
13,360	55,000	1892	Guthrie	Leader	(e)	6,449	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,449	.05*
5,889	.....	1916	Henryetta	Free Lance	(e)	.....	.029*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.029*
6,368	.....	1913	Hugo	News	(e)	.....	.021*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.021*
8,930	.....	1901	Lawton	Constitution	(e)	3,510	.029*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,510	.029*
13,000	40,000	1896	McAlester	News-Capital	(e)	3,657x	.025*
6,802	60,000	1917	Miami	News-Record	(e)	8,590	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,590	.04*
42,000	150,000	1924	Muskogee	News	(e)	6,920	.045*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,920	.045*
		1901		Phoenix	(m)	13,100x	...
		1894		Times-Democrat	(e)	10,896x	...
				Combined daily	(me)	23,996x	.10*
				Sunday edition	(s)	14,422x	.10*
2,533	.....	1916	Newkirk	Reporter	(s)	634	.011
9,000	.....	1913	Norman	Transcript	(e)	2,563	.275
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,563	.275
5,000	.....	1910	Nowata	Star	(e)	2,700	.021*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,700	.021*
7,500	70,000	1925	Okemah	Leader	(e)	3,682	.03*
110,000	728,624	1906	Oklahoma City	News	(e)	41,552	.10*
		1889		Oklahoman	(m)	70,305	...
				Times	(e)	64,638	...
				Combined daily	(me)	134,983	.28*
				Sunday edition	(s)	85,944	.28*
				Okla. & Times	(eve-s)	150,582	.35*
25,000	65,000	1918	Okmulgee	Times	(m)	6,590	...
		1910		Democrat	(e)	3,609	...
				Combined daily	(me)	10,199	.065*
				Times	(s)	6,678	...
				Democrat	(s)	3,487	...
				Combined Sunday		10,165	.065*
10,000	.....	1904	Pawhuska	Journal-Capital	(e)	2,750	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,750	.025*
3,154	.....	1914	Perry	Journal	(e)	1,208	.018*
14,360	.....	1919	Ponca City	News	(e)	5,750	.0357*
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,750	.0357*
11,634	.....	1914	Sapulpa	Herald	(e)	3,115	.025*
				Times	(m)	.....	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.035*
15,348	.....	1895	Shawnee	News	(m)	6,786	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,786	.04*
5,000	.....	1908	Stillwater	Press	(e)	.....	.021*
	(Free Circulation)
109,920	275,000	1906	Tulsa	World	(m)	46,704x	.11*
				Sunday edition	(s)	52,701x	.12*
		1904		Tribune	(e)	38,378x	.09*
				Sunday edition	(s)	42,705x	.09*
5,010	.....	1913	Vinita	Journal	(e)	.....	.018*
2,286	.....	1925	Wilson	Post	(e)	(New Daily)	.018*
3,849	10,000	1923	Woodward	Press	(e)	1,682	.035*

OREGON

7,000	35,000	1865	Albany	Democrat-Herald	(e)	4,115	.035*
4,283	.....	1865	Ashland	Tidings	(e)	1,805	.021*
13,000	40,000	1875	Astoria	Astorian	(m)	2,259	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,288	.03*
13,000	40,000	1892		Budget	(e)	2,695	.029*
9,000	15,000	1870	Baker	Democrat	(m)	1,440	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,468	.025*
		1901		Herald	(e)	1,545	.025*
8,500	13,000	1916	Bend	Bulletin	(e)	2,101	.025*
		1915		Central Ore. Press	(m)	1,745	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,745	.025*
7,639	25,000	1862	Corvallis	Gazette-Times	(e)	2,063	.03*

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

OREGON—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
16,000	42,000	1894	Eugene	Register	(m)	6,118	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,311	.035*
		1890		Guard	(e)	5,917	.035*
4,801	.....	1896	Grants Pass	Courier	(e)	1,430	.021*
10,000	20,000	1910	Klamath Falls	Herald	(e)	3,246	.025*
		1923		News	(m)	2,784	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,828	.025*
6,913	.....	1898	La Grande	Observer	(e)	2,627	.03*
4,034	.....	1878	Marshfield	Coos Bay Times	(e)	3,808	.035
		1911		S. W. Ore. News	(e)	4,105	.03*
8,200	40,000	1906	Medford	Mail-Tribune	(e)	4,127	.03*
				Sunday edition	(e)	4,127	.03*
5,686	25,000	1910	Oregon City	Enterprise	(m)	2,205	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,205	.025*
8,000	25,000	1875	Pendleton	East Oregonian	(e)	2,811	.025
285,000	400,000	1906	Portland	News	(e)	45,109	.10*
		1902		Journal	(e)	93 557	.18*
				Sunday edition	(s)	117,521	.20*
		1861		Morning Oregonian	(m)	101,173	.20*
				Sunday edition	(s)	147,278	.25*
		1877		Telegram	(e)	57,528	.14*
4,381	.....	1875	Roseburg	News-Review	(e)	4,300	.021*
22,000	42,000	1877	Salem	Capital Journal	(e)	7,634	.04*
		1851		Oregon Statesman	(m)	5,565	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,004	.035*
7,500	43,000	1890	The Dalles	Chronicle	(e)	2,076	.025*

PENNSYLVANIA

87,329	200,000	1888	Allentown	Call	(m)	31,400	.10*
				Sunday edition	(s)	22,349	.10*
		1870		Chronicle & News Item	(e)	12,791	.05*
		1893		Leader	(e)	6,114	.02
66,000	125,000	1874	Altoona	Mirror	(e)	28,222	.08*
		1856		Tribune	(m)	13,625	.06*
8,000	.....	1909	Ashland	News	(e)	2,718	.021
5,402	.....	1894	Bangor	News	(e)	.....	.016*
4,135	40,000	1874	Beaver	Times	(e)	5,016	.03*
12,802	55,000	1884	Beaver Falls	Tribune	(e)	6,553	.03*
12,181	.....	1903	Berwick	Enterprise	(e)	3,419	.03
50,358	.....	1894	Bethlehem	Globe-Times	(e)	13,271	.06
8,000	.....	1902	Bloomsburg	Press	(m)	7,673	.04
20,879	.....	1886	Braddock	News-Herald	(e)	4,200	.035*
15,525	25,000	1877	Bradford	Era	(m)	5,270	.029*
		1879		Star & Record	(e)	5,049	.014
10,273	.....	1906	Bristol	Courier	(e)	2,145	.017
8,000	100,000	1915	Brownsville	Telegraph	(e)	7,203	.036*
23,778	85,000	1869	Butler	Eagle	(e)	13,013	.04*
10,632	.....	1875	Canonsburg	Notes	(e)	.....	.03
18,640	60,000	1872	Carbondale	Leader	(e)	5,686	.032

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

A SINGLE ADVERTISING APPROPRIATION

Will cover the two publications that reach those who control the national advertising of the United States and Great Britain.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
New York
and
ADVERTISING WORLD
London, Eng.

have entered into an agreement in respect to editorial and advertising representation in their respective fields and thereby afford a single source of information and service for those interested in international marketing and advertising.

Combination Advertising Rates for 12 Insertion Contract

Full Page .....$280.00 per insertion
Half Page ..... 145.00 per insertion
Quarter Page ..... 82.50 per insertion

You are cordially invited to communicate with EDITOR & PUBLISHER, Suite 1700 Times Building, New York, for further details of circulation, editorial policy and mechanical requirements of ADVERTISING WORLD. This office can be of great assistance to manufacturers who desire information in regard to marketing conditions of Great Britain. Publishers of leading American newspapers will also avail themselves of this opportunity to deliver their messages to the largest advertisers of Great Britain, many of whom are keenly interested in the markets of America.

Editor & Publisher
1700 Times Building
Broadway at 42d St.
New York, N. Y.
Telephones:
Bryan 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056
Cable Address: EDPUB, NEW YORK

Advertising World
14 King Street
Covent Garden, W. C. 2
London, England
Telephone: Gerrard 7615
Cable Address:
ECOPUBLISH, RAND, LONDON

CONSUMER DEMAND IN

THE SOUTH

IS EVER INCREASING

The shifting of a substantial population southward was inevitable. The lure of speculation in the extreme South played a minor part in the general drift to a land that had been experiencing an extraordinary industrial development for more than a generation and, while creating another important merchandising territory, in no way minimized the untold opportunities for prosperity.

Industries have merely scratched the surface and in the not distant future the South will be the greatest industrial center in the world.

For every acre under the plow in every part of the South, there are many acres uncultivated. Two to four crops are produced instead of one as in the North, and forests replenish themselves two or three times as rapidly. Stock grazes outdoors the entire year.

The economic opportunities of the South are vast.

This territory of great purchasing power and still greater promise presents to the manufacturer a rich market for the distribution of his product.

The daily newspapers of the South offer you market information and merchandising cooperation.

Use these Newspapers for National Advertising

ALABAMA	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
*Birmingham Age-Herald (M)	34,994	.09	.09
*Birmingham Age-Herald (S)	50,699	.11	.11
*Mobile News-Item (E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register (M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register (S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
†Daytona Beach News (ES)	5,731	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903 (S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
*Lakeland Ledger (E)	5,173	.03	.03
*Miami Herald (M)	48,108	.11	.11
*Miami Herald (S)	60,006	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star (E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel (M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal (E&M)	9,805	.06	.06
†St. Augustine Record (M)	3,382	.04	.04
†St. Petersburg Independent (E)	11,917	.055	.055
*Tampa Times (E)	23,325	.08	.08
†Tampa Tribune (M) 34,841 (S)	53,762	.09(.11S)	.09(.11S)
*West Palm Beach Post (M)	12,243	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald (E)	14,246	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald (S)	14,547	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph (M)	24,035	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph (S)	24,439	.08	.08
Savannah Morning News (M), 21,015 (S)	22,204	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
*The Lexington Leader (E)	19,640	.06	.06
*The Lexington Leader (S)	19,531	.06	.06
Paducah Sun (E)	9,255	.04	.04

NORTH CAROLINA	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
†Greensboro Daily News (M)	27,485	.08	.07
†Greensboro Daily News (S)	31,505	.09	.08
*Salisbury Post (E)	7,188	.06	.06
†Winston-Salem Journal (M)	13,702	.05	.05
†Winston-Salem Journal (S)	13,720	.05	.05
*Winston-Salem Sentinel (E)	18,259	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State (M)	23,663	.07	.07
Columbia State (S)	24,838	.07	.07
Greenville News (M)	21,704	.075	.07
*Spartanburg Journal (E)	4,613	.05	.05
*Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,860 (S)	9,856
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times (M)	30,203	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times (S)	30,230	.10	.10
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (M)	100,934	.18	.18
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (S)	129,219	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner (E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner (S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
*Danville Register and Bee (M&E)	14,313	.05	.05
*Danville Register (Sunday)	9,065
*Newport News Times-Herald (E)	7,968	.05	.05
*Newport News Daily Press (S&M)	5,413
*Roanoke Times & World News (M&E)	25,772	.08	.08
*Roanoke Times (S)	16,076	.07	.07
*Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader (E)	6,855	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
 A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

PENNSYLVANIA—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
10,916	.....	1881	Carlisle	Sentinel	(e)	4,408	.03*
13,181	48,000	1790	Chambersburg	Franklin Repository	(e)	4,347	.025*
		1869		Public Opinion	(e)	4,555	.025*
		1847		Valley Spirit	(e)	.....	.0175
11,516	.....	1900	Charleroi	Mail	(e)	2,470	.029*
64,697	118,000	1876	Chester	Times	(e)	18,295	.06
10,000	.....	1913	Clearfield	Progress	(e)	5,225	.029*
14,515	.....	1908	Coatesville	Record	(e)	6,783	.03
13,256	.....	1888	Columbia	News	(e)	3,719	.03
16,105	90,000	1902	Connellsville	Courier	(e)	5,928	.02*
		1898		News	(m)	5,775	.025*
9,500	.....	1898	Corry	Journal	(e)	2,932	.018*
10,000	.....	1897	Danville	News	(m)	2,863	.018*
15,000	.....	1916	Donora	Herald	(e)	3,103	.025*
3,837	47,500	1890	Doylestown	Intelligencer	(e)	5,418	.03
17,000	30,000	1879	Du Bois	Courier	(m)	5,277	.029*
		1883		Express	(e)	4,090	.013
65,000	175,000	1855	Easton	Express	(e)	25,473	.08*
		1866		Free Press	(e)	12,112	.06*
8,958	.....	1920	Ellwood City	Ledger	(e)	2,900	.03*
128,755	165,000	1852	Erie	Dispatch-Herald	(e)	28,504	.08*
				Sunday edition	(s)	23,311	.08*
		1888		Times	(e)	28,596	.08*
9,970	.....	1878	Franklin	News-Herald	(e)	6,700	.045*
4,439	25,000	1902	Gettysburg	Times	(e)	4,180	.03*
21,000	243,402	1903	Greensburg	Review	(m)	4,763	....
		1886		Tribune	(e)	6,158	....
				Combined daily	(me)	10,921	.05*
8,101	35,000	1897	Greenville	Record-Argus	(e)	4,365	.025*
8,664	50,000	1894	Hanover	Record-Herald	(e)	5,369	.025*
		1915		Sun	(e)	9,977	.045*
83,422	225,000	1852	Harrisburg	Patriot	(m)	20,957	....
		1917		News	(e)	46,770	....
				Combined daily	(me)	67,727	.14*
		1903		Sunday Courier	(s)	.....	.06*
		1831		Telegraph	(e)	42,047	.11
33,365	90,000	1882	Hazleton	Plain Speaker	(e)	9,935	....
		1866		Standard-Sentinel	(m)	9,917	....
				Combined daily	(me)	19,852	.06
20,452	60,000	1880	Homestead	Messenger	(e)	4,819	.025
8,350	40,000	1922	Huntington	News	(e)	3,811	.035*
7,043	50,000	1904	Indiana	Gazette	(e)	7,550	.042
10,627	17,000	1922	Jeannette	News-Dispatch	(e)	3,875	.035*
7,000	.....	1902	Jersey Shore	Herald	(e)	2,162	.018*
67,327	200,000	1883	Johnstown	Democrat	(m)	18,113	.06*
8,000	.....	1894	Kane	Republican	(e)	2,963	.021*
67,327	200,000	1853	Johnstown	Tribune	(e)	31,630	.09*
7,153	75,568	1909	Kittanning	Simpsons' Leader-Times	(e)	5,786	.025*
58,000	225,000	1877	Lancaster	New Era	(e)	22,158x	.08
		1909		News Journal	(m)	14,396x	.....
		1794		Intelligencer	(e)	14,536x	.....
				Combined daily	(me)	28,932x	.09*
				Sunday News	(s)	.....	.09*
9,625	27,000	1920	Lansford	Record	(e)	3,052	.021
9,484	25,000	1902	Latrobe	Bulletin	(e)	5,056	.03*
24,643	63,152	1872	Lebanon	News-Times	(e)	10,216	.045*
		1891		Report	(e)	4,498	.02*
6,102	.....	1903	Lehighton	Leader	(e)	1,790	.015*
13,000	50,000	1903	Lewiston	Sentinel	(e)	6,492x	.025
8,557	.....	1882	Lock Haven	Express	(e)	3,286	.018
53,000	125,000	1925	McKeesport	Journal	(e)	10,338	.04*
		1884		News	(e)	13,461	.04*
16,971	40,000	1922	Mahanoy City	Press	(e)	4,994	.025*
		1871		Record-American	(e)	5,506	.029*
4,000	.....	1893	Mauch Chunk	News	(e)	.....	.029
		1883		Times	(e)	2,360	.018*
16,000	40,000	1884	Meadville	Tribune-Republican	(m)	5,601	.....
		1865		Republican	(e)	2,293	.....
				Combined daily	(me)	7,894	.04*
4,688	.....	1923	Mechanicsburg	Local News	(e)	.....	.029*
5,290	20,000	1890	Middletown	Journal	(e)	2,535	.01*
9,000	38,000	1890	Milton	Standard	(e)	4,011	.029*
18,179	.....	1902	Monessen	Independent	(e)	2,900	.017*
8,688	.....	1846	Monongahela	Republican	(e)	2,350	.025*
20,000	37,000	1888	Mount Carmel	Item	(e)	4,037	.029*
		1887		News	(e)	4,337	.021*
9,361	.....	1874	New Brighton	Beaver Valley News	(e)	1,275	.014
52,000	73,920	1880	New Castle	News	(e)	16,687	.05*
15,947	85,000	1891	New Kensington	Dispatch	(e)	5,030	.03*
35,000	75,000	1924	Norristown	Register	(e)	4,601	.04
		1799		Times-Herald	(e)	12,978	.07
23,934	100,000	1882	Oil City	Blizzard	(e)	3,554	.018
		1871		Derrick	(m)	7,613	.04
2,077,475	3,000,000	1847	Philadelphia	Bulletin	(e)	533,169	.65*
		1829		Inquirer	(m)	282,375	.45*
				Sunday edition	(s)	442,291	.65*
		1925		News (Tab)	(e)	59,024	.20*
		1836		Public Ledger	(m)	114,807
		1914		Eve. Public Ledger	(e)	200,768
				Combined daily	(me)	315,575	.60*
		1902		Sunday edition	(s)	437,024	.65*
				Sunday & Eve.	(se)	.....	.80*
		1870		Record	(m)	149,597	.35*
				Sunday edition	(s)	121,480	.30*
		1908		Star	(e)	.....	.12*
		1925		Sun	(m)	46,298	.15*
		1916		Sunday Item	(s)	.....	.14
		1849		Sunday Transcript	(s)	.....	.125*
4,000	.....	1888	Philipsburg	Journal	(e)	2,250	.011*
10,484	41,450	1889	Phoenixville	Republican	(e)	3,620	.03
988,273	1,800,000	1841	Pittsburgh	Chronicle-Telegraph	(e)	108,194	.21
		1786		Gazette-Times	(m)	101,574	.21
		1901		Sunday edition	(s)	150,443	.21
		1842		Post	(m)	143,739	.23
				Sunday edition	(s)	188,342	.25
		1884		Press	(e)	183,495	.28
				Sunday edition	(s)	243,688	.28
		1906		Sun	(e)	79,860	.20
60,143	.....	1850	Pittston	Gazette	(e)	.....	.035
17,431	40,000	1887	Pottstown	News	(m)	3,190	.04
25,500	81,500	1825	Pottsville	Journal	(e)	10,397	.03
		1922		Morning Paper	(m)	2,913
		1884		Republican	(e)	12,433
				Combined daily	(me)	15,346	.07
10,311	51,000	1906	Punxsutawney	Spirit	(e)	4,400	.03*
115,000	260,000	1868	Reading	Eagle	(e)	38,475x	.10
		1868		Sunday edition	(s)	27,555x	.10
		1858		Times	(m)	18,768x	.07*
		1923		Tribune	(e)	11,726	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,726	.07*
5,877	.....	1907	Renovo	Record	(e)	1,315	.014*
6,037	22,000	1904	Ridgway	Record	(e)	2,627	.021*
6,967	10,000	1910	St. Marys	Press	(e)	1,312	.021*

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

PENNSYLVANIA—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
8,078	.....	1917	Sayre	Times	(e)	4,750	.025
150,000	300,000	1920	Scranton	Dispatch	(s)	.....	.07*
		1867		Republican	(m)	34,620	.19
		1870		Times	(e)	43,230	.12
		1897		Scrantonian	(s)	38,168	.09
22,000	46,000	1886	Shamokin	Dispatch	(e)	4,858	.029
		1887		Herald	(e)	.....	.014
		1893		News	(e)	4,264	.029
25,000	50,000	1909	Sharon	Herald	(e)	7,236	.036
		1891		News-Telegraph	(e)	6,927	.03
30,000	75,000	1870	Shenandoah	Herald	(e)	5,675	.032
5,278	23,000	1894	Stroudsburg	Record & Times-Democrat	(e)	4,217	...
4,855	.....	1913	East Stroudsburg	Press	(m)	3,142	...
				Combined daily	(me)	7,339	.045
17,500	50,000	1872	Sunbury	Daily	(e)	5,120	.03*
		1892		Item	(e)	5,224	.03*
6,000	.....	1886	Susquehanna	Transcript	(e)	1,200	.014
15,000	40,000	1873	Tamaqua	Courier	(e)	4,110	.029
10,061	45,000	1904	Tarentum	Valley News	(e)	5,120	.025
8,579	20,000	1865	Titusville	Herald	(m)	4,966	.029
5,000	35,000	1879	Towanda	Review	(m)	5,574	.04
9,084	.....	1887	Tyrone	Herald	(e)	2,950	.018
15,692	100,000	1907	Uniontown	Herald	(m)	10,396	...
		1900		Genius	(e)	7,285	...
				Combined daily	(me)	17,681	.035
		1888		News Standard	(e)	5,532	.025
14,756	40,000	1889	Warren	Mirror	(m)	3,964	...
		1900		Times	(e)	4,504	...
				Combined daily	(me)	8,468	.042
		1923		Tribune	(e)	.....	.025
25,000	189,000	1871	Washington	Observer	(m)	11,171	...
		1808		Reporter	(e)	6,418	...
				Combined daily	(me)	17,589	.05
10,000	.....	1919	Waynesboro	Press	(e)	.....	.015
		1893		Record-Herald	(e)	3,326	.03*
11,717	.....	1872	West Chester	Local News	(e)	11,860	.04
76,951	230,000	1909	Wilkes Barre	News	(e)	13,878	.035
		1832		Record	(m)	23,020	.05*
		1906		Sunday Independent	(s)	18,777	.06*
		.....		Sunday Telegram	(s)	.....	.04*
		1879		Times-Leader	(e)	26,204	.06
45,000	200,000	1801	Williamsport	Gazette & Bulletin	(m)	10,008	...
		1872		Sun	(e)	20,099	...
				Combined daily	(me)	30,107	.09*
47,512	144,521	1876	York	Dispatch	(e)	19,632	.05*
		1795		Gazette & Daily	(m)	19,468	.07*

RHODE ISLAND

4,500	20,000	1892	Arctic	Pawtucket Valley Times	(e)	2,815	.03*
30,255	.....	1891	Newport	Herald	(m)	3,429	.07*
		1846		News	(e)	6,271	.02*
95,163	130,000	1885	Pawtucket	Times	(e)	27,849x	.07
303,837	770,000	1918	Providence	News	(e)	28,974x	.08*
		1863		Bulletin	(e)	69,839x	.18*
		1829		Journal	(m)	35,260x	.11*
		1885		Sunday edition	(s)	71,163x	.18*
				Combined daily	(me)	105,099x	.25*
		1906		Tribune	(e)	21,961x	.09
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,740x	.09
14,597	42,996	1893	Westerly	Sun	(e)	4,896x	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,950x	.03*
49,529	100,000	1892	Woonsocket	Call & Evening Reporter	(e)	14,503	.03*

SOUTH DAKOTA

17,000	125,000	1904	Aberdeen	Morning American	(m)	6,390	...
		1886		Evening News	(e)	4,637	...
				Combined daily	(me)	11,627	.06
		1919		Sunday edition	(s)	9,663	.06
2,403	8,000	1876	Deadwood	Pioneer-Times	(m)	1,750	.03*

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government st ment April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

Haverhill Gazette

HAVERHILL, MASS.

Announces the appointment of

CHAS. H. EDDY CO.

Chicago NEW YORK Boston

National Advertising Representatives

Effective July 1, 1926

Haverhill's manufactured products amount to $95,000,000 yearly. Shoe manufacturing is its principal industry.

The Haverhill Evening Gazette is the only daily in its field embracing approximately 100,000 reader - buyers in its trading territory.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

SOUTH DAKOTA—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
10,196	62,000	1887	Huron	Huronite	(e)	6,500	.04*
6,810	10,500	1894	Lead	Call	(e)	1,340	.024
4,144	13,000	1890	Madison	Leader	(e)	1,585	.016*
		1893		Sentinel	(e)	.....	.021*
10,000	65,300	1883	Mitchell	Republican	(e)	10,203	.050*
3,205	54,000	1889	Pierre	Capital Journal	(e)	1,750	.021*
				Dakotan	(e)	847	.018*
7,459	.....	1885	Rapid City	Journal	(e)	3,100	.03*
31,500	200,000	1885	Sioux Falls	Argus-Leader	(e)	28,280	.08*
		1883		Press	(m)	14,529	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	16,486	.06*
9,400	71,000	1882	Watertown	Public Opinion	(e)	4,993	.04*
5,024	.....	1861	Yankton	Press & Dakota	(e)	4,126	.04*

SOUTH CAROLINA

18,000	150,000	1915	Anderson	Independent & Tribune	(m)	3,726x	.035
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,819x	.035
		1899		Mail	(e)	3,609x	.03*
74,338	285,000	1803	Charleston	News & Courier	(m)	10,425x	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	12,619x	.05*
		1894		Post	(e)	14,737x	.06*
53,000	395,570	1891	Columbia	Record	(e)	12,612x	.05*
		1913		Sunday edition	(s)	12,152x	.05*
		1891		State	(m)	23,186	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	24,870	.07*
10,968	200,000	1923	Florence	News-Review	(m)	5,600	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,600	.03
64,000	140,000	1874	Greenville	News	(m)	21,648	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	22,856	.07
		1902		Piedmont	(e)	10,281	.04*
8,703	.....	1911	Greenwood	Index-Journal	(e)	4,376	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,376	.03*
8,809	50,000	1911	Rock Hill	Herald	(e)	3,168	.025*
28,196	250,000	1890	Spartanburg	Herald	(m)	6,860	...
		1844		Journal	(e)	4,613	...
				Combined daily	(me)	11,473	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	9,856	.05*
9,508	.....	1894	Sumter	Item	(e)	.....	.018
6,141	.....	1850	Union	Times	(e)	2,630	.021*

TENNESSEE

24,190	450,000	1888	Chattanooga	News	(e)	28,786	.08*
		1869		Times	(m)	29,184	.10*
				Sunday edition	(s)	28,942	.10*
8,110	45,000	1808	Clarksville	Leaf-Chronicle	(e)	3,317	.025*
6,522	.....	1923	Cleveland	Banner	(e)	.....	.021*
5,526	.....	1898	Columbia	Herald	(e)	2,160	.021
3,775	32,840	1918	Greeneville	Democrat-Sun	(e)	3,890	.032*
18,860	.....	1878	Jackson	Sun	(e)	6,729	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,729	.03

TENNESSEE—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
19,074	65,000	1922	Johnson City	Chronicle	(m)	3,755	...
		1910		Staff-News	(e)	3,881	...
				Combined daily	(me)	7,636	.05*
		1921		Sunday edition	(m)	7,014	.05*
10,000	.....	1917	Kingsport	Times	(e)	3,412	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,412	.03*
119,904	425,000	1921	Knoxville	News	(e)	16,432	.04*
		1898		Journal	(m)	29,581	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	26,399	.07
		1885		Sentinel	(e)	26,885	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	26,793	.07
211,056	676,626	1840	Memphis	Commercial-Appeal	(m)	100,934	.18*
				Sunday edition	(s)	129,219	.21*
		1880		News-Scimitar	(e)	55,301	.15
		1922		Sunday edition	(m)	47,791	.16
		1906		Press	(e)	44,981	.09*
5,881	.....	1916	Morristown	Gazette-Mail	(e)	2,656	.032*
143,692	650,000	1875	Nashville	Banner	(e)	54,519x	.11
				Sunday edition	(s)	56,007x	.12
		1812		Tennessean	(m)	38,656x	.12
				Tennessean	(e)	24,915x	...
				Combined daily	(me)	63,571x	.11*
				Sunday edition	(s)	39,569x	.11*

TEXAS

22,500	60,000	1895	Abilene	Reporter	(e)	7,695	.045*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,712	.045*
23,000	50,000	1909	Amarillo	News	(m)	9,481	...
				Globe	(e)	5,396	...
		1924		Combined Daily	(me)	14,877	.08*
		1926		Sunday News-Globe	(s)	15,804	.08*
3,176	.....	1901	Athens	Review	(e)	720	.021
40,000	101,103	1914	Austin	American	(m)	12,423x	...
		1871		Statesman	(e)	6,746x	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	19,169x	.09*
				Sunday edition	(s)	19,153x	.09*
2,767	.....	1906	Ballinger	Ledger	(e)	863	.008*
3,454	.....	1904	Bay City	Tribune	(e)	.....	.018*
52,548	131,862	1878	Beaumont	Enterprise	(m)	20,423	...
				Journal	(e)	10,406	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	30,829	.11*
				Enterprise	(s)	29,413	.10*
				Eve. & Sunday	(es)	.....	.12*
6,008	.....	1898	Bonham	Favorite	(e)	1,681	.018*
1,846	.....	1920	Breckenridge	American	(e)	2,150	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,150	.03*
5,006	.....	1875	Brenham	Banner-Press	(e)	1,029	.014*
16,000	.....	1892	Brownsville	Herald	(e)	3,454	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,454	.03

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND POWER AND PAPER CO., Ltd.

MANUFACTURERS OF

Clean White Newsprint

PARTICULARLY ADAPTED TO THE NEED OF THOSE PUBLISHERS WHO TAKE PRIDE IN A WELL PRINTED NEWSPAPER

DAILY CAPACITY

400 TONS

THE BOWATER PAPER CO., Inc.

342 Madison Avenue, New York

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS FOR THE U. S. A.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF UNITED STATES WITH CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

TEXAS—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
8,233	40,000	1901	Brownwood	Banner-Bulletin	(e)	2,158	.025*
6,307	.....	1876	Bryan	Eagle	(e)	1,280	.018*
7,422	35,000	1920	Cisco	News	(e)	1,885	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,885	.025*
12,820	35,000	1904	Cleburne	Review	(m)	3,338	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,338	.025*
		1924		Times	(e)	.....	.021*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.021*
5,600	40,000	1914	Commerce	Journal	(e)	.....	.014*
16,000	40,000	1883	Corpus Christi	Corpus Christi Caller	(m)	2,713	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,965	.03
		1910		Times	(e)	4,082	.025
22,000	100,000	1893	Corsicana	Sun	(e)	4,119	.029*
3,671	25,000	1894	Cuero	Record	(e)	720	.018*
				Sunday edition	(s)	720	.018*
232,000	325,000	1906	Dallas	Dispatch	(e)	32,452	.08
		1914		Journal	(e)	39,383	.11
		1885		News	(m)	73,774	.17
				Combined Daily	(me)	113,157	.20
				Sunday edition	(s)	96,783	.21
		1879		Times-Herald	(e)	60,483	.14
				Sunday edition	(s)	60,483	.14
17,065	23,000	1889	Denison	Herald	(e)	5,063	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,063	.03
9,500	35,355	1903	Denton	Record-Chronicle	(e)	2,619	.025
5,765	.....	1915	Eagle Pass	Guide	(e)	900	.018*
9,368	.....	1923	Eastland	Telegram	(e)	1,789	.02*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,789	.02*
				Tribune	(e)	.....	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.025*
104,928	399,429	1880	El Paso	Herald	(e)	20,405	...
		1879		Times	(m)	15,184	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	35,589	.12*
				Sunday edition	(s)	19,923	.12*
		1922		Post	(e)	12,015	.045*
7,224	.....	1892	Ennis	News	(e)	1,225	.018*
155,000	185,000	....	Fort Worth	Live Stock Reporter	(e)	.....	.035
		1921		Press	(e)	21,846	.06*
		1895		Record-Telegram	(m)	21,453	...
		1906		Star-Telegram	(e)	97,445	....
		1906		Sunday Star-Telegram & Record	(s)	120,717	.27*
				Combined Daily	(me)	118,898	.27
				Sunday Star-Telegram & Record & Morning Record-Telegram	(ms)	.....	.37*
				Sunday Star-Telegram & Record & Evening Star-Telegram	(es)	.....	.44*
(Morning Record-Telegram shows (5) months' figures only.)
8,648	.....	1884	Gainesville	Register	(e)	1,950	.02*
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,950	.035*
53,370	70,000	1842	Galveston	News	(m)	11,107	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,509	.09
		1880		Tribune	(e)	7,718	.05
2,268	.....	1914	Gilmer	Mirror	(e)	608	.015*
3,128	.....	1897	Gonzales	Inquirer	(e)	.....	.011*
12,384	.....	1894	Greenville	Banner	(e)	.....	.03
		1890		Herald	(m)	.....	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.03
6,952	20,000	1896	Hillsboro	Mirror	(e)	1,273	.012*
205,000	300,000	1901	Houston	Chronicle	(e)	76,236	.16
				Sunday edition	(s)	86,162	.18
		1885		Post-Dispatch	(m)	56,977	.14*
				Sunday edition	(s)	63,609	.15*
		1911		Press	(e)	33,287	.09*
3,723	.....	1910	Jacksonville	Progress	(e)	800	.014*
2,107	.....	1904	Lampasas	Leader	(e)	405	.009
22,710	.....	1883	Laredo	Times	(e)	.....	.018*
5,713	25,000	1923	Longview	News	(e)	3,046	.029*
8,000	.....	1923	Lubbock	Avalanche	(m)	.....	.029*
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.036*
		1925		Journal	(e)	4,356	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,356	.025*
4,878	.....	1915	Lufkin	News	(e)	.....	.013
5,331	.....	1921	McAllen	Press	(e)	.....	.018
4,310	.....	1901	Marlin	Democrat	(e)	.....	.021*
14,271	.....	1877	Marshall	Messenger	(e)	2,375	...
		1919		News	(m)	3,440	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	5,815	.045*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,440	.045*
6,677	.....	1897	McKinney	Courier-Gazette	(e)	1,650	.018*
3,105	.....	1913	Mart	Herald	(e)	475	.014*
10,132	.....	1899	Mexia	News	(e)	6,115	.042*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,115	.042*
7,890	.....	1900	Mineral Wells	Index	(e)	1,061	.017*
4,099	.....	1906	Mt. Pleasant	Times	(e)	.....	.011
3,546	.....	1899	Nacogdoches	Sentinel	(e)	1,100	.018*
5,060	.....	1895	Navasota	Examiner	(e)	750	.014*
9,212	.....	1902	Orange	Leader	(e)	2,180	.025*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,180	.025*
11,039	.....	1901	Palestine	Herald	(e)	1,481	.014*
		1898		Visitor	(e)	.....	.018*
15,040	.....	1887	Paris	Dinner Horn	(e)	(Free)	.057*
		1869		News	(m)	4,730	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,730	.03*
41,618	.....	1901	Port Arthur	News	(e)	7,449	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,640	.04*
16,205	.....	1919	Ranger	Times	(e)	3,205	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,205	.03*
10,000	.....	1884	San Angelo	Standard	(e)	4,742	.027*
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,126	.03*
201,000	.....	1865	San Antonio	Express	(m)	33,055x	.12
		1918		News	(e)	36,027x	.11
				Combined Daily	(me)	69,082x	.20
				Sunday edition	(s)	57,649x	.20
				Sunday Express-News	(es)	.....	.24
		1881		Light	(e)	34,454x	.10
				Sunday edition	(s)	55,671x	.12
5,070	.....	....	San Benito	Light	(e)	(New Daily)	.021*
15,031	72,000	1879	Sherman	Democrat	(e)	4,515	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,515	.03*
5,558	.....	1888	Sulphur Springs	News-Telegram	(e)	1,375	.012
				Sunday edition	(s)	1,375	.012
4,307	.....	1915	Sweetwater	Reporter	(e)	2,300	.021*
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,300	.021*
5,965	50,000	1903	Taylor	Democrat	(e)	.....	.018*
		1913		Press	(e)	.....	.02

TEXAS—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,00 Line Adv. R
11,033	.....	1907	Temple	Telegram	(e)	6,824	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,824	.05
8,349	.....	1916	Terrell	Tribune	(e)	3,492	.02
30,609	35,000	1876	Texarkana	Gazette	(m)	9,428	.06
				Sunday edition	(s)	9,870	.06
(Figure effective from March 7, 1926 to March 31, 1926. Consolidation of the Four States Pr Texarkana Journal, and Texarkanian took effect on March 7, 1926.)
12,085	.....	1926	Tyler	American	(m)	(New Daily)	.02
				Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.02
1,526	.....	1902	Timpson	Times	(e)	.....	.01
12,085	.....	1889	Tyler	Courier-Times	(e)	2,633	.02
				Sunday edition	(s)	2,633	.02
7,500	.....	1926	Vernon	Record	(e)	2,643	.03
5,957	.....	1897	Victoria	Advocate	(e)	960	.01
				Sunday edition	(s)	960	.01
57,210	.....	1911	Waco	News-Tribune	(m)	20,138x	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	20,226x	.07
		1892		Times-Herald	(e)	13,916	.08
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,916	.08
7,958	55,700	1893	Waxahachie	Light	(e)	2,478	.03
6,203	.....	1900	Weatherford	Herald	(e)	1,325	.01
51,500	141,688	1919	Wichita Falls	Record News	(m)	15,398x	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	15,185x	.05
		1907		Times	(e)	18,060x	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	18,393x	.07
6,184	.....	1897	Yoakum	Herald	(e)	1,240	.01
				Times	(m)	745	.01
				Sunday edition	(s)	745	.01

UTAH

9,439	30,000	1878	Logan	Journal	(e)	1,931	.02
42,000	60,000	1870	Ogden	Standard-Examiner	(e)	10,950	.06
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,870	.06
10,303	40,000	1885	Provo	Herald	(e)	3,225	.02
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,500	.03
125,000	225,000	1850	Salt Lake City	Deseret News	(e)	28,212	.08
		1902		Telegram	(e)	21,180	.08
				Sunday edition	(s)	25,817	.09
		1871		Tribune	(m)	42,925	.09
				Sunday edition	(s)	71,592	.13

VERMONT

10,008	60,000	1897	Barre	Times	(e)	7,112	.03
9,982	.....	1903	Bennington	Banner	(e)	3,144	.02
8,332	30,000	1913	Brattleboro	Reformer	(e)	3,390	.01
26,000	65,000	1828	Burlington	Free Press	(m)	13,071	.05
		1894		News	(e)	6,366	.04
7,125	.....	1893	Montpelier	Argus	(e)	3,461	.01
16,000	56,000	1861	Rutland	Herald	(m)	11,234	.04
		1899		News	(e)	.....	.01
7,582	.....	1861	St. Albans	Messenger	(e)	3,086	.01
8,701	30,000	1837	Johnsbury	Caledonian-Record	(e)	4,055	.02

VIRGINIA

18,000	.....	1784	Alexandria	Gazette	(e)	4,395	.03
22,250	135,000	1870	Bristol	Herald-Courier	(m)	8,315	..
		1925		News-Bulletin	(e)	4,231	..
				Combined Daily	(me)	12,546	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,098	..
				M. or E. and Sunday	(ds)	.....	.07
10,688	.....	1892	Charlottesville	Progress	(e)	5,806	.02
6,500	38,700	1905	Clifton Forge	Review	(e)	1,389	.01
5,623	.....	1914	Covington	Virginian	(e)	2,190	.02
30,557	65,000	1847	Danville	Register	(m)	4,303	..
		1899		Bee	(e)	10,010	..
				Combined Daily	(me)	14,313	.06
		1847		Sunday edition	(s)	9,055	..
				Eve. & Sunday	(es)	.....	.07
5,882	.....	1895	Fredericksburg	Star	(e)	2,115	.01
6,000	80,000	1896	Harrisonburg	News-Record	(m)	7,465	.03
40,000	151,159	1886	Lynchburg	Advance	(e)	6,165	..
				News	(m)	8,973	..
				Combined Daily	(me)	15,138	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,477	.05
35,596	200,000	1896	Newport News	Press	(m)	4,887	..
				Times-Herald	(e)	7,968	..
				Combined Daily	(me)	12,855	.05
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,571	.05
225,000	275,000	1865	Norfolk	Virginian-Pilot	(m)	39,671	.09
				Sunday edition	(s)	42,574	.11
		1876		Ledger-Dispatch	(e)	41,550	.10
31,002	.....	1865	Petersburg	Progress-Index	(e)	9,001	.04
				Sunday edition	(s)	9,001	.05
54,387	.....	1894	Portsmouth	Star	(e)	6,243	.04
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,243	.04
7,026	140,000	1926	Pulaski	Southwest Times	(e)	(New Daily)	.02
				Sunday edition	(s)	(New Daily)	.02
190,000	200,000	1903	Richmond	News-Leader	(e)	62,291x	.16
		1850		Times-Dispatch	(m)	48,616x	.11
				Sunday edition	(s)	54,503x	.14
55,000	114,000	1886	Roanoke	Times	(m)	12,944	..
				World-News	(e)	12,828	..
				Combined Daily	(me)	25,772	.08
				Sunday edition	(s)	16,076	.07
				Eve. & Sunday	(es)	.....	.09
12,000	50,000	1904	Staunton	Leader	(e)	2,094	..
				News-Leader	(m)	4,761	..
				Combined Daily	(me)	6,855	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,120	.03
17,400	.....	1923	Suffolk	News	(e)	2,803	.02
7,400	35,000	1896	Winchester	Star	(e)	4,337	.02

WASHINGTON

18,656	45,000	1901	Aberdeen	World	(e)	6,854x	.04
25,570	.....	1922	Bellingham	American	(e)	4,352	.03
		1890		Herald	(e)	14,841	.03
		1884		Reveille	(m)	8,066	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,066	.03
8,918	.....	1901	Bremerton	News-Searchlight	(e)	3,124	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,124	.03
8,500	22,000	1910	Centralia	Chronicle	(e)	3,435x	.05
5,000	18,000	1909	Ellensburg	Record	(e)	2,126x	.02
35,000	67,498	1898	Everett	Herald	(e)	14,150x	.04
		1901		News	(e)	4,022	.03
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,022	.03

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILIES OF U. S.—CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

WASHINGTON—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
10,058	.....	1889	Hoquiam	Washingtonian	(m)	4,006	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	4,006	.035*
8,500	.....	1925	Kelso	Kelsonian-Tribune	(e)	1,750	.03*
13,800	18,000	1923	Longview	News	(e)	4,630	.03*
4,500	.....	1922	Mount Vernon	Herald	(e)	3,015	.029*
12,000	18,000	1891	Olympia	Olympian	(m)	1,931	.03*
				Recorder	(e)	2,457	.03*
				Combined Daily	(me)	4,388	.045*
				Olympian-Recorder	(s)	3,473	.035*
10,000	15,000	1916	Port Angeles	News	(e)	3,800	.035*
380,000	450,000	1893	Seattle	Journal of Commerce	(m)	.....	.07
		1865		Post-Intelligencer	(m)	84,368x	.20
				Sunday edition	(s)	148,841x	.30
		1899		Star	(e)	84,039x	.20*
		1885		Times	(e)	79,019x	.22*
		1902		Sunday edition	(s)	104,299x	.27*
		1900		Union Record	(e)	28,301	.12*
125,064	350,000	1886	Spokane	Chronicle	(e)	39,168x	.115
		1901		Press	(e)	15,477	.045*
		1884		Spokesman Review	(m)	48,857x	.13
				Sunday edition	(s)	56,859x	.15
104,480	160,000	1883	Tacoma	Ledger	(m)	14,875	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	29,758	.09*
		1907		News-Tribune	(e)	32,725	.09*
		1903		Times	(e)	21,243	.07*
15,000	40,000	1891	Vancouver	Columbian	(e)	3,701x	.035*
18,087	35,000	1906	Walla Walla	Bulletin	(e)	5,733	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	5,560	.04*
This rate effective after Oct. 31, 1926—rate now .035*)
				Union	(m)	3,337	.029*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,362	.029*
10,000	32,000	1905	Wenatchee	World	(e)	8,200x	.03*
20,000	65,000	1905	Yakima	Herald	(m)	6,020	.035*
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,491	.035*
		1902		Republic	(e)	6,870	.035*
				Combined Daily	(me)	12,890	.06*

WEST VIRGINIA

7,054	.....	1924	Beckley	Post-Herald	(m)	6,528	.035*
23,686	210,000	1893	Bluefield	Telegraph	(m)	12,085	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	16,944	.06*
60,000	323,325	1887	Charleston	Gazette	(m)	18,766	.07*
				Sunday edition	(s)	24,168	.08*
		1883		Mail	(e)	14,100	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	14,100	.06*
33,443	178,000	1910	Clarksburg	Exponent	(m)	11,747	.045*
				Sunday edition	(s)	12,616	.045*
		1861		Telegram	(e)	9,097	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,479	.045*
7,000	.....	1907	Elkins	Inter-Mountain	(e)	.....	.025*
23,000	50,000	1900	Fairmont	Times	(m)	6,570	.03
		1918		Sunday edition	(s)	8,458	.03
		1845		West Virginian	(e)	7,285	.035*
8,517	85,000	1903	Grafton	Sentinel	(e)	2,608	.025
5,000	38,000	1902	Hinton	News	(e)	1,475	.02*
65,000	100,000	1889	Huntington	Advertiser	(e)	12,536	.05*
				Sunday edition	(s)	11,968	.05*
		1909		Herald-Dispatch	(m)	17,274	.06
		1909		Sunday edition	(s)	17,506	.06
6,003	.....	1912	Keyser	Mineral Daily News	(e)	.....	.018*
14,922	40,000	1907	Martinsburg	Journal	(e)	5,010	.035*
18,000	40,000	1897	Morgantown	New Dominion	(m)	6,279	.03*
		1899		Post	(e)	4,593	.022
11,000	20,000	1891	Moundsville	Echo	(e)	3,206	.02*
		1910		Journal	(e)	.....	.011*
24,050	45,000	1898	Parkersburg	News	(m)	7,526	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	8,866	.03*
		1889		Sentinel	(e)	9,093	.035
3,059	5,559	1921	Point Pleasant	Register	(e)	.....	.021*
3,500	15,000	1895	Sistersville	Review	(e)	.....	.021*
7,110	75,000	1923	Welch	News	(e)	4,536	.025
4,918	.....	1897	Wellsburg	Herald	(e)	1,180	.02*
65,000	170,000	1852	Wheeling	Intelligencer	(m)	11,755	.05
		1890		News	(e)	15,174	.07
				Sunday edition	(s)	19,992	.09
				Combined Daily	(me)	26,929	.095
		1863		Register	(m)	10,104	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	10,361	.045*
		1902		Telegraph	(e)	.....	.036
6,819	38,560	1890	Williamson	News	(e)	3,710	.03*

WISCONSIN

8,451	25,000	1905	Antigo	Journal	(e)	3,993	.025
23,000	70,000	1852	Appleton	Post-Crescent	(e)	13,152	.05
11,334	.....	1883	Ashland	Press	(e)	2,650	.018
5,538	.....	1894	Baraboo	News	(e)	2,675	.021*
		1895		Republic	(e)	.....	.018*
7,992	.....	1911	Beaver Dam	Citizen	(e)	2,742	.021*
25,000	50,000	1885	Beloit	News	(e)	9,376	.05
4,400	.....	1881	Berlin	Journal	(e)	1,400	.022
9,500	37,000	1894	Chippewa Falls	Herald	(e)	3,368	.025*
		1887		Telegram	(e)	3,369	.04*
22,000	125,000	1881	Eau Claire	Leader	(m)	7,855	.025
		1894		Telegram	(e)	3,857	.022
				Combined Daily	(me)	11,712	.045
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,938	.045
30,000	80,000	1870	Fond du Lac	Commonwealth	(e)	6,937	.04*
		1883		Reporter	(e)	6,476	.04*
24,700	75,000	1915	Green Bay	Press-Gazette	(e)	14,975	.055
21,952	80,000	1845	Janesville	Gazette	(e)	12,311	.055
48,000	51,500	1894	Kenosha	News	(e)	10,206	.05
34,000	175,000	1854	La Crosse	Tribune & Leader Press	(e)	13,612	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	13,140	.06*
48,000	200,000	1917	Madison	Capital Times	(e)	22,379	.07*
		1839		State Journal	(e)	21,697	.07*
		1912		Sunday edition	(s)	21,302	.07*
24,000	75,000	1895	Manitowoc	Herald-News	(e)	6,832	.04
		1920		Times	(e)	5,131	.025
13,610	40,000	1893	Marinette	Eagle-Star	(e)	4,591	.03
7,394	25,000	1921	Marshfield	News	(e)	2,905	.029*
7,214	.....	1894	Menasha	Record	(e)	1,824	.011
8,068	.....	1908	Merrill	Herald	(e)	3,458	.025
77,757	1,044,367	1882	Milwaukee	Journal	(e)	141,895	.21
		1911		Sunday edition	(s)	145,836	.21
		1911		Leader	(e)	49,702	.12
		1837		Sentinel	(m)	60,945	.17
		1879		Sunday Sentinel & Milwaukee Telegram	(s)	172,206	.32
		1847		Wisconsin News	(e)	94,308	.22*
5,000	21,568	1878	Monroe	Journal	(e)	665	.014*
		1898		Times	(e)	2,777	.035
15,000	20,000	1880	Neenah	News-Times	(e)	1,946	.019
38,478	100,000	1868	Oshkosh	Northwestern	(e)	14,713	.06
5,582	35,000	1850	Portage	Register-Democrat	(e)	1,800	.021*

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement at April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" when average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

ILLINOIS

Leads in the World's greatest Industries—

Among the first few industries, considered from the standpoint of the value of products manufactured, is the packing industry. Illinois is the centre for this great industry. Agricultural machinery is another industry whose greatest plants are located in Illinois.

Besides these industries Illinois obtains its wealth from productive mines and hundreds of industries which keep things humming day after day all year 'round.

Illinois is a wonderful State for you to advertise in. Let the daily papers carry the message of your product to its progressive citizens.

	Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon-News (E)	18,694	.06	.06
†Chicago Herald & Examiner (M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner (S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
†Chicago Daily Journal (E)	123,771	.26	.24
Evanston News Index (E)	6,729	.04	.04
Freeport Journal-Standard (E)	9,613	.045	.045
Joliet Herald News (E)	19,591	.06	.06
††Mattoon Journal Gazette (E)	5,712	.03	.03
Moline Dispatch (E)	11,680	.045	.045
Monmouth Daily Review Atlas (E)	5,416	.035	.035
Peoria Star (S) 22,497 (E)	29,874	.075	.06
Rock Island Argus (E)	11,248	.045	.045
Waukegan Daily Sun (E)	5,213	.03	.03

A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926
††Government Statement, September 30, 1925

ENGLISH LANGUAGE DAILIES OF U. S.—CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

WISCONSIN—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
64,528	84,946	1881	Racine	Journal-News	(e)	12,011	.05
		1883		Times-Call	(e)	10,081	.05
6,654	.....	1917	Rhinelander	News	(e)	1,642	.025
37,000	209,085	1887	Sheboygan	Press	(e)	13,530x	.055
11,370	50,000	1873	Stevens Point	Journal	(e)	6,116	.035*
5,101	15,000	1906	Stoughton	Courier-Hub	(e)	1,896	.025*
40,000	140,000	1890	Superior	Telegram	(e)	20,223	.07
9,299	50,000	1895	Watertown	Times	(e)	3,419	.026
12,558	.....	1919	Waukesha	Freeman	(e)	2,490	.022
22,062	50,000	1907	Wausau	Record-Herald	(e)	8,230	.04*
7,243	20,000	1914	Wisconsin Rapids	Tribune	(e)	4,618	.03

WYOMING

32,276	45,000	1919	Casper	Herald	(m)	5,925	...
		1916		Tribune	(e)	6,200	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	12,125	.06*
				Sunday edition	(s)	6,211	.06*
16,000	26,000	1895	Cheyenne	Wyo. State Tribune	(s)	6,675	.05*
		1867		State Leader	(s)	6,904	.05*
2,133	.....	1918	Lander	Post	(e)	.....	.021
3,565	.....	1886	Laramie	Republican & Boomerang	(e)	2,264	.03
12,700	25,000	1906	Sheridan	Post-Enterprise	(e)	3,490	.04*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,673	.04*

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; Government statement April 1 figures, light-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF CANADA—CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

Circulations Taken from Publishers' Statements to A. B. C. for Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, or on Sworn Statements—Ratio Effective as of June 1, 1926, on 5,000 Lines General Advertising Contracts.

ALBERTA

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000-Line Adv. Rate
67,500	200,000	1902	Calgary	Albertan	(m)	12,717	.055
		1883		Herald	(e)	24,692	.08*
65,378	300,000	1880	Edmonton	Bulletin	(e)	13,607	.05*
			(Circulation figures quoted are for 3 mos. period)
		1903		Journal	(e)	26,563	.08
11,165	55,000	1907	Lethbridge	Herald	(e)	6,081	.03*
9,575	40,000	1910	Medicine Hat	News	(e)	1,797	.015*

BRITISH COLUMBIA

9,350	.....	1874	Nanaimo	Free Press	(e)	.....	.02
		1900		Herald	(m)	.....	.02
				Sunday edition	(s)	.....	.02
6,000	50,000	1902	Nelson	News	(m)	3,766x	.025*
14,440	.....	1860	New Westminster	British Columbia	(e)	.....	.029*
5,500	12,000	1907	Prince Rupert	Empire	(e)	.....	.018*
		1909		News	(e)	1,308x	.025
120,000	250,000	1898	Vancouver	Province	(e)	67,232	.14*
		1925		Sunday edition	(s)	72,103	.15*
	Feb. 1,	1926		Star	(m)	13,653	.08*
			(Figures from Feb. 1, 1926, to March 31, 1926.)
		1886		Sun	(e)	57,446	.012*
			(Figures from Feb. 1, 1926, to March 31, 1926.)
34,000	75,000	1858	Victoria	Colonist	(m)	10,091x	.055*
				Sunday edition	(s)	12,445x	.055*
		1881		Times	(e)	8,924x	.05*

MANITOBA

16,776	.....	1883	Brandon	Sun	(e)	4,446	.025*
6,748	.....	1895	Portage La Prairie	Graphic	(e)	1,525	.016*
178,364	240,000	1874	Winnipeg	Free-Press	(m)	22,093	...
		1889		Free Press Bulletin	(e)	44,222	....
				Combined daily	(me)	66,315	.15*
		1890		Tribune	(e)	37,714	.10*

NEW BRUNSWICK

9,000	.....	1880	Fredericton	Gleaner	(e)	.....	.025
		....		Mail	(e)	.....	.011
20,000	.....	1868	Moncton	Times	(m)	5,301	.02
		1882		Transcript	(e)	.....	.02
55,000	388,092	....	St. John	Globe	(e)	8,547	.035
		1904		Times-Star	(e)	16,448	...
		1868		Telegraph-Journal	(m)	17,025	...
				Combined daily	(me)	33,473	.10

NOVA SCOTIA

9,998	.....	....	Amherst	News	(e)	.....	.012
20,000	.....	1901	Glace Bay	Gazette	(e)	.....	.03
70,333	....	1844	Halifax	Chronicle	(m)	12,566	...
		1873		Echo	(e)	7,998	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	20,564	.09*
		1875		Herald	(m)	17,117	...
		1878		Mail	(e)	15,296	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	32,413	.10*
8,974	20,000	1910	New Glasgow	News	(e)	3,000	.0125
22,527	.....	1900	Sydney	Post	(m)	2,361	...
		1907		Evening edition	(e)	2,168	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	4,529	.025
.....	.....	1898	Truro	News	(e)	.....	.007

ONTARIO

12,163	.....	1867	Belleville	Intelligencer	(e)	.....	.02
		1870		Ontario	(e)	.....	.02
30,000	51,000	1853	Brantford	Expositor	(e)	9,890	.04
10,000	50,000	1820	Brockville	Recorder & Times	(e)	4,320x	.02
14,118	59,000	1890	Chatham	News	(e)	6,318x	.03
22,339	36,000	1893	Ft. William	Times-Journal	(e)	5,758x	.025
19,000	32,000	1896	Galt	Reporter	(e)	5,008x	.0275
18,875	30,000	1867	Guelph	Mercury	(e)	5,105	.03
120,000	150,000	1888	Hamilton	Herald	(e)	13,532	.06
		1846		Spectator	(e)	35,929	.09

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF CANADA—CIRCULATIONS AND RATES

ONTARIO—Continued

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Net Paid Circulation	5,000 Line Adv. R
27,000	45,000	1849	Kingston	British Whig	(e)	8,070x	.04
		1810		Standard	(e)	7,547x	.04
28,000	50,000	1877	Kitchener	Record	(e)	8,692	.03
8,000	20,000	1895	Lindsay	Post	(e)	2,746x	.02
62,000	350,000	1914	London	Advertiser	(m)	15,990	...
		1863		Evening edition	(e)	5,353	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	21,343	.06
		1849		Free Press	(m)	24,598	...
				Evening edition	(e)	14,314	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	38,912	.09
14,695	.....	1879	Niagara Falls	Review	(e)	3,908	.017
18,000	30,000	1925	Oshawa	Reformer	(e)	3,269x	.02
140,000	280,000	1844	Ottawa	Citizen	(m)	7,121x	...
				Evening edition	(e)	22,336x	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	29,457x	.08*
		1913		Le Droit	(e)	9,670x	.04
		1917		Journal Dailies	(m)	6,087x	...
				Evening edition	(e)	23,773x	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	29,860x	.08*
12,321	60,000	1922	Owens Sound	Sun-Times	(e)	.....	.03
21,000	33,000	1884	Petersborough	Examiner	(e)	7,195x	.03
16,000	36,000	1900	Port Arthur	News-Chronicle	(e)	4,139	.025
.....	.....	....	Port Hope	Guide	(e)	.....	.008
22,052	50,000	1891	St. Catherines	Standard	(e)	9,536	.04
62,000	350,000	1914	St. Thomas	Times-Journal	(e)	8,457x	.035
19,500	45,000	1917	Sarnia	Canadian Observer	(e)	5,453	.035
21,800	24,500	1912	Sault Ste. Marie	Star	(e)	5,136	.03
18,425	50,000	1887	Stratford	Beacon-Herald	(e)	6,467x	.027
542,187	750,000	1844	Toronto	Globe	(m)	90,336	.22
		1872		Mail & Empire	(m)	108,538	.21
		1892		Star	(e)	134,542	.20
		1910		Sunday edition	(s)	186,706	.28
		1876		Telegram	(e)	113,271	.20
85,000	145,000	1918	Windsor	Border Cities Star	(e)	27,124	.08*
15,680	40,000	1886	Woodstock—Ingersoll	Sentinel-Review	(e)	6,020	.025

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

12,350	88,000	1891	Charlottetown	Guardian	(m)	5,303	.03
		1851		Patriot	(e)	3,303	.02

QUEBEC

10,470	.....	1878	Levis	Quotidien (Le)	(e)	.....	.015
836,304	979,027	1903	Montreal	Le Canada	(m)	8,830x	.07
		1910		Le Devoir	(e)	14,334x	.06
		1778		Gazette	(m)	30,917x	.09
		1811		Herald	(e)	10,047x	.055
		1878		La Patrie	(e)	24,919x	.09
				Saturday edition (Sat)		51,610x	.09
		1884		La Presse	(e)	159,003x	.25
				Saturday edition (Sat)		176,606x	.25
		1869		Star	(e)	112,121x	.18
164,607	216,281	1907	Quebec	L'Action Catholique	(e)	19,349	.07
		1764		Chronicle-Telegraph	(e)	5,078	.04
		1867		Le Evenement	(m)	17,289	.06*
		1896		Le Soleil	(e)	48,930	.12*
25,069	175,000	1897	Sherbrooke	Record	(e)	9,606	.045
		1910		La Tribune	(e)	6,690	.04
30,000	115,000	1920	Three Rivers	Le Nouvelliste	(e)	.....	.04*

SASKATCHEWAN

21,000	100,000	1923	Moose Jaw	Herald	(m)	2,901	...
		1889		Times	(e)	4,186	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	7,087	.05*
8,000	50,000	1911	Prince Albert	Herald	(e)	2,788	.02*
36,000	200,000	1883	Regina	Leader	(m)	22,367	...
		1910		Post	(e)	7,613	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	29,980	.09*
27,000	200,000	1902	Saskatoon	Phoenix	(m)	2,305	...
		1905		Star	(e)	21,887	...
				Combined Daily	(me)	24,192	.08*

NEWFOUNDLAND

40,000	.....	....	St. John	Globe	(e)	.....	.011
		1894		News	(e)	.....	.014
				Telegram	(e)	8,656	.014

Morning newspapers—name in light-face; evening papers—name in bold-face; A. B. C. Publisher's statements, bold-face, followed by an "x" mean average for 3 months; flat rate indicated by an asterisk.

N. Y. PRESS AGENT ASKS WARBURG TO PAY

International Banker Sought Prestige Alleges Walter Hyams in Suit for $7,769.95 to Meet Lunch Bill

Walter Hyams, press agent, filed complaint in New York this week against Felix M. Warburg, international banker, demanding judgment for $7,769.95 in payment for his services at a luncheon given in November, 1922.

The luncheon was for Lord Mountbatten, a relative of King George of England and his wife, Lady Edwina, who were here on their honeymoon.

Hyams asks $7,500 as a fee. The remainder is expenses which he says Warburg guaranteed, as follows: roses for Lady Mountbatten, $154.95; printing, $25; tips, $50; photographs, $30; auto hire, $10.

Hyams further alleges that the purpose of the luncheon was to advance the social prestige and business of Mr. Warburg; that it was ostensibly to be given to newspaper men and that Warburg was to appear merely as an invited gue

Hyams declares in his petition that has operated a newspaper clipping serv for a number of years. He says he w approached Nov. 6 by Warburg w wished him to arrange the luncheon advance the social prestige and busin of the banker. Hyams says the banl impressed upon him the necessity of h ing it appear to the public that the lun eon was to be given to newspaper m of prominence and that, though Warbu was to pay all bills, his name was not appear as the provider of the lunche

Hyams alleges the luncheon was h on Nov. 22, 1922, at 1 o'clock, and lea ing newspaper men attended. Warbu he says, has refused to pay his fee.

Six Point League Directory Ready

The 12th annual directory of adv tisers and advertising agencies in t territory east of Buffalo and Pittsbur will be issued next week by the S Point League, organization of New Yo special representatives. The compi tion was largely in the hands of R. Mulligan, who has handled the work the last six years.

U. S. IS SHUTTING DOOR TO PRESS AGENTS

Department of Agriculture States It Will Not Endorse Food Campaigns in Future—Apple Stunt Fails

The government departments at Washington are shutting their doors to press agents. The Department of Agriculture has ruled that it can no longer endorse campaigns for increased food consumption. The White House has stated that it is asked to approve so many commodities, associations, and "drives" that it must decline to endorse any.

Endorsement of campaigns in the past by the Department of Agriculture has resulted in criticism that it is not the function of a government agency to play the commodity of one set of producers against another. Similar complaints have been made to the Department of Commerce with regard to the extensive publicity given rayon by that establishment. Cotton and wool manufacturers declare that the favorable government "puffs" given rayon are prejudicial to their interests.

Prior to the establishment of the Department of Agriculture policy not to endorse campaigns for increased food consumption, a representative of cold storage interests requested the department to get out a statement urging people to eat more eggs. The cold storage houses were full to overflowing with eggs, and bankruptcy stared many firms in the face unless the commodity could be moved before the beginning of the new laying season.

The department issued a story stating that the per capita consumption of eggs was one-half an egg a day, and urged people to eat the other half. The story was of the box feature type, it was printed by newspapers everywhere, and was credited later with having helped move the surplus stocks of eggs. The cold storage press agent lost no opportunity to inform the public often and voluminously that the Department of Agriculture endorsed cold storage eggs.

On another occasion, the department gave its official approval of an "eat more meat" campaign, whereupon the milk people, the bread people, and the truck crop people raised their voices in protest. Food consumption is inelastic, they said, and endorsement of a campaign to increase consumption of meat is prejudicial to other products. The department then established its policy of treating all food commodities alike by endorsing none.

No government official is immune from attack by the press agent. Greeks bearing commercial gifts march up the White House walks, conspicuously displaying their offerings to tempt the eyes of the newspaper camera men. Should they succeed in having the President pose with the products on the White House steps, they have achieved a free publicity coup.

Mrs. Coolidge recently informed a girls' club in Vermont that she regretted she could not accept an "old-fashioned apple pie" as a gesture to inaugurate National Apple Week, inasmuch as so many requests were received by the White House to endorse campaigns and products of various kinds that a general policy had to be adopted to endorse nothing.

The press agent who engineered the applie pie episode had prepared elaborately to have the pie transported to Washington by members of the club, the delicacy appropriately heralded along the route, and finally, if possible, to have Mrs. Coolidge cut into the pie and even bite into it to the delight of the commercial news photographers. The movie news weeklies would certainly take such an unusual picture.

The press agent managed to have the newspaper correspondents at the White House informed of the refusal to accept the pie, and actually succeeded in making the front page with National Apple Week. Refusal of the offer he considered a bigger story than acceptance.

Sullivan Again Bats for Broun

Frank Sullivan is conducting Heywood Broun's column in the New York World. Broun is on vacation.

Still Gaining!

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS

and

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments of
New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American are combined with offices in
New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
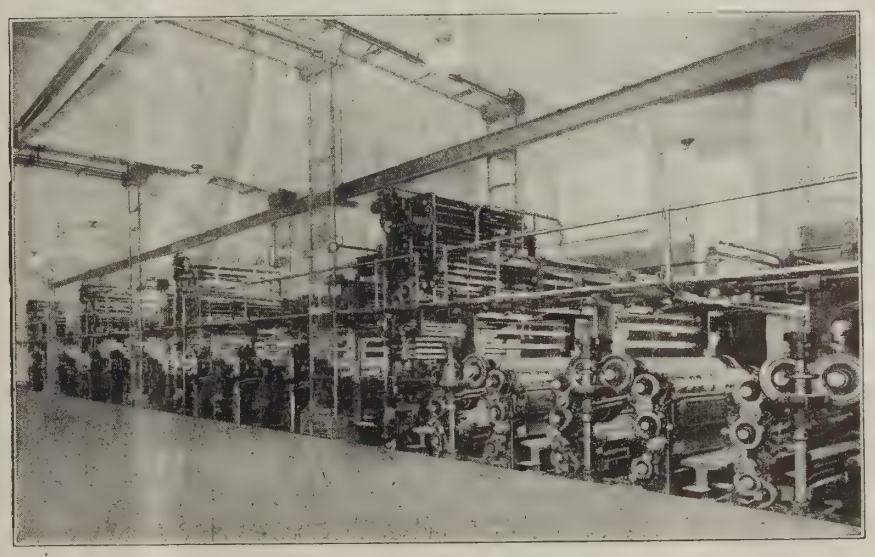
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400



Chicago Office:
F. E. CRAWFORD
Western Manager
913 Hearst Bldg.

Detroit Office:
FRANKLIN PAYNE
Representative
1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

GREETINGS TO THE S.N.P.A.

on the occasion of the largest convention in its history—

THAT the publishers of the prosperous South also exhibit a marked preference for Goss Presses, is a source of never-ending pride to our organization. We invite attention to the following list as representative of those many Southern Newspapers which, we are happy to say, use Goss equipment:

Item, New Orleans
Daily States, New Orleans
Times, Chattanooga, Tenn.
News, Knoxville, Tenn.
Observer, Charlotte, N. C.
Age-Herald, Birmingham
Herald, El Paso, Tex.
Times, Shreveport, La.
Post, Charleston, S. C.
Sentinel, Parkersburg, W. Va.
Gazette, Charleston, W. Va.
News, Greensboro, N. C.
Enquirer-Sun, Columbia, Ga.
News, Wheeling, W. Va.
Post, Morgantown, W. Va.

Courier-Journal, Louisville
Banner, Nashville, Tenn.
Dispatch, Dallas, Tex.
News, Dallas, Tex.
Chronicle, Augusta, Ga.
News, Birmingham
Advertiser, Montgomery, Ala.
Times-World, Roanoke, Va.
Virginian-Pilot, Norfolk, Va.
Sun, Spartansburg, S. C.
Record, Columbia, S. C.
Sun, Jackson, Tenn.
Press, Newport News, Va.
Record News, Wichita Falls, Tex.
Times, St. Petersburg, Fla.
Telegram, Macon, Ga.

Commercial Appeal, Memphis
Press, Memphis
Leader, Lexington, Ky.
Register, Mobile, Ala.
Journal, Beaumont, Tex.
Post, Birmingham
Tribune, Tampa, Fla.
Times, Raleigh, N. C.
Journal, Pensacola, Fla.
Herald-Courier, Bristol, Va.
Enterprise, High Point, N. C.
Chronicle, Johnson City, Tenn.
Telegram, Temple, Tex.
Journal, Winston-Salem, N. C.
Democrat, Tallahassee, Fla.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS COMPANY - CHICAGO

The Goss Printing Press Company of England, Ltd., London

Messers. Edwards Dunlop Company, Ltd., Sydney, Sole Australian Agent

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Virginia Swain Probes the Hearts of Senators—Righthand "Man" of Sir Charles Higham Is Ethel Mannin, Who Has Just Written Her First Novel—Girl Reporter Goes Abroad

VIRGINIA SWAIN, serial and feature writer for NEA Service, Inc., played lobbyist at the hearts of Senators and Congressmen in Washington the other day. Miss Swain, who in private life is Mrs. Philip Duffield Stong, was gathering material for a weekly feature she has been writing for two years now called "The Great American Love Story," in which she tells the romances of celebrities. So far she has probed the hearts of nearly 100 prominent men. She learned the love stories of nine Solons in Washington.

Miss Virginia Swain

Some day, perhaps, one of these Washington love stories will appear in fiction form, for Miss Swain, in addition to writing true story features, is also a serial author. In the fall of 1925 she wrote her first serial for NEA, called "Spinsterhood," or, in some cities "The Love Dodger." Recently she completed a serial of college life, which will appear in September.

Miss Swain was born and went to school in Kansas City, Mo. She taught Latin there for three years after finishing her secondary education, and was graduated from the school of journalism of the University of Missouri in 1923.

Her first newspaper job was as a reporter on the old Des Moines News, now consolidated with the Des Moines Tribune. From July, 1923, until the consolidation in November, 1924, she worked as reporter and woman's page editor there.

She then joined the staff of the consolidated papers as feature writer and remained until March, 1925, when she went to the Cleveland office of NEA Service, as general staff writer.

Her eight months of work on the Cleveland staff included interviews, woman's page material and an exposé of a spiritualist camp in Indiana last summer, which led to an attempt by fanatics to lynch her, reported at the time in EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

She was transferred to the New York staff of NEA in November, 1925.

Since her marriage to Mr. Stong, editor of the North American Newspaper Alliance, on Nov. 8, 1925, Miss Swain has lived in Elmhurst, Long Island.

Discovered—the righthand "man" of Sir Charles Higham, noted British advertising agent, who makes frequent flying visits to this country from London in the interest of India Tea. Her name is Ethel Mannin, and she has not yet reached her 25th birthday. Duffield recently published this English advertising woman's first novel. It is called "Sounding Brass," and is described by critics as a clever diagnosis of the Jazz Age. The hero of the book is an advertising man. Miss Mannin began her career as a typist and has attained a high position in the office of Charles Higham Limited, London.

Miss Edith Righter is handling the newspaper space buying for the Pennsylvania Railroad account, directed by J. Walter Thompson & Co., New York advertising agency. Miss Righter has been associated with this agency for nine years and is widely known among newspaper advertising men. She has had 13 years' advertising experience.

Miss Flora Merrill, free lance writer, is now traveling in England and on the Continent. Her interviews with English literary leaders are being published in the New York Sunday World.

Newspaper women visiting New York this summer were this week invited to make use of the privileges of the New York Newspaper Club by Miss Theodora Bean, club president, and editor of the T-Bean Syndicate, New York.

Miss May Frank, instructor in journalism in the University of Oklahoma and editor of the literary page of the Sunday edition of the Oklahoma City (Okla.) Daily Oklahoman, has gone to Santa Fe, N. M., where there is a large colony of artists and writers. She plans to obtain a series of interviews to be published in the Sunday Oklahoman.

Miss Priscilla Platte, reporter for the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Daily News, tabloid, sailed this week from New York to become European representative for her paper.

She will go first to Damascus, Syria, with the idea of interviewing Bennett J. Doty of the French Foreign Legion, now held in prison on a charge of desertion. She will carry a letter from Doty's mother, who lives in Biloxi, Miss., according to Maj. Alfred Birdsall, assistant publisher of the News.

The News' European office will be located at 37 Quai d'Anjou, Paris, Maj. Birdsall said, where Miss Platte will be in charge following her trip to Damascus.

AD TIPS

Auspitz, Lee and Harvey Company, 360 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will use a list of about 14 cities in Indiana, Illinois and a few in Iowa on the advertising of Sampson Electric Co., Chicago.

Behel and Harvey Company, 326 West Madison street, Chicago. Is submitting propositions to a list of newspapers in scattered territory on Gervaise Graham company, Chicago.

Bisberne Advertising Company, 58 East Washington street, Chicago. Is placing the advertising of the Apex Laboratories, Chicago, who manufacture a cleaner like Energine. The company is awaiting the outcome of a recent campaign to decide on policy for the fall.

Dorland Agency, Inc., 244 Madison avenue, New York City. Now handling the following accounts: A. P. Babcock Company, New York City, manufactures toilet preparations and Guerlain, Inc., New York City, manufactures perfumes.

Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., 130 West 42nd street, New York. Has secured account of Church & Dwight Company, Inc., New York, manufacturers of Arm and Hammer brand and Cow brand Baking Soda.

George L. Dyer Company, Inc., 33 South Clark street, Chicago. Placing account of Weyerhauser Forest Products, Chicago.

J. R. Hamilton Company, 326 West Madison street, Chicago. Using a small list of newspapers in the Middle West for the advertising of Thompson's Malted Milk Co., Racine, Wisc.

The Kling-Gibson Co., 310 South Michigan boulevard, Chicago. Issuing contracts and in some places schedules, to newspapers generally on Edna Wallace Hopper Co., Chicago.

W. D. McAdams Company, 360 North Michigan boulevard, Chicago. Will place the advertising of Squibbs Cod Liver Oil. The advertising will not be placed in newspapers at present, it is reported.

Matteson-Fogarty-Jordan Company, 307 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will try a small list of newspapers on a campaign for the Globe Soap Company, Cincinnati.

Mitchell-Faust Advertising Company, 7 S. Dearborn street, Chicago. Will place the account of the Cheney Medicine Company, Toledo, O.

Mumm-Romer-Jaycox Company, 314 E. Broad street, Columbus, Ohio. Placing the following accounts: The Lancaster Tire & Rubber Company, Columbus, Ohio, and The Republic Metalware Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Olson & Enzinger, Inc., 228 Third street, Milwaukee. Now handling account of the Miessner Piano Company, Milwaukee.

Potts-Turnbull Company, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Placing the account of Remmers-Graham Co., (Antoinette Donnelley products), Cincinnati, O. A list is contemplated in the near future.

Fred M. Randall Company, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Sending out copy on New Era Spring and Specialty Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., to newspapers in scattered territory, in towns where a distributor is secured.

Reimers & Osborn, Inc., 285 Madison Ave., New York City. Now handling the following accounts: The Kolynos Company, New Haven, Conn., manufactures "Kolynos" Dental Cream. Cleveland & Whitehill Company, Newburgh, N. Y., manufacturers "Keystone" Trousers.

John Ring, Jr., Advertising Company, 211 North 7th street, St. Louis. Will place account for the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

Ruthrauff and Ryan, 225 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will compile a list of newspapers in the near future on Glessner Company, (Dr. Drake's Glessco and Turpo), Findlay, O.

Sehl Advertising Company, 360 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Sending copy schedules on Leo Co. (Pen-Jell), St. Joseph, Mo., to towns in Colorado, Oklahoma and Missouri.

Smith, Brooke & French, Inc., 206 Eliot street, Detroit. Placing account of the Traub Manufacturing Company, Detroit, manufacturers genuine "Orange Blossom" rings.

Turner-Wagener Company, 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Is using a list of newspapers on "Certified Cleaner", through the Charles H. Nichols Co., Chicago.

University Commercial Club has started a three-year campaign to advertise the University District of Seattle, Wash. Newspaper advertising will be used in scattered territory.

Williams and Cunnyngham Company, 6 North Michigan boulevard, Chicago. Now placing the account of Fallis, Inc., Cincinnati, manufacturers of Peter Pan Cosmetics.

MADISON DAILY TO BUILD

Capital Times Completes Plans for $150,000 Two-Story Home

The Madison (Wis.) Capital Times has completed its plans for the erection of a new $150,000 home.

The new building will have 25,000 square feet on two floors and a basement. The press is to be located in the basement; business office and mailing room on the first floor and editorial office and composing room on the second floor. A 64-page Hoe press is to be installed.

Officers of the Capital Times Company are: William T. Evjue, president; Tom C. Bowden, vice-president and treasurer, and Harry D. Sage, secretary.

The Capital Times has been a crusading newspaper, and at present is engaged in a legal fight to determine whether a judge can impose an order of secrecy upon witnesses testifying in a case where reporters are barred.

Burbank Review in Daily Field

The Burbank (Cal.) Review has been changed from a four-times-a-week publication to the afternoon daily field. Harvey R. Ling is the publisher. The Burbank Pathfinder, also published by Ling, formerly a semi-weekly, will hereafter be published weekly.

DAILY PAPERS FROM OTHER CITIES
HOTALING'S NEWS STAND
BROADWAY AND 43RD ST.
NORTH END THE TIMES BUILDING

"Perhaps the most cosmopolitan spot in New York City is Forty-third Street and Broadway . . . Here is a mammoth news stand which sells newspapers from every city in the world. . . Every town has similar stands, but none as huge as this, and none as varied and as picturesque in its patronage."
—Boston Transcript, Oct. 29, 1921

HOTALING'S NEWS AGENCY, 308 WEST 40th STREET, NEW YORK

First in New York

The New York Times in six months of this year published 15,251,876 agate lines of advertising, an excess of 5,609,058 lines over the second New York newspaper and a gain of 1,664,480 lines over The Times's record for the corresponding period of 1925.

This great volume represents advertisements that have met the censorship standards of The New York Times. Thousands of lines of advertising have been declined by The Times since the first of the year as unworthy to be presented to its readers.

RELATIONS OF PRESS AND COURT ANALYZED BY BALTIMORE ATTORNEY

Cooperation Necessary to Foster Best Interests of Each—Contempt Case Cited—Says Reporting Can Be Suppressed in Extraordinary Cases

IN an extraordinary case a judge might "pass an order that no account of the proceedings should be published at least until after the trial was finished."

W. Calvin Chesnut, a leading member of the Baltimore Bar, expressed that opinion in a paper recently read before the Maryland State Bar Association at its annual meeting in Atlantic City.

Because of the case in which Judge Eugene O'Dunne sentenced three editors and two photographers of the Hearst papers in Baltimore, the News and the American, to serve a day each in jail for contempt of court, the relations of the courts and the newspapers and the law of contempt have been much discussed in Maryland.

It would be only in an extraordinary case that such an order by the judge would be justified said Mr. Chesnut.

He said in part:

"The principle deducible from these contempt cases clearly does not extend to fair reports of the testimony and proceedings in pending cases. On the contrary, the public both demands it and it is in the public interest that the demand should be supplied. Here and there a case may arise in which extraordinary conditions might in the public interest or to insure a fair trial justify a judge in passing an order that no account of the proceedings should be published at least until after the trial was concluded. As we have seen such an order was recently passed by a Mississippi judge. Many years ago Federal Judge Baldwin at Philadelphia deemed it necessary in a particular murder case that there should be no daily report of the proceedings. And while he felt without power in view of the act of Congress of 1831 to prohibit publication as such, he nevertheless pointed out that he did have the authority to require a promise from newspaper reporters admitted to the trial that they would publish no account of the proceedings until after the final conclusion of the case. It is said that this order was fully obeyed. In State vs. Morrill, 16 Ark., 394 in 1855, it was said 'Such orders have been frequently made in important and exciting trials in this country.'

"Nevertheless, I think we will all agree that the case indeed must be exceptional in which the court would, at the present time, feel justified in passing such an order. And probably no such order has ever been passed in Maryland courts in this century. It is interesting, however, to note that very recently a bill was introduced in Parliament and I think passed by the House of Commons by a large majority and apparently without active opposition by the press the effect of which is to suppress the publication of any details in divorce cases.

"It must fairly be said for the press that a very considerable portion of it deplores the current practice of 'trial by newspaper.' Mr. Wigmore, in 2 Journal Criminal Law and Criminology, page 68 quotes the Chicago Herald as saying:

"'If we are to have civilization we must try cases in the courts, not in public print. Freedom of the press in all essential respects must be upheld but it must not become perverted to excuse such arguments as were made to the public before and during the legal trial of the MacNamaras. In England such practices are forbidden. Discussion of a case pending in the courts is punished at once as a contempt.'

"The Chicago Tribune, on July 23, 1924, has this to say:

"'The injury to justice is in publicity before the trial. Newspaper trials before the case is called have become an abomination. No newspaper can escape it. They have met the demand and in meeting it have stimulated public appetite for more.

Recently the condition of crime and criminal procedure in Chicago has attracted widespread attention. In this connection it is interesting to note that on May 12, 1925, all of the Chicago Superior Courts adopted jointly the following rule:

"'No photographs shall be taken in any courtroom over which this court has jurisdiction or control before the trial of any cause, nor so close to such courtroom as to disturb the order and decorum thereof, either while the court is in session or at any other time when court officials, parties, counsel, jurymen, witnesses or other connected with the proceedings therein are present.'

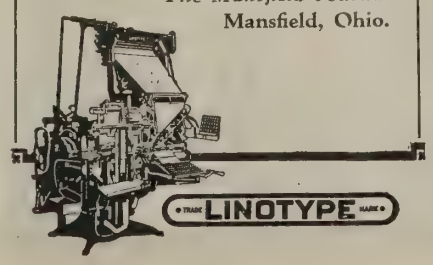
"It was said that this order was on the whole well received by the press.

"It is clear enough that a court has the undoubted power to prescribe reasonable rules and regulations for behavior in the courtroom. The status of a newspaper reporter or editor therein is only that of any other citizen. The freedom of the press does not of itself justify his presence or expand his privileges. Without reference to any particular case, I think it is also true that the general and promiscuous taking of photographs in a court room or even the publication of sketches and cartoons of the judges, jurymen, parties or witnesses is objectionable because it tends to cheapen and detract from the dignity of judicial proceedings. It is also indirectly an obstruction of justice in the tendency it has or may have to aggravate the disinclination of parties or witnesses to appear in court. Those of us who are frequently in and about the courts often fail to realize that to the average citizen an appearance in court is a matter of extreme rarity and is an experience looked forward to as an ordeal. The strangeness and formality of the surroundings tends to create nervousness and very generally there is a feeling that it is desirable to avoid attendance in court. It is unwise to permit the feeling to be increased by the knowledge in certain cases that the witness may be subjected to further and often undesired publicity by having their features presented or misrepresented in the public press, or their manner and behavior while on the witness stand or while merely as spectators in court described and commented on, often to their disadvantage, by the searching eyes and sometimes imaginative pen of a newspaper reporter eager for items of news.

"And this leads me briefly to another feature of news reporting that is probably not reachable, even if it were desired to do so, by contempt proceedings, but which is nevertheless unfortunately against the public interest. I refer to the general inadequacy and inefficiency (at least from the trial lawyer's point of view) of the generally prevailing type of newspaper report of pending cases.

"But, from the impersonal point of view, what the lawyer wants and what the public should want and have is 'respectable criticism of the courts, and reasonably accurate reports of judicial proceedings. It is, I think, the common view of lawyers, that it is almost impossible to tell from the newspaper report of a case either what are the apparent merits or what is the legal issue. The reason for this I believe is due not so much to the incapacity of the reporter as to the point of view with which he approaches the subject. He is looking for items of news interest and finds them only in those phases of the case which produce so called 'human-interest' stories.

"The problem of the relation of the press to the courts should never be approached by either side in the spirit of antagonism, but rather in the spirit of co-operation. Each is necessary to the other. The press is dependent in the last analysis on the courts for the proper enforcement of its true and constitutional freedom. And the courts are dependent on the press for proper publicity."



From the Linotype Mailbag

MODEL 26

"big feature is quick changing from one font to another"

"We are glad to say that this Model 26, installed last March, has given entire satisfaction in every way and we are highly pleased with its performance. We use this machine as a head and straight matter machine, carrying 12, 28, 36 and 42 point for our heads and 8 point for straight matter. The big feature of the machine is the quick changing from one font to another without having to wait for distribution, which saves considerable time during the course of a day's work. We have run this machine as high as three days without a distributor stop and it is a very common occurrence to run a full day without having to start distributor."

The Mansfield Journal
Mansfield, Ohio.

KILL A MYTH

One of the hardest beliefs to kill has been the one that circulation could not be made during the dog days.

Of course, it's purely a myth and aggressive publishers long ago killed it.

But it still persists in some quarters.

If it does in yours let me kill it for you.

Do you want circulation this summer?

I can get it for you without tricks or contests—I'll just sell your paper and help you improve it if it needs that.

Write or wire for details

F. J. Marks Circulation Service
2524 East 73rd Street
Cleveland, O.

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

E. F. S.
Editors' Feature Service

Over 70 independent newspapers throughout the country subscribe to this fine daily service as a protection against rising feature costs.

Six Pages Daily
Illustrations in Mat Form

Write or wire for samples, price and territory.

Editors' Feature Service, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York
Allied with Johnson Features, Inc.

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

Productive Advertising

Among those New Yorkers who constitute the best market for advertised products—the prosperous, intelligent, responsive New Yorkers—The Sun has a greater appeal than any other New York evening newspaper.

It is for this reason that manufacturers and merchants have found it so profitable to advertise their products in The Sun.

National Advertisers as well as Manhattan Department Stores have for years used more space in The Sun than in any other New York evening newspaper.

The Sun
280 Broadway New York

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.

It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest

O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young
Publisher

EDGAR M. FOSTER DIES IN NASHVILLE

Business Manager of Nashville Banner Failed to Survive Operation—Widely Known in South—Served as Banner Executive 30 Years

After 56 years of life in Nashville, Tenn., and with the greater part of those years dedicated to the service of his community and profession, Edgar Martin Foster, for 30 years business manager of the Nashville Banner, died June 20, following a short illness. On June 12, he underwent an operation, which at first was believed successful, physicians thinking that his strong constitution and will power would carry him through.

EDGAR M. FOSTER

He was buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, June 22. Men and women from every walk in life attended the funeral services at the First Presbyterian Church, and heard the eulogy preached by Dr. James I. Vance. The entire church was filled with floral offerings.

On one side of the church sat the entire force of the Banner, and on the opposite side the Rotary Club of which he was a member and past president.

Mr. Foster is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nina Stratton Foster and one son, Stratton Foster, publisher of the Clarksville (Tenn.) Leaf-Chronicle, one sister, Miss Evalina Foster, a brother, Robert C. Foster and a niece, Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Jr., of Raleigh, N. C.

The honorary pallbearers were the officers of the First Presbyterian Church, while the following employes of the Nashville Banner served as active pallbearers; Battle Clark, M. B. Morton, E. B. Dakin, Henry Fryer, Robert Hallum, John Gilmore, Sam Youree, Martin Clark, A. J. Grigsby, J. G. Stahlman, W. E. Beard, Horace Powell, A. T. Miller and Walter Cain.

Mr. Foster was born in Nashville, April 10, 1870, and lived in that city all his life. He was the son of Robert Coleman Foster and Elizabeth Bradford Foster, his father was the scion of one of Middle Tennessee's most noted families, being the son of Ephrain H. Foster, United States Senator.

At the age of eight, young Foster began selling the Nashville Banner on the streets of his city. His ability was soon recognized and in due time he was taken into the office of the paper and promoted to Route Manager. His only employment outside of the years he spent with the Banner, was with a local shoe store as a salesman, and a short time with Herriford Chadwell Company, and J. S. Reeves & Company.

When he was 20 years old he returned to the Banner as route manager and before he reached the age of 21 was made circulation manager. He continued to push forward until at the age of 24, he was made business manager of the paper.

Mr. Foster was president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association in 1904, and was chairman of the Advertising Committee for the Development of the South's Resources. He served on the nominating committee many times.

He was one of the most active members of the Nashville Commercial Club and its successor the Chamber of Commerce and was president of the Rotary Club in 1920. It was as a member of the Rotary Club that he interested that organization in the raising of a fund to purchase a model home for Sergeant Alvin York, outstanding hero of the World War.

He was one of the leading workers in the Nashville Community Chest and headed the initial gifts committee in the recent drive for an endowment fund for Vanderbilt University. He was a member of the Old Capitol Club and the Hermitage and Belle Meade Country Clubs.

MRS. MARY C. RIDDER

Widow of New Yorker Staats-Zeitung Publisher Is Dead

Mrs. Mary C. Ridder, 76, widow of Herman Ridder, former owner and publisher of the New Yorker Staatz-Zeitung, died suddenly June 27, at Monmouth Beach, N. J., where she had gone to recuperate from an illness.

Mrs. Ridder was born in New York, and was married to Mr. Ridder in 1880. Surviving are three sons, Bernard Ridder, president of the Staats-Herold Corporation; Joseph E. Ridder, vice-president; Victor F. Ridder, secretary.

Dies from War Gas

Sidney Pratt, composing room superintendent of the new Montreal (Que.) World, died suddenly June 29 from the effects of poison gas received while he was serving as a soldier overseas. He was formerly with the Montreal Witness, Sherbrooke (Que.) Record and Aberdeen (Scotland) Free Press.

Obituary

FRANK A. ROOT, 89, pioneer Kansas newspaperman, who published the Atchison (Kan.) Free Press and the Atchison Champion, died recently at his home in Topeka.

CHARLES R. LATHA, 55, on the staff of the Windsor Locks (Conn.) Journal, weekly, for 35 years, died suddenly, June 24.

RICHARD ELLIS DAVIES, 65, former pressman for the Columbus Ohio State Journal died recently.

WILLIAM H. PERKINS, 62, Portland, Ore., advertising man, died reecntly following a short illness.

DANIEL CUPPS, 50, former editor of the Conroe (Tex.) Courier, died recently at San Antonio. He was a native of Bedford, Ind.

W. W. IRELAND, 74, father of William A. Ireland, cartoonist on the Columbus (O.) Dispatch, died recently at his home, Chillicothe, O.

CHARLES R. COOK, 34, managing editor of the Concordia (Kan.) Blade-Empire, died recently at his home.

HORACE GREELY JAMES, 57, former editor and publisher of the Independence (Kan.) Daily Reporter, died recently at his home in Kansas City. After selling the Reporter to Clyde H. Knox, Mr. James became secretary of the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association.

MRS. M. T. A. HANNA, 70, first woman newspaper publisher of Washington and called by many the "mother of journalism" in her state, died at her home at Edmonds, Wash., Tuesday, June 15. She started the Edmonds Review and was also publisher of the Edmonds Record. At one time she was associate editor of the Edmonds Examiner and Tribune-Review.

Florida Paper in New Plant

Titusville (Fla.) Star-Advocate is now located in its new plant. The structure is of concrete block and stucco construction, 30 by 90 feet. New equipment has been installed including a new Duplex Model A web perfecting press, and the paper has changed to an eight-column 12 em page. Three platen presses are also included in the equipment, one of which is equipped with a Miller feeder. A new steel type cabinet with complete new type outfit has been added to the job department. Controlling interest in the Star-Advocate was purchased last September by H. H. Hudson, formerly of the Cleveland Press.

Daily Sponsored Sales Event

The Niagara Falls (N. Y.) Gazette sponsored a Suburban Sales event June 23-24, backed by 176 local merchants. Three advance announcements were used by the merchants and on the day preceding the sale the Gazette printed a 40-page issue.

Utah Press Association Meets

Summer convention of the Utah State Press Association, held in Tooele recently, was principally devoted to sightseeing and visiting industrial plants. R. T. Porte, president of the Porte Publishing Company, Salt Lake City, tendered his resignation as secretary-treasurer, and James H. Wallis, interested in papers published in Uintah Basin and elsewhere, was appointed in his stead. Will R. Holmes, of Brigham City, president of the Association, presided at the meeting.

Daily Combats Peddlers

To combat door-to-door peddlers, the Wellsburg (W. Va.) Daily Herald recently ran an eight-column box, four inches deep across the top of page one with the caption "Peddlers Not Wanted —This City Buys Only from Reliable Merchants." The text matter attacked house-to-house selling.

Miscellaneous

Those planets in the Advertising Firmament that have no place among the general classifications are seen most frequently in the Miami Trading Zone by readers of The Miami Herald.

Comparative figures as of last year show that advertisers in this classification "keep step" with others while within Miami's range of vision. The miscellaneous advertising figures are:

The Herald: 1,531,222 Lines
Second Paper: 1,142,715 Lines
—or a Herald lead of over 33%

The Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher.

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS
A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

SERVICE
THE CHARLES PARTLOWE COMPANY
America's Largest Circulation Building Organization
-RESULTS COUNT-
6th Floor OCCIDENTAL BLD
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

We shall be pleased to see any newspaper man during the Philadelphia Convention and to talk over with him his classified advertising problems

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

Largest Weekday Circulation IN THE CITY
The Item Tribune
NEW ORLEANS

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Chicago Tribune to Syndicate Its Advertising, Art and Merchandising Service—Maj. Newman Writes Confessions of Congressman—"Chasing the Champion" by Harry Wills

THE Chicago Tribune has completed plans for the sydication of its advertising copy, art and merchandising service. The idea was developed by Fred Shafer, manager of the Tribune's advertising copy and art department. H. J. Hirsch, Mr. Shafer's assistant, will be in charge of this new Tribune activity.

The Tribune maintains for the service of local stores and retail shops, eight advertising writers and 26 artists. Service is expected to start this entire personnel available for use by other newspapers in August.

Eugene MacLean Newspaper Features, San Francisco, started June 28 issuing a daily mat service to western newspapers. The service includes news pictures and complete departments from comics to radio, described as having a "western flavor." A new office has been opened in Los Angeles, with Fred Masters, in charge, assisted by Miss May Bradfield, formerly of San Francisco Daily News.

W. H. Johnson, New York, president of Johnson Features and of Editors' Feature Service, Inc., is making an automobile tour of the central states after a visit at the Cleveland plant of Editors' Feature Service.

Harry Wills' own version of what he has experienced in trying to obtain a bout with Jack Dempsey is being offered newspapers by Premier Syndicate, New York, under the title "Chasing the Champion." The feature runs in 22 illustrated installments.

Dr. William T. Ellis of Swartmore, Pa., who writes a weekly Sunday School lesson feature for the McNaught Syndicate, New York, returned this week from the Near East, where he spent the last 10 months writing a book on the Bible lands. Dr. and Mrs. Ellis covered every principal geographical point mentioned in the Bible, including the New Testament cities of interior Turkey; the heart of the Sinai Peninsula, where they rediscovered Kadesh-Barnea; Arabia, Mesopotamia, Transjordania and Shushan and Ecbatana in Persia.

Manuel Rosenberg, cartoonist on the Cincinnati Post, sailed for Europe from New York last week on a sketching tour of the Continent. He will draw pictures of the training camp at Cape Griz Nez where Lillian Cannon, NEA Service, channel swimmer is in training.

"The Microbe Hunters," by Paul de Kruif, collaborator with Sinclair Lewis in "Arrowsmith" is being distributed as a Sunday feature in 12 installments by Current News Features, Inc., New York and Washington.

"One Burning Minute" is the title of a newspaper serial being prepared by Orlin Tremaine for King Features Syndicate, Inc., New York.

George G. Janosik, treasurer and business manager of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, is planning to attend the annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, at Asheville, N. C., July 6-8.

Acme Newspictures, New York, obtained exclusive pictures last week of Lt. Comm. Richard E. Byrd's arrival home from his flight to the North Pole. A tug was chartered and cameramen sailed out into a storm to find Byrd's ship two miles east of Ambrose Lightship, 32 miles from the Statue of Liberty. Making the trip were J. A. Nesensohn, Ellis Edmunds, and P. A. MacGregor of the New York office.

The 1926 edition of "Johnny Farrell Tells How to Play Golf" is now being offered newspapers by the Premier Syndicate, New York.

"Laila," a story of the days of Christ, is a new serial offering by the Eugene MacLean Newspaper Features Syndicate, San Francisco. It is written by John Newport.

Maj. Oliver P. Newman, newspaper and magazine writer, has written "The Confessions of a Cabinet Minister" for Current News Features, Inc., New York. Maj. Newman is author of "The Confessions of a Congressman," previously run by clients of the same syndicate. Both series are to appear in book form later.

Pat Sullivan, creator of "Felix," and cartoonist for King Features Syndicate, Inc., New York, has obtained a temporary injunction against the C. F. Eckhart Company, Port Washington, Wis., makers of "Fido" an inanimate plaster-of-paris feline.

"Fido" is said to look enough like Felix to be his twin, and is therefore alleged to be an infringement of the rights of the New York cartoonist.

L. F. Parton, editor of Current News Features, Inc., New York, has returned to his desk following a short illness.

New features added to the daily budget service of Editors' Feature Service include "Many Minds," editorial review; "Wife Preservers," household helps department; "The One-Minute Pulpit," a Bible feature, and "Noah Numskull," one column comic panel.

German Ambassador Praises U. S. Press

Baron Ago von Maltzan, German Ambassador to the United States, praised the U. S. press for accuracy and fairness in an interview granted prior to his sailing for Germany June 24.

COMIC ARTISTS FORM NATIONAL BODY

American Association of Cartoonists and Caricaturists Established with Eugene Zimmerman President, and Freeman Hubbard, Secretary

Establishment of the American Association of Cartonists and Caricaturists, with Eugene Zimmerman as president, was announced this week in New York.

EUGENE ZIMMERMAN

Other officers are: Bud Fisher, New York, ("Mutt and Jeff"), first vice-president; Rube Goldberg, New York, ("Boob McNutt"), second vice president; and Freeman H. Hubbard, New York, editor of Cartoons Magazine, secretary.

The following were named to the Advisory Board: Albertine Randall, ("In Rabbitboro"); Clare A. Briggs, ("Mr. & Mrs."); M. M. Branner, ("Winnie Winkle"); Winsor McCay, ("Little Nemo"); Eddie McBride, sports cartoonist and a syndicate art manager; Milt Gross, ("Nize Baby"); Pat Sullivan, ("Felix the Cat"); Ed Wheelan ("Minute Movies"), all of New York City, and Bill Steinke, editorial cartoonist, Newark (N. J.) Evening News; C. H. Wellington, Hollywood, Cal., ("Pa's Son-In-Law"); and Manuel Rosenberg, art editor, Cincinnati (O.) Post.

As a tribute to one of America's very few women cartoonists, Albertine Randall was chosen chairman of the board.

"Our purposes are," Mr. Zimmerman said, "to increase public interest in our profession, encourage talented amateurs and help the members with information and publicity. This Association is not a labor union.

Headquarters of the organization will be in the Nichols Building, 244 West 49th street, New York City.

Chapin Resigns Editorship

George Chapin has resigned as managing editor of the Champaign (Ill.) News-Gazette, to become secretary of the Urbana (Ill.) Association of Commerce. He assumed his new duties July 1.

Daily Sponsors Boat Races

The sixth annual Chesapeake Bay Workboat races conducted by Baltimore Sun and Evening Sun were run at Solomon's Island, Md., Saturday, June 26. Prizes of cups and cash purses were given in each class.

For the First Three Months of 1926

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

printed 7,355,276 lines of Advertising, and thus moved up from twelfth to SIXTH place among the newspapers of the United States.

The only newspapers printing a greater volume of advertising during that period than The Tribune were the Miami Herald, the St. Petersburg Times, the Detroit News, the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.

The Tribune covers the rich South Florida territory of 24 counties and 190 cities and towns, with a population of 713,943.

That's Why Its Advertising Volume Grows

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency, National Representatives.

The Morning Telegraph

Is the giant influence on the Turf, in Society, Music, Theatre, Motion Picture and Finance, having the largest circulation of any Daily in the United States at a ten-cent Price.

Circulated in every State in the Union and the principal capitals of Europe. An exclusive market for its advertisers.

The Morning Telegraph
50th St. & 8th Ave., N. Y. City have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

EVENING HERALD
Los Angeles, Calif.

Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation

Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.

IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY

REPRESENTATIVES:
H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

creating Impression!

nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.

The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium — ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it

J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St., New York
Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?

We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.

It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.

Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.

When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.

Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

first! in OHIO

9,561,237 Lines

Dispatch advertising record for the first five months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,378,109 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines, exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.

NET PAID CIRCULATION

CITY	55,812
SUBURBAN	26,973
COUNTRY	23,666
Total Daily Circulation	106,451

Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

LONG ISLAND PUBLISHERS AT ANNUAL MEETING

ABOVE are shown members of Long Island Press Association photographed at their annual meeting at Rockaway Beach on June 21. Those in the picture are: Front row left to right; Jesse F. Merritt, Mineola Nassau County Times; Mabel W. Merritt, Farmingdale Post; Alwena M. Robbins; Mrs. E. B. Myer, Whitestone Herald; Joseph Arnold, Greenpoint News; Mrs. Joseph Arnold; Antoinette M. Umeloch; Freda Fisher, Bellmore Courier; Mrs. Elizabeth Marlow; Frank M. Marlow, president, L. I. Press Association; D. W. Murray, Rockaway Beach Wave; R. M. Gipson, president, Chamber of Commerce, Rockaways; Francis Hoag, Sayville Suffolk County News; George LeBoutillier, vice-president, Long Island Railroad; George Schubel, Ridgewood Times; William McCarthy, Mineola Sun; V. A. Williams, Hempstead Enquirer; Marion L. Hoag; A. E. Allees, C. of C. of the Rockaways; W. L. Bird, Jamaica Long Island Daily Press.

Center row: Joseph R. Robbins, Smithtown Branch Messenger; Nicholas Clute, Elmhurst Newtown Register; Lena M. Clute; A. Park Campbell; Mrs. Morris Friedman; E. G. W. Williams, Valley Stream Record; Mrs. E. G. W. Williams; J. H. Hansen, Richmond Hill Long Island Weekly News; A. J. Ball, Woodhaven Leader-Observer; W. L. Parks, Mergenthaler Linotype Company; Joseph Pearlson, Rockaway Beach Argus; William McCarthy, Roslyn News; P. H. Vogel, Floral Park Review; William H. Neel, New York Times; Robert Cresswell, New York Herald Tribune; John W. Wainwright, Miss Margaret Wainwright, Hubert Murray.

Top row: George Wolpert; George Flatow, L. I. Railroad; John P. McDermott, Walter S. Funnel, Long Island Association; Hugo Seeselberg, Flatbush Observer; Dorothea J. Kieson, Belmore News; W. H. VanWinkle, Merrick News; N. H. Uhlman and Morris Friedman, Hicksville Courier; R. Douglas, Sea Cliff News; M. L. Friday, E. W. Blatchford Company; H. Sizenmore, Lanston Monotype Company; Paul Charleston, F. A. Nauftus, Queen-Hollis Times; Harry C. Tudor, J. F. Roche, EDITOR & PUBLISHER; W. F. Cone, Brooklyn Weekly News; Thomas Kelly, Harry Rogers, Clifford Ball, Queens Village Review; C. A. Ryder, N. Y. Telephone Company; Mrs. John W. Wainwright.

NEWSPAPER EXHIBIT DEDICATED

Camden (N. J.) Courier-Post Formally Opens Buildings at Sesqui

David Stern, publisher of the Camden (N. J.) Courier-Post, on June 29, formally dedicated the building his newspaper has erected at Sesqui City, Philadelphia, as part of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

The building is a replica in miniature of old Indian King Inn, cradel of New Jersey's liberty, and is the only newspaper building at the Sesqui-Centennial. Inside is housed an editorial exhibit, telling the story of the Courier-Post's growth.

Preceding the dedication ceremony Thursday, luncheon was served at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia.

Hershfield Heads Cheese Club Again

Harry Hershfield, comic strip artist for King Features Syndicate, Inc., was last week re-elected president of the Cheese Club, an organization of theatrical publicity and newspaper men. Other officers chosen included Walter J. Kingsley, first vice-president, and Lewis Levenson, secretary.

New Weekly at Kramer Hills

Lloyd Tiernan, publisher of the Barstow (Cal.) Printer, has established the News at the new mining town of Kramer Hills, Cal., scene of the new gold rush.

BLADE PLANNING NEW HOME

Work on Toledo Daily's Plant Scheduled to Begin in Few Days

Plans for the new building to he constructed by the Toledo Blade Co., with frontages on Superior, Beech and Huron streets, Toledo, have been completed. It is expected the contract will be signed and the ground broken within a few days.

The building, three stories with basement, will be of stone, with 300 feet frontage on Beech street and 100 feet frontage on Superior and Huron streets.

The ornamentation will be of a Spanish type. The equipment throughout will be new, including presses.

Suit, Charging Ad Fraud, Fails

Suit for receivership of the Mizner Development Corporation, owners and developers of Boca Raton, was dismissed in Federal Court at Jacksonville, Fla., June 29. The suit was brought by Guy A. Reed, New York carpet manufacturer, who asserted in his petition that misleading advertising was used in newspapers, magazines, and pamphlets by the corporation to picture improvements and existing conditions wrongfully and victimize the public and prospective purchasers.

Former Critic Wins Poetry Prize

"High Passage," a book of poems by Thomas Hornsby Ferril, Denver, former dramatic critic of the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times, was recently awarded first place in the annual competition of the Yale University Press for the best collection of poems by American younger poets during the year. Most of the verses in the winning volume were first printed on the editorial page of the News and in the Times.

Myers Loses in Court

Charles B. Myers, stockholder and trustee of the Colorado Pulp & Paper Company, Denver, lost a suit brought May 26, in United States District court at Brighton, Col., against the officers of the company who, he alleged, were mismanaging the concern. Myers asked the appointment of a receiver and charged also that the company was insolvent and had been for the last eight months.

THE TELEGRAM

now has the largest paid circulation in

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday

guaranteed.

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

Represented Nationally by

The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

120 West 42nd Street New York

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest
Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
The only paper in St. Petersburg, Florida, whose application has been accepted by Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.
Member A. B. C.
URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
THE LEADING NEWSPAPER IN GRAND RAPIDS—THE ONLY DAILY IN SEVEN OTHER CITIES
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

A paper with the people
The public decides the progress of a newspaper.
The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.
Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.
With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.
Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
NEW YORK
EVENING GRAPHIC
H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION
Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.
Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

URGES SYNDICATE FOR CHINA

"IT is doubtless partly owing to the poverty of these smaller papers that no native syndicate has yet been organized to sell features throughout China. The foreign papers buy features and 'funnies' from abroad, but for the native editor, who is a much driven beast of burden, generally managing his sheet single-handed, the sun of such assistance has not yet risen. It seems to me there is a rich harvest to be reaped by the first firm having sufficient enterprise to sell a blanket service to the Chinese."—Sum Nung Au-Young, Director, Chinese Government Bureau of Economic Information, New York.

* * *

SUGGESTION FOR SOLICITORS

"I AM wondering if too many of us are forgetting that no newspaper, great or small, can carry a line of any man's advertising until that man has first been sold on newspaper advertising. In our enthusiasm for our own lineage records are we leaping headlong over our duty to sell newspapers first and then our own paper?"—Frank E. Tripp, general manager, Gannett Newspapers.

* * *

PROMOTING CLASSIFIED

"TO obtain classified advertising from the occasional advertiser, newspapers must create an atmosphere favorable to advertising. Office ads, fillers and testimonials are very useful. Joseph Pulitzer considered the World's first page ears to be the most valuable part of the paper in which to advertise the advertising value of the World. He paid $100 a week to a specialist to write two short epigrammatic ads daily. He wanted something short and striking about the World's ads that the advertiser could quickly grasp and retain in his memory."—Frank McCabe, classified advertising manager, New York World.

DEMAND FOR CHURCH NEWS GROWING

Many Large Denominations Now Have Bureaus Cooperating with Press, Methodist Bulletin Issued in Chicago Declares

A growing demand for church news is reported in the annual bulletin of the World Service Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, issued in Chicago. There is a greater demand for genuine church news by the newspapers than can possibly be supplied, the report says.

"There has been a remarkable growth in the number of newspapers in the United States which now either have church editors or are giving special attention, particularly on Saturdays and Sundays, to religious news and reports," the bulletin declares.

"We are finding no difficulty in placing real interesting news matter. If there is any difficulty, it lies in deciding what information regarding the church is considered propaganda by the newspapers, and what is considered news of general public interest.

"So insistent has the demand for church news become that several large church organizations are co-operating by organizing church press bureaus.

The Catholics have a well organized press bureau in Washington and have recently established a bureau in Chicago.

"At Philadelphia the Presbyterians have a press bureau which sells at cost copy of advertising material to the preachers and churches. It also sends out news material set up in galley proof or on white glazed paper ready for the printer.

"The Protestant Episcopal church has a press bureau in New York, supervised by a clergyman and using several good newspaper men as writers and supervisors.

"In the Lambuth building, Nashville, Tenn., the Methodist Episcopal church, South, has its secular press bureau."

INCORPORATE DAILY

Indianapolis Political Group Form Half-Million Corporation

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 1.—A group of local City Hall executives and assistants recently formed the Indianapolis Tribune Publishing Co., with a capitalization of $500,000 to publish a morning newspaper, daily and Sunday.

The incorporators were Donald F. Roberts, city attorney; Claude C. McCoy, secretary of the board of safety; George Morgan, assistant superintendent of parks; Jesse J. McClure, director of recreation, and Thomas N. Chilcote, a clerk in the building commissioner's department. The incorporators declined to divulge their plans.

Boston Herald Makes Traffic Survey

A Staff writer of the Boston Herald this week concluded a survey of traffic conditions in seven principal cities of the east and middle west.

MIAMI WARRING ON "CLASSIFIED CROOKS"

Newspapers and Better Business Bureau Combine in Appealing to Public to Report Fakers

The Miami Better Business Bureau and the Miami newspapers have combined to "fight the classified faker."

At the head of its classified advertising columns each day, the Miami Herald, reputed to have carried last year more advertising than any other newspaper in the country, reproduces this statement:

"The Miami Herald will not knowingly accept any advertising of a fraudulent nature. You can assist us in protecting our readers by asking the Miami Better Business Bureau to investigate any unknown proposition or propositions that are not as represented in the advertising. Their service to the public is rendered without cost. Their telephone number is 35977."

In the opinion of the Miami Better Business Bureau, which has just issued a proclamation of war on the "classified crook," the classified column of a newspaper can prove to be a haven of refuge to the purveyor of doubtful or dubious propositions.

"It enables him," says the Bureau statement, "to open a channel of contact with the public without revealing in his copy the nature of his business. A box number can serve as a cover to a promoter whose mere name might prove to be a warning.

"Such a situation renders it exceedingly difficult for classified managers to censor copy. And it renders it virtually impossible for the bureau to cover such a situation. In the final analysis it is the public that should bear the burden of the investigation. The newspaper will eliminate the fraudulent proposition when known, but the public must do its share. This responsibility can be put before the public squarely by the newspapers."

FREDERICK CUNLIFFE-OWEN

Editor and Writer, Known as Marquise de Fontenoy, is Dead

Frederick Cunliffe-Owen, 71, editor and writer, died in New York, June 28. He was author of a widely syndicated letter dealing with the affairs of the European nobility. This letter he signed as "By La Marquise de Fontenoy." He was a prolific writer on European politics.

Mr. Cunliffe-Owen was born in London on January 30, 1855, the son of Sir Philip and Lady Cunliffe-Owen. His mother was the Baroness von Reitzenstein. He was educated at Lansing School, England, and the University of Lausanne, Switzerland. He came to America a young man and in 1889 became foreign editor of the New York Tribune, keeping this post until 1898, when he became society editor. He left the paper in 1913.

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.

The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.

N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

features SINCE 1899
WEEKLY
Camera News, Fashion, Feature and Children's Pages; House Plans; Automobile Cartoon.
3-A-WEEK
Hints for the Motorist; Handicraft in the Home.
DAILY
Cross-word Puzzles, Dots and Cut-outs; Radio; Noozie; Fashion hints; 1 col. Comics; Portraits; Gillilan's Letters; News-Maps, also The Ad-route (house organ).
The International Syndicate
Baltimore, Md.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service
Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original
Most Artistic and Finest
blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.
Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

RADIO PROGRAMS
NEWS NOTES
FEATURES
Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers
Send for samples and prices
AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St.
Chicago

There Are No Other Newspapers Covering South Jersey Completely
From the Standpoint of the National Advertiser
CAMDEN COURIER
The MORNING POST
60,000 Circulation
Combination Rate
National Representatives:
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA JOURNAL Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

FARGO FORUM BUILDING NEW PLANT

ABOVE is an architect's sketch of the new building which is being erected by the Fargo Forum Publishing Company, and which will become the home of the Fargo (N. D.) Forum.

It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy about Oct. 1. The building is three stories over a full basement and is of fireproof construction, and will have a facing of light colored brick. It is sixty-five feet wide and has a depth of one hundred and forty feet.

In connection with the new building program the Fargo Forum is also purchasing extensive new equipment including a high speed press.

N. B. Black, is president and publisher; Norman D. Black, general manager; and H. D. Paulson, editor.

FOREIGN CORPS HOST TO DELEGATES

British and French I. A. A. Convention Groups Tenedered Luncheon, Monday, on Mauretania—Knecht and Lawson Speak

By Harold Butcher.

There was keen competition among the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents, the Cunard Company, and the English Speaking Union to entertain the British and French delegates to the International Advertising Association Convention on their return to New York from Philadelphia. In the end a compromise was effected and a luncheon was given on Monday, June 28, on board the Mauretania under the auspices of the Foreign Correspondents Association, with John Daniels, secretary of the English Speaking Union, present to represent his organization.

Dr. A. Moravski-Nawench, Czas Poland, president of the foreign press, in introducing Dr. Marcel Knecht, head of the French delegation, said that Melville Stone had described Knecht as "the best informed person in the United States."

Dr. Knecht spoke briefly, in "better English than the English" according to Colonel Lawson, head of the British delegation. Of the Foreign Correspondents Association he said its spirit had always been the spirit of understanding.

"What we have gained by the convention of the International Advertising Association," said Col. Frederick Lawson, "is a personal contact with those people over here who are engaged in the same profession as ourselves, who are facing the same problems and the same difficulties in another country. We have come to know them personally, and when we return to our own countries we shall understand much better what is going on in America, and we shall delight to tell how extraordinarily well we have been treated over here by our American hosts."

Colonel Lawson, who is joint proprietor of the London Daily Telegraph, also spoke of the quality of the foreign correspondents in America representing European papers. "We in England," he said, "always send our best men over here, and we see that every other country is doing the same. The reason for our success in telling Europe of what is going on in America is to be found in the integrity and ability of the individuals who are conducting the work."

Capt. Arthur H. Rostron, commander of the Mauretania, eloquently revealed the attitude of a sea captain to his work.

In addition to the speakers the following also sat at the head table: Mrs. Lawson, Leon Renier, vice-chairman of the French delegation; Consul Scott, representing Sir Harry Armstrong, British Consul-General, E. Hope Prince, editor, Liverpool Echo, Louis Wiley, business manager, New York Times, Percy S. Bullen, American correspondent, London Daily Telegraph; and E. H. Borer, general passenger agent, Cunard line. Sydney J. Clarke, secretary of the Foreign Correspondents Association, took care of the luncheon details for the Association.

A. P. MESSENGER BOY IS HONEST TO GAMBLERS

THOUSANDS of newspaper readers who gamble on the daily clearing house balance as printed in evening newspapers depend upon the honesty of a young Associated Press messenger boy, it was revealed this week by Norris A. Huse of the A. P. executive staff in a radio address.

Lester Aronstein, 15, goes each day from the A. P.'s Wall Street bureau to obtain a copy of the day's report, including the fateful figures upon which a great deal of money is later to change hands.

On several occasions, according to Mr. Huse, Lester has been halted by strangers, who have offered him $50 to reveal the figures several hours in advance of publication.

"And this boy, without a moment's hesitation, has in each instance refused the bribe and has remained true to his trust and to the Associated Press," Mr. Huse said.

USE THE CLASSIFIED PAGE

It will sell Equipment or Services, make contact between employer and employee and open up Business Opportunities.

Many advertisers endorse the Classified page of

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

NEW ADDITION READY

Tulsa World Editorial Department Moves Into New Quarters

With work on the new four-story addition to the five-story building of the Tulsa (Okla.) World rapidly nearing completion, the editorial staff was moved Tuesday into its new quarters on the third floor and the second floor given over to the mechanical department.

When the addition is completed Eugene Lorton, publisher, will erect a private bungalow on the roof.

New equipment for the mechanical department, including three linotype machines and stereotyping apparatus, will be installed soon. The World will receive Consolidated Press service beginning July 15.

Move to N. Y. Post Plant Delayed

The New York Evening Post will not move to its new plant until Aug. 1, it was announced this week by C. C. Lane, business manager. It had been expected that the move would be made about July 4. Work of installation of four sextuple Scott presses is virtually completed. The linotype battery, consisting of 40 machines, has not yet been installed.

Supplies—Equipment

PRESS CONTROL

C-H "Safest System in the World"

For large and small plants

Cutler-Hammer Controllers for presses of every size and for every type of motor-driven machine.

Address all communications:

The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.

Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus

1203 St. Paul Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

CUTLER-HAMMER

Don't "Pig" Metal

It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT SLUG FEEDER

Eliminates the Metal Furnace

Printers Manufacturing Co.

1109-17 Transportation Bldg.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

THE MARGACH FEEDER

for

Linotype, Intertype, Monotype, Ludlow, and Elrod machines

$75.00 each

Further inquiries may be directed to the N. Y. Times — Phila. Bulletin

Chicago Tribune — Boston Herald

or several hundred other publishers upon request.

Margach Mfg. Co., Inc.

211-215 Centre St., New York

Modern

Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.

TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS

ALL TYPES

SEND for LIST

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO—NEW YORK—LONDON

LEGAL

INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY
New York, May 26th, 1926.

The Board of Directors have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent (1¾%) on the Cumulative 7% Preferred Stock of this Company, and a regular quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent (1½%) on the Cumulative 6% Preferred Stock of this Company, for the current quarter, payable July 15th, 1926, to holders of record at the close of business July 2nd, 1926. Checks will be mailed. Transfer books will not close.

OWEN SHEPHERD, Treasurer.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Reaches the Man Who Buys

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS
(Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

/hite space charge at same rate per line per sertion as earned by frequency of insertion. pecial rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. he Editor & Publisher reserves the right to assify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

dvertising Promotion—If you want more usiness, communicate with the International ublications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 41 Broadway, New York City.

USINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

wo Splendid Bargains—Evening paper exclu- ve Southwestern field; earning 25% net on ice asked; initial payment $10,000; balance sy terms. Weekly paper and job plant; large rtile field. Earning 40% on price asked; itial payment $7,000. These are real oppor- nities. J. B. Shale, Times Bldg., New York.

estern Pennsylvania Weekly, only paper in unty seat of large county. Profitable busi- ss and splendid equipment. Available for 1,500 on terms. Prop. 1450x. The H. F. enrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Interest for Sale

terest, carrying position of business mana- r; Oklahoma city of ten thousand; only daily rich and fast growing city; salary commen- rate with ability; applicant should have from e to seven thousand. Address A-612, Editor Publisher.

CIRCULATION

Premiums

emiums of every description. Your Publisher ces no risk. C. R. Bailey, Hoboken, N. J. rmerly New York. Estab. 1888.

el Coaster Wagons—A Philadelphia daily ers 10,000 (ten thousand) and numerous large lies throughout the country are offering usand lots. Parents will work on a wagon er. Let us quote you. Circulators report a nderful summer for kid offers. Plenty of py. The Steel Co., Box 203, Palmyra, N. J.

Promotion

culation—When quick, additional circulation erage becomes necessary, remember that our nty years in this one line of endeavor is ir proof against experimenting. Write or e Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell ck, Cincinnati, Ohio.

culation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Cen- Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Sales- nship Club Campaigns.

w Many New Mail Subscribers do you nt? We will tell you how to get 'em and get fast. A large daily secured ten thousand ,000) subscribers on this offer. The All- ght China Co., Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

w York Bolletina dela Sera and Toledo io) Times are the new customers this k. For samples of a live, alert, up-to-date vice, write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City l Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

istant Manager—Man, age 30 to 40, as istant to the manager of internationally wn and fast growing photographic news anization. Must have editorial and manager- experience. This position offers an unusually ht future for the right man. State all of r qualifications including age, education, past erience and earnings. Write freely as your r will be held in strictest confidence. Ad- s President, A-621, Editor & Publisher.

sified Manager, experienced, wanted; capa- of increasing three pages daily, seven pages day, in the largest morning and afternoon rs in the State, with the only Sunday paper the city of 144,000. Southwest. Submit qualifications in first letter; age, salary, Oklahoman and Times, Oklahoma City, a.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Editorial Writer—Experienced, with background of liberal education, and fitted for making up editorial page. Character and dependability requisite. Wanted by leading paper in attractive city between 250,000 and 300,000 population. A-627, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor for the leading newspaper in a highly competitive New Jersey field. $100 weekly. In answering give full details of previous experience. Box A-622, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Vermont Daily seeks reporter with Vermont background, 22 to 32 years old. Should be capable of early growth to desk responsibilities, but genuinely devoted to reporting. Address A-611, Editor & Publisher.

Telephone Room Manager in Classified Advertising Department of large Metropolitan newspaper (Daily and Sunday) where selling ability is essential and governs production. Person selected for this post must possess initiative, executive ability, experience in managing telephone division, selling classified advertising by telephone, able to conduct sales meetings and assist girls in improving their sales talk. Classified Department of this newspaper is one of the leaders in the country in methods employed to develop classified advertising. The value of this paper to advertisers is equal to that of any paper in this locality, but it must be sold. Manager of this Telephone Room must be able saleswoman and executive of highest type. Write for appointment, stating age, past experience in classified field, salary desired, etc. A-629, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager and Newspaper Executive wishes connection July 12. Twelve years' experience—retail accounts, manager national, manager special features, statistical and circulars promotion prepared; age forty; married; Christian; arts graduate. Prefer growing suburban paper. A-593, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager, experienced, loyal, aggressive, forceful. I can deliver. Possess executive, salesmanship and creative ability. Can manage entire advertising department. Want permanent place on daily. Can come on receipt of wire. A. M. Vurman, 151 Queen St., Charleston, S. C.

Advertising Manager with successful record on leading papers, will connect with good paper, any location. Best references. A-625, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager, Solicitor—8 years' experience, cities up to 260,000. Builds linage, prestige, goodwill. Writes selling copy, makes effective layouts. Married. Permanent connection in Southwest preferred. Town 8,000 to 100,000. References. A-624, Editor & Publisher.

Assistant Circulation Manager or Circulation Accountant—Position wanted by disabled veteran. A find for a progressive publication interested in clean circulation only. A-610, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager—Will make you proud of your next A. B. C. audit. Can give you an increase in circulation that will warrant a boost in your advertising rates. 20 years in the business. Proven record. Address Circulation Manager, 434½—19th Ave., Moline, Illinois.

Circulation and Promotion Manager seeks confidential correspondence and interview with publication or combination needing new life in the direction and leadership of its circulation department.

Study this ad, it's your paper's opportunity. The writer with years of experience, enjoys a constant flow of productive ideas; is a good leader and pusher; never hibernates; knows cost, where his figure is at all times and how to control it; accustomed to the keenest competition, yet able to eliminate lost motion in promotion; will show tangible results within ninety days and thereafter until you say "enough." Metropolitan and provincial experience.

Judicious spender, showing 100% results for your dollar.

Actual working experience covers every cog of a circulation department, consequently the applicant can immediately place his hand on any part of an organization not functioning 100%.

Location—no objection.

Salary reasonable with provision for compensation in accordance with results. Future prime thought, not a drifter.

Age 35, family, excellent health. At liberty with due notice. Excellent reference.

Now is the time to change a circulation executive to perfect your organization and show fast, sound growth. Address A-618, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager with fifteen years' experience, all branches of department, desires permanent connection with live organization as manager where ability counts. Have had complete charge department on several leading daily newspapers. At present assistant on Morning, Evening and Sunday in city of 175,000. An organizer and executive, economical and hard worker. Especially strong on boy promotion, city and country. Believe in honest methods, can fill requirements of A. B. C. Get the revenue and production at lowest cost; 38 years old, married, sober. Best of references and record. Available on 30 days' notice. Address A-626, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation Manager—Mr. Publisher, can you use this Circulation Man? Age 28, Christian; started as newsboy and worked up to Circulation Manager, Subscription Manager, etc., of one of the leading dailies in the east; knows the circulation problems of the average publication thoroughly and his long training and experience fits him to offer intelligent solutions. His record substaniates his constructive efforts; does not resort to sensational methods but believes in a sane, constant program in gaining objectives. His present position does not afford him of further advancement and his ambition and enthusiasm will not reconcile itself to such a situation—hence, he wants to make a change; preferably with some publisher in a city of about 100,000—who desires a circulation manager who is not afraid of "plugging" and putting in long hours. Highest references. What have you to offer? Write in confidence to A-623, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, competent, available on short notice due to sale of paper. Thoroughly familiar with all phases of circulation work by actual experience, from mailing room to promotion. Address A-614, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Advertising Manager; four years' experience on papers in cities of 100,000; now employed as Sales Manager of advertising lines, but wish to return to newspaper field; have good record for linage increase on previous publications. A-581, Editor & Publisher.

Composing Room Superintendent wishes position where efficiency and ability are desired. Fourteen years in charge of one plant, now in charge of composing room of morning and afternoon paper. Prefer to go South on morning paper, but intend making a change, and would like to hear from manager or publisher desiring a reliable, permanent man. Can give reference. A-598, Editor & Publisher.

Copy Reader, Reporter, 15 years' experience on large, small dailies, seeks job with newspaper which can use man of wide training in all divisions of editorial department work. Good on city desk, makeup, special editions. No objection to small city; 35, married. A-619, Editor & Publisher.

Desk Man and Editorial Writer with 14 years' experience in metropolitan and smaller fields, eight as managing editor, now available. Thoroughly competent and reliable, with excellent record of accomplishment. Details and references gladly submitted. Write or wire "Editor," 122 East 2nd Street, Muscatine, Iowa.

Editor, City or Telegraph, now employed, city near 50,000, trained in all departments, seeks desk or assistant position in city of 50,000-100,000. Handle sports. A-620, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial and Desk Work on daily paper wanted by newspaper man of experience. Examples of headlines, special articles and editorials furnished on request. References. B-992, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Four years managing editor Staten Island Advance; two years city editor, Camden, N. J., Courier; four years, City Hall reporter Philadelphia Evening Ledger, and three years City Hall reporter and political writer Philadelphia Record, seeks managing or city editor post on afternoon daily in city of 40,000 to 200,000 population. Best of references from owners or executives of all papers. Address St. John McClean, Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Managing Editor or News Editor—Must make change because of wife's health, 35 years old with record of uncommon achievements in daily field. Desires city under 100,000 where there is opportunity to build downtrodden paper; 15 years' experience. Address A-528, Editor & Publisher.

News Editor—Experienced newspaper man, employed in responsible position on editorial staff of metropolitan newspaper, desires executive place on smaller daily. Am 28, university graduate, and have spent the last 10 years in active newspaper work. Thoroughly familiar with all branches of editorial department, including make-up. A-605, Editor & Publisher.

News Room executives' services available. Seventeen years experience with newspapers and wire services. A-617, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—City editor, sports, feature, and circulation experience, desires opportunity on paper west of Chicago. A hard worker with good references. Age 25. A-613, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Four years' experience all runs. Some desk experience also. References. Ralph Kahn, 3411 North 16th, Omaha, Nebr.

Superintendent-Foreman composing room, desires change. Foreman daily 14-48 pages. Experienced all branches. Capable executive who can get maximum output. Go anywhere. A-616, Editor & Publisher.

Veteran Editor, metropolitan and interior experience, wants responsible executive or editorial position; now on New York daily. A-615, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Duplex Tubular Printing Press, 16-page, for sale. Due to purchase of Journal by Sun, this fine machine will be released about July 10. Prints modern 8-column paper any size up to 16 pages, including 14 pages. In perfect condition. Specimens of work sent. Also other newspaper machinery, including Hoe Saw & Trimmer, Hoe Mat Rolling Machine now used on dry mats, Proof Presses, etc. For prices and terms, address Lewiston Daily Sun, Lewiston, Me.

Goss Comet and Duplex Flat-bed Presses for immediate delivery. Good condition guaranteed. Also several good bargains in stereotype presses and machinery. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Hoe Dry Mat Roller, new only one year ago. Alternating current motor, 40 seconds travel. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Four Rebuilt Model 5 Linotypes for sale at bargain prices; equipped with gas metal pots and individual electric motors. Register Publishing Co., Danville, Va.

The New York Times Has for Sale 10 Hoe pneumatic steam tables, 2 wood matrix rollers, 2 Westinghouse Duplex Direct, motor driven Air Compressors with tank. If interested write Mechanical Superintendent, The New York Times, 229 W. 43d Street, New York City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Equipment Wanted

Duplex Tubular Press equipment wanted—must be in good condition. Sixteen page preferred. Give price, terms and date available. A-628, Editor & Publisher.

Tissue Holder and table for wet mat making wanted. Lansing Capital News.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER
350 Madison Ave., New York
Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT

Reporters
Copy readers
Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L BLD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $$ $$ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

SOME good warm day get up a page of "Ways of Keeping Cool," and get the swimming pool, the ice cream parlors, the palm beach suit merchants, electric fan people, ice box people, ice dealers, bathing suit and sporting goods dealers, straw hat stores, auto dealers, cool restaurants, etc, etc., to take space and specifically show the residents how.—C. M. L.

Newsboys on one newspaper are given a specified commission on every classified advertisement they turn in at the office or substation received from their subscribers. The slogan of the paper is: "Give your Want Ad to the carrier boy or telephone it to the office."—B. A. T.

This will be a big summer for portable music—harmonicas, ukuleles, portable radio sets, portable phonographs, etc. Devote a spread to the advertising of musical instruments that can be easily carried on auto trips and to summer resorts and camps.—F. H. Williams.

A local grocer has stirred up quite a bit of additional business by listing the new merchandise he gets in each day. He heads it—"New Arrivals—Just In For Tomorrow's Business." He runs it single column, from four to six inches as needed, and it brings business, not only because it conveys vividly the idea that his goods are fresh—new goods arriving daily—but the housewife reads it every day for hints on what she can have—something different—for the next meal.—O. H. S., Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

Everybody stages a "week" to direct attention to some particular offering. Why not a Want-Ad week? The Danville (Ill.) Commercial News does and with such success that it is an annual affair and brings advertisers to the want-ad column who become frequent users. Full-page ads, news-stories of the purpose of the want-ad page and its uses, with results of ads during the week build up interest.—L. S. J., Danville.

Ask Mr. Advertiser what is unique about his store and get him to advertise this feature. One department store in Cincinnati furnishes a bus that takes you free to the very door of its competitors! Yet they are making money on this unusual service. A customer purchases a ticket to his destination for five cents. This ticket can afterwards be used at the store as the equivalent of five cents on any purchase made there.—Thora Eigenmann, Bloomington, Ind.

A "What's Right with Blankville" contest will add heavy linage for your paper. Offer a capital prize of $50 in gold, $15 and $10 respectively for second and third prizes, for the best 100 word essay on the subject. Get three prominent business or professional men as judges. In towns of 25,000 it is easy to get at least 24 extra pages for the edition. The contest will create interest in your paper and dollars in your pocket. It gives an opportunity to get revenue from firms which usually have nothing to advertise. —Davis O. Vandivier, Franklin, Ind.

Did you ever try sending out notices in advance by mail concerning pictures to appear in your paper at a future date? Send the notices to all the subjects and other interested persons. It pays.—B. A. T.

DAILY HOLDS "STUNT" PARADE

Big Rally Held for Dr. B. U. L. Conner Mythical Editorial Character

A political parade unique in Texas annals was successfully carried out June 19, by Dr. B. U. L. Conner, mythical editorial page character of the Fort Worth Press, Scripps-Howard newspaper.

The parade was a climax of the "good-will building" race of Dr. Conner for the office of county judge on the Democratic ticket. He was filed by the newspaper as bona-fide candidates file, and campaign cards, billboards and all the propaganda regular candidates use, were used liberally in Dr. Conner's behalf.

Six floats prepared by interested people of Fort Worth, Dr. Conner "fans," followed a band, and 500 boys marched carrying banners. Movies were made of the parade, and are being shown in a local theater.

filed cost the sender $310; that cablegrams are not infrequently sent to distant and little known parts of the world.—L. C. Pratt, Pasadena (Cal.) Star-News.

An excellent Sunday feature is a Stamp Collector's column, with an article at the top, perhaps written by a local collector, followed by questions and answers for the youngsters following. An older collector in the city would be glad to act as Stamp Editor. The number of philatelists is growing constantly. The Philadelphia Public Ledger has long run such a column, and the London Times runs a daily stamp article.—J. B. H.

The Green Bay (Wis.) Press-Gazette is rendering a noteworthy service to its community in taking flowers to the sick. It has provided a flower car which calls at homes every Saturday and collects bouquets for the ill who are confined in the city's three hospitals. On the first trip seventy persons made floral offerings.—J. R. Wolf.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

IN these days of abundant divorces it might be of interest to offer a prize for the longest married couple in your city or county, and to have the aged husband and wife each give their recipe for their long and successful married relationship. You can uncover an endless chain of golden weddings in this respect, all of which are worthy of mention—Norman W. Ralston, Urbana, O.

In view of the widespread and apparently growing interest in religious subjects, why not invite your readers to state their views briefly on their religious beliefs. The San Bernardino (Cal.) Sun is now publishing a series of 50 short statements from leading citizens of the community under the heading, "My Religion."—L. C. P.

An examination of old municipal court dockets to unearth the queer things for which men were fined years ago in your city, the odd charges on which men were imprisoned, the spectacular crimes that stirred local interest anywhere between 50 and 10 years ago would make an excellent story or series of stories for summer reading.—Ruben Levin.

An Indiana newspaper adds punch to its radio section by offering a weekly prize to the local fan who turns in the best 300-word review of the week.—B. A. T.

For the convenience of local vacation tourists, and as circulation enterprise, the Dayton (O.) Daily News recently published a list of newsstands and agencies handling this paper in all important cities and resorts throughout the country, as well as in the foreign capitals. Some 30 cities were listed.—C. W. Myers.

There's a good human interest story waiting for an inquiring reporter in every telegraph office. The Sacramento Bee recently found that the longest telegram ever sent from the Sacramento Western Union office was one which Bryan sent to Wilson in 1913; that the shortest telegrams often contain but one word; that the average message contains twelve words; that the most expensive message

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service

Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.

4 page ready-print color comics.

Write for samples and rates

NEA SERVICE INC. 1200 W. 3RD. STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO

How To Play GOLF

By JOHNNY FARRELL

Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS

Illustrated

For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.

New York City

"Soch a Life"

By J. L. LEIBSON

A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in

One Thousand Word Stories

Illustrated by the well known artist

ALBERT LEVERING

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

373 Fourth Avenue, New York

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS

International News Service

"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"

63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

BY UNITED PRESS

AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK

UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

WALTER HAGEN

is covering the National Open Golf Tournament at Columbus, Ohio, for The Bell Syndicate

One preliminary story and a special wire each day during the tournament — analytical and critical material gauged to grip

The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

Among The Newspapers Publishing

Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series

Chicago Journal
Detroit News
Toledo Blade
Omaha Bee
Peoria Star Journal
Philadelphia Sun
Buffalo Times
Louisville Courier J'l
Oakland Post Enquirer
Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript

Why Not Join This List of Papers

Wire for Terms and Territory

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CI

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief

Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

NEW YORK~ One of the greatest Agricultural states~

HAS GREAT WEALTH IN FARMS

NEW YORK has always stood for supremacy in commerce and trade. But, the valleys and hillsides throughout the Empire State are dotted with hundreds of prosperous farms who readily find a market for their products in the rich urban communities and prosperous industrial centers. In fact, New York is one of the richest agricultural States according to the U. S. Census figures.

National advertisers are taking advantage of this fact by putting the daily papers of New York State on their lists.

Through the group shown below the greatest coverage of New York State is possible at the lowest cost.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Evening News.....(E)	34,444	.10	.10
Albany Knickerbocker Press.....(M)	34,018	.11	.11
Albany Knickerbocker Press.....(S)	56,924	.16	.16
Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat .....(E)	7,810	.04	.04
††Auburn Citizen .....(E)	6,389	.065	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle .....(E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle.....(S)	84,997	.22	.22
Buffalo Courier and Express.....(M)	110,000	.22	.22
Buffalo Courier and Express .....(S)	160,000	.30	.30
Buffalo Evening News.....(E)	138,294	.25	.25
Buffalo Evening Times.....(E)	102,562	.21	.21
Buffalo Sunday Times.....(S)	108,219	.21	.21
††Corning Evening Leader.....(E)	9,339	.05	.05
Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser.....(E&M)	33,487	.11	.11
Freeport Daily Review .....(E)	7,991	.05	.05
††Geneva Daily Times.....(E)	5,040	.04	.04
Gloversville Leader Republican.....(E)	7,238	.035	.035
††Ithaca Journal-News .....(E)	7,751	.05	.05
Jamestown Morning Post.....(M)	11,722	.04	.035
Middletown Times-Press .....(E)	7,127	.04	.04
Mount Vernon Daily Argus.....(E)	10,437	.05	.05
Newburgh Daily News.....(E)	12,132	.06	.06
††New Rochelle Standard-Star .....(E)	8,598	.04	.04
The Sun, New York .....(E)	257,067	.60	.56
New York Times ....(M)	356,471	.80	.784
New York Times.....(S)	610,041	.95	.931
††New York Herald-Tribune .....(S)	345,484	.693	.672
††New York World .....(M)	287,682	.595	.58
††New York World .....(S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World .....(E)	294,442	.595	.58
Niagara Falls Gazette .....(E)	20,629	.07	.07
Port Chester Item.....(E)	4,732	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise.....(E)	12,824	.06	.06
††Rochester Times-Union .....(E)	70,406	.21	.20
††Syracuse Journal .....(E)	65,326	.16	.16
Troy Record .....(M&E)	22,679	.06	.06
Watertown Times .....(E)	17,334	.08	.08

 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

High Printability

NO telegraphic service in America has a higher percentage of use than the Consolidated Press service for Sunday newspapers.

Why?

Because there is always space for a good story. And it is a good story if it is by that genial reporter, known up and down America for his knack with words and his twenty years' intimacy with the great and the near-great of the nation: Bob Small.

that cheerful woman writer who gets a laugh into every line of her copy and yet keeps it copy in the news-desk sense: Jessie Henderson.

those two canny reporters, one who has the investment market in his inside pocket, and the other who turns out banner-heads for the business pages: Byron Seller and Harden Colfax.

those four outstanding "giants" of European journalism trained in American news values and past masters at picking the human stories out of the tangle of trans-Atlantic news: Gardiner, Harden, Reache and Bird.

those three time-tested sport writers, revered on the bleachers, the green and the squared-circle, who give you high spots on golf, boxing and baseball: McCarthy, McGann and Chadwick.

These are some of the reasons for the 100 per cent printability of the Friday Night Leased Wire Service of The Consolidated Press.

A telegram will bring our prospectus.

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

New York	Chicago	San Francisco	Paris
Eighth Floor	Third Floor	Third Floor	Fourth Floor
World Building	Daily News Building	Bulletin Building	19 Rue d'Antin

THIS ISSUE: SOUTHERN PUBLISHERS PROCLAIM NEW INDUSTRIAL ERA

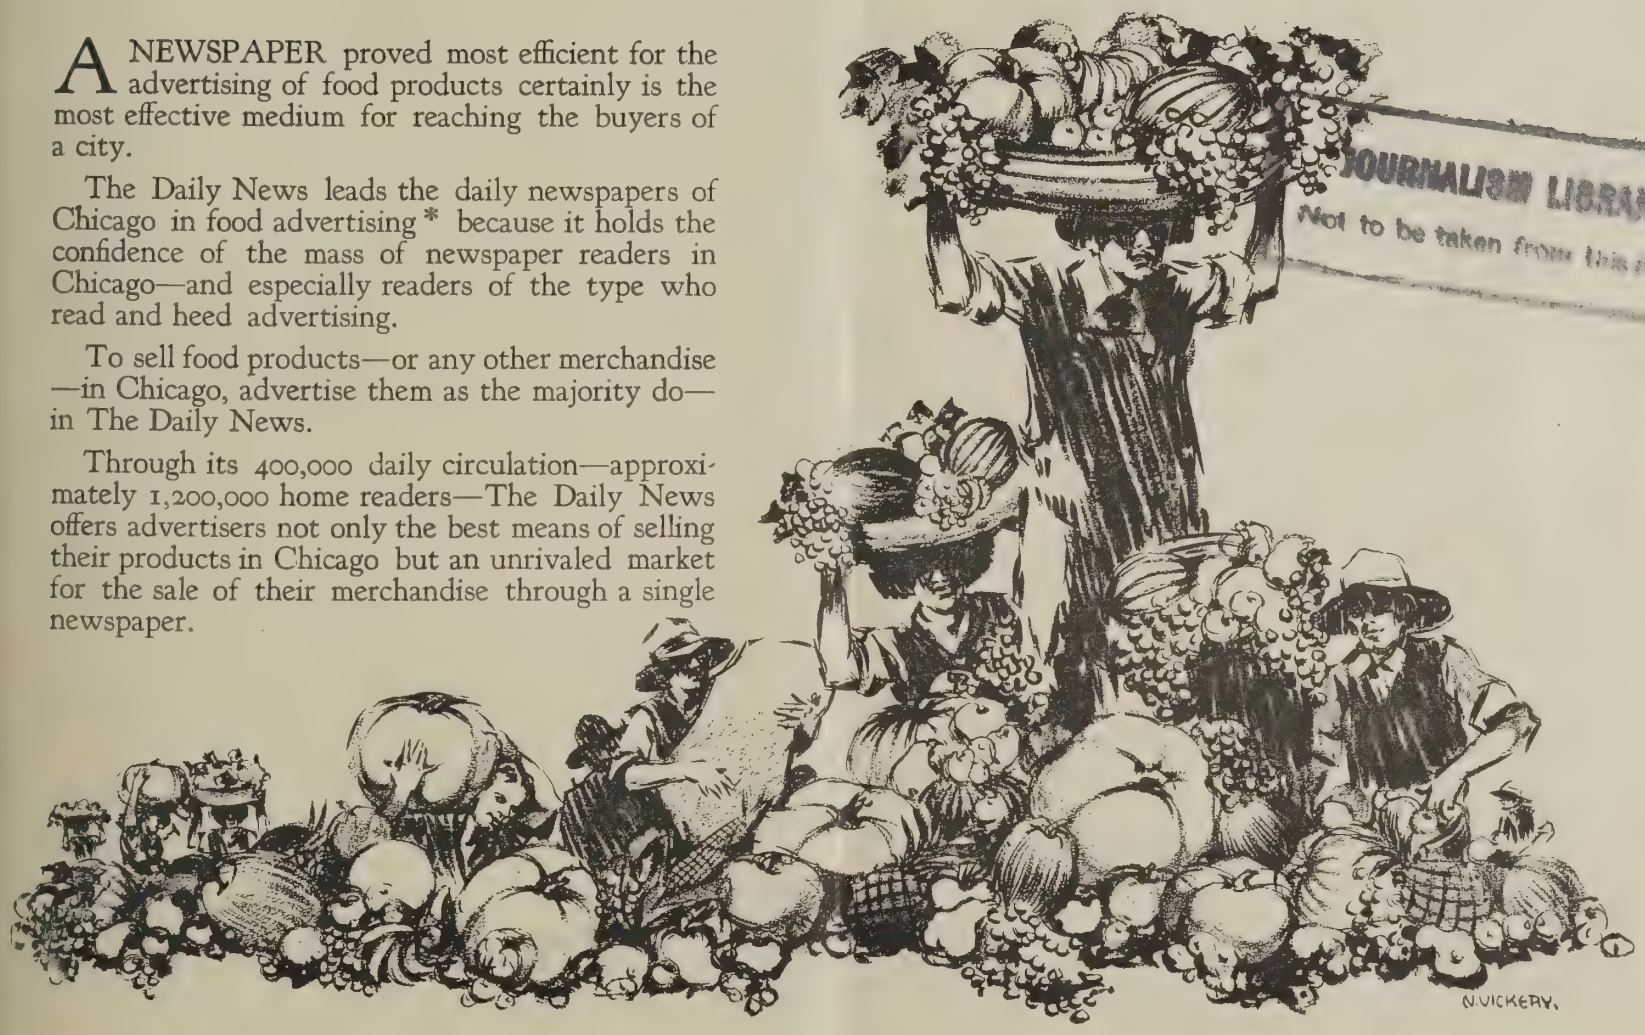
EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 7 | NEW YORK, JULY 10, 1926 | By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign | 10c Per Copy



FOOD PRODUCTS Are a Barometer of the Advertisers' Market

A NEWSPAPER proved most efficient for the advertising of food products certainly is the most effective medium for reaching the buyers of a city.

The Daily News leads the daily newspapers of Chicago in food advertising * because it holds the confidence of the mass of newspaper readers in Chicago—and especially readers of the type who read and heed advertising.

To sell food products—or any other merchandise—in Chicago, advertise them as the majority do—in The Daily News.

Through its 400,000 daily circulation—approximately 1,200,000 home readers—The Daily News offers advertisers not only the best means of selling their products in Chicago but an unrivaled market for the sale of their merchandise through a single newspaper.

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

*The Daily News leads Chicago daily newspapers both in food products advertising and in total display advertising. Following is the comparison for the first five months of 1926:

Food Products Advertising	Total Display Advertising
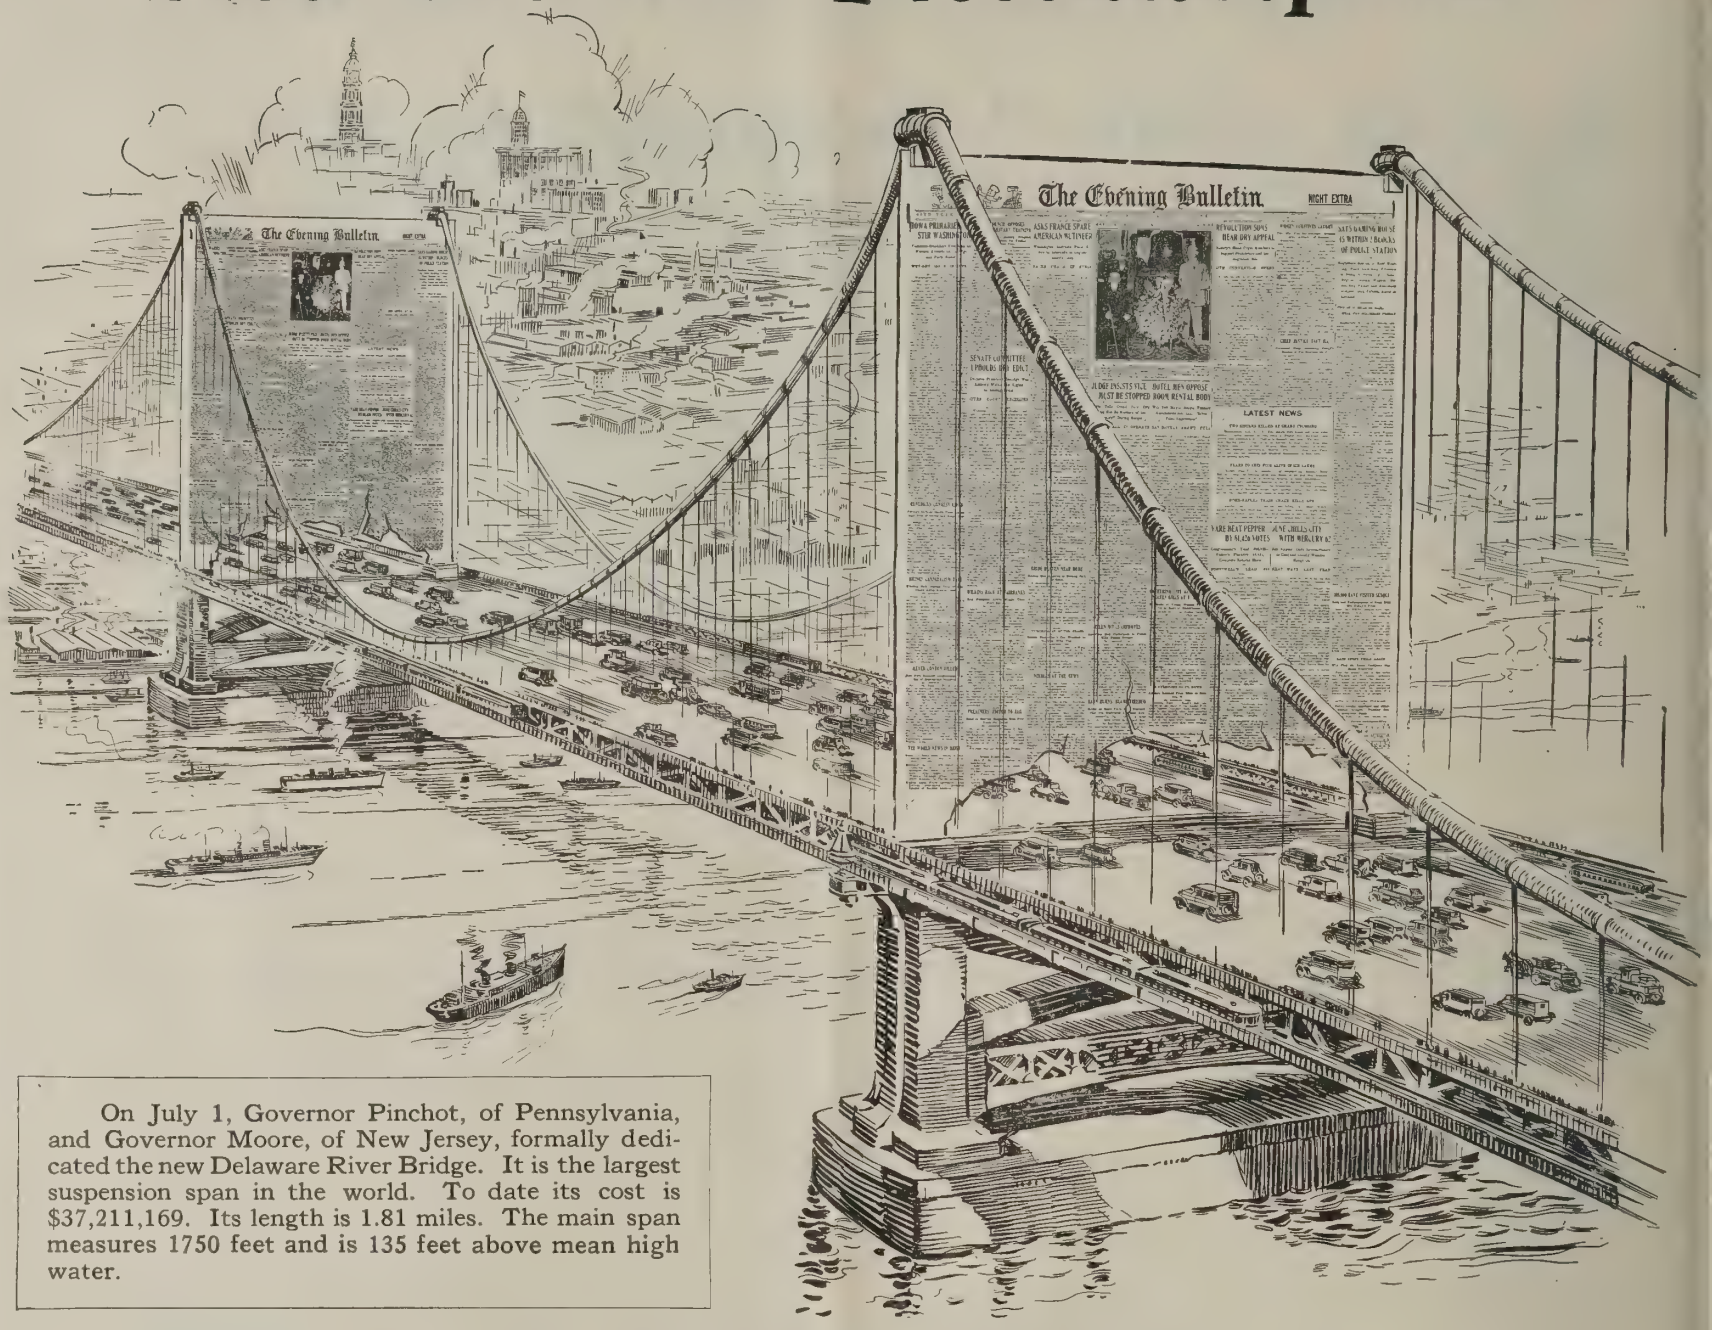
The Daily News, 415,791 lines	The Daily News, 7,386,315 lines
Next paper, . . 359,872 lines	Next paper, . 6,084,453 lines

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

First in Chicago

Advertising Representatives



NEW YORK
J. B. Woodward
110 E. 42d St.

DETROIT
Woodward & Kelly
Fine Arts Building

CHICAGO
Woodward & Kelly
360 N. Michigan Ave.

SAN FRANCISCO
C. Geo. Krogness
353 First National Bank Building

How to Enter Philadelphia!

On July 1, Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and Governor Moore, of New Jersey, formally dedicated the new Delaware River Bridge. It is the largest suspension span in the world. To date its cost is $37,211,169. Its length is 1.81 miles. The main span measures 1750 feet and is 135 feet above mean high water.

The Evening Bulletin is the Main Support of the "Bridge" between the Advertiser and the Philadelphia Consumer

The population of the Philadelphia retail area is about 3,300,000. U. S. Census figures give 5.4 persons to a family in this—America's third largest market.

Divide the population by 5.4 and the result will show you how completely this one newspaper covers this field.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Company)

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Evening Bulletin

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

533,169 copies a day

Average daily net paid circulation for the six months ending March 31, 1926. The circulation of The Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper and is the third largest in the United States

New York—247 Park Avenue (Park-Lexington Bldg.)
Chicago—Verree & Conklin, Inc., 28 East Jackson Boulevard
Detroit—C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 321 Lafayette Boulevard
San Francisco—Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 681 Market St.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 | NEW YORK, JULY 10, 1926 | No. 7

Advertising and Circulation Forces In Drive to Rout Summer Slump Bugaboo

Seasonal Lassitude Declared to Be Largely State of Mind—Newspaper Executives in Many Offices Tell What They Are Doing to Overcome Illogical Business Reaction in June, July and August—Excellent Linage Showings Are Reported

FIGHTING SUMMER LET-DOWN

EDITOR & PUBLISHER advertising statistics show that last year in 25 leading cities of the United States linage totals for July and August were approximately one-third below those for October of the same year.

This was in the face of the fact that 36 out of 85 principal lines of business in the United States enjoyed their peaks of trade in the months of June, July or August, or all three of the mid-summer months.

It is the experience of many newspapers that the so-called summer slump, both in the advertising and in the circulation departments, can be largely or completely overcome by energetic and intelligent staff work.

Mid-summer relaxation does not reflect general business conditions so much as it does the ennui, fatigue, lassitude or hot weather let-down of selling forces, in the opinion of many newspaper executives. Instead of coddling of this futile psychology enterprising managements are using strong measures to discourage it.

The mid-summer reaction in the newspaper business is being vigorously attacked this year, as communications from many advertising and circulation managers in this issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER testify.

WHY a Summer slump in the newspaper business?

Two weeks ago EDITOR & PUBLISHER asked this question editorially, citing the fact that the midsummer relaxation does not reflect economic conditions in this country, as business proceeds in hot weather as usual in many lines, 36 out of 85 leading businesses actually showing peak year volume of trading in June, July and August. It was further pointed out that people, possessing greater leisure often read newspapers more completely in Summer months. In short, there is no real business logic in the customary average decline of one-third in newspaper advertising linage in mid-summer.

A large number of newspaper advertising executives and circulation managers have responded to EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S suggestion that business be prodded with a sharp stick in June, July and August to hold normal linage averages.

What are newspapers doing to maintain normal business conditions in June, July and August? This question is answered in many of the communications received by EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week as follows:

Louis Wiley, business manager, New York Times, said: "We have found that it is unnecessary to make any special effort to develop business to prevent a big summer slump, if a special effort is made to maintain circulation.

"Make your paper available to people traveling, is, I believe, one fundamental rule for preventing a slump in circulation during July and August.

"We have followed that rule carefully this year. For the first time we solicited and obtained subscriptions for the Times from the leading hotels in all important cities of the world where Americans are apt to be visiting. We also conducted a special drive the result of which has made it possible for people to obtain copies of the Times at all principal hotels and news stands in large cities of the United States. This summer, in order to hold up circulation, we have also started special rotogravure supplements, which are distributed with the Sunday Times in Westchester county, Long Island, and New Jersey."

"The Washington (D. C.) Star does not suffer a serious business summer slump," said Fleming Newbold. "As an evidence of business activity during last July, August and September the Star's advertising volume was only three per cent less than during the months of January, February and March. There is an indication of greater summer activity than usual this year. June's business was 16 per cent over last year only the rich and fashionable leave Washington for the summer. There are 750,000 people within the city and trading area, dependent upon the nation's capitol for their needs, whose homes are open throughout the entire year. This population is greater than that of any one of thirteen states and is thoroughly covered by the Star's delivery system."

W. W. Hawkins, of the Scripps-Howard general management, said: "The phrase, 'summer slump,' ought to be eliminated from the newspaper lexicon. There are many busy, thriving cities in the world where it is warmer all the year round than in any important city in the United States in August.

"If a newspaper man talks about a 'summer slump' and prepares himself for it, he surely will get it. It is almost entirely psychological.

"The Scripps-Howard newspapers throughout the country have shown the greatest gains in their history this year. June was one of the greatest months the concern has ever known. July is starting off like a record breaker. All it takes is a little forethought and planning to kill the idea of a 'summer slump' and convince everyone that this is the best time of the year for creative competitive work. People who are busy seldom have time to complain about the heat; loafers love to talk about it."

F. E. Tripp, general manager of the Gannett Newspapers said: "The Gannett Newspapers discovered last summer that the so-called summer slump to a certain extent is the result of a mental attitude on the part of the solicitors of the advertising departments. By enthusing our own departments we were able to make a considerably better showing.

"This year we are repeating the same idea and making special drives on seasonable summer copy such as electric refrigeration, ice cream, travel resorts and the like. We also have had considerable success in one of our cities with a campaign waged by the ice men competing electric refrigeration, also general publicity campaigns carried by local retailers against the increasing competition of house-to-house selling which seems to multiply in the summer months through the activity of students and the increased summer sale of women's underwear and hosiery."

Frank Carroll, advertising manager of the Indianapolis (Ind.) News, said: Special selling effort has been placed during the past two or three months upon advertisers whose business is logical for summer development. Our trade paper advertising is continued regularly, regardless of the seasons. Last year was the high linage record of the Indianapolis News, but the first six months of this year surpassed the same period of last year. In June our national linage was phenomenal, considering the season. It was increased sixty-eight per cent over June, 1925 and the increase looks good to continue during the balance of 1926."

S. E. Thomason, Chicago Tribune, said: "We are all working with our coats off, getting unusually satisfactory results, and there's no story in that. This summer slump in newspaper offices is largely a mental holiday."

W. F. Schmich, of the Baltimore "Sunpapers" said: "We are experiencing no mid-summer slump. Our business shows a ten per cent increase over the same period last year. Our morning and Sunday papers have had an increase of 86,481 lines and the Evening Sun has increased 139,904 lines. The total volume of the morning and Sunday Sun in June was 1,530,608 lines while that of the Evening Sun was 1,565,613 lines. July started off in good shape, national business being exceptionally strong and the local showing good. Classified is holding its own, although real-estate classification is very much off this summer."

E. M. Carney, editor of Exchanges and supervisor of promotion of the Hearst newspapers said:

"Ever since last fall, all the Hearst Newspapers have been preparing to beat the 'summer slump' in 1926. Ways and means of doing this have constituted valuable contributions to our house organ, Exchanges, all through the winter and summer months.

"The current issue of Exchanges might be called the 'Anti-Summer Slump Number' because the leading article and other contributions tell How to Beat the Bugaboo!

"One of our papers is using statistics to prove that business is good and that the 'Summer slump' is only a state of mind.

"Another paper has sent out handsomely printed 'invitations' to its advertisers 'to participate in the profits that accrue to advertisers who maintain full schedules during June, July and August.'

"Others are putting out various forms of promotion; and in many cases, summer vacations are going to be taken in the winter!

"The 'summer slump' bugaboo has received a great deal of attention in the Hearst Organization and it looks now as if we have it licked before it gets here!"

F. I. Archibald, advertising manager Lincoln (Neb.) Star: "About 13,000 student population leaves Lincoln during three summer months, curtailing store advertising, but we keep our linage up and our organization active on special pages and sections. We have been averaging about eleven special pages per week and publish the last of each August our annual review, State fair number, of about 120 pages. Through these efforts we have been showing increases in local, national and classified each month for the past several years. Outdoor parks, iceless refrigerators and resort and travel pages have assisted materially in our linage increase."

(Continued on page 40)

U. S. MAY CITE PAPERS PRINTING FRAUD ADS

New Trade Commission Rules Expected Dividing Responsibility for Fake Copy Between the Publisher and Advertiser

Equal responsibility for false or misleading advertising may soon be placed by the Federal Trade Commission upon newspaper and periodical publishers on one hand, and the advertiser and advertising agency on the other.

The Commission has under serious consideration the adoption of a new policy by which such responsibility would be divided between those who accept and those who place "fake," "quack," or otherwise fraudulent advertising.

While members of the Commission were chary this week about discussing the new rules governing advertising which are already partly formulated, it was learned authoritatively by EDITOR & PUBLISHER such rules are likely to be made public within a week or two.

It is understood the Commission feels the adoption of such rules would be in accord with the policy long advocated by those newspaper and periodicals which maintain an unrelaxing vigil over their advertising columns to prevent false or misleading advertising from creeping into them.

Several of the Commissioners are confident the proposed rules would meet with the approval of these newspaper and periodical interests, and would accomplish much toward stamping out not only objectionable advertising matter but the low-grade publication that is its medium.

Heretofore the Commission has only cited the concern or individual using "fake" or misleading advertising to misrepresent some article placed on the market. Those accepting such advertising have thus far escaped the commission's condemnation except indirectly. The Commission believes that if it were to deal equally with all parties to a false or misleading advertisement it could do much toward discouraging a practice which it knows has the strongest disapproval of legitimate publishing and advertising interests.

The Commission had not intended its plans with respect to "unclean" advertising as opposed to "clean" advertising to become public at this time, as it is not yet prepared to announce them, but the fact that it is contemplating dealing with false and misleading advertising with what it believes will be a more effective method than heretofore employed by it leaked out at the National Capital.

Approached by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, members of the Commission admitted such plans are now nearing completion, and expressed confidence when they are known and explained fully they will meet with the unqualified approval of those publishing and advertising interests to which, of course, the new rules cannot be applied as they are aimed only at the unscrupulous publisher who may not care what kind of advertising pours money into his till.

Harrop Buys Share in Daily

L. C. Harrop, recently Southern division business manager of the United Press with headquarters at Atlanta, has purchased an interest in the Manistee (Mich.) News-Advocate, evening paper, and will act as business manager. Harry W. Musselwhite, from whom Harrop acquired his interest, will direct editorial activities.

Percy Hammond Ill

Percy Hammond, dramatic critic for the New York Herald Tribune, who has been seriously ill as the result of an infected tooth, is recovering slowly. The infection from the tooth spread to his throat and Mr. Hammond was taken from his home at Easthampton to the Southampton Hospital, on June 27, where several operations were performed. He was reported resting comfortably on July 8.

GANNETT IN KANSAS CITY

New York State Publisher to Bid for Daily Star

Frank E. Gannett, owner of the Gannett string of papers in New York State, arrived in Kansas City, Tuesday, to bid for the Kansas City Star.

He said he had not decided what price he will offer. Mr. Gannett was accompanied by John McConnell, Chicago; Raymond H. McKinney, New York; Frank E. Tripp, Rochester, and Stanton Griffis, New York.

DAILY SPENDS $2,000 TO SOLICIT STORE

Brooklyn Eagle Buys Full Page Space in New York Times to Ask Gimbel Brothers for Its Business—New Departure

Merchants along Fifth Avenue, New York, were interested this week when the Brooklyn Daily Eagle purchased $2,000 full-page space in the New York Times to solicit the advertising of Gimbel Brothers, New York department store.

Instead of playing up the usual generalities found in newspaper advertisements, the Eagle addressed its full page directly to Gimbels, which has not been advertising in the paper.

"We have chosen this as the most efficient means to place a message simultaneously before the various members of your organization," the text of the advertisement began. "We know it would be most profitable for you to give Eagle readers the opportunity to follow your advertising in their favorite newspaper."

Then the story of the Eagle's market territory and its sales arguments were presented in detail in six tightly packed columns.

Sheldon Coons, advertising director of Gimbels, declined to be quoted regarding this new departure in solicitation, when questioned by EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

"The advertisement naturally will be applicable to other department stores than Gimbels," Robert V. Titus, advertising director of the Eagle said. "We consider the expense worth while. Addressing the message directly to one group of stores and in a way in which one of our representatives would tell it were he calling at Gimbels or Saks in person, is at least, we think, refreshingly new."

The idea originated with Harry Madden of the Eagle's New York office.

PROBE MARKET TRENDS

A. N. A. Announces Keynote of Annual Convention Set for Nov. 8-10

New tendencies in marketing will be the keynote of the annual convention of the Association of National Advertisers, it was announced this week by Robert K. Leavitt, association secretary. Sessions will be held Nov. 8-10 at some eastern city to be selected later.

Special effort will be made to bring out present day views on questions relating to distribution and to advertising as a factor in distribution. The newer tendencies of advertising, selling, market analysis and general distribution will be presented to show that "advertising is neither a sacred business nor a cure-all for distribution ills, but a sound marketing method," Mr. Leavitt said.

William A. Hart, director of advertising of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., has been appointed chairman of the convention program committee.

Arthur H. Ogel, advertising manager of the Wahl Company, has been elected to fill the unexpired term on the A. N. A. board of directors of W. S. Ashby, resigned.

The association's executive committee has appointed Mr. Leavitt to represent the A. N. A. on the Advertising Commission of the International Advertising Association for the next three years. E. T. Hall, Ralston Purina Company, and A. N. A. president, will also represent the Association.

N. Y. PUBLISHERS AND TYPOS FAIL TO AGREE

Meetings Adjourned July 7—Contract Expires July 1—Printers Ask $6 a Week Increase and 6½ Hour Day —Owners Ask Reductions

Negotiations for a new contract between the Publishers Association of New York City and Typographical Union Number Six are temporarily at a standstill.

Meetings between the two groups, which began June 1, were adjourned July 7, subject to the union's call. The present contract bears an expiration date of July 1, but contains a continuing clause, providing for status quo conditions until an agreement is reached or other action is taken by the International Typographical Union.

Leon H. Rouse, union chief, declined comment on the adjournment, pending a special meeting of the union to be held at Star Casino, New York, Sunday, July 11. Fred A. Walker, publisher of the New York Telegram, and chairman of the publishers' association, was likewise silent.

The printers are asking an increase in wages of $6 a week and a six and a half hour day. The owners have countered with demands for a reduction in pay and return to eight hour shifts. The wage reduction sought by the newspapers amounts to about $2.40 a day.

The contract under discussion became effective January 1, 1924, and provided for semi-annual increases in pay of a dollar a week.

Workers on day shifts were paid $58 a week from January 1 to July 1, 1924; night men $61, and "third shifts" $64. At the present time day men are getting $60 a week, night men $63 and "third shifts" $66.

Reporter on Airplane Trip

Bruce Gould, staff reporter of the New York Evening Post, was granted a week's leave of absence this week to accompany Capt. Homer M. Berry, who took off from Rooesvelt field, L. I., July 7, for a cross-country flight to Seattle, Wash., in a new Sikorsky, Pullman biplane. Gould intends to stop off at Des Moines, Ia., his home town. He formerly was associated with the Des Moines Register.

CUTS SUBSCRIPTION RATES

Decreased Cost of Production Cited by Huntington Advertiser

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 5.—Decreased cost of production and ability to handle a larger volume of business because of completion of a new plant and installation of new equipment is assigned by Luther T. Long, publisher of the Huntington Advertiser, afternoon daily, for a cut in subscription rates amounting to about 50 per cent.

The new rates are 10 cents a week by carrier and by mail, two cents a copy on week days and five cents a copy on Sunday. The old rate was 20 cents a week, three cents a copy on week days and seven cents a copy on Sunday. Announcement will soon be forthcoming, Mr. Long said, of improvements in news, editorial and feature service.

"The rates which have been in effect for the past few years," Mr. Long said, "were dictated by necessity. Under the stress of war, the price of white paper ascended to unprecedented levels and at the same time production costs in general soared. It was an experience typical of every other line of industry at the time. The Advertiser was compelled to advance its subscription rates.

"An important factor in the decision to cut the prices of the advertiser to the public is the new home in which it is published."

George C. Gardiner is circulation manager.

TAMPA TRIBUNE BUYS MORNING TELEGRAPH

Latter Daily, Owned by W. O. Stovall, Suspended with Issue of July 3—Plant to Be Sold

The Tampa (Fla.) Morning Telegraph, first issued Oct. 11, last year, was purchased by the Tampa Tribune, July 2, and its last issue appeared July 3.

The Telegraph was owned by the Gulf City Publishing Company, organized by W. O. Stovall, son of W. F. Stovall, former owner of the Tribune, immediately following the sale of the Tribune by the latter to its present owners. While W. F. Stovall was not actively known as one of the owners of the Telegraph, he financed the paper and, two months ago, took direct personal charge.

Purchase by the Tribune included only mechanical equipment and circulation. The price paid was virtually the inventory cost of equipment, it was stated. The Tribune will dispose of all equipment with the exception of the engraving plant, which it will operate.

The sale of the Telegraph ends the long newspaper career of W. F. Stovall, covering 35 years in Florida. Under the terms of the sale, neither Col. Stovall nor his son can engage in newspaper or other publishing business in Tampa for 25 years.

No changes will be made in the executive personnel of the Tribune, E. D. Lambright continuing as Editor and J. S. Mims as general business manager. S. L. Frisbie, former general manager of the Telegraph returned to the Tribune several weeks ago as advertising manager.

The transaction restores the Tribune to occupancy of the Tampa morning field which it has held for 33 years with the exception of the eight months' existence of the Telegraph.

Col. Stovall, in a telegraph statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER said:

"When I sold the Tampa Morning Tribune in June, 1925, to a syndicate of local business men for $1,200,000, I made up my mind to retire from the trying and exacting vicissitudes of journalism. Up to this time I have not changed my plans. I have never owned one penny's worth of stock in the Tampa Morning Telegraph. My son, W. O. Stovall and 30 other former employes of the Tribune organized the Telegraph and I loaned them $200,000, for two years without interest in order to assist them. The Tampa field is not ripe for two morning papers and the Telegraph sold its physical assets and its circulation to the Tribune and suspended publication. All creditors and stockholders will be paid dollar for dollar leaving W. O. Stovall to suffer personally whatever pecuniary loss that may occur."

$40,000 Offered for Paper

An offer of $40,000, exclusive of the book accounts, has been made for the Elizabeth Times Company, publishers of Elizabeth (N. J.) Times, by a syndicate headed by James E. Moran of Brooklyn.

Joseph E. Stricker, receiver for the Times will ask Vice-Chancellor Backes for a rule to show cause why the offer should not be accepted.

Hoe Names New Vice-President

F. G. Kent, works manager, R. Hoe & Co., Inc., was elected a member of the board and vice-president at the last meeting of the company's directorate.

Mr. Kent was at one time vice-president of the Sowers Manufacturing Co., Buffalo, and previously works manager of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Co.

Bridgeton News Fire

The Bridgeton (N. J.) News was able to continue publication without interruption following a $75,000 fire which almost wiped out its plant June 30.

S. N. P. A. PROCLAIMS NEW INDUSTRIAL ERA

Elect Park President—Johnson Chairman of Board—Next Meet Probably at Atlanta—Reports Indicate Flourishing Conditions Reflecting General Southern Prosperity—Tribute to Late Edgar M. Foster

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

By ARTHUR T. ROBB

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 8.—A year of rapid progress for Southern newspapers and Southern industries was reviewed here this week when the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association gathered at Grove Park Inn, for its 24th annual convention.

That the entire South, led by the press, is entering a period of remarkable expansion and progress was the theme of the meeting, which was the largest and most successful in the history of the Association.

The S. N. P. A. at the present time is functioning in a broad and efficient manner officers' reports showed. The membership is closely knit and cooperating fully in the many Association activities. Increased national advertising reached Southern dailies during the year as a result of the S. N. P. A. advertising campaign. No labor difficulties were encountered and co-operation with other publisher groups was closely maintained.

Walter C. Johnson, general manager of the Chattanooga News, who topped off nine years as secretary-treasurer with a term as president, was advanced to chairman of the board and was succeeded in the presidency by John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) Times. Wiley L. Morgan, general manager of the Knoxville Sentinel, was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and the following directors were unanimously elected:

Alabama—Victor H. Hanson, Birmingham News.

Arkansas—J. S. Parks, Ft. Smith Southwest American & Times-Record.

Florida—Herbert Felkel, St. Augustine Record.

Georgia—Clark Howell, Jr., Atlanta Constitution.

Kentucky—Urey Woodson, Owensboro Messenger.

Louisiana—L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Mississippi—Frederick Sullens, Jackson News.

North Carolina—C. A. Webb, Asheville Citizen.

Oklahoma—E. K. Gaylord, Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times.

South Carolina—W. W. Holland, Spartanburg Herald and Journal.

Tennessee—M. Stratton Foster, Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle.

Texas—A. E. Clarkson, Houston Post-Dispatch.

Virginia—J. P. Fishburn, Roanoke Times and World-News.

West Virginia—W. Guy Tetrick, Clarksburg Exponent.

Major Howell was elected in place of his father, who declined the tender of the nomination committee, which included the following: past presidents of the association, F. G. Bell, Savannah News, chairman; W. A. Elliott, Jacksonville Times-Union; W. T. Anderson, Macon Telegraph; A. F. Sanford, Knoxville Journal, and A. G. Newmyer, New Orleans Item-Tribune.

The S. N. P. A. will probably hold its 25th birthday party in the place of its origin, Atlanta, where the first meeting was held in 1903. The city extended through its newspapers an invitation to the 24th convention here this week and opinion apparently favors acceptance. The Board of Directors, which names time and place of meetings, will sound opinion by a referendum, the new board decided.

An informal mid-winter conference will be held in New Orleans, the convention voted Thursday.

Outstanding in the convention proceedings was the tribute paid to Edgar M. Foster, business manager of the Nashville Banner, who died June 20, just after he had prepared the report of the Association's Advertising Committee of which he had been chairman for several years. The report was read to the convention by Mr. Hanson. Upon its conclusion, Mr. Sanford, as a personal friend, and several others who had been associated with Mr. Foster during his 24 years as a member, director, and president recalled his services to the Association and his fine personal and business qualities, and Mr. Hanson presented the following resolution, which was adopted by a rising vote, the convention standing in silence for three minutes:

John A. Park, new president of Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association

WHEREAS, death has taken from the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association one of its most devoted, active and faithful members, a former president, a regular attendant upon its conventions and an enthusiastic worker in every branch of the activities of this body, and that this Association has suffered an irreparable loss in the passing of Edgar Foster, of the Nashville Banner, and

WHEREAS, not only the newspaper with which he had been connected for more than 30 years, not only this association of newspaper men who honored him and loved him, but also the people of Nashville, of Tennessee, and of the entire South lost in his death a faithful, loyal, enthusiastic friend, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, by the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, in annual convention assembled, that this Association go on record as expressing publicly its feeling of great and irremediable loss and as expressing to his friends, his business associates and his family our profound sympathy with them in their hour of grief, and be it further resolved, that copy of this resolution be spread upon the records of this Association and copies be furnished his family and the Nashville Banner.

Mr. Foster's report, which appears at length in another column, emphasized the excellent results which the Association's advertising campaign had wrought for the newspapers of the South, stating that national advertisers have spent more money in the South during the past year than in any similar period and since January most Southern newspapers have broken all previous records in the volume of national business.

Of cognate interest was the discussion Wednesday of the Association's part in the litigation on advertising commissions before the Federal Trade Commission. James F. Finlay, Association attorney, expounded the progress of the suit to date and outlined the Association's plan to call about 100 witnesses to establish the falsity of the Commission's charges that present advertising procedure is illegal. Mr. Finlay's explanation was supplemented by L. B. Palmer, manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the convention going into executive session to hear their reports.

Necessity for ample funds to execute the association's defense was stressed by President Johnson and several other members, notably C. P. J. Mooney, Memphis Commercial-Appeal, who warned the members against underestimating the serious situation for publishers which would result from an adverse decision by the Trade Commission.

"Don't be serene," said Mr. Mooney, "if this decision goes against us, it will be equivalent in the national field to a summary dismissal of all of our solicitors in the local field. We will have to reorganize our entire business if it is decided that the payment of commission only to advertising agencies and not to direct advertisers is a violation of the law."

Mr. Parks of Fort Smith and the officers warned the membership that the proceeding was against them as individuals and that each was liable for damages under the Sherman Act if the Commission held that advertising is Interstate Commerce and present practices to be unfair competition and in restraint of trade. Only nominal legal expenses have been incurred so far, it was stated, but it was impossible to predict how long the litigation would continue or what further expenditures would be needed. The cost of the defense to each member was trifling compared with the direct and indirect outlay consequent upon upsetting of the existing advertising structure. Collection of funds was referred to the Finance Committee to be named by the new president.

Postal affairs were reported by Col. Robert Ewing, New Orleans States, and discussed in greater detail by George H. Lucas, secretary of the American Publishers Conference, and L. B. Palmer. Upon motion of A. G. Newmyer, the convention voted thanks to Col. Ewing and his fellow committee members for their past year's labors. The report is summarized in another column.

Messrs. Palmer and Lucas also adverted to the Vestal copyright bill before the recent Congress, noting its provision for automatic copyright with registration of the copyrighted matter, which was declared to be an ever-present danger for newspapers. It accords international copyright privilege to any written article and lays open to infringement penalty any publication of such an article without the owner's authority. Mr. Palmer declared that the bill had no opportunity of passage at the session just closed and that the A. N. P. A. would be alert to protect newspaper's interest if the bill ever approached the dangerous stage.

Labor disputes have caused practically no trouble in the South during the past year, it was reported by F. C. Withers, Columbia State, chairman of the Committee, and only general principles were set forth by Harvey J. Kelly of Indianapolis, chairman of the Special Standing Committee of the A. N. P. A. in his first address to an S. N. P. A. gathering. Mr. Kelly referred to the trade union practice of arguing for increased wages by pointing to higher scales paid in other cities and urged the publishers not to give undue attention to that plea. It is only one of several important factors to be considered in wage adjustments, he stated. He also argued against execution of contracts with provisions for progressive wage increases over several years, stating that such contracts caused the prevailing average wage to ascend in an unending spiral and made equitable adjustment of wages in neighboring cities difficult. He offered the facilities of the A. N. P. A. office in Indianapolis to S. N. P. A. members having need of information in conciliation or arbitration proceedings, but declared that it was impossible in view of the amount of business in that office for the chairman to present individual cases in local arbitrations.

Mr. Kelly answered many questions from the floor as to existing and pending wage situations, the meeting going into executive sessions during his explanations.

"The extent to which some publications carry the lack of records is deplorable," declared John A. Park as chairman of the Business Office Affairs Committee. "There are instances where too much system and too many records have proven

(Continued on page 8.)

EWING, SHREVEPORT TIMES, TAKES HOME STAR PRIZE OF S. N. P. A. GOLF MEET

Poker Chips, Beverage Kits, Frappe Shakers, and Mahogany Humidors Won by Other Frantic Publisher Golfers Beneath Southern Pines

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 7—J. D. Ewing, Shreveport Times, was the star golfer at the S. N. P. A. tournament today, his 81 winning best gross in the members section and a silver cigarette case given by R. Hoe & Co., Inc. President Johnson's silver pitcher for best net by members went to James G. Stahlman, Nashville Banner, with 90-26-64.

In the guests' section, a mahogany poker chip case given by the E. Katz Special Agency was won by W. H. Johnson, Editors Feature Service, with a best gross of 86. J. F. Hawkins, of the Ludlow Typograph Company turned in the best net, 96-29-67, winning a beverage kit in case donated by the Cline Electric Manufacturing Company. Other awards were won by J. L. Ewing, New Orleans States, 84; 3rd best gross—hand carved whistler from Black Forest by American Type Founders Company won by J. R. Gray, Atlanta Journal, 87; 2nd best net—golf bag by Mergenthaler Linotype Company, won by Clark Howell, Jr., Atlanta Constitution, 95-26-69; 3rd best net—golfer's frappe shaker by John M. Branham Company, won by D. C. Barrow, Pensacola News and Journal, 91-20-71.

Largest number par holes in scores of 100 or more—Gladstone traveling bag by Walter Scott & Co., won by Richard Wasson, Asheville Citizen; 3 pars largest number birdies or eagles in scores of 99 or less—cigarette set and pouch by Imperial type Metal Company, won by Chas. A. Webb, Asheville Citizen, drawn from 4 ties; 2 birds best kicker—camera by Intertype Corporation, won by W. E. Page, Columbus (Ga.) Ledger; 2nd best kicker—golf bag by International Paper Company, won by Munsey Slack, Bristol Herald-Courier, drawn from 4 ties; 3rd best kicker—clock by John Budd Company, won by J. R. Holliday, Atlanta Constitution, drawn from 3 ties.

Worst gross—mahogany humidor by Goss Printing Press Company, won by Walter C. Johnson, Chattanooga News, 137; 2nd worst gross—royal Doulton tobacco jar by Lanston Monotype Company, won by Carter Glass, Jr., Lynchburg News, 121; worst net—half dozen golf balls, in case won by Junius P. Fishburne, Roanoke Times and News World; 4th best gross—three golf balls won by W. C. Dowd, Charlotte News, 88; 5th best gross—three golf balls won by R. H. Ryan, Petersburg Progress-Index, 90; 6th best gross—three golf balls won by E. Brown, Nashville Tennesseean, 94; 7th best gross—three golf balls won by H. C. Adler, Chattanooga Times, 94, drawn from 2 ties. Fourth best net—three golf balls won by R. F. Hudson, Montgomery Advertiser, 73; 5th best net—three golf balls won by James M. Thomson, New Orleans Item, 76; 6th best—three golf balls won by John A. Brice, Atlanta Journal.

Guests' section: Best gross—mahogany case of 300 poker chips by E. Katz Agency won by W. H. Johnson, Editors Feature Service, 86; 2nd best gross—sterling silver Hagen putter by Editor & Publisher won by Glenn Allen, Southern Sports Bureau, 87, from tie; 3rd best gross—sterling flower center piece by Geo. H. Morrill Company won by E. Wheatley, Reeve-Angell, 87.

Best net—beverage kit in case by Cline Electric Manufacturing Company won by J. F. Hawkins, Ludlow Typograph Company, 96-29-67; 2nd best net—wrist watch by Standard Rate and Data Company won by G. V. Rothenburg, Cone, Rothenburg & Noee, 92-24-68; 3rd best net—golf desk ornament by J. T. Horney Developments won by A. E. Beirnes, Standard Rate & Data Company, 106-37-69.

Largest number par holes in scores of 100 or more—auto lunch kit and thermos bottles by E. W. Blatchford Company won by G. J. Noee, Cone, Rothenburg & Noee, drawn from tie; largest number of birdies or eagles in scores of 99 or less—golf shirt, cap, stockings, etc. won by J. C. Harris, S. C. Beckwith Agency. Best kicker—golf scarf pin by Charles H. Eddy Company won by Chas. C. Kahlert, Kelly-Smith Company; 2nd best kicker—ostrich skin scarf and cigarette cases by Story, Brooks & Finley won by Jess Whiteley, Cecil, Barreto & Cecil, drawn from 4 ties.

Worst gross—taper wallet, cigarette case, card case and bill fold, in ornamental box by Ludlow Typograph Company won by Walter Botthof, Standard Rate & Data Company, 142; 2nd worst gross—thermos carrier and two Stanley bottles by Cutler-Hammer Electric Manufacturing Company won by A. B. Meyer, Bowater Paper Company, 134; worst net—half dozen Dunlop balls in case won by R. M. Watt, Kimberly Clarke Company, 128-24-104; 4th best gross—three golf balls won by H. A. Earle, Perkins Goodwin Company, 90; 5th best gross—three golf balls won by Geo. M. Kohn, Printers Ink, 91; 6th best gross—three golf balls won by Fred W. Bott, Mergenthaler Linotype Company, 94; 7th best gross—three golf balls won by H. W. Wilke, General Electric Company, 194; 4th best net—three golf balls won by J. C. Wilberding Gravure Service Corporation, 104-34-70; 5th best net—three golf balls won by Nelson Maynard, Wood Flong Corporation, 97-22-75; 6th best net—three golf balls won by R. O. Van Horn, Intertype Corporation, 115-40-75; 7th best net—three golf balls won by J. M. Marshall, Great Northern Paper Company, 101-24-77.

SOUTHERN RENAISSANCE IS HERE, SPEAKERS SAY

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 8.—Economics of the present southern prosperity formed the background of several addresses delivered at an informal evening meeting of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, a new feature of the program which kept the morning meltings entirely for convention business and devoted the evenings to the invited guests.

Oscar Wells, of Birmingham, president of the American Bankers Association; C. P. J. Mooney, of the Memphis Commercial Appeal and Dr. Frank Bohn, newspaper correspondent, all discussed various phases of the South's development.

"In the industrial age, we know industrialism does not produce very much," said Mr. Mooney, "it simply transforms, it takes things already in existence and makes them into other things—to make life easier for some people—and a great deal harder for many others.

"I went out riding this afternoon and saw some of your magnificent roads. I saw people in cars—going, going, going, —some ten, some 50, some 40 and a few 60 miles an hour.

"And I could tell from the faces of most of them that they did not have to get there in a hurry and in fact, had no particular place to go. That is what is wrong with us.

"We are on our way, but we do not know where. As I rode, I saw no bits of cotton and I saw no blades of corn and no golden grapes on your hill-sides and none close to your splendid roads. All I saw was automobiles—going, going, going, nowhere.

"Back in the old days, we editors used to spend our time discussing politics, cussing the 'damn—Yankees' and abusing each other. We sat at the corner grocery store and talked while the women worked. But a few years ago some of the editors got some sense—just a little. They went to work, not to reform the world, but to reform themselves. And with that beginning, the South has been transforming itself.

"But it isn't enough. We must keep from becoming industrial skeptics, and we can do that only by keeping our people on the farms and by making farm life easier and better, healthier and more sanitary."

Dr. Bohn's message was similar:

"I am convinced" he said, "that the South is destined to become the third great area of industrial civilization within the United States. The Northeastern and Midwestern industrial areas have become plethoric and morally decadent, engorged with great wealth and they no longer measure life in terms of manner or morals.

"I simply wish to warn you newspaper men that you have a duty to perform in shaping the South in its new life to steer clear of the rampant industrialism that has crushed the moral fibre of the North. You are bound here in the South to become vastly rich, but industrial success and the money it brings often proves a curse of civilization.

"Your only salvation lies in agriculture, just as the only salvation of the North will be in the taking of the vast hordes in the cities back of the country and spreading them in small towns."

Flat declaration that government subsidies to the farmer are dangerous and uneconomic was made by Mr. Wells, who said that the farmers difficulties cannot be solved by legislative encroachment upon economic law.

Mr. Wells touched also upon the installment buying system, saying that it has come to stay and that the present generation has the task of finding the best way of grafting it upon the present credit structure.

That it contained both extravagance and abuse, he said, there was no doubt, but these elements would be eliminated in time. He warned the publishers of danger to the country's economic safety if congress delayed in renewing the charters of the Federal Reserve banks, which expire in 20 years.

Dr. Dyer, traced the history of education in the South and the leadership of North and South Carolina in this field.

AIR ADVERTISERS FAVORED

New York Radio Stations Busy Selling Broadcast Space

Broadcasters paying for "air space" will dominate entertainment offered by New York radio stations when the fall programs begin, according to a copyright story published by the New York Sun, July 6.

Booking offices have begun a busy summer selling broadcasting time for the winter, giving the "air" to advertisers who will bear the cost of entertainment talent.

The Sun learned from officials of the Broadcasting Company of America and the Radio Corporation of America that little time on the winter schedules is being reserved for broadcast programs that are not "sponsored."

Sporting events and a few nationally important celebrations and dinners will be offered to the listening public without an advertising byline.

Attention is called to the fact that a number of political campaigns are on the calendar and that stations will sell time to candidates. Proposed legislation that would compel broadcasting owners to open their microphones to both parties was shelved until December with adjournment of Congress.

Don Seitz a Bank Founder

Don C. Seitz, an editor of the Outlook magazine and for many years business manager of the New York World, is named as an incorporator of the Cos Cob Trust Company, now being organized in Cos Cob, a suburb of New York City.

A.N.P.A. BEGINS WORK ON EXPANSION DRIVE

E. H. Butler, Buffalo News, Membership Committee Chairman, Appoints Leaders in Each State to Inform Papers of Association Work

Active work on its expansion program has been begun by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, with first steps being taken towards handling an increased enrollment expected to result from reduction of membership dues to smaller newspapers which becomes effective Sept. 1.

E. H. Butler

E. H. Butler, publisher of the Buffalo Evening News, and chairman of the A. N. P. A. membership committee, following a conference in New York late this week with L. B. Palmer, association manager, is appointing sub-chairmen in every state, who will name local committees to answer queries of non-member publishers and keep them informed regarding services performed by America's only national group for daily publishers.

No formal drive for new members is being made, according to Mr. Palmer, but he is confident many smaller papers will take advantage of the reduced dues.

"We have always realized," he said, "that a nation association, to be truly representative and function for the greatest benefit of the entire newspaper industry, must of necessity comprise in its membership not only portions of all classes of daily newspapers, but the largest possible number of all classes."

The total A. N. P. A. membership is now nearly 500. This number comprises some 210 members with less than 20,000 circulation and 84 with less than 10,000.

The slash in dues, first announced exclusively by Editor & Publisher last April, applies only to newspapers under 10,000 circulation. An increase in dues, making possible the addition of two new association departments—mechanical and traffic—is being borne by papers with circulations above 20,000. This latter group forms the bulk of the association's membership list.

The membership dues, effective Sept. 1, are figured as follows:

All members pay monthly dues of $12 per typesetting machine a year.

Members with circulations of 5,000 or under pay an annual fee of $50; with circulations of from 5,000 to 10,000, $75; and for circulations of more than 10,000 $25 for each cent of the national advertising rate.

Preliminary plans are now being made for the association's second fall convention to be held at French Lick, Ind., Nov. 10-12, and the suggestion is to be brought before the next meeting of the directors that non-members be invited to attend sessions, in order to learn just what the association is doing.

This same meeting of the board of directors to be held in August will complete plans for inauguration of the traffic and mechanical departments.

CLEVELAND NEWS MOVES

Occupies New Building July 4—Five Stories Devoted to Newspaper

The Cleveland (O.) News moved July 4, into its new five-story building, publishing its last edition in the old building occupied for the last 13 years on that date.

The new building is devoted exclusively to departments of the newspaper. It contains a cafeteria and barber shop for employees, a dining room for executives, and an auditorium. Virtually all new equipment was installed.

WHAT TO DO WHEN A LIBEL IS PRINTED

Nine Methods of Showing Absence of Actual Malice Listed by Col. H. W. Sackett, Noted New York Lawyer—"Good" Answer Frequently Half the Legal Battle, Sometimes Whole of It, He Says

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Way back in 1885, Col. Henry W. Sackett, member of the New York bar, prepared a book for employes of the New York Tribune a brief pamphlet entitled "The Law of Libel," with the sub-head, "What Every Newspaper Man Is Expected to Know About It."

From this book, which has stood the test without revision as a practical guide to reporters and editors for more than 35 years, is obtained the material making up this the 17th article obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

Col. Sackett for many years has been lecturer on the law of libel in the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University, New York. His book may be obtained by application to the University.

WHEN you're caught good and proper and you're in a libel suit up to your neck, what are you going to do?

Three defenses to libel suits, two of them discussed at length in previous articles of this series, lay at hand. They are:

1. To prove the published charge is true. This is called a "justification."
2. To show that the publication was "privileged."
3. To prove circumstances connected with the publication tending to show that it was not malicious or was provoked and excused by the conduct of the complainant. This is called a defense "in mitigation of damages," and forms the subject of this article.

Defenses in mitigation of damages are ably discussed by Col. Henry W. Sackett, member of the New York bar, and attorney for the New York Herald Tribune, in a book he has written entitled "The Law of Libel." He writes:

"If the publishers who are defendants in a libel suit are unable to show that the defamatory publication is true or that it is privileged, then the injured plaintiff is entitled to a verdict in some amount. How small this sum shall be will depend upon how good a case the defendants can make out in mitigation of damages. The range of defenses that may be interposed for this purpose is very broad. The following may be enumerated as the most important:

"(1) That the general conduct of the plaintiff gave the defendant 'probable cause' for believing the charges to be true.

"(2) That rumors to the same effect as the libelous publication had long been prevalent and generally believed in the community and never contradicted by the accused or his friends.

"(3) That the libelous article was copied from another newspaper and believed to be true.

"(4) That the complainant's general character is bad.

"(5) That the publication was made in heat and passion, provoked by the acts of the plaintiff.

"(6) That the charge published had been made orally in the presence of the plaintiff before publication, and he had not denied it.

"(7) That the publication was made of a political antagonist in the heat of a political campaign.

"(8) That as soon as the defendant discovered that he was in error he published a retraction, correction or apology.

"(9) That the defamatory publication had reference not to the plaintiff, but to another person of a similar name, concerning whom the charges were true, and that readers understood this other individual to be meant.

"The principle underlying all the above defenses is that they tend to show an absence of actual malice. Many other circumstances, too numerous and varied to be classified, and which properly could be used in the same manner and for the same reason to reduce damages, will readily suggest themselves in every one.

"The successful defense of libel suits depends largely upon having clear and trustworthy proof of the facts sought to be sustained promptly at hand as soon as the suit is brought. The 'Answer' that the publisher finds it necessary to make to complaint for libel differs from ordinary pleadings in this important respect—it must set forth in detail the facts that the defendant expects to prove.

"For instance.—The newspaper has called X. a blackmailer; X. brings a libel suit against the publishers. They seek to justify.' It will not be sufficient for them in their answer to allege that 'it is true, as charged, that X. is and was a blackmailer,' and then wait until the trial to bring forward proof of it. But X. has a right to know from the answer what the facts are upon which the publishers rely to establish the justice of the epithet 'blackmailer' as applied to him.

"Or, if the answer disclosed a defense 'in mitigation of damages,' as for example that the plaintiff's personal conduct was such as to induce any reasonable person to believe him guilty of the offense charged in the publication complained of, any particular instances of such conduct on the plaintiff's part that the publishers expect to prove on the trial must be set forth explicitly in the same manner.

"The putting in of a 'good' answer is therefore frequently more than half the legal battle and sometimes the whole of it.

"Any metropolitan newspaper that deserves the name finds itself compelled every day to publish matter that is defamatory in character. Otherwise there would be no journalistic records of crimes or of a large portion of the other occurrences in which the public is interested. The publisher's concern in that particular is a double one—that whatever of that nature is published in his newspaper should be true or privileged and that there should be clear proof of the truth or privilege.

"Every newspaper writer frequently finds himself called upon to deal with such matter. If it is the report of a trial in court, or if the writer finds that it is 'privileged' under the statute in any other way, he need have regard, so far as his report is concerned, to three points: (1) that the judicial or official proceedings have been already begun; (2) that his report of the testimony, etc., or synopsis of the sworn papers is fair and impartial; and (3) that he knows where he can put his hands upon the official records to sustain the privilege at any time.

"If the matter is defamatory and not privileged in any way, then the utmost care before publication with regard to the proof of its truth will be the only safeguard against libel suits.

"The publication of such matter upon the authority of any person's mere word, however truthful, trustworthy and careful that person may be believed to be, will always be attended with danger. The statements may be entirely true, and yet the giver of the information when called upon may not be able to furnish the proof. If he is, probably he could furnish it as well before as after publication.

"The only absolutely certain way for any newspaper writer to avoid all risk of this sort is for him to furnish for publication such defamatory matter only as he can sustain by his own testimony as an eye-witness, or such as he has seen the proofs of before writing the article.

"The almost certain result will be to prevent the bringing of a libel suit—the first consideration in this connection. If, on the other hand, a libel suit should be brought, the writer would be able to furnish the publishers with the best means of defense, namely, proof of the truth of the publication—which is of next importance."

Investigation of the claims and assertions made by the libel plaintiff in the complaint he has filed against a newspaper is of utmost importance in the defense of a damage action.

The plaintiff's lawyer has seen to it in his pleading that his client is a man or woman of faultless reputation and that the newspaper has been utterly malicious in attacking this innocent individual.

Newspaper lawyers in big suits spare no expense in rounding up facts regarding plaintiffs in damage litigation against them. In the recent case brought by Mrs. Sarah L. Robertson against a number of New York newspapers, one newspaper sent a representative all the way to the Pacific Coast to uncover details of the woman's past, which were introduced at the trial and contributed considerably in proving to the satisfaction of the jury that she was truly guilty of the charges published against her.

Libel has been defined as a "malicious defamation, either written or printed, charging upon or imputing to another that which renders him liable to imprisonment or tends to injure his reputation in the common estimation of mankind, or to hold him up as an object of hatred, scorn, ridicule or contempt."

But it is not generally necessary that the injured complainant should prove actual malice, according to Col. Sackett.

"If the defamatory matter complained of is false, the law presumes that the publication was malicious, unless it can be shown either that it was privileged by statute or otherwise, or the presumption of malice is overcome by actual proof," he explained. "That is to say, if the publisher claims that, although false and not privileged, the defamatory publication was not malicious, be must prove it.

"To prove that the defamatory publication complained of is true is an absolute and complete defense.

"The old maxim of the English criminal law, 'The greater the truth the greater the libel,' frequently quoted erroneously in this connection, has no application to actions in the civil courts, and at the present time would scarcely be invoked even in any of the criminal courts of this country, except under the most extraordinary circumstances.

"But it is not enough that the writer of defamatory articles himself knows that they are true, unless he is able to produce, when required, competent legal proof of their truth. What he himself has witnessed is, of course, competent evidence as far as it goes; when such proof can be strengthened by official records or other documentary proof, and by the evidence of other persons who can testify of their personal knowledge to the truth of the publications, a defense of the strongest character is presented.

"But one distinction should be observed carefully, a misconception in regard to which has given rise to many libel suits that have been difficult to defend. When it is said that 'the truth is a complete defense,' the literal truth of the published statement is not meant; but the truth of the defamatory charge.

"For example: a prominent official, say a judge, during the progress of a political campaign, either in the course of an interview or of a public speech, makes the charge against a candidate for an important office that he (the candidate obtained his naturalization papers either through perjury or subornation of perjury. A newspaper publishes the interview or the speech, giving the speaker's name and the exact language he used. If the candidate referred to should sue the newspaper for libel because of this publication, it would be no defense for the publishers to show that it was true that the speaker had said just exactly what the newspaper represented him to have said. In order to justify they would have to show that the defamatory charge was true, that the candidate had been guilty of perjury or subornation of perjury in obtaining his naturalization papers.

"In other words, no publisher or writers can escape responsibility for defaming a man's character by showing that it was on the authority of some other individual.

"The same principle applies to defamatory accusation republished from another newspaper, whether the name of the newspaper from which they are copied is given or not."

Col. Sackett has had nearly 40 years' experience as a newspaper libel lawyer and for many years has been lecturer on libel law at the Pulitzer School of Journalism, Columbia University, New York.

Of all the rules and admonitions regarding libel, that which he considers most important applies to the writers of headlines. Violation of this rule, he has said, has caused the large proportion of the difficulties encountered in the defense of libel suits.

This fundamental Sackett rule reads: "No headline should impute unchastity to a woman or a crime to any person. The utmost that headlines can properly do is to indicate that charges of unchastity or crime have been made or sustained in privileged cases, that is in 'judicial, legislative or other public and official proceedings."

INTERVIEWS ARABIAN KING

Dr. Ellis Returns After Adventures in Holy Land

Dr. William T. Ellis arrived in New York this week, accompanied by Mrs. Ellis, following remarkable adventures in the Holy Land. For the first time in history this newspaper man succeeded in covering in a ten months' journey the entire Bible area. Dr. Ellis succeeded in interviewing King Ibn Saoud, of Arabia, and got closer to Mecca than any undisguised Christian has ever gone. Death is the penalty the Christian suffers if caught inside of Mecca, and Dr. Ellis spent a night in the company of the king on the outskirts of the city, 14 miles from the Kaaba.

There were other adventures. In Arabia, their escort of armed cars was shot up by a large force of Arabs, Dr. Ellis' party escaping only because an American car with a frightened Armenian chauffeur is faster than the fleetest Arab steeds.

The party penetrated to all the ruined Biblical cities of Asia Minor and also of the Trans-Jordan region and did exploratory work in the heart of the Sinai Peninsula. They visited Babylon and Ur of the Chaldees, and Shushan and Ecbatana in Persia.

"Even more pervasive throughout the Near East than American automobiles," said Dr. Ellis, who is writing a book 'Bible Lands Today,' are the political ideals of America. The American war aims may have been temporarily forgotten in the land of their origin, but they are the greatest present political force in hither Asia. No Fourth of July orator ever conceived of such an outreach of our national ideals and influence as every traveller in the East may today report as a verifiable reality. History has no parallel for it. Most of the unrest in the Orient is due to the working of this American yeast. Our leadership of the oldest peoples is an international fact to be reckoned with."

S. N. P. A. PROCLAIMS NEW INDUSTRIAL ERA

(Continued from page 5)

burdensome, but the one outstanding need of Southern publishers is better accounting and more complete records."

In the editorial department, the situation is just as bad according to Robert Lathan, Charleston News and Courier, chairman of the Editorial Affairs Committee, whose report was read by Maj. Howell. The lack of contact between the editorial executives of Southern newspapers and the Association was emphasized when the Committee was unable to obtain entries for the prize awarded by the late George F. Milton for the Southern newspaper writer whose work during the preceding year was deemed most effective in the cause of international peace. The award was postponed until next year. A special effort was urged to have a meeting of editors scheduled for the next convention.

The past year's work was outlined in the reports of President Johnson, Secretary-Treasurer Morgan, and Manager Cranston Williams, the latter also reporting at length for the Committee on Traffic, of which he has been chairman.

During the past year the S. N. P. A. membership made a net gain of six, Wiley L. Morgan, secretary-treasurer, reported. Fifteen new members were enrolled as against a loss of six members by resignation and three because of suspension of publication. Total membership now stands at 196 as compared with 190 a year ago.

The membership represents an aggregate newspaper circulation of 3,234,994 covering 14 Southern states, the report said.

The 15 newspapers added to the Association were: Gadsden (Ala.) Star; Blytheville (Ark.) Courier-News; El Dorado (Ark.) News-Times; Texarkana (Ark.) Gazette; Daytona Beach (Fla.) Journal; Ft. Lauderdale (Fla.) News; Pensacola (Fla.) News; Pensacola (Fla.) Journal; Sarasota (Fla.) Herald; St. Petersburg (Fla.) News; West Palm Beach (Fla.) Times; Columbus (Miss.) Commercial Dispatch; El Paso (Tex.) Times; El Paso (Tex.) Herald; Waco (Tex.) Times-Herald.

The three suspensions were: Orangeburg (S. C.) Times and Democrat, now a tri-weekly; Spartanburg (S. C.) Sun, and Danville (Va.) News.

"The advertising campaign has been successfully carried out this year, under the able leadership of our late beloved Edgar M. Foster, and his committee," the report said. "Fiscal year began with an unexpended balance of $7,963.53 to the fund. Subscriptions for the campaign of 1926-27 were made by eighty-two newspapers aggregating $13,185.46, of which latter sum $10,048.25 already has been paid by fifty-two publications, leaving $3,137.21 to be remitted on this year's subscriptions.

The Association has a cash balance of $8,633 on hand after disbursements of $10,230.87 for the year, the report stated.

The emergency fund, created two years ago for the defense of the Federal Trade Commission suit and for fighting postal rates, was continued last year and has a cash balance of $2,783.87. Eighty-three of the 196 members contributed to this fund.

The Advertising Committee received a total of $13,489.62 during the year, which was augmented to $21,426.15 by a $7,936.53 surplus from the previous year. The sum of $9,976.28 was expended in the advertising campaign, leaving a balance on hand of $11,449.87.

Tribute was paid in the secretary's report to ten members of the Association who died during the past year. They were:

A. M. Carpenter, editor, Fayetteville (N. C.) Observer.

Robert G. Hiden, former president of the Birmingham (Ala.) Ledger and previously associated with the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch and the Birmingham (Ala.) News.

H. M. Huie, publisher of the Alexandria (La.) Town Talk.

Col. Henry M. McIntosh, founder and editor of the Albany (Ga.) Herald.

Capt. Fred Lee Merritt, formerly of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, the Norfolk (Va.) Virginian Pilot, and the Asheville (N. C.) Citizen.

A. P. Lowe, editor, Fredericksburg (Va.) Star.

Rudolph C. Seigling, president, Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier.

A. M. Smith, of the Anniston (Ala.) Star, and one of the founders of the erstwhile Birmingham (Ala.) Ledger.

Edgar M. Foster, business manager of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, charter member and past president, former director, and chairman of the advertising committee for several years past.

Headquarters office of the S. N. P. A. has been kept busy during the past year with legal and legislative matters, in addition to the regular routine, Cranston Williams, manager, declared in his report.

The S. N. P. A. employment bureau was called upon many times to furnish employees to member newspapers, Williams said. The bureau aims to keep a list of personnel available for S. N. P. A. members, with the exception that the name of a person employed on a member paper is not given another member paper.

Efforts to create more newspaper advertising have been constant and effective, the manager declared. Close contact has been maintained with the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Special copy in behalf of newspaper advertising were prepared and mats furnished to S. N. P. A. papers.

Award of a cash prize to the editor of a Southern daily for the best editorial on International Peace, provided for in the will of the late George F. Milton of the Chattanooga News, was postponed until the next annual meeting. The fund became available late in 1925, making it impossible to get a representative selection of editorials for that year. The first award, therefore, will be competed for by editorials written this year.

The official S. N. P. A. code of ethics was printed and forwarded to all members during the year.

Mr. Williams recounted also the efforts of the railways serving the South to obtain increased freight rates on newsprint paper and on cores. Several new schedules have been filed and are pending while it is expected that others will be within a few weeks, the discussion indicated.

Mr. Williams also detailed the organization progress of the Washington & Lee University School of Journalism, established under the Association's patronage.

Discussion of oil fuel in stereotype pots as a substitute for coal and gas was the feature of a round table on mechanical topics conducted by Maj. Allen Potts, Richmond News-Leader. With a good burner and proper thermostatic control, it was said by F. G. Bell of Savannah, oil has been found in the News plant to be somewhat cheaper than gas and slightly more expensive than coal. In other parts of the South, other publishers said, the delivered price of oil makes either of the other fuels preferable from a cost standpoint.

Several publishers spoke in high praise of the service rendered by the Pressmen's Union in sending expert pressmen to solve pressroom difficulties of newspapers. One publisher narrated how one of the union's field men had remained in his plant more than a week and succeeded in producing a perfectly printed sheet from a second-hand machine which his own mechanics had declared worthless. Another publisher told of a saving of $35,000 to a publication through the services of the union expert, who influenced a press manufacturer to replace a defective machine.

Dry mats received a general "okay" from the meeting, and it was stated that the paper saving effected through their use averaged one and one-third percent of the total bill.

In the editorial discussion led by L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans Times-Picayune, the favored proportions of advertising and News were respectively 60 and 40 per cent. Professional baseball and football were laid on the anvil by several publishers, who reported no financial return from such news commensurate with the outlay. No success has attended Southern publishers' efforts to get paid advertising from the professional baseball teams and the publishers in one city declared that they no longer carry "specials" on baseball when their home teams are abroad, using only press service dispatches and box scores. Mr. Mooney urged the news development of amateur and semi-amateur sports by special reports of such games.

Editorial salaries are now higher than ever, it was generally agreed, the rule adopted by some papers being to keep them above the level of the mechanical department wages.

Press agentry threatened to keep the convention in session all day, but the impending golf tournament cut the discussion short. The waste basket was held up as the best cure for the evil, but there should be a distinction drawn between undesirable or graft publicity and that which the editor feels should be extended for the community's good.

Mr. Mooney roused general dissent when he urged the newspaper men to encourage men starting in business, provided their character was good and their venture promising, by extending them a line of credit in advertising.

"Don't give them free notices" he said. "Give them advertising space, $250 worth or so and you'll be surprised how often your investment will be repaid. Treat them as a bank or a supply house would treat them. They are assets to your city. Don't put the item on your books at all. If they come through, they are friends and advertisers. If they fail, you don't have to charge it off your books."

Honorary life membership was voted to Marcellus E. Foster, who recently sold his interest in the Houston Chronicle and is now retired. Mr. Foster, a past president, is the third honorary member, the others being Adolph S. Ochs, New York Times and Chattanooga Times, and Fred L. Seely, of Grove Park Inn.

Entertainment, in charge of C. A. Webb, Asheville Citizen, and Don S. Elias, Asheville Times, consisted of a tour of the Asheville mountain region and a reception and tea for members and guests. Card parties were arranged by the ladies Wednesday and Thursday afternoons by a committee headed by Mrs. Walter C. Johnson and including Mrs. V. H. Hanson, Mrs. George M. Kohn, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Elias, Mrs. W. O. Boger, Mrs. C. K. Robinson, Mrs. L. E. Fisher and Mrs. Randall Harris.

The golf tournament, which is reported fully in another column, was in the hands of Walter H. Savory, Mergenthaler Linotype Company, chairman; Richard Wasson, Asheville Citizen, and Elmer E. Clark, Little Rock Democrat.

Addresses were made in the great hall of the inn on Tuesday evening by Oscar Wells, Birmingham, president of the American Bankers Association, and Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press. A motion picture of the A. P. in action round the world was shown in conjunction with Mr. Cooper's address.

Wednesday evening's speakers were Dr. Frank Bohn, newspaper correspondent, and Dr. Gus Dyer, of Vanderbilt University.

Discussion of circulation, advertising and miscellaneous topics, an informal address by James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the Four A's, and adoption of resolutions occupied the closing session.

The advertising round table under direction of H. Galt Braxton, Kingston Free Press, covered 29 topics.

Scheme advertising was declared not so profitable to advertisers as regular contract space. Advertisers should pay for illustrations, it was generally said.

Smaller newspapers cannot live on a local rate basis of three cents per inch per thousand circulation it was said though the larger members believe such basis equitable.

Double truck advertising should carry a charge for an extra half column, according to newspaper practice in Dixie.

Publishers should have the name of a prospective national advertiser before giving an agency merchandising information.

Installation of ad-setting machines was declared to be the best method of improving newspaper typography.

Under leadership of W. A. Elliott, Jacksonville, the circulation topics developed an interesting discussion of features which were said to be of secondary importance in the south, where sport news local and foreign and a strong editorial policy are prime requisites of editorial success, according to Mr. Mooney.

Insurance as circulation promotion has many users but not so many friends in southern journalism. North Carolina laws prohibit its use as a newspaper premium, a condition which won for Tarheel publishers congratulations from other states.

F. G. Bell, Savannah News and an A. N. P. A. director, urged the members to attend the November meeting of the national body at French Lick, Ind.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy referred briefly to the Federal Trade Commission suit or agency commissions and predicted favorable results.

He said that his membership was particularly interested in the growth of the South at a rate far beyond that of other sections, that more business than ever was being placed in southern newspapers and that the 1927 outlook was even brighter. However, an upset of the existing advertising fabric would probably cost southern newspapers $15,000,000 in advertising, he said.

S. N. P. A. CONDEMNS POSTAL DELAY

AFTER reviewing the postal situation and the efforts of the S. N. P. A. to obtain relief from the present Congress the association's committee condemned delay and questioned the proposal of the Senate committee to gather more data. It was asserted that there are no additional figures which will be helpful to the Senate Committee, "because second class mail matter is the one class on which the Department always has full information as to volume and revenues," the report said. "The Committee's position as to third and fourth class is possibly justified by the desire for additional figures, but we feel that they were afraid to recommend the reduction in second class and force the third and fourth class mail users to wait alone. * * * The fact is that in the spring of 1925 most of the third and fourth class mail users left Washington feeling in the light of the absurd allocation by the Postal Department of an alleged deficit of $75,000,000 per year in the handling of second class mail, perfectly safe from any increase. Need more be said?

LACK OF COST DATA DEPLORED

THE S. N. P. A. Committee on Business Affairs reported this week that a collection of data on labor cost in composing rooms shows tremendous variations in the unit cost of type production in various offices. The greatest cost is in large offices where pages are close set, with many editions and many makeovers. Because of their failure to use maximum sized pages with full length columns some of the smaller offices have high composing room costs. Too many wide columns are still in use. Reduction of column widths would conserve 5 per cent of space and reduce newsprint expense.

The report concerns only 15 per cent of the total membership, but an analysis of groups of these papers gave the following statistics: The groups showing the largest percentage of profits are: designating papers of 15,000 to 30,000, and group E, covering those above 30,000 circulation. Four papers of less than 3,0

(Reports continued on page 46)

INSURANCE MILLIONS WAIT ON ADVERTISING

How Co-operative Schedule in Newspapers Would Open Way to Vast New Premium Income—Expert Discussion of Big Neglected Opportunity

By CHARLES H. HOLLAND

President Independence Indemnity Company and Independence Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, in an address at the recent Philadelphia Advertising Convention

THE two gigantic institutions, Newspapers and Insurance—both serving the public in an unusual degree, one disseminating information as to conditions—the other providing security against all unfavorable conditions, one proclaiming the path of progress—the other making progress possible by securing against its certain dangers, one guiding the minds of the people—the other protecting their possessions and their livelihood—these two gigantic institutions surely must have much in common. Hand-in-hand they would accomplish their two great missions, each of assistance to and supplementing the efforts of the other.

So it would seem.

Why it is not so, and whether it might be so, are questions I shall attempt to answer.

It is a noticeable fact that, without the slightest feeling or suspicion of antagonism between the two, Newspapers seldom, if ever, make any but the most passing reference to insurance and insurance seldom if ever takes advantage of that most valuable arena for publicity, the newspaper advertising columns.

Of all the great institutions having goods or services to sell to the general public the institution of insurance is probably the least developed as regards advertising, except perhaps in the way of leaflets; pamphlets and other forms of direct-by-mail matter. Some companies carry space in insurance journals, many of which are of great value to insurance men, but none of which are widely read outside of the insurance business. A few companies have experimented in a moderate way with magazines of national circulation. Occasionally, agents run cards in their local newspapers. But companies themselves use practically no newspaper space.

And the result is that the absence of publicity in the place where publicity is natural and expected leaves the Insurance business less understood as an institution than any of the other great interests of the nation. And this ignorance or lack of understanding on the part of the public, despite the peculiarly personal nature of the relations of insurance with the individual members of the public, engenders a suspicion and distrust on the part of many that, at least, prevents the largest measure of efficient service.

The reasons for this peculiar neglect of general or "consumer" advertising on the part of the Insurance companies are not undiscoverable; three of them will be recognized readily. First, the standardized character of insurance contracts makes the offerings of most companies appear to be substantially the same; so that in contrast with trade-marked articles and those of special design the individual companies have nothing exclusive on which to build up a public demand. Second, the sale of insurance through the personality of local agencies, many of which represent a number of companies selling precisely similar insurance, makes it difficult for the company which might do the advertising to secure for itself more than a small proportion of the return on its advertising investment. Third, no impressive effort has been made, either by newspapers or by insurance-advertising officials, to plan such a campaign as would "sell itself" readily to those upon whom would rest the responsibility of authorizing the necessary expenditure of money.

Whatever may be the reasons for the subjection of insurance to this unnecessary but existent handicap, it surely is in every way desirable that the various divisions of the insurance business should recognize their joint interest in the work of building up in the mind of the public a proper understanding of the insurance function; for while the various divisions differ in underwriting methods and sometimes in sales methods, they have fundamental unity in that they arise from the instinctive human desire for security, and in that the mission of all of them is to the entire public.

Such a work, if undertaken, would have more than a merely educational aspect; it would have a direct sales purpose, for the insurance business faces no "saturated market." In some forms of coverage the present sales are less than one per cent of the possible limit, while they probably have not reached 50 per cent on even those most widely sold. The field therefore for the further sale of insurance is almost inconceivably large; while the more complete "sale" of the insurance idea to the general public would be a matter of public welfare.

It cannot be doubted that the right kind of a consumer advertising campaign would make vast hosts of friends for insurance from among those who at present regard insurance premiums as a tax which they pay with a certain amount of silent resentment, and would at the same time exert a powerful influence in extending the public desire for insurance. Such friendship and such a desire would be a matter of joint, not individual, advantage; it would be extended towards insurance rather than to a single insurance company, but it would benefit insurance as a whole—including all reputable companies—and should therefore be a matter of joint enterprise and joint expense.

Newspaper advertising is essentially local in its application and is the most intensive means of covering any locality, because practically all adults read newspapers. The modern newspaper carries departments that appeal to all members of the family and all classes in every American community, and its reading has become an intimate personal habit on the part of the American family.

This has become a newspaper age to the degree that practically everyone who reads at all has for a habitual companion at least one newspaper, without whose daily or weekly visit the world would seem out of joint. The newspaper therefore is ubiquitous; but insurance also is ubiquitous, and there is not a community where a newspaper is published which does not also have at least one insurance agent ready and able to satisfy any demand created by the local publicity.

The fact that newspaper advertising is essentially local in its application involves the seeming disadvantage that any attempt to reach a number of localities would run into a large aggregate expense and would be an undertaking of formidable proportions compared with what has hitherto been done by insurance interests.

But in a joint campaign such as is suggested, would the cost be prohibitive? Would it, for the results to be achieved, cost even fractionally as much as companies are already accustomed to spend upon various forms of non-unified publicity—all or most of which is, within its limited area, extremely useful, and which it is not suggested should be discontinued.

Assuming that the combined premium incomes of the stock companies in the fields of fire, casualty and surety insurance (leaving out of consideration for the time being the vast incomes of the life companies and those engaged in yet other classes of the insurance business) amount to $1,500,000,000 per year, even so insignificant a proportion as one-fifteenth of one per cent would produce the substantial sum of one million dollars, with which a far-reaching, important and successful campaign might be undertaken. So small a percentage of turnover for newspaper advertising of national scope would seem inconceivably minute to most advertisers who attempt to enroll the active support of the buying public. So, while, on account of cost, there is very little likelihood or possibility of systematic newspaper advertising on the part of individual companies, the cost that would be prohibitive to a single company could be absorbed almost without notice if equitably apportioned among two or three hundred companies.

Most insurance agencies to which we look for the production of insurance premiums, are quite as local as their home newspapers; and they sell so great a variety of forms of protection that any and every step in popularizing insurance would inure to their own benefit and to the benefit of their companies. I believe that thousands of agents would gladly welcome a joint effort in behalf of the companies to advertise the "idea" of insurance and the various forms of coverage to the people of their communities through their local newspapers, and would immediately seek to tie up their own agencies to the results of such advertising by running cards in the papers which carried the joint campaign.

It is likely also that the newspapers would take prompt advantage of such an opportunity and give valuable aid in such a campaign by encouraging and soliciting advertising from the local agents. All papers are desirous of developing new fields of local advertising, and the insurance field is almost virgin. If, therefore, a local newspaper could carry joint advertising representing the companies as a whole—representing "Insurance" as an institution—supplemented by a number of local and individual advertisements on the same subject, there would automatically be created what would amount to an Insurance Department of that newspaper, which could not fail to have a marked effect in increasing the sale of insurance in the community, and which would at the same time provide for the newspaper and its readers an opportunity for a closer acquaintance with and knowledge of so vital a factor in modern life as the institution of insurance has proved itself to be.

Thus, the carrying out of a well-planned and capably-managed nation-wide campaign of newspaper consumer advertising, participated in by the fire, casualty and surety stock insurance companies, and participated in locally, as would inevitably occur, by a fair proportion of the local agents, would be of benefit to four general classes:

First, To the companies because it would open the way to hundreds of millions of dollars of additional premium income; and would at the same time interpret to the public a great business of which they are largely ignorant and therefore suspicious.

Second, To the agents for exactly the same reasons.

Third, To the newspapers, for whom it would bring a new national advertiser into the field, and to whom it would open a new source of local advertising revenue.

Fourth, To the public, who would benefit enormously by the larger spread of insurance protection, thereby lessening the economic dangers of contingency and chance.

That the subject deserves the profound consideration of the insurance companies I am firmly convinced; that the advantages of such a public campaign would be immeasurable can hardly be questioned; and that its cost, even if the campaign included every daily newspaper in the United States, would not be unduly expensive is easily provable.

And the wider spread of the beneficent protection of insurance would redound to the credit of the companies and to the welfare of the public.

GLOBE GIRDLERS ON WAY HOME

In the foreground are shown Edward Evans of Detroit and Linton Wells, New York newspaper man, who are attempting to lower the round-the-world travel record, under the auspices of the North American Newspaper Alliance. The photograph shows them arriving at Le Bourget, France from Cherbourg, and ready to hop to Berlin by airplane. They are now on board the Empress of Asia, en route to the U. S. They expect to lower the record of John Mears from 35 days, 21 hours and 35 minutes to about 28 days.

J. H. JONES, NEW HOUSTON PUBLISHER, WARMED HIS FEET AT ROYAL FIRE

Chronicle Owner, with President Wilson in London, Made Himself at Home in Buckingham Palace—As Farm Lad He "Ploughed at a Trot" and Still Does

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

HOUSTON, Tex., July 7.—In the memorable winter of 1918 it was cold in London hotel rooms, and Jesse H. Jones, new owner of the Houston Chronicle, went in search of a warmer place. He had arrived late in London to join former President Woodrow Wilson and party on that historic pilgrimage to the Peace Conference. Mr. Jones drove to

Jesse H. Jones

Buckingham Palace, and in some manner got past all the flunkeys that surrounded the abode of Royalty. A great warming fire attracted him, and so he pulled off his shoes and there he sat warming his feet. When a short time later the King of England and the President of the United States came arm in arm down the corridor.

Just a touch of good old American democracy introducing itself into the cast-iron formalities of aristocracy. But Jesse Jones had first learned to toast his cold feet before an open fireplace on a Robertson County, Tennessee farm, some forty years before. It was on that farm where he spent the first few years of his life. As a farmer lad he plowed but one day. His father gave him a tract to plow. That ordinarily would have been two days' work, but young Jesse urged the mules into a trot and kept them at it, until in one day he had done two days' work. When the father returned in the evening the field was plowed, but the mules were white with foam. And Mr. Jones has been plowing in a trot ever since.

His first job was in a lumber yard.

Twenty-eight years ago, Mr. Jones came to Houston, Tex., and again went to work in a lumber yard. He must have plowed at a double trot for in a few years he controlled 65 retail lumber yards and a few sawmills over Texas.

A score of years ago he embarked, modestly at first, in the building business, and it was there that fame first perched on his banner. By all odds he is now the premier builder of Texas. In Houston he has built and owns more than a dozen of the city's greatest structures, and at this time three great hotels, four large theatres and three office buildings. A mark of his genius as a builder, are in process of erection in Houston and at Fort Worth.

But New York City is also feeling the stimulus of the enterprise of this Texan as a builder. For the Houston Properties Corporation, of which he is the head and principal owner, has in two years expended $20,000,000 there in building operations. One of these structures, already completed, is the Tower Building, 200 Madison Avenue. In addition to all this, Mr. Jones has found time to engage in the banking business, and as the head of banks and trust companies, is widely known.

"Whatever success I have attained is due to my supreme faith in Texas, and the love of work," says Mr. Jones. "It is a diversity of endeavor that lends zest to work, and makes it so interesting. President Wilson believed in that, as he said."

But the telephone rang. Someone wanting to know whether to add two stories to a building.

"Use your own judgment as to that," he advised.

More phone calls, about plans and the great mass of blue prints littered on his desk, and then calls about banking problems, and a call even from the editor of his paper. Someone entered to ask about details of a new refrigeration system in a great hotel he owns.

But when he mentioned Woodrow Wilson there was a key to the new publisher's ideals of public service. He is prouder of his association with the great war President than perhaps anything else. He recalls proudly when he and the former President and the late Cleveland H. Dodge led the Red Cross parade through the streets of New York in 1918. He is proud Woodrow Wilson was his friend and trusted him. He treasures the voluminous correspondence that passed between them, almost up to the end of Mr. Wilson's life. The former President made him a member of the Red Cross War Council and he served as Director General of the military relief work of the American Red Cross. During the last illness of the President, Mr. and Mrs. Jones were frequently guests at the Wilson home, when it was almost inaccessible to even the warmest friends, and Mr. Jones went from Texas to serve as an active pallbearer at Mr. Wilson's funeral.

During the Presidential campaign of 1924, Mr. Jones served as Director of Finance of the Democratic National Committee. As such his duties were to raise the funds for others to spend. He raised $1,250,000.

Mr. Jones indicates unmistakably he will not make the mistake so many men of large business affairs make, of attempting overnight to master the details of the publishing business, and assume control of all the intricacies of the management of the business.

It must not be understood, however, Mr. Jones is a novice in the newspaper game. For many years he has been a very heavy stockholder in the Chronicle, of which he is now sole owner. As such he has had a voice in its management, and has helped shape and direct both its editorial and business policies.

"The day has only 24 hours in it and my 24 hours are pretty full now," he says. "I shall generally direct the paper's policy and act as counselor for both those in the business and editorial ends of the paper.

"I hold that no paper can fulfill its mission of service unless it can stand on its own bottom, unless it is a going business concern, unless it be a profitable business," says Mr. Jones. "There are two sides to a newspaper, its business side and its public service side. If it fails in its service to the public, in its ideals, it usually fails as a growing business. On the other hand, if it fails to stand on its own bottom, it can manifestly survive only as the subsidized organ of some man or interest. I expect the Chronicle to remain a great newspaper, to become a much greater newspaper."

In acquiring full ownership of the Chronicle from M. E. Foster, founder and for 25 years its directing head, Mr. Jones made no change in personnel, except to promote some executives. When asked as to his ideals of what a newspaper should be, Mr. Jones referred the questioner to a statement he made on the editorial page of the paper the day he took charge, which is: "I regard the publication of a newspaper as a distinct public trust and one not to be lightly treated or abused for selfish purposes or to gratify selfish whims. A great daily newspaper can remain a power for good only so long as it is uninfluenced by unworthy motives and unbought by the desire for gain.

"A newspaper that can neither be bought nor bullied is the greatest asset of a city or state. Naturally, a newspaper makes mistakes in judgment as it does in type, but so long as errors are honestly made they are not serious when general results are considered.

"The success or failure of a particular issue is of little consequence compared with the all important principle of a fearless and an honest newspaper. This I intend the Chronicle shall always be, a newspaper for all of the people, democratic in fact and in principle, standing for the greatest good to the greatest number, championing and defending what it believes to be right and condemning and opposing what it believes to be wrong.

"Such have always been the policies of the Chronicle and to such it is now rededicated."

LITTLE ROCK NEWS SOLD TO ARKANSAS GROUP

El Dorado Men Join with Present Publisher and Associates in Purchase of Afternoon Daily—Myers Remains in Charge

Purchase of the controlling stock in the Little Rock (Ark.) Daily News, afternoon paper, was announced July 6, by L. B. Myers and associates of Little Rock and Stanley Andrews and associates of El Dorado.

The stock purchased was that formerly held by the L. T. Brady estate of Tulsa, Okla. Mr. Myers and the El Dorado group pooled interests in the purchase of the stock.

The plant will be moved immediately to the building occupied by the Arkansas Farmer and Homestead, of Little Rock, now owned by the Stanley Andrews Publishing Company of El Dorado. The two papers will be operated through one mechanical department though the business, editorial and advertising departments will be separate. There will be no financial merger of the two properties.

Mr. Myers, who with the Brady estate bought the Little Rock Daily News four years ago, will remain as publisher while Stanley Andrews, will become editorial director.

Associated with Mr. Myers are his wife, Mrs. Ruth Myers, and Ray Metzer. The latter will be business manager of the News. Associated with Mr. Andrews are: L. C. Callow, Floyd Miller, Alex Washburn, and J. A. Plotner, of El Dorado, all interested in the Arkansas Farmer and Homestead at Little Rock as well as in the El Dorado Morning News and Evening Times.

Kenneth B. Roy, foreign advertising manager for the Farmer and Homestead, will also direct the foreign advertising and merchandising department of the News. Robert Lambert is managing editor. The News was founded in Little Rock eight years ago by a group headed by L. P. Robbins.

Roosen Now Making Colored Inks

H. D. Roosen Company, New York manufacturers of printers ink, have started production of a new special colored ink for comic sections.

New Classified Chief on N. Y. Times

John A. Finneran has been promoted from assistant to classified advertising manager of the New York Times, succeeding W. W. Miller, who has been placed in charge of book advertising.

CHICAGO NEWS ENTERS NEWSREEL FIELD

Serving 40 Theaters With Local Motion Pictures That Tie Up With News of the Week—First Release July 5

The Chicago Daily News has entered the motion picture industry with a news agency, the Chicago Daily News Screen Service, Inc., the object of which is to give Chicagoans local news on the silver screen. The first release was shown in Chicago theaters Monday, July 5.

More than 40 theaters have already contracted for the Daily News weekly newsreel service, the pictures for which will be gathered by news men and expert photographers. The scenes are strictly local and the pictures are to be taken and booked only within a limited radius of Chicago. They will not compete with national news reels on the market.

Under the present arrangement, 500 feet of film will be released at the beginning of each week. Four hundred feet covering "spot news," will be distributed at intervals thereafter throughout the week. Major events of the day will be shown on the screen the same evening.

The first release included movies of the tennis matches at Skokie country club; the horse races at Homewood, Ill.; the automobile races at Roby, Ind.; the veterans' dedicatory services at Blackhawk park; the Moose convention program in Grant Park; the Sammy Mandell-Rocky Kansas championship fight; the return of Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, globe trotters.

The new corporation is a subsidiary of the Chicago Daily News, and operates under the direction of the paper.

The Daily News' entry into the motion picture field was welcomed by film magnates and screen stars.

"The Chicago Daily News is to be congratulated for pioneering in an important field," Marcus Loew, exhibitor, declared. "The extension of an up-to-the-minute news reel service is bound to become a very important factor in our life. The big national news reels, of course, cannot satisfy the eagerness of communities for pictures that are of peculiar local interest, any more than a national newspaper can provide local news features which newspaper readers in every town want to find and do find in their own home papers. I am satisfied that the Daily News is launching upon an adventure predestined to be emulated throughout the country."

"It is logical that a newspaper should undertake this new development of motion pictures," said James Rowland, general manager, First National Pictures Corporation. "It is a department that fits in exactly with the business of newspaper making. I feel that the news reel is but a logical department of the service which a newspaper should give its public.

"It will be interesting to watch the effect it is bound to have on papers that are inclined to exaggerate facts. The news pictures cannot lie, and if an irresponsible publication indulges in wordy extravagances concerning an event, all who see a picture revealing that event as it actually occurred will be impressed with the unreliability of the lying paper. Thus papers which cleave to the truth must benefit by the broadcasting of local news pictures."

Correction

In a recent issue of Editor & Publisher, H. A. Dryden, secretary of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers was named as being classified manager of the Peoria Star. Mr. Dryden is classified manager of the Peoria Journal-Transcript.

Merger of Weeklies in Virginia

The Waynesboro (Va.) Valley Virginian has purchased and absorbed the Waynesboro Times. Both are weeklies. The Valley Virginian is edited by Louis F. Jordan, a frequent contributor of legal articles to Editor & Publisher.

CURTIS CENTERING INTEREST IN NEWSPAPERS

Noted Philadelphia Publisher Now Giving Personal Attention to His Dailies, Leaving Magazines in Capable Hands, He Says—A Visit to Lyndon Reported

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

This is the second and concluding chapter reporting a visit made with Cyrus H. K. Curtis to his estate "Lyndon" near Philadelphia, Pa. In the first article published June 19, Mr. Curtis named his favorite advertising writers.

"NO, I never took any lessons. I learned to play myself."

This answer to a question given by Cyrus H. K. Curtis as he played the pipe organ in the luxurious music room in his estate "Lyndon," near Philadelphia, Pa,. fixed the publishing genius very clearly in my mind.

He learned how himself—the sort of man who has a will to do together with the desire.

You, perhaps, have heard a great organist play, have read an immortal writer's lines, have seen an expert tennis player serve, and have said:

"I wish I could do that."

Mr. Curtis said the same thing when he first heard an organ played, then went a step further. He answered his own wish. He was his own geni of Aladin's lamp.

Thus a youngster at the back door of a newspaper in Portland, Me., sat on a newsprint roll one day waiting for his bundle of papers.

"Gee, I wisht I was a great publisher," he dreamed, as he heard the presses roar in the room behind him. Then he went out and made his wish come true.

Mr. Curtis became publisher of America's greatest magazines. Today he has relinquished his interest in the management of his Saturday Evening Post, Ladies' Home Journal, and Country Gentleman, and his centering his own personal interest in his newspapers, the Philadelphia Public Ledger and North American, the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger, the Philadelphia Sun, a tabloid, and the New York Evening Post.

"I want to be the publisher of America's greatest newspaper," he had said to me toward the end of a short motor drive from the Curtis Publishing Company's building on Independence Square, Philadelphia to Lyndon, his estate, 15 miles outside the city.

As I sat listening to him at the pipe organ, master of that most beautiful and difficult instrument, I wondered if this time Mr. Curtis would make his own wish come true.

"I'm not giving a thought to my magazines now," he said. "They are in capable hands. I've really just started to become a newspaper publisher. As I have said before, I don't want to become owner of a chain of newspapers. I don't want to buy any more newspapers. I want to make what I have the very best in the daily field. They are very good now; but I want to make them even better.

"I've realized my ambitions as magazine publisher. Now I'm tackling the daily field. I want to make a go of it.

"There isn't and shouldn't be any quarrel between newspapers and magazines as advertising media," he added, answering a question. "Both are necessary; both have their own particular advantages and uses for the intelligent advertiser."

Mr. Curtis' personal direction of his newspapers while close is periodic. Last week he sailed from New York on his yacht Lyndonia for a summer vacation in Maine. Unlike William Randolph Hearst, who does not keep in constant telegraphic touch with his papers while he is away, the past several months, however, Curtis has devoted all his energies to his dailies.

"And," he said, "you will see the New York Evening Post humming in the future."

Mr. Curtis in the course of conversation explained how he met and mastered the intricate problems of newspaper direction. The way he "learns it himself" is by guessing sometimes complete ignorance, by taking the opposite side of a question to have the side he approved argued to him.

He will, for instance, he explained, receive his advertising manager, his editorial executives, his business managers and hear their presentation of some new proposal or plan.

Frequently he will, he said, profess antagonism at first toward the plan, whether he approves it or not. He will argue against it just to hear its supporters back it with reasons.

"I like to have my executives sell their plans to me," he said.

Another possibly revealing hint at Curtis philosophy was also dropped in a casual way during the several hours of talk.

Mr. Curtis was telling of a visit to Philadelphia made by Julian S. Mason, just after he had been appointed editor-in-chief of the New York Evening Post.

"I showed Mr. Mason the magazine presses—floor after floor of them printing the Saturday Evening Post," Mr. Curtis recalled. "He wasn't impressed at all. He didn't seem to give a continental for these machines.

"Then I took him to the press room, where the Public Ledger is printed. That was different. That was marvelous. He understood newspaper presses, you see.

"People, you will always notice, are only interested in those things they can understand. Make your newspaper or magazine easy to read, easy to understand—that's the answer to this publishing business."

Mr. Curtis hadn't talked newspapers while he played about half an hour on the organ. It was all music then. Some of the time he merely improvised, throwing together great harmonious chords. Then he would break off into a simple hymn, such as "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Abide with Me," "Holy Night." A glow of pride lit up momentary pauses as he explained different stops to show the various tones and shades of harmony the instrument was capable of producing. These many stops all answered the slightest finger touch, changing the solo air from tremulous violin to silvery flute, transforming deep tones of gloom to dancing joy lights.

Organ playing and publishing are surely of the same kin.

Mr. Curtis took justifiable pride in showing off his organ, his big house, his garden. The eager newsboy still looked out from his keen grey-blue eyes. Beneath the dignity of the whitening beard one could imagine just a little scornful smile at some of his costly possessions. He is what he is and never lives in the land of pretend.

The walls of the music room, which Mr. Curtis had built as an annex to the original Lyndon built by an Abram Barker, a banker who went bankrupt, are lined with portraits in oil done by famous masters.

"Mrs. Curtis is the one who is interested in these," he declared candidly. "I don't care very much for them.

"Here is something I do like, because I understand it," he said later, snapping on the lights over a seascape, unsigned, showing a spray-washed Maine coastline.

"I know that," he explained. "I can just feel that mist in my face.

"And here is a room you really must see. This is my room. Here are the pictures I really like."

He opened the door to his bedroom. First he went to the bureau and showed me photographs of Mrs. Curtis in silver frames. Then he walked to a corner, where on the wall in one frame was a group of about a dozen photographs of civil war vintage. All were head and shoulder portraits of bearded men. Pointing to the group, Mr. Curtis said:

"This picture I guess I like best of all. These men were members of the Portland, Me., band. This one here," and he indicated one of the group, "is my father. He played the trombone."

The Philadelphia Sesquicentennial marks the 50th year of Mr. Curtis' residence in Philadelphia.

During the centennial year, 1876, Cyrus H. K. Curtis and Mrs. Curtis moved from Boston to Philadelphia to purchase the Tribune-Farmer, a weekly. Mr. Curtis was then only 26 years old, but had already been a publisher for several years. A newsboy in Portland, Me., he had started his own paper, and his first small property had been wiped out by fire.

The first Mrs. Curtis was the inspiration and guiding hand behind the Ladies' Home Journal, started as a supplement to the Tribune. Later Mr. Curtis bought the Saturday Evening Post for $1,000, and, after he had spent $1,250,000 on it, it turned the corner in four years.

"He charted the course and led the way to advertising as it is in America today," Richard Spillane has said of Mr. Curtis.

"In this country advertising is a century in advance of Europe and ages ahead of the rest of the world.

"If Mr. Curtis were to be gauged only by what he has done in revolutionizing advertising, he would rank high."

Of advertising, Mr. Curtis himself has said:

"Advertising is the essence of public contact; and as such it is worth almost any investment that might be made in it."

Cyrus H. K. Curtis and George Horace Lorimer aboard the "Lyndonia," Mr. Curtis' yacht.

Court Denies Lindsley's Plea

The California Supreme Court has denied a writ of review to Alfred Lindsley, Humboldt editor, serving 1000 days in jail for contempt of court. Lindsley maintained that the articles published in his paper, which drew forth the sentence for contempt of court, were a repetition of former articles and not contemptuous.

$100,000 Plant Addition Planned

Ground has been broken for a $100,000 addition to the building occupied by the San Diego (Cal.) Sun Publishing Company, on Seventh street. The publishing company is planning on investing an additional $75,000 in equipment at a later date.

HERMAN ROE ELECTED N. E. A. PRESIDENT

Publisher of Northfield (Minn.) News Succeeds Edgecombe—Omaha Picked for 1927—Group to Continue Envelope Fight—E. & P. Fight Against Free Publicity Praised

WITH a million dollars' worth of entertainment tucked away, delegates to the forty-first annual convention of the National Editorial Association closed their business sessions at Los Angeles, Cal., last Friday, July 2, after electing Herman Roe, publisher of the Northfield (Minn.) News, president, and selecting Omaha, Neb., as the 1927 meeting place.

Accepting the report of the resolutions committee, the convention went on record as favoring a continuance of the fight against government printing of envelopes; against free publicity for propaganda purposes; against government subsidy in postage rates to newspapers; as favoring a fair attitude toward the development of the Colorado river as an aid to California, and as commending the EDITOR & PUBLISHER for leading the fight against free publicity as a means of advertising.

The resolutions committee's suggestion that executive secretary's salary be raised from $4,000 to $5,000 a year met favorable action. G. W. Marble, Fort Scott (Kan.) Daily Tribune, was chairman of the resolutions committee.

Charles M. Meredith of the Quakertown (Pa.) Free Press was elected vice-president and a new board of directors consisting of the following was elected: Harry M. Taylor of the Traer (Ia.) Star-Clipper; L. M. Nichols, Bristow (Okla.) Record; Justus F. Creamer, Orange (Cal.) News, and John A. Kuypers, DePere (Wis.) Journal Democrat. Mr. Creamer is the only new member, being elected to fill the vacancy made by the advancement of Mr. Meredith to the vice-presidency. W. W. Aikens of the Franklin (Ind.) Daily Star continues as treasurer.

Closing of the business sessions did not close the tour of California enjoyed by the delegates. Virtually every community of sufficient size to accommodate the 500 delegates and their wives vied with each other to entertain the visitors.

The entertainment began at Kansas City when the special train bearing the delegates reached that city and was scheduled to last as long as there was a sufficient number remaining together to be designated as a group.

The delegates were given a day in which to inspect Imperial Valley on their entrance into California. They were taken about the great valley in automobiles to impress upon them the need of protection against floods from the Colorado river. This trip resulted in the resolutions committee recommending the development of the Colorado river.

At San Diego the delegates were tendered a dinner where they were greeted formally by Governor Friend W. Richardson of California, president of the California Editorial Association and a former publisher. The governor remained with the delegates until the close of the business sessions.

In Orange county, the center of California's citrus industry, a day was spent in sight-seeing. The delegates were treated to a barbecue, typical California style of hospitality, served in a great natural park.

The formal convention was opened Wednesday morning with the reading of a telegram from President Coolidge, who said:

"A free press, ably and conscientiously edited, has from the first been one of the staunchest pillars in our national edifice. Whatever tends to strengthen and to widen the influence of such a press, of course, is of direct and vital benefit to our government, and every citizen.

"Your plans for an extensive trip through the Middle West and the Far West will provide valuable opportunity for an exchange of experience and views among men of the various states. Such exchange cannot fail to result in keener realization that we are one nation and that we must not permit sectional jealousies to sway our judgment in the consideration of national problems."

Omaha's campaign for the 1927 convention got under way at Kansas City and gained strength up to the time of voting when it developed that virtually all other requests for the honor were too weak to make vote counting necessary. New Orleans, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Atlantic City, Providence, R. I., Cleveland and Duluth, Minn., were among the cities which extended invitations.

Outstanding in the address of the sessions was the report of J. C. Brimblecom, past president of the association, and editor of the Newton (Mass.) Graphic who gave a symposium of results obtained in a questionnaire to newspapers on the prohibition question.

"Of 147 answers received 98 declared their communities favored strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment," said Mr. Brimblecom. "Twenty-nine were for modification, 11 for both enforcement and modification, three favored repeal of the amendment and six desired government control.

"I believe that much of the unrest concerning the prohibition question could be eliminated if the larger dailies could abstain from publishing quips and jokes on the problem of enforcement. The smaller dailies and weeklies have done much good by observing a request that this policy be pursued. But the larger dailies, looking for the sensational, are prone to make light of this most serious problem."

The report was received with enthusiasm, and the convention instructed that copies of the speech be given to all news associations operating leased wires out of Los Angeles.

An address by Frederick M. Snyder, representative of the Press Congress of the World, who declared that another great world war is certain to come soon unless something can be done to divert the public mind, was received with applause.

"The most hideously advertised thing in the world is war," said Mr. Snyder. "There is no progress in war. Every conflict drags the world into a backwa step in civilization. The purpose of t Press Congress of the World is to fi an idea which will allay suspicion, a bring peoples closer together."

"The Relation Between Advertisi Agencies and Smaller Newspapers," w the subject discussed by George W. Cu ing of McKinney, Marsh & Cushing, D troit advertising agents.

Mr. Cushing pointed out that the sma town publishers themselves are largi responsible for the indifference of natio advertisers to the country press as an a vertising medium. He asserted that t average publisher is a better editor th business man.

"It is a fine thing to have editori ideals and live up to them," said Cushi "It's another thing to get your tear she and bills out on time.

"I am a staunch believer in the m sion of the smaller newspaper," contin the advertising man. "You may not t into every advertising and merchandis campaign, but you have a definite place fill."

Cushing pointed out that: "There no standard basis from which to b rates in a smaller paper. Your circu tion is not verified by organizations s as those maintained by the metropoli paper."

Herman Roe, president of the N. A., has had long experience in asso tion work. In 1922 he won the Pr dent's Silver Cup for the state v president obtaining the most memb for the association from his state.

He served as chairman of the N. E. Advertising Committee for three ye 1923 to 1925. He was elected a m ber of the executive committee in 1 at the Oklahoma City convention elected vice-president at the Richm meeting in 1925.

In his home state he is president the Minnesota State Fair and secret of the Republican State Committee. is 40 years old, and was born at Por Mills, Wis., June 9, 1886. He i graduate of St. Olaf College, Northfi

MEMBERS AND FRIENDS OF NATIONAL EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION

SIDELIGHTS OF N. E. A. CONVENTION

Harry Chandler Host at Breakfast—Women Prominent in Sessions—Florida Editor Praises California—Mrs. Lord Pilots Locomotive

H. C. HOTALING of St. Paul, Minn., sprung a surprise on the convention when he suggested that an endowment fund of $100,000 be created to support his work. Secretary Hotaling suggested that 100 members be asked to donate $1,000 each and offered to be the first subscriber.

JUSTUS F. CREAMER, newly elected director, was much in evidence during the convention. Mr. Creamer's particular task was doing what no one else was delegated to do, which was call taxicabs, hunt addresses of friends of the delegates, make appointments for Rotary Club members to make up attendance and in general spread oil on troubled convention affairs.

ONE of the unique features of entertainment provided for the editors and their wives was a breakfast on the last morning of the convention given by Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, at the Los Angeles Breakfast Club. Incidentally the affair brought Mr. Chandler and William Randolph Hearst into close and friendly contact. The two men sat side-by-side at the function under an arrangement suggested by Mr. Chandler.

WOMEN were prominent on the convention floor, both as delegates and speakers. Virginia Sneed of the Vicksburg (Miss.) Evening Post claimed the distinction of being the youngest woman newswriter at the convention. She brought with her a distinctive Southern drawl. Miss Marian Clifford of the Pittsville (Pa.) Daily Republican spoke on "A Woman's Opportunity in the Newspaper Field," declaring that this opportunity is largely what the individual woman makes it.

FRANK O. EDGECOMBE of the Geneva (Neb.) Signal, who is blind, but manages at most times to conceal the misfortune, presided over all formal sessions in a manner that aroused much favorable comment among the delegates. In his last session as president of the association Mr. Edgecombe spoke with feeling of the friendships the office had brought him, and congratulated the association on the selection of Herman Roe as its next president.

NEWSPAPERS are obtaining much excellently trained material for their editorial and business staffs from the journalism schools, according to Buford O. Brown of the University of California school of journalism, who spoke on "What the Schools of Journalism are Doing for the Weekly Newspapers." Professor Brown declared "newspapers should develop into more perfect products mechanically and more serviceable organs" as the result of the work done by these schools.

MRS. EDGECOMBE, wife of the retiring blind president of the association, is credited by her husband with being his "eyes." She was his constant guide about the convention halls and the city.

MR. MEREDITH, newly elected vice-president, led the discussion on the envelope printing fight. He declared that the practice of the government competing with private printing plants is working a great hardship on the small publisher. His remarks were greeted with applause.

EDITORS attending the Breakfast Club breakfast given by Mr. Chandler learned the password of the club which is given as follows: A member of the club meets another of the fraternity and says, "Hello, Ham," whereupon he is answered, "Hello, Egg." The unique greeting worked well at the breakfast.

OLE BUCK, secretary of the Nebraska Press Association and head of the Nebraska delegation which won the 1927 convention for Omaha, was known among the delegates by his smoke. In fact, it was reported that he smoked the opposition out. When he appeared on the floor to place the Omaha invitation he displayed two pipes which rolled out the smoke like a bad furnace.

J. F. COMSTOCK of the Cranston (R. I.) News went to the conclave with the avowed intention of taking the 1927 convention to Providence. He admitted his state could offer no such entertainment as that given in Los Angeles, but assured the association that a "good time would be had by all" if Providence were selected. He was one of the first to withdraw his request in order to make Omaha the unanimous selection.

ALBERT TOZIER of Portland, Ore., retired, who was the seventeenth president of the N. E. A., was present, as he had been at 31 other conventions of the association. He declared in an informal talk that when he attended the first session of the convention 41 years ago he made much of the trip across the continent from Washington State by horseback. He promised to attend the Omaha session next year.

CALIFORNIA proved all that its boosters had promised, according to the delegates. Even Thomas M. Seawell of the Winter Garden (Fla.) News found it in his heart to admit "you've got a wonderful state out here."

MRS. BLANCHE K. LORD, city editor of the Albert Lea (Minn.) Daily Tribune, was accorded the honor of handling the throttle on the locomotive which pulled the editors' special train out of Liberal, Kan. She shoveled coal, and even was "master of the oil can," when bearings on the locomotive needed greasing.

ROYAL BAKING CASE IS REOPENED

Federal Trade Commission Vacates Dismissal for Purpose of Taking Testimony in Regard to Misleading Advertising

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—The Federal Trade Commission today made the following announcement in connection with docket 540, the Royal Baking Powder Company case: It is ordered (1) that the order of dismissal issued March 23, 1926, be and the same is hereby vacated as hereinafter mentioned; (2) that pending motions filed by counsel for respondent be and the same are hereby denied; (3) that the motion of counsel for the commission to reopen the case be and the same is hereby granted as follows; that the proceeding be and the same is hereby reopened solely for the purpose of taking testimony with respect to misleading advertising, anonymous advertising, the circulation of erroneous extracts from the book "A Collection of Cakes" by Claudia Quigley Murphy, and that no evidence be taken with respect to the statement published by the respondent Royal Baking Powder Company relative to the deleteriousness of alum baking powder, and it is further ordered that the dismissal of the complaint with respect to the slogan "No Alum—No Bitter Taste" be and the same is hereby confirmed, it being the opinion of the majority of the commission that the same, as before the commission in this case, is not an unfair method of competition."

Mr. Van Fleet refrained from voting and made the following statement:

"I refuse to vote because it is apparent that a majority of the full commission will be in favor of the motion to reopen the case. I am still of the opinion first, that the Commission has no jurisdiction to set aside its dismissal, and second I think the procedure is irregular and that the matters presented before the Commission have been presented in an irregular way and not according to our procedure as provided by law and the rules and procedure of the Commission."

PANORAMA UNDER THE SHADE OF THE PALMS OF LOS ANGELES

ATTRACTIVE MAKE-UP STYLES SHOWN N. E. A.

Huge "Mannequin Pages" Used by Allen in Demonstrating How Papers Can Be "Dressed Up" —Harmony Spoiled by Mixing Old and Modern Type Faces—Slovenly Wrappers Condemned

SPEAKING on "The Physical Appearance of a Newspaper," John E. Allen, editor of The Linotype News, New York City, made up before the members of the National Editorial Association, at Los Angeles, last week, a dozen different newspaper pages. The form of presentation was unique. One photographically enlarged newspaper body page four feet wide by five and a half feet in depth was used as the basis of all the pages shown and explained. On this background were superimposed, as the talk proceeded, the headings and other units making up each page, all units kept to the same enlarged scale.

Unit by unit he built up two six-column front pages, a seven-column front page, and five eight-column front pages, directing attention to the outstanding characteristics of each page. A display advertising page was shown, as well as a classified page. Particular attention was directed to the makeup of an editorial page.

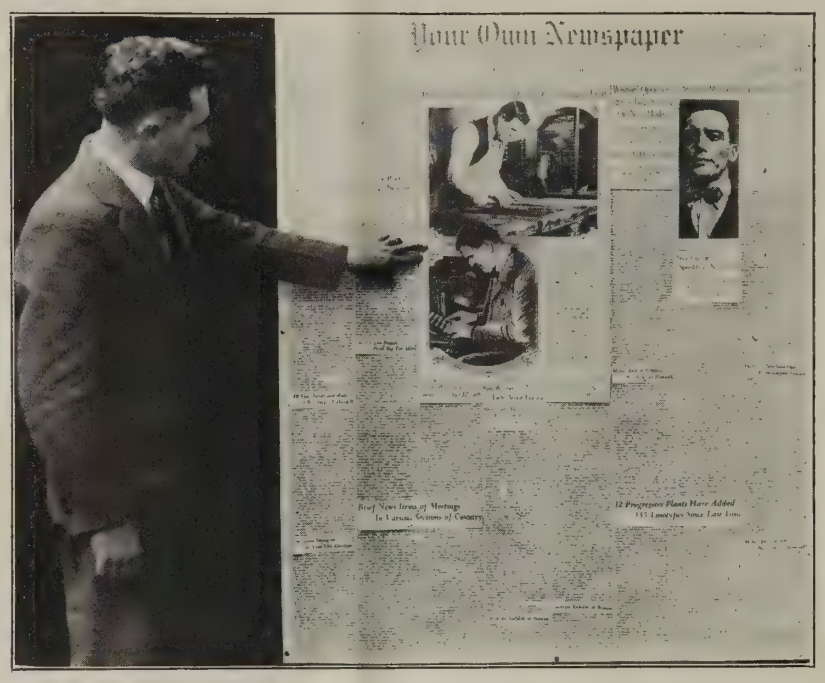
He began the talk by showing the wrappers of two different newspapers—an unsightly wrapper and a neatly, appropriately printed one.

"The first impression a subscriber by mail gets of a newspaper is from its wrapper," he said. "If the wrapper is just a plain piece of news stock, the impression is not particularly favorable. If it is a section of a cut-up exchange it is positively unfavorable. If the wrapper is neatly, appropriately printed, it not only attracts favorable attention, but advertises the paper, the city, and the state to perhaps dozens of people on its way to the subscriber."

Mr. Allen emphasized the point that a paper may be excellent in news and editorial content, but if it is not attractive typographically it will not appeal to the reader as it would and should.

"Type faces should not be overornamental," he said, "should not attract too much attention to themselves, and the various faces used in a paper should harmonize with each other. For instance, old-style faces should not be used in close proximity with modern faces. Many papers use too many faces. Fewer good ones would be better. More care should be taken in selecting type faces for a newspaper than in furnishing the front office, for many more people see the paper.

"Body type should be plain and easy to read. At least the first few lines of each story should be leaded, to carry the eye in. Headings should be well leaded, particularly capitals.



"A half-inch margin of white space should appear on each side of the type page and at the bottom, with slightly more perhaps at the top. Many papers have margins of white space too wide. The effect is not good.

"Column rules should start right under running heads, not a pica below, and should show no breaks between sections when pieced."

The first six-column front page shown contained only one display face, a Gothic face, with the smaller heads in the bold face of the body matter used.

"'Anchor heads,'" the speaker stated, referring to the main Gothic heads used at the top of the page, "should not be treated as 'floating' heads; that is, such heads should not be used down in the body of the page. They do not belong. The only heads that should be used in the body of or below the center fold of such a page should be the smaller boldface lines, in two-line or one-line heads, with the one-line heads toward the bottom. One-line heads should not be placed above two-line heads on a front-page makeup of this sort.

"As many important stories as possible should be opened on the front page. This is one way of leading the attention inside.

Mr. Allen demonstrating a well-balanced front page with interesting illustration treatment in the older style; but with the "free" or "floating" headings a little out of harmony in color with the headdress at the top of the page.

The objection often made to 'continued' or 'jumped' stories in magazines does not apply so much to newspapers. The front page of a paper is its show-window and should contain as many interesting items as possible, even if it is necessary to 'jump' several of the stories to other pages."

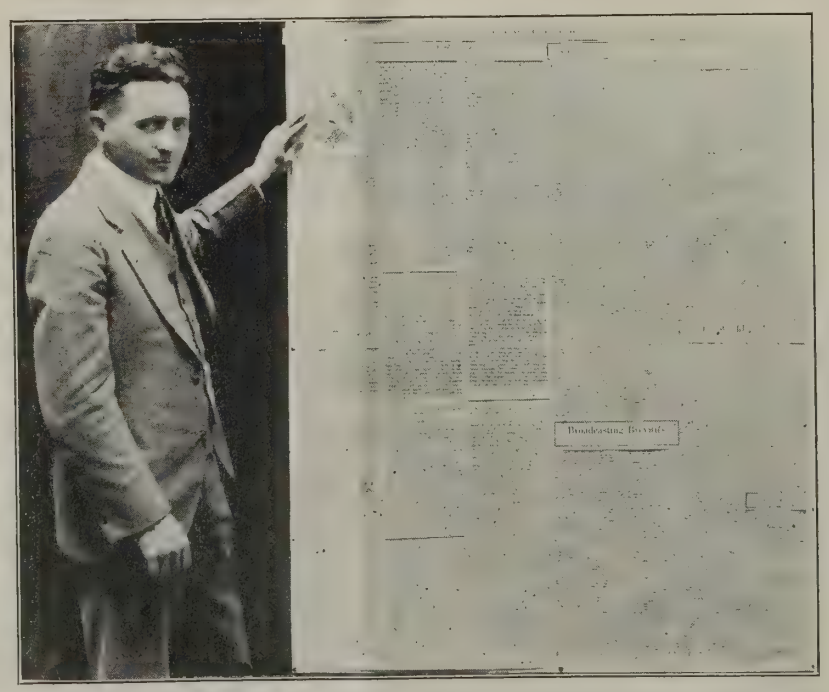
Attention was directed to the nameplate used at the head of the page. Above and below the date line were oxford rules, with the lower rule inverted. "About six points of space," the speaker said, "should be used above and below the date line; little more than this; surely not less. Many papers carry too much space between such rules, and some use rules less appropriate for such use than oxford rules. Parallel or hairline rules do not present quite the same 'authority' as do the oxford when used with date lines. The ears in this name-plate are important items and should be used to call attention to leading features in the paper or to campaigns being carried on by the city or state, or to boosting the circulation or the advertising departments of the paper. One good weekly carries in one of its ears a calendar of the current month. This is an excellent feature, and helps to give personality to the paper."

The second six-column front page makeup was in capitals and lower case of Bodoni. "Such headings," Mr. Allen said, "are much easier to read than headings set entirely in capitals. Besides, the page has a more-finished appearance. The double-column two-bank heads below fold of the front page relieve the mo ony that otherwise would obtain w heading of smaller size used below fold. Light parallel rules seem mor harmony for use as cut-offs than w oxford rules or hair-line rules."

In referring to the seven-column f page makeup, set in Cheltenham Bold tention was directed to the virile app ance of the page. One item feature that makeup was a single-column headed, "School Notes." "Many fa lies," the speaker said, "are intereste such notes, and some publishers fin advantageous to treat them conspicuo in the paper." After this page has b made up, a large disfiguring adver ment was placed on the page. "Thi a good way to spoil the appearance of front page," the speaker said. "S publishers place advertisements on t front pages simply because advertisers them to do so. When the publisher into a hardware store to buy a l mower or a furnace, he doesn't ask merchant to have such merchandise ried up and placed in his front windo moved into his private office for ins tion while the transaction is being ca on. The buying is done in the reg sales rooms of the hardware con The publisher doesn't tell the merc how the merchant should sell him goods. He simply follows the reg course of the purchaser of hardw And the publisher shouldn't permit advertiser to tell him how to run paper."

Each of the five eight-column page layouts emphasized some parti characteristic. The first introduce illustration, ornamental jim dashes, italic lines. Boxed items also were tured. The way to lighten up black trations with white lines was de strated. "The ornamental jim das the speaker said, "give character t main headings. The italic heads sparkle to feature stories." It pointed out that single-column b items should be set with an ample s der of white space on each side, corresponding margins of white spa the top and bottom of the boxes; tha body matter of such boxes should n set wider than eleven picas in a co twelve and a half picas wide. Such b preferably should be in boldface. leading metropolitan publisher claims a boxed item has a better chance of read than a main news story."

The second eight-column front featured an unsymmetrical makeup, pleasing one. Two streamer lines used, and a good way to connect the zontal lines with the column rules explained.



The third eight-column front page out featured headings in condensed tals and lower case. On this page was treated an illustration in the style of newspaper-picture treat "The newer style, the simpler," speaker said, "is proving more po right along, and is taking the place o more ornamental illustrations for used."

The fourth eight-column front makeup featured the more modern st illustration.

The fifth featured a streamer abov name-plate, and attention was call the fact that the type face used fo main headings—Cloister Bold—cou used throughout the whole paper i sired; that such a face was equally a priate for use in the advertising col as for news and feature heads.

An inside or back page was s with carelessly composed advertise placed disadvantageously on the Attention was directed to the faul

(Continued on page 49)

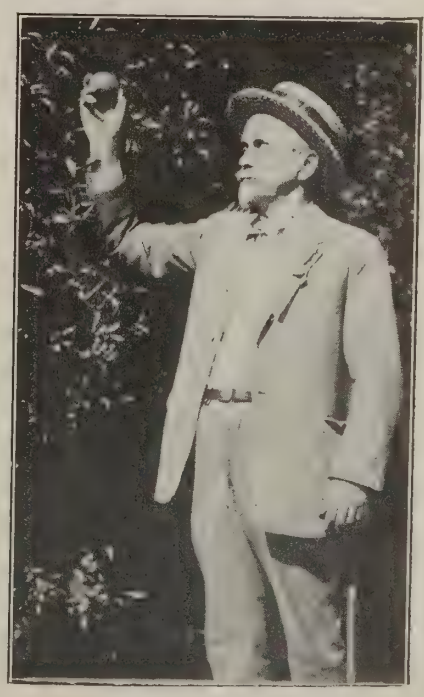
Demonstrating the building of an editorial page. The first three columns have been set wider than the rest of the page, in a larger size of type, deeper leaded. Regular departments on such a page tend to attract added interest to the page. The mast-head features the emblem of the National Editorial Association, and, among other things, gives the names and addresses of correspondents in other communities, that readers in those communities may get in touch with the correspondents when they have stories for the paper.

FIGURES AND SCENES IN FAMOUS N. E. A. CALIFORNIA SESSION

At the left is Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, shaking hands with William Randolph Hearst at the breakfast given by Mr. Chandler to N. E. A. editors at the Breakfast Club, Los Angeles.

Herman Roe, new president of the national Editorial Association, and Mrs. Roe, photographed at the Los Angeles convention. Mr. Roe is publisher of the Northfield (Minn.) News.

This impromtu band by pretty delegates to the N. E. A. convention was one of the hits of the breakfast given to the editors at the famous Breakfast Club of Los Angeles. Left to right—Vilma Howe, Ripon, Wis.; Betty Howard, Fort Atkinson, Minn.; Maxie Kramer of Orange, Cal.; Viola Howe of Ripon, Wis.; and Ann Anzer of Hudson, N. J.



The N. E. A. editors and their wives have ham and eggs in the famous palm covered horseshoe of the Breakfast Club, Los Angeles. Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times was host.

Justus F. Creamer
w N.E.A. Director, publisher Orange (Cal.) News

Those in the photograph are: Left to right—Friend W. Richardson, governor of California and president, California Editorial Association; Gary Willard, Boonville (N. Y.) Herald, past president N. E. A.; J. C. Brinblecom, Newton (Mass.) Graphic, past president N. E. A., and J. P. Baumgartner, Santa Ana (Cal.) Register, past president N. E. A. Picture taken in C. C. Chapman orange grove, Fullerton, Cal.

Frank O. Edgecombe

N. E. A. PAPERS IN MERIT CONTEST

Geneva (Neb.) Signal Awarded Cup for Greatest Service—H. H. Herbert, University of Oaklahoma Judged Entrants

The Geneva (Neb.) Signal, edited by Frank O. Edgecombe, retiring National Editorial Association president, was awarded the EDITOR & PUBLISHER cup offered yearly to the N. E. A. paper performing the greatest community service at the annual convention of that body in Los Angeles last week.

Second place was given the Florence (Ala.) Herald, Marcy B. Darnall, publisher; third place to the Colorado Springs (Col.) Farm News, John N. Green, publisher.

Papers receiving honorable mention were: Ada (Okla.) Weekly News, Byron Norrell, editor; Huntington (Neb.) Cedar County News, J. P. O'Furey, publisher; Union City (N. J.) Hudson News, Richard V. Anzer, publisher; Flemington (N. J.) Hunterdon County Democrat, Moreau & Moreau, publishers; Quakertown (Pa.) Free Press, Charles M. Meredith, publisher.

H. H. Herbert, director of the school of journalism, University of Oklahoma, acted as judge of the contest.

In announcing the winners, Mr. Herbert said:

"Although the principles of community service are fortunately the same, there are wide variations in the way such principles may find expression. In a broad way, however, there are two forms of community service—first, the regularly sustained news coverage and editorial interpretation of the paper, maintained from week to week as its minimum obligation to subscribers; and second, the specifically undertaken projects and campaigns of the paper, particularly of the unselfish and altruistic type.

"Both kinds of service are essential, the first because no paper can pretend to be truly serviceable unless it supplies the news, the second because in every community there arises from time to time special needs and emergencies which cannot be properly met without the aid of the local newspaper. To gauge the community service of a newspaper it is necessary, therefore, to inquire to what extent and how successfully it satisfies these two requirements.

Four main elements, it may be said, constitute the standards by which newspaper community service may be judged. These points, which are listed below, apply with particular force to special undertakings, although they refer as well to the established functions and obligations of a newspaper:

1. Plan and significence of service—the editor's grasp of his duty and opportunity, the unselfishness of his attitude, the intelligence with which he attacks the problems, and the actual extent and value of the projects he undertakes.

2. Execution and technique of procedure—the reasoned, orderly manner in which the editor carries out his plans, foreseeing obstacles, comprehending the nature of the opposition, developing the strategy of attack, consolidating the gains he makes, and conserving the results of his efforts.

3. Difficulty and cost of the effort—the seriousness of the problems attacked, their resistence to solution, the odds to be met, the sacrifice involved, and the extent and nature of assistance received from other agencies.

4. Results and benefits to the community—the real value of the editor's work in terms of community progress, the actual good accomplished, and the permanency of the gains achieved.

Stated in another way, the standards are these: (1) What service was undertaken? (2) How was it carried out? (3) How hard was it to carry out? (4) What good was done?

Particular achievements of the three leading papers in the contest were listed by Prof. Herbert as follows:

GENEVA (Neb.) SIGNAL.—1. Promotion of the construction of the Anniversary Hall on the county fairgrounds.

2. Successful support of two water bond issues essential to the city's progress.

3. Settlement of a central heating plant controversy with a utility company.

4. Promotion of county farm bureau and agricultural extension work.

5. Promotion of county-wide movement for organization of farm women's clubs.

6. Aid to Geneva Community Club in uniting town and rural interests.

7. Gaining unanimous support for community chest method of raising local funds.

8. Successful promotion of plan to extend city paving of Meridian Highway.

9. Successful promotion of project to pave road to State Training School for Girls.

FLORENCE (Ala.) HERALD.—1. Promotion of all beneficial local activities, such as Associated Charities.

2. Aid to local chamber of commerce in its annual membership drive.

3. Help in development of Muscle Shoals power and factory facilities.

4. Frequent and regular analyses of Muscle Shoals congressional situation.

5. Development of tri-cities Muscle Shoals Traffic bureau.

6. Support for all city improvements, such as sewers, paving, etc.

7. Aid in creating spirit of friendliness between city and rural people.

8. Aid in construction of much-needed county high school building.

9. Promotion of community fair in different parts of county.

10. Community work by members of staff acting as officers of different civic organizations.

COLORADO SPRINGS FARM NEWS.—1. Offering trophies for better agricultural products at El Paso county fair.

2. Offering trophies for winners in local athletic contests.

3. Direct aid toward building up rural schools in county, the best in Colorado.

4. Promoting of dry-farming industry and importation of pure-bred livestock.

5. Promotion of better seed, tree-planting campaigns and good will excursions.

6. Dissemination of news and formulae in combating insect pests on farms.

7. Close co-operation with Colorado Agricultural College extension service.

8. Legislative crusade against reduction of agricultural college appropriations.

N. E. A. PARTY VISITS SANTA ANA

Front row: Left to right—George W. Marble, Fort Scott, (Kan.) Daily Tribune, past president, N. E. A.; J. E. Junkin, Miami Riviera, past president N. E. A.; Frank O. Edgecombe, editor Geneva (Neb.) Signal, retiring president; Friend W. Richardson, governor of California and president California State Editorial Association; Wallace Odell, publisher, Tarrytown (N. Y.) News, past president N. E. A. Upper row, left to right: H. C. Hotaling, St. Paul, Minn., secretary N. E. A.; J. P. Baumgartner, publisher Santa Ana (Cal.) Register, past president N. E. A.; and J. C. Brimblecom, Newton (Mass.) Graphic, past president N. E. A. Picture taken at Santa Ana, Cal., June 29

Jacksonville

Continues Its Upward Business Trend

Building permits totaling $2,527,573 give new month record. . . Bank Clearings total $2,103,185. . . Everywhere the upward trend in business is evident.

The Florida Times-Union matches these impressive figures with a gain of nearly two million agate lines of paid advertising so far this year.

The Florida Times-Union
JACKSONVILLE
DAILY 53,000 SUNDAY 70,000

The New York Times

leads all New York Newspapers in National Advertising

THE NEW YORK TIMES has for years led all newspapers in the United States in volume of national advertising, weekday and Sunday. In six months of this year The Times led all New York morning newspapers in total volume of national advertising weekday alone, and all New York newspapers weekday and Sunday.

NATIONAL ADVERTISING SIX MONTHS, 1926

	Weekday Agate Lines	Sunday Agate Lines	Weekday and Sunday Agate Lines
The New York Times	1,935,874	1,808,358	3,744,232
Second New York Morning Newspaper	1,752,930	1,161,690	2,914,620
Excess	182,944	646,668	829,612

The New York Times gain in national advertising in six months of 1926, weekdays alone, was 322,894 lines over the corresponding period of 1925. The gain, weekday and Sunday, over the corresponding period of 1925, was 636,110 lines.

In six months of this year The Times published 15,251,876 agate lines of advertising, an excess of 5,609,058 lines over the second New York newspaper and a gain of 1,664,480 lines over The Times' record for the corresponding period of 1925.

The Times is overwhelmingly the choice of national advertisers using only one newspaper in New York, and is the preferred foundation of any campaign using two or more New York newspapers.

Average net paid daily and Sunday circulation of The New York Times for the six months ended March 31, 1926, was 392,695 copies, a gain of 10,690 over the preceding six months —a greater circulation and a greater gain than any other New York morning newspaper of standard size.

CARTER FIELD ILL

Condition of New York Herald Tribune's Washington Chief is Grave

Carter Field, widely known Washington correspondent, and head of the Washington bureau of the New York Herald Tribune, has been desperately ill at the Garfield Hospital, Washington, as a result of a serious operation.

CARTER FIELD

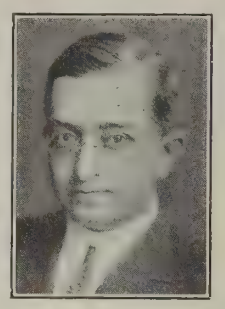
Dr. Howard F. Strine, the attending physician, now offers hope for Mr. Field's recovery, although admitting his condition was grave for several days.

Mr. Field's illness prevented him from accompanying President Coolidge, with other members of the Washington corps of correspondents, to the Adirondacks this week.

Mr. Field is a former president of the National Press Club, and a leading member of the Gridiron Club. He began his career at Baltimore and for years has been a well known figure in newspaper circles at the national capital. He is married and has two young children.

Dixon Buys Share in Daily

Woodson Dixon has been named advertising director of the Long Beach (Cal.) Morning Sun, in which newspaper he has become financially interested. Mr. Dixon was formerly assistant advertising manager of the Long Beach Press-Telegram, and at the time of the merger of the Press and Telegram, two years ago, he was advertising manager of the Telegram.



Classified Department Reorganized

A reorganization of the outside sales staffs of the classified departments of the Chicago Herald and Examiner has been put in effect. Under the new plan the outside territories have been divided into eight distinct units, each operating under the supervision of a division manager. The classified-display work will be handled by W. E. McCauley with J. R. Pick as his assistant.

HANSON SOLE OWNER OF MONTGOMERY DAILY

Buys One-Fourth Interest in Advertiser Held by Capt. W. T. Sheehan—Latter Retires Because of Ill Health

Victor H. Hanson is now sole owner of the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser, according to formal announcement Made July 1, Mr. Hanson having purchased the one-fourth stock interest of Capt. W. T. Sheehan as of that date.

VICTOR HANSON

Capt. Sheehan retired as editor and was succeeded by Grover C. Hall for many years his assistant. Osborn Zuber becomes assistant to Mr. Hall.

Capt. Sheehan's retirement was due primarily to ill health. For many months he has been out of active touch with the office, his work being confined to an editorial column of personal reminiscence which, after a few months rest, he will resume. He had been connected with the Advertiser for 26 years and had been editor since 1913 when Maj. W. W. Screws, for more than 40 years editor of the paper, died.

In 1915 Capt. Sheehan and Charles H. Allen bought the half-interest of Frank P. Glass and in April, 1923, Victor H. Hanson purchased the half interest of the Screws' estate and the one-fourth interest of Mr. Allen, since which time he has been majority owner and publisher of the Advertiser.

The sale of Capt. Sheehan's stock was at a price agreeable to both the purchaser and seller, according to their signed announcement and each paid tribute to the other in the formal statements issued the public.

Mr. Hanson has been majority owne and publisher of the Birmingham New since Feb. 1, 1910.

VINCENNES SUN SOLD

John T. Harris Buys Daily from Purce Estate

One of the oldest papers in Indian the Vincennes Sun, Democratic evenin paper was sold July 2, by the owner Royal E. Purcell and Sons to John T Harris of Vincennes, business manage of the Sun and formerly business mar ager of the Washington (Ind.) Herald The financial consideration was not dis closed.

The deal includes only the busines and newspaper plant of the publicatio no real estate being involved in th transaction.

The new management announced th past business and political policies of th paper would be continued. J. D. Hogue Jr., of Vincennes was named managin editor by Mr. Harris.

The Vincennes Sun was organized i 1804 as a weekly. Royal Purcell bough the publication in 1876, and in 187 changed it to a daily. The paper ha been in the Purcell family since. I 105 of its 122 years of existence th paper has been in the hands of onl three families.

Royal E. Purcell, for 40 years in ac tive management, died in 1918. Th papers recently had been in the hand of the estate and George W. Purcell, a son.

Horter Goes to Boston Office

B. M. Horter, formerly of the Philadel phia office of the Cutler-Hammer Manu facturing Company, has been appointe manager of the company's Boston office He succeeds J. M. Fernald, resigned Horter has been with the Cutler-Ham mer Manufacturing Company, sinc March, 1916.

BIG N. Y. LINAGE GAIN IN JUNE

NEW YORK daily newspapers registered a net advertising gain of 1,773,898 agate lines during June, carrying a total of 14,822,812 lines as against 13,048,914 in June of 1925, according to figures just issued by the Statistical Department of the New York Evening Post. The tabulation follows:

	1926	1925	1924	1923	1922	1921	1920
American	1,120,416	1,074,084	1,431,840	1,108,588	927,656	898,572	925,676
Herald	.....	.....	.....	915,340	923,006	1,024,050	1,041,760
Herald Trib.	1,564,934	1,216,848	1,107,478	780,720	713,262	783,232	821,924
Times	2,408,058	2,066,062	2,250,188	1,997,960	1,919,208	1,757,786	1,938,218
World	1,545,308	1,355,502	1,568,208	1,579,332	1,483,048	1,263,902	1,589,126
Mirror (Tab.)	305,282	299,288	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
News (Tab.)	631,026	487,706	490,782	361,338	268,212	222,458	144,770
Eve. Graphic	325,570	182,198	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Eve. Journal	1,189,390	1,122,438	1,168,160	1,114,000	950,358	917,644	856,024
Eve. Mail†	.....	.....	.....	539,964	462,180	536,622	600,660
Eve. Post	390,536	390,890	382,056	376,262	311,632	508,180	487,736
Eve. World	823,862	690,554	612,526	737,608	737,546	722,580	848,192
Globe‡	.....	.....	.....	.....	611,364	642,100	747,581
Sun	1,327,910	1,111,870	1,031,870	938,076	849,518	685,674	785,414
Telegram	512,490	522,928	716,044	625,798	615,708	598,412	746,470
B'klyn Eagle	1,653,326	1,497,294	1,609,698	1,501,916	1,458,688	1,294,728	1,224,636
B'klyn Times	570,834	476,174	442,970	358,280	288,748	307,868	309,066
Stand. Union	453,870	555,078	606,616	629,060	623,256	565,408	717,222
Totals	14,822,812	13,048,914	13,418,436	13,564,242	13,143,390	12,729,216	13,784,475

††Sun and Globe combined June 4, 1923; name changed to Sun March 10, 1924.
†Telegram and Mail combined January 28, 1924; name changed to Telegram May 18, 1925.

Pages 1926	Pages 1925		Percentage of Total Space	1926	1925	Gain	Loss
1,292	1,176	American	7.5	1,120,416	1,074,084	46,332	.....
1,550	1,270	Herald Tribune	10.5	1,564,934	1,216,848	348,086	.....
1,966	1,662	Times	16.2	2,408,058	2,066,062	341,996	.....
1,386	1,208	World	10.4	1,545,308	1,355,502	189,806	.....
844	804	*Mirror (Tabloid)	2.1	305,282	299,288	5,994	.....
1,336	1,128	News (Tabloid)	4.3	631,026	487,706	143,320	.....
1,140	1,116	*Evening Graphic	2.2	325,570	†182,198	143,372	.....
1,130	1,184	*Evening Journal	8.0	1,189,390	1,122,438	66,952	.....
758	840	*Evening Post	2.6	390,536	390,890	.....	354
852	694	*Evening World	5.6	823,862	690,554	133,308	.....
1,010	900	*Sun	9.0	1,327,910	1,111,870	216,040	.....
616	546	*Telegram	3.5	512,490	522,928	.....	10,438
1,270	1,216	Brooklyn Eagle	11.2	1,653,326	1,497,294	156,032	.....
678	634	Brooklyn Times	3.8	570,834	476,174	94,660	.....
460	572	Standard Union	3.1	453,870	555,078	.....	101,208
16,288	14,942	Totals		14,822,812	13,048,914	1,773,898	.....

*No Sunday edition.
†Sunday Graphic discontinued September 1, 1925; 86,042 lines for 4 Sundays included.

A. P. Orders Foreign Staff Changes

Walter Whiffen, now in charge of the Peking bureau of the Associated Press, has been ordered transferred to the Buenos Aires bureau. He will not leave Peking until the end of September, and will spend a short time in New York before going to the South American post. Then he will replace W. Polk Flower, who will come to New York. John Lloyd of the Latin American department of the A. P. New York office has been assigned to Santiago, Chile, as correspondent. He will sail July 22. Mrs. Lloyd, a native of Spain, will visit her country before joining her husand in Chile. Lloyd has been with the A. P. since last September. He previously worked for the Dayton News. Antonio Cuneo, of the Buenos Aires staff, who came to New York for training at headquarters, returned to Brazil on July 3. Louis L. Guevara, formerly cable editor of Havana El Mundo, has joined the A. P. Latin American staff.

Only One Paper Really Covers Akron District!

National advertisers should bear in mind that the economical way of reaching the great Akron district, rubber center of the world, is through the one DOMINANT newspaper in this district, the

Akron Beacon Journal

Leading Other Northern Ohio Newspapers by Many Thousands in Circulation in this District—Second in Ohio of Six Day Evening Newspapers in 1925 Linage.

DAILY AVERAGE CIRCULATION FOR SIX MONTHS 51,973—GAIN of 4,647 OVER PREVIOUS SIX MONTHS

Bright New Typefaces

There's only one way for a paper to secure an unlimited quantity of bright new typefaces in any size from 6 to 60 point, full width, bold and extended included, cast on sluglines in the modern faces—that way is the Ludlow.

Of course, in addition to this the Ludlow saves a newspaper time, money and floor space. These reasons account for the progress the Ludlow System has made in hundreds of America's foremost newspapers.

Unless you are familiar with the work the Ludlow of Today is performing in newspaper plants large and small the world over—you owe it to yourself to investigate.

Ludlow Typograph Co.

2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
New York: 63 Park Row
Boston: 261 Franklin Street

PRINCIPAL DISPLAY LINES SET IN LUDLOW CASLON HEAVY ITALIC

A Page from The Christian Science Monitor

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, BOSTON, TUESDAY, JUNE 1, 1926 7

Women's Enterprises, Fashions and Activities

Bough Pottery

A Pottery Painting Studio in an Edinburgh Garden

London, Eng.
Special Correspondence

"BOUGH pottery is all painted with flower designs," Miss Elizabeth Amour told a representative of The Christian Science Monitor, "because the first studio was in a garden under a tree. That is the reason it is called 'Bough' Pottery, a name that often seems to puzzle people. The designs are made from wild and garden Scottish flowers, brambles and tulips, oakapples and crocuses. Our present studio is in a garden also—in Edinburgh, and in a garden it will always have to be, because the light is good and with the trees and flowers around us we can get the structure and color suggestions that we want for the

As she spoke [illegible] up a bowl and p[illegible] drawing of a lit[illegible] from the surro[illegible] fruit.

"Look at that[illegible] claimed. "Many [illegible] stems with fruits

It is Spontane

There is an our[illegible] Bough pottery, [illegible] ness and vigor, [illegible] be original or "al[illegible] of the craft work[illegible] be doing. It [illegible] beauty like the fi[illegible] it with such true

Delightfully n[illegible] designs, there [illegible] spontaneity not [illegible] natural gift, bu[illegible] training, for M[illegible] at the Glasgow S[illegible] Mr. Anning Be[illegible] stained glass wi[illegible]

"He trained m[illegible] signer, and I o[illegible] him," Miss Amou[illegible] ing diffidence. B[illegible] to admit that ev[illegible] ing cannot make

And the colo[illegible] nuke simple, but [illegible] herbaceous bord[illegible] might have form[illegible] supplied them. T[illegible] deep warm blue l[illegible] band of greenis[illegible] side and at the [illegible] in a circle of [illegible] purple grapes, gr[illegible] cherries Here is [illegible] a delightful spr[illegible] shades of blue in [illegible] And there is a [illegible] blue with a bar[illegible] apples and blue[illegible] around at the to[illegible] liest decorative p[illegible] derful blue with[illegible] grapes.

Color Melodies

"In this whole[illegible] that you see," sai[illegible] seven colors are [illegible] placed together i[illegible] give a very muci[illegible]

A decorative pi[illegible] Cray," because H[illegible] bought some wh[illegible] for the first time[illegible] land, is in a soft [illegible] peony as the chi[illegible] sign. In such pie[illegible] conventionalize[illegible] tage pottery cupsa[illegible] muffin dishes the[illegible] naturally, save pe[illegible] the coloring is[illegible] which no strict adherence to nature's schemes is made.

"People don't realize that because it is on a basis of cheap earthenware the pottery is suitable for the oven," said Miss Amour. "I have a studio in the Pentland Hills, and I use it there for everything including cooking, and it looks pretty on the table."

Found Her Field by Accident

Many women who are making good in some individual line seem to have discovered their special gift in an unpremeditated way. So it was with Miss Amour.

"I intended to be a portrait painter," she explained, "and I wanted some pretty pottery for my studio. The cheap things had such very ugly designs I got some quite common shapes in biscuit and decorated them for my own use. Then I saw that my pictures would not sell, but that the people who came to the studio were anxious to buy the pottery. So things got reversed and instead of painting pictures I became a pottery painter.

"I use just the ordinary Scotch earthenware made in Fife. This little marmalade pot with a handle is an old Scotch mustard pot. They are, of course, not used as big as this now. And these oval dishes, which are really made for export for the natives of Senegal, I have painted and made into bulb bowls."

And charming bowls they were, with their designs of cherries or of autumn leaves.

"We have great difficulty in getting shapes that will suit our work," the speaker continued. "I want to find a woman potter who can make nice shapes and then I should like to amalgamate with her."

The "Bough" pottery studio is a success as it does, and, as Miss Amour explains, it is simply selling on its design. She believes that if trade is not good with a potter it is because a good designer is not employed, and she thinks that if only a potter will put in a good designer he cannot keep his trade down.

Wins International Recognition

The 1923 exhibition introduced Bough pottery to many appreciative overseas buyers. One, a Dane, passing the stand to another section, stopped to admire and talk. Though not in the same line of business he advised Miss Armour to telephone to the agent of a noted American firm, saying, "Mention my name and tell him he must come to buy at once." She telephoned an the agent promised to come, but did not appear.

"So I thought I would just go to see him, and I bought a new hat for the occasion!" she said, smiling. "It gave me confidence!" And away she went in the new hat.

The agent came, saw and bought, and so did representatives from other firms from many distant parts, from Melbourne, Toronto, and from neighborly little Holland.

Of both French and Scottish extraction, for her grandfather was French and her grandmother from the Scottish Highlands, Miss Amour seems to combine the artistic talent of the one race with the business perspicacity of the other. But despite her commercial success, away up in the Pentlands, it is the artist in her that triumphs, for there she OSBORN BRUSHES and Monarch Cocoa are regular advertisers in The Christian Science Monitor.

During the past year the Monitor published 148 advertisements of Osborn Brushes, and 281 advertisements of Monarch Cocoa, placed and paid for by dealers in various cities.

By permission, we refer national advertisers to the Osborn Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, Ohio, and to Reid, Murdoch & Co., Chicago, manufacturers of Monarch Cocoa, for information as to the value of the Monitor as an advertising medium.

A Business Based on Specialized Knowledge

SEVEN years ago a stenographer working in an Omaha furniture store, and drawing a salary of $150 a month with no business worries or responsibilities, made a discovery which revolutionized her plans and her circumstances.

For a long time she had listened to customers talking over their problem of how and where to get fine curtains and draperies properly and safely laundered. There were laundries that were doing this class of work together with other laundering, but it was evident that it was not done satisfactorily, and delicate shades and freshness of appearance were too frequently things of the past when the goods were returned. For a long time Miss Nancy Morris considered this problem, gathered valuable data and systematically studied the fine texture of lace curtains and all drapery goods. She even established a small laboratory, where she experimented and tested until she knew a lot of things about fine fabrics and the effects of laundering that were not common knowledge.

The next step was to decide on an effective and profitable way of setting up a business for the washing of these special materials. When she had made her plans, she gave up her position in the store and took an old room in an out-of-the-way neighborhood and hung out her sign. On the day she opened her laundry she did not have a single customer. During the first year, however, Miss Morris succeeded in convincing a few people that she could launder their finest draperies and delicate materials, not only with safety but in a manner that preserved the freshness and surface texture of new material. At the end of the first year she discovered that the volume of business done was only $1500. But she had established the fact among a few women who were leaders in the city that she did know how to launder costly draperies and lace goods.

Inability and Thoroughness Win

After six years Miss Morris still retains her first patron, and this success due largely to an ideal she set before herself as soon as she went into business, that of always satisfying the customer. True friends in business mean success. Miss Morris admits that there have been times when the effort to please has meant sacrifice and financial loss, but she steadily maintains that this policy is the backbone of her success.

Slowly but surely the business increased year by year until the original premises became too small and incommodious. Why not own her own plant, a really modern one, with everything needful to do a much greater volume of business? The desire materialized, and the new establishment, costing $25,000, has just been opened. Everything about this building proclaims feminine management.

Though the success of the business is such that it is not necessary for Miss Morris to remain in her office for eight hours a day, she still gives it as much personal attention as on the first day she started in business.

"You see," she explained, "I love my work. It is a part of my joy to have brought in a different drapery textile and to show just what can be accomplished. My laboratory work is a continuous course in specialized knowledge. There are new problems coming up all the time. Manufacturers are constantly changing fabrics in their drapery goods and new dyes are used. All this means I must keep posted or do damage unwittingly to work entrusted to me."

It is this quality of thoroughness that has won for this young woman a reputation that extends far beyond the confines of her own city. Today eastern factories seek her advice when contemplating a new line or a change in fabrics. They have proved that it is wise not to try to force a fabric on the trade that will not launder and still retain its lustre, and no one knowse more about the laundering of fine fabrics than Miss Nancy Morris of Omaha. All her cleaning is done with water, yet many times when her work has been hung alongside of dry-cleaned material it has defied experts to say which method has been used.

Swiss Recipe

Red Currant Jelly

Take an equal quantity of fruit and sugar. For every 2 pounds of fruit take a glass of water. Put the fruit and water in a saucepan and stew until the juice runs easily through a sieve. Put the sugar in another saucepan with the water (or each 2 pounds of sugar take a glass of water), place on the fire and leave until dissolved. Then put the hot juice with the hot liquid sugar and while it is still quite hot put out the fire and stir always in the same direction until the jelly can be seen forming on the edge of the saucepan. Put the jelly while still warm into glasses.

The fruit must be quite fresh to be made in this way and there will be much more jelly than if the jelly is brought to the boil, which must be done if the fruit is not fresh.

Purple Plum Conserve

Take nice large ripe purple plums, wash them and dry thoroughly, then put them in a large earthenware jar. Take some vinegar and heat it, then pour it over the fruit so that it is covered. (If the vinegar is too strong add some water to it before heating it.) Leave for 24 hours. Then pour the vinegar away and dry the plums by putting them on a sieve. Wash the jar and dry it very thoroughly, then put the dried fruit back again and put the sugar on the top. For 10 pounds of fruit take 3 pounds of sugar. Then close the jar hermetically with the parchment paper (see below).

Swiss Method for Closing Glasses

Cut parchment paper the size of the glasses. Put the paper in cold water, take some string and put into a saucepan with water and let it simmer for a few minutes. Cut pieces of strong white linen or calico (old material can be used if still quite strong), and put into cold water. Take your glass. First place the wet parchment paper and tie it with the hot string, then place the wet white material over it and tie also with the hot string. Leave in the open until the material is quite dry. In this way any glass can be used for sterilizing fruit.

Home-Made Library Paste

The uses for library paste are many and one often wishes to employ it freely. When bought at the stationer's it does not go far and it is expensive. Here is a way to make excellent library paste at home, that works as effectually and keeps as well as that bought.

Add to 1 cupful of white flour enough cold water to make a smooth paste that stirs easily. Pour this, a teaspoonful at a time, into a pint of boiling water, stirring constantly. When it is all in, if the mixture seems too thick, add more water. Then let it continue cooking for 5 or 10 minutes, stirring all the time, to prevent its settling and forming lumps.

Remove the kettle from the stove and add 8 drops of cinnamon oil and a heaping teaspoonful of salicylic acid. Beat these thoroughly into the hot paste. The acid is to keep the paste from spoiling. While it is still warm, but not hot, fill up an empty library paste bottle, if one is on hand, or use some other small glass or china receptacle having a tight cover. The remainder may be kept in a pint glass fruit jar, sealed tight, and taken out when needed.

The only difference between this paste and that bought is that this is note quite so white. If one cares about the color, one can use two-thirds flour and one-third laundry starch. It will not stick any better but it will look whiter.

This quantity will cost about what one would pay for a single small bottle or tube of library paste. But there will be about 20 times the amount contained in the bottle or tube.

EXORA FACE POWDER
It has unusual adhesive qualities and only one application a day is necessary. Best and purest materials used. $1.00 a box. Sent on receipt of price. To be had of dealers or CHARLES MEVER, Mfr. Est. 1868.
Send 10c for 5 generous Exora Samples
11 East 12th Street, NEW YORK

To Nature Lovers Everywhere!
BURCLAY BASKETS
Decorative, Original and Unique, of Natural Materials in Natural Colors. Shapes, style and color suitable for special purposes. Hanging baskets, fruit and sandwich trays. Tables mats to match, breakfast room, sun-parlor or summer cottage.
Mail orders given special attention. Samples sent on request.
M. B. Clayton 3585 Rockhill Street INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Wash. 4448

Bridal Linens
125 Piece Trousseau
Outfit Complete
$125.00
Including Pure Irish Linen—Hand Monogrammed. Dinner Set, Italian Luncheon Set, Bridge Set, Bed Linens, Towels, Bath Sets, Etc.
THE GRAHAM SHOP
822 Stevens Bldg.
17 N. State St., Chicago
Phone Dearborn 6299
Descriptive Folder on Request

POLISH RESTORED
Quickly and Easily
Once over with the FINNELL Electric Floor Machine and—presto!—every trace of spilled water or dusty or muddy foot prints is gone. It is not even necessary to remove the rugs or furniture from the room. The FINNELL runs under chairs, between furniture and rugs.
The FINNELL does the four things necessary to have truly beautiful floors. It prepares the surface. It applies the wax. It polishes the floor, rubbing the wax in and leaving none on the surface to smear or get slippery. It keeps floors polished.
The FINNELL scrubs, too, cleaner and faster than hand methods. Ideal for scrubbing the bathroom, garage, laundry or porch.
FINNELL SYSTEM, INC., 461 NORTH COLLIER STREET, HANNIBAL, MO.
Floor Machine Headquarters for Twenty Years
FINNELL
ELECTRIC FLOOR MACHINE
It Waxes · It Polishes · It Sands · It Scrubs
Booklet Free! Send Coupon Today!
FINNELL SYSTEM, Inc.
461 North Collier Street, Hannibal, Mo.
Please send me information about the FINNELL Electric Floor Machine
☐ For Home ☐ For Business ☐ For Church
(Check above to indicate information desired)
My Name.....
Full Address.....
.....

Orange Marmalade
with REAL BLOSSOM
Individual 2 oz. service. A most delicious dainty ideal for breakfasts. The blossom can be revived, fresh and beautiful, as when picked; then used for decoration on fruit salads, cocktails, ices, etc. $3.00 per doz. Sent postpaid anywhere in U. S.
H. H. SCHWINGER
San Fernando, Calif

Learn to Make Candies
Start an attractive money-making business in a shop or your own home.
Send for Booklet C
IRIDOR SCHOOL for PROFESSIONAL CANDY MAKING
17 West 49th Street, New York

Don't Wash Your Windows
Clean them without water with the "Magic Brush"
Clean the outside of the windows from the inside.
Send $1.25 to MAGIC BRUSH, Inc
1931 Broadway, New York
Money refunded if not satisfactory
AGENTS WANTED

Lucien Lelong Brassieres
Store Corso Too No 406 Sizes 36-48 Ext. Fond.
Especially Designed Sold at all leading stores
Corset Brassiere Bandeau
Lucien Lelong Inc. 516 Fifth Ave. New York

Look for Trademark Always the Shield
PEQUOT SHEETS AND PILLOW CASES
Registered U. S. Patent Office
Manufactured by
The Naumkeag Steam Cotton Co.
Salem, Mass.

Osborn Brushes
KNOW THEM BY THE BLUE HANDLE
Women Everywhere Are Turning To These New Osborn Brushes
In all larger cities, as well as throughout all the States, stores everywhere report an ever increasing demand for these New Improved Better Wearing Osborn Household Brushes.
Careful housekeepers find that Osborn Brushes are better made—of the best materials—that they are correctly shaped and that they do make housekeeping easier. Yet they cost no more than ordinary brushes.
All Osborn Household Brushes have the Osborn Blue Handle. Every brush comes to you fresh and clean in a dust-proof container bearing the Osborn name.
Sold by foremost department, hardware and toilet goods stores in all cities, but never by house-to-house canvassers or agents.
If you experience any difficulty in getting Osborn Brushes from your local stores, we will be very glad to fill your order direct.
THE OSBORN MANUFACTURING COMPANY
INCORPORATED
CLEVELAND, OHIO
Floor Dust Mop
New Reduced Price
$1.90
Made of selected yarn which picks up dust and holds it until shaken. Reaches into corners and under furniture, contains no chemicals or oil to injure the floors or cause dust to collect
Osborn Split Duster $1.25
Especially convenient for chair and table legs. Selected yarn dusts without oil or chemical or scratching furniture—leaves film of oil
Osborn Cloth and Upholstery Brush $1.60
High quality bristlesgive real brushing service and long wear. Shaped to fit the hand. Notes stiff bristles near the handle for removing spots. Useful for tapestry or upholstery too
Osborn Blue Handle Household and Personal Use brushes are sold only through selected retail stores
Other Osborn Blue Handle Brushes
Refrigerator Brush
Vegetable Brush
Bottle Brush
Dish Mop
Sink Brush
Dish Pan Brush
Spill Hand Brush
Floor Duster
Duster Brush
Radiator Brush
Painter's Brush
Whitewash Brush
Paste Brush
Calcimine Brush
Varnish Brush
Wall Brush
YOUR MONEY BUYS MORE WHEN YOU BUY AT THE STORE

Convenient
and always ready to protect your pretty frocks are these dainty DRESS SHIELD GUIMPES from Kleinert's.
Made of fine net in flesh, white, or black, with Kleinert's famous Gem shields sewed in just the right position. Ask to see the other Kleinert's styles, too.
Kleinert's
Dress Shields keep your dresses free from odor

1,000 DELEGATES IN SAN FRANCISCO FOR COAST AD CLUBS' CONVENTION

Marshall Dana Slated to Succeed Gilman as President—Hawaii Sends Big Delegation—12 Departmental Meetings on Program—Holland a Speaker

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 7.—This city for four days has resembeled Honolulu. Thousands of men and women bedecked with leis, roam the streets, eat their food in restaurants and cafeterias and visit the attractions San Francisco offers. The occasion for the quick influx of strangers was the 23rd convention of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs' Association. Sunday morning brass bands and police escorts met the delegates, 1,000 of them, with their wives at trains and steamship piers. Market street to Mason was gay with the banners of the Association. Many of the delegates went to the Hearst Greek Theatre, Berkeley, where addresses were made by Governor W. R. Farrington of Hawaii and Don E. Gilman, president of the P. C. A. C. A. Marshall Dana, associate editor of the Portland Oregon Journal was chairman of the day; Williard Schinder, secretary of the Oakland Advertising Club, sang. There was a band, of course. Those with "ad" badges roamed around Berkeley and Oakland in autos and after they were feasted at the Athens Club were taken to San Francisco.

DON E. GILMAN

All day Monday the visitors went on sight seeing trips, at night a dinner was given the presidents and secretaries at the St. Francis Hotel.

On Tuesday the business of convention began at the Native Sons Hall. The gathering was actually three conventions in one, for besides the general sessions, 12 departmental meetings were held.

LOU E. HOLLAND

The departmentals were: Classified advertising, outdoor advertising, financial, graphic arts, newspaper, publishers representatives, Better Business Bureau, community advertising, educational, public utilities, retail advertising, direct by mail and incidental meetings.

Hal King, president of the San Francisco Advertising Club presided. Speeches were made by Lou E. Holland, Kansas City, president of the National Better Business Bureau; Alvin Dodd, manager of the Domestic Distribution Bureau of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C.; and Harold J. Stonier, executive secretary of the University of Southern California.

In his address Lou E. Holland declared the object of the National Better Business Bureau is to save "the American people millions of dollars annually by checking frauds and bringing their perpetrators to justice." The bureau is specially interested in land frauds, according to the speaker. It was through this organization that the activities of fraudulent real estate men in Florida were checked and the bunk artists driven from the state.

"We have carefully compiled lists of thieving land dealers who have been warned that they will be prosecuted if they attempt to repeat their nefarious practices of the past," he declared.

The final business session of the Association begins Thursday with election of new officers and the selection of the 1927 convention city. Marshall N. Dana, associate editor of the Portland Oregon Journal, is the choice of the Board of Presidents of the Association, it was announced last Wednesday night, and the full convention Thursday is expected to ratify the choice.

Portland has been selected by the Presidents' Board as the next convention city, subject to the approval of assembled delegates. Honolulu was the only other contestant. Don E. Gilman, San Francisco, president of Association, was not a candidate to succeed himself. Mr. Dana, the selection for new president, is one of the most prominent newspaper men of the Coast and his ascendancy is said to please the mass of the delegates.

After Thursday's business session the delegates will allow themselves the first hours of relaxation and play since they arrived in San Francisco last Monday. A series of golf tournaments is scheduled to take the visitors into San Francisco's several outing spots. The play will be for valuable prizes.

Unworried because it did not land the 1927 convention, even though it brought a large delegation headed by Governor W. R. Farrington, the Honolulu Advertising Club concentrated its efforts in a campaign "to sell Hawaii to the Pacific Coast." Delegates were decorated with leis and hibiscus blooms, treated to large drinks of Kona coffee—"The only coffee that grows on American soil"—and told alluring tales of dusky belles who danced on the beach in the moonlight.

To illustrate, the sedate but enthusiastic Henry Bredhoff, secretary of the Honolulu Advertising Club, put on a hula skirt, hung a scarlet sibiscus over one ear, strummed a ukulele and crooned a Hawaiian love song. He essayed a few steps of the dance that made Waikiki famous. "You get the idea" said secretary Bredhoff, "I am just a bit plump to carry it off right."

The keynote of the Thursday afternoons sessions, "unity of the Pacific Coast," was sounded by David E. Whitcomb, Seattle, chairman of the Pacific Coast Empire Association. Taking their cue from Whitcomb, other speakers spoke not of California, Washington or Oregon, but of "The Coast." Lou E. Holland spoke on "Interesting Yourself in Your Neighbor," as a feature of day's convention.

Thursday's program is composed of a group of departmental sessions, concerning such subjects as: "Service Organizations as a Means of Greater Mutual Understanding"; "Community Advertising and the Man in the Sereet"; "The Banker Is a Newcomer in Advertising"; "The Retail Advertiser and His Relation to the Newspaper," and many others.

The most important of the meetings will be that of the Better Business Bureau, officials said—"That branch of the organized advertising profession dedicated to keeping business clean and free from fraud and misrepresentation." Fred H. Manter, manager of the Better Business Bureau of the San Francisco Advertising Club, will preside.

Next in importance is the session of the "Community Advertising" department of the convention, which will emphasize "The Growing Importance of Community Advertising Through the West in the Matter of Increasing Population and Swelling the Volume of Tourist Travel."

The serious work outlined for the convention has attracted national attention, it was indicated Thursday, when a letter from C. C. Green, president of Advertising Club of New York, was received by delegates assembled for luncheon in the St. Francis Hotel. Sent by telephotograph, the letter was received in San Francisco a few minutes after it had been dictated in President Green's office in New York. Transmission of the letter was made by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, which distributed photostat copies to the delegates.

They Shunned Special Advertising

The Salem (Mass.) Evening News, in connection with the city's tercentenary celebration on June 30 issued a "Tercentenary Edition." The management decided to forego any special advertising in connection with the edition.

N. Y. Herald Tribune Begins Wet Survey

The New York Herald Tribune last week started publication of an international survey of liquor conditions.

Largest morning and Sunday circulation in the Greatest Market west of Chicago
170,000 Daily
190,000 Sunday
LOS ANGELES Examiner

FOR PROMPT SERVICE
TYPE
BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE
Printers' Supplies
KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT
Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

Announcement
Advertising Coverage for an Entire Market Provided Through the Combination Foreign Advertising Plan of The Superior Evening Telegram
and
The Duluth News Tribune
These two newspapers offer a unique service to the advertiser seeking sales in the Head-of-the-Lakes market. This market consists of a steadily growing territory in Northern Wisconsin and Northern Minnesota, centering at the Twin Ports—Superior, Wis., and Duluth, Minn.
A net paid circulation of more than 50,000 daily is offered by this combination. Through them the entire field is reached. Omit them and it is impossible to obtain complete coverage.
Regular Rates:
Evening Telegram, 7c per line minimum; News Tribune, 9c daily, 10c Sunday.
Combination Rate:
(5,000 lines) 14c daily; 15c evening and Sunday.
REPRESENTATIVES
The Evening Telegram—Weaver-Stewart Company
The News Tribune—E. M. Burke, Inc.

Pay Roll of Locomotive Works In Richmond Runs to Large Figures!

—and it is spent in Richmond by Richmonders!

The huge plant of the American Locomotive Works in Richmond, Va., has a pay roll comprising several thousands of Richmond's citizens.

With a capacity of from twenty-five to thirty-five heavy modern locomotives per month, the plant is capable of caring for the largest contracts for the building of locomotives of all types, and for all sorts of railroads, both at home and abroad.

The wages paid to the individual workers are high.

And the tremendous total of their annual payments to Richmond citizens is spent in Richmond on the necessities and luxuries of life. This is one of the reasons why Richmond's purchasing power is stable—why the people of Richmond are steadily employed, earning regular incomes with which to buy the products of the Nation.

Richmond's living costs are the second lowest of any city in the United States. Richmond's industries are so diversified that rarely does it experience deflation or hard times.

Richmond people are always earning—and buying.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Bldg., New York City. Waterman Bldg., Boston, Mass. Atlantic Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa. Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

J. B. KEOUGH, Atlanta, Ga.

Richmond, Va.

Has the third largest American Locomotive Works Plant.

The American Locomotive Plant in Richmond occupies 75 acres of ground and 36 buildings.

It employs 2,000 to 2,500 Richmond people.

Many thousands of dollars are circulated in Richmond from this Company's pay roll.

It is one of the reasons why

Richmond Is A Steady Permanent Non-Fluctuating MARKET

If you have anything to sell—Tell Richmond about it in

The Richmond NEWS LEADER

"ON NEWS LEADER SQUARE"

Covers Richmond Like a Roof

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

A messenger of the New South.—T. J. Hamilton.

FLORIDA'S heyday has spread over boundary lines to states further north and there are many today who speak with the southern drawl who are talking the booster talk learned from California.

One of these messengers of the "New South" is Thomas J. Hamilton, president and editor of the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle. With many another editor and newspaper business manager below the Mason-Dixon line, he is heralding a renaissance for the sunny southland. The "rebel yell" has been replaced by lusty Chamber of Commerce proclamations of prosperity, and the newspapers are as one in championing the new cause.

Dusty roads are giving way to paved highways, small cities are springing into the metropolitan class, real estate is booming, water power is being exploited, and business men and communities are awakening to the value of advertising.

In Georgia, the Augusta Chronicle has led the demand for improved roads.

"Georgia has appropriated $11,000,000 a year for six years to build paved highways," Mr. Hamilton said. "At the end of this period the state will have a complete connected road system. Augusta alone is spending $2,000,000 this year for paved highways within a radius of 40 miles.

"Another sign of the prosperity in Augusta is the fact that workmen are now working on three eight-hour shifts to complete the Forest Hills-Ricker Hotel in time for an opening set for January next year.

"Georgia is booming as a resort state, but the industrial advantages are even greater. Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, and North and South Carolina have pooled their water resources, and they are being woven into one enormous hydro-electric power development.

"Like Florida, Georgia has no inheritance tax, and new industries are exempted from taxation for a considerable period. Lumber, clay, cotton, kaolin and other raw materials are within easy reach.

"The big news story from the south today is this," Mr. Hamilton concluded: "During the last ten years the South grew more than it did in the previous 50; it will grow more in the next 10, than it did in the past 100."

Mr. Hamilton has been trumpeting the "New South" for six and a half years now. That makes him one of the leaders in the present procession.

In 1919, he formed a company of local men who wanted to make Augusta prosper, and bought control of the Chronicle. He has been president and editor since that time. Shortly after he took charge, Mr. Hamilton started listing his ambitions for Augusta on his paper's editorial page. So many of the ambitions have been accomplished, he has had to revise the list four times, he declared.

Last Dec. 31, the Chronicle issued a 104-page "Prosperity Edition."

Mr. Hamilton is a native son of Georgia. After being graduated from Mercer University at Macon, Ga., 20 years ago, he started newspaper work on the Augusta Herald. Later he became city editor of the Chronicle, the paper he now heads.

NEW YORK TIMES TO HONOR ANNIVERSARY

75th Birthday of Paper and 30th Year of Ochs Control to Be Celebrated With Special Roto Supplement on Sept. 19

Th New York Times will celebrate its 75th anniversary with a special rotogravure supplement in tabloid size to be issued with the Sunday edition of Sept. 19, Louis Wiley, business manager, announced this week. The Times was founded in 1851 by Henry J. Raymond. The supplement will also celebrate the 30th year of Adolph S. Ochs' publishership of the paper.

A feature of the historical section will be that advertising will be limited to firms founded 75 or more years ago. The Times has gathered together a list of about 2,500 firms in this country as old or older than itself.

Editorial content of the paper is in charge of Lester Markel, Sunday editor, while Theodore D. Palmer, assistant advertising manager, is handling the advertising.

Articles in the supplement will include a brief history of the Times; a comparison of New York City of 1851 and of 1926, and a history of communications, revealing how news has been gathered in the past 75 years.

There will be the reproduction of f- similes of the first pages of the Ti's on historic occasions, such as: its f issue; the beginning of the Civil W the assassination of President Linco the exposure of the Tweed Ring; sinking of the Lusitania, and others.

The Times publishes special supp- ments only on rare occasions. The l time was the Golden Jubilee supplem issued in 1901.

A. B. C. MEET OCT. 21-22

Dates for Annual Convention A- nounced by Claque—1,412 Pub- lications in Bureau

The Audit Bureau of Circulations w hold its thirteenth annual convention the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, on O 21 and 22, Stanley Clague, manag director, has announced. Several kind organizations, such as the Ameri Association of Advertising Agencies, Agricultural Publishers' Association Inland Daily Press Association, will h meetings in Chicago in A. B. C. week

At noon on October 21, the A. A. A. will tender a luncheon to visit publishers and, in the afternoon of t day, the A. B. C. delegates will gat at the convention headquarters to greeted by President O. C. Harn, af- wards separating to attend the divisio meetings.

The general sessions will be held O 22, and the day will conclude with Bureau's twelfth annual banquet.

The publications now belonging to A. B. C. number 1,412. Of these, are newspapers, 176 magazines, 73 fa papers, 27 periodicals and 238 busin publications.

Colorado Editors in Contest

J. J. Cusick of Idaho Springs, C has offered $100 in gold to the Color editor who writes the best editorial mining and farming. The award will made at the mid-winter meeting of Colorado Editorial Association in Ja- ary, 1927.

BUSINESS MANAGER WANTED

For Evening Paper in City of 200,000

The Largest Evening Circulation in the State

The man who gets this position must know advertising and circulation methods. He will have the assistance of good department managers and a well organized staff of solicitors and service men. We want a man with constructive ideas who can take these departments and increase the volume of both local and foreign advertising, and both city and country circulation. To the man who has these capabilities, a very fine opportunity is offered. Give full particulars as to past experience and present connection in your answer. Box A-633, c/o Editor & Publisher.

The Newspaper Story of Lima

A few weeks ago there were two morning papers in Lima. Now there is one.

The oldest paper, The Gazette was a half century old.

The other, The Star, an infant by comparison, three years young and having a helluva time getting established.

I started to sell The Star with my crew to the people of Lima and contiguous territory about three months ago.

In that short time I increased The Star's circulation fifty per cent with the result that The Gazette had to quit and now The Star, being alone, will make big money.

Did my work pay? Ask the publishers!

I did not use contests or tricks. I merely sold the paper with my crew of trained, gentlemanly salesmen and the publishers are holding the circulation with a better paper which I helped them improve.

I only repeated here my recent successes in Clarksburg, Parkersburg, and other cities. What I have done for them I can, with your cooperation, do for you.

Write or wire for details.

Frank J. Marks Circulation Service

614 Park Bldg., Cleveland, O.

A virile, brilliant, dynamic force in American journalism, sound in editorial policies, clean and alive in daily news and features, Scripps-Howard newspapers have captured the imagination and hold the confidence of their readers throughout the nation.

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

NEWSPAPER clippings about men or matters of moment are frequently pasted in a scrap book and make a valuable volume. Victor Von Klarwill has gone through the famous Fugger newsletters and from them has selected items relating to Queen Elizabeth, the England of her day, and her diplomatic relations with other countries. The volume is the second of the series of which the first was much more general in its subject matter. Both volumes are published by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

In reviewing the first volume I mentioned that the perusal of the same was like reading a newspaper in Elizabethian days to see who was being featured in the news. To read the second series is to repeat the experience, only the news is more local. But this fact should not be overlooked: the items in these news letters, however, were written with a foreign slant. Unless the reader remembers this he will have the wrong perspective. The twentieth century reader is more fortunate than the Fuggers of the sixteenth century for the book is illustrated with rare cuts and the news-letters were not.

To review a book of this character would be similar to commenting about a bound volume of newspapers. The only thing that gives unity to the book is the Elizabethian thread which binds the items together. From the historical point of view, the most valuable contribution of the contents is the story of the Spanish Armada—especially the story with a by-line of Hans Buttber. For American readers the contemporary items about events in South America are illuminating. International affairs were about in the same state when these news-letters were written as they are today.

The notes and annotations which accompany the text show every evidence of able scholarship. But the ignorance about journalism displayed in the introductory chapter is somewhat surprising. The Fugger agents were not "the only existing news correspondents of that day." English lords had news writers who were much more able journalists than any who wrote for the Fuggers. The stories written by John Chamberlain, the news master of St. Paul's, for example, about the execution of Sir Walter Raleigh and the death of Queen Elizabeth, are models of modern reporting. The Crasser News Agency at Augsburg was not the first of its kind: the honor of having the first news-gathering organization unquestionably belongs to Venice. If the editor of "The Fugger News-Letters" had perused some of those papal bulls against writing news letters that came from Gregory XIII or his immediate successor, Sixtus V, fewer errors would have been made in the volume about the journalism of the sixteenth century. But this is another story.

The volume does prove that strategic positions were held by Antwerp and Amsterdam as news centers. The contents of the volume make me more sure than ever before that in all probability the first printed newspaper appeared either in Antwerp or in Amsterdam. Even the items from Cologne frequently begin "They write from Antwerp" (page 72), "Fresh news from Antwerp" (page 76), "Letters have reached Antwerp from England" (page 82), etc.

Both series of "The Fugger News-Letters" are intensely interesting. They have a freshness, even after four centuries that is surprising. The house of Putnam has done a fine thing in making the volume available for American readers.

* * *

KANESADA HANAZONO is running a series of articles on "The Pioneers of Japanese Journalism" in the Osaka Mainichi & The Tokyo Nichi Nichi—the only English daily newspaper in Japan owned by Japanese.

This series by Mr. Hanazono shows that Journalism in Japan has passed through stages somewhat similar to those found in American journalism. One cannot read this series without being impressed by the fact that many of these early pioneers of the press in Japan were not only masters of the English language but also careful students of economic tendencies the world over.

* * *

HOW some irresponsible but indispensable machinists at the printing office of the London Daily Mail really started the general strike in England is well brought out in an article which Clifford Sharp, editor of the New Statesman of London, contributes to The New Republic for July 7. The article is headed "The Comedy of the Great English Strike."

* * *

THE prize of $50 offered by the Encyclopedia Britannica for the educational game judged best by its American editor ought to appeal to the sporting instinct of a number of American newspaper men. Other games considered worthy will be paid for at the rate of $10 each. The contest closes July 15, 1926 and manuscripts should be addressed to: Contest Editor, The Encyclopedia Britannica, 342 Madison Avenue, New York City.

* * *

PICTURESQUE glimpses in the life of a working journalist may be found in the volume to which its author, Albert Stevens Crockett, has given the title "When James Gordon Bennett was Caliph of Bagdad" (Funk & Wagnalls Company). Mr. Crockett gives the reader many interesting details about his boyhood days. He tells about the first book of literary merit that he ever owned, "Oliver Twist," and pays a nice tribute to the home town paper, the Calvert Journal. He speaks of the influence on his early life of Lynn Meekins, the well-known Baltimore editor, and of Josephus Daniels, "even then the presiding genius of a Raleigh daily."

Crockett's first job, however, was on the Times of Philadelphia, then edited by Colonel Alexander K. McClure. The city editor was Philip Speed, who had come to the Times from the New York World. From the Times Crockett went over to the Philadelphia Inquirer, the city editor of which was John Trevor Custis. Later Crockett secured a position as a reporter on the New York Herald, of which Frank Perley was then the day city editor.

Mr. Crockett eventually found his way to the desk of suburban editor. His next advance came when he was made the New York correspondent of the Paris edition of the Herald and of the London Daily Telegraph. The latter job was a sort of course of training for work in the London office of the Herald.

What the rooms of the London bureau of the Herald looked like is thus set forth by Mr. Crockett:

> The sole occupant of the place was an office boy. We had some difficulty making each other understand. Finally, gathering the purport of my questions, he ushered me into an inner room, containing two desks and a small table, three or four wooden chairs, a fire-place, a number of ragged books lying on the mantelpiece above, a dilapidated book-case containing a few reference books, an assortment of calendars on the walls, and piles of soiled manuscript and proofs spiked on the desks.

Of his work in London Mr. Crockett speaks as follows:

> My work was to be mainly devoted to looking up Americans who might chance to be visiting London, interviewing them and chronicling the movements of such as were not desirous of escaping observation—now an obsolete construction of a newspaper correspondent's duties. This took me mainly to the hotels most frequented by Americans, especially those who enjoyed prominence because of wealth or social position.

The chapter, "Personages," deals with the important people Crockett met in London, as does another chapter, "Friends of Mammon." Other chapters take up the various assignments given to Mr. Crockett not only in England but also on the continent. These assignments are described somewhat in detail, but differ little from those given to other correspondents sent overseas to cover events for metropolitan dailies. Here and there throughout the volume one catches a passing glimpse of Caliph Bennett.

If the yarns spun by the old Herald men when they gather at the Newspaper Club have fifty per cent of truth in them, James Gordon Bennett was one of the most unique characters in the annals of American journalism. He well deserves a permanent portrait between the covers of a book where he will be the leading character. This criticism does not mean that Mr. Crockett's experiences are either dull or poorly described, but does imply that the volume should have a different title.

Nebraska Editor on Coast

Lou W. Frazier, editor of the Fairmo (Neb.) Fillmore Chronicle, has be visting in Long Beach and San Dieg California. He will later go to Va couver. Mr. Frazier holds the N braska record for longest continuo service in one newspaper plant. He h been the publisher of the Fillmo Chronicle for 41 years, and for two yea before gaining ownership he was e ployed in that office.

Editor Loses Purse, Finds a Bride

Cyril E. Kissane, city editor of t Wall Street Journal, lost his wallet the sands of Long Beach, Long Isla last summer. The purse was found Miss Clair A. Dreyfoos, and therewi began a romance which ended last we at the altar of St. Patrick's church Brooklyn. Mr. and Mrs. Kissane a now on their honeymoon.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization
Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg., LOS ANGELES

Our Customers Write Our Ads

Staten Island, N. Y., Advance Says—

"After experience with old style half circle plate presses, it is a vast relief to have all page steps by twos on our DUPLEX TUBULAR instead of having to make up four extra pages to accommodate tardy advertisers."

DUPLEX PRESSES
FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Once upon a time there lived a newspaper publisher who knew his business. He gave the folks in his community a bright, well-edited, well-printed newsy paper. He took an interest in local conditions and caused the abolishment of many things that did not make for civic welfare. The folks believed in him and in his paper, and he enjoyed the good will of advertisers at home and abroad. His paper was sold on its sheer merits and he was satisfied.

One day, his sleepy competitor was acquired by a high-powered publisher from a big city. And then the fun commenced.

The new publisher started a circulation campaign and gave away automobiles, and sent boys and girls to Europe, and provided dolls for the babies and velocipedes for the kids. And his circulation grew apace.

But the old conservative publisher sat still. He said—"The people know my kind of paper, they know I sell the news, and they know the things I stand for in this community, and I'm not going to make a blooming circus out of my newspaper."

But the new publisher persisted and soon the ears of his newspaper carried the slogan "The greatest circulation in Smithville," and he broadcast his circulation figures and all the advertising world knew just how big and how wide his distribution had swelled.

And out in the National field the space buyers took notice. "Ah," said they, "this man must be a real humdinger. He's gone to Smithville and in about a year has doubled his circulation and we ought to consider his paper."

The old publisher kept right on selling his paper to the folks—he lost very little circulation, for he had a good will that endured, but slowly and surely the new publisher acquired more and more National advertising.

The wise space buyers in the big cities were buying "coverage."

Then the conservative publisher took a tumble to himself. He said—"I publish a good newspaper, and I want to sell it in a fair, businesslike way. I want readers to continue to buy my paper because they really want it—because I furnish them with the news and the features they like to read, and because they have confidence that I'm going always to tell the facts as I know them. But if the space buyer wants inflated circulation, and I'm going to lose my National business by sitting quiet—it's surely up to me to bestir myself."

And thereupon a great rivalry ensued as to which paper could give away the most newspapers. Many didn't buy the paper because they wanted to read it—for much of the circulation was out of the natural trading radius of both papers. But you see it was a mad race for quantity distribution and costs or reader value were not considered.

Well, when the smoke cleared away, and the new publisher had spent about all the money he could afford, he found he was in second place and that both papers had swelled their distribution greatly.

And of course they had to raise their advertising rates, locally—nationally—for there was no money in this new circulation and somebody had to pay for it.

The advertisers at home protested. Much of this new circulation wasn't any good to them because it was in markets covered by neighboring newspapers.

The space buyer in the National field hollered bloody murder but forgot that he primarily was the cause of the high cost of covering Smithville.

Moral—

As long as advertisers permit their agents to buy mere "coverage"—volume distribution, regardless of how it's acquired or where it's circulated, just so long will publishers vie with each other to lead in circulation—and just so long, too, will they pass the exorbitant cost of maintaining this worthless distribution along to the advertiser.

* * *

When the space buyer analyzes circulation methods and buys character distribution, advertising rates will get down to a lower level, based on value.

We wonder how long it is before advertisers will open their eyes to what they're doing. We wonder how long they want to pay for the gas that inflates the circulation balloon. The publisher doesn't want this circulation, it's a liability to him, and it isn't worth a continental to most advertisers. How can circulation, sold to people who do not want the paper but want a prize, or a trip-ticket—bring returns?

And the answer is, it can't.

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency
Established 1888
Publishers' Representatives
DETROIT NEW YORK KANSAS CITY
ATLANTA CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

EDITORIAL

S.N.P.A. CO-OPERATION

ACROSS the country newspaper men will read with sound interest and benefit the proceedings of the annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association. This organization is an outstanding success in sectional co-operation. Nowhere do newspaper men come together in finer social spirit or work more diligently for the common welfare. The S. N. P. A. has made great gains for its membership, both in refinement of methods and in reaching out for new business. It is a compact body, working harmoniously with the national organizations. It is a journalistic bulwark, founded upon great traditions and maintaining true ideals.

These are not mere pleasant phrases when applied to the S. N. P. A. The latent commercial power of the South is just being revealed to the nation, and Southern newspapers, largely through organization, are carrying the flag. The year has witnessed a phenomenal development, testified to in part by a big increase in national advertising in Southern newspapers. Behind this has been the co-operative advertising of the Southern press. The possibilities of this movement has scarcely been scratched. The South is coming into her own, after long and wearisome neglect, and will be recognized as one of the greatest sources of new national wealth during the next ten years.

John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh Times, is the new president of the S. N. P. A., an able man, who will make the organization more efficient than ever before. The valuable information revealed at the annual convention is disclosed on other pages of Editor & Publisher, but we desire to take this occasion to congratulate the body on its year's work and to hold it up before the newspaper men of the nation as a model of intelligent and effective co-operation.

Paste it in your hat: National newspaper advertising is now more than one-third of the total.

AMERICAN PROSPERITY LEADS

THE United States from the year 1790 to 1926 has enjoyed, on the average, 1½ years of prosperity for every year of depression, and with Canada leads the nations of the world, according to data collected by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

The relative duration of the prosperous and depressed phases in the business cycles of five important countries during various periods is shown in the following table:

Country	Period	Years of Prosperity per year of Depression
United States	1790-1925	1.50
England	1790-1925	1.11
France	1840-1925	1.18
Germany	1853-1925	1.18
Austria	1866-1925	0.70

Canada enjoyed 1.86 years of prosperity for each year of depression in the period from 1888 to 1924. Her pre-war average was 2.08 years of prosperity for each year of depression.

Austria, China and Brazil have the shortest periods of prosperity compared to their periods of depression, the report declares.

The figures are interesting and will be used as a guide to future expectations among those who are committed to the idea that national prosperity travels in cycles the course of which may be, in a measure, predetermined.

Even more important, to our notion, is the simple observation that, aside from misfortunes over which mortal man has no control, national prosperity is won by progressive, thrifty, conscientious, working people and by just governments and that the guide to future expectation of prosperity is merely an estimate of the disposition of the people to work and progress and governments to be just.

A New York press agent when called upon to show results in clippings spent a few dollars for a supply, which was quickly printed in a job office, according to his own boast; advertisers who employ men to gyp newspapers should not be surprised if the gyper gyps them.

The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be forescore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away.

So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.—Psalms, XC; 10, 12.

MISSING ADVERTISING LINK

READERS who have followed discussion on this page of Editor & Publisher of the strange non-advertising attitude of the great insurance companies of the country will find ample corroboration of our views and much interesting information in the address of Charles H. Holland, an insurance company executive and expert, before the advertising convention at Philadelphia, which is reproduced on another page of this issue.

From the angle of the great insurance companies Mr. Holland not only shows how a co-operative schedule might easily be planned but indicates how it could be run through the newspapers at minimum expense, a trifling cost considering the large objective and the ability of the companies to make the investment.

The point is that a large number of people in this country are not found by insurance agents, that insurance is needed by them and that newspaper advertising would deliver their names to local agencies as live prospects.

We insist, and Mr. Holland bears us out, that insurance is one of the great unexplored fields for modern newspaper advertising.

Protection from fire loss is the big, outstanding problem facing spruce forest conservationists; timberland fires need only be discovered to be successfully fought by well-known methods—this problem, therefore, is merely one of organization and support.

VALUABLE NEWS

A CORRESPONDENT asks Editor & Publisher: "Why is such useless information as the following carried on press wires and published in our newspapers to the exclusion of valuable information?"

Mother Deserts Twins

Special to Miami Daily News

London, May 25.—Twin girl babies were deserted by their mother in a perambulator in Lambeth.

Most newspaper men will agree with us that for human interest this brief cabled item has had few parallels in recent months. It is information that profoundly stirs the emotions of any normal reader. It may be highly significant. Child desertion is not uncommon in our civilization, but an instance wherein a mother forsakes infant girl twins is rare and merits publication.

The correspondent chose wisely, but should have given a basis for comment by reporting any fact concerning an economic or social condition which might have accounted for that wretched woman's act, strangely inhuman if she was sane.

The friend who questioned the value of this despatch and a half dozen additional foreign news items, all in our opinion bearing sound information, needs his summer vacation. When newspapers fail to treat human affairs they will have strayed from their best field of service.

In hot weather, stress entertainment!

STRAW FOR PAPER

REPORTS from Europe encourage the belief that the revived use of cereal straw as a substitute for pulpwood may assist materially in the solution of the paper problem of the future. Straw preceded spruce in paper manufacture, but was displaced owing to the immense quantity of spruce available on economical terms. However, as the spruce supply declines, straw again becomes of interest.

By the so-called Dr. Vaine process cereal straw paper is being produced in increasing volume and the quality of the fibre is well regarded. One London paper has been using it with excellent results for months. New York Commercial estimates Canada's annual yield of straw, now mostly wasted, at 8,000,000 tons, capable of conversion into 2,000,000 tons of pulp for paper. This does not take into account the vast quantity of wasted straw produced on our own prairies

No institution nor any man can be truly free unless economically independent.

TALE WITH A MORAL

ONCE we knew a successful newspaper publisher who made life as difficult as possible for his single struggling competitor. Theirs was a thriving, growing city, deserving legitimate newspaper competition, but so great was this astigmatic gentleman's greed that he fairly tortured the life out of his rival. When there was a paper shortage and the poor relation down the street asked to borrow a couple of rolls to make a day's run, pending receipt of a shipment, the cruel publisher said him nay. What he did to block advertising and circulation development of the weak sheet was all that a powerful publisher could do. Finally he was rewarded. The little publisher curled up and died. The newspaper's remains were purchased by a strong, well-financed group of local merchants who believed that the greedy one had evil designs which might thus be circumvented. They put up competition that was competition. It cost the greedy publisher a million, during ten years. This tale has an obvious moral: Competition is neither war nor poker.

The advertising agent who splits commissions with an advertiser is a rate cutter and menaces both to his own profession and publishing.

THE POSTAL DELAY

THE zone postal system and second-class postal rates running up to eight cents a pound have dragged their weary lengths through Congress for five years, last survivors of war expedients, and there is no bright prospect of relief by this Congress. Post-office politicians who believe the department should be "profitable" are having their way, sustained by Administration leaders who sympathize with the notion that newspaper publishing is just a business for profit and serves no particularly valuable public cause. The politician's allocation of costs continues to put upon second class mail the burden of the postal deficit, though the absurdity and wrong of it has long been apparent.

Prosperous big papers may be able to stand the loss and perhaps even enjoy the advantage over weak little papers that are oppressed by rates that make subscriptions abnormal or the cost of carrying circulation prohibitive, but the great question of public policy cannot be ignored: This government is operated by public opinion and public opinion is possible only through the printed page; shall the free flow of public information be inhibited by prohibitive postal rates?

The delay in correcting the unequal, unjust and wholly indefensible zone system and excessive second class rates has become scandalous. The publishers' organizations have given a vast amount of patient effort to the authorities to make the situation clear. The long delay seems to indicate that the opposition is deliberately arbitrary and the note of indignation we are now commencing to hear from publishers' committees seems justified.

That California was hospitable to the N. E. A. and that the 1926 tour will be memorable is well established by the news pictures taken at the scene.

PERSONAL

OUIS WILEY, business manager, New York Times, is spending his nmer vacation at East Hampton, L. I.

Howard C. Story, of Story, Brooks & ley, publishers representatives, Philaphia, sailed last week on the Aquiia for Paris.

ames H. Moore, editor, Knoxville enn.) Sentinel, is seriously ill. He ently suffered a slight injury to his t, which developed an infection.

Ferdinand W. Hartford, of Portsuth, N. H., publisher of the Portsuth Herald, last week was elected sident of the Rockingham-York Depment Association.

. P. Mitchell, editor and owner of the coran (Cal.) Journal, and former olisher of the Owensmouth (Cal.) zette, is seriously ill in a hospital at sno.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

ESTER E. LLOYD has joined the Houston Post-Dispatch as merchang service manager.

O. H. Darrough, formerly of the Miami a.) Tribune and Miami Life, recently ed the San Antonio Express-Evening ws advertising staff.

Mrs. Malcolm S. Lunn, wife of the ulation manager of the Boston Amer-, and two children, Malcolm, Jr., and ry, sailed last week from Boston on Laconia for a tour of England and tland.

I. M. Wheeler for several years with Hartford (Conn.) Times and later ulation manager of the Worcester egram-Gazette, is now circulation nager of the Sarasota (Fla.) Times.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

OBERT H. DAVIS, famous Munsey editor, who conducts the "Bob Davis alls" column in the New York Sun, July 1 read two of his tales before microphone of WEAF, which were yed to WSAL, Cincinnati, WFI, adelphia and WWJ, Detroit.

oward W. Palmer, for the past two s assistant secretary of the Public rice Commission, Albany, N. Y., has ed the Greenwich (Conn.) Press as or and manager.

awrence Gilman, music critic for the York Herald Tribune, returned to York City last week from Norwich n, Conn., where he has been spendthe late spring and early summer. August 7, Mr. Gilman will sail for ope with his family.

oward Wilson, who covered the Eustic Congress in Chicago for the Francisco Bulletin, spent a few at Rockford, Ill., visiting former ds. He worked on Rockford papers ears ago.

hn E. Sanford, special writer on Detroit News, is taking a rest at ome of his brother, W. I. Sanford, unkirk, N. Y.

cCready Huston, associate editor, h Bend (Ind.) Tribune, has red from a two weeks' vacation in East.

anklin K. Sprague, financial editor, York Herald Tribune is at the Placid Club, Lake Placid, N. Y., is vacation.

illiam T. Igleheart, city editor of Salt Lake City Tribune for the past years, has been appointed private tary to Governor George H. Dern.

seph A. Brady, Albany correspond*New York Herald Tribune,* has left his family for a camp at Sacanin the Adirondacks.

nes McCamey, reporter for the n (Tex.) American, is visiting his y in Knoxville, Tenn.

n Wagner of Duluth has returned e newspaper business after a prod absence and is now a reporter e Duluth News Tribune staff.

David G. Barenther, Raleigh T. Curtis and Thomas R. White, have joined the copy desk of the New York Herald Tribune.

J. K. Truebridge, formerly of Seattle and a graduate of the University of Washington in 1921 has joined the copy desk of the Portland Oregonian.

Charles S. Salomon state courts reporter for the New York Herald Tribune, returned this week from a vacation trip to Cuba.

Jack Lawrence of the sporting department, New York Herald Tribune, has been transferred to the city staff.

Harry Neigher has joined the staff of the Springfield (Mass.) Union as reporter and cartoonist.

J. H. Walker of the reportorial staff, Derby (England) Express, has been appointed editor-in-chief of the Leicester (Eng.) Mail.

H. A. Nickel is now the editor of the Needles (Cal.) Nugget, succeeding Mrs. Caroline Zimmers.

E. A. McSweeney, assistant Sunday editor, New York Herald Tribune, has returned from his vacation.

The engagement of Miss Doris Williams of New Britain, Conn., to Gordon Goldsmith, assistant news editor of the Bridgeport Telegram was announced recently.

Philip Kinsley of the Chicago Tribune has left for a two months' leave of absence. He plans to spend July in hiking on the John Muir trail in California. In August he will join his family in Colorado.

Antoinnette Donnelly, beauty specialist of the Chicago Tribune, will spend the next three months abroad.

Clyde Brown, in charge of the photographic department of the Chicago Daily News, is spending several weeks in Massachusetts.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

LEO CAVANAUGH, from police reporter, Waterloo (Ia.) Tribune to copy desk, Duluth (Minn.) News Tribune.

Leonard Ware, from copy reader, Springfield (Mass.) Union, to copy desk, Boston Herald.

John E. Nevin, from political reporter, Washington (D. C.) Post to staff, New York Herald Tribune.

Harry Cohn, from Milwaukee Sentinel, to telegraph editor, Duluth (Minn.) News Tribune.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

H. W. ALEXANDER, publisher of the Sheffield (Ia.) Conrad Record, has purchased the Thornton (Ia.) Enterprise from M. Bilderback, who has published the paper the last 12 years.

Mrs. Anna Pier recently sold the Almira (Wash.) Big Bend Outlook to F. A. Wilson and William Evans, former employes of the paper.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

HERBERT R. EDE, city editor of the Newark (N. J.) Evening News, recently appointed associate professor of journalism at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J., has had 17 years newspaper experience. He has been city editor of the News now for four and a half years

HERBERT R. EDE

Graduated from Brown University with the class of 1909, Mr. Ede started his career with the New Bedford (Mass.) Evening Standard. Later he worked for the Providence Journal, subsequently joining the staff of the Boston Herald.

He came to Newark 14 years ago, and spent a year on the staff of the old Newark Morning Star before becoming associated with the News as city hall reporter. After about a year on the street, Mr. Ede was transferred to desk work, becoming head of the copy desk eventually. In April 1919 he was promoted to assistant city editor, and was made city editor in 1922.

At Rutgers, Mr. Ede will be assistant to Prof. Allen Sinclair Will, formerly city editor of the Baltimore Sun. The Rutgers journalism department was established largely through the efforts of the New Jersey Press Association.

MARRIED

OSCAR A. ANDERSON, of the circulation department, Galesburg (Ill.) Republican-Register, to Miss Mabel Johnson, June 28, in Galesburg.

Sterling Price Anderson, telegraph editor, Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal, to Miss Dorothy Alexander Henderson, of Bristol, Tenn., July 1, at Bristol.

W. F. Snowden, eastern division traffic chief of the Consolidated Press Association, to Miss Marion Therese Brady of New York, June 27.

Leon Harpole, of the Chicago Tribune staff, to Miss Eulalia Tortst, in the home of the bride's parents in Normal, Ill., June 26.

Horace Epes, editorial director of the Consolidated Press Association, to Miss

(Continued on page 28)

100% Plus 100%

SUPERIORITY of the newsphotos and sports in The Central Press Association's complete and exclusive daily illustrated news and feature service is established. More than 400 editors rate them 100 per cent.

The features in The Central Press Service also are 100 per cent, as a constantly increasing number of editors are willing to testify.

Cargill's editorial cartoons are reproduced with exceptional frequency by The Literary Digest and other important reviews. Charles Hanson Towne's "Poems I Love" is one of the best poetry features being published today. Mme. Lisbeth's fashion articles, illustrated by actual photos, have a nation-wide audience. There always is a women's serial of compelling interest, by a noted author, being released to Central Press clients. The current serial is by Samuel Merwin. Florence Smith Vincent writes women's editorials and children's stories; Mary Morton, household science, and Lilian Campbell, a review of women's activities, for Central Press. There are six other entertaining or informative daily features in The Central Press service.

Let us send you the service for four days, without charge.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

P. S. We Produce the World's Best Picture Page.

As popular with every member of the family as ice cream!

From grand-dad to those of an age with Christopher Robin himself!

It is because of the span of its appeal, because reading Milne once means looking for him each week, that subscribing papers find they have an out-of-the-ordinary success in

THE A. A. MILNE WEEKLY FEATURE

In Verse or in Prose

Fitting Drawings by Bert N. Salg

Several Million Readers are already "Rollicking with Milne in the Funshine."

The list of cities of all sizes using Milne is mounting quickly on the merits of the feature.

Why not give your readers, too, "a Joyride on a Rainbow"?

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

(Continued from page 27)

Glenda Reid Millan, of Washington, D. C., at the First Methodist Church in New York, Saturday, July 3. Mr. and Mrs. Epes will make their home in Washington.

Donald McClure, Sunday editor of the Indianapolis Star, to Irma B. Lowe, at Cincinnati, July 2.

Leroy Sims of the Birmingham Age Herald to Miss Flora Virginia Hammill of Birmingham, July 1.

Harry Irish, circulation department, New York World, to Beatrice Hurley, formerly with the Rochester (N. Y.) Post-Express & Journal, July 4.

WITH THE SPECIALS

A. C. BACKUS, publisher of the Milwaukee Sentinel, has announced that effective July 12, the Sentinel will be represented in the national advertising field jointly with the New York American and the Chicago Herald & Examiner.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

LETHBRIDGE (ALTA.) HERALD 70-page edition celebrating the 20th anniversary of that city, June 26.

Sheridan (Wyo.) Post-Enterprise, Custer Fete Pictorial edition, June 18.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

THE following newspapers have recently installed Ludlow equipment: Ambridge (Pa.) Citizen, Atlantic City (N. J.) News, Hyannis (Mass.) Patriot, Anderson (Ind.) Bulletin, Far Rockaway (N. Y.) News. A second complete Ludlow equipment has just been installed in the Hammond (Ind.) Lake County Times.

Baker (Ore.) Morning Democrat recently installed a Model A Duplex web press.

New Brunswick (N. J.) Daily Home News has ordered a 48-page press.

O. H. Lackenmeyer and Richard Elam, owners of the Cushing (Okla.) Daily Citizen, have leased for five years a new building to be erected this summer, from O. F. and L. C. Jeske. The building is to be ready by Sept. 15.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

LAWRENCE H. SELZ, managing editor of the Kent Press Service, spent a week in the Indianapolis bureau recently.

J. M. Hodgson, formerly of the Buffalo Courier wire of the Associated Press, is now A. P. operator in the office of the Springfield (Mass.) Union. F. X. Sadowski has transferred from the Springfield Union to the Salem (Mass.) News A. P. wire.

Robert P. Early of Indianapolis has been appointed Kent Press Service bureau manager in that city. Early was formerly in the United Press Indianapolis bureau, and with the Connersville (Ind.) News Examiner as city editor.

ASSOCIATIONS

E. C. TAULBEE has been elected president of the WACO ADVERTISING CLUB. DeWitt Morgan was elected vice-president; Louis Marsh, secretary; L. M. Coyne (retiring president), W. C. Crawford, W. F. Doney, D. P. Wallace and C. B. Harman, directors.

Leon J. Harger, advertising manager of the Crescent department store of Spokane, Wash., was recently elected president of the SPOKANE ADVERTISING CLUB.

ON THE MECHANICAL SIDE

JOSEPH CLARK, linotype operator, has resigned from the Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Republican-Journal, and has removed to Long Beach, Cal.

Sydney Pratt, formerly composing room superintendent of the Montreal (Que.) Witness has resigned to become news room superintendent of the New Montreal (Que.) World.

MEXICAN JOURNALISTS SEEKING WORK

100 Out of Employment as Result of El Democrata Suspension—Union Asks 3 Months' Guaranteed Wages

Special to EDITOR & PUBLISHER

MEXICO CITY, June 30.—These days are hard days for Mexican journalists. Since El Demócrata, the oldest daily newspaper of Mexico so suddenly suspended, dragging away with itself several other small publications, there seems to be but very little chance for about 100 reporters, news editors, under editors, photographers, editorial writers, literary editors, etc., to get on a job again soon.

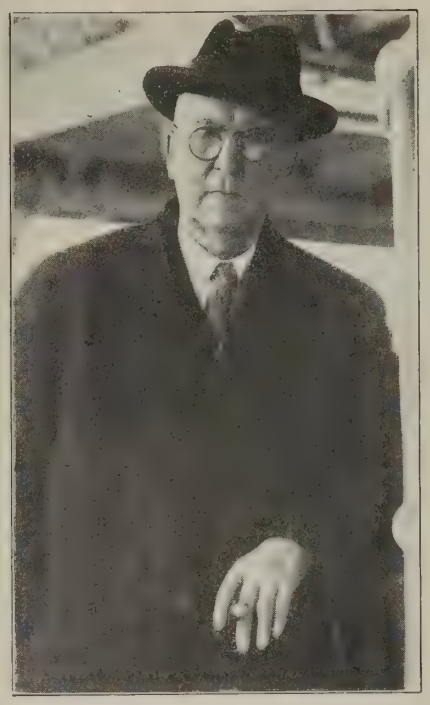
While the Federation of Graphic Arts, which is one of the branches of the C.R.O.M. — Mexican Confederation of Labor— has been paying these idle men 50 per cent of their former wages, and will do so far three months, hardly 20 per cent of the workers have found accommodation on other papers.

The pessimistic spirit of the unemployed is largely based on the fact that all the men who formed the active staff of El Demócrata, having been left without any compensation whatever, the Federation of Graphic Arts has decided not to furnish the necessary workers to any new company wishing to take the plant and operate it, unless a cash deposit of the total amount of three months wages is made, with which to indemnify the workers, under the Mexican Constitution, in the event of a new failure. And it is yet very improbable that there will be a new enterprise which can afford to venture risks in the operation of a newspaper under the F. G. A.'s terms, which are considered rather exaggerated.

Several attempts have been made by modestly organized companies to resume the publication of the small dailies and magazines which also suffered stoppage with the suspension of El Demócrata, under more liberal terms, but they have not succeeded. This situation has created some resentment from the unemployed and has already resulted in several desertions from the ranks of the trade unions and syndicates affiliated to the F. G. A. This dissociation seems to be inspired also by the possibility of the opening of a new daily which it is said will be published by the recently incorporated Compañía Editora Militar of which General Joaquin Amaro, Secretary of War, is president, and who has announced his intention of employing exclusively free workers under individual contracts.

But here the journalist and the newspaper worker finds himself handicapped again, for it is stated that, while General Amaro is a strong advocate to the use of free workers, on the other hand he intends to make of every one of them some sort of "military assimilated" so as to prevent all possibilities of future labor disputes.

The Compañía Editora Militar has acquired the rights on El Demócrata's plant, where the new daily La Patria will be published, as well as Gladiador, a weekly semi-official organ of the Secretary of War.



Blethen's Son Rowing Star

Francis Blethen, the son of C. B. Blethen, publisher of the Seattle Times was coxswain of the victorious University of Washington crew that rowed against Princeton University recently. He also piloted the crew that won the Junior Varsity race at Poughkeepsie, June 28.

Texas Daily Using Auto Delivery

The San Angelo (Tex.) Standard has begun motor carrier service for its subscribers, four automobiles having been put into use. Each car will have a driver and a carrier.

DR. FRANK CRANE GOES ABROAD

Dr. Frank Crane, writer of syndicated editorials, aboard the Empress of Scotland on which he sailed recently for Europe from Quebec.

FLASHES

Eve never taunted Adam about t number of men who had proposed to he —Florence (Ala.) Herald.

There are two causes of cussedne (1) poverty, and (2) prosperity.— Davenport Times.

If the bravest are the tenderest, t steer that provided our dinner was coward.—San Jose News.

The graduate is discovering that in t matter of getting a job, a sheepskin is as important as sole leather.—Stamfo Advocate.

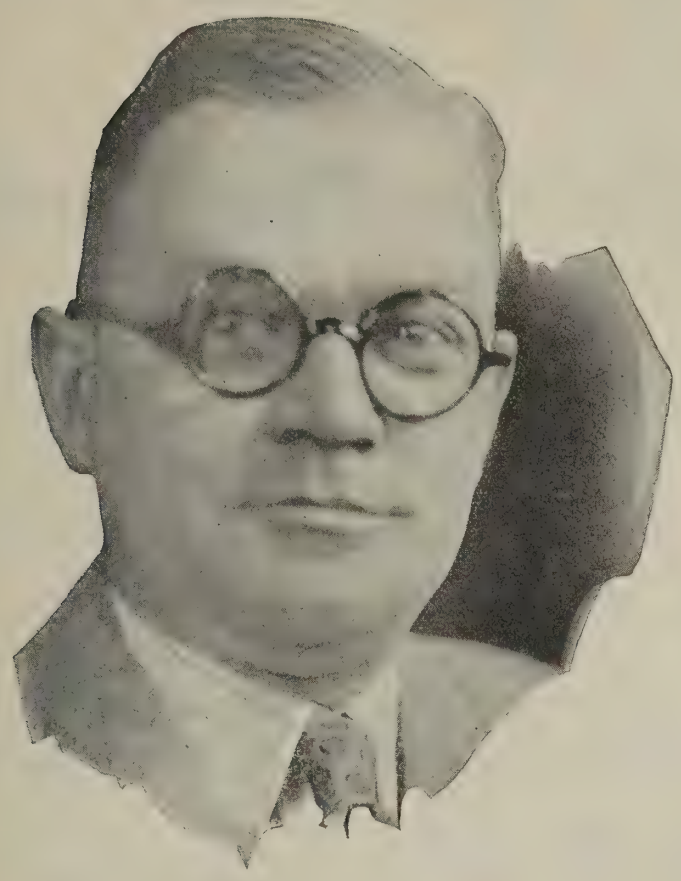
The thing that really hurts the mo ern girl's pride is to tell her that s is no more wicked than her grandmoth was.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

Now that China has stopped dozing, t concession powers will have to stop bu dozing.—Norfolk Virginian Pilot.

Matrimony: A process by which t grocer gets an account the haberdash once had.—Macon News.

It is quite possible that Dempsey a Wills will meet on the same date t average golfer actually plays what considers his normal game.—New Yo Herald Tribune.

AN UNDER-DEVELOPED ADVERTISING FIELD



Church advertising will be one of the very important phases of the international advertising convention in Philadelphia this coming week. It is to be the theme of ministers and laymen who will occupy the pulpits of seventy-six Philadelphia churches on June 20th, convention Sunday.

The value of advertising to churches will be fully discussed at the Tuesday and Wednesday sessions of the Church Advertising Department, June 22 and 23, in Room 200, College Hall, University of Pennsylvania, particularly with reference to newspapers as one of the most important mediums.

The discussions will be helpful and valuable to newspaper men who are developing church advertising in their papers. Are you planning to cover these meetings?

Church Advertising Department
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS,
383 Madison Avenue
New York, N. Y.

THE WATERTOWN STANDARD

Northern New York's Leading Newspaper

announces effective July 5th

LAWRENCE S. CHUBBUCK

Business Manager in Charge of Advertising

FOR eleven years Mr. Chubbuck has been Advertising Manager of the Binghamton Press. He is President of the Association of Advertising Managers of New York State Dailies. He brings to the Watertown Standard a wide practical experience which should be of great assistance in aiding manufacturers to develop the rich trading area of which Watertown is the center and which, from the advertising viewpoint, is dominated by the Watertown Standard.

WATERTOWN STANDARD

WATERTOWN, NEW YORK

Largest total circulation.
Largest home delivery.
Largest Department Store advertising volume.
Largest local advertising.
Largest classified volume.

Watertown, the hub of Northern New York's great dairy and paper manufacturing industries, a rich market for national advertisers.

NORTHERN NEW YORK'S LEADING NEWSPAPER

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Cooperating With Agencies

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: In your issue of June 19th there appears an article which we believe every newspaper man in the U. S. should read.

If the publishers would supply the advertising agency space buyers with the information contained in Mr. Slomanson's article, it would make their duties much easier to perform.

The writer is interested in calling this matter to your attention with the thought that his expression may be the means of getting enough daily newspaper publishers to respond and supply the information which is so much needed in every advertising agency.

Yours very truly,
KLAU-VAN PIETERSOM-DUNLAP-YOUNGGREEN, INC.
Per F. DeWolfe,
Milwaukee, Wis.

Wireless Greetings

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: From friends to friends, au revoir.
(signed) Muller, Duroulet, Dumay and Kaminker
By radio from S. S. Paris, July 4.

Praises Convention Number

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: Let me take this opportunity to congratulate you most sincerely on the excellent convention number of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

The amount of work on the material which went into this issue is not only a credit to your efficient organization but is a sincere compliment to the advertising world.

The convention issue should make for EDITOR & PUBLISHER additional friends. You already have a huge list but still friends are always a fine asset, and the value of your medium merits a continually increasing capacity in this direction.

C. C. GREEN,
President, Advertising Club of New York.

Missouri Press Meet Aug. 13

Because the original date of the Missouri Press Association Convention July 30, comes so close to the primary election date, officers have changed the date to August 13. Twenty-five counties comprise the district with a membership of nearly 100, representing both daily and weekly publications. Edgar White of the Macon Republican is president.

Krikawa Press Club Manager

L. C. Krikawa, a hotel and club man of wide experience, this week became manager of the National Press Club which early next year will move into its elaborate new quarters in the National Press Building, now in course of construction. Krikawa succeeds R. L. Marcley, for 16 years manager of the club, resigned.

Holohan Succeeds Chester in Chicago

Allan F. Chester, for the past five years auditor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, has resigned to become comptroller of the Ohio Oil Company. Prior to coming with the newspaper Mr. Chester held the same position. Martin E. Holohan has been appointed to succeed him. C. R. Obermeyer is the new assistant auditor, and J. A. Votava will be cashier.

Illinois Weeklies Merged

The Rochelle (Ill.) Independent and the Register, weeklies, have been combined as the Independent and Register, by the Home News Publishing company, owners of the Register since the first of the year. C. H. Stafford of the Register will be editor in charge. The Home News operates eight papers in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin.

Issues "One Year After" Edition

The Santa Barbara (Cal.) Morning Press issued a 68-page edition June 29 announcing that the city had recovered from the earthquake of the previous year. In the edition were many illustrations of the reconstruction—new hotels and residences.

Criticism Brings $5,000 Suit

Alleging that publication of an article in the Carmago (Okla.) Comet criticizing his action in not protesting a change of venue from one county to another had injured him before the public. N. W. Crum, county attorney of Dewey county, has filed suit against John Disbrow, editor, and Mrs. Ada Disbrow, publisher of the Comet. He asks $5,000 damages.

Nebraska Daily Changes Field

The Nebraska City (Neb.) News-Press has changed from the morning to evening field. The change was made following a vote by subscribers. J. H. Sweet is editor and manager.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO — CLINE SYSTEM — QUALITY, SERVICE, NAME, CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by

Vancouver Province
Vancouver, B. C.

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

WE DO OUR WORK WITH THE SAME INTEREST AND ENTHUSIASM AS IF WE OWNED EVERY NEWSPAPER WE SERVE

Our COMPLETE checking service handles the entire detail work of supplying "checking proofs" to every agency and advertiser promptly—and—efficiently.

WE DO IT ALL
from a few complete copies

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.
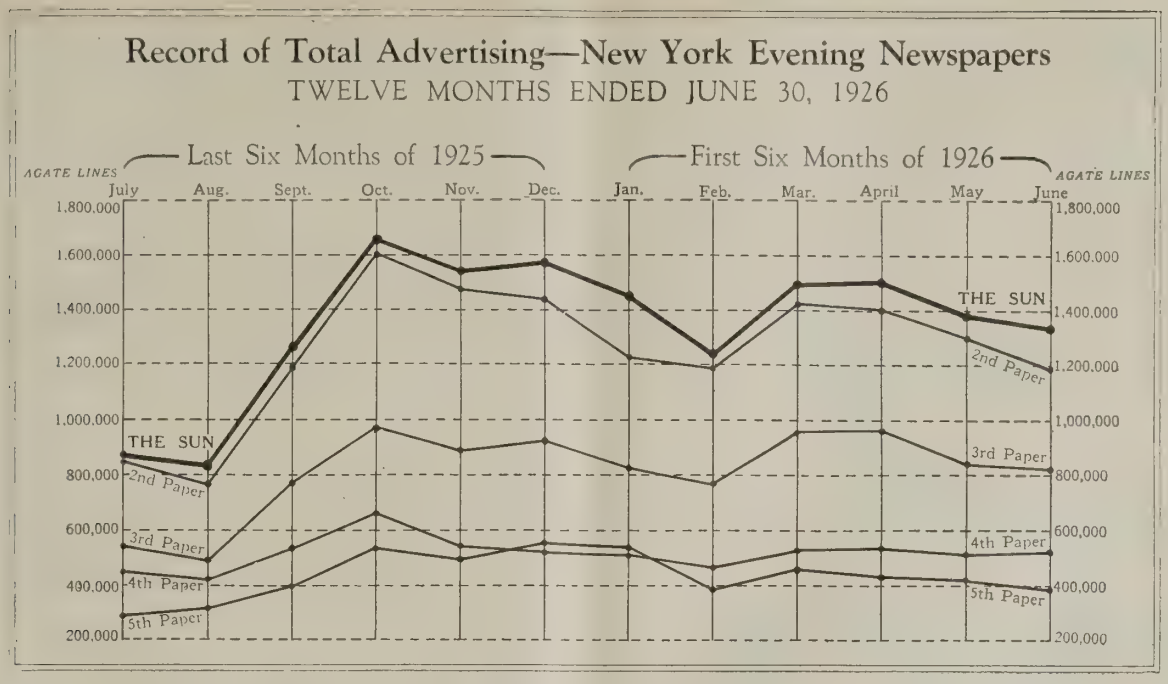
538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

"SPEEDMATS"
and the
Tubular Plate Press



THE small diameter of the tubular plate casting box demands an exceptionally flexible and thin dry mat. A stiff and spongy mat will not conform to the curvature of the box—as a result of which plates from such mats are cast with facets, small flat areas on the curved surface.

The "SPEEDMAT" is designed to conform perfectly to the curvature of the casting box and thereby eliminates the difficulties heretofore encountered with dry mats in tubular plate foundries.

The "SPEEDMAT" is the ideal dry mat for the tubular plate press.

Price—15 cents at mill

Wood Flong Corporation
501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

The Outstanding Leader

Among New York Evening Newspapers

THE characteristic that determines the productiveness of a newspaper as a medium for advertisers is the kind of people who read it.

If all persons were equally responsive to advertising, then the newspaper with the largest circulation would bring the best results. But persons vary greatly in their needs and desires, in their purchasing power, in their intelligence, in their attitude toward advertising.

And so, newspapers vary greatly in their value to advertisers—in their ability to produce results; and this variation is dependent more on the quality, the responsiveness, of circulation than on the quantity.

The reason why advertisers get better results through The Sun than through any other New York evening newspaper, the reason why they use more space in The Sun than in any other New York evening newspaper, is because The Sun is read by people of more than average means and better than average intelligence—people who have purchasing power as well as purchasing impulse—people of wide activities, many interests and large influence—people who are responsive to advertising.

Among these people The Sun has a larger home circulation than any other New York weekday newspaper.

For twelve consecutive months The Sun has published more advertising than any other New York evening newspaper—an indication of the superior productiveness of its advertising columns.

During this period The Sun published 16 million lines of advertising—leading the second evening newspaper by more than one million lines.

For twelve consecutive months The Sun has made larger gains in advertising than any other New York evening newspaper—an indication that advertisers in increasingly large numbers are becoming convinced of the advantages of The Sun and are satisfied with the results secured through The Sun.

The Sun maintains a rigid censorship on all advertising

The Sun

280 BROADWAY NEW YORK

BOSTON Old South Building
WASHINGTON, D. C. Munsey Building
CHICAGO 208 So. La Salle St.
LOS ANGELES Van Nuys Building
SAN FRANCISCO First National Bank Building

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Fire Fighters to Spend $500,000 in Advertising Campaign Next Year —Wool Trades Organize to Purchase Space—Utah Master Barbers Boosting the "Bob"

FIFTY American and Canadian corporations engaged in the manufacture of fire equipment voted on a publicity and advertising campaign at a convention of the Fire Equipment Manufacturers Institute held in Montreal last week.

The program outlined at the convention will necessitate the spending of approximately $500,000 by the fire fighters next year.

Walter Bauer, president of the Pyrene Manufacturing Company and head of the Fire Equipment Manufacturers Institute, presided at the convention which was held at the Windsor Hotel in Montreal and lasted two days.

Other prominent men attending were: E. G. Weed, president, Pyrene Manufacturing Company of Canada; C. Cizek, vice-president, American-LaFrance Fire Engine Company; E. G. Thomas, president American La France Company, Canada; R. C. Iddings, president, Fyr Fyter Company, Dayton, O.; Dana Estes, president, Knight & Thomas, Boston; Herman Diener, president, Geo. W. Diener Manufacturing Company, Chicago, and D. S. Hunter, secretary of the Fire Equipment Manufacturers Institute, with headquarters at Cleveland.

The Institute itself will spend approximately $50,000 to educate the public on fire fighting. The Pyrene Company will spend $100,000, the American La France Company will spend $100,000; the Foamite-Childs Corporation, $100,000, and another $100,000 or more will be provided by numerous other smaller companies.

"We aim to put a fire extinguisher, regardless of who makes it, in every home," said Mr. Bauer, when interviewed in Montreal. "We want to reach the housewife through our publicity. Hundreds of women are sacrificed to the fire fiend needlessly every year."

Notice of the advertising plans were sent out by Henry S. Haskins, public relations counsel, Pyrene Manufacturing Company, 560 Belmont avenue, Newark, N. J. It is understood the George L. Dyer Company, New York Advertising agency, will handle at least a part of the paid promotion.

Wool trades organizations met in New York, Philadelphia and Boston this week to discuss the possibility of aggressive national advertising. A joint publicity committee has been appointed by the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers, the National Association of Woolen and Worsted Spinners, the Boston Wool Trade Association and the Philadelphia Wool and Textile Association. This committee is said to believe that through an advertising campaign a 25 to 80 per cent increase in the use of wool and wool textiles can be accomplished within a short period and at small individual expense.

The Master Barbers' Association of Utah, with headquarters in Salt Lake City, has decided on an advertising campaign in which they will boost the "Bob" and announce special contests designed to further the barber and beauty shop business, they also now being greatly interested in beauty work. Newspaper space will be used.

New England advertising representatives of prominent national firms were the guests of S. B. Chittenden, New England representative of the Hearst newspapers, at the boxing carnival last week of Crosscup-Pishon Post, American Legion, composed of Boston advertising men. A dinner was tendered the guests at the Hotel Kenmore, and in the evening their names were flashed from a huge moving illuminated advertising sign on Boylston street. Prominent advertising men present were: Walter Resor, Paul Hollister, New England manager of Barton, Durstine and Osborne agency; Rodney Boone, general manager national advertising of Hearst papers; Charles Cahill, publisher, Rochester (N. Y.) Journal; Frank Dunn, New England Hearst representative; Ernest Goulston, of the Goulston agency, Boston; Grafton Perkins, John Gilman, Frank Barrows, William Nugent, George Dunham, Douglas Stuart, James Esson, Don Carlisle, Robert McCormick, William Leckie, Al Greenleaf, Al Cahoon and Jack Cremmen.

Sales of the J. C. Penney Company, Inc., big newspaper advertiser, for June reached $9,092,751, compared with $7,037,216 in June 1925, an increase of 29.2 per cent. For the first six months of this year the Penney sales aggregated $46,074,953, an increase of 29.1 per cent over the $35,669,008 reported in the like period last year.

Devoe & Raynolds Company, Inc., report a profit of $623,556 before federal taxes for the six months ended May 31.

Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Chrysler Corporation, this week reported his company was in the "most favorable position in its history. Production for the first six months of this year was 76,773 cars, an increase of 34.5 per cent over the like period last year.

LAWSON'S WILL IN COURT

Brother Asks Federal Taxes Be Paid from Principal Instead of Trust Fund

A petition to construe the will of the late Victor F. Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News was filed July 7 before Judge Hugo Friend. The petition was brought about by Ivar Norman Lawson, a brother, who was named beneficiary of $200,000, a trust fund of $300,000 and other trust estates. He claimed that different federal and state taxes should be paid from the principal instead of from the trust fund.

Judge Friend gave the Illinois Merchants Trust Company, executors of the estate, until August to file a brief and gave Ivar Lawson until September for his answer.

Mistassini Paper Company Building

Mistassini Power and Paper Company Limited has been organized with a Quebec charter and has taken over the timber limit and two water powers that were recently purchased from the Province of Quebec by the Leaside Engineering Company Limited of Leaside, Ont. Construction of a complete newsprint mill with a capacity of 200 tons a day has started. E. A. Wallberg is the president and principal owner, and John Stadler is general manager.

WE'RE ALWAYS BUSY—WHY?

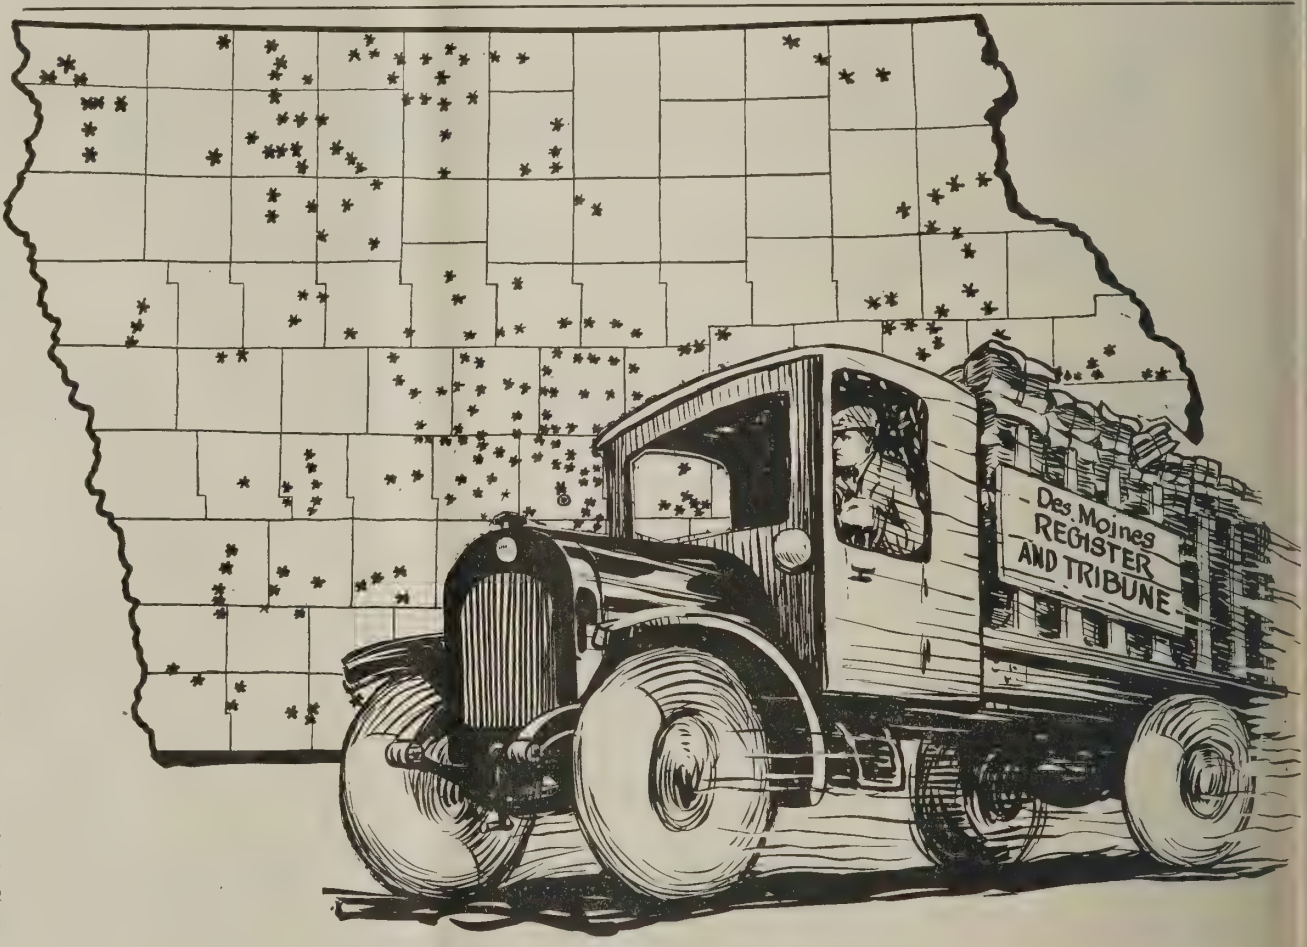
AUTOMOBILE PRIZE CAMPAIGNS

Get the Circulation
Get the Money For It
Get It Quickly
Get It Right

Conducted on
THE KENDALL PLAN

We would like to know more of your circulation building methods and charges. Without obligation to us, you may submit details, terms, etc.

Our last Campaign was run _____



Name of paper _____ City _____

By _____ Title _____ State _____

Should we use a Campaign we would want it to start about _____

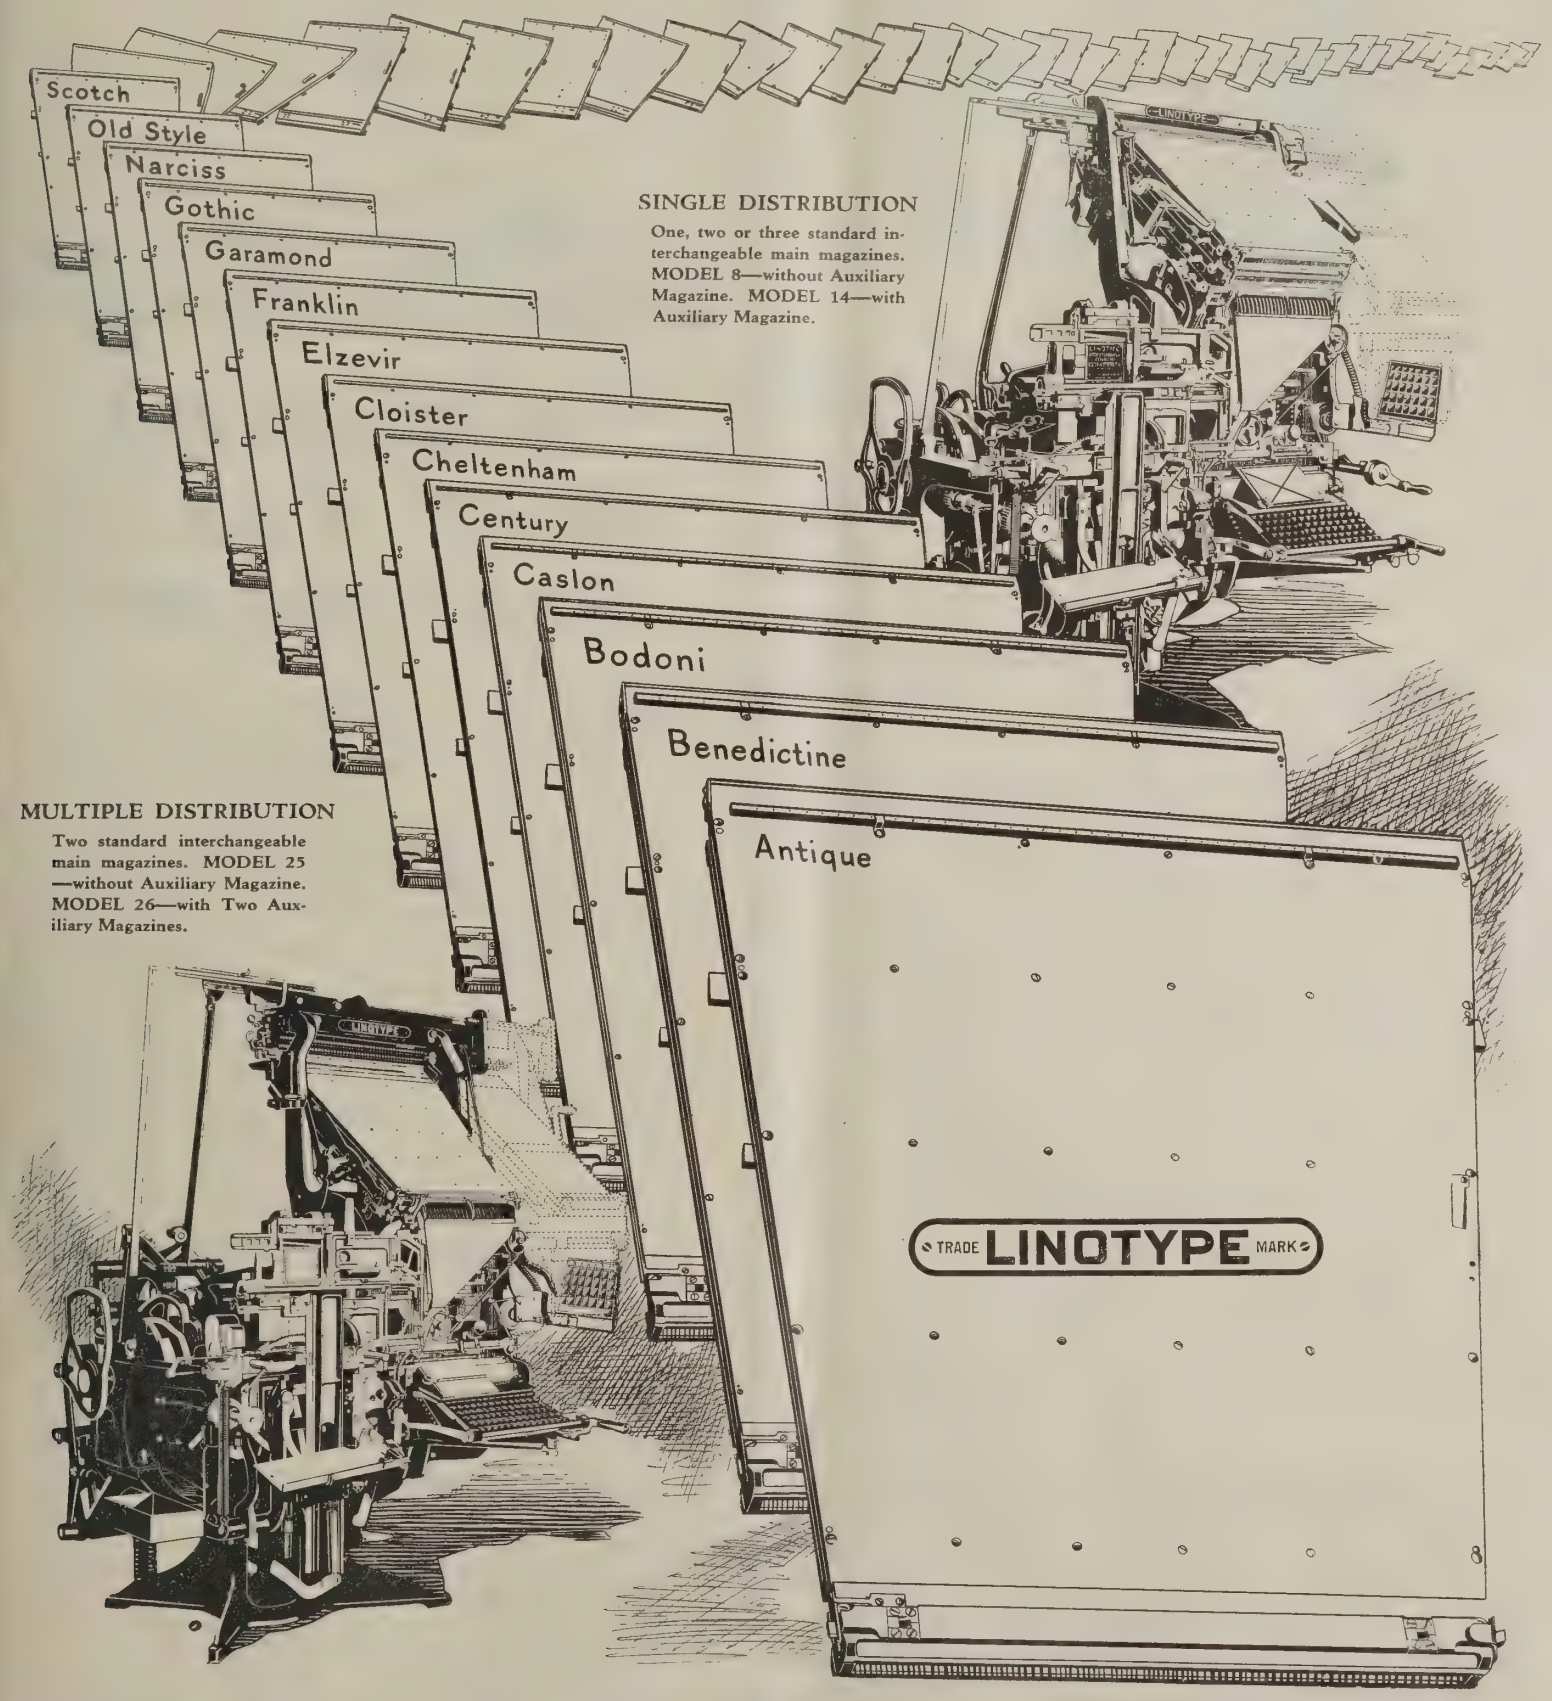
Eighteen consecutive successful years of "Knowing How." Wire or write for details, references, etc.,

W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

Speeding Up Delivery of The Des Moines Sunday Register

Every town shown by a star on the Iowa map gets The Des Moines Sunday Register by special motor truck. Many of these towns are without Sunday train service. In some towns trains arrive too late in the day for early delivery. In others a later edition can be delivered by truck than by train.

Iowa must be served with Sunday Registers. So The Des Moines Sunday Register has arranged its own exclusive motor hauls, either direct from Des Moines or from junction points where the trucks meet the trains. The Des Moines Sunday Register publishes no "pup" or "bull dog" editions for sale on Saturday outside Des Moines. Every copy of the entire 150,000 circulation is printed Saturday evening or Sunday morning.



Two hundred eighty-six Iowa towns are now served by special Sunday Register truck delivery.

In 801 Iowa cities and towns The Des Moines Sunday Register reaches from one-fifth to nine-tenths of the families. In these points, therefore, as well as in Des Moines, merchants sell products advertised in The Des Moines Sunday Register.

Booklet showing circulation by cities and towns mailed on request to
The Register and Tribune, Des Moines, Iowa

ALL THE FACES YOU NEED

IN STANDARD INTERCHANGEABLE MAGAZINES

SINGLE DISTRIBUTION

One, two or three standard interchangeable main magazines. MODEL 8—without Auxiliary Magazine. MODEL 14—with Auxiliary Magazine.

MULTIPLE DISTRIBUTION

Two standard interchangeable main magazines. MODEL 25—without Auxiliary Magazine. MODEL 26—with Two Auxiliary Magazines.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS — BROOKLYN, NEW YORK — CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

520 26.7-F

COMPOSED ON THE LINOTYPE IN CLOISTER BOLD, DISPLAY IN NARCISS

PUBLISHER LOSES LIFE TO SAVE DAUGHTER

George M. Taylor, Portsmouth (O.) Morning Sun, Drowned July 4, Rescuing Eleven-Year Old Betty

George M. Taylor, 50, publisher of the Portsmouth (O.) Morning Sun, gave his life July 4 in an attempt to save his 11-year-old daughter Betty from drowning in the Scioto River, near Rushtown, O. The publisher held his daughter above water until other members of the party arrived and took her to shore. He then sank, exhausted from the effort.

His body was recovered near the spot it disappeared.

Mr. Taylor was born January 19, 1876, near McConnellsville, O. He attended the McConnelsville public schools, and the McConnellsville high school, graduating from high school in the class of 1892. He taught school for a time in Morgan county, and matriculated in Ohio University, Athens. He attended that institution until the death of his father, when he came to Portsmouth and became circulation manager of the Portsmouth Daily Times, a position he held for several years. About this time the Times bought its first linotype and Mr. Taylor went to New York, where he learned to operate it. He returned to Portsmouth and was operator for some time.

Twenty-three years ago Mr. Taylor and Frank W. Sheridan, now advertising manager of the Times, took over the business management of the Fremont (O.) Messenger, operating the paper for some time.

Anxious to gain experience in the news dpartment, Mr. Taylor went to Cincinnati, where he became a reporter on the Cincinnati Post. In his early newspaper experience he was also employed by the Memphis (Tenn.) News-Scimitar, Chicago Tribune, New Orleans Times-Picayune and he had also worked in Spokane, Wash., and Riverside and Los Angeles, Cal.

Returning to Portsmouth about 18 years ago, Mr. Taylor again became identified with the Daily Times, first as advertising manager, and later as managing editor, a post which he held for many years. January 4, 1921, the Portsmouth Publishing Company began publication of the Morning Sun and Mr. Taylor became its editor-in-chief, general manager and publisher. He was active in newspaper affairs throughout the state, and was vice president of the Associated Ohio Dailies.

ARTHUR A. PARKS DIES

Owner and Publisher of Poughkeepsie Evening Star and Enterprise

Arthur A. Parks, 56, owner and publisher of the Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Evening Star and Enterprise, died at his home in Poughkeepsie July 6.

Mr. Parks took over the Evening Star in 1904. He had begun his career working for small newspapers in Iowa, and at one time was owner of a weekly in that state. Then he came east as editorial writer for the New Haven Register. The short pithy paragraphs written for the Register attracted the attention of James Gordon Bennett, who offered him a position on the New York Evening Telegram, which he held until going to Poughkeepsie to buy his own paper.

Tribute to Late "Jimmie" Neville

The Syracuse Herald paid editorial tribute to James J. Neville, widely known reporter of up-state New York, who died late last week in Albany. For fully a quarter of a century, Neville was a reporter on Utica, Syracuse, and Albany newspapers. The Herald praised "Jimmie" as an indefatigable searcher for news and "a veritable microphone and high-tension distributor of that intangible and often deceptive thing we call floating gossip." Neville pushed his way into the affection of a legion of friends, the editorial said, because of his unconquerable buoyancy of spirits, his incorrigible propensity for practical joking, and "his inflexible refusal to see anything serious or solemn in the affairs of men and communities."

Obituary

ALFRED T. McCREARY, 72, superintendent of the job printing department of the Springfield (Ill.) State Register, died July 1, at his home, after a week's illness. He had been head of the printing department 37 years.

JOHN F. MAHONEY, 47, former Boston newspaperman and well known publicity man, died of pneumonia, July 3, while visiting friends at Douglaston, Long Island, N. Y. He entered newspaper work in 1894, joining the staff of the Boston Post as reporter, and later becoming assistant city editor. He also was on the Boston American and Boston Traveler, leaving active newspaper work to enter publicity work.

GERALD BEAUMONT, 41, short story writer, died June 25 at his home in Los Angeles. Born in London and educated at Oxford, Beaumont came to America to enter newspaper work, settling in San Jose, Cal., where he was on the staff of the San Jose Mercury. He later left to become sporting editor of the Oakland (Cal.) Tribune.

CHARLES C. CARLIN, 62, until a few years ago, editor of the Celina (O.) Democrat, died at Eustis, Fla., June 28.

E. Potter Hall, 72, for 10 years on the Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review staff, died at his home at Conkling Park, Idaho, June 27. He retired from active editorial work five years ago. He was born in Leeds, England.

MRS. EMMA T. WOOD, 81, wife of J. G. Wood, former editor of the old Topeka (Kan.) Commonwealth and later editor of the St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald, died in Topeka recently. Mrs. Wood was a reporter on both papers when her husband was editor. Eugene Field was a contemporary of Mrs. Wood on the Herald.

JOSEPH I. LEIGH, 65, veteran printer, for the last two years night foreman of the composing room of the Chicago Daily News, dropped dead while taking a holiday stroll July 5. He was with the Daily News for 35 years.

BERNARD MEUER, 70, head of the advertising agency bearing his name in Chicago, who was for many years connected with the advertising staffs of several Chicago newspapers, died July 5, in the Lakeside hospital. He failed to recover from the effects of an anesthetic administered during an operation.

Kansas Paper in New Home

The Fredonia (Kan.) Daily Herald has moved into its new home. Ben S. Hudson is editor and publisher.

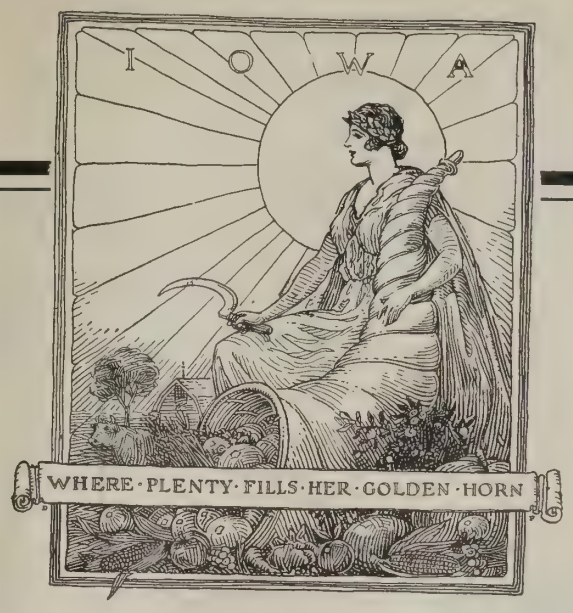
DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

INDIANA'S CROP VALUE $240,000,000



THAT was the annual value of the crops produced by Indiana's modern farms.

But not alone in agriculture does Indiana obtain its wealth. It is one of the great industrial States as well, and its great body of real American citizens are prosperous, progressive and forward looking. National advertisers who are looking for the greatest number of families who have money to spend should advertise to the 607,736 families of Indiana, effectively covered by the list of daily papers shown below.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
Columbus Republican (E)	4,912	.03
††Connersville News-Examiner (E)	4,681	.025
††Decatur Democrat (E)	3,215	.025
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (M)	35,247	.08
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (S)	28,468	.08
Fort Wayne News-Sentinel (E)	43,365	.10
Gary Evening Post-Tribune (E)	15,514	.06
†Hammond Times (E)	17,127	.06
Huntington Press (M&S)	4,079	.025
††Indianapolis News (E)	128,341	.25
Lafayette Journal & Courier (M) 7,878 (E) 13,583	21,461	.06
††La Porte Herald-Argus (E)	6,726	.04
Marion Chronicle (E)	9,364	.04
†Shelbyville Democrat (E)	4,012	.025
South Bend News-Times (M) 9,751 (E) 16,603	26,354	.07
South Bend News-Times (S)	24,500	.07
††South Bend Tribune (S) 21,431 (E)	22,254	.06
††Terre Haute Tribune (E&S)	23,442	.06

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
†Government Statement, October 1, 1925.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

Deal with these 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication. Thorough coverage of the state. Uniform marketing cooperation through our "Iowa plan."

You talk to people who can buy—in Iowa

The average taxable wealth for every man, woman and child in Iowa is $4,146. That of the Nation at large is $2,731. (Latest U. S. Census Bureau Financial Report).

And these people are not only better able to buy than the average. They are willing and anxious to buy commodities that make better, more enjoyable living.

As to Iowa's standard of living, you probably know that her percentage of illiteracy is lower than that of any other state, (less than 1%).

The percentage of Iowa people 18 years old who have finished a four year high school course is twice that of the Nation at large. (Latest U. S. Statistical Survey of Education).

Iowa has more telephones in proportion to population than any other state—67% above the Nation as a whole. Surely that is a good indication of Iowa's relative living standard.

You can best get your message to these people through their favorite reading material—their daily newspapers. One or more of these 28 dailies is read in practically every Iowa home every day. Total circulation—571,151. Families in Iowa —550,000.

Our "Iowa plan" of merchandising help is especially valuable for any initial sales campaign in this market. Let us show you how it will apply to your particular case.

Rates and full particulars upon request.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Trio Purchases Dodge's Interest in Editorial Research Reports—Jim Williams Honor Guest at Cowboy Reunion—William P. Helm, Jr., Writes on "What We Owe"

THE interest of Homer J. Dodge in Editorial Research Reports, of Washington, has been purchased by Richard Boeckel, Burt P. Garnett and Cleveland Perkins. The sale was concluded on June 30, although Mr. Dodge has not been actively connected with the Research organization for nearly a year.

Boeckel, Garnett and Perkins will continue to control and direct the work of Editorial Research Reports. In about a month the firm will move from 828 18th street, N. W., into new offices in the Hill Building, at 839 17th street, N. W.

Jim Williams

Jim Williams, NEA Service cartoonist, creator of the "Out Our Way" sketches of cowboy life, was guest of honor at a big "Frontier Days" cowboy reunion held at East Las Vegas, N. M., July 4-6.

Before becoming an artist, Williams was a cowboy himself in Arizona, Texas, and New Mexico. His chalk and crayon drawing dot bunkhouses and sheds on ranches all over the southwest.

Williams overhauled his cowboy regalia for the affair and took part in the traditional bull-dogging, broncho busting, and lariat throwing.

He recently signed a new five-year contract with NEA.

William P. Helm, Jr., staff writer for Current News Features, Inc., has completed what is said to be the first survey ever made of American corporate and individual indebtedness. He has summarized results of the investigation in a series of six articles entitled "What We Owe," for daily publication beginning July 12.

Will Rogers, "slanguage" thrower for McNaught's Syndicate, Inc., New York, reached Warsaw this week on his European tour. He telegraphed from Moscow on July 6, to the New York Times correspondent in Warsaw expressing a desire to interview Marshall Pilsudski.

"You might also scare up a duel or two," he wired.

Charles H. Wellington, who has been drawing "Pa's Son-in-Law" for the past 14 years, recently motored to New York with his wife from Hollywood, Cal. One of the first things he did upon arriving in New York was to have his picture taken with Eddie McBride, art manager of the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate. Wellington expects to return home some time this month.

Rube Goldberg, McNaught Syndicate cartoonist, has left for a three-months' vacation in California and other western places, with his wife and two sons, Tom, eight, and George, six. Goldberg has just written an article entitled, "This Cartoon Business," which will be published in Cartoons Magazine in October, the month of his tenth wedding anniversary.

Leslie Fulenwider, president of Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., has returned from a business trip in the South. He reports that newspapers there are enjoying unusual prosperity and have hardly felt the traditional "summer slump."

Three Rivers Mill at Full Capacity

The Three Rivers mill of the International Paper Company is now running at full capacity, Joseph Fearing, vice-president, announced this week. Newsprint is being produced there at a rate in excess of 600 tons a day, he said. It is expected eventually a daily capacity of 700 tons may be reached.

Marlboro Daily Enterprise Sold

The Marlboro (Mass.) Daily Enterprise, the Hudson Daily Sun and the Weekly Enterprise circulated in Sudbury, Bedford, Concord and nearby towns, have been purchased by Allen Markley of Marion, O., a recent edition of the Enterprise announced. Markley was formerly publisher of the Marion Tribune and connected with the United Press.

HARDY WITH LOUISVILLE DAILY

Leaves Hollister Organization to Join Herald-Post

J. Ross Hardy, for nearly three years publicity director of the Hollister Circulation, has been appointed promotion director of the Louisville (Ky.) Herald-Post.

J. Ross Hardy

Hardy attended the University of California and first entered the newspaper field as a member of the editorial staff of the San Diego (Cal.) Sun. Prior to entering the Hollister organization, he was connected with the Streetcar Advertising Company of San Francisco.

While with Hollister he handled publicity campaigns for many important daily newspapers, including the Cincinnati Enquirer, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Philadelphia Record, San Francisco Chronicle, Fresno (Cal.) Bee, and the Louisville Herald-Post.

S. F. News Bureau Organized

The Pacific News Bureau of San Francisco, has recently been organized with Hal M. Quirey, general manager. The organization will furnish special stories to out-of-town papers.

Old Ohio Weekly Merged

The last issue of the Millersburg (O.) Holmes County Farmer, established as the Gazette, on June 9, 1828, and in 1840 changed to its present name was printed on June 30. On July 1, it was merged with the Millersburg Hub. The merged newspapers will be known as the Holmes County Farmer-Hub.

New A. B. C. Member

The Los Angeles (Cal.) Oil Bulletin, trade paper, has been admitted to membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

MICROBE HUNTERS

By Paul de Kruif

Is being released by

CURRENT NEWS FEATURES, INC.
EVENING STAR BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Eight Out of Every Ten

Regular Readers of

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Renew their subscriptions year after year. And many's the ten in which one or both of the other two come back into the family as soon as they begin missing its inspiring, helpful weekly visits.

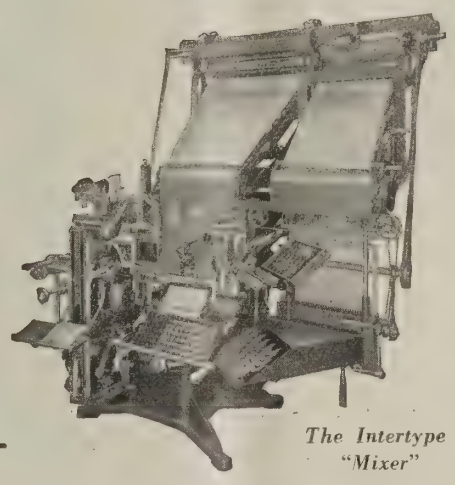
ISN'T THIS A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE TO THE VALUE OF THE SERVICE OF

The Newspaper Man's Newspaper

The National Advertiser's Guide to Markets and Media

The Agency's one Authentic Source of All the Facts and Figures upon which National Newspaper Advertising is based?

If you are not already getting EDITOR & PUBLISHER the coupon below will start it coming to you right away.



EDITOR & PUBLISHER,
Times Bldg., New York, N. Y.

Send me EDITOR & PUBLISHER every week for a year, including with my subscription at no extra cost all the Special Numbers and the International Year Book and Space Buyers' Guide, as they are issued during the term of my subscription. Enclosed is my check for $.....
(Or, if you prefer, send me your bill.)
Name .....
Address .....
Paper (or Company) .....
Title or Position .....

Subscription Price, $4 per year
(In Canada, 50c extra; Foreign, $1 extra)

Profitable Features of Intertype STANDARDIZATION

"What's all this talk about Intertype Standardization?" asked an executive. "What does it mean to the man who pays the bills?"

The Intertype "Mixer"

It means—

Protection against obsolescence. No Standardized Intertype has ever become obsolete.

Less money tied up. You buy only what you need right now: additional equipment units can be added later when needed. Main magazine units, side magazine units, magazine and matrix equipment, and even replacement parts, are freely interchangeable.

Lower cost of operation. Lower upkeep, because the Standardized, Simplified Intertype has fewer breakable parts. More production (and therefore lower labor cost) because the Standardized, Simplified Intertype stays on the job. Thirty "Profit-Making Intertype Features" (booklet on request) prevent interruptions of service and help put more slugs on the bank.

Send for Intertype literature. If you wish to see our local representative, please so state.

Standardized
INTERTYPE
TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION, 1440-A BROADWAY, at 40th Street, NEW YORK

CHICAGO MEMPHIS SAN FRANCISCO BOSTON LOS ANGELES TORONTO LONDON

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Writing of Personalities in the News Chief Interest of "Teddy" Bean—Kitty Callahan Holds Down City Desk in Winter Haven, Fla.—Woman Editor on College Board

EVER since she left Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., at the age of 19 without much money, but with plenty of determination and a thirst for adventure, Theodora Bean, president and editor of the T-Bean Syndicate, New York, has made the study of personalities one of her chief interests.

Theodora Bean

"People are interested in other people," she reasons. "Newspaper readers like to know the stories behind the people in the news."

And on that theory she has built up her syndicate.

But the syndicate has more than an idea behind it. It has years of hard, but adventurous experience, which Miss Bean would live over again in a minute if she could.

When Miss Bean left Northfield, her first stop was in Chicago. Charles H. Dennis, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, gave her her first chance in newspaper work.

"Get me an advance story on that society bicycle race," he told her. And then probably forgot all about it.

"Teddy" Bean immediately got "scared sick." Not, however, before she had sense enough to call on the local weather man, who favored her with a lucky break. The wind, it seemed, would blow the fashionable bicycle races way over to the unfashionable west side, from which most of them had originally come. In other words, "Teddy" wrote a wow of a story.

She didn't know it, though. Not until two days later, when she recovered and found a letter from the city editor asking her to report at the office of the Daily News for regular work. The story had been played on page one with drawings by John T. McCutcheon.

After a while in the sports department of the Daily News and a period of general reporting and some rewrite, Miss Bean decided she wanted more adventure. She had saved enough money to pay one way to Europe. She took a camera with her, a bundle of sharp pencils, and the determination to write her way back. She was so successful, she repeated the stunt yearly, doing considerable free-lance work for the New York World and the New York Herald.

Then she joined the staff of the New York Morning Telegraph as feature writer. William E. Lewis, then editor, sent her to Newport for "some personality stuff," and what she wrote attracted the attention of James Gordon Bennett. He cabled an offer of a job to her from France, and Miss Bean worked long enough on the New York Evening Telegram to save enough money to pay her way to the Continent for another trip.

Returning from this trip, she again became connected with the New York Morning Telegraph and was made Sunday editor of this paper in 1916. She resigned this position the day after Mr. Lewis's death in November, 1924. A year ago she organized the T-Bean Syndicate.

Miss Kitty Callahan, 22 years old, is said to be one of the youngest city editors in the newspaper field. She holds down the desk on the Winter Haven (Fla.) Chief.

Formerly a co-ed at the University of Wisconsin, she has lately been connected with the Madison (Wis.) Capital Times, the Milwaukee Sentinel, and the Los Angeles Record. She has written a book on playground teaching and is now working on a book portraying the life of a co-ed.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Lewis, instructor in English, proofreading and linotype operation at the Empire State School of Printing, Ithaca, New York, has been appointed editor of the Empire State Printer, the school's alumni publication.

Miss Virginia Lee Cox, editor of the woman's page of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, has been elected a member of the board of trustees of Hollins College, near Roanoke, Va.

Mrs. Sunshine Champion has taken over editorship of the Creede (Col.) Candle.

Mrs. Cass Baer Hicks, for more than 15 years dramatic editor of the Portland Oregonian, has resigned, effective next September.

Mrs. Gladys C. Lundy is publisher of the Loyalton (Cal.) Sierra Valley News. Eighteen months ago, when she took over the Loyalton paper, Mrs. Lundy had never seen the inside of a print shop. Today she does all the work connected with the production of the paper, including both the mechanical and editorial ends. The work fascinates her, she declares, and is becoming increasingly profitable.

Miss Blanche Snyder joined the staff of the Alexandria (Ind.) Times-Tribune, June 24, succeeding Miss Vivian Jones, who was married on that date.

Mrs. Archibald T. Campbell, known to radio listeners of KSD, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, as "Miss Jones announcing," has joined the staff of the American Red Cross as assistant director of public information. Miss V. A. L. Jones was the first woman radio announcer in the United States. Prior to affiliating with KSD, she did newspaper and magazine work in San Francisco, New York and St. Louis.

Miss Lois Buchanan, society editor of the Fredonia (Kan.) Citizen, and Elmer E. Friedeman, Great Bend, Kan., were married recently.

Mrs. Myrtle Silger, former society editor of the Independence (Kan.) Reporter and Otto Wentworth, Wichita, were married last week.

Women played an important part in the convention of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs Association, held in San Francisco, July 5-8. In the direct-by-mail departmental two of the speakers were June Burn of San Francisco, and Florence Shindler of Los Angeles. Of the four speakers in the graphic arts departmental, one was a woman, Mrs. Stella M. Pratt of San Francisco. Miss Martha Look of Seattle was one of the principal speakers in the newspaper department, while Kate Brew Vaughn of Los Angeles spoke at the session of the public utilities group. On the program of the retail advertisers was Pattie Cook of Portland, Ore., Grace Palmer Craig of San Francisco, and Mrs. Morely Thompson, San Francisco.

Miss Anna Kramer, Athol, Mass., was elected president of the National Amateur Press Association at its annual meeting in Philadelphia, July 5. Miss Mary M. Ware, Brattleboro, Vt., was named a vice-president; and Miss Caddie M. Whitsett, Yonkers, N. Y., treasurer. The 1927 convention will be held in Warren, O. The association was organized in Philadelphia in 1876.

Miss Alma Sioux Scarberry, former reporter for the New York Mirror and other New York newspapers, who recently started on a hiking trip west has stopped off in Philadelphia, where she is now working for the publicity department of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition. Miss Scarberry is a newspaper "stunt woman," becoming widely known when she faked amnesia at Weehawken, N. J., and fooled several prominent doctors as part of a promotion feature for the Mirror.

In Philadelphia, Miss Scarberry recently worked a stunt for the Record. She dressed in beggar's clothes and in two nights of asking alms on Philadelphia streets collected considerable money proving how easy it is to fool the soft-hearted public.

Mrs. Henry Leland is covering horse shows for the sporting department of the New York Herald Tribune.

Miss Ruth Fairman, of Mt. Holyoke College, has joined the staff of the Springfield (Mass.) Union for the summer months.

Miss Edna Tims has resigned as librarian for the San Antonio Express and Evening News to become tutor in the household of the only American family in Linares, Nuevo Leon, Mexico.

Greater Merchandising Service offered, than any other Milwaukee paper.

THE MILWAUKEE LEADER

"Unawed by influence and Unbribed by Gain"

Advertising Representatives

FRALICK & BATES

Chicago, New York, Atlanta, Los Angeles

Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be u… ing. A happy medium has been effected. It is easier to read than seven point … nt to … rees … or … nd … tive … every one interested in the conservation of vision; for it is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that … the day when artificial … though not … of the typ… last few… ter t… and… ab… t… ders gives good legibility even wh… solid. Cast on seven point bod… Point Ionic gives the effect … leaded—and with a de… word-count over the … The first paper … as the Evening … a trial of s… t of th… an … ace … N. J. … he man… re enthusi… and readers … ds of commen… e of the most appre… Joseph H. Salov, a lead… st, and past president of … Optometric Association. addressing the editor of ning News: "It would be or any one else who unt of good that will recent change in the use in the makeup of s was not recognized, so acknowledged by ted in the conservation is the accumulated un… on the eyes, due to the l and poor type used in bers, that hastens the day al aid must be sought. Al… versed in the nomenclature you have been using for the days, it is of a style and charac… immediately makes itself felt, is far more readable and comfort… le than the former style. I am sure that there are many thousands of readers who, possibly unknowingly, feel the added comfort." After several years of investigation and experimentation,

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

…ne line… …g. The eve… …particularly ac… …f newspaper s… …advantage of t… …ation of visior… …out is restf… …notor…

Study the design of this NEW face

Linotype 6½ Point Ionic No. 5

See how perfectly it meets the difficult requirements of modern newspaper printing conditions. Notice the full, round contours of the letters; no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping.

Ask the nearest Linotype Agency for copies of newspaper set in this face and compare it with the body type you are now using both for legibility and word count. You will find it easier to read than 7 point faces and that it gives the same word count as a 6 point.

The 6½ Point Ionic is made with italic and small caps and also in combination with Bold Face No. 2.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR YOUR RELIGIOUS READERS?

American newspapers have run jazz fiction for the jazzy; domestic life fiction for homekeepers; adventure stories for the adventurous, but—

It has been a long time since there has been a deliberate offering to the great body of church folk who do not read modern fiction at all.

LAILA

Eugene MacLean offers

"LAILA"

(By John Newport)

A TALE OF THE DAYS OF CHRIST.

It is a stirring story of adventure, reverently told—a tale that will hold those who are not religiously inclined, yet which is intended primarily for the tremendous population of church-goers of every sect.

In bold, sweeping strokes, the story paints a picture of life in the days of Jesus of Nazareth that never can be forgotten; that will rivet the attention of every reader from the beginning to the end.

It is based on the strange mixture of races that had filtered into Palestine in the reigns of Herod and of Caesar, and on the struggle of the Jews to maintain their customs under the cruel weight of foreign rule.

The characters live and breathe and love and hate, in the course of the vivid narrative, and in the background of the story gradually appears, shining with increasing brightness, the light that was kindled in a manger of Bethlehem three decades before. Laila, an Arabian woman, outcast and desolate in a strange land, is the central figure —a figure that will take its place in the proud annals of American literature.

RELEASE DATE TO NEWSPAPERS JULY 25

FICTION THAT MAKES CIRCULATION

Eugene MacLean

A SUPREME SERIAL SERVICE FOR NEWSPAPERS

OFFICE AND PRODUCTION PLANT

827 FOLSOM STREET SAN FRANCISCO

FIGHTING SUMMER SLUMP BUGABOO

(Continued from page 3)

E. I. Harlow, advertising manager of the Minneapolis (Minn.) Journal, said: "Extra linage for the Journal is being secured through special real estate pages and spreads on both local and suburban property. Special event pages, such as the coming of the Swedish prince have netted a double page spread and a page of co-operative advertising by firms participating in the building of demonstration homes. These are a few of our summer methods."

H. E. Dreier, advertising manager Oklahoma (Okla.) Oklahoman and Times: "Special effort is being made by us on automobile, resort and tourist copy. Sales promotion plans include such as Dollar Day and Suburban day, in co-operation with the Retail Merchants' Association. Greater effort is made on food ice, milk and electric refrigeration copy. Local building activity is making a lot of linage. Building permits in Oklahoma City alone last month were nearly $1,000,000. We carried pages on Walt and Phyllis wedding, new office buildings etc. We are offering a bonus on new contracts for July and August. Business is good; in Oklahoma City splendid, and our first six months linage ran 752,370 gain over last year."

The management of the Little Rock (Ark.) Arkansas Gazette, wrote as follows: "Having entered the month of July with the largest first six months advertising volume since 1920 we are striving for a larger volume than ever before for July and August. To obtain this volume we are urging individual regular contract advertisers to take larger and more frequent advertisements than they used during any previous summer. We are furnishing previous summer linages for comparison in connection with our solicitations. Above all we are making an intensive drive on infrequent and non advertisers in two ways: first, for linage from specially prepared advertisements and second, for space on special repeat pages of an institutional nature."

C. Parkhill Harvey, circulation manager of the Denver (Col.) Times, said: "Due to the tremendous influx of tourists Denver does not experience the circulation falling off that the hot eastern and southern cities do. While a few of our home carrier subscribers leave for short vacations, their loss is more than compensated by the tourists. Therefore, instead of falling off in the hot summer months, we go ahead. We would like to find out how to increase in the winter when the mountain roads and passes are covered with snow and are impassable."

W. L. Test, circulation manager of the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Press: "To forestall a summer circulation slump we are running 'The Yellow Stub' by Earnest Lynn, 'The Fight Game from the Inside" by Jack Kearns, and 'The Man Nobody Knows' by Bruce Barton. We expect these stories to interest three distinct classes of readers. Schools here did not close until June 25 and the summer slump usually starts July 1."

John T. Toler, circulation manager Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution, said: "The Atlanta Constitution's daily circulation is not being built on mushroom growth, but is substantial and is largely delivered into the homes. We have no considerable decrease known as the summer slump in Atlanta and suburban territory. Rarely during the summer months do we resort to any great efforts to promote circulation outside of our regular organization which never ceases its efforts summer or winter."

Bayard Taylor, circulation manager the Kansas City (Mo.) Journal Post: "Local newspapers are principally home delivered, hence promotion is restricted both as to method and result. Our vacation season started earlier this year, as evidenced by the June ratio of vacation stops averaging three per cent and extending over an average period of twenty-four days. Personal solicitation and featuring a $7,500 pedestrian accident policy tie-up are our only present sales promotion methods."

T. J. Kavanaugh, circulation manager, Dayton (O.) Daily News said: "We have just finished a two months contest with carriers, giving away anything from a pup tent to fishing rods and are now getting ready for our annual picnic where we take eleven hundred boys by bus. We are also organizing baseball teams, forming a league made up from our various branches throughout the city and this brings out a big number of new boys each summer."

Ray T. Evans, circulation manager Davenport (Iowa) Times: "During summer months we conduct carrier contests mainly, but this year we are featuring a new serial story. The story breaks next week and we are printing a four-page broadside which will be left by carriers at the doors of non-subscribers. Carriers and solicitors will call back few days later soliciting orders and we hope to show a substantial increase. The broadside contains a page featuring the story and two center pages give the first seven or eight chapters. The back page is our advertisement calling attention to our many other features, rates, etc."

E. R. Hatton, circulation manager Detroit (Mich.) Free Press: "Summer slump effects only Sunday circulation. Our sales are pushed by canvassing the smaller communities where the vacation habit is less prevalent. We are promoting Saturday night sales, reaching the greater number of persons before they leave town for the week-end. We are capitalizing sporting events. Also we are running lighter fiction. Another plan is circularizing city subscribers, urging that the Free Press be mailed to vacation addresses. Our rural automobile delivery is established in the suburban area and special Sunday morning delivery is made by automobile to lake and summer resorts. Houses along such routes are provided with 'Free Press Wanted' signs to hang in the front window."

Will X. Coley, circulation manager Raleigh (N. C.) News & Observer: "We are in midst of a state political campaign. We are making a special rate of half price for three months' mail subscriptions on account of the campaign. This is pulling strong and we are holding rural subscribers who usually discontinue the paper during the summer months, claiming they are too busy with crops to read a daily paper. We are also giving trips to Europe. California and Eastern Canada to those who secure subscriptions in clubs ranging from $720 to $2,100. This is going strong. It is one of our best stunts as a circulation builder."

Circulation manager of the St. Paul (Minn.) Despatch & Pioneer Press: "Our circulation organization is co-operating with the editorial department in promoting several new editorial features of state-wide interest. We are securing the best selected fiction and special features for the tabloid Sunday magazine. Special editorial features for children draw excellently. We are giving publicity to the twelve colored comics in our Sunday. Circulation promotion is being pushed among city and suburban carriers and country agents. We have a special solicitation for mail subscriptions and are establishing new transportation lines. We are transferring mail subscriptions to be delivered by out-of-town dealers and carriers. We are also planning Sunday sales at the summer resorts among the ten thousand lakes of Minnesota."

A. H. Baker, circulation manager New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune: "Steady and consistent canvassing for new subscribers, investigating stops, and following our readers to the summer watering places constitutes our promotion work at the present time."

C. A. Ferris, circulation manager, Fort Wayne (Ind.) News-Sentinel: "We are putting our push at present on resort business. Northern Indiana, Southern Michigan and Western Ohio have many of these and we are making a systematic canvass, placing stands, and wherever possible establishing our own delivery service. We arrange our transportation to these points so delivery can be made by shortly after 6 p. m. This resort business makes up to a considerable extent for losses in the city and outside towns.

"In the city we issue a certificate for each new subscription, good for 50 cents in trade at a local sporting goods house. We find our boys go after this strong; as they can get almost anything they need, and this house of course carries a larger assortment than we could hope to carry.

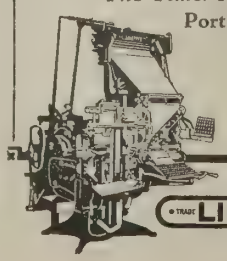
"All around our loss thus far has not been great. In the smaller towns and on the routes we maintain our regular crews making a thorough canvass."

A. T. Butler, business manager, Wichita (Kan.) Beacon: "To stimulate circulation during the summer months the Beacon is making an attractive rate to rural route subscribers and offering hiker skates and wrist watches to out-of-town carriers for a given number of new subscriptions, which has met with splendid success. Our city carriers are enthused over our annual summer camp which will be held the first week in August. The city is divided into four districts and suitable prizes are offered for the largest amount of business turned in and every carrier who secures a definite number of new subscriptions is entitled to go to camp. At least 75 boys will be entertained at camp for a week."

H. C. Kloecker, circulation manager, Cincinnati (O.) Enquirer: "We are running a world series contest to offset the summer slump, sending two amateur teams of thirteen players each and sixteen individuals, men or women, who secure the greatest number of votes on subscriptions turned in by September 10th."

From the Linotype Mailbag

MODEL 26



"a valuable addition"

"The Model No. 26 purchased from you last August we consider a valuable addition to our battery of Linotype machines and venture to predict that because of the simplicity of construction and smooth running quality of the Model No. 26 it will be a very popular machine.

"Assuring you of our utmost satisfaction of having made this addition to our equipment, we are Very truly yours,"

The Times-Herald Company
Port Huron, Mich.

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

A Single Advertising Appropriation

Will cover the two publications that reach those who control the national advertising of the United States and Great Britain.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
New York
and
ADVERTISING WORLD
London, Eng.

have entered into an agreement in respect to editorial and advertising representation in their respective fields and thereby afford a single source of information and service for those interested in international marketing and advertising.

Combination Advertising Rates for 12 Insertion Contract

Full Page .....$280.00 per insertion
Half Page ..... 145.00 per insertion
Quarter Page ..... 82.50 per insertion

You are cordially invited to communicate with Editor & Publisher, Suite 1700 Times Building, New York, for further details of circulation, editorial policy and mechanical requirements of Advertising World. This office can be of great assistance to manufacturers who desire information in regard to marketing conditions of Great Britain. Publishers of leading American newspapers will also avail themselves of this opportunity to deliver their messages to the largest advertisers of Great Britain, many of whom are keenly interested in the markets of America.

Editor & Publisher
1700 Times Building
Broadway at 42d St.
New York, N. Y.

Telephones:
Bryan 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056
able Address: EDPUB, NEW YORK

Advertising World
14 King Street
Covent Garden, W. C. 2
London, England

Telephone: Gerrard 7615
Cable Address:
ECOPUBLISH, RAND, LONDON

The Newspaper Situation In Buffalo Has Changed!

Present Circulation of Buffalo Evening Times

over 115,000

Present Circulation of Buffalo Sunday Times

over 135,000

BUFFALO TIMES

NORMAN E. MACK, Editor and Publisher

VERREE & CONKLIN, Inc.
National Representatives

NEW YORK CHICAGO DETROIT SAN FRANCISCO

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Four A's Committee to Decide October Meeting Place—G. W. Edwards & Co., Merged With Joseph Ewing—Larned Book to Be Published—Izzard to Open Tacoma Office

WHERE the annual October meeting of the American Association of Advertising Agencies will be held this year will be decided at a meeting of the association's executive committee to be held in New York July 13-14. Reports of sub-committee chairmen will also be made at this executive session.

Among the chairmen who will make reports will be: Frank Hubbard, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., New York, newspapers; Thomas F. Logan, Lord & Thomas & Logan, New York, radio; L. R. Northrup, Erwin-Wasey & Co., New York, magazines; J. W. Sanger, Frank Seaman, Inc., New York, export advertising; A. G. Montagne, Sherman & Lebair, New York, mechanical production; Paul E. Faust, Mitchell-Faust, Chicago, agricultural press; W. M. Richardson, Barrows, Richardson & Alley, New York, business papers; and Edward S. Gardner, Gardner Advertising Company, New York, out-door advertising.

The Southern council of the association met at Asheville, N. C., this week.

The merger of George W. Edwards & Co., Inc., of Philadelphia, and the Joseph Ewing Marketing Counsel and Research Service of New York, was announced this week.

George W. Edwards & Co., Inc., is a charter member of the American Association of Advertising Agencies and National Outdoor Advertising Bureau. The new company, will be known as Edwards, Ewing & Jones, Inc., with offices in Philadelphia and New York. George W. Edwards was elected chairman of the board and treasurer. Joseph Ewing, president. Thomas M. Jones who has been affiliated with George W. Edwards & Co., Inc., for many years as vice-president, continues the same office in the new company and John E. Rooney, secretary.

Ralph J. Failor, who recently completed a course at Columbia University, has joined Eddy and Clark, Inc., sales and advertising counsel, Akron, O., as director of research. Failor served for a time as radio editor of the Akron Beacon Journal.

The Izzard Company, Pacific coast agency, is making arrangements for opening a major office in Tacoma some time in July. E. R. Harris who has been with the Izzard company in Portland will be the Tacoma manager.

W. Livingston Learned of the Ethridge Company has written a new book "A Sales Manager's Field Letters to His Men," to be published shortly. Mr. Learned left New York this week on his annual vacation trip to Europe.

Philip O. Deitsch, manager of the trade relations department of the National Better Business Bureau, will join Klau-Van Pieterson-Dunlap, Inc., Milwaukee advertising agency Aug. 1.

Jack Milligan, 20 years old, won the $1,000 scholarship offered by McKinney, Marsh & Cushing to the best student in the Adcraft Advertising School of Detroit.

NON-ADVERTISERS FAIL

Survey of Business Failures Made by Dorrance, Sullivan & Co.

Most business failures are non-advertisers, according to a survey made by Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., New York advertising agency. Ninety-eight per cent of the failures in Chicago did not use newspaper advertising. Percentages in other cities were:

	Per cent
Baltimore, Md.	88
Bridegport, Conn.	60
Canton, O.	80.5
Chicago, Ill.	98
Cincinnati, O.	91.9
Columbus, O.	85.5
Fort Worth, Tex.	87.5
Houston, Tex.	72
Indianapolis, Ind.	75
Louisville, Ky.	75
Milwaukee, Wis.	84
Nashville, Tenn.	67
Newark, N. J.	89

CENSORSHIP BEATEN BY U. P. CORRESPONDENT

Webb Miller, Member of London Staff Wires Primo de Rivera Direct, to Get News Through Spanish Censors

How an American newspaper man abroad is beating the Spanish censorship regulations was learned this week by EDITOR & PUBLISHER. Webb Miller, member of the staff of the United Press London bureau, wired Primo de Rivera direct to uncover facts behind a frontier report, and plans to continue this system in order to show how over-zealous censorship can put Spain in a bad light in other countries.

On June 25, a frontier report reached the U. P. London office from Hendaye on the French-Spanish border, regarding the discovery of a widespread plot against de Rivera's government.

No reply could be obtained from messages addressed to the U. P. Madrid bureau due to the censorship. Miller decided to apply to headquarters direct. He sent an urgent personal telegram to de Rivera, telling him that fragmentary reports of a big plot against his government were abroad and that his own censors were preventing U. P. correspondents from informing the London bureau whether they were true or false, how extensive the plot was, and adding that there was danger of the affair being exaggerated.

The message to the dictator was sent at 7:50 a. m. At 11:25 Miller received an urgent message of 181 words signed by de Rivera himself, confirming that a plot had been discovered, many arrests made, and that the plot was not against the monarchy as stated in border reports, but against the government of the directory. De Rivera had ordered the telegraph lines held open for this message and it reached London 39 minutes after it had been filed from Madrid.

"I am hoping that this incident will show Primo de Rivera concretely how an over-zealous censorship can put his country in a bad light abroad," Miller declared in a letter to EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

PUBLISHERS URGED TO BUY NEWSPRINT NOW

A. N. P. A. Suggests Advisability of Building Up Stocks on Hand During July and August—Only 26 Days Supply is Present Average

Publishers are urged to consider the advisability of buying newsprint during July and August to build up stock on hand, in a bulletin issued to members June 30, by the American Newspaper Publishers Association. The Bulletin calls attention to the "continuing decrease of newsprint stocks," and reads as follows:

"Attention is again drawn to the continuing decrease of news-print stocks in hands of both publishers and mills.

"An average of but 26 days' supply, the lowest of which we have record, is estimated to have been in the hands of publishers on May 31.

"During the five years prior to 1925 the average was 43 days. During 1925 the average was but 38 days. The average for the first five months of the present year was 29 days but was still further reduced to 28 days during April and 26 days during May.

"Mill stocks have also decreased. At the end of May during both 1924 and 1925 the mills had 5.5 days' average production on hand, while on May 31st of this year they had but 2.8 days' average production on hand.

"While production capacity of the mills is being constantly increased, nevertheless because of the fact that consumption during the past eight months exceeded production, it is suggested careful consideration be given to conditions existing at the present time with a view to determining the advisability of building up stocks on hand during July and August.

"Attention is also drawn to the fact that the great increase of advertising beginning with September of last year and continuing to date, has caused an unexpected firm condition of the market during that period."

The following table gives the approximate average number of days' supply of news-print in transit, and in the hands of publishers for six years and for the first five months of 1926. The figures given are those of the Federal Trade Commission up to June 1, 1923, and the A. N. P. A. Paper Committee since that time.

	Average Number of Days' Supply
1920	41
1921	46
1922	38
1923	45
1924	46
1925	38
1926 (Five Month)	29
May 31, 1926	26

Portland Carriers Visit Mt. Hood

Forty carrier boys of the Portland (Ore.) News recently were taken on a trip to Mt. Hood.

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN

NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC

H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
The only paper in St. Petersburg, Florida, whose application has been accepted by Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA
Producers of
SPARTAN TYPE METAL
Since 1866
LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE COMBINATION
Stocks in Principal Cities

E. F. S.
Editors' Feature Service
Over 70 independent newspapers throughout the country subscribe to this fine daily service as a protection against rising feature costs.
Six Pages Daily
Illustrations in Mat Form
Write or wire for samples, price and territory.
Editors' Feature Service, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York
Allied with Johnson Features, Inc.

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION
Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.
Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

THE TELEGRAM
now has the largest paid circulation in
CLARKSBURG, W. VA.
13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday
guaranteed.
Member Audit Bureau of Circulations
Represented Nationally by
The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

A $150,000,000.00 Wheat Crop Kansas Enjoys Its Third Consecutive Bumper Harvest

A Merchandising Service Which Guarantees Success

From advance work in obtaining distribution and notifications to the trade to the final check-up at the end of the campaign, Eagle Merchandising Service is continuous throughout the entire schedule.

SURVEYS: Pre-campaign surveys are made to ascertain the standing or possibilities of a product in the Wichita Trading Territory.

BROADSIDES: Where it is deemed necessary, advance broadsides are prepared and sent to the trade to break the way for the salesman.

LETTERS: In some cases letters may prove more effective than broadsides and are used.

PORTFOLIOS: Supplied to salesmen so they may be able to present the value of advertising in this territory effectively.

ROUTE LISTS: Our routed lists are up-to-date and so arranged that the trade may be worked in the shortest possible time.

TRADE PAPER: We publish The Wichita Eagle Retailer the first of each month, which reaches over 3500 merchants in our territory. It is a newsy, 16 page paper with a real influence and dealer following.

WINDOW DISPLAYS: The Eagle maintains a window display department for placing displays in the windows of retailers. Complete displays are installed and signed receipts sent to the advertiser.

Here is a service complete—the kind of a service which keeps up constant cooperation on the part of dealers, jobbers and their salesmen.

In 1925, Kansas harvested but 76,249,202 bushels of wheat and business was good. And now in 1926—FOR THE THIRD CONSECUTIVE YEAR, KANSAS HAS A BUMPER WHEAT CROP! The Wheat Growers have paid their bills—they have bought more land—NOW THEY WILL BUY THE THINGS THEY HAVE ALWAYS WANTED.

But this tremendous wheat crop is not all of Kansas' income. Oil production is high—the price is good. The corn crop will add millions to the farmers' wealth.

In the heart of this area of prosperity—in the center of Kansas' most productive territory is Wichita. And The Wichita Eagle is KANSAS' LARGEST DAILY AND SUNDAY NEWSPAPER.

This is just an invitation to you to share in the millions folks in The Eagle's Territory will spend.

The Wichita Eagle Harvesting Advertising Gains without a Loss

Comparisons of the First Six Months of 1926 With the First Six Months of 1925

	1925	1926	Gain	Loss
Local Display	2,118,186	2,477,503	359,317
Classified	1,096,137	1,257,207	161,070
Total Local	3,214,323	3,734,710	520,387
National	845,110	996,807	151,697
Total Advertising	4,059,433	4,731,517	672,084

These Gains Reflect Kansas' Splendid Condition

In Kansas It's

THE WICHITA EAGLE

Victor Murdock, Editor.
Clyde Speer, Bus. Supervisor.

Marcellus M. Murdock, Publisher.
H. W. Allen, Advertising Mgr.

Sidney D. Long, Business Mgr.
T. N. Gretzer, Mgr. Service Dept.

Represented Nationally By

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency

New York
Detroit

Atlanta
St. Louis

Chicago
Los Angeles

Kansas City
San Francisco

NATIONAL STAFF IN SALES CONFERENCE

N. Y. Herald Tribune Advertising Men Gather at Home Office to Outline Future Plans—Welcomed by Mrs. Reid

Accomplishments of the past year were reviewed and plans for the future were discussed at a sales conference held June 25-26 by the national advertising department of the New York Herald Tribune.

In addition to the headquarters' staff, the Herald Tribune's advertising representatives from Chicago, Boston, Detroit and San Francisco, were present. The meetings were held in the Herald Tribune building.

The program was opened on Friday with an address of welcome by Mrs. Ogden Reid. George J. Auer, head of the national advertising department, then outlined the paper's plans for the summer and fall.

C. B. Donovan, chief of the media department of the Charles W. Hoyt Advertising Agency; H. D. Allen, account executive in the New York office of N. W. Ayer & Son; Frank M. Lawrence, manager of the media department of the George Batten Company; H. E. Fendler, advertising manager of Franklin Simon & Company; Horace Cleveland, vice-president of Dorrance, Sullivan & Company; H. L. Adams, Eastern sales manager of the Kellogg Company and Tom V. Sawyer, Eastern division sales manager, the Celotex Company, addressed the conference.

The conference then inspected the Herald Tribune Institute whose features were explained by Miss Florence Brobeck director of the Institute. The office of the Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund Department, whose activities were related by Mr. Leslie Conly, was then visited.

A trip of inspection through the Herald Tribune plant under the guidance of W. E. Haskell Jr. was made. In the evening a reception and dinner to the members of the Conference was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reid where a round-the-table general discussion was opened by Raymond Schooley, advertising manager.

The Saturday morning session was opened by an appraisal of the appeal by the Herald Tribune to every class and type of reader by William E. Haskell, Jr. Miss Henrietta Mallahy, Charles A. Pope, William O. Barrow and Frank H. Meeker also spoke.

The plans of the promotion department for the coming year, together with an analysis of its problem, were told by Porter Caruthers, assistant business manager and promotion manager. He was followed by Claude Sandkam, circulation manager.

John F. Kelly of Woodward and Kelly and Carroll J. Swan, Boston representative outlined their plans for the coming year.

Members of the National Advertising Department of the New York Herald Tribune, who attended the recent sales conference held at the New York office. In the picture (left to right): J. F. Kelly, manager of Chicago office, Woodward & Kelly; Allyn Jay Marsh, New York office; Col. Carroll J. Swan, manager Boston office; Richard Bryce, New York office; A. Brayden, New York office; Charles A. Pope, New York office; Edward J. Bangs, Chicago office; John De Bell, New York office; Henrietta C. Mallahy, New York office; D. W. Harris, Detroit office; Horace Cleveland, New York office; Edward McNamara, New York office; George J. Auer, national advertising manager; J. B. Shaw, Chicago office; A. G. Anderson, New York office; John B. Woodward, New York office; F. B. Etter, manager Detroit office; W. O. Barrow, New York office; Phillip Andersen, Chicago office; Frank H. Meeker, New York office; Frank C. Davies, Detroit office; J. D. Fesler, New York office; Jas. Hibben, Jr., Chicago office; T. L. Emory, San Francisco office.

On Sunday morning the out-of-town men were taken to the opening of the Herald Tribune model demonstration house at Bronxville and then for a tour of the Westchester residential sections. A luncheon tendered the visitors at the N. Y. A. C. Country Club at Travers Island by Mr. Auer concluded the conclave.

Daily Completes Its Plant

Upon completion of its new $350.000 building the Bellingham (Wash.) Herald issued a special progress number. A feature of the edition was a rotogravure section.

Butcher Going Abroad

Harold Butcher, American correspondent of the Liverpool (Eng.) Echo, leaves next week on the "Berengaria" for a two months' tour in England and on the Continent. The object of the tour is preparation of a series of articles.

Results account for growth of EDITOR & PUBLISHER classified department.

EDITORS TO TOUR STATE

Wisconsin Group Plans Motor Trip Beginning Aug. 12

Plans for the annual summer tour of the Wisconsin Press Association have been partially completed. The member editors will begin their motorcade at Wisconsin Rapids, Thursday, Aug. 12; journey to Medford the following morning, continue to Park Falls, arrive at Ashland, Saturday noon, spend the night in Bayfield, Sunday at Superior and other northern Wisconsin cities, and disband on Monday.

William F. Huffman, editor of t Wisconsin Rapids Tribune and cha man of the entertainment committee, arranging for an exhibit of a copy each newspaper in the state and spe mens of the printer's craft.

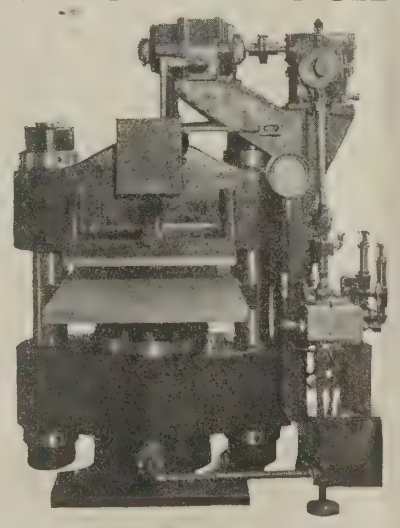
The tour committee consists c President John A. Kuypers, De P Journal Democrat; Secretary Louis Zimmerman, editor of the associatio monthly magazine, The Howler, and the Burlington Standard Democrat; W. Rowland, motor editor of t Milwaukee Journal; Charles Utz, M waukee; W. H. Conrad, Taylor Cou Star-News, and H. Wachmuth of t Bayfield Progress.

Hearst Employee Retired

Emil Dengel, for 38 years in the S Francisco Examiner's stereotyping partment and for years the foreman, h been retired on full pay by William Ra dolph Hearst.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers



Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg. Boston

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS

Direct Pressure Under Complete Control. Fast, Positive, Non-Vibrating Hydraulic Operation. The first successful hydraulic matrice moulding press to be introduced into this country.
Birotadruck Presses are now in operation on the plants of The New York Times (3 presses), New York Herald-Tribune (2 presses), Boston Globe, Cleveland Press and Dallas News.

AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42d St., New York City

There Are No Other Newspapers Covering South Jersey Completely

From the Standpoint of the National Advertiser

CAMDEN COURIER
The MORNING POST

60,000 Circulation Combination Rate

National Representatives:
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service

Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original
Most Artistic and Finest
blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

Detroit

Fourth Largest City

Complete coverage with one paper.

The Detroit News

Offers advertisers unusual opportunities

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.

It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest

O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young Publisher

The Sesqui-Centennial means a great year for PENNSYLVANIA

The great Exposition is on. Thousands of people from every State in the Union and from every Nation will be Pennsylvanians for a week or two, this year, adding to the already great buying power of Pennsylvania.

This is the big year for Pennsylvania and for National Advertisers who are advertising in the daily papers of Pennsylvania.

You, too, should not neglect this unusual opportunity for greater sales volumes of your product.

The daily papers listed below cover the homes of Pennsylvania and are read by visitors as well.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call .....(M)	31,400	.10	.10
Allentown Call .....(S)	22,349	.10	.10
††Beaver Falls Tribune.....(E)	6,553	.03	.03
††Bethlehem Globe Times.....(E)	13,272	.06	.06
††Bloomsburg Press .....(M)	7,673	.04	.04
Chester Times .....(E)	18,295	.06	.06
††Coatesville Record .....(E)	6,783	.035	.03
Connellsville Courier .....(E)	5,928	.02	.02
Easton Express .....(E)	25,473	.08	.08
Erie Times .....(E)	28,596	.08	.08
††Greensburg Tribune Review...(EM)	14,883	.05	.05
††Hazleton Plain Speaker.....(E) ††Hazleton Standard-Sentinel..(M)	19,852	.07	.06
Mount Carmel Item .....(E)	4,307	.0285	.0285
Oil City Derrick .....(M)	8,588	.04	.04
Pottsville Republican and Morning Paper .....(EM)	15,346	.08	.07
Scranton Times .....(E)	43,230	.13	.12
Sharon Herald .....(E)	7,236	.0357	.0357
Sunbury Daily Item .....(E)	5,224	.03	.03
Washington Observer and Reporter .....(M&E)	17,589	.06	.06
††West Chester Local News .....(E)	11,860	.04	.04
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader ....(E)	26,204	.06	.06
††Williamsport Sun and Gazette & Bulletin.....(ME)	28,000	.09	.09
††York Dispatch .....(E)	19,632	.05	.05

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

LACK OF COST DATA IS DEPLORED

(Continued from page 8)

circulation showed a greater percentage of profit than three papers in the circulation class of 3,000 to 8,000.

The unit cost per inch of advertising varied from 15 cents on the small papers to more than a dollar in the big city class.

"A careful and intelligent study of these reports should be helpful to every Southern publisher," the report declares. "Any department that is 'running wild' or one that is inactive can be readily compared with the same departments of other publications, and a publisher who is frequently informed that certain reductions are impossible learns that other publications have found the way.

"The extent to which some publications carry the lack of records is in many cases deplorable. These are instances where too much system and too many records have proved burdensome, but the one outstanding need of Southern publishers in general is better accounting."

REPORT ON ADVERTISING AGENCIES

THE report of the Committee on Advertising Agents said:

"It is the observation of the committee that special activities in certain parts of the south bring an unusual number of so-called advertising agents. This situation existed particularly during the past year in Florida and North Carolina. The committee has attempted to assist in the establishment and growth of every legitimate advertising agent, but it views in a very conservative manner the appearance and operations of an agent handling one kind of business almost entirely. Special representatives are very active at times in attempting to secure recognition of some of these agents because of periodic copy rather than steady, consistent efforts to develop substantial advertising."

EDITORIAL COOPERATION URGED BY S. N. P. A.

LACK of touch between editorial offices of Southern newspapers was again deplored by the committee on editorial affairs in its report to the S. N. P. A. The report said:

"Last year the Editorial Committee suggested that it would be of great value to the newspapers belonging to this Association if its editorial offices could be in continuing contact with other editorial offices in the matter of features, their value and costs, and in other matters. It was argued that editorial offices could exchange to great advantage data as to men and women available for certain positions, as to editorial undertakings of one kind and another, as to libel actions and so on. But it is not easy for men who do not know each other to help each other on these lines. The great value of the S. N. P. A. to the newspapers that belong to it has grown out of the personal acquaintanceship formed at the annual meetings. All the agencies which have proved so helpful in a business way, such as the bulletins, have been developed from these annual meetings. The weakness of the Association on the editorial side is that so few of the newspapers are represented at these meetings by men from the editorial offices.

"Can that be cured? Yes, but to do so would require more vigorous measures than have yet seemed practicable. If at one of these meetings in Asheville the editorial side of the newspaper could be featured, with editors and managing editors from many newspapers present, and turning things over to them, a basis might be worked out upon which something constructive could be built up.

"Tribute was paid to the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun, of which Mr. Julian Harris is the editor, for meriting the Pulitzer Award for public service in 1925."

STRONG FIGHT WAGED ON FREIGHT RATES

AN attempt by Southern railroads to increase freight rates on newsprint has been stoutly fought by the S. N. P. A. traffic committee, which this week reported the following:

"Your committee believes that the situation on rates for newsprint from Canadian, New England and trunk line points to certain Tennessee cities directly affects the whole structure of the rates to the entire South. The Southern Railway specially and the Louisville & Nashville Railroads are instrumental in leading the efforts to bring about an increase of 10 cents per hundred to Nashville and 13 cents to Memphis. It is contended by the Southern and L. & N. that the proposed changes are reasonable, but the increases have not been put into effect because the New England railroads positively refuse to agree to the advances. As the Canadian, New England and trunk line territories are competitive, the rates will not be raised from one section without proportionate increases from the other.

"The Southern Freight Association has given notice of amendments in tariffs to provide for the 57 cents rate to Nashville and 61 cents rate to Memphis from trunk line, Canadian and New England points, to become effective August 15th, via the Virginia gateways and Ohio River crossings, except that the present Memphis rate of 48 cents via Illinois Central will continue.

"Information in the hands of your Traffic Committee shows conclusively that the moving forces among the railroads in the South in defending these increases are the Southern and L. & N. They have issued virtual ultimatums through their Vice-presidents Oliver and Smith to the New England, trunk line and Canadian railroads, and threatened to cancel concurrences. In this fight, the friends of the Southern daily newspaper publishers are the New England railroads, while the Southern and the L. & N. are moving heaven and earth through the Southern Freight Association to increase the Nashville and Memphis rates on newsprint paper regardless of lower rates on other commodities to Memphis and Nashville which are not disturbed, and readjustments in the structure of the entire Southern territory under the decision in the Southern Rate Class Investigation case.

"We believe the point has been reached where the individual members would acquaint themselves with the facts, and ask the responsible officials of the railroads involved about policies which they intend to carry out in relation to newsprint traffic in the South.

"It must not be lost sight of that all traffic authorities agree that newsprint paper is a very desirable commodity for the railroads. It is easy to handle for heavy loading with a minimum number of claims for damages and loss. The tonnage is heavy considering the amount of space involved. There are no unclean cars to be fumigated and overhauled after a shipment of newsprint. The paper moves in carload lots in long hauls."

NEW BUILDING FOR LEE SCHOOL URGED

A NEW building to house the Lee School of Journalism at Washington and Lee University, at a cost of $50,000 was recommended by the S. N. P. A. committee report. The school has been operating one year. Subscriptions to date have been: S. N. P. A. members, $60,500; general public, $8,700; Mrs. L. E. Richardson, $10,500. A mechanical plant, suitable for running a small experimental newspaper, has been promised to the school if an appropriate building can be obtained.

Carriers on Outing

The Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review recently was host to 30 boys, contest winners, at a camping party on the shores of Lake Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, for two days. Circulation department heads did all the work in camp.

BUSINESS GOOD IN SOUTH

So Southern Council of Four A's Declares at Asheville—Officers Elected

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 8.—Business conditions throughout the south remain favorable, according to reports rendered at the meeting of the Southern Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies at Grove Park Inn.

Officers were elected as follows: Chairman, Shelly E. Tracy, Southwestern Advertising Agency, Dallas; vice-chairman, J. L. Morrison, Ferry Hanly Company, Kansas City; secretary-treasurer, B. E. Wyatt, Johnson-Dallas Company, Atlanta.

If these little motor-cars get any smaller, they'll have to hunt the pedestrian in packs.—Little Rock Arkansas Gazette.

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS

THE LEADING NEWSPAPER IN GRAND RAPIDS—THE ONLY DAILY IN SEVEN OTHER CITIES

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News

National Advertising Representatives

I. A. KLEIN — 50 East 42nd St. New York City
J. E. LUTZ — Tower Building Chicago, Ill.

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

120 West 42nd Street New York

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 Daily World — Evening World readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

have you been following the remarkable growth
of the Detroit Times

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

first! in OHIO

9,561,237 Lines

Dispatch advertising record for the first five months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,378,109 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines, exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.

NET PAID CIRCULATION

CITY	55,812
SUBURBAN	26,973
COUNTRY	23,666
Total Daily Circulation	106,451

Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

S. N. P. A. ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN INCREASED NATIONAL LINAGE

DURING the past twelve months, the national advertisers have spent ore money in the South than in any evious year, and since January most uthern newspapers have broken all evious records in the amount of national py carried," said the report of the Com-ttee on Advertising. The co-operative in of advertising was declared highly ccessful and a larger schedule was ged.

Preparation of the committee's report as the last work done by Edgar M. ster, business manager of the Nash-lle Banner and Chairman of the S. N. A. Advertising Committee, who died ne 20. He was engaged in drawing up e report when he was taken to the spital for an operation, from which he ver rallied.

The report said, in part:

"This co-operative plan of selling the uth to the North, East and West should continued, and, if possible, upon a rger scale. The sentiment at this time universal that the time is auspicious d that the benefits to the South and to daily press will be immediate and sub-ntial.

"The story of the present South is a velation of prosperity.

"The Southern press should press the ct that the natural advantages which e South possesses of having the cotton ld in sight of the cotton factory; to the oximity of the iron ore and coal fields d limestone as an advantage which en-les the furnaces of the South to pro-ce pig iron cheaper than in any other ction of the country; that the rails for uthern railroads and the steel for its st bridge construction are largely the oducts of southern furnaces and ndries. We must emphasize the fact at this long since has ceased to be a e-crop' section; and that the agricul-re here has become diversified to a eater extent than in any other part of e United States. We must call atten-n to the amicable relations between or and capital, the comparative free-m here from disturbances in contrast th the severe conflicts and frequent up-avals that occur in other sections. We st show the rapid extension and pro-essive policies of its great railroad stems; the large expenditures for high-y construction, for the improvements of rbors and waterways. We should not l to stress the remarkable scope of nstruction in the South, by states, nicipalities and citizens, public utilities, blic buildings, educational institutions, ctories and residences, a scale and riety of construction which astounds e visitor and carries its own story of a nderful era of progress and prosperity.

"The South is the last remaining ntier of the Republic. It is the land opportunity; about it is the magic of gh traditions; the romance of the vast tural treasures, as yet only barely ched, is gripping the country and rring its own people. Capital in the rth and East is on a closely competi-e basis. It is seeking a freer field and ler rewards. Great as has been the gress of the South, outside capital is lly aware that its resources are really explored, and that this advance is but prophecy of its possibilities; that no enue of industry is congested but that portunities are limitless for profitable terprises of the widest character.

"The East is alert, investigating and pressed. It was a remarkable and gnificant utterance made by John ntry, perhaps the leading journalist of ew England, at the opening of this year at the next decade would witness the st momentous migration of men and ney which the nation has ever seen d that its destination would be the uthern States. That epochal move-ent is already well under way.

"Heavy as were the investments of the rth in 1924 in the South, the volume of pital which crossed the Ohio in 1925 was vastly greater. Every important railroad system entering the South prose-cuted an unprecedented program of ex-tension. Projects aggregating over $100,-000,000 for the development of the harbors of the South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts were begun; $150,000,000 of Eastern capital was invested in new hotels in the South, and a quarter of a billion em-barked in industrial enterprises, mineral lands and hydro-electric developments.

"When the year 1925 was surveyed it was discovered that not only was the domestic commerce of the South, ex-periencing a remarkable expansion, but that the South was fortifying its foreign trade relations; that the exports through southern ports had reached the splendid total of thirty-eight per cent of those of the entire nation, aggregating four times the amount of only fifteen years ago, and that tonnage for the year through every port of the South, with a single exception, had shown an increase over 1924, while the only ports north of Baltimore that had made a gain were those of the state of Maine.

"It was found that the railroads of the South far surpassed those of any and all sections of the country in net earnings and in relative freight and passenger traffic as compared with 1924.

"The significant fact was developed that in the important field of construction the South had surpassed even the peak record of 1924 and in percentage of gain had eclipsed every section of the U. S.

"The deposits in the banks of the South had reached an unprecedented total of $7,000,000,000, nearly fifty times as much as all the 1,100 banks below the Ohio contained in 1873.

"Its output of manufactures had passed the $10,000,000,000 mark, which was three times the amount of only fifteen years ago; and the value of its farm prod-ucts had grown to $6,000,000,000, or ten times as much as the yield in all the states of the South the year Sumter was fired on.

"Hundreds of millions of dollars hurried from the North to acquire the vast power resources of the Southern territory, and millions of citizens from North, East and West crossed the Ohio and Mississippi rivers as tourists or homeseekers.

"A great awakening has come to the Southern people themselves. One of the outstanding signs of the times is the dual campaign to sell the South to itself and to the country, which the press, busi-ness organizations, civic leaders and educators of the Southern states are pressing with intense eagerness."

New Texas Weekly

The Cooper (Tex.) Delta County News is a new weekly, with W. L. Mar-tin as editor and publisher.

creating Impression!

nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.

The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium — ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it

J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St., New York
Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago

NEWS VS. ADVERTISING

Is One Subject to Be Discussed at South Carolina Meet

"Drawing Lines Between News Mat-ter and Advertising" will be discussed by A. W. Huckle of the Rock Hill (S. C.) Herald before the 50th annual meeting of the South Carolina Press Association at Myrtle Beach, S. C., July 13-14.

Other speakers, announced this week by Robert Lathan, editor, Charleston News & Courier, association president, include: R. L. Freeman, Bennettsville Pee Dee Advocate; R. M. Hitt, Bam-berg Herald; E. H. DeCamp, Gaffney Ledger; Roger C. Pease, Greenville News; H. G. Osteen, Sumter Item; S. L. Latimer, Columbia State; and J. A. Zeigler, Florence News-Review.

E. R. THOMAS DIES

Was Noted Sportsman and Owner of New York Morning Telegraph

Edward Russell Thomas, 52, one of the owners of the New York Morning Telegraph, died July 6 in a New York sanitarium. He was noted as a sports-man and banker.

He became interested in the Morning Telegraph in 1904. A while ago he bought out the stock in that newspaper owned by the estate of the late W. E. Lewis, former publisher, and until the recent merger of the Telegraph with the Daily Running Horse owned all the stock. He was vice-president of the merged company.

Mrs. G. Gould Lincoln Dead

Mrs. G. Gould Lincoln, wife of G. Gould Lincoln, political writer of the Washington Evening Star, died suddenly July 7 at Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Waukegan Paper to Build

The Waukegan (Ill.) News last week announced the purchase of a site in the downtown district upon which it will erect a four-story publishing plant. It will be of brick, terra cotta trimmed elevations, with a 12-foot basement to accommodate presses. Lobby and busi-ness office will be on the first floor; edi-torial rooms on the second; and mechani-cal rooms on the top floors.

Still Gaining!

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS
and
Baltimore American

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments of
New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American
are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400

Chicago Office:
F. E. CRAWFORD
Western Manager
913 Hearst Bldg.

Detroit Office:
FRANKLIN PAYNE
Representative
1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

You've Hit it on the Head, Mr. MacLean!

¶ In choosing Certified Dry Mats for his own feature service Mr. Eugene MacLean (Malcolm Duart) writes:

"I bought them for the NEA on merit, and will buy them for my own purposes for the same reasons."

That's just it. Wherever Certifieds are used they are bought on their MERITS alone.

To those who use mats for syndicate purposes, or for newspaper work, Certified Quality will appeal for its un-deviating high character.

We welcome Mr. MacLean to our happy family of news-paper feature services.

¶ Can't we send samples of Certifieds to you — you'll find it worth while to make a trial in your own plant, and COMPARE.

Which shall it be, Syn-dicate or Newspaper Certifieds?

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue, New York

For wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility — use Certifieds

Made in the U. S. A.

ENLARGED PLANT FOR DES MOINES DAILIES

ABOVE (left) is the Des Moines Register and Tribune's annex building, which is now nearing completion.

The papers occupy five floors of the main building (at right) and all of the Annex except the store rooms on the first floor. The basement of the Annex will give additional press room facilities with space for 2 lines of 12 units each.

The second floor of the Annex is given over entirely to the editorial department with the exception of a portion of the space in the rear which will be used as a mailing room.

The third floor is given over to the national advertising department, rotogravure advertising, classified advertising, promotion department and syndicate department. The photographic studio is also located on this floor.

The Annex adds approximately 25,000 square feet of floor space to the plant. It will be ready for occupancy about July 15.

JAPANESE JOURNALIST HELD BY RED GUARDS

Placed in Jail on Charge of Espionage While Returning from Russia —Released After 11 Day Detention

Special to EDITOR & PUBLISHER

SHANGHAI, China, June 14.—The difficulties of a Japanese journalist with Russian authorities are told by the Harbin, Manchuria, correspondent of the Shanghai North-China Daily News, probably the chief English language newspaper in China. The report is of interest in view of the number of American and European journalists who have already gone to or who plan to visit Russia.

The correspondent says: "Mr. Noiori the editor of a popular Japanese journal, the Jitsugio-Nocikai, who left Japan last year to visit Europe and Russia, has reached Harbin from Moscow on his way home. He left the Soviet capital on April 21, where he spent several days studying the present economic state of Russia, and came across Siberia by the express train. On the train which he had taken, arriving at the station Matzoevsky where documents are examined, two Red guards entered the coupe occupied by the journalist and searched his baggage.

"Among other things found was a map of Soviet Russia and material dealing with the country which had been given to Mr. Noiori by the Commissariat of Foreign Affairs at Moscow. But this was evidently enough testimony for the Japanese to be arrested and sent back to the station of Diouria under armed convoy. Here he was put in prison where he remained for eight days after which he was taken back to China and handed over to the G. P. U., or Political Secret Service Department. His trial took place immediately the charge against him being that o military espionage.

The court found that there was insufficient proof and the man was released after having been detained 1 days and having put up with much unpleasantness."

Cleveland Shopping News Moves

Headquarters of the Cleveland Shopping News were moved recently fron 1435 E. 12th street to 5309 Hamilto avenue.

Strong's Address in Pamphlet Forn

The address delivered by Walter A Strong, publisher, Chicago Daily News before the graduating class of the Uni versity of Chicago at the June com mencement has been published i pamphlet form under the title "News paper and the New Age."

AD TIPS

N. W. Ayer & Son, 308 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. Placing account of the Armand Company, Des Moines, Iowa, manufacturers of toilet articles.

George Batten Company, Inc., 383 Madison avenue, New York City. Placing account of the Petroleum Heat & Power Company, New York City, manufacturers of Petro Oil Burners.

Chatham Advertising Agency, Inc., 3 West 29th street, New York City. Placing account for Julia Hoyt Modes, Inc., New York City, manufacturers of dresses.

Federal Advertising Agency, Inc., 6 East 39th street, New York City. Now handling the following accounts: Associated Men's Neckwear Industries, New York City; General Cigar Company, New York City, "Van Dyck" Cigars; Metal Textile Corp., Orange, N. J., utensil cleaners; Alfred H. Smith Company, New York City, Djer-Kiss Perfumes, Powders, Etc.; C. Stern & Mayer, New York City, Esquire Hose.

C. Brewer Smith Advertising Agency, 27 School street, Boston. Has secured the following accounts: Alandale Studios, Laskey Commercial School, Dorchester Pottery Works, Mass. Radio & Telegraph School, and Franklin Union Institute, all of Boston.

Frank B. White Company, 76 West Monroe street, Chicago. Now handling account of the Lakeland Resorts, Inc., Chicago.

Williams & Cunnyngham, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Now handling account of Fallis, Inc., Cincinnati, manufacturers of Peter Pan "Opal Hue" beauty powder.

Young & Rubicam, 285 Madison avenue, New York City. Is now placing the advertising of "Jell-O" and The Adver. of this product is being placed through the Postum Cereal Company, Inc., New York City, who recently purchased the Jell-O Company.

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration
The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St. Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building J. E. Lutz

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?
We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.
It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.
Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.
When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.
Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.
Member A. B. C.
URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

LOS ANGELES EVENING HERALD
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation
Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.
IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY
REPRESENTATIVES:
H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

We shall be pleased to see any newspaper man during the Philadelphia Convention and to talk over with him his classified advertising problems
THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

Resort and Hotel ADVERTISING in the Miami District
Hosts of vacationists sojourn in Miami; but residents also flock north. Thus, Resort, Hotel and Restaurant advertising, both local and national, commands attention in the District.
Comparative figures in this classification, first five months, 1926, follow:
THE HERALD . . . 522,767 Lines
Second Paper . . . . . 333,893 Lines
Herald Lead . . . . . 188,874 Lines
—or more than 56%.
The Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

USTOMS MEN HOLDING UP NEWSPRINT

·deral Officials Charging Duty on Importations Despite Treasury Department Ruling, Firms Declare —Fight Looms

The United States government has oken faith with newspapers, it was arged this week by importers of newsint. Despite a ruling of the treasury partment providing entry of European wsprint duty free and without delay, a mber of shipments have been held up customs officials in several ports and ty paid by importers, EDITOR & PUBSHER was informed.

Protests have been made to the departent by importers affected and cases are vaiting trial before the general board appraisers. Assessed as print paper, ty has been paid on paper consigned to porters for newspapers at a rate of ¼ nt a pound and 10 per cent ad valorem. EDITOR & PUBLISHER was informed by e importer that he had been forced to y duty on European newsprint congned to him, when in each case he had en able to submit proof that the paper as being consumed by an American ily newspaper.

The definition of standard newsprint lopted by the treasury department July 1925 is a virtual prohibition of Euro-an newsprint, because of provisions lating to ash content. It was strenuisly fought by the newsprint committee the American Newspaper Publishers' ssociation and as finally issued conined a rider in the form of instructions customs officials to the effect that paper rolls or sheets consigned to publishers credited importers should not be held in any way.

The definition without the rider reads: Weight—500 sheets, each 26 by 36 ches, shall weigh not less than 30 unds nor more than 36 pounds.

Rolls—The Paper shall be in rolls not ss than 16 inches wide and 28 inches in ameter.

Stock—Not less than 70 per cent of the tal fiber shall be ground wood. The mainder shall be unbleached sulphite.

Finish—The average of five tests in achine direction and five tests in cross rection on both sides moving the paper ter each test made with the Ingersoll aimeter, shall not be more than 50 per nt gloss.

Ash—Shall not be more than two per nt.

Degree of Sizing—Time of transudaon of water shall not be more than n seconds by the ground glass method five seconds by the alternative ethods.

The rider which accompanied the defition was a compromise reached between merican manufacturers and the newsaper publishers. It is also understood at the treasury department issued a eneral letter last February which lead nporters to believe that no samples ould be taken even of shipments that d not come within the strict measures the definition.

Samples, however, have been taken ity assessed, and paid. Reports were rrent in authoritative circles this week at another fight looms between pubshers' representatives and manufacturers Washington.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

July 13-16—South Carolina Press Assn., annual convention, Myrtle Beach, S. C.

July 16—Idaho State Editorial Assn., meeting, McCall, Idaho.

July 19-24—International stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union of North America, meeting, Los Angeles.

July 21-23—North Carolina Press Assn., annual convention, Hickory, N. C.

July 23-24—Northeast Nebraska Editorial Assn., annual convention, Homer, Neb.

July 23-25—Colorado Editorial Assn., annual convention, Alamosa, Col.

July 23—American Photo-Engravers' Assn., annual convention, Detroit.

July 26-Aug. 21—Institute of Politics, Williamstown, Mass.

July 30—Northeast Missouri Press Assn., mid-summer meeting, Monroe City, Mo.

MAKE-UP SHOWN AT N. E. A. CONVENTION

(Continued from page 14)

each advertisement, and to the incorrect relation of the advertisements to each other.

Then a much better inside or back page was made up. A running head was placed on the page, and the advertisements used—much more pleasing individually and more in harmony with each other—were pyramided to the right. In the upper left hand corner was shown a two-column boxed head featuring "Live State News."

"Too many newspapers omit running heads," the speaker said. "This seems to me to be a serious mistake—the neglect by the publisher of an opportunity to advertise his paper, city and state. When the average person tears out a news story to send to someone in another community, and the page from which the history is torn does not contain a running head, the receiver of the clipping seldom knows from which paper it was clipped or the date the item was printed." A half-column of black, disfiguring theatrical advertisements were shown on the page alongside of two resettings of the same matter in much more attractive and readable type faces. "Resetting," the speaker said, "not only made these particular theatrical advertisements more attractive and readable, but gave the other advertisements on the page an equal chance to be read. It is not being fair to the other advertisers on a page to place alongside of their well-composed advertisements unduly black and otherwise disfiguring advertisements from other buyers of space. The same applies, of course, to advertisements of every kind."

A classified section was shown, with attention directed to the fact that the smaller face used could be set 14 lines to the inch. "The outline display faces," the speaker said, "relieve the monotony of such a page and display the advertisers' statements to better advantage."

The last page shown was an editorial page, with the first four columns converted into three columns of ten-point sixteen picas wide, with increased shoulders of white space on each side of the column rules. The masthead displayed the emblem of the National Editorial Association, stated the subscription rates of the publication, as well as statements for the benefit of prospective advertisers. Also featured in the masthead were the names and addresses of correspondents in other communities, that readers of the paper in those communities could establish direct contact with those correspondents. The statement was made that the masthead should not be kept standing so long that it becomes unreadable. It should be reset occasionally. Several casts can be made at one time and the extra lines put away for future use.

"Some publishers make the mistake," the speaker said, "of setting some of the columns too wide on the editorial page. A good rule to follow is that the column width should be no wider than an alphabet and a half of lower-case of the type face used; that is, should be no wider than forty lower-case characters of the face employed. The wider the column, of course, the deeper should be the leading.

In closing, the speaker again called attention to the wrappers of newspapers. "An attractively made up paper," he said, "that goes out in a sloven wrapper carries with it a note just as false as would be the case were a gentleman in a neatly fitting new suit of clothes to throw about his shoulders an old tarpaulin to wear to call on a good friend. The wrapper should be neatly printed and should carry an advertisement for the paper, the city, and the state from which it comes. One particular paper in the East has printed on its wrapper a statement such as this: 'Here's the latest copy of the Sanson News, printed in the city of Sanson. Some paper! Some town! Just like a letter from home.'"

St. Maurice Completes Financing

The St. Maurice Valley Corporation is issuing $1,300,000 first mortgage and collateral trust six per cent bonds, thus completing its financial program in connection with the installation of its two newsprint machines. The new bonds are identical with the corporation's original issue, being dated Dec. 1, 1925, maturing Dec. 1, 1945.

America's Complete Newspaper

New York Herald Tribune

in Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

features SINCE 1899

WEEKLY

Camera News, Fashion, Feature and Children's Pages; House Plans; Automobile Cartoon.

3-A-WEEK

Hints for the Motorist; Handicraft in the Home.

DAILY

Cross-word Puzzles, Dots and Cut-outs; Radio; Noozie; Fashion hints; 1 col. Comics; Portraits; Gillilan's Letters; News-Maps, also The Ad-route (house organ).

The International Syndicate

Baltimore, Md.

Among The Newspapers Publishing

Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series

Chicago Journal, Detroit News, Toledo Blade, Omaha Bee, Peoria Star Journal, Philadelphia Sun, Buffalo Times, Louisville Courier J'l, Oakland Post Enquirer, Memphis News Scimitar, Newark Jersey Transcript

Why Not Join This List of Papers

Wire for Terms and Territory

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC

Covering the World

NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief — Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

RADIO

PROGRAMS NEWS NOTES FEATURES

Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers

Send for samples and prices

AUDIO SERVICE

326 West Madison St. Chicago

For the First Three Months of 1926

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

printed 7,355,276 lines of Advertising, and thus moved up from twelfth to SIXTH place among the newspapers of the United States.

The only newspapers printing a greater volume of advertising during that period than The Tribune were the Miami Herald, the St. Petersburg Times, the Detroit News, the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.

The Tribune covers the rich South Florida territory of 24 counties and 190 cities and towns, with a population of 713,943.

That's Why Its Advertising Volume Grows

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency, National Representatives.

HIS SIGNATURE FAKED GOVERNOR CHARGES

Florida Executive Says Real Estate Firm Forged His Name on Laudatory Letter Used in Ads—Exposed by B. B. B.

How the governor of Florida was buncoed into the use of his signature in endorsing the operations of a Florida realty corporation, has just come to light.

For some time past, in magazines, newspapers and in its sales literature, the All-Florida Realty Company, which did extensive advertising in all parts of the country and maintained offices in various cities, has included in its advertising a reproduction of the following letter, signed by Governor J. W. Martin:

STATE OF FLORIDA
Executive Department
Tallahassee

"To whom it may concern:

"I have thoroughly examined the plan of the All-Florida Realty Company and feel that their plans for acting as a clearing house for Florida real estate of all descriptions, working, as they do, through the realtors of the nation, will be a great assistance in the proper and conscientious handling of Florida real estate.

"The truth about Florida has become so well known that it is not necessary to exaggerate nor to make misstatements to develop our State.

"Your project, having the commendation of civic authorities and of the Florida League of Municipalities, speaks of your reliability and the co-operation of Florida realtors.

"I believe the All-Florida Realty Company will be a great success.

"I personally feel that this organization fills a long-felt want.

"Yours very truly,
"JOHN W. MARTIN, (Signed)
"Governor."

The Miami Better Business Bureau, through H. L. Baldensperger, its director, in an effort to ascertain the genuineness of the letter from the governor, wrote to Governor Martin and the latter, in his response, told how the endorsement had been faked. Here is his letter, published for the first time:

"I have received your favor of the 25th and in reply to same will state that the letter of mine published by the All-Florida Realty Company is a forgery.

"Some seven or eight months ago, Herman Meister, president of the All-Florida Realty Company at that time, came in the office and begged me to give him a letter, which I refused to do as I have scrupulously refrained from endorsing any private business. He goes out of the office and asks my secretary for a letter-head, which he gives him, and which he then takes over to another office and writes a letter, gets my signature off some letter written to someone on other business, pastes it over his letter and has it photographed. He admitted having done this to me when I sent for him and asked where he had gotten such a letter.

"Mr. Blain (selling agent) and his associates have been advised that this letter is a forgery, and they know it is. They promised me that they would not use it again and I thought the matter was ended; but I find that they are continuing to use it, so I have taken steps with the Realty Board at Orlando.

"I had hoped to stop the use of this forged letter without undue publicity, because it would injure the State and cause a great deal of talk, but it looks as if I am going to have to prosecute these people.

"Yours sincerely,
"JOHN W. MARTIN, (Signed)
"Governor."

Criminal charges subsequently were filed against the company.

Tennessee Publishers Organizing

Tennessee publishers and printers were to meet in Nashville, July 9, for the purpose of organizing a state press association.

Insurance Firm to Advertise

The Reliance Casualty Insurance Company, Newark, N. J., is planning an advertising campaign using New Jersey newspapers, and has appointed the World Wide Advertising Corporation, New York, to handle the account.

After New Round World Record

John Henry Mears, who went around the world in 35 days, 21 hours and 35 minutes in 1913 as a special correspondent of the New York Sun, will attempt a new record next September, he announced this week.

O'Brien on European Trip

Frank M. O'Brien, editorial writer for the New York Sun, and Mrs. O'Brien sailed for abroad this week on the S. S. George Washington.

U. P. Correspondent Jailed in Spain

Emilio Herrero, United Press correspondent in Madrid, Spain, was jailed recently apparently for sending out a dispatch contrary to censorship regulations, U. P. headquarters in New York learned this week. He was released July 6, after being held incommunicado. J. H. Furay, vice-president in charge of foreign news, had not heard details of the arrest prior to July 8, when EDITOR & PUBLISHER went to press. He said he understood Herrero sent a dispatch to Bilbao to which the Spanish censors objected. The U. P. has no client newspaper there.

U. P. Man's Wife a Heroine

Mrs. Margaret Clayton, wife of William Clayton, assistant business manager of the United Press, was severely burned July 5, in saving the life of 4-year-old Myrtle Toeller of Chicago, a neighbor's child, whose flimsy dress caught fire.

Supplies and Equipment

GOSS
STEREOTYPING MACHINERY
Carried in Stock

Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT
SLUG FEEDER
Eliminates the Metal Furnace
The Monomelt Co.
4509-19 Ravenswood Ave.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Fight hot-weather fatigue

Fresh, cool, invigorating air — supplied by Sturtevant Ventilating Fans — would keep your men working at top-notch efficiency during the hot summer months.

B. F. STURTEVANT CO.
Hyde Park, Boston, Mass.
Branch Offices in Principal Cities
Sturtevant
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF
Ventilating Fans

Rebuilt
GOSS & HOE
PRESS
BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO — NEW YORK — LONDON

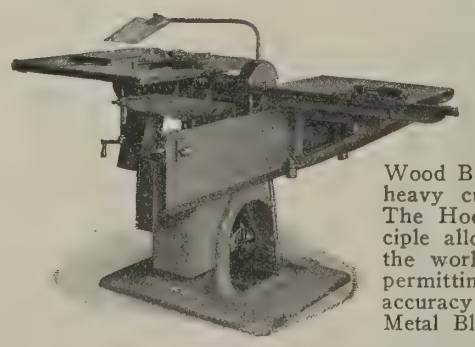
Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Newspaper Conveyors



take the papers in a steady stream, as fast as the presses can deliver them, up, overhead, around corners, through a ceiling or a wall to wherever they're wanted for mailing or delivery. Eliminating waste and delay by their speedy, dependable operation they are profitable equipment for papers large or small. Newspaper plants from London to Tokio have been using them for years.

Let us tell you how you can speed deliveries from your presses.

The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Mfrs. of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN
CUTLER-HAMMER

The Buyers of Equipment and Supplies read the EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Hoe Combined Saw Table and Mono-Rail Trimmer

This Machine combines the advantages of the Hoe Pedestal Saw Table and the Hoe Mono-Rail Trimmer.

The Trimmer is supplied with either Style "A" Cutter Head for trimming Wood Blocks or Style "B" for extra heavy cutting on Zinc or Copper. The Hoe Patented Mono-Rail principle allows the Operator to follow the work beyond the Cutter Head permitting more speed and greater accuracy in trimming Wood or Metal Blocks of varied sizes.

IF IT'S A HOE, IT'S THE BEST

R. HOE & CO., INC., 504 Grand Street, New York, N. Y.
7 So. Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL. 7 Water Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS
(Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

White space charge at same rate per line per insertion as earned by frequency of insertion. Special rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. The Editor & Publisher reserves the right to classify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want more business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 1841 Broadway, New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

Have You $7,000 for Initial Payment, coupled with fair ability and some experience? If so, I have a big bargain for you. Splendid weekly paper and job plant, fast growing city of 12,000, earning large dividends. Act quickly if interested. J. B. Shale, Times Building, New York.

Omar D. Gray, the Sturgeon, Missouri, newspaper broker writes that he has a prosperous afternoon daily in Arkansas which he can sell without building for $75,000; with building $100,000—half cash.

"Texas afternoon daily $20,000—$6,000 down.

"$75,000—$40,000 cash will buy two afternoon dailies in state capital city of Middle West.

"Unusual buy in North Dakota daily.

"$100,000 morning daily on North Pacific Coast with building.

"Two real bargains in small weekly papers—one in Arkansas with average business of $700 per month, priced at $3,750 with $2,000 cash down. One in Illinois clearing $400 per month priced at $3,000 with $2,000 down.

"Good buys in weeklies and dailies in 44 states. Write me what you want and how much cash you have to pay down on a newspaper. I can please you.

"I forgot to tell my customers that I had sold the printing office at Brookville, Ky., to Forrest V. Tebbetts. The paper was owned by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Blackerby. Paper sold for $7,500.

"I have a $20,000 deal in Ohio which is due to close on July 19, 1926.

"On my way by auto to the Southland I motored 2200 miles, met over 500 editors in two conventions and stopped at 44 print shops. I listed seven newspapers for sale, was given the opportunity to consolidate six newspapers and had four orders to buy newspapers for clients.

"I was accompanied on this journey by Dean Walter Williams of Columbia, Mo.; the best known newspaper man on earth. He was a fine companion. At Jackson, Miss., he delivered the most scholarly address on the "Seven Lamps of Journalism" it has ever been my pleasure to listen to. Williams can fill a pulpit or a lecture platform with grace and ease but he cannot fill the radiator of an auto.

"I lost seven pounds of fat on my journey to the South but the trip was worth all it cost in dollars and energy."

Western Pennsylvania Weekly, only paper in county seat of large county. Profitable business and splendid equipment. Available for $21,500 on terms. Prop. 1450x. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Interest for Sale

Interest, carrying position of business manager; Oklahoma city of ten thousand; only daily in rich and fast growing city; salary commensurate with ability; applicant should have from five to seven thousand. Address A-612, Editor & Publisher.

Newspapers Wanted

Wanted to Buy, established afternoon paper in town, 10,000 to 20,000, Middle West preferred. Address A-632, Editor & Publisher.

CIRCULATION

Premiums

Steel Coaster Wagons—A Philadelphia daily offers 10,000 (ten thousand) and numerous large families throughout the country are offering thousand lots. Parents will work on a wagon offer. Let us quote you. Circulators report a wonderful summer for kid offers. Plenty of copy. The Steel Co., Box 203, Palmyra, N. J.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

Circulation—When quick, additional circulation coverage becomes necessary, remember that our twenty years in this one line of endeavor is your proof against experimenting. Write or wire Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell Block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Circulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Centre Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesmanship Club Campaigns.

How Many New Mail Subscribers do you want? We will tell you how to get 'em and get 'em fast. A large daily secured ten thousand (10,000) subscribers on this offer. The Allbright China Co., Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

Cartoons for special editions, etc., drawn to order. Price to cover both drawing and engraving three col. six in deep, $5.75. Send in idea and copy of your paper. Guido D. Janes Service, Quincy, Illinois.

The Pittsburgh Star and St. Charles (Mo.) Cosmo-Monitor are the new customers this week. For samples of a live, alert, up-to-date service, write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Advertising Solicitor wanted by leading Midwest newspaper in city of 40,000. Must be capable copy writer. State experience and salary expected. Address A-639, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager, experienced, wanted; capable of increasing three pages daily, seven pages Sunday, in the largest morning and afternoon papers in the State, with the only Sunday paper in the city of 144,000. Southwest. Submit full qualifications in first letter; age, salary, etc. Oklahoman and Times, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Managing Editor for the leading newspaper in a highly competitive New Jersey field. $100 weekly. In answering give full details of previous experience. Box A-622, Editor & Publisher.

Photo Engraver Wanted—The opportunity of a life time awaits the right man to take charge of a well equipped engraving plant doing a nice business in a Pennsylvania town of 100,000 drawing population and county seat. Apply to National News Service, 1328 West Lycoming St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Reporter—Vermont Daily seeks reporter with Vermont background, 22 to 32 years old. Should be capable of early growth to desk responsibilities, but genuinely devoted to reporting. Address A-611, Editor & Publisher.

Young Man wanted with thorough reportorial and good desk experience as state editor on midwest daily, city of over 30,000. Must be hard worker, able to handle telegraph copy. A-635, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager—Solicitor—Alert, progressive, business and good will builder wants permanent connection with future. Nine years' experience, large and small dailies, 28, married, best references. A-638, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising—Young man with practical experience in photography, drawing, cuts, lay-outs, make-up, type, editorial work and lettering, desires advertising connection where his accomplishments will be of value. Determined to "get there". A-641, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation and Promotion Manager seeks confidential correspondence and interview with publication or combination needing new life in the direction and leadership of its circulation department.

Study this ad, it's your paper's opportunity.

The writer with years of experience, enjoys a constant flow of productive ideas; is a good leader and pusher; never hibernates; knows cost, where his figure is at all times and how to control it; accustomed to the keenest competition, yet able to eliminate lost motion in promotion; will show tangible results within ninety days and thereafter until you say "enough." Metropolitan and provincial experience.

Judicious spender, showing 100% results for your dollar.

Actual working experience covers every cog of a circulation department, consequently the applicant can immediately place his hand on any part of an organization not functioning 100%.

Location—no objection.

Salary reasonable with provision for compensation in accordance with results. Future prime thought, not a drifter.

Age 35, family, excellent health. At liberty with due notice. Excellent reference.

Now is the time to change a circulation executive to perfect your organization and show fast, sound growth. Address A-618, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Work wanted on good reputable, reliable daily, afternoon or morning. Have experience and now employed handling city circulation of two papers, morning and afternoon. Can furnish best references. A-636, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation Manager, 15 years' successful newspaper experience in all branches, now open for new connection, account consolidation, A 1 references former employers. Available at once. A-637, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, in present position seven years, desires change. Showing steady increase, A. B. C. Audits clean, know circulation from ground up. Best references from present employers. Prefer South or Southwest. A-634, Editor & Publisher.

Composing Room Superintendent wishes position where efficiency and ability are desired. Fourteen years in charge of one plant, now in charge of composing room of morning and afternoon paper. Prefer to go South on morning paper, but intend making a change, and would like to hear from manager or publisher desiring a reliable, permanent man. Can give reference. A-598, Editor & Publisher.

Editor, City, Telegraph or Managing; now employed, desires connection with larger paper; 31, married, university graduate, nine years' experience in the South, good references. Handle sports. A-640, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial and Desk Work on daily paper wanted by newspaper man of experience. Examples of headlines, special articles and editorials furnished on request. References. B-992, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Four years managing editor Staten Island Advance; two years city editor, Camden, N. J., Courier; four years, City Hall reporter Philadelphia Evening Ledger, and three years City Hall reporter and political writer Philadelphia Record, seeks managing or city editor post on afternoon daily in city of 40,000 to 200,000 population. Best of references from owners or executives of all papers. Address St. John McClean, Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Managing or News Editorship wanted by young man with unusual achievement record. Executive now on paper of 30,000 and place secure. Not cheap but capable. A-630, Editor & Publisher.

News Editor—Experienced newspaper man, employed in responsible position on editorial staff of metropolitan newspaper, desires executive place on smaller daily. Am 28, university graduate, and have spent the last 10 years in active newspaper work. Thoroughly familiar with all branches of editorial department, including make-up. A-605, Editor & Publisher.

Newspaper Man, with record of having built up two papers, wants either desk or street work. Let me show you what a live newsman can do for your paper. Prefer, Illinois, Iowa or Indiana, but would go South. A-631, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—University graduate, journalism, wishes position as reporter on large city daily. Three years experience as reporter-editor of community newspapers. Willing to start at usual salary if opportunity is offered. R. H. Crosse, 202 South St., Woodstock, Ill.

Reporter—Four years' experience all runs. Some desk experience also. References. Ralph Kahn, 3411 North 16th, Omaha, Nebr.

Superintendent-Foreman composing room, desires change. Foreman daily 14-48 pages. Experienced all branches. Capable executive who can get maximum output. Go anywhere. A-616, Editor & Publisher.

Veteran Editor, metropolitan and interior experience, wants responsible executive or editorial position; now on New York daily. A-615, Editor & Publisher.

Web Pressman—Consolidation of two newspapers silenced an Octuple and idled the pressman. Knowing this pressman to be unusually good with experience on different kinds of web presses, we would like to see him suitably placed. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau St., New York.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Goss Comet and Duplex Flat-bed Presses for immediate delivery. Good condition guaranteed. Also several good bargains in stereotype presses and machinery. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Hoe Dry Mat Roller, new only one year ago. Alternating current motor, 40 seconds travel. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

MECHANICAL

Equipment Wanted

Duplex Tubular Press equipment wanted—must be in good condition. Sixteen page preferred. Give price, terms and date available. A-628, Editor & Publisher.

Tissue Holder and table for wet mat making wanted. Lansing Capital News.

PERSONAL

Address of John H. Litmer is 301 Houston Avenue, Evansville, Indiana.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER
350 Madison Ave., New York
Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT

Reporters
Copy readers
Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L BLDG., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Publishers:

We have listed several high-class Circulation Managers, also Advertising Men, Editors, Reporters and Pressmen.

Tell us your particular need and we will put you in touch with a man who we believe will meet your particular requirements.

Address Classified Department

Editor & Publisher

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

THE Boston American and Boston Advertiser are making their classified columns pay during the warm weather by printing a score or more names and addresses taken at random from the telephone and street directories of Boston and surrounding towns scattered through the classified ads. Persons discovering their names are rewarded with passes to Revere Beach amusements worth $5, upon clipping the printed name and address and presenting it at the classified department of the papers.—C. L. Moody, Quincy (Mass.) Patriot Ledger.

When members of the newly formed realty board wanted to publish their adopted code of ethics, but were unprepared to take the money out of the treasury, the San Luis Obispo (Cal.) Tribune-Telegram made up a display page, with the code of ethics top and center, and sold the remainder of the page to individual board members.—Fremont Kutnewsky.

Here's an interesting way of increasing the volume of automobile advertising in the paper. Run a spread devoted to advertisements of used cars that sell for $150 or under. Don't let any car be advertised on the page that sells for more than this sum. This would be an unusual stunt and would attract much attention.—Frank H. Williams.

Have you a telephone directory of 40 years ago? If you have, you can "ring up" a good page or section of extra business. Here's how! The page heading quoted below gives the idea clearly:

"OUR NAME WAS THERE NEARLY 40 YEARS AGO—IT IS THERE TODAY. On this page is shown a fac-smile copy of (Name of City) Telephone Directory of 1884. A comparison with today's Directory shows (Name of City) wonderful progress. When it is considered that the percentage of business failures average more than 7 out of 10 in each seven years, a keener appreciation by all (Name of City) can be felt for those business concerns whose names were in this telephone directory 40 years ago—and are still there today—growing stronger and more substantial with age. On this page are shown some of these pioneer houses, and you will be interested in looking them over."

Perhaps your local 'phone company or your public library can furnish an old directory—40, 30 or even 20 years ago will do. Lay out a strong page of this sort and sound out your pioneer business firms. They will no doubt take pride in their ability to advertise in such a page or section.—George C. Marcley, Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Republican-Journal.

A checking form is put to good use among the rural readers of an Indiana newspaper. This checking form is mailed occasionally to scattered rural readers and contains the following questions: Is delivery service satisfactory? What do you like best in the Star? Is there any feature you would like to have the Star obtain? Has there been any dissatisfaction on your part with anything contained in the Star? Are there any important markets we are overlooking? What can we do to make you like us better? Naturally, all of the suggestions are not practical, but the answers give the newspaper some valuable tips.—B. A. T.

Few Communists in Printing Trade

During a raid on the headquarters of the Communist Party of Great Britain in October last year the police seized among other papers, an unsigned typed document giving a list of factory groups or nuclei, which has now been printed in the "Communists Papers" issued by the Home Office. This included the names of three London printing houses, which it is stated have 17 Communist members among their 4,500 workers, while "various printing shops" have 12 Communists among 5,000 workers. The full figures show that there are few Communists in London printing trade.

International Raises Stock Rate

After an interlude of 27 years, the International Paper Company this week placed its common stock on an annual $2 dividend basis. The last dividend paid on the old $100 par common was $1 in 1899. Stockholders of record Aug. 4 will receive a quarterly dividend of 50 cents on Aug. 15.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

A CONTEST in which amateur reporters are competing to turn in the largest amount of personals and other news items is being conducted by the Wakefield (Mass.) Daily Item. Prizes are given for the weekly winners, with a grand prize to be awarded for the season. The Item declares the contest has been an unqualified success. It hoped to obtain a column of personals a day, but the results have far exceeded expectations, from three to four columns having been received daily the past few weeks. This is a contest which would be productive of good results in any town, especially a summer resort.—C. L. Moody.

In the rush of wire news the interest-compelling power of old timers' reminiscences is too often forgotten. Much of the history of every community is left reposing in the heads of elderly folks who would gladly respond to a reporter's intelligent questioning. How did your town arrive at its present status? Who fought for the first street paving? Who put in the first water supply? Who showed faith in the community's future when there was no tangible evidence of the spark of progress? Pictures, of course, would improve the stories.—Fremont Kutnewsky, California.

"Our Little Readers at Home," weekly feature on the children's page, is a circulation asset of the London Daily Chronicle. Each week a small head of a boy or girl is run with a few words of description, dealing with pets, games, and so on. Children are invited to send in their photos with facts about themselves, and it is stated that the first to be taken from its envelope each Tuesday morning is published.—G. F. Wilkinson, London.

"The site of the first . . ." Get pictures of the sites of the first house, store, bank, church, school, etc., and run them in a series for your readers.—B. A. T., Springfield, Ohio.

So many newspapers throughout the country have radio stations that one idea now being used by the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram might be of value. Under a box head, "Today's Best Radio Letters," the most interesting comments of radio listeners are given. The names of fans from great distances as well as local names are of interest.—R.B.S.

Departments which are run regularly as a permanent part of the paper are likely to smack of similarity unless they are brightened up occasionally, with some new cut as a heading. Changing a column cut that heads an old department from time to time, gives to the department renewed life and vigor, and attracts new readers.—C.M.L., Seattle, Wash.

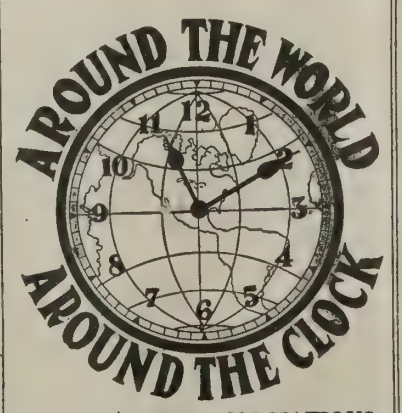
A full column of summarized news in six-point type has been found attractive for use in the same place each night either single or double column headed "Just a Moment." The feature proved such a hit that hundreds of protests were received when it was left out on one occasion. None of the items are longer than 12 words.—James D. O'Neil, Schenectady (N. Y.) Union Star.

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service

Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.

4 page ready-print color comics.
Write for samples and rates

NEA SERVICE INC. 1200 W. 3RD. STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO



COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS

International News Service

"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"

63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

BY UNITED PRESS

UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

Briggs' Feature Pages

Now while you are in the midst of your campaign to break previous lineage records, let us show you how we can increase your local lineage from 50,000 to 250,000 lines during the coming six months of this year.
We create NEW business from those who do not advertise regularly—manufacturers, industrial plants, wholesalers, jobbers and others without selling expense to you. WRITE

THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.
COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER
MEMPHIS • • TENN.

SMART AND SNAPPY!

SOU TO LOU

By CLARENCE GETTIER

Flapper chatter and peppy figures—furnished in 6 and 7 column strip form

The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

How To Play GOLF

By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS
Illustrated

For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

"Soch a Life"

By J. L. LEIBSON

A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in

One Thousand Word Stories

Illustrated by the well known artist
ALBERT LEVERING

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York

NEW ENGLAND—

—Still supreme in Industry and Commerce!

New England is still unquestionably a great industrial area. Decade after decade has seen new industrial centers springing up here and there, but New England is still in the front rank as regards high quality machinery of all kinds, requiring the need of skilled workers. Skilled workers mean high wages and high wages naturally result in greater buying power.

In addition, New England is easy to reach and its concentration makes it easy to cover. These are among the many reasons why national advertisers place New England at the head of the list, and choose the daily papers as the most direct method to reach the buying power of New England.

MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,852,356

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Attleboro Sun .....(E)	5,845	.03	.03
Boston Globe .....(M&E)	287,590	.50	.50
Boston Globe .....(S)	332,232	.55	.55
*Boston Transcript ....(E)	38,807	.20	.20
Boston Post .....(M)	377,443	.60	.60
Boston Post .....(S)	349,596	.55	.55
Fall River Herald-News (S)	23,150	.06	.06
Fitchburg Sentinel ...(E)	11,828	.06	.045
*Haverhill Gazette ....(E)	15,729	.065	.05
††Lynn Item .....(E)	16,699	.065	.05
††Lowell Courier-Citizen and Evening Leader ..(M&E)	21,918	.07	.07
New Bedford Standard Mercury (M&E)	33,321	.10	.10
New Bedford Sunday Standard (S)	28,806	.10	.10
North Adams Transcript (E)	9,918	.0425	.035
††Pittsfield Eagle .....(E)	17,011	.05	.05
Salem News .....(E)	21,398	.09	.07
††Taunton Gazette ....(E)	9,279	.05	.04
Worcester Telegram-Gazette (M&E)	92,314	.26	.23
Worcester Sunday Telegram (S)	51,096	.19	.16

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Population, 443,683

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Concord Monitor-Patroit (E)	5,215	.0375	.025
††Keene Sentinel .....(E)	3,887	.036	.023
Manchester Union Leader (M&E)	29,368	.13	.10

RHODE ISLAND—Population, 604,397

††Newport Daily News..(E)	6,271	.0336	.0293
Pawtucket Times .....(E)	27,849	.07	.07
Providence Bulletin ..(E)	68,815	.18	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(M)	36,416	.11	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(S)	70,518	.18	.18
Providence News ....(E)	29,123	.08	.08
Providence Tribune....(E)	21,961	.10	.09
Westerly Sun .....(E&S)	4,950	.025	.025
Woonsocket Call ....(E)	14,508	.05	.05

VERMONT—Population, 352,428

Barre Times .....(E)	7,112	.03	.025
††Bennington Banner ....(E)	3,144	.0125	.0125
Brattleboro Reformer ..(E)	3,370	.03	.0175
Burlington Free Press (M)	11,234	.05	.05
Rutland Herald .....(M)	11,038	.04	.04
††St. Johnsbury Caledonian-Record (E)	4,055	.03	.0175

CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,380,631

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Bridgeport Post-Telegram (E&M)	42,743	.15	.15
Bridgeport Post .....(S)	21,162	.10	.10
Hartford Courant ....(M)	33,003	.08	.08
Hartford Courant .....(S)	56,274	.11	.11
Hartford Times .....(E)	53,121	.13	.13
Middletown Press ....(E)	8,359	.0325	.03
††New Haven Register (E&S)	46,218	.14	.13
New London Day.....(E)	12,054	.07	.045
††Norwich Bulletin ....(M)	12,724	.07	.05
Norwalk Hour .....(E)	6,107	.04	.04
††South Norwalk Sentinel (E)	5,043	.04	.025
Stamford Advocate ..(E)	10,329	.05	.04

A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, March 31, 1926.

††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

(B) Combination rate Daily Journal and Eve. Bulletin.

87 per cent

of New York Telegram circulation today is either in those districts of Manhattan where the greatest purchasing ability is found, or in the business and financial districts where the Telegram is bought by busy business people bound home each evening to these home districts of upper Manhattan or to the similar close-in localities of the other boroughs
or the suburbs

Average net paid super-circulation for the months of May and June, 1926, was 216,147

THIS ISSUE: HOW KANSAS CITY STAR WAS SOLD TO STAFF

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING. NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 8 NEW YORK, JULY 17, 1926 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10c Per Copy

For the First Time—

An advertising mat service backed by the successful experience of The Chicago Tribune becomes available to ONE publisher in every town.

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

Ten years ago the Chicago Tribune started to service its advertisers with copy and illustrations. Its retail lineage then was 5,582,211 lines. Last year it was 16,153,941 lines. A 300% increase in 10 years!

A Service Based on a Newspaper's Experience

This same newspaper advertising service is now being offered for the first time to other newspapers in syndicated mat form. It may write a similar story for a paper in your town 10 years hence. Only one publication in each town can secure this service. Will it be yours or your competitor's?

This service, unlike newspaper services prepared by art studios and art schools, is a proven, tested means of satisfying advertisers. All illustrations, layouts, merchandising ideas and written copy are first used by advertisers in the Chicago Tribune, where they are tested for pulling power and results. Those that are most effective are then passed into the newspaper service and prepared for general distribution to one franchise-holding publication in each town.

Twenty-eight commercial artists and ten copy and merchandising men, each a specialist in retail advertising, are employed by the Tribune in the making of this service. Only the Chicago Tribune, with its tremendous and complex organization, could undertake to produce and sell a service of this scope and quality. The difference between Tribune Newspaper Advertising Service and others is simply this: Where others can afford to use only the product of beginners, spotted here and there with a better illustration or two, Tribune service will be the product of experts in retail advertising.

40 Pages of Mats Completely Covering the Needs of Every Newspaper

Women's ready to wear illustrations in twice the quantity ever offered in a general service before. Illustrations drawn from merchandise shown on Michigan Boulevard—famous for its styles. Mats that the ready-to-wear store in your town will jump at because they are authentic, timely and like the product sold here.

Men's Wear that is one step ahead of the parade, drawn in the finest treatments by creative artists.

A score of borders to help merchants make their ads "stand out." Actually more hand-lettered headings and prices than you have ever seen before.

Scores of illustrations and ads for such institutions as department stores, furniture stores, candy and refreshment shops, groceries, florists, beauty parlors, garages, restaurants, real estate, banks, investment houses, builders, cleaners and dyers, coal, plumbing, heating supplies, radio, sporting goods, leather goods, jewelry, credit stores, the apparel stores and the thousand and one other businesses that advertise regularly or seasonally or spasmodically in every newspaper.

Not Merely an Advertising Service But a Lineage Builder

Tribune advertising service does more than just supply the advertiser with the cuts and copy he wants. It supplies you with a wealth of ideas, all of them sound. The small advertiser using Tribune service increases his appropriation as his advertising begins to produce increasingly large revenue, due to up-to-the-minute cuts and copy and the basically sound merchandising ideas for the stimulation of sales. The newspaper becomes known as a good medium.

Classified Advertising Promotion Included at No Extra Cost

There's a wealth of additional revenue waiting for every newspaper that develops classified advertising. No matter how small your town, if readers are educated to use the classified columns, they will become popular and profitable. The Chicago Tribune will include in its advertising service the promotional copy and advertisements which have helped to develop its own great classified lineage. These same ads, adapted for your use, can achieve equally phenomenal results for you. In no other service can you get classified advertising promotion of such proven value—no matter how much you might be willing to pay. Here, we include free each month more than you can use.

Get the Exclusive Rights for Your Town Now

Write, or better still, wire for the rights for your town. Proof sheets of our first issue for use during August are being mailed today to the advertising manager of every newspaper in the United States, as listed in Editor & Publisher. Act ahead of the crowd and sew up the franchise for your town with your paper. Remember, this service is destined to become the greatest single force for getting and holding business. First come, first served! Address

Newspaper Advertising Service of

The Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

THE WATERTOWN STANDARD

Northern New York's Leading Newspaper

announces effective July 1st

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

NEW YORK CHICAGO BOSTON PHILADELPHIA

National Advertising Representatives

THE appointment of the Kelly-Smith Company as national advertising representatives marks another forward step by Northern New York's leading newspaper.

It means that from now on the Watertown Standard will be as thoroughly and adequately represented in the National Field as it is in its own Local Field.

Thus the dominant position of the Watertown Standard in Northern New York is being made impregnable.

WATERTOWN STANDARD

WATERTOWN, NEW YORK

Largest total circulation.
Largest home delivery.
Largest Department Store advertising volume.
Largest local advertising.
Largest classified volume.

Watertown, the hub of Northern New York's great dairy and paper manufacturing industries, a rich market for national advertisers.

NORTHERN NEW YORK'S LEADING NEWSPAPER

Editor & Publisher for July 3, 19

Again in JUNE

First!

The New York Herald Tribune is first in volume of national advertising lineage in the New York weekday morning field.

The Herald Tribune took first position for the month of March, 1926, and has held this position as well for April and May*

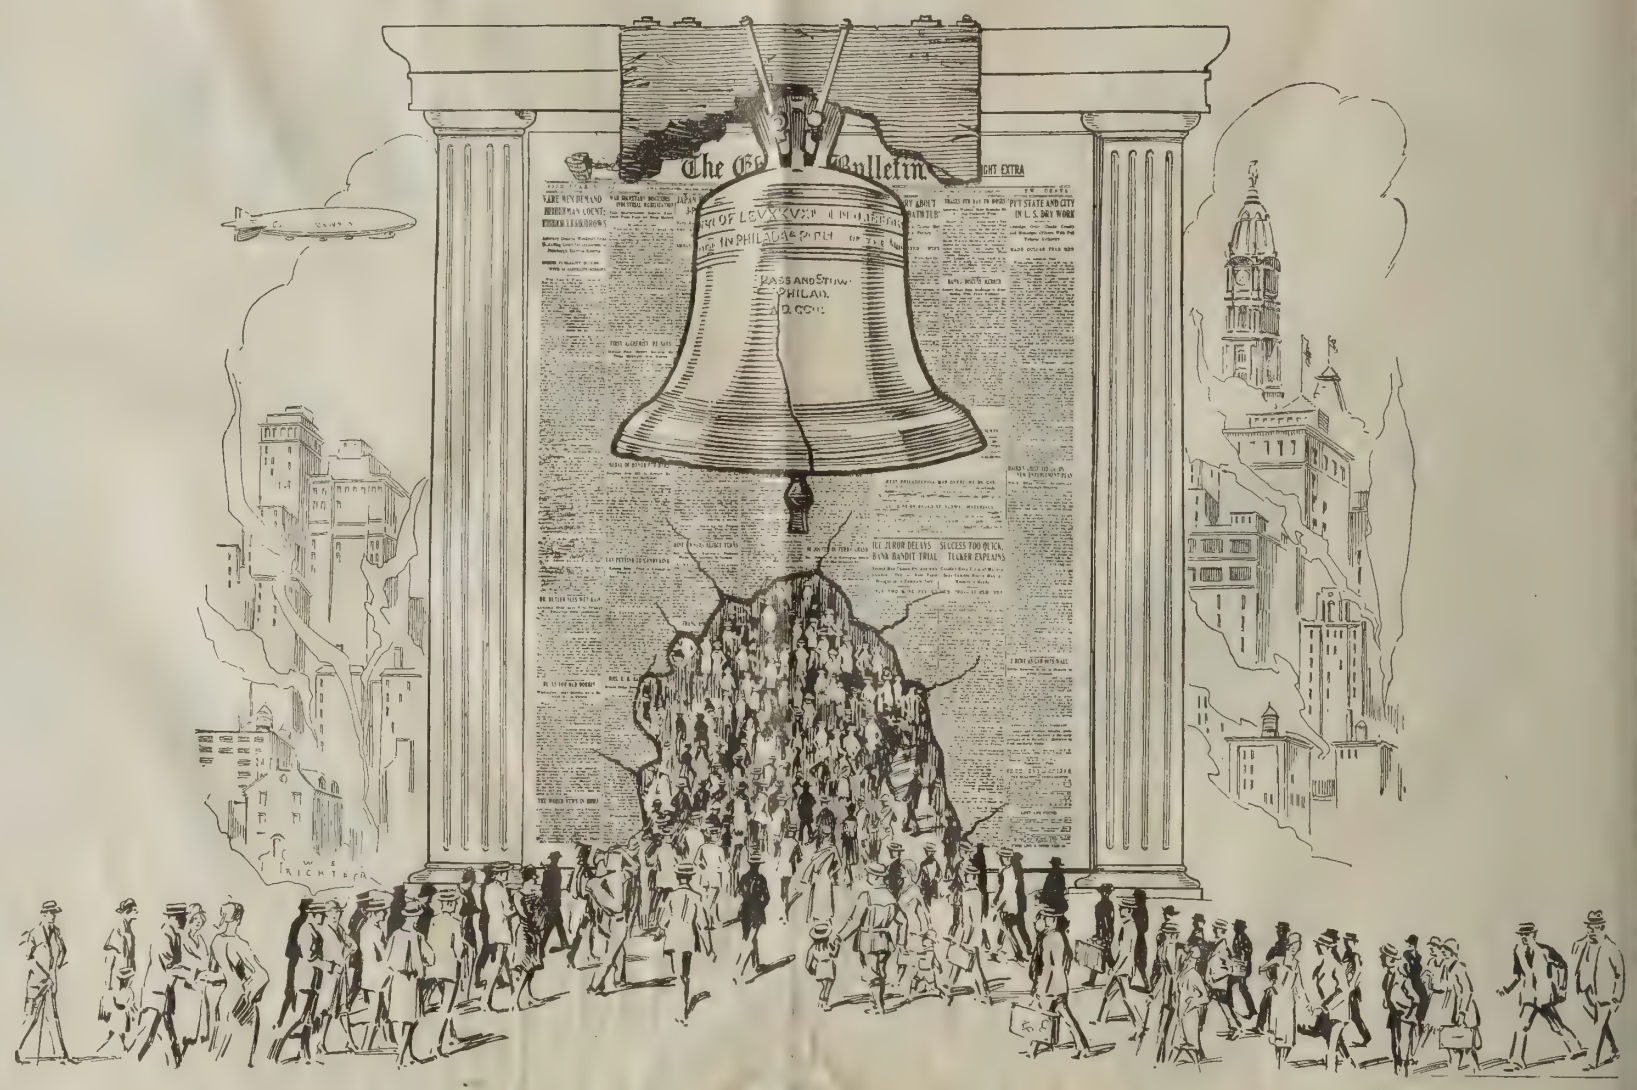
The Herald Tribune has entered its FOURTH CYCLE of SUCCESS.

The FIRST CYCLE came with the successful consolidation of the New York Herald with the New York Tribune.

The SECOND CYCLE appeared when the circulation of the consolidated Herald Tribune continued to show a steady growth—a growth which continues today.

The THIRD CYCLE was evident in 1925, when the Herald Tribune gained 3,218,864 lines of advertising — over 1,000,000 lines more than the combined gain of the Times, American and World.

The dominant position of the Herald Tribune in the New York morning field, as proved by its leadership in volume of national advertising published on weekdays, makes the Herald Tribune the logical keystone for any campaign designed to reach the influential people of New York, the world's greatest market.



*Figures compiled by N. Y. Eve. Post Statistical Dept

NEW YORK Herald Tribune

FIRST TO LAST — THE TRUTH: NEWS ~ EDITORIALS ~ ADVERTISEMENTS

CHICAGO Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Michigan Ave.
DETROIT Woodward & Kelly, Fine Arts Building
SAN FRANCISCO Thomas Em. ry, 618 Market Place
BOSTON Carroll Judson Swan, 933 Park Square Bldg

The Door to Philadelphia is through
The Evening Bulletin

HERE is your chance to analyze a great newspaper's circulation at first hand. When you come to Philadelphia you will see that The Bulletin is the door to the Philadelphia market.

In homes where you are entertained — wherever you go — you will notice that "In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin."

Philadelphia's city and suburban population exceeds 3,300,000.* A copy of The Evening Bulletin reaches nearly every family in Philadelphia, Camden and Suburbs daily.

533,169 copies daily

The Evening Bulletin.
PHILADELPHIA

*U. S. Census figures give 5.4 persons to each Philadelphia family. Divide this into the 3,300,000 population in the Philadelphia retail area and compare the result with The Bulletin's daily average circulation figures;—the result will show that with The Bulletin you can reach nearly every home in America's third largest market.

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Co.)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 | NEW YORK, JULY 17, 1926 | No. 8

Entire Staff Will Own Kansas City Star Sold By Nelson Trustees For $11,000,000

New Corporation Formed by Kirkwood and Chief Executives Has Its $2,500,000 Capital Oversubscribed Before Issue—Price, Second Highest in History, Includes Building and Realty

THE Kansas City Star, sold this week by the William Rockhill Nelson Trust to members of the Star organization headed by Irwin R. Kirkwood, president and publisher, for $11,000,000 the second great daily newspaper which has passed within seven months from the estate of its founder to the men who were associated with him in the upbuilding of the property. The price paid for the Kansas City Star, Kansas City Times and Weekly Kansas City Star included the building and realty upon which it stands and all current assets and liabilities, and it is exceeded in American newspaper history only by the price of $13,671,704.30 paid by Walter A. Strong and his associates for the Chicago Daily News last December.

Associated with Mr. Kirkwood will be the entire staff of the Star organization, chief of whom are: A. F. Seested, general manager; R. E. Stout, managing editor; George B. Longan, assistant managing editor; Henry J. Haskell, chief editorial writer; J. T. Barrons, advertising manager; Earl McCollum, assistant to the general manager, and Earl Robertson, foreign advertising manager.

Mr. Kirkwood will have control of the new company, but the stock plan will provide that the ownership of the Star and the Times will hereafter always remain within the organization. As stockholders pass out of their activities in the newspaper organization, their stock will be sold back to other members so that estates and those outside may never participate in the ownership of the properties.

Mr. Kirkwood, it was learned, will exercise control of the new corporation by ownership of 51 percent of the stock. In working out the plan for the organization, Mr. Kirkwood will carry deferred payments for members of the editorial and business office staffs on a 10 per cent basis. One-third cash will be the payment down, the rest to be paid over a period of eight years.

There were eight bidders for the properties, which include the Star, evening and Sunday; the Times, morning; and the Weekly Star.

The names of the bidders were withheld at their request, but it is known that seven of them were:

Frank E. Gannett, owner of the Rochester (N. Y.) Times-Union and several other New York State daily newspapers.

Senator Luke Lea, owner of the Nashville Tennessean.

Clyde M. Reed, owner of the Parsons (Kans.) Sun.

F. G. Bonfils, owner of the Denver (Col.) Post and formerly part owner of the Kansas City Post.

Walter S. Dickey, owner of the Kansas City Journal and Post.

Herschel V. Jones, owner of the Minneapolis Journal.

Mr. Kirkwood and his associates on the Star.

Irwin R. Kirkwood, president and publisher of the Kansas City Star

The appraised value of the plant, building, real estate and equipment is said to be about $3,500,000. No figure has been made available as to the value of goodwill upon which the trustees based the sale price.

The numerous elements which no doubt enter into the $7,500,000 balance of the price over the estimated physical asset value include book accounts, value of prepaid subscriptions, news and feature service contracts, Associated Press memberships, etc.

The Star's average net earnings of the past ten years are stated to have been $832,000, which capitalized on a 15 per cent basis, would place the goodwill valuation at approximately $5,546,600. Whether the trustees acted upon this or a similar figure is not known.

Announcement of the sale by the trustees issued July 12 after consideration of the several proposals, said:

"The University trustees make the announcement that Proposal No. 4 for the purchase of the newspaper properties owned by the William Rockhill Nelson Estate, made by Irwin R. Kirkwood on behalf of himself and associates, is accepted. This includes the real estate occupied by the Star building, but not the ground south threof.

"The price is $11,000,000, the purchaser assuming all current liabilities and accounts payable, all prepaid subscriptions and suits for libel, personal injury and all others arising from the operation of the newspapers. Purchaser also agrees to assume all existing editorial and commercial contracts and all unpaid taxes.

"The $11,000,000 is to be paid as follows:

"Five hundred thousand dollars deposited with the offer.

"Two million dollars on transfer of properties.

"Eight million five hundred thousand dollars at 5 per cent, payable not less than $675,000 per year in quarterly payments, said $675,000 to include interest, all secured by mortgage on the properties.

"The trustees appreciate the courtesies extended to them by the various bidders and wish to thank them for the offers they have submitted.

"William Volker, J. C. Nichols, Herbert H. Jones, University trustees, the William Rockhill Nelson Trust."

This was printed in the Times Tuesday morning. It was followed in the afternoon Star with this announcement of the new ownership's plans:

"With the sale of the Star to Irwin Kirkwood and associates, a new company is to be incorporated to take over the ownership and publication of the Star and Times. The company will be a Missouri corporation. It will be owned exclusively by Mr. Kirkwood and members of the Star staff.

"The company will be organized with $2,500,000 paid up capital stock. This stock will be sold to members of the organization. Under plans tentatively considered, the stock will be widely distributed within the organization, and the over-subscription already indicated will make an allotment of shares necessary. It will be strictly staff ownership. No stock will be offered for sale to the public.

"The plan of purchase has made the financing possible without the necessity of going outside for help. The new owners are under no financial obligations to anyone on earth. There are no strings on the Star.

"Under the new ownership the organization remains as it has been for many years: Irwin Kirkwood, publisher; A. F. Seested, general manager; Ralph Stout, managing editor; George B. Longan, assistant managing editor; H. J. Haskell, chief editorial writer.

"Arrangements for the details of the new organization are going forward as rapidly as possible."

The Star also printed the following editorial of policy:

"The Star remains the Star.

"That is the significance of the sale of this newspaper yesterday to the organization that has conducted it since the death of William Rockhill Nelson, its founder. The men now in control were Mr. Nelson's associates. Since his death they have carried on with no break in the essential policies he established.

"The record of the last eleven years, they feel, speaks more convincingly for the future than any promises. The genius of William R. Nelson made the Star an unusual newspaper—one of the outstanding newspapers of the country. His associates have sought to maintain these standards in an institution which was expanding and developing in every direction.

"The Star has stood for decency, for

(Continued on page 44)

G. C. WILLINGS RETIRES AS INTERTYPE V. P.

Will Return to His Former Home in Florida—Served Company 10 Years —Obtained Large Government Contract During War

G. C. Willings, vice-president of the Intertype Corporation, has announced his resignation to the Board of Directors to take effect at their pleasure but not later than Oct. 1. Mr. Willings's successor has not yet been named.

G. C. Willings

Mr. Willings will return to his former home in Florida where his personal interests have been requiring his attention for some time. He has been with the Intertype Corporation for nearly ten years. He joined the organization during the war, and was responsible for the obtaining and carrying out of Government contracts amounting to several millions of dollars. Since that time, as Executive Vice-President, he has devoted the greater part of his time to the sales organization.

H. R. Swartz, Chairman of the Board, said:

"I had known for some little time of Mr. Willings's desire to retire, and his resignation will no doubt cause regret to his many friends in the newspaper and printing industry, not only here, but abroad. He has been associated with me for nearly ten years and has been one of the main factors in placing the Intertype in the strong position it occupies today. His record of accomplishments is so well known that it hardly requires any comment from me."

WAGE SCALE DEADLOCK CONTINUES IN N. Y.

Typographical Union Number Six Refers Case to International Body—Lynch to Come to New York to Resume Negotiations

Publishers and typographers are still deadlocked in New York over the question of a new wage scale contract. The present contract expired July 1, but contains a continuing clause keeping the men at work.

Members of Typographical Union Number Six met Sunday at the Star Casino, New York, and after a quiet two hour session it was voted to refer the dispute to International headquarters in Indianapolis. It is understood James M. Lynch, union president, will shortly come to New York to resume negotiations with the Publishers' Association of the City of New York, which were adjourned July 7, after being in session since the first of June.

Leon J. Rouse, local union leader, reported to members at the Sunday meeting that the union scale committee, meeting with the owners' committee, under chairmanship of Fred A. Walker, New York Evening Telegram, were unable to reach any agreement.

Printers are asking an increase in wages of $6 a week and a six and a half hour day. The owners counter with request for a $2.40 a week reduction and return to the eight hour shifts.

Laredo Publisher Honored

A banquet recently was given by his friends at Laredo, Tex., in honor of Justo Penn, retiring publisher of the Laredo Daily Times. J. E. Hanway, of the Casper (Wyo.) Herald and Tribune, who purchased the Times, has taken charge as editor and president. J. B. Griffith is associate editor.

DICKEY BID $8,001,000 CASH

Journal-Post Owner Offered Also $100,000 Rent for Star Plant

Over the name of Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post and one of the bidders for the Star, the Post last Tuesday ran the following statement:

"Believing that the public is entitled to full and complete information concerning the sale of the Kansas City Star, the Journal-Post herewith publishes in full the bid of its owner and editor, Walter S. Dickey.

"Weeks ago in discussing the impending sale, the Journal-Post stated that the Star was worth at least $10,000,000.

"Mr. Dickey's bid was in excess of this figure. He made an outright offer of $8,001,000 in cash for the newspaper property exclusive of the ground and building.

"In addition, he offered $100,000 a year for a twenty-year lease on the ground and building, with an option to buy them for the sum of $2,000,000.

"One hundred thousand dollars, the annual rental capitalized at 4 per cent, would give a valuation of $2,500,000 for ground and building, which added to his offer for the property exclusive of the real estate would make his total bid the equivalent of $10,501,000. If the $100,000 were capitalized at 5 per cent the total bid was the equivalent of $10,001,000."

A. P. STARTS PICTURE SERVICE TO MEMBERS

Press Association Now Mailing Photographs or Mats with Obits—New Members Elected — Traffic Changes Announced

Associated Press is now distributing pictures as well as news.

So far the "A. P. Biography Picture Service," as it is called, is concerned only with portraits mailed out as glossy prints or mats with advance obituaries. N. A. Huse, formerly with the United Press, is in charge. He said about 450 members were participating in the new service.

It is the first time in the co-operative news gathering association's history that any consideration has been given to picture distribution. Heretofore, members relied on commercial organizations.

Milton Garges, traffic superintendent, this week announced reorganization of the traffic department for the purpose of increasing its efficiency.

H. M. Biolo has been appointed supervisor of automatics; E. T. Wolford, supervisor of operating personnel; C. A. Price, supervisor of promotion division; W. J. McCambridge, supervisor of wire facilities and assessment division; M. Fox, supervisor of market and racing division; A. J. Culbertson, supervisor of statistics and costs. All are members of New York headquarters office.

New members of the A. P. announced this week in New York included: Perry (Okla.) Journal; Childress (Tex.) Index; Little Falls (Minn.) Daily Transcript; Kingston (N. Y.) Daily Freeman, effective Sept. 1; Sunbury (Pa.) Daily.

Following papers are being transferred from pony service to leased wire: Laredo (Tex.) Times; Monterey (Cal.) Herald; Valdosta (Ga.) State Times; and Shamokin (Pa.) Daily News, effective Aug. 16.

The A. P. has started a double night printer circuit from Detroit to Grand Rapids, serving the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald; and the Lansing (Mich.) State Journal.

Mrs. Parks Named Treasurer

The Poughkeepsie Publishing Corporation has elected Mrs. Arthur A. Parks treasurer of the company to succeed her husband who died last week. The Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Evening Star and Enterprise will be continued under the same management.

$3,000,000 LIBEL SUIT AGAINST K. C. STAR

Former Missouri Governor Also Named in Action Brought by W. S. Dickey, Journal-Post Owner Based on Political Story in Times

Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, filed a libel suit for $3,000,000, July 8, against the executives of the Kansas City Star and Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri.

The suit is based upon an article printed in the Kansas City Times, the morning edition of the Star, July 7. Mr. Dickey asks $1,000,000 actual and $2,000,000 punitive damages.

The officials of the Star made defendants are: Irwin Kirkwood, editor; August F. Seested, general manager; Henry J. Haskell, associate editor; Ralph Stout, managing editor; George B. Longan, assistant managing editor.

The article in question quoted former Governor Hyde as declaring at a political meeting that Mr. Dickey was supporting two candidates for the senate, a wet in St. Louis and a dry in Kansas City.

Mr. Dickey's petition asserts he was made the subject of other personal abuse in the story and charges the defendants with "contriving, designing and intending to ruin plaintiff in the estimation of his friends and acquaintances and intending to provoke him to wrath and to expose him to public hatred, contempt and ridicule and to deprive him of the benefits of public confidence and social intercourse."

Mr. Dickey's newspaper is supporting David M. Proctor, dry candidate for the Republican nomination as United States senator from Missouri.

Col. George H. English was named special commissioner by Judge O. A. Lucas to hear the suit.

Taking of depositions in the case will start Saturday, July 17, at 10 o'clock in the office of Col. English.

I. N. Watson and Samuel Sawyer are attorneys for the defendants. P. E. Reeder is attorney for the plaintiff.

Depositions in the suit were taken Tuesday, July 13.

"ALL O. K." SAYS VANDERBILT

Continental Specialists Improve Condition of His Jaw

"I'm all O. K.," Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., informed his New York office in a letter received from Europe last week. He was referring to the condition of his jaw, for the treatment of which he went abroad June 12. Infection following a World War injury is causing him considerable trouble.

Mr. Vanderbilt declared he had left Paris for Switzerland to consult a famous specialist there and was dubious about the exact date of his homecoming. He had planned to remain away about four weeks. Dudley Field Malone, his attorney, who stood by him in the recent financial crash of Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., is also in Europe.

"Mr. Vanderbilt plans to re-enter newspaper work in the United States as soon as he is able," his New York secretary told Editor & Publisher.

"ON-TO-DENVER" CRY BEGINS

Clubs of International Advertising Association Preparing for 1927

The "On-to-Denver" cry has already begun.

Advertising clubs in many cities of the country are now laying plans to send delegates to the Rocky Mountain section next summer, according to New York headquarters of the International Advertising Association.

Ralph H. Faxon, president of the Denver Advertising Club, has appointed John E. Moorhead, of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company, chairman of the local program committee as the first step towards the annual convention in Denver in 1927.

Headquarters of I. A. A. recently se cut inquiries regarding preferences f dates. The majority of replies receiv up to this week favor some time betwe the middle of June and the first of Jul

THREE YOUNG EDITOR FOR CLEVELAND PRES

Thackrey, 24, Named Editor; Seltze 28, Chief Editorial Writer; Sorrells, 30, Managing Editor—Foster Joins Parker and Cook

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Cleveland, Ohio, July 15.—A nouncement was made this week of t appointment of Ted O. Thackrey as e tor of the Cleveland Press, a Scripp Howard newspaper.

Youth is given recognition in his a pointment as well as in the appointme by Thackrey of Louis B. Seltzer as ch editorial writer and of John H. Sorre as managing editor.

Thackrey is 24. Seltzer is 28. S rells is 30. Thackrey was elevated fr the position of managing editor. He one of the youngest executives in Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers

He was a copy boy on the Kansas C (Kan.) Gazette-Globe, before going high school. Later he served as co boy and cub reporter on the Kansas C Journal, as reporter on the Kansas C Star, as editor, janitor and office boy the Manhattan (Kan.) Mercury, as st sport and market editor on the Top Daily Capital, as copyreader on the K sas City Star, night editor of the As ciated Press Bureau at Oklahoma C reporter on the Daily Oklahoman, ne editor of the Topeka State Journal, write man and finally managing editor the Cleveland Press.

His newspaper career was interru for a year, during which he served the Royal Air Force. At 15, he made a lieutenant in the Canadian ing Service. Four years ago he married to Miss Ethelyn Perkins Kansas City, Kan.

Seltzer was born, reared and educa in Cleveland. He became an office for a Cleveland newspaper when he 14. At 16 he was an assistant Sun editor, was contributing to several tional magazines and had become the ductor of a column of petty comm on news events. At 22 he became editor of the Cleveland Press, then sistant managing editor, political ed and served at various times as star porter.

He is the son of Charles Alden Selt noted author, writer of Western ta The younger Seltzer is the author o half dozen short stories for popular tion magazines and a contributor of ticles on politics, government and ta tion matters, for other publications. married when he was earning $7 a w He has two children, a boy of 11 a girl of 7.

Sorrells is 30. He was reared in H Bluff, Ark. He attended public sch there and for three years was a stu at Washington & Lee University, Lexi ton, Va. He was an instructor in Officers Training Camp in the war spent 18 months overseas. He be his newspaper career at Pine Bluff, st ing as cub reporter on the Graphic. acted as reporter, editorial writer, adv tising business manager and editor of Graphic. He also worked in Oklah City and Fort Worth, Texas. He been news editor of the Cleveland P since September, 1925. He is mar and has two children.

J. W. Foster, who has been chief torial writer of the Press, now beco an assistant to G. B. Parker, gen editorial executive of the Scripps-H ard newspapers and E. E. Cook, edi in-chief of the Scripps-Howard Cen group. Foster is a native of Texas. has been with the Scripps-Howard ganization for 25 years. For a pe he wrote under the name of J Wharton.

T—is for Truth—
"T" by Florence E. Shindler,
Who is hot on the trail of the crook and the swindler.

R—is for Robbers—
"R"—Holland, Lou E;
He's after them, too,
With a sharp A-D-V.

U—is for Us—
"U"—Hazel E. Barrow
Thinks fake advertisers
Are thin, slim and narrow.

T—What another!
"T"—Marshall N. Dana;
When you don't tell the truth,
Why, it gives him a pain
—ah!

H—is for Honesty—
"H" by Don E. Gilman;
When HE hears a lie,
Why, it makes him an ill man!

These delegates to the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs convention in San Francisco last week practiced dactylology—sign language—to spell their slogan "Truth" for the San Francisco Examiner photographer. Florence E. Shindler was elected a vice-president from Los Angeles. Lou E. Holland is the president of the National Better Business Bureau; Hazel E. Barrow is a coast advertising woman; Marshall Dana is associate editor of the Portland (Ore.) Journal and newly elected president of the Coast Ad Clubs; Don E. Gilman is Pacific Coast advertising manager of the Christian Science Monitor, and retiring president of the Coast Clubs.

DANA, PORTLAND EDITOR, NEW CHIEF OF PACIFIC COAST AD CLUBS

Portland Gets 1927 Meeting—Los Angeles Club Wins Palin Cup—Gilman and Smith Given Watches—Convention Called "Snappiest Ever"

CALLED "the brainiest, snappiest" San Francisco convention in years, the twenty-third annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs' Association closed Thursday, July 8, with the convention banquet and dance, at which new officers for the year were feted.

The 1927 convention city was officially selected as Portland, Ore., and the choice of Marshall N. Dana, associate editor, Portland (Ore.) Journal, as president, was confirmed by the full delegation.

Raymond P. Kelley of Spokane was re-elected vice-president for the territory of Eastern Washington; Clinton E. Reynolds of Tacoma, vice-president of the territory of Western Washington to succeed Tom Jones Parry of Seattle; Thomas King of Portland, vice-president for the territory of Oregon; Raymond Brown, territorial secretary of Hawaii, was elected vice-president for the territory represented by Northern California and Hawaii; Thomas H. Shore of San Diego was re-elected vice-president for the territory of Southern California, and Florence Shindler of Los Angeles was elected vice-president to represent the women of Los Angeles.

Praising him for his untiring work as the 1926 president of the P. C. A. C. A., the delegates, in their annual banquet in the St. Francis hotel, presented Don E. Gilman, San Francisco, with a valuable gold watch and chain.

"The convention's reaction to our making it work hard and study, rather than play, as is usual," Gilman said, "has been most satisfactory. The four days of this convention have been four days of intensive application to the problems that affect the business men of the Pacific Coast.

"Advertising men can and will help solve the problems of over-production, limited markets and sales competition, and during this convention especial emphasis has been laid upon ways and means of solution."

Advertising men from coast cities which advertise their attractions in national magazines, forming the "Pacific Coast Empire Association," met Thursday in the final hours of the convention to check their first six months' advertising against tourists and new industries which have thereby been drawn to the coast. It was decided, in view of favorable results, to continue the work of the association for another year and to devote 15 per cent of all advertising space to advertising the coast, irrespective of cities.

The following executive committee was named: Paul Shoup, San Francisco; Harry Chandler, publisher, Los Angeles Times; David Whitcomb, Seattle. In attendance were Don Francisco, Los Angeles; David Whitcomb; Roy Bishop, San Francisco; J. A. Eves, Tacoma; Harlan I. Peyton, Spokane; O. W. Mielke, Portland; J. R. Knowland, Oakland, and Gov. W. R. Farrington, of Hawaii.

Members of the Los Angeles delegation won the huge silver cup given by G. Herb Palin, advertising slogan writer, for the highest achievement during the year.

Irving R. Smith, advertising manager of the Los Angeles Times and retiring president of the Los Angeles Advertising Club, was presented a platinum watch by the Los Angeles delegates in recognition of his services to the club. Mrs. Smith was made the recipient of a pair of silver candlesticks. The presentations were made by J. G. Jeffrey, one of the newly elected vice-presidents of the Los Angeles Advertising Club.

More than half of the 1,000 delegates participated in a golf tournament on Friday, following the close of the convention, while non-players and wives of delegates were taken on sightseeing tours as guests of the San Francisco Advertising Club.

Trophies for excellence in varied branches of advertising were awarded during the convention as follows:

Better Business Bureau Accomplishment—Fresno Advertising Club.
Truth Idea in Advertising—Bon Marche, Seattle, Seattle, Wash.
Complete Campaign by Manufacturer—W. P. Fuller, Johnson Ayres Agency, San Francisco.
Department Store Advertising—White House, San Francisco.
Specialty Shop Advertising—Musa Shiya, Honolulu.
Financial Advertising—Bank of Italy, San Francisco.
Direct Mail Advertising—Mayers Company, Los Angeles.
Original Commercial Art—Otto Hassenmyer, San Francisco.
Photographic Illustrations in Advertising—Lothers and Young, San Francisco.
Evergreen Playground by Puget Sounders and British Columbians—Botsford, Constantine Agency, Seattle.
Advertising Agency Campaign for Client—Del Monte, H. K. McCann Agency.
Outdoor Advertising—Foster & Kleiber, Los Angeles.
Street Car Advertising—Haas Baruch Co., Los Angeles.
Co-operative Market Advertising—Sunmaid Raisins, Fresno.
Public Utility Advertising—Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, Los Angeles.
Letter Advertising—McCord Advertising Co., Long Branch.
Typographical Composition—Oakland Branch, San Francisco Monotype Composition Co.
Campaign Farm Papers—Caterpillar Tractors, K. L. Hamman, Oakland.
Newspaper Advertising in National Campaign—Post Intelligencer, Seattle.
Agency Campaign for Client in Magazines—Jantzen Knitting Mills, Portland.
Typefounders Decorative Material—Johnck Kibby Co., San Francisco.
Commercial Printing—H. S. Crocker Co., San Francisco.
Store Display Advertising, Schmidt Litho. Company, San Francisco.
The committee on awards was as follows: Dave S. Mathews, Martha K. Lock, Walter J. Mann, Charles Stafford Duncan.

STUNTS CONTEST

For clubs of 300 members and up:
Seattle Advertising Club,
"When Doctors Disagree."
For clubs of 299 members and under:
Tacoma Girls' Junior Advertising Club,
"The Ad-Maid Cinderella."

Governor and Mrs. Wallace R. Farrington, of Hawaii, wearing leis at Coast Advertising Clubs Convention.

COAST CLASSIFIED MEN ELECT H. J. HARRISON

S. F. Daily News Man President of Coast Ad Clubs Departmental—Mrs. Robertson Wins Trophy for Speech

The first Classified Advertising Conference on the Pacific Coast was held as a departmental of the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs' Convention in San Francisco, July 7, managers from Western dailies as far apart as the Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican and the Bremerton (Wash.) Searchlight attending.

The first act of the departmental chairman, J. A. McDonald, of the Oakland Tribune, was to propose a permanent organization and open nominations of officers for the ensuing year. H. J. Harrison, San Francisco Daily News, was

(Continued on page 48)

EDITOR FACES JAIL IN QUEER CONTEMPT CASE

Made Penniless by Alleged Political Tyranny, Unable to Appeal to Supreme Court—Indiana Courts Rule Truth No Justification—Newspapers Expose Remarkable Facts

UNLESS funds can be raised for his defense George R. Dale, editor of the Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, a weekly paper, will serve a 90 day term in the State Penal Farm and pay a fine of $400 for alleged contempt of court.

The man has exhausted his resources in his fight and is penniless. His home, his paper and a $15,000 bank balance have been wiped out. He is the father of seven children, ages ranging from two to 24 years. He wanted to carry his case to the Supreme Court of United States on the constitutional ground that truth is justification for the publication of political information—denied by the Supreme Court of Indiana following the man's conviction by Judge Clarence W. Dearth.

George R. Dale

The Dale case has aroused national indignation. The Chicago Tribune, New York World and other newspapers have been featuring it this week. It is the most sensational Ku Klux Klan case that has ever involved a newspaper man.

For four years Dale has been fighting the Klan in a country that was almost completely committed to the hooded order. The local judge who sentenced him was elected by the Klan vote. The prosecutor and other local officials whom he condemned are Klansmen. The Post-Democrat is a fighting paper.

Editor Dale told his story this week in an appeal to the American people for justice. His statement follows:

"Facing a ninety-day sentence of imprisonment on the State Penal Farm at Putnamville, imposed by a Klan Judge because of the publication of an alleged contemptuous editorial, I am submitting my case to the greatest tribunal on earth, the people of America.

"Indiana four years ago became infested with the Klan plague. My Muncie newspaper, the Post-Democrat, fought the Klan from its inception, but nothing could stay the epidemic. Muncie became the hotbed of the Klan and the incubator of Kleagles who were sent out to sow dissension, strife and hatred in other communities.

"The administration of the affairs of the City of Muncie and Delaware County was taken over bodily by the Klan, practically every public official becoming a member of the vicious conspiracy to convert the Constitution of of Indiana and the Constitution of the United States into a mere scrap of paper.

"In March, 1922, while walking on a public street in Muncie, in company with my eighteen-year-old son, I was attacked by three black-masked armed Klansmen. A battle followed, and through sheer luck I was enabled to wrest a revolver from one of the men and shot him through the abdomen.

"Another then blackjacked me, and my son was terribly beaten over the head by the third miscreant. Hastily throwing their wounded comrade into their closed automobile, the men drove away.

"Although it is practically certain that the man who was shot died from the effects of the wound, the affair is still shrouded in mystery.

"The Grand Jury was in session at the time, but the Prosecuting Attorney, a member of the Klan and later an Ohio organizer of the order, made no effort whatever to investigate, and three policemen who made an honest effort to run down the criminals were discharged from the force.

"The Mayor, then a Klansman, was given orders in a Klan meeting to dismiss the three officers. These orders were given by the Prosecuting Attorney and a Deputy United States Attorney, who was later dismissed from the Federal service for this act.

"The Klan Sheriff named 400 deputies, all Klansmen, who openly patrolled the streets wearing automatics in armpit and side holsters. My life was threatened every day because of the Klan exposures in my newspaper.

"I was compelled to go armed and was arrested for carrying a concealed weapon and convicted by a Klan jury.

"I was next arrested on a framed up liquor charge on an indictment returned by a Klan jury. I charged a frame-up and declared that the Judge, Grand Jury, Jury Commissioners, Prosecutor, Sheriff and city police belonged to the Klan.

"For publishing this truthful editorial I was cited for contempt and in the presence of a cheering mob of Klansmen and Klanswomen who packed the courtroom to the doors, was sentenced to the Penal Farm for ninety days and fined $500.

"I was thrown in jail and kept there three days before bond was accepted. I was released and immediately rearrested. The court held the answer in the first contempt case to be direct contempt.

"Another three months' prison farm sentence and another $500 fine was the result.

"I remained in jail nine days and was then taken to the State Penal Farm and put to work in a tile ditch. Three days later I was released by a Supreme Court order, but during my absence from Muncie was again indicted, this time for libeling the distributor of a Klan newspaper. Later I was convicted by a Klan jury on the libeling charge and given another five-month sentence.

"The cases were all appealed. One of the contempt charges was reversed and the other affirmed. The libel case is still before the Supreme Court.

"In my verified answer in the case which was affirmed I averred the truth of the editorial and offered to prove it in court. This was denied and the Supreme Court declared the truth was no defense.

"I am now seeking a review of this case before the United States Supreme Court. If the truth is no defense the press of America is in a strained position."

Orville Dwyer, writing for the Chicago Tribune, revealed the Indiana Supreme Court's decision, as follows:

"Appellant says in his answer that the statements made in the alleged contemptuous article are true. . . . It is not a justification for contempt . . . even though it be shown that the article published were true, if it in any way hindered the orderly process of the court and brought it into contempt before the people.

"It is no excuse for one charged with criminal contempt predicated upon an article published in a newspaper that the article in all respects was true. . . . The truth of an article is not a matter of defense, neither is it a defense to show that there was no intent to commit contempt. Such answer is insufficient to purge the contemnor of guilt."

Attorney William V. Rooker, after the decision was made, sought by a petition to amend the petition of errors originally filed, to get a rehearing. In this petition he set forth that the original sentence was wrong and unlawful since it had been passed upon Dale at a time when, this petition contended, the law had broken down in Muncie and Delaware county, when neither the law of Indiana nor the constitution of the United States was functioning.

The attorney set forth that the Ku Klux Klan had set up a super government not based on any law, and he set forth that Judge Dearth, at the time was not a judge of the court because his Klan oath superseded his oath of office.

Attorney Rooker is going ahead with his preparations to take the case up to the United States Supreme Court. If funds are forthcoming it will be taken up. If not then Dale must go to the Penal Farm.

Some efforts have been made in Indiana to raise the money, but so far not much success is promised. All who have any hand in the case, and many are interested, say the Klan is too strong in Delaware County.

EDITOR DALE'S ATTORNEY OUTLINES LEGAL ASPECTS OF CASE

By WILLIAM V. ROOKER

Indianapolis Attorney, Counsel for George R. Dale

Written for Editor & Publisher, by request of the editor

THE facts in the case of George R. Dale, editor of the Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat are as follows: Mr. Dale was committed to jail in Delaware County on the order of Judge Clarence W. Dearth for the publication of an editorial charging that the court and the grand jury were controlled by the Ku Klux Klan.

The editorial was based upon Mr. Dale's indictment on the charge of violation of the prohibition laws. The editor asserted that his indictment was the result of a Klan conspiracy and later the indictment was dismissed for lack of evidence. Dale's editorial appeared pending the indictment.

On information filed by the prosecuting attorney the editorial was exhibited to the court and a writ of attachment was sought. The information was sustained and Dale was found guilty of contempt of court. The defendant in his answer to the contempt charge had pleaded the truth as justification and this plea, the judge held, also constituted contempt and for its presentation to the court Mr. Dale was convicted, fined $400, and ordered committed to prison for 90 days.

When the case was appealed to the Indiana Supreme Court the conviction based on the defense plea of justification was vacated, but the other conviction, based upon the publication of the editorial, was sustained.

In its opinion and judgment the Supreme Court held that the editorial tended to prejudice the court's decision of a pending case and that truth of allegations in an editorial was not a defense. The Supreme Court also held that the trial court had proceeded in the exercise of an inherent power in the case against Dale.

Obviously, the law questions for review are reducible to two categories: (1) Those bearing on inherent judicial power and (2) those bearing upon denial of truth as a defense. In seeking relief upon review in the United States Supreme Court the preliminary issue, in order to establish jurisdiction, is: (1) must federal questions appear in the record as a matter of fact or (2) may federal questions appear in the record as a matter of law.

Mr. Dale did not set up his federal rights as a matter of fact but contends they appear as a matter of law. A case written by Mr. Justice Holmes appears to hold that the issue of a federal right may appear in a record as a matter of law.

On entering Mr. Dale's service I petitioned the State Supreme Court to reopen the case and admit presentation of the federal questions as a matter of fact, if the court should hold the questions were not already in the record as a matter of law. The court denied this petition on the ground that it came too late, but the court made the petition a part of the record in the case.

Mr. Dale's long struggle to rescue his community from Klan control has reduced him to penury. If he can raise money to defray costs and expenses an attempt will be made to have the United States Supreme Court review the case. Otherwise, his only possible relief will be pardon and that relief will allow the judgment of the State Supreme Court to remain effective as a precedent.

"MISS AUSTRALIA" PLANS VISIT

Sydney Guardian Is Host to "Most Beautiful Girl" on U. S. Tour

Miss Beryl Mills, selected by a committee of artists as the most beautiful girl in Australia, will leave Sydney July 28, for a three months' tour of the United States, her expenses being paid by Smith's Weekly and the Daily Guardian of Sydney. Landing at a Pacific port, Miss Mills will travel eastward until she arrives in Atlantic City at the time of the annual "Miss America" tournament. It is understood that she will not participate in the American competition.

Miss Mills was selected after a six months' contest by the Sydney papers, the Guardian printing two photographs daily. She is 19 years old, a graduate of Perth University, where she starred as hockey player and swimmer.

Fletcher Catches Huge Bass

Fred C. Fletcher, rod and gun editor, New York Herald Tribune, caught a 49¾ pound channel bass at Chincoteague, Va., July 7. Fletcher presented the fish to Porter Caruthers, assistant business manager of the Herald Tribune, who turned it over to the New York Advertising Club. The bass was served at luncheon at the Advertising Club on Monday, July 12 to about 60 men.

KERNEY TELLS WILSON'S RELATIONS WITH PRESS

Trenton Editor's Book on War President Cites Many Newspaper Incidents—His Gubernatorial Candidacy Forced by Newark News—Few Washington Writers in His Confidence

By JAMES MELVIN LEE
Director, Department of Journalism, New York University

MANY interesting sidelights on the late President Woodrow Wilson's relation with the press during his pre-Presidential days and during his eight years at the White House are contained in "The Political Education of Woodrow Wilson," written by James Kerney, editor and publisher of the Trenton (N. J.) Times and State-Gazette. The volume has just been issued by the Century Company.

Kerney's book is the most illuminating volume about Wilson that has appeared. He maintained Wilson's confidence from the first Trenton tip until the obit was penned in Washington—something unusual for a newspaper man. Woodrow Wilson felt as free to ask a publisher to fire a reporter as he did to request the resignation of a cabinet officer. Consequently, few, if any, of the newspaper men, with the exception of Kerney, ever finished an assignment.

Mr. Kerney personally covered Wilson's New Jersey political course and was often a special correspondent for the postgraduate course at Washington. Throughout the volume he is both a reporter and an interpreter of the political progress made by Woodrow Wilson. He lets his story run for 500 pages.

Critical appreciation of "The Political Education of Woodrow Wilson" belongs to the literary editor. Obviously I am limited in my comment to those passages relating to Wilson and his relations to the press.

Wilson was especially fortunate in magazine friendships. Walter H. Page, who edited the World's Work, was both counsellor and friend. Robert Bridges, who edited Scribner's, had been a student of Wilson's at Princeton. Richard Watson Gilder, intimate friend of Grover Cleveland and editor of The Century, was favorably disposed to Wilson. Colonel Harvey, who was in executive control of both Harper's Weekly and Harper's Monthly, was also editor and owner of The North American Review. It was Harvey who first in an editorial way suggested Woodrow Wilson for President of the United States. This magazine backing is emphasized in the second chapter of the book.

To the Newark Evening News credit is given for forcing a decision of whether Wilson would accept the nomination to head the gubernatorial ticket in New Jersey (page 47). Edward W. Scudder, editor of the News, had been a student under Wilson at Princeton. (page 82). On the page last mentioned Wilson is quoted as saying that "the only newspaper he found time to read was the New York Evening Post." It would be interesting to know how the Evening Post was enlisted to "help convert Wilson to stand by the primary expression for Martine." The Evening Post gets another puff (page 131).

The assertion is made (page 158) that the Trenton True American was kept alive for the purpose of helping to stimulate the Wilson campaign. An interesting controversy with Colonel Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal is given somewhat in detail (page 170). A bill of particulars would be interesting on how Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, "found many ways of being helpful" (page 151). Mention is made of the fact that in the closing days at Trenton Wilson displayed unusual irritation at the newspapers and transformed his former policy from pitiless publicity to the closed door (page 262).

At both Trenton and Washington, according to Kerney, Tumulty was the shock-absorber in handling the press. It was Tumulty who at Wilson's suggestion penned those notes of appreciation to newspaper editors. The assertion is made (page 264) that Wilson until he became governor had never been much of a reader of daily newspapers. To understand Wilson's attitude toward the press the speech which he once gave to correspondents (page 329) might well be re-read.

Kerney thus sums up the situation:

> At Washington, Wilson originated the system of news-gathering by conference; that is, daily or bi-weekly meetings with the President and cabinet officers for the correspondents. I was at the first gathering. Wilson, with a stenographer at his elbow to record all questions and answers, stood at his desk and awaited the firing. It did not prove a very fruitful way of news-gathering, and at the first opportunity he abandoned the idea. For the major portion of his two terms in the White House he was seen less by newspaper people and confided less in them than any President since Cleveland or Harrison. Wilson did not enjoy the conferences with the correspondents. They had to fence with him all the time, and whether they got any information was a matter of luck in pot-shotting. There was always a very cool reserve, and Wilson gave the impression that he was the best judge of what was good for the newspapers to have. He was saving mankind, and he would let the world know about it in his own good time. He certainly did not believe in government by newspapers, and it was his policy that the newspapers should not know of any transaction until it was an accomplished fact. Back of his attitude of reserve there seemed to be a mistrust of newspapers, not so much the correspondents or reporters, but the owners, who already had too much power for selfish purposes and needed to be put back in their proper places.

James Kerney

While speaking of newspapers I may say that Kerney did excellent work during the eight months of 1918 when he was in Europe as Director of American Information. It was no easy task to interpret to Europe the idealism of Wilson and the magnitude of the American war effort (see insert between page 416 and 417). About the only way Kerney could get a comprehensive review of the magnitude of American preparations to Europe centers was through the London Times owned by Lord Northcliffe. In this work he was ably assisted by Sir Pomeroy Burton, an old New York newspaper man.

One of the most interesting sections of the book is where J. Fred Essary, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, was chosen as an unofficial spokesman to acquaint Vice President Marshall with the call that might be made on him at any moment to take the Presidential oath after Wilson had been found in a semi-conscious condition, prostrate on the bathroom floor of the White House. For the details of this historic incident Kerney gives credit to Richard V. Oulahan, editorial director of the Washington bureau of the New York Times.

Wilson in the days when he taught at Wesleyan University was especially interested in the periodical press. To it he was an occasional contributor. During the years that he resided at Middletown, Conn., he was a great reader of New York papers. Just what caused him to lose interest in the newspaper press Mr. Kerney does not say. Frankly, I was hoping that the book would say something about that composite newspaper made up from clippings from some twenty odd newspapers throughout the United States and placed before Wilson by Tumulty. From Tumulty I once tried to get a list of those papers that were so extensively clipped for the President's use, but for "reasons of State"—or something like that—the list never came through.

Wilson was especially fortunate in the way news about himself was handled not only by the newspapers but also by the magazines. Walter H. Page, as Mr. Kerney points out (page 131), had William Bayard Hale write a series of articles for The World's Work and gave his reasons as follows: "The New York Evening Post still praises you and I observe that The Commoner decorates you. These are bad omens and I think it is high time some corrective influences were set at work." Page guaranteed what appeared in The World's Work was "warranted to keep the witches off and to restore a proper balance." Hale did a first-class publicity job for Wilson and really became the successor of Harvey as Chief of the Propaganda Section. Another newspaper man who greatly aided Wilson was Charles Reade Bacon of the editorial staff of the Philadelphia Record. He had been a satellite of Wilson's throughout the gubernatorial campaign. At the close he compiled a book of speeches by Wilson that was published by Doubleday, Page & Co. Indeed, Hale's book about Wilson was excellent propaganda.

Page was thoroughly convinced that the press was the best instrument to correct the erroneous impression that Wilson was an impractical theorist. The method adopted was a Western trip with Wilson's speeches at strategic points. Possibly Page was influenced by the whimsical remark of the New York wit, Job Hedges, "The man who hires the hall is the man who makes public opinion." To manage this trip and to take care of the publicity Page selected an old New York Herald man, Frank Parker Stockbridge, who at a later time became managing editor of the New York Mail. Stockbridge shrewdly planned that all the speaking engagements should be with civic organizations, non-political in character, in order to keep Wilson free from the factional quarrels then dividing the Democratic party. Stockbridge did a fine piece of work; it was that Western trip which brought those effective telegrams at the right moment at Baltimore to turn the tide Wilson's way. Throughout the trip Wilson had been "first page copy everywhere." "No opportunity was lost to get for Wilson the maximum amount of publicity."

The following quotation is a summary of the promotion work to sell Woodrow Wilson to the American people:

> McComb's first Wilson headquarters were located at 42 Broadway, New York, and attention at the outset was devoted to distributing the speeches of Governor Wilson and to answering letters. Maurice F. Lyons, energetic assistant to McCombs, carried on most of the work. McCombs devoted himself largely to begging money. Stockbridge, who had accompanied Wilson on the Western trip, continued to have direct charge of the propaganda for newspapers. As the work increased in volume, Walter Measday, a newspaper reporter, was engaged to accompany Wilson on all his speech-making tours and to see that he got plenty of personal publicity. When McCombs appealed to William Gibbs McAdoo, another Southern lawyer who had attracted attention by his promotion of the first rapid transit railroad tubes under the Hudson River, McAdoo not only made a modest contribution but manifested a readiness to come aboard. McCombs gladly accepted him. McAdoo at the time knew Wilson casually, but the McAdoo railroad promotion had many New Jersey political angles. At McAdoo's suggestion, Byron R. Newton, head of McAdoo's publicity, who later became assistant secretary of the treasury and collector of the port of New York, was added to the Wilson New York headquarters propaganda staff. McAdoo, McCombs, and Oswald Garrison Villard later met regularly to plan the general promotional campaign.

Mr. Kenney, in speaking of Wilson's relations with Washington correspondents, admits that Wilson had a fondness for Louis Seibold of the New York World and for Arthur J. Sinnott of the Newark Evening News. But he adds, "the great bulk meant nothing to him." A little later the admission is made that Wilson's failure to give these correspondents that same measure of confidence and help that had been customary with previous Administrations was influential in setting the tides of sentiment against him at the time when he most needed support. Trite but true is Kerney's remark, "Newspaper men after all are human beings and those at Washington are the pick of the land." Yet this "pick of the land" never had Wilson's confidence.

"Sometimes they believed he concealed things out of hidden motives, and they naturally resented the intellectual contempt that Wilson more than once showed toward the profession." Wilson in the White House gave his confidence, so Mr. Kerney says, to no one in the newspaper world and was relieved when the war afforded an opportunity to kill the press conferences. One or two attempts made to resume them met with Wilson's opposition, for his heart was not in them and he preferred to be let alone. The tragedy is that he never seemed to realize how difficult he made the situation not only for himself but also for the Washington correspondents.

Mr. Kerney, of course, gives considerable space to the editorial attitude of William Randolph Hearst toward Wilson. He has numerous references to the activities of his own paper, the Trenton Times. Next to Harvey he gives Villard, then of the New York Evening Post credit for the "greatest nation-wide impetus to the boom" to put Wilson in the President's chair. He quotes Herbert Bayard Swope of the New York World on Wilson's domestic program, but he says nothing about the close relations that existed between Wilson and Frank I. Cobb, editor of the New York World.

In view of the close association between Wilson and Kerney it is most surprising that the latter could produce such an unbiased book as "The Political Education of Woodrow Wilson." Only a newspaper man trained to get facts could have turned the trick. Of course the volume contains some suppression of important incidents; whether these sins of omission are intentional or otherwise only Mr. Kerney can say. But in spite of these slight defects Kerney's volume is, as I have already pointed out, the most illuminating book about the public life of Woodrow Wilson that has as yet appeared in print.

Editor and Staff on Vacation

Hopkinton will be without its Leader this week. Editor W. S. Beels decided that after a quarter of a century of continuous publication the community can go without the paper one week while the force enjoys a vacation. The editor and his family are on an outing in Minneapolis.

SOUTHERN PROSPERITY SEEN IN FACES OF S.N.P.A. MEMBERS

"Ladies, please be seated. Tall gentlemen to the rear; some of you-all please come down in front. That's it. Now, a few of you gentlemen at the ends come down here and sit on these newspapers we've spread. That's fine. Now, everybody smile. Hold it!" And so the official photographer of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association spent his annual bad quarter hour lining up the members and guests for their picture on the porch of the Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C., last week. It was hot under the noon sun. Luncheon was long since ready. The golf links at the foot of the hill called for the annual tournament, but the panoramic camera finally ended its turntable tour and everybody looked natural again. The photographer did a good job and it's easy to recognize yourself and your friends above. No trouble at all to find President John A. Park, standing from the left in the second row, nor Mrs. Park, seated at his right hand. At Mr. Park's left stands W. A. Elliott of Jacksonville, a past president, and diagonally above Mr. Elliott's left shoulder is a group of S. N. P. A. "old reliables," including E. B. Jeffress, Greensboro News; A. F. Sanford, Knoxville Journal; A. G. Newmyer, New Orleans Item-Tribune; Urey Woodson, Owensboro Mes-

COST IGNORANCE HERALDS DISASTER SAYS PARK, NEW S. N. P. A. PRESIDENT

Advocates Simple Accounting System to Give Publisher Accurate Day-to-Day Information—Direct Benefits from Such Data Cited

LACK of information on the day-to-day course of business has brought about the ruin of more established newspapers than any other cause, in the opinion of John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) Times and newly-elected president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association. That body, at its annual convention in Asheville last week, heard Mr. Park, then chairman of its business office affairs committee, emphasize in detail the value of accurate records to the newspaper publisher and the unnumbered benefits that the industry might gain by collected records covering operations of several hundred newspapers.

"Many a newspaper now dead would not have failed had its management realized the importance of knowing what they were doing from day to day," Mr. Park said after the meeting. "The publisher was usually a man of small affairs in other times. He could accurately judge the state of his business by the size of his daily bank balance, but the newspaper business of today is not controllable by such simple means.

"Not that I advocate intricate systems of accounting—I don't. All that I mean is that a publisher should work out in his own mind the information he wants on the conduct of his business. When he knows that he can employ any competent auditor in his town to set up a system and accounts that will deliver that information without delay whenever it is called for. When we get enough newspapers aware of the value to themselves of such records in their daily affairs, we can think of a uniform system.

"There is no doubt that such comparative records as are now available are immensely valuable to newspapers that can use them. Our committee in the past year compiled data on a number of S. N. P. A. newspapers and we have also given our members the latest comparative records prepared by the Inland Daily Press Association, which has been striving for a uniform system of accounting for several years.

"Just as a minor example of what such information can do for a publisher let me cite a case in my own operations. Our pressroom force asked for increased wages some time ago. We knew that we were paying as much as we could afford, but we knew also that the pressroom would not be greatly impressed by a bare statement to that effect. We took records of several other cities of simila size and of papers having about the sam pressroom operations as we have. W found that we were paying not only u to the average pressroom wages of thes cities, but considerably more. When w took this information into the meetin with the pressmen, they withdrew thei demand.

"In the Raleigh Times office we wor under a budget and we can trim expense to meet any emergency. A year or s ago, when business conditions gave n indications of the advertising flood c the past few months, we took stock c our operations and recalled our wartim experiences. Our department heads too their reckonings into a conference an we made plans for an immediate cut i expenses if business declined. We wer prepared to take immediate action—nc a retrenchment program spread over si months. Happily, we have not had th opportunity to apply our plan."

Mr. Park, who has been manager c the Raleigh Times since 1910 and owne since 1911, began his newspaper caree as a reporter on that paper during col lege vacations. Of course, he had bee a newsboy, too, starting in 1898, whe he was 12 years old. Near Raleigh wa one of the concentration camps of th Spanish-American war troops and youn John, red-headed and freckled-faced, n doubt found a ready market for his news papers along the tented streets. Wit the war over and troops disbanded, h returned to high school and in 1905, whe 19 years old, he was graduated fror North Carolina State College as Bachelor of Engineering.

He taught mathematics for thre years at the state college—possibly hi present fondness for business record traces to this early training—the studied art in Paris and more engineer ing at the British school in Kensingtor Mixed in with this searching for trut in art and science was a period of cow

Mrs. Park Was Present When the Nominating Committee's Surprise Choice of Her Husband for the Presidency Was Unanimously Ratified by the Membership

GROUPED FOR ANNUAL PANORAMA DURING CONVENTION WEEK

senger; and James M. Thomson, New Orleans Item-Tribune, whose hands rest on the shoulders of George Lucas, secretary of the American Publishers' Conference. Just to the right of the first pillar on the other half of the cut are Clark Howell, Sr., Atlanta Constitution; Walter C. Johnson, Chattanooga News, retiring president and new chairman of the board; and Victor H. Hanson, Birmingham News. Second from the right in the row behind the chairs is L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans Times-Picayune; and fourth to his right is C. P. J. Mooney, Memphis Commercial Appeal. At Mr. Mooney's right is Harvey J. Kelly, chairman of the A. N. P. A. Special Standing Committee, over whose shoulder peers A. E. Clarkson, Houston Post-Dispatch. At the extreme right of the rocking-chair fleet is Mrs. Harvey J. Kelly, and behind her chair stands Don S. Elias, publisher of the Asheville Times, who with Charles A. Webb, Asheville Citizen, second to his left, was host to the visitors. At Mr. Elias's right stands Wiley L. Morgan, Knoxville Sentinel, and secretary-treasurer of the S. N. P. A. At the extreme right of the picture modestly glances U. L. McCall, Southern division manager of the Associated Press.

punching on a ship bound from New York to Liverpool.

He went with the Raleigh Times in 1910, and, in company with other members of his family, bought the paper the following year. On his return home he engaged actively in local affairs, served seven years in the National Guard, first as an infantry officer and then in command of a military band. During the war, when his family responsibilities made military service a remote possibility, he threw his musical talents into direction of community singing, then a popular and well-employed device for maintaining public morale. He has been a director, vice-president, and president of the Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce and has been active in other civic affairs.

Mr. Park's four children, all born in Raleigh, are destined to inherit the Times, but not through white-collar service in the business office. The oldest boys now work around the shop after school, hustling papers, cleaning up the pressroom and doing a hundred and one other jobs that might be called janitor work. The oldest boy in this manner has earned enough money to go to camp this summer and his savings, $400, have been invested in stock of the Times Company.

TENNESSEEANS ELECT ROOKS

State Press Reorganized at Meeting in Nashville

Reorganization of the Tennessee Press Association to make it state-wide was one of the accomplishments of the annual meeting held in Nashville, Friday, July 9. The following officers were elected: President, C. W. Rooks, Humboldt; first vice-president, David Lynch, Winchester; second vice-president, Joe Holbrook; secretary, Hammond Fowler, Rockwood; treasurer, E. A. Andrews, Chattanooga. Mr. Rooks is president of the West Tennessee Press Association.

Visiting newspapermen were entertained at luncheon by the Bond-Sanders Paper Company.

C. R. Russell, representing the Southern School of Printing, told of the work of that institution. He said a building for training students will be erected in West Nashville.

FOUR A GROUP AT ASHEVILLE

Members of the Southern Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies photographed at the S. N. P. A. meeting last week in Asheville, N. C. From left to right: F. M. Bell, E. Katz Special Agency; Henry Tritchler, Nelson Chesman & Co., Chattanooga; W. R. Massengale, Massengale Advertising Agency, Atlanta; J. B. Keough, John M. Branham Company, Atlanta; B. E. Wyatt, Johnson-Dallas Company, Atlanta; James O'Shaughnessy, Executive Secretary A. A. A. A., New York; E. E. Dallas, Johnson-Dallas Company, Atlanta; Jesse Whitely, Cecil, Barreto & Cecil, Inc., Richmond; S. G. Little, Asheville Citizen; Ernest H. Abernathy, Southern Manager, Charles W. Hoyt Company, Inc., Winston-Salem; H. N. Kirby, E. Katz Special Agency, New York; A. E. Christoffers, Bryant Griffith & Brunson, Atlanta.

I. A. A. IS PREPARING NEW FINANCIAL PLAN

Francis Sisson, New Treasurer, Has Made Study of Organization's Budget, and Will Suggest Revision of Services at Committee Meet, July 22

A new financial plan for the International Advertising Association, formerly the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, has been formulated by Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, and new association treasurer. It will be presented in detail before the first meeting of the recently elected executive committee to be held at the Advertising Club of New York, July 22.

Full details of the new plan were not made public this week at association headquarters by Earle Pearson, manager. He said, however, that Mr. Sisson's plan provided for elimination of non-productive activities of the association, and intensification of field work among advertising clubs throughout the United States.

It will be suggested to the committee that Associated Advertising, the association's monthly house organ, be scrapped, and the $18,000 it costs the membership annually be turned over to more useful work. Trade papers, it will be pointed out, cover the field so satisfactorily it is no longer necessary for the organization to support its own subsidized medium.

Mr. Sisson has made a careful study of the association's financial situation and will advocate many other important innovations in the budget of operations.

Those expected to attend the July 22 meeting are: C. K. Woodbridge, association president; Mr. Sisson, Rowe Stewart, Philadelphia Record; Lou E. Holland, W. Frank McClure, Charles Brooke, E. T. Meredith, and Mrs. Bernice Blackwood.

SAVE CITY BABIES FROM DEADLY SUMMER HEAT

Newspapers Operate Fresh Air Camps, Promote Vacation Outings, Conduct Playground and Beac Sport Contests, Find Money for City Which Can't Afford to Open Breathing Spaces When July Sun Scorches Streets

SUMMER in the city with its scorching days and seething nights strikes down far fewer children than it did a generation ago and no small share of the credit for this tremendous victory for public health is due to the daily newspapers of cities from Coast to Coast. The newspapers have done the things which one might expect them to do and they have done others which appear beyond their province.

They have repeated day after day for years the simple rules that need be observed in hot weather, they have campaigned for public swimming pools, they have had auxiliary shower baths set up in the streets by the fire department, they have demanded and won low transit fares to beach resorts, they have forced reluctant city governments to erect and maintain low-rate bathing pavilions, and many of them have established camps in the country where hundreds of tenement dwellers can see the sun at all angles in the sky and learn that there really are stars which shine on clear nights. Here are a few newspaper hot weather ideas reported to EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week:

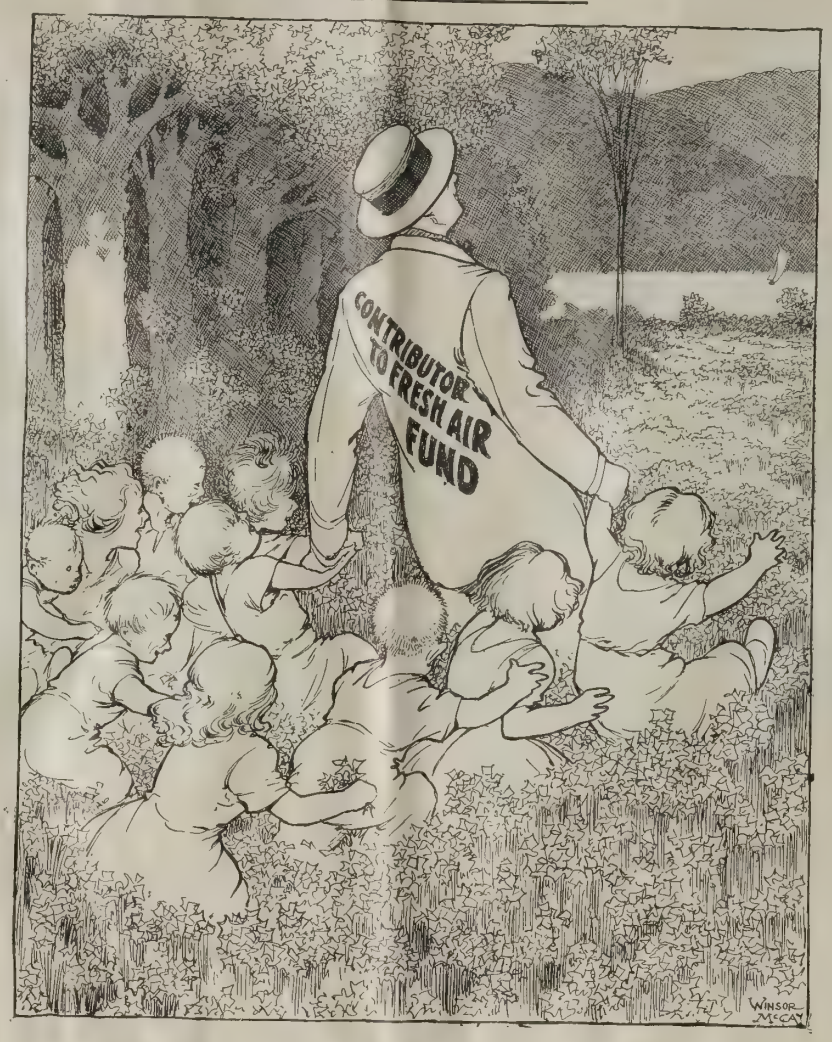
Tribune Fund Is Oldest

Best known of the summer camps, perhaps, is that conducted by the New York Herald Tribune, which celebrates this year its golden anniversary. Founded in 1877 by the Rev. Willard Parsons, a Presbyterian minister, with contributions of $187.62, enough to send 60 children to the country, it has grown until last year, 1925, the contributions reached $147,830.70, and 17,514 children enjoyed the benefits of two weeks or more in the country.

The money for these vacations then as now was raised by appeals in the New York Tribune. In a few years Dr. Parsons found that he could not handle both his ministerial work and the Fresh Air Fund, and devoted himself exclusively to the fund until his death—25 years later.

In 1888 the Fund was incorporated and the first Board of Managers was formed. It was composed of William E. Dodge, D. Willis James, Morris K. Jesup, Cleveland H. Dodge, D. O. Mills, Whitelaw Reid, Francis Lynde Stetson and Cornelius Vanderbilt.

In 1911, Leslie Conly, the present general manager, took over the fund, and under his direction, it has grown to its present proportions. That year $47,930.48 was raised, and 9,376 children were sent to the country.



The total amount raised in the past fifty years is $1,903,010.41, exclusive of 1926, and the total number of children sent to the country for vacations, 439,109.

In addition to the money raised by appeals in the Herald Tribune, approximately $250,000 has been left in trust by wills.

Mr. Conly finds that one of the most interesting aspects of the work of the Fund is that aside from contributions of money from readers, people all over the country offer their hospitality to the children, for two weeks and often longer, thereby enabling the money collected to be used so much more extensively—chiefly for railroad fares at half price—and for board at summer camps. It has been found most beneficial for the tenement children to live for several weeks each year as members of rural American families, and many of them return to their homes with changed standards of living.

Outings for Orphans

The Washington (D. C.) Star conducts an annual summer outing for the orphans of the city. A day is set during August when some 1200 boys and girls from Washington asylums, including all

"He knows what happiness is."

Drawn by Winsor McCay in New York Herald Tribune

creeds, are taken on one of the large excursion boats down the Potomac to an amusement park below Mt. Vernon, where the children are landed and permitted to enjoy to their hearts' content, at the paper's expense, the various amusements of the park. A wholesome lunch is served to them and in the evening the return trip is made in time to transport them to the various institutions for the night.

Transportation to and from the boat from the various institutions is furnished by the Star. Each year one or another of the local military bands makes the trip on the boat and plays for the children. Sufficient adults from the various institutions, in addition to members of the Star staff are taken along to keep all of the children out of harm's way.

This year the Star has donated a swan boat to the local Child Welfare Society on which the children and adults of the city may take short trips on the Tidal Basin at a nominal charge. To date the success of this innovation indicates that a cool twenty minutes on the water is keenly appreciated by both old and young. The money collected through this source, after a minimum overhead is deducted, is contributed to the Child Welfare Society and is by them used for the relief of the unfortunates of Washington.

An outing for Star news boys and carriers is also provided. At the peak of the heat wave between six and seven hundred of these youngsters are conveyed to some nearby amusement park and there given the run of the place.

In addition to the above indicated direct contribution to summer relief work the Star, of course, contributes substantially to those of the established welfare organizations which it believes to be most worthy.

"Happyland" for 600 Children

Happyland, the fresh air camp conducted by the San Francisco Bulletin, has just opened for the season and will care for some 600 children.

This camp is distinctive in that it is owned and operated by the Bulletin, the only western newspaper that has such a property. Other newspapers raise fresh air funds, but turn them over to social service organizations.

Happyland is under the trees outside Redwood City, thirty-odd miles down the peninsula from San Francisco. The Board of Health and the Board of Education cooperate with the Bulletin in the camp. Two trained nurses in the employ of the city are detailed by Dr. William C. Hassler, Health Officer, to the camp, and the Board of Education chooses the children sent to Happyland.

Undernourished or run-down children are generally chosen, but in nearly every case a few weeks of proper feeding and open air life completely rehabilitates them. The average child at the camp looks to be either wiry or vibrant with health.

There is everything that a child wants in Happyland—open air sleeping quarters, shower baths, a big recreation platform and the best food money can buy.

Everyone on the Bulletin is interested in Happyland—not as a matter of duty, but rather because of the elation adults get in seeing children happy. It is a common sight to see an editor or a reporter on his day off at Happyland grading a walk, fixing a gate or doi manual labor while surrounded by crow of eager children ready to help or dire him in his task.

Twin Funds in Chicago

The Chicago Tribune maintain through gifts from its readers, two di tinctive summer charities: the Free I Fund for the city's poor people, a Camp Algonquin, for convalesce mothers and their children.

Conduct of the funds this season identical with that of former year Necessity, as evidenced by the the mometer, governs the start of the fr ice delivery; and the appeal for fun for that purpose. Tickets for the i are distributed through direction of t Chicago Council of Social Agencies, needy Chicago families. The Consume Company delivers the ice, collects t tickets, and returns them to the Tribun for cash settlement.

Camp Algonquin, on the shore of th Fox River, some 40 miles northwest, maintained largely from donations re ceived by the Tribune. Lemonade stand operated by youthful merchants; benef plays, bazaars and theatricals, sponsore by both juveniles and adults; thank offer ings; memorial donations; and individua gifts make up the total. The camp for ailing and convalescent mothers an their children. The usual stay is tw weeks. About 2,000 poor mothers an children are cared for in the brief seaso each year.

A daily story listing the previous day donations, detailing some venture tha netted a sizable profit for the funds, an nouncing some future benefit, or reprint ing some of the interesting and movin communications received, aids in bringin in the funds. Occasional pictures ar invaluable.

Last summer the free ice fund collecte a total of $5,326. for the season, and th Camp Algonquin fund, $6,369.

Cincinnati Post's Park Concerts

Newspapers in Cincinnati have bee relieved from campaigning for innumer able charities by the adoption of th Community Chest plan whereby funds fo all charities are raised during an inten sive civic campaign once each year. This year $1,800,000 was raised, which takes care of all worthy charities, including fresh air vacations and summer care of anaemic children. A fresh air farm is maintained under the Community Chest.

Some years ago, when the city was under partisan political control, the Cincinnati Post won its fight to reopen the public bathhouses in the tenement districts which had been closed because the funds for their maintenance could be used to better poltical advantage elsewhere. This condition no longer exists under the city manager form of government.

In co-operation with community service workers and public parks and playgrounds directors, the Post maintains a concert company made up of volunteer semi-professional and amateur artists—musicians of all kinds, dance orchestras, dancers, actors. From the offerings of these 40 or more artists, programs are made up for playground dances, play street and park concerts and entertainments. These open-air, free entertainments are given at frequent intervals in all parts of the city during the summer months. Crowds of from 5,000 to 15,000 are attracted.

Cleveland Air and Water Sports

Different from all of these is the contact with 200,000 children of Cleveland maintained and strengthened this summer

(Continued on page 45)

TWO STATES WHERE LIBEL LAWS ARE FAIR

Editors in New Hampshire and Mississippi Make Special Comment on "Generous Provisions" of Statutes—Only One Suit in 14 Years in Granite State

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Editors in many states are co-operating with EDITOR & PUBLISHER in research work in connection with this series of articles, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage. The laws of the various states are being sent in, and the newspaper men are commenting on important recent decisions.

The other day in the mail, two letters came in from two widely separated states —New Hampshire and Mississippi—both containing comments on the generous provisions of the state statutes. These letters, from William P. Newell, Concord (N. H.) Monitor Patriot; and George Lemon Sugg, managing editor, Jackson (Miss.) Daily News, comprise this the 18th article of the series.

FAIR laws and fair newspapers reduce the libel hazard to a minimum.

Conditions in two states demonstrate this fact to a nicety. A most interesting story on the fairness of the New Hampshire statute is told this week by William P. Newell, Concord Monitor-Patriot. In 11 years only one libel case has come to the attention of the state's supreme court. And in county courts today there are no newspaper libel cases, so far as is known. The second state is Mississippi.

"In view of the law's rather generous provisions, I know of few cases and no notable ones," writes George Lemon Sugg, managing editor of the Jackson Daily News.

"New Hampshire's public statutes are remarkably free from reference to the laws of libel insofar as they affect newspapers," Mr. Newell said. "In the index to the 1926 edition of the statutes there are four references. One refers to the limitation of costs, a second to the mitigation of damages, a third to the general issue and the fourth to the limitation of actions.

"Of these the only one of any general interest to the newspaperman is the following: 'In actions for libel or slander, under the general issue, the defendant may prove, in mitigation of damages, and to rebut evidence of actual malice, that the writing or words complained of were the repetition of common report, and that the conduct of the plaintiff was such as to create suspicion of the truth of the matters therein charged against him.'

"The clerk of the Supreme Court of the State reports that there has been during the period of 1911 to 1925 only one libel case which has come to the attention of the state's highest tribunal. So far as is known, there are at present no libel cases in any of the county courts in which newspapers are concerned.

"One reason advanced for this condition is the fairness, in general, of the press of the state in its news and editorial columns. Another factor is the promptness with which publishers have corrected those items which were found to be inaccurate. In most cases these corrections or explanations have been accepted by the complaining party and any threatened court action dropped.

"The one libel case before the Supreme Court referred to above is that of Lafferty against Houlihan in 1923.

"In this case a police officer, Fred H. Lafferty, of Gorham, N. H., brought suit against the publishers of the Berlin Reporter, a weekly, having a large circulation in Gorham, charging maliciousness in reports of his arrest. The Coos County Superior Court heard the case and a jury found for the plaintiff. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court, which overruled exceptions taken by the defendant and sustained the verdict of the lower court that the publishers were guilty.

"Lafferty on the night of Dec. 31, 1920, arrested two girls on a charge of larceny. One claimed to be under 17 years old. The officer, understanding that he could not lock her in a cell, took both prisoners to a hotel, where he was assigned connecting rooms.

"Later both girls admitted that they were over 17 and were arraigned and sentenced. As a result of statements made by the prisoners to the sheriff, an information was filed in Superior Court against the police officer charging him with lascivious and lewd conduct with one of the girls while they were in his custody at the hotel.

"The officer pleaded not guilty, but later changed his plea to nolo contendere and accepted sentence, which was a fine of $25, no costs, the fine being suspended during good behavior.

"The weekly paper published an account of his arrest and the sentence imposed on Jan. 20. On Jan. 27 the paper published an editorial demanding that the officer be forced to resign or summarily removed from his office.

"The officer resigned on Jan. 22, and in the same issue that carried the editorial, the publishers had a story on the front page announcing that he had resigned.

"The plaintiff alleged that the paper had carried articles falsely accusing him of crime and that the publication was wilful, malicious and unlawful. The defendants held that the articles were true, were not actuated by malice or ill will toward the plaintiff and that the only purpose was to give useful information. They contended that the articles were just and fair criticism of the plaintiff while acting as a public officer.

"The decision of the Supreme Court contains many pertinent paragraphs. It was held that if the 'end to be attained is justifiable, as, if the object is the removal of an incompetent officer or to give useful information to a community so that they may act on this information, the occasion is lawful and the party may then justify or excuse the publication.

"'Where, however, there is merely color of a lawful occasion and the party, instead of acting in good faith, assumes to act for some justifiable end merely as a pretense to publish and circulate defamatory matter he is liable in the same manner as if such pretense had not been resorted to.'

"The court held that the motives of the publisher must be inquired into.

"The decision said that if the defendant cannot justify, he may show matter of excuse; matter of excuse in a prosecution for a libel, is where the defendant, upon a lawful occasion, proceeded with good motives, upon probable grounds, upon reasons that were apparently good, but upon a supposition which turns out to be unfounded.

"The decision stressed the fact that in the suit under discussion there was evidence of bad faith. It was said that one of the defendants was not on speaking terms with the plaintiff for three years because of an argument. The decision held that the 'articles themselves, because of the severity of the language used and the manner in which they were displayed were competent evidence of motives of the publishers.'

"In the news item there appeared 'the plea of guilty saved the officer from more serious consequences'—'here is a man who has admitted his guilt on a charge of lascivious behavior.'

"The Supreme Court held that a plea of nolo contendere is 'not an admission of the truth of the facts charged for other purposes than for those of the case in which it is made. The defendant waiving his right to contest the truth of the charges against him, submits to punishment. The plea is in the nature of a compromise between the state and the defendant.'

"The court also held that the vigorous language of the articles would support a finding that the defendants were actuated by ill will.

"The decision said that publication of an article on the front page of the same issue that carried the editorial demanding the resignation of the officer was 'at best evidence of good faith, but in conclusive.

"The publishers contended that the section of the paper containing the editorial had been printed previous to the time that it was learned that the officer had resigned and that they had promptly placed a story calling attention to the resignation on the front page. The court, however, said that the persistence of the defendants in publishing the editorial was prompted by ill will under color of a lawful occasion, rather than by a desire to issue the paper on scheduled time."

Text of the Mississippi statute reads:

CHAPTER 1, SECTION 13: "The freedom of speech and of the press shall be held sacred; and in all prosecutions for libel the truth may be given in evidence and the jury shall determine the law and the facts under the direction of the court; and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true, and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the party shall be acquitted."

CHAPTER 2466: "All actions for assault and for libels shall be commenced within one year next after the cause of such action accrued and not after."

CHAPTER 664: "In actions of . . . libel and slander, if the plaintiff recover less than $10, costs shall not be awarded him. In all other actions sounding in damages, where the plaintiff sues for more than $10 and recovers less than that sum, no more costs than the amount of damages recovered shall be available to him unless the court be of the opinion that the plaintiff has reasonable cause to expect to recover more, and that the action was brought for no other purpose than to be compensated for the wrongdoing and enter the same on its minutes. If more costs be awarded, the judgment may be amended on motion at any time."

CHAPTER 1007: "Any person who shall be convicted of writing or publishing any libel, shall be fined in such sum or imprisoned in the county jail for such term as the court, in its discretion, may adjudge * * *

CHAPTER 1008: "In every criminal prosecution for libel it shall be lawful for the defendant, upon the trial, to give in evidence the truth of the matter written or published, and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true, and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the defendant shall be acquitted."

CHAPTER 521: "In actions for libel or slander the plaintiff may aver that the words or matter complained of were used in a defamatory sense, specifying such sense, without any prefactory averment, to show how such words or matter were used in that sense; and such averment shall be put in issue by the denial of the alleged libel or slander; and where the words or matter set forth, with or without the alleged meaning, show a cause of action the declaration shall be sufficient."

CHAPTER 1188: "An indictment for libel need not set forth any extrinsic facts to show the application of the defamatory matter charged in the indictment to the party libeled, but it shall be sufficient to charge generally that the same was published of or concerning him, and the fact that it was so published must be proved on the trial."

CHAPTER 526: "In actions for libel or slander, assault and battery, and false imprisonment, the defendant, under the plea of not guilty, may give in evidence any mitigating circumstances to reduce the damages, notwithstanding he may also have pleaded a justification."

NEWSPAPER MEN FOLLOW COOLIDGE

A large group of Washington correspondents followed President Coolidge to his "Summer White House" in the Adirondacks—the camp of Irwin Kirkwood, publisher of the Kansas City Star. The President is shown at camp with a group of newspaper men. Left to right: Glenn I. Tucker, New York World; Alfred H. Kirchhofer, Buffalo Evening News; J. Russell Young, Washington Star; President Coolidge; Charles S. Grove, Boston Globe; Everett Sanders, the President's secretary.

GRINNELL'S JOURNALISM COURSES BUILT ON A CULTURAL BACKGROUND

Five Courses Offered Embryo News Writers at Iowa School—Reporting a Prerequisite to Study of Editorial Writing, Ethics and History of Press

By WAYNE GARD
Director, Courses in Journalism, Grinnell College

WHILE it was for her early leadership in trans-Mississippi athletics that Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia., gained for her teams the name of "Pioneers," her achievements in other fields have been no lses creditable. In journalism she has produced Albert Shaw, editor of the American Review of Reviews; Norman Hall, author of "Kitchner's Mob"; Ruth Suckow, novelist; Donald Clark, national president of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, and several score of others who hold important places on the staffs of magazines, newspapers, and press associations.

While Grinnell's courses in journalism are built upon a cultural background of liberal arts, they seek, nevertheless, to prepare the student for practical newspaper work. Five courses are offered —reporting and editing, editorial writing, feature writing, newspaper ethics, and the history of American journalism.

The course in reporting and editing extends throughout the year, and is prerequisite to the other courses. It offers instruction and practice in judging news values, constructing news stories and news leads, news gathering, interviewing, and rewriting; elementary training in copy-reading, proof-reading, head-writing, and make-up.

This course is thoroughly practical, with the major emphasis upon laboratory work. Students are required to have published during each semester a definite amount of news.

Each December the class edits the Grinnell Journalist, a seven-column, four-page newspaper published annually in connection with the annual convention of the Iowa High School Press Association. In the spring the class edits an issue of the Grinnell Register. It is planned to have the students edit additional papers this year. Some time is also spent in preparing obituary sketches for use in the supplemental news service of the Associated Press.

The course in editorial writing involves specialized study and discussion of contemporary problems. Each student investigates some public question of timely interest, and writes about half of his editorials in this individual field. The class sessions are devoted to the interpretation of current news and to criticism of the students' editorials.

Special articles for newspapers and magazines are written in the course in feature writing. These include historical and biographical sketches, informative, humorous, and critical articles, and the various types of human interest story. The course gives instruction in the preparation of manuscripts, and individual advice on marketing.

In the course in newspaper ethics, problems of newspaper policy are studied and discussed—such problems as the coloring of news, the suppression of news, the reporting of crime, the handling of publicity, and the relation of news to advertising.

The course in the history of American journalism involves comprehensive study of the beginnings of journalism in America, and of the various stages in its development. Attention is given also to the analysis of individual newspapers of today, and to the study of outstanding tendencies in contemporary journalism.

Courses in short-story writing, play writing, and verse writing are given in the English department. Students interested in advertising may find a course in this subject in the department of business adminsitration.

The journalism laboratory is equipped with typewriters for the use of students. A recent doubling in the number of students taking journalism courses has made the present typewriter equipment somewhat inadequate, but new machines are expected to be added within a few months. A recent appropriation of $125 for additional books on journalism for the college library has provided abundant new material for study and research.

The journalism department has the friendly co-operation of Grinnell's four student periodicals, which print much material written as class work. These are the Scarlet and Black, a semi-weekly newspaper; The Malteaser, a humorous monthly; the Tanager, a literary bimonthly; and the Cyclone, the student annual.

Many journalism students help pay their college expenses by doing part-time newspaper work. The press associations and the newspapers of Des Moines and other Iowa cities have regular student correspondents at Grinnell. Papers outside the state often ask for stories on Missouri Valley games. Other employment for student journalists is found on the local papers and in the college publicity office. Most of the journalism students do newspaper work during the summer.

The journalistic fraternities are represented at Grinnell by active chapters of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi. The former chapter has ranked seventh in the Sigma Delta Chi efficiency competition for several years, and was honored last year by having a Grinnell man elected president of the national organization. Associate members of the chapter include many prominent newspapermen, of whom Sir Philip Gibbs is one.

Wayne Gard, writer of this article, directs the courses in journalism at Grinnell college.

For three years, 1921 to 1924, Mr. Gard served as India correspondent for the Associated Press, reporting such important events as the Mount Everest expeditions, the non-co-operation campaign, and the visit of the Prince of Wales to India.

Mr. Gard was educated at Illinois college and Northwestern university. He has worked on several daily newspapers in Illinois, gaining experience as reporter, city editor, telegraph editor, and literary editor. His writings on international relations have appeared in the Nation, the Christian Century, the New Orient, the Chicago Tribune, and other periodicals.

Mr. Gard's work as a poet was recognized last year by his election as a vice-president of the Poetry Society of Great Britain.

CANTON NEWS TO BUILD

Ohio Daily Plans Erection of Modern Plant Next to Proposed Post Office

Plans are now being prepared for a modern newspaper plant to be erected by the Canton (O.) News. The old Harter property, comprising a complete city block, has been purchased.

Indications are that two-thirds of the area will be used by the government for a post office. The newspaper plant will occupy the remaining third which has a frontage of 66⅔ feet and a depth of 200 feet.

The News is part of the News League of Ohio, owned by James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio. Associated papers are the Dayton Daily News and the Springfield Daily News.

REPORTERS VISIT JERSEY BLAST ZONE

Photo shows a wrecked freight car being viewed by reporters and photographers who rode into the shelled area at Lake Denmark, N. J., on a train, following explosion of navy arsenal.

"CUB" IN COMMAND OF T.N.T. STORY

World Tyro Takes Charge of Arsenal Explosion News Coverage—Luck of Jerseyman Reporter

A cub reporter became king of the day, and many veterans of New York newspaper work were treated to thrills, by the explosion at Dover, N. J., July 10.

Lt. Arthur Ginsburgh of the army ordnance, up until that date, had worked day time for Uncle Sam and night time as cub on the New York World staff. For the World he was doing those pesky little assignments, and the big boys of the paper were his boss.

Then lightning struck. An explosion shattered an arsenal. Lt. Ginsburgh was ordered by his daytime employer, Uncle Sam, to take charge of publicity at Dover.

Once over there a remarkable reversion of circumstances took place. Now Lt. Ginsburgh was boss. What he had to say went.

But there was more to be seen and done by the newspaper men than to line up on parade for the erstwhile "cub." Many, while shells were still exploding, slipped by army lines to get close-up of the catastrophe.

On July 11, the army and navy officially lifted the lid and let three public representatives through. Jack Price, photographer, New York World, Harry Brucker of International Newsreel, and Lewis Fehr were chosen by the other newspaper men to make this trip. They spent three hours in the area, which they had been trying to crash for the last 16 hours. Later the newspapermen reviewed the scene on flat cars.

Becker Jamieson, reporter for the Morristown (N. J.) Jerseyman was the first newspaper man to reach the scene after the explosion. He had just reached Lake Hopatcong, a short distance from the arsenal, to spend the week end when the first blast took place. He rushed by automobile to the arsenal and shortly after was in communication with his paper and long before out of town papers were able to reach the place the Jerseyman was on the streets with an "Extra," with a general story of the calamity and also a partial list of dead and injured.

Southern Idaho Weeklies Organize

The Associated Weekly Newspapers of Southeastern Idaho is the name of a new organization formed last week with headquarters in Preston, Idaho. Officials elected were, president, Ralph H. Kelley, Soda Springs Chieftain; vice-president, A. E. Pelton, Malad Oneida County Enterprise; secretary-treasurer, H. M. Nelson, Montpelier Examiner.

GRAND JURY PRAISES NEWSPAPER MEN

Two East St. Louis Reporters Lauded for Finding 15-Year Old Girl Kidnapped by Pseudo Doctor

How reporters and their newspaper sometimes prove to be of greater assistance than the regularly authorized agencies in bringing about justice was demonstrated at East St. Louis, last week with the plea of guilty and sentencing to the penitentiary of a pseudo doctor on a charge of abducting a 15 year old girl.

The aid of the East St. Louis (Ill.) Daily Journal and the efforts of two of its reporters in solving the case were praised by the grand jury at a special session, following return of an indictment of the bogus "doctor." The report declared:

"The grand jury of St. Clair County, Ill., wishes to extend a vote of thanks to Messrs. Herbert Kelly and Joseph R. Klasman of the East St. Louis Daily Journal for the services rendered in finding evidence in the case against Dr. David Provan, alias C. W. Kopzynski, and in locating the girl in the case, Venita Maher. John F. O'Flaherty, foreman."

Sheriff Martin Schnipper praised the work of Kelly and Klasman as being "invaluable," stressing the fact that they found the girl who had been missing for almost a week when police had failed to find her. In commenting on the activities of the reporters, State's Attorney H. C. Lindauer said:

"The two reporters saved the county an expense of more than $200 by doing in a few hours what it might take others days to accomplish. Devoting their time, energy and experience, they found Venetia Maher, obtained her statement and had it ready in complete detail for presentation to the grand jury. The public owes a great debt to the Journal and to the two reporters."

North Carolina A. P. Group to Meet

President J. L. Horne, Jr., has called a meeting of the Associated Press Club of North Carolina, to be held at Hickory, July 21, in connection with the North Carolina Press Association meeting and as a part of the program. A dinner will be served the membership.

SUBWAY STRIKE GUARDS BEAT NEWS MEN COMPANY THREATENS PUBLISHERS

Reporters Are Driven from Wreck Scene and Their Notes Destroyed—Attorney Objects to Graphic's Cartoon and Issues Warning

AN editor and his newspaper were threatened with criminal prosecution y a company attorney, and several ewspaper men were assaulted by hired ompany roughs while reporting a sub- ay wreck during the last week-and-a- alf of the I.R.T. strike in New York.

The New York Evening Graphic pub- shed a cartoon by Charles Macauley. t showed a subway train entering the Malbone street tunnel. The figure of eath stands in the entrance bearing a croll with the legend "Strike of 1918— 1 Lives Lost Through Unskilled Opera- ion." The cartoon was entitled "Re- ember."

On Tuesday, James L. Quackenbush, ie traction company's attorney, threat- ned to prosecute the Graphic, mention- ng the cartoon in particular, and any ther newspaper which attempted to urther the strike or publish cartoons r facts leading the public to believe ie subways were unsafe.

"I hope he does start criminal action" Emile Gauvreau, managing editor of the Graphic, said to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. We believe there is danger in unskilled peration, and we believe it is our duty o warn people of that danger. We ould welcome a test case."

It was in the early morning hours of uly 9, the assaults against newspaper ien took place. Two men were arrested n complaint of John Weisburger of the City News Association, one of the men ttacked. The men arrested were Ralph Voight and Thomas Francis. They were eleased on bond for arraignment July 5, but the case was adjourned to a uture date on that day.

Weisberger with a large number of ther reporters had gone to the Bowling Green station of the subway, following crash in which no one was injured. After he, with Harold O'Hare of the New York American, had announced hemselves as reporters, the attack oc- urred.

"Led by Voight, at least a dozen men who had come to the scene of the acci- lent in two automobiles rushed O'Hare nd me," Weisburger said. "They grabbed O'Hare from the rear and pulled him up the stairway.

"Others sprang upon me. One grabbed ne at the waist, another at the wrists, till another at the neck and the re- nainder beat and kicked me.

"I was saved by Sidney Livingstone, nother reporter from my organization."

Voight, according to Weisburger, houted that he was acting on the per- onal orders of Frank Hedley, president of the I.R.T. and Mr. Quackenbush.

Mr. Quackenbush said: "I want it nderstood that those men (the at- ackers) were not from my office. They vere from the operating department. If hey enforce the rule against taking flash ights in the subway I shall support hem. If they acted otherwise, I shall et the law take its course."

John Rogan, police reporter, for the New York Mirror, who was also at- acked, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER he did ot see any photographers at the scene of the wreck.

He was in a subway booth telephoning he story to his office when he was ac- osted from behind.

"Are you a newspaper reporter?" one of the guards asked.

"I am," said Rogan.

"Well, you get to hell out of there hen."

Rogan was grabbed and pulled from he booth. His notes were taken from im and torn to bits.

Rogan is built like the Woolworth Tower. He noticed one of the thugs reaching in his back pocket. He might be reaching for a blackjack.

"You pull that on me," shouted Rogan, "and I'll throw you on the third rail."

Rogan left the station and in a nearby booth finished telephoning his story to the Mirror.

On the following day another accident occurred at the same station.

"Interborough officials delegated them- selves as reporters and had two dozen of the toughest 'gorillas' ever seen in New York to keep out reporters and photographers," a Graphic reporter wrote. His statement was confirmed by a reporter for the New York Times.

Two hours after the crash occurred, Alfred Pierce, press agent for the sub- way company appeared, went down into the subway, and gave the 30 newspaper men a skeleton statement of the wreck.

Mr. Pierce was formerly city hall re- porter for the New York Sun. Mr. Quackenbush is doing most of the talk- ing for the company during the strike. He and Pierce are assisted by two press agents from the office of Ivy Lee.

Mr. Pierce asked by EDITOR & PUB- LISHER to confirm the Graphic's story of news suppression classed himself with President Coolidge. His "official spokes- man" declared it was against Mr. Pierce's policy to be quoted.

Mr. Pierce was late getting to the accident, this official spokesman ad- mitted. Assuredly it was not his fault that newspaper men were barred from inspecting the wreck. It was not under his authority.

He was late because he was at head- quarters when the accident occurred talking to other newspaper men when the report came to him by telephone. He ascertained the facts of the wreck, told the reporters who were at head- quarters, and then telephoned the story to other papers.

At the end of this time, he decided to go down to the wreck.

Mr. Pierce gave reporters there the facts, the official spokesman concluded.

Hard Named Portsmouth Editor

Charles E. Hard of Portsmouth, O., former personal secretary to the late President Warren G. Harding, has been made editor-in-chief of the Portsmouth Morning Sun, succeeding the late George M. Taylor. John A. Lloyd has been named managing editor.

Barred by hired thugs from the scene of a subway wreck in New York last Saturday morning, July 10, reporters waited the pleasure of Alfred W. Pierce, company press agent.

Above is the Macauley cartoon that caused a corporation lawyer to threaten a newspaper.

A.B.C. NOW WILL LIST ADVERTISING RATES

Board Confirms Tentative Decision—Suggestion Made That It is a Step Towards Standardization of Cards —A.A.A.A. Standard Preferred

Beginning with the newspaper state- ments for the period ending Sept. 30, and with periodical statements for the period ending Dec. 31, 1929, standard rate cards will be shown, the Audit Bureau of Circulations current bulletin stated. It is preferred that in submitting their rates the A.A.A.A. standard be followed.

In part the announcement reads:

"All information in the case of news- papers must reach the Bureau not later than September 15, showing rates which are in effect or will be in effect as of October 1, 1926. The date of closing for periodical rate cards for the De- cember 31 Publishers' Statements will be announced later.

"While the closing date for newspapers is set for September 15, it is hoped that many publications which do not contemplate changing their rate cards prior to October 1, will be able to give the information considerably in advance in order to relieve the pressure on the Bureau's Statement Department.

"This added service will cost the Bureau many thousands of dollars—es- pecially in the preparation of the first statements showing rate cards; but there will be no added charge to members, either advertiser, advertising agent, or publisher.

"The immense value of this service will be especially obvious in the various Blue Books issued by the Bureau. From one source, advertisers and agents will now be able to secure not only all circulation information in complete form, but all rate information for all A. B. C. publications.

"It will cover nine-tenths of all pub- lications necessary for national cam- paigns.

"It will give A. B. C. information complete in all details.

"It will give the segregation of A. B. C. publications which many publishers have desired.

"A number of publishers, advertisers and agents have advanced this thought— that this is a step toward the standard- ization of rate changes, that it would be economically sound if all changes in rates were made as of April 1 and Oc- tober 1, in the case of newspapers and as of January 1 and July 1, in the case of periodicals; because it is on these dates that the latest circulation informa- tion is made available. What may de- velop from this suggestion depends upon the working out of the new plan.

"The rate information will not be shown on Auditors' Reports."

Survey New England

The Department of Commerce will soon start an industrial and marketing survey of the New England states.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

July 19-24—International Stereo- typers and Electrotypers Union of North America, Los Angeles.
July 21-23—North Carolina Press Assn., annual convention, Hick- ory, N. C.
July 23-25—Colorado Editorial Assn., mid-summer meeting, Ala- mosa, Colo.
July 23—American Photo-Engrav- ers Assn., meeting, Detroit.
July 26-Aug. 31—Institute of Poli- tics, Williams College, Williams- town, Mass.
July 30—Northeast Missouri Press Assn., mid-summer Meeting, Monroe City, Mo.
Aug. 6-7—Wyoming Press Assn., annual convention, Thermopolis, Wyo.
Aug. 7—Southwest Minnesota Edi- torial Assn., summer outing, Lake Sheat, Minn.
Aug. 9-11—Georgia Press Assn., annual meeting, Louisville, Ga.
Aug. 11-13—South Dakota Press annual meet, Brookings.

GAINS IN ALL OF 30 CITIES' JUNE DAILY NEWSPAPER LINAGE

JUNE linage for 131 newspapers in 30 cities totalled 125,775,293 agate lines, a gain of 11,637,205 lines over the same month last year. The rate of gain was 9 per cent. All cities showed a gain. The comparative figures for the month follow:

Summary of Advertising by Cities

30 cities listed — 30 show gain — 0 show loss
131 papers listed — 109 show gain — 19 show loss
3 no comparison

	1926	1925
†New York	14,822,812	13,048,914	1,773,898 Gain
Chicago	7,770,381	7,081,884	688,497 Gain
Philadelphia	7,127,937	6,803,305	324,632 Gain
Detroit	5,498,010	4,962,342	535,668 Gain
Cleveland	3,886,125	3,736,725	149,400 Gain
St. Louis	4,121,620	3,776,960	344,660 Gain
Boston	6,640,566	5,995,006	645,560 Gain
Baltimore	4,753,800	4,140,088	613,712 Gain
Los Angeles	6,920,147	6,605,677	314,470 Gain
†Buffalo	3,670,378	3,476,406	193,972 Gain
†San Francisco	4,509,167	4,388,219	120,948 Gain
Milwaukee	3,047,253	2,732,554	314,699 Gain
Washington	4,704,398	4,052,470	651,928 Gain
Cincinnati	3,380,400	3,066,000	314,400 Gain
New Orleans	3,972,848	3,314,041	658,807 Gain
Minneapolis	3,139,903	2,805,830	334,073 Gain
Seattle	2,898,126	2,613,926	284,200 Gain
Indianapolis	3,142,737	3,098,208	44,529 Gain
Denver	2,388,344	2,112,852	275,492 Gain
Providence	2,993,273	2,720,784	272,489 Gain
Columbus	3,574,490	3,091,407	483,083 Gain
Louisville	3,441,235	2,982,834	458,401 Gain
St. Paul	2,532,572	2,232,958	299,614 Gain
†Oakland	2,576,728	2,376,360	200,368 Gain
Omaha	1,890,574	1,690,353	200,221 Gain
Birmingham	2,660,182	2,346,022	314,160 Gain
Richmond	2,083,886	1,970,304	113,582 Gain
Dayton	2,973,068	2,680,622	292,446 Gain
Houston	2,631,398	2,302,524	328,874 Gain
†Des Moines	2,022,935	1,932,513	90,422 Gain
Totals	125,775,293	114,138,088	11,637,205 Gain

†Note reference under individual newspaper linage of these cities.

NEW YORK

	1926	1925
American	1,120,416	1,074,084	46,332 Gain
Herald Tribune	1,564,934	1,216,848	348,086 Gain
Times	2,408,058	2,066,062	341,996 Gain
World	1,545,308	1,355,502	189,806 Gain
*Mirror (Tab.)	305,282	299,288	5,994 Gain
News (Tab.)	631,026	487,706	143,320 Gain
*Evening Graphic	325,570	†182,198	143,372 Gain
*Evening Journal	1,189,390	1,122,438	66,952 Gain
*Evening Post	390,536	390,890	354 Loss
*Evening World	823,862	690,554	133,308 Gain
*Sun	1,327,910	1,111,870	216,040 Gain
*Telegram	512,490	522,928	10,438 Loss
Brooklyn Eagle	1,653,326	1,497,294	156,032 Gain
Brooklyn Times	570,834	476,174	94,660 Gain
Standard Union	453,870	555,078	101,208 Loss
Totals	14,822,812	13,048,914	1,773,898 Gain

†Sunday Graphic discontinued September 1, 1925; 86,042 lines for four Sundays included.

CHICAGO

	1926	1925
*Daily News	1,888,122	1,695,060	193,062 Gain
Tribune	2,702,622	2,464,299	238,323 Gain
Herald-Examiner	1,065,348	865,383	199,965 Gain
*Post	545,916	436,995	108,921 Gain
*American	1,143,738	966,402	177,336 Gain
*Journal	424,635	653,745	229,110 Loss
Totals	7,770,381	7,081,884	688,497 Gain

PHILADELPHIA

	1926	1925
Inquirer	1,865,100	1,738,800	126,300 Gain
Record	758,400	831,900	73,500 Loss
Ledger	1,322,751	1,225,587	97,164 Gain
*Evening Ledger	1,345,986	1,270,318	75,668 Gain
*Bulletin	1,835,700	1,736,700	99,000 Gain
Totals	7,127,937	6,803,305	324,632 Gain

DETROIT

	1926	1925
News	2,939,020	2,691,220	247,800 Gain
Times	1,086,666	962,864	123,802 Gain
Free Press	1,472,324	1,308,258	164,066 Gain
Totals	5,498,010	4,962,342	535,668 Gain

SAN FRANCISCO

	1926	1925
Chronicle	929,012	877,520	51,492 Gain
Examiner	1,651,467	1,516,665	44,802 Gain
Bulletin	534,142	549,556	15,414 Loss
*Call	845,376	721,980	123,396 Gain
*News	639,170	599,214	39,956 Gain
*Herald	.....	123,284	.....
Totals	4,509,167	4,388,219	120,948 Gain

Herald discontinued May 5, 1926.

DES MOINES

	1926	1925
Register	682,828	592,835	89,993 Gain
*Tribune	869,649	744,750	124,899 Gain
Capital	470,458	‡594,928	124,470 Loss
Totals	2,022,935	1,932,513	90,422 Gain

‡Sunday Capital discontinued with February 21, 1926, issue; includes 45,071 linage Sunday issue.
*No Sunday edition.

JUNE'S UNIQUE RECORD

Records of newspaper linage kept by EDITOR & PUBLISHER since 1916 show no other month which equalled the record of June in that the totals for every city ran ahead of the total for the month in the preceding year.

BOSTON

	1926	1925
Herald	1,334,429	1,151,709	182,720 Gain
Globe	1,377,342	1,315,720	61,622 Gain
Post	1,050,250	993,522	56,728 Gain
Advertiser	452,487	359,978	92,509 Gain
*American	422,473	365,481	56,992 Gain
*Traveler	1,099,317	940,938	158,379 Gain
*Transcript	692,881	641,698	51,183 Gain
*Telegram	211,387	225,960	14,573 Loss
Totals	6,640,566	5,995,006	645,560 Gain

BALTIMORE

	1926	1925
Sun	1,530,608	1,444,127	86,481 Gain
*Evening Sun	1,565,613	1,425,709	139,904 Gain
American	652,768	448,739	204,029 Gain
*News	651,688	585,901	65,787 Gain
*Post	353,123	235,612	117,511 Gain
Totals	4,753,800	4,140,088	613,712 Gain

LOS ANGELES

	1926	1925
Times	2,189,768	2,080,764	109,004 Gain
Examiner	1,846,519	1,806,281	40,238 Gain
*Express	803,544	780,878	22,666 Gain
*Herald	1,483,790	1,311,674	172,116 Gain
*Record	412,412	392,364	20,048 Gain
News	184,114	233,716	49,602 Loss
Totals	6,920,147	6,605,677	314,470 Gain

WASHINGTON

	1926	1925
Star	2,406,947	2,084,719	322,228 Gain
Post	892,366	789,503	102,863 Gain
*Evening Times	645,711	651,694	5,983 Loss
Herald	546,417	397,370	149,047 Gain
*Evening News	212,957	129,184	83,773 Gain
Totals	4,704,398	4,052,470	651,928 Gain

CINCINNATI

	1926	1925
*Post	824,700	683,400	141,300 Gain
*Times-Star	1,204,500	1,109,100	95,400 Gain
Enquirer	1,076,700	995,100	81,600 Gain
Tribune	274,500	278,400	3,900 Loss
Totals	3,380,400	3,066,000	314,400 Gain

NEW ORLEANS

	1926	1925
Times-Picayune	1,655,573	1,406,370	249,203 Gain
Item	874,373	730,622	143,751 Gain
States	804,944	650,918	154,026 Gain
*Tribune	637,958	526,131	111,827 Gain
Totals	3,972,848	3,314,041	658,807 Gain

MINNEAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,313,943	1,194,123	119,820 Gain
Journal	1,326,366	1,168,441	157,925 Gain
*Star	499,594	443,266	56,328 Gain
Totals	3,139,903	2,805,830	334,073 Gain

MILWAUKEE

	1926	1925
Journal	1,662,050	1,417,077	244,973 Gain
S. T. & A. M. Sentinel	513,574	571,572	57,998 Loss
*Leader	242,677	206,189	36,488 Gain
*Wisconsin News	628,952	537,716	91,236 Gain
Totals	3,047,253	2,732,554	314,699 Gain

ST. LOUIS

	1926	1925
Post-Dispatch	2,021,320	1,760,360	260,960 Gain
Globe-Democrat	1,184,700	1,106,100	78,600 Gain
*Star	575,700	610,200	34,500 Loss
Times	339,900	300,300	39,600 Gain
Totals	4,121,620	3,776,960	344,660 Gain

CLEVELAND

	1926	1925
Plain Dealer	1,551,450	1,526,700	24,750 Gain
News Leader	1,024,725	1,033,200	8,475 Loss
*Press	1,309,950	1,176,825	133,125 Gain
Totals	3,886,125	3,736,725	149,400 Gain

DENVER

	1926	1925
News	617,736	582,120	35,616 Gain
Post	1,285,032	1,100,288	184,744 Gain
*Times	485,576	430,444	55,132 Gain
Totals	2,388,344	2,112,852	275,492 Gain

SEATTLE

	1926	1925
Times	1,376,116	1,245,566	130,550 Gai
Post-Intelligencer	851,242	688,926	162,316 Gai
*Star	573,944	570,808	3,136 Gai
*Union-Record	96,824	108,626	11,802 Los
Totals	2,898,126	2,613,926	284,200 Gai

INDIANAPOLIS

	1926	1925
*News	1,584,786	1,497,360	87,426 Gai
Star	1,092,351	1,091,844	507 Gai
*Times	465,600	509,004	43,404 Los
Totals	3,142,737	3,098,208	44,529 Gai

PROVIDENCE

	1926	1925
Journal	903,291	799,483	103,808 Gai
*Bulletin	1,286,074	1,153,928	132,146 Gai
Tribune	389,411	360,418	28,993 Gai
*News	414,497	406,955	7,542 Gai
Totals	2,993,273	2,720,784	272,489 Gai

COLUMBUS

	1926	1925
Dispatch	1,931,146	1,715,919	215,227 Gai
Journal	658,873	588,200	70,673 Gai
*Citizen	984,471	787,288	197,183 Gai
Totals	3,574,490	3,091,407	483,083 Gai

LOUISVILLE

	1926	1925
Courier Journal	1,250,194	1,069,293	180,901 Gai
Herald Post	508,205	576,206	68,001 Los
*Times	1,158,771	936,689	222,082 Gai
*Post	524,065	400,646	123,419 Gai
Totals	3,441,235	2,982,834	458,401 Gai

ST. PAUL

	1926	1925
*Dispatch	898,492	783,748	114,744 Gai
Pioneer Press	885,094	784,042	101,052 Gai
News	748,986	665,168	83,818 Gai
Totals	2,532,572	2,232,958	299,614 Gai

OAKLAND

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,531,894	1,586,046	54,152 Los
*Post-Inquirer	1,044,834	708,456	336,378 Gai
*Record	.....	81,858	.....
Totals	2,576,728	2,376,360	200,368 Gai

Record discontinued October 24, 1925.

OMAHA

	1926	1925
World-Herald	1,022,770	872,851	149,919 Gai
Bee	471,954	425,341	46,613 Gai
News	395,850	392,161	3,689 Gai
Totals	1,890,574	1,690,353	200,221 Gai

BIRMINGHAM

	1926	1925
Age-Herald	637,546	637,392	154 Gain
News	1,531,040	1,335,320	195,720 Gain
*Post	491,596	373,310	118,286 Gain
Totals	2,660,182	2,346,022	314,160 Gain

RICHMOND

	1926	1925
News-Leader	1,143,464	1,056,552	86,912 Gain
Times-Dispatch	940,422	913,752	26,670 Gain
Totals	2,083,886	1,970,304	113,582 Gain

DAYTON

	1926	1925
News	1,449,938	1,317,022	132,916 Gain
*Herald	845,180	747,208	97,972 Gain
Journal	677,950	616,392	61,558 Gain
Totals	2,973,068	2,680,622	292,446 Gain

HOUSTON

	1926	1925
Chronicle	1,186,514	1,075,326	111,188 Gain
Post-Dispatch	929,880	749,616	180,264 Gain
*Press	515,004	477,582	37,422 Gain
Totals	2,631,398	2,302,524	328,874 Gain

BUFFALO

	1926	1925
Express	203,943	430,480	226,537 Loss
Courier	755,646	563,248	192,398 Gain
*Post	.....	124,507	.....
Times	1,179,193	1,019,571	159,622 Gain
*Star	132,258	123,261	8,997 Gain
News	1,399,338	1,215,339	183,999 Gain
Totals	3,670,378	3,476,406	193,972 Gain

Post discontinued February, 1926.
Express combined with Courier June 19, 1926.
Star combined with Courier June 19, 1926.

SIX MONTHS' LINAGE FOR 30 LARGE CITIES BROKE ALL RECORDS

MORE than three-quarters of a billion agate lines were published by 132 newspapers in 30 cities during the six months' ended June 30, 1926. The linage figure, 760,065,938 agate lines, exceeded the total for the same period last year by 51,592,893 lines, or about 7 percent, according to the New York Evening Post Statistical Department, Inc. This six-month figure has never been approached in the past. Comparative totals by cities follow:

Summary of Advertising by Cities

30 cities listed	28 show gain		2 show loss
132 papers listed	104 show gain		26 show loss
	2 no comparison
	1926	1925
New York	91,423,760	82,743,868	8,679,892 Gain
Chicago	47,528,787	43,222,128	4,306,659 Gain
Philadelphia	43,020,144	43,503,359	483,215 Loss
Detroit	33,069,316	30,783,676	2,285,640 Gain
Cleveland	23,550,825	22,736,100	814,725 Gain
St. Louis	25,770,780	24,326,560	1,444,220 Gain
Boston	39,596,962	35,229,191	4,367,771 Gain
Baltimore	27,412,567	25,066,988	2,345,579 Gain
Los Angeles	42,936,978	41,982,000	954,978 Gain
Buffalo	22,517,201	21,768,361	748,840 Gain
San Francisco	28,811,627	27,744,942	1,066,685 Gain
Milwaukee	18,038,506	17,119,634	918,872 Gain
Washington	28,742,239	25,176,900	3,565,339 Gain
Cincinnati	21,057,900	19,327,800	1,730,100 Gain
New Orleans	23,758,447	20,961,631	2,796,816 Gain
Minneapolis	18,657,343	16,907,900	1,749,443 Gain
Seattle	17,656,058	16,125,194	1,530,864 Gain
Indianapolis	18,912,753	18,607,317	305,436 Gain
Denver	13,387,696	13,431,292	43,596 Loss
Providence	17,241,582	16,346,667	894,915 Gain
Columbus	21,318,855	19,003,557	2,315,298 Gain
Louisville	19,947,077	18,477,306	1,469,771 Gain
St. Paul	14,769,818	13,559,952	1,209,866 Gain
Oakland	14,863,800	14,347,046	516,754 Gain
Omaha	11,938,206	11,126,360	811,846 Gain
Birmingham	16,330,874	14,720,874	1,610,000 Gain
Richmond	11,511,122	11,150,692	360,430 Gain
Dayton	17,717,518	17,039,134	678,384 Gain
Houston	16,690,080	14,509,790	2,180,290 Gain
Des Moines	11,887,117	11,426,826	460,291 Gain
Totals	760,065,938	708,473,045	51,592,893 Gain

†Note references under individual newspaper linage of these cities.

NEW YORK

	1926	1925
American	6,851,764	7,162,104	310,340 Loss
Herald Tribune	9,642,818	7,794,822	1,847,996 Gain
Times	15,251,876	13,587,396	1,664,480 Gain
World	9,173,772	8,355,936	817,836 Gain
Mirror (Tab.)	1,810,890	1,915,106	104,216 Loss
News (Tab.)	3,832,860	3,261,376	571,484 Gain
Evening Graphic	1,847,878	†942,732	905,146 Gain
Evening Journal	7,725,458	7,751,838	26,360 Loss
Evening Post	2,618,302	2,507,736	110,566 Gain
Evening World	5,165,330	4,357,518	807,812 Gain
Sun	8,402,130	7,012,532	1,389,598 Gain
Telegram	3,055,086	3,562,044	506,958 Loss
Brooklyn Eagle	9,359,124	8,577,076	782,048 Gain
Brooklyn Times	3,720,052	2,518,888	1,201,164 Gain
Standard Union	2,966,420	3,436,764	470,344 Loss
Totals	91,423,760	82,743,868	8,679,892 Gain

†Sunday Graphic inaugurated May 3, 1925; discontinued Sept. 1, 1925; 232,832 lines for 9 Sundays included.

CHICAGO

	1926	1925
Daily News	11,274,018	10,331,040	942,978 Gain
Tribune	16,829,661	15,248,574	1,581,087 Gain
Herald Examiner	6,616,146	5,966,181	649,965 Gain
Post	3,127,269	2,855,481	271,788 Gain
American	6,896,649	6,214,227	682,422 Gain
Journal	2,785,044	2,606,625	178,419 Gain
Totals	47,528,787	43,222,128	4,306,659 Gain

PHILADELPHIA

	1926	1925
Inquirer	11,193,300	10,426,500	766,800 Gain
Record	4,480,500	4,600,500	120,000 Loss
Ledger	8,327,918	7,281,217	1,046,701 Gain
Evening Ledger	8,046,226	7,621,042	425,184 Gain
North American	.....	3,428,100	..... Gain
Bulletin	10,972,200	10,146,000	826,200 Gain
Totals	43,020,144	43,503,359	483,215 Loss

North American combined with Ledger May 18, 1925.

DETROIT

	1926	1925
News	17,427,326	16,414,678	1,012,648 Gain
Times	6,589,450	6,132,476	456,974 Gain
Free Press	9,052,540	8,236,522	816,018 Gain
Totals	33,069,316	30,783,676	2,285,640 Gain

CLEVELAND

	1926	1925
Plain Dealer	9,444,525	9,295,875	148,650 Gain
News Leader	6,516,750	6,529,050	12,300 Loss
Press	7,589,550	6,911,175	678,375 Gain
Totals	23,550,825	22,736,100	814,725 Gain

ST. LOUIS

	1926	1925
Post Dispatch	12,689,880	11,556,160	1,133,720 Gain
Globe Democrat	7,445,700	7,107,900	337,800 Gain
Star	3,533,700	3,744,900	211,200 Loss
Times	2,101,500	1,917,600	183,900 Gain
Totals	25,770,780	24,326,560	1,444,220 Gain

*No Sunday edition.

BOSTON

	1926	1925
Herald	8,098,005	6,834,008	1,263,997 Gain
Globe	8,254,192	7,498,175	756,017 Gain
Post	6,420,728	6,025,095	395,633 Gain
Advertiser	2,702,839	2,324,216	378,623 Gain
*American	2,444,553	2,296,285	148,268 Gain
*Traveler	6,376,684	5,229,975	1,146,709 Gain
*Transcript	3,896,596	3,617,199	279,397 Gain
*Telegram	1,403,365	1,404,238	873 Loss
Totals	39,596,962	35,229,191	4,367,771 Gain

BALTIMORE

	1926	1925
Sun	9,089,197	8,700,558	388,639 Gain
*Evening Sun	9,133,210	8,353,819	779,391 Gain
American	3,126,264	2,770,022	356,242 Gain
*News	3,922,597	3,970,769	48,172 Loss
*Post	2,141,299	1,271,820	869,479 Gain
Totals	27,412,567	25,066,988	2,345,579 Gain

LOS ANGELES

	1926	1925
Times	13,608,084	13,156,654	451,430 Gain
Examiner	11,626,580	11,430,164	196,416 Gain
*Express	4,702,712	4,915,204	212,492 Loss
*Herald	8,838,466	8,175,804	662,662 Gain
*Record	2,581,194	2,514,400	66,794 Gain
News	1,679,942	1,789,774	209,832 Loss
Totals	42,936,978	41,982,000	954,978 Gain

News Sunday edition discontinued May 2, 1926.

BUFFALO

	1926	1925
Express	2,757,933	2,856,461	98,528 Loss
Courier	4,029,764	3,944,860	84,904 Gain
Post	81,447	584,161	502,714 Loss
Times	6,814,105	6,196,433	617,672 Gain
*Star	815,363	866,143	50,780 Loss
*News	8,018,589	7,320,303	698,286 Gain
Totals	22,517,201	21,768,361	748,840 Gain

Commercial—Name changed to Post February, 1925; discontinued February, 1926.
Enquirer—Name changed to Star February, 1925; combined with Courier June 19, 1926.
Express combined with Courier June 13, 1926.

SAN FRANCISCO

	1926	1925
Chronicle	5,858,104	5,554,164	303,940 Gain
Examiner	9,917,451	9,479,268	438,183 Gain
Bulletin	3,398,472	3,341,646	56,826 Gain
*Call	5,168,870	4,597,194	571,676 Gain
*News	3,893,134	3,744,888	148,246 Gain
*Herald	‡575,596	1,027,782	452,186 Loss
Totals	28,811,627	27,744,942	1,066,685 Gain

‡Herald discontinued May 5, 1926.

MILWAUKEE

	1926	1925
Journal	9,518,087	8,627,937	890,150 Gain
S. T. & A. M. Sentinel	3,445,120	3,612,043	166,923 Loss
*Leader	1,451,900	1,380,014	71,886 Gain
*Wisconsin News	3,623,399	3,499,640	123,759 Gain
Totals	18,038,506	17,119,634	918,872 Gain

WASHINGTON

	1926	1925
Star	14,381,594	12,671,279	1,710,315 Gain
Post	5,658,519	4,979,234	679,285 Gain
*Evening Times	4,077,020	4,092,119	15,099 Loss
Herald	3,332,384	2,621,246	711,138 Gain
*Evening News	1,292,722	813,022	479,700 Gain
Totals	28,742,239	25,176,900	3,565,339 Gain

CINCINNATI

	1926	1925
*Post	4,869,300	4,148,100	721,200 Gain
*Times Star	7,471,200	6,845,400	625,800 Gain
Enquirer	7,101,000	6,617,100	483,900 Gain
Tribune	1,616,400	1,717,200	100,800 Loss
Totals	21,057,900	19,327,800	1,730,100 Gain

NEW ORLEANS

	1926	1925
Times Picayune	9,733,431	8,497,025	1,236,408 Gain
Item	5,388,369	5,336,466	51,903 Gain
States	4,891,798	4,432,073	459,725 Gain
*Tribune	3,744,849	2,696,069	1,048,780 Gain
Totals	23,758,447	20,961,631	2,796,816 Gain

MINNEAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Tribune	7,794,197	7,302,582	491,615 Gain
Journal	7,984,525	6,989,196	995,329 Gain
*Star	2,878,621	2,616,122	262,499 Gain
Totals	18,657,343	16,907,900	1,749,443 Gain

SEATTLE

	1926	1925
Times	8,271,214	7,543,522	727,692 Gain
Post Intelligencer	5,252,702	4,326,252	926,450 Gain
*Star	3,390,300	3,555,692	165,312 Loss
*Union-Record	741,782	699,728	42,034 Gain
Totals	17,656,098	16,125,194	1,530,864 Gain

INDIANAPOLIS

	1926	1925
*News	9,131,913	8,936,175	195,738 Gain
Star	6,735,861	6,751,602	15,741 Loss
*Times	3,044,979	2,919,540	125,439 Gain
Totals	18,912,753	18,607,317	305,436 Gain

DENVER

	1926	1925
News	3,267,068	3,472,280	205,212 Loss
Post	7,554,148	7,211,932	342,216 Gain
*Times	2,566,480	2,747,080	180,600 Loss
Totals	13,387,696	13,431,292	43,596 Loss

PROVIDENCE

	1926	1925
Journal	5,275,453	4,967,162	308,291 Gain
*Bulletin	7,171,362	6,724,726	446,636 Gain
Tribune	2,347,630	2,243,567	104,063 Gain
*News	2,447,137	2,411,212	35,925 Gain
Totals	17,241,582	16,346,667	894,915 Gain

COLUMBUS

	1926	1925
Dispatch	11,492,383	10,478,036	1,014,347 Gain
Journal	3,981,959	3,659,826	322,133 Gain
*Citizen	5,844,513	4,865,695	978,818 Gain
Totals	21,318,855	19,003,557	2,315,298 Gain

LOUISVILLE

	1926	1925
Courier Journal	7,330,238	6,626,687	703,551 Gain
Herald Post	3,421,367	3,865,248	443,881 Loss
*Times	6,254,201	5,534,315	719,886 Gain
*Post	2,941,271	2,451,056	490,215 Gain
Totals	19,947,077	18,477,306	1,469,771 Gain

ST. PAUL

	1926	1925
*Dispatch	5,042,828	4,597,278	445,550 Gain
Pioneer Press	5,234,684	4,825,968	408,716 Gain
News	4,492,306	4,136,706	355,600 Gain
Totals	14,769,818	13,559,952	1,209,866 Gain

OAKLAND

	1926	1925
Tribune	9,729,412	9,543,310	186,102 Gain
*Post Inquirer	5,134,388	4,269,132	865,256 Gain
*Record	.....	534,604	..... Gain
Totals	14,863,800	14,347,046	516,754 Gain

Record discontinued October 24, 1925.

OMAHA

	1926	1925
World Herald	6,405,448	5,680,129	725,319 Gain
Bee	2,937,970	2,762,998	174,972 Gain
News	2,594,788	2,683,233	88,445 Loss
Totals	11,938,206	11,126,360	811,846 Gain

BIRMINGHAM

	1926	1925
Age Herald	4,232,074	4,224,304	7,770 Gain
News	9,227,540	8,297,660	929,880 Gain
*Post	2,871,260	2,198,910	672,350 Gain
Totals	16,330,874	14,720,874	1,610,000 Gain

RICHMOND

	1926	1925
*News Leader	6,220,284	6,082,118	138,166 Gain
Times-Dispatch	5,290,838	5,068,574	222,264 Gain
Totals	11,511,122	11,150,692	360,430 Gain

DAYTON

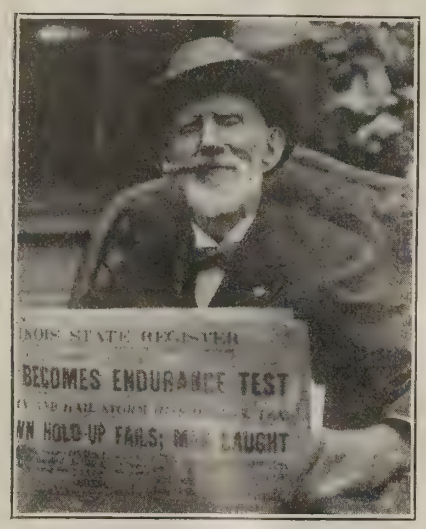
	1926	1925
News	8,460,172	8,292,858	167,314 Gain
*Herald	5,122,026	4,851,252	270,774 Gain
Journal	4,135,320	3,895,024	240,296 Gain
Totals	17,717,518	17,039,134	678,384 Gain

HOUSTON

	1926	1925
Chronicle	7,649,838	6,869,520	780,318 Gain
Post Dispatch	6,031,102	4,742,990	1,288,112 Gain
*Press	3,009,140	2,897,280	111,860 Gain
Totals	16,690,080	14,509,790	2,180,290 Gain

DES MOINES

	1926	1925
Register	4,082,052	3,566,495	515,557 Gain
*Tribune	4,850,088	4,176,743	673,345 Gain
Capital	2,954,977	‡3,683,588	728,611 Loss
Totals	11,887,117	11,426,826	460,291 Gain



‡Sunday Capital discontinued with issue of February 21, 1926.
*No Sunday edition.

H. W. CLENDENIN, NEARING 90, LOOKS BACK ON 74 YEARS IN JOURNALISM

Editor-in-Chief and Part Owner of Springfield Illinois State Register Still Active—Celebrates 90th Birthday Aug. 1 —Has Written Biography for His Friends

By V. Y. DALLMAN
Managing Editor, Springfield Illinois State Register

NINETY years old August first, Hon. Henry Wilson Clendenin, editor-in-chief of the Springfield Illinois State Register, is the oldest active editor in the state of Illinois and one of the oldest in continuous service in the United States, if not the world.

H. W. Clendenin

The fact that Mr. Clendenin not only is at his desk every day but that he has just completed an elaborately printed 400-page autobiography indicates that he retains much of his youthful "pep."

The philosophy of this interesting character is impressive. He attributes his longevity to hard work and devotion to the ideal of common honesty.

"Work," he says, "is essential to health and happiness." Of rigid rules of diet, he has none. Some years ago, for instance, before the State Register became an afternoon publication, Mr. Clendenin worked at his desk nearly every night until midnight, helping to issue the morning paper. Before retiring he would go to a restaurant, drink one, and sometimes two, big cups of coffee, and to guarantee sweet repose, top it off with an enormous cut of apple or raisin pie. When you see him today at 90 you find him a living refutation of the theories of those who would abolish either pastry or coffee. Mr. Clendenin has very generally abstained from alcoholics. Whether he uses tobacco or not is a question comprehensively answered by the accompanying photograph which shows him enjoying his cigar a la "Uncle Joe" Cannon.

Melville E. Stone, of the Associated Press, Adolph Ochs, of the New York Times, William Allen White, and others have written Mr. Clendenin complimenting him upon his autobiography which tells the story of a long and busy life. Some of the points covered are his birth, August 1, 1837 in Bedford County, Pennsylvania; his boyhood trip west; his first job as a boy printer on the Burlington Hawk-Eye 74 years ago; his experiences with the Peoria Transcript; his recollections of four wars—the Mexican, Civil, Spanish-American, and World wars; his enlistment in the 20th Pennsylvania infantry and service in the Civil War which entitles him to wear the little bronze button which he prizes so highly; thrilling experiences during the dramatic days of chaos before and after the war; his employment with the old Gazette-Argus of Burlington, Ia., his meeting, 63 years ago as an employee of the Keokuk Constitution, with Thomas Rees who is now his associate publisher of the Illinois State Register; his year of editorial direction of the Metamora (Ill.) Sentinel; his connection with the Keokuk (Ia.) Gate City and his purchase in 1876, together with Thomas Rees and George Smith, of the Keokuk Constitution. Five years later (1881) this firm came to Springfield and purchased the Illinois State Register. They plunged into Illinois politics developing close friendships with former Vice-President Adlai E. Stevenson, General John M. Palmer, former Governor John P. Altgeld, Hon. William M. Springer, William Jennings Bryan, General John A. Logan, Col. William R. Morrison, General John A. McClernand and scores of others who have gone to their reward. Among Mr. Clendenin's close personal friends today are former Governor Edward F. Dunne, former United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis, former Governor Frank O. Lowden and United States Senators William McKinley and Charles S. Deneen.

Beautiful is his impressive story of his 63 years of close friendship with Thomas Rees, publisher, author, traveler and former state senator. As he tells of it smiles spring from his heart. He says: "Friends for all these years and associates in business 50 years, five in Iowa and 45 in Illinois, we have never had an argument which could be considered serious or which disturbed the sweet serenity of our devotion one to the other."

With mind as clear as a bell he tells of conditions which prompted him to cast his first vote for Stephen A. Douglas for senator against Abraham Lincoln in 1858 and to cast his first presidential vote for Abraham Lincoln in 1860. In '64 he voted for General George B. McClellan, explaining that McClellan was his old commander during the war and, therefore, he could not vote against him. His introductory chapter of his autobiography entitled "The Magic Age" is a beautiful verbal panorama in which one sees the Indians near Burlington, the dim flicker of the tallow candle, the slow-moving ox-cart, the "prairie schooner," the flail and things primitive. Then he tells a graphic story of the marvels of modern invention.

"What wonders God and man have wrought during the span of my years!" exclaims this veteran editor in his resumé. "During my years," he continues, "telephone and telegraph wires have spread over the entire United States, connected through trans-oceanic cables with webs of wire which cover the entire world like a colossal net. From the first spark of electricity, I have watched the invention of the motor and dynamo. I have seen the incandescent light dim the tallow candle and oil lamp. I have observed the miracle of the airship, witnessed the wonder of the dirigible and the development of the heavier-than-air machine which soars into the clouds and flashes through the sky at a rate that staggers the human mind. I have witnessed the invention of the radio—that mystery of modern mysteries—which makes near neighbors of nations, defies space and time and carries the orchestral symphonies of great operas of New York, the songs of the tropics and the sermons and lectures of orators of the nation into the living rooms of the homes of Springfield or wherever man provides a receiving set and flings a delicate wire to the wind to catch the sound waves in the air."

Mr. Clendenin turns his face to the future and says: "My prayer is that God will bless mankind and convince a blessed people that to make a world permanently greater they must strive to make it permanently good."

That concluding sentence reflects the character of the man. He is honorable, honest, idealistic. Associated with hi for nearly 35 years, I have found h unswerving Christian character an i spiration and a benediction. He h breathed into his newspaper his hig idealism and built it with the aid Senator Rees as a lasting monument service for mankind.

N. Y. SIX-MONTH LINAGE TOPS 91,000,000

GAIN of 11 per cent in newspaper linage is noted during the first six months of the year by the New York daily newspapers listed by the New York Evening Post Statistical Department, Inc. The total linage for the 15 papers listed was 91,423,760 agate lines, a gain of 8,679,892 lines over the first six months of 1925. Five of the 15 papers listed showed slight losses during the period.

Comparative figures follow:

Pages 1926	Pages 1925		Percentage of Total Space	1926	1925	Gain	Loss
8,014	8,058	American	7.5	6,851,764	7,162,104	.....	310,340
9,478	7,820	Herald Tribune	10.5	9,642,818	7,794,822	1,847,996	.....
11,988	10,484	Times	16.7	15,251,876	13,587,396	1,664,480	.....
8,370	7,422	World	10.0	9,173,772	8,355,936	817,836	.....
5,216	4,776	*Mirror (Tab.)	2.0	1,810,890	1,915,106	.....	104,216
8,172	6,976	News (Tab.)	4.2	3,832,860	3,261,376	571,484	.....
6,784	5,734	*Evening Graphic	2.0	1,847,878	†942,732	905,146	.....
6,950	7,306	*Evening Journal	8.4	7,725,458	7,751,838	.....	26,360
4,708	4,908	*Evening Post	2.9	2,618,302	2,507,736	110,566	.....
5,056	4,340	*Evening World	5.6	5,165,330	4,357,518	807,812	.....
6,448	5,618	*Sun	9.2	8,402,130	7,012,532	1,389,598	.....
3,726	3,536	*Telegram	3.4	3,055,086	3,562,044	.....	506,958
7,534	7,076	Brooklyn Eagle	10.2	9,359,124	8,577,076	782,048	.....
4,380	3,528	Brooklyn Times	4.1	3,720,052	2,518,888	1,201,164	.....
3,194	3,626	Standard Union	3.3	2,966,420	3,436,764	.....	470,344
100,018	91,208	Totals		91,423,760	82,743,868	8,679,892 (Net Gain)	.....

*No Sunday edition.
†Sunday Graphic inaugurated May 3, 1925, discontinued September 1, 1925; 232,832 lines for 9 Sundays included.

	1926	1925	1924	1923	1922	1921	1920
American	6,851,764	7,162,104	7,808,098	6,153,872	5,668,330	5,236,928	5,890,442
Herald	.....	.....	2,355,910	5,927,014	5,982,182	6,287,834	6,055,516
Herald Tribune	9,642,818	7,794,822	6,206,288	4,996,138	4,737,786	4,841,259	5,248,730
Times	15,251,876	13,587,396	13,293,132	12,582,026	12,079,894	10,930,804	12,371,879
World	9,173,772	8,355,936	8,600,114	9,255,570	8,243,470	7,345,998	9,825,603
Mirror (Tab.)	1,810,890	1,915,106	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
News (Tab.)	3,832,860	3,261,376	2,884,664	2,123,898	1,643,000	1,126,112	†.....
Eve. Graphic	1,847,878	942,732	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
Eve. Journal	7,725,468	7,751,838	7,475,876	6,794,786	5,970,288	5,383,034	4,961,082
Eve. Mail	.....	.....	††612,782	3,214,534	3,055,906	3,223,622	3,350,648
Eve. Post	2,618,302	2,507,736	2,209,886	2,077,672	2,047,812	3,142,521	2,765,030
Eve. World	5,165,330	4,357,518	3,951,176	4,511,140	4,597,850	4,650,308	4,998,336
Globe	.....	.....	.....	‡3,825,302	3,693,968	3,555,150	4,352,493
Sun	8,402,130	7,012,532	6,815,856	5,290,192	4,901,150	4,221,880	4,594,728
Telegram	3,055,086	3,562,044	4,824,988	3,438,312	3,516,492	3,430,878	4,237,372
B'klyn Eagle	9,359,124	8,577,076	8,804,036	8,289,030	7,789,578	6,829,310	6,998,010
B'klyn Times	3,720,052	2,518,888	2,389,888	1,934,896	1,762,750	1,621,564	.....
Stand. Union	2,966,420	3,436,764	3,811,696	3,944,698	3,873,502	3,447,546	4,417,654
Totals	91,423,770	82,743,868	82,044,390	84,359,080	79,563,958	75,274,748	80,067,523

†Figures not recorded.
‡Sun and Globe combined June 4, 1923; name changed to Sun, March 10, 1924.
††Telegram and Mail combined January 18, 1924; name changed to Telegram May 18, 1925.

A CHURCH PAGE THA ISN'T "PREACHY"

Reading (Pa.) Eagle's Vivid Week Appeal Asking Non-Church Goers to Attend Services Has Re-awakened Local Interest

Can the church page of a daily pap be made interesting to the average read who is not a church member? T Reading (Pa.) Daily Eagle answers the affirmative—from experience. T page has become a feature of the Satu day issue.

Reading is a city of 100 churches. F nearly 60 years the Eagle has publish their announcements every Saturday a the collection did not present an interes ing appearance. A religious article, i sued by a syndicate, was added to tone the page. But it did not appear to ha any pull. Then Benjamin A. Fryer, c editor, who is not what you might c an active church man, wrote a week appeal asking the non-church goers attend services on Sunday.

The page never uses the word religio is the opposite of "preachy," is written the language of the people it appeals and stresses the Golden Rule.

The appeal is set in reading matt type, two columns wide, with a headi that attracts attention. It was somethi entirely new in that line and within tw months was given national publicity the Literary Digest. Letters have co to the Eagle from as far as Texas. Th local ministerial associations took up t matter endorsing the appeals. Chur papers gave editorial comment. T weekly bulletins published by many pa ishes made references to the forceful a peals, minsters read them from their pu pits, they were quoted in Sunday school pasted on church bulletin boards, sever clergymen started scrap books, keepi the notices for future reference in a dresses and sermons. Each appe closed with the words "Thank You."

Ministers are now adding those wor to the notices they send to the Eagle.

Here are a few of the striking hea ings to the "go to church" appeals:

"Did You Ever Measure Yourself wit the Golden Rule?"

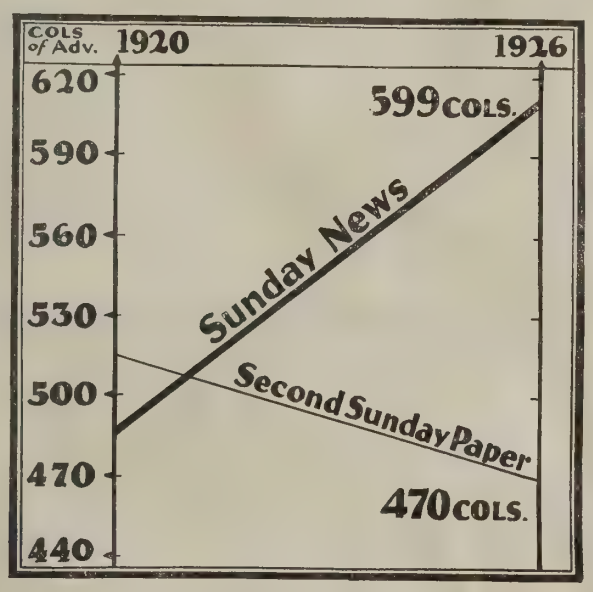
"Church Pew is Good Operating Tabl for the Spiritually Ill."

"All Dressed Up and a Good Place t Go."

"Does Your Conscience Let Yo Skid?"

"35,000 Reading People Have Spiritua Rheumatism."

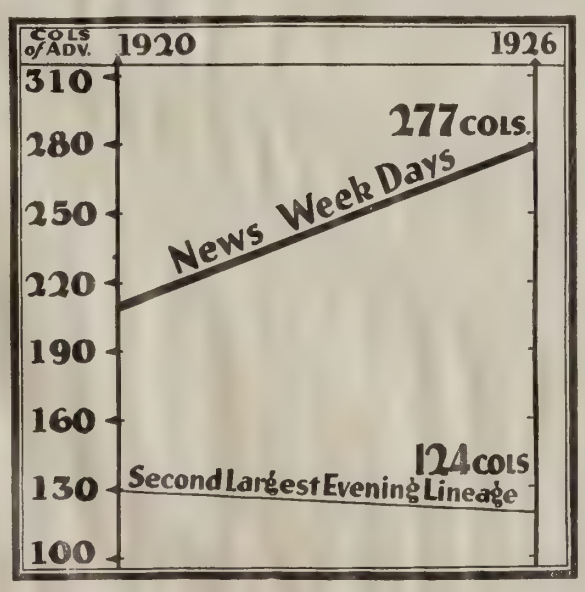
The Eagle declines to commercialize it church page. Its advertising solicitor are told not to ask for paid advertise ments of churches. If they want to com in voluntarily, display ads are accepted



It has been figured out that the churc page with its announcements for eac parish, classified by denominations, an programs furnished by the organists, th "boxes" referred to and other church news costs $100 per issue. On Monday at least two pages are devoted to news from every congregation, making three pages per week costing the paper $300 or $15,600 per annum to give the news of the Reading churches. Does all this pay in dollars and cents? The Eagle thinks it does.

Frank D. Thomason Dies

Frank D. Thomason, pioneer in the practice of patent law in Chicago and father of S. E. Thomason, general manager of the Chicago Tribune, died July 14, at his home in Beverley Hills. He was senior member of the law firm of Thomason & Lundy. He became ill last fall and spent the winter in California in search of health, returning to his home in May.



The Advertising Trend in Detroit

A Comparison Both Weekdays and Sundays Between May 1926, and May 1920, Reveals Increasing Leadership of The Detroit News

Temporary fluctuations in advertising and short term comparisons offer little guide to the space buyer, but a record of accomplishment covering six years will give any user of advertising food for reflection. The chart opposite shows how The Detroit Sunday News by May, 1926, had increased its average 108 columns as compared with May, 1920, while the second Sunday medium during the same period decreased 55 columns. The significance of the relative rise and decline of the two newspapers should not be overlooked by those advertisers who are now planning their fall campaigns. The Sunday News has the greatest circulation in Michigan and is constantly offering advertisers a better "buy" through increasing circulation.

The weekday issues of The Detroit News likewise show a marked increase of 75 columns average advertising per issue between May, 1920, and May, 1926, the present second evening paper carrying less space in May, 1926, than Detroit's second paper carried in 1920. And it must be remembered that The Detroit News has consistently published more advertising than both other Detroit papers combined for years.

The Detroit News

Detroit's HOME Newspaper

335,000 Sunday, 320,000 Weekday Circulation

INJUNCTION HALTS OPERATION OF LAW BARRING RACING NEWS IN CLEVELAND

City Ordinance Affecting Newspapers and Racing Sheets Effective One Day—News Dealer Claims Free Press Principle Attacked

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

CLEVELAND, O., July 14.—For one day this week, between injunctions, Cleveland's ordinance forbidding the publication, sale or distribution of horse racing form sheets or odds was enforced.

Monday, July 12, after the Court of Appeals had upheld the right of the city to pass such an ordinance under home rule provisions, Safety Director Edwin D. Barry announced it was in force. He had notified 150 newspapers the previous week.

Three arrests of news dealers were made, each for selling racing form magazines. The Buffalo Courier and Express wrote Barry it was stopping circulation of its paper to Cleveland.

The Supreme Court on July 13 granted a temporary injunction to the Solomon News Company of Cleveland, restraining the city from enforcing an ordinance prohibiting sale of newspapers containing betting odds and best selections.

The injunction was allowed against prohibiting sale of newspapers of general circulation, but refused as to purely racing forms, etc. It will stand until the case is disposed of on its merits by the court early next fall.

The temporary restraining order was allowed upon the filing of an appeal by Henry Solomon, doing business as the Solomon News Company, from the decision of the Court of Appeals upholding validity of the ordinance. The suit was against the City of Cleveland, Safety Director Edward Barry and Police Chief Jacob Graul to prevent enforcement of the ordinance. Solomon contends the ordinance is unconstitutional.

The passage of the ordinance, by a 14 to 9 vote of the city council, was the result of a crusade against constant racing here during the spring, summer and fall. Merchants claimed business was damaged, and City Manager William R. Hopkins invited Erie C. Hopwood, editor of the Plain Dealer and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; Earle Martin, former editor of the Press, now editor of the Times; Dan R. Hanna, president of the News, and Samuel Scovill, publisher of the Times, to discuss the situation.

At this meeting, in mid-winter, the four editors agreed to cease publication of racing odds. This did not involve elimination of results of races, but only of the money paid by winners through bookmakers or pari-mutuels and the odds, advance tips, and such other information as pertained to gambling.

Shortly afterward, Hopkins and Barry asked the city council to pass an ordinance prohibiting publication of this information. They told the council the measure was designed to protect the Cleveland newspapers from unfair competition from out of town newspapers and magazines which still published tips and odds.

Opposition developed in the council, but the measure received one more vote than it needed.

The Times asked passage of the ordinance repeatedly in editorials. The Press also editorially approved it. The Plain Dealer and News made no comment.

Shortly afterward, the Solomon News Company of Cleveland brought suit to restrain enforcement. Its attorneys contended the city was violating rights of freedom of the press. Common pleas and appellate judges held that the city, if it saw fit, had the right to regulate information which might be subversive to public morals, and could make it illegal under its home rule powers. The news company then appealed. The Appellate Court was divided, two to one.

The ordinance bars furnishing of information on racing tips and odds in any form, except by word of mouth. It is illegal to print, publish, circulate, distribute, sell or give away paper with this upon it. It is aimed primarily at the magazines and booklets. A fine of $25 to $300 is provided.

However, in news reports of the Kentucky and British Derbies, the papers ran the amounts of money the races won, and told in modified form some of the money won by bettors.

TYPOGRAPHICAL WAGES CONTINUE TO RISE

Many Contracts with Publishers Run for More Than One Year, with Several Progressive Increases

Recent wage scales resulting from conciliation or arbitration proceedings between typographical unions and newspaper publishers or employing printers are announced in the July Typographical Journal as follows:

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Book and Job—Handmen, day $45.32, night $48.84; machine operators, day $47.52, night $51.92; forty-four hours. Increase—$2.20.

COALGATE, OKLA.—Newspaper and Job—Journeymen, $30; forty-four hours. The contract is effective for two years, from June 8, 1926, to June 8, 1928. Increase—$2.50.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Job—Journeymen, day $38, night $42; forty-four hours. The contracts cover a period of one year, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1927. Increase—$2.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $51, night $54; forty-five hours. The contract covers a period of one year, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1927. Increase—$3.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $45, night $48; forty-eight hours. The contract covers a period of three years, from May 1, 1926, to April 30, 1929. Increase—$1.

ESCANABA, MICH.—Job—Journeymen, day $30, night $32; forty-four hours. The contract covers a period of one year, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1927. Increase—day 70 cents, night 76 cents.

MERIDIAN, MISS.—Newspaper—Journeymen $39.10, to June 1, 1927, then $41.40; forty-six hours. The contract covers a period of three years, from June 1, 1926, to June 1, 1929. Increase—$1.10; June 1, 1927, $2.30 additional.

EUREKA, CAL.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $45, night $48; forty-eight hours. Job—Day $42, night $45; forty-four hours. The contract covers a period of two years, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1928. Increase—Newspaper $3, job $5.04.

KLAMATH FALLS, ORE.—Newspaper and job—Journeymen, day $45, night $48. Newspaper, forty-five hours; job, forty-four hours. The contract covers a period of one year, from June 1, 1926, to June 1, 1927. Increase—Newspaper $3, hours reduced from forty-eight to forty-five; job $3.

LAFAYETTE, IND.—Job—Journeymen, day $37.40, night $38.50, to May 17, 1927, then day $38.50, night $39.60, to May 17, 1928, then day $39.60, night $41.80; forty-four hours. The contracts cover a period of three years, from May 17, 1926, to May 17, 1929. Increase—Day $1.40, night 50 cents; May 17, 1927, $1.10 additional; May 17, 1928, day $1.10, night $2.20 additional.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $52, night $55, to April 1, 1927, then day $53.50, night $56.50, to April 1, 1928, then day $55, night $58; day, forty-seven hours, night forty-five hours. (Thirteen weeks prior to Labor Day work-week forty-five hours for day work.) The contract covers a period of two years and eleven months, from May 1, 1926, to April 1, 1929. Increase—$4, April 1, 1927, and April 1, 1928, $1.50 additional.

CHICAGO, ILL. (Hebrew No. 903).—Newspaper—Journeymen $72.42, to October 14, 1926, then $74.06 to October 14, 1927, then $75.70 to October 14, 1928, then $77.36 to October 14, 1929, then $79. Day, thirty-six hours; night, twenty-seven hours. The contract covers a period of five years, from October 15, 1925, to October 14, 1930. Increase—$7.42, October 14, 1926; October 14, 1927, $1.64 additional; October 14, 1928, $1.66 additional; October 14, 1929, $1.64 additional.

FINDLAY, OHIO.—Newspaper—Journeymen, Day $38.50, night $41.50, to March 1, 1927, then day $40, night $43; forty-eight hours. Job—$33.88 to March 1, 1927, then $35.20; forty-four hours. The contracts cover a period from May 1, 1926, to February 28, 1929. Increase—Newspaper $1.50, March 1, 1927, $1.50 additional. Job $1.32, March 1, 1927, $1.32 additional.

TIFFIN, OHIO.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $38, night $40; forty-eight hours. Job—Handmen, day $30, night $32; operators, day $38, night $40; forty-four hours. The contracts cover a period of three years, from February 1, 1926, to February 1, 1929. Increase—Newspaper, handmen $8, operators $5; job, handmen $2.50, operators, day $10.50, night $10.

PALESTINE, TEXAS. — Newspaper — Handmen $36.25, operators $43.68; forty-eight hours. Job—Handmen $36.25, operators $40.04; forty-four hours. The contracts cover a period of one year, from June 1, 1926, to June 1, 1927. Increase—Newspaper, handmen $1.25, operato $8.68; job, handmen $1.25, operators $5.(

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Newspaper-Journeymen, day $49, night $52, to Fe ruary 1, 1927, then day $50, night $5. forty-eight hours. The contract cove a period of two years, from February 1926, to February 1, 1928. Increase $1; February 1, 1927, $1 additional.

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO. — Newspaper-Journeymen, day $45, night $48, to Mar 5, 1926, then day $46, night $49; fort eight hours. The contract covers a peri of two years, from March 5, 1926, March 5, 1928. Increase—$2; March 1926, $1 additional.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Newspaper-Journeymen, day $54, night $60, fort two hours. The award of the local arb tration board is effective one year fro November 11, 1925, to November 1 1926. Increase—Day $7.80, night $9.60.

BATAVIA, N. Y.—Job—Journeymen, da $36, night $38; forty-four hours. Th contracts cover a period of one year ar eight months, from May 1, 1926, to Ja uary 1, 1928. Increase—Handmen, $ operators $3.

DULUTH, MINN.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $43.50, night $46.50; forty four hours. The contracts cover a peri of six months, from May 28, 1926, November 28, 1926. Increase—$1.50.

SALEM, OHIO.—Newspaper—Journeymen $35; forty-eight hours. Job—$32.5 forty-four hours. The contracts cover period from June 1, 1926, to September 1929. Increase—$5.

SHELBYVILLE, IND.—Job—Journeyme day $27.50 night $30.50; forty-four hour The contracts cover a period from Ju 1, 1926, to January 1, 1928. Increase $3.50.

Jacksonville Bridge Hangs Up New Record

Traffic and revenue reach the highest figures since the opening of the St. Johns River span . . . 631,558 persons crossed the bridge in one month . . . Convincing proof that Florida traffic has not retarded. The steadily increasing figures each month substantiate that Jacksonville enterprises are substantial and profitable.

And the Florida Times-Union continues to hold the lead with the largest circulation of any Florida publication.

The Florida Times-Union
JACKSONVILLE
DAILY 53,000 SUNDAY 70,000

Liberal on every economic question, fearlessly independent on every political issue, tolerant in the broadest sense of the word on every social problem, Scripps-Howard newspapers have created a new journalism more truly American than anything that has preceded it.

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

NEW HAMPSHIRE HOST TO EDITORS

116 Men and Women Representing Newspapers and Associations in 44 States Spending Week on Tour

A party of 116 men and women, representing newspapers and newspaper associations from 44 states, left Boston Monday morning, July 12, for a week's tour of New Hampshire, the guests of that state.

The editors are being shown the industries and resources of New Hampshire as part of a general campaign to boost the state.

The bodies co-operating as hosts are the State of New Hampshire, the New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce, the New Hampshire Hotelmen's Association, the Boston and Maine Railroad, the Mount Washington Railroad, and numerous boards of trade, clubs and individuals. Arrangements for the trip are being looked after by the New Hampshire Board of Publicity.

Following breakfast at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, the visitors were welcomed by Maj. Charles T. Harding, Boston street commissioner, in behalf of Mayor Malcolm Nichols of Boston, and State Senator Charles P. Howard, speaking for the Commonwealth.

Before leaving Boston each member of the party was presented a badge, a copy of itinerary, other descriptive pamphlets and a leather souvenir notebook, the latter from the Mergenthaler Linotype Company.

In charge of the party were Arthur B. Rotch, of Milford, N. H., secretary of the New Hampshire Publishers' Association; H. Stewart Bosson, of Meredith, N. H., New Hampshire Board of Publicity; Arthur S. Morris, of Littleton, N. H., vice-president of the New Hampshire Publishers' Association, and N. P. M. Jacobs, of Portsmouth, N. H., president of the New Hampshire Hotel Association.

On the trip overnight stops were made at Lake Spofford, Bethlehem, Bretton Woods, Plymouth, Manchester and Portsmouth.

The editors were told they assumed no obligation whatever in coming to New Hampshire as guests of the state.

"We think New Hampshire is both beautiful and interesting. We want you to see it, to meet our people; and we want to know you and call you friends. All we ask of you is that you give us your best co-operation in getting so large a party started promptly on schedule each day and keeping it right on time," the New Hampshire Board of Publicity said in a statement.

Following is a list of those making the tour:

Crosby Allen, Oregon, Cal., California Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Allen, Miss Barbara Allen, president Massachusetts Press Association.
L. A. Andrepont, Opelousa, La., president Louisiana Press Association.
J. W. Atkins, Gastonia, N. C., president North Carolina Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. H. U. Bailey, Princeton, Ill., chairman executive committee of National Editorial Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Baldridge, Bloomfield, Ia., Iowa Press Association.
Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Ball, Columbia, S. C., South Carolina Press Association.
Granville Barrere, Hillsboro, O., president Ohio Press Association.
Malcolm Bayley, Louisville, Ky., editor Courier-Citizen.
Arnold Belcher, Boston, Pathe News photographer.
Dr. Berry, Boston Globe.
Mr. and Mrs. H. Stewart Bosson, Meredith, N. H., New Hampshire board of publicity.
Major and Mrs. Lew B. Brown, St. Petersburg, Fla., president Florida Daily Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown, Friend, Neb., president Nebraska Press Association.
Ernest Camp, Monroe, Ga., president Georgia Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Campbell, Wakefield, Mass., Massachusetts Press Association.
George Carter, Manchester, secretary, New Hampshire Manufacturers' Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mitchell Chapple, New York, National Magazine.
Miss Beatrice Cobb, Mrs. Cobb, Morganton, N. C., secretary North Carolina Press Association.

Editors and their wives touring New Hampshire as guests of that State stopped to frolic at Nashua, N. H. They are shown "sending messages home" by toy balloons furnished by their hosts.

Elmer E. Conrath, Cuba, N. Y., president New York Press Association.
Col. and Mrs. W. S. Copeland, Newport News, Va., president Virginia Press Association.
Arthur Craig, Greeley, Col., president Colorado Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Cummings, Peterboro, N. H., president New Hampshire Publishers Association.
Arthur DeMoulpied, Manchester Unicn.
Edward J. Dunn, Boston Post.
Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Eastwood, LeSueur, Minn., president Minnesota Press Association.
Liston P. Evans, Dover-Foxcroft, Me., president Maine Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Freeman, Canaan, Conn., Connecticut Western News Syndicate.
Joseph W. Gannon, New York, New Hampshire Publicity Counsel.
Col. and Mrs. Charles D. Haines, Altamonte Springs, Fla., Founders International Press Foundation.
Harold P. Hale, Elko, Nev., president Nevada Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. George Harman, Valley Falls, Kan., president Kansas Press Asscciation.
Mr. and Mrs. Clio Harper, Little Rock, Ark., Secretary Arkansas Press Association.
J. Ben Hart, Manchester, Secretary New Hampshire Hotelmen's Association.
Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hersam, New Canaan, Conn., president Connecticut Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Will R. Holmes, Brigham, Utah, president Utah Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Hal E. Hoss, Oregon City, Ore., secretary Oregon Press Association.
Forrest P. Hull, Boston Transcript.
Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hunt, Newport, Vt., president Vermont Press Association.
Rae Hunt, Concord, N. H.
N. P. M. Jacobs, Portsmouth, president New Hampshire Hotelmen's Association.
Luther B. Johnson, Randolph, Vt., Vermont Press Association.
T. Frank Joyce, Boston, vice-president, Boston & Maine Railroad.
Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Oddy, Woonsocket, S. D., president South Dakota Press Association.
Schuyler L. Marshall, St. Johns, Mich., president Michigan Press Association.
A. W. McCallum, Buhl, Idaho, president Idaho Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCullouch, Anderscn, Ind., president Indiana Democratic Editorial Association.
J. Frank McDermond, Attica, Ind., president Indiana Republican Editorial Association.
J. C. McLendon, Luverne, Ala., president Alabama Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Ridgely P. Melvin, Annapolis, Md., president Maryland Press Association.
Arthur S. Morris, Littleton, N. H., vice-president New Hampshire Publishers Association.
James T. Murray, New Bedford, Mass., New England Daily Newspaper Publishers Association.
Mr. and Mrs. William J. Pape, Waterbury, Conn., president New England Daily Publishers Association.
E. W. Porter, Concord, secretary, New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce.
R. H. Pritchard, Weston, W. Va., president West Virginia Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Purcell, Hampton, Ia., president Iowa Press Association.
George M. Putnam, Concord, president New Hampshire Farm Bureau.
Mr. and Mrs. Clayton T. Rand, Miss Rand, Gulfport, Miss., president Mississippi Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Robertson, Washington, N. J., president New Jersey Press Association.
C. W. Rcoks, Humboldt, Tenn., president West Tennessee Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Rotch, Milford, N. H., secretary New Hampshire Publishers Association.
Hon. Eaton D. Sargent, Nashua, N. H., mayor of Nashua.
Roy L. Sawin, Warren, R. I., president Rhode Island Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Small, Kankakee, Ill., Inland Daily Press Association.
W. A. Smith, San Saba, Tex., president Texas Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith, Waukegan, Ill., president Illinois Press Association.
John Stewart, Washington, Penn., president Pennsylvania Press Association.
Arthur W. Stubbs, Boston.
Col. Theodore Townsend, Milford, Del., president Delaware Press Association.
Donald D. Tuttle, Concord, secretary, New Hampshire Publicity Bureau.
Sen. Theodore Wanerus, Gillett, Wyo., president Wyoming Press Association.
Bill Wheeler, Brocklyn Eagle.
E. E. Whiting, Boston Herald.
Cecil Williams, Somerset, Ky., president Kentucky Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Hiram L. Williamson, Misse Lorna and Virginia Williamson, Springfield Ill., secretary Illinois Press Association.
Hon. and Mrs. John G. Winant, Concord N. H., Governor of New Hampshire.
Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Winter, Warrenton Mo., president Missouri Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Woare, Chester, Mont. president Montana Press Association.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Wolf, Newport, Wash. president Washington Editorial Association.
Hon. George A. Wood, Portsmouth, N. H. president New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce.
Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Wright, Woodworth N. D., president North Dakota Press Association.
Edward K. Woodworth, Concord, president New Hampshire Bankers Association.

South America Using Old Papers

Central American countries are proving to be an excellent market for discarded United States newspapers, according to the Department of Commerce. About 1,000 tons of old newspapers are shipped to those countries annually. Last year these shipments were valued at $795,000. Small stores in the importing countries use the paper for wrapping bundles. Panama is the largest Central American customer for old newspapers. It imports about $200,000 worth each year.

247,116

was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

June, 1926

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of June, 1926, was 192,051.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

The INDIANAPOLIS NEWS

One copy circulated daily for each 4.3 persons in Indianapolis is coverage. More than that it is proof of an editorial merit that gives an advertiser's message much the character of a spoken recommendation from a friend. Upon these two the advertising dominance of The News is founded. Results!

Dan A. Carroll, 110 E. 42nd, NEW YORK
J. E. Lutz, Tower Bldg., CHICAGO

Frank T. Carroll, Advertising Director

Keep in Touch With the Changing Pittsburgh Situation—Use Current Reports Only!

FIRST In Automotive Advertising

For the Six Months Ending June 30, 1926, the Pittsburgh Gazette Times

(MORNING AND SUNDAY)

PITTSBURGH CHRONICLE TELEGRAPH

(EVENING EXCEPT SUNDAY)

Combination Lead All Other Pittsburgh Newspapers

¶ Showing individual automotive display lineage gains exceeding the combined gains of all other Pittsburgh newspapers, the Sunday Gazette Times and Evening Chronicle Telegraph carried more display automotive advertising during the first six months of 1926 than any other Pittsburgh Sunday and Evening newspaper.

¶ The Sunday and Morning Gazette Times carried more display automotive advertising during the first half of the year than any other Pittsburgh Sunday and Morning newspaper.

¶ The Evening Chronicle Telegraph, during the same period, carried more display automotive advertising than any other Pittsburgh evening newspaper.

¶ The Morning Gazette Times, during the six months, carried more display automotive advertising than any other Pittsburgh morning newspaper.

¶ Buy automotive space in Pittsburgh on the basis of current facts!

Sunday Gazette Times and Evening Chronicle Telegraph Circulation

Over 270,000 Net

This circulation offers you, at one cost, thorough coverage of the Pittsburgh territory among those who have the purchasing power to buy motor vehicles and their equipment.

Foreign Representatives
E. M. BURKE, Inc.,
Chicago New York
R. J. BIDWELL CO., San Francisco

F. E. GRUNAGLE,
Advertising Manager
Automotive Department

Old Reports Won't Do. :: Get Up-to-Date Data On the Pittsburgh Situation!

TRADE COMMISSION SPLIT ON HOLDING PUBLISHERS FOR FAKE ADS

Legal Department Considers Test Case Against Two Magazines Cited by Humphrey—Personnel Changes in Board May Kill Proposal

By J. BART CAMPBELL
Washington Correspondent EDITOR & PUBLISHER

THE Federal Trade Commission divided this week on the proposal to hold equally responsible those who accept and those who place fraudulent or misleading advertising.

A canvass of the situation by EDITOR & PUBLISHER revealed a difference of opinion among the Commission members as to whether the proposal can be made really effective except in individual instances of flagrant abuse of advertising space.

Commissioner Vernon W. Van Fleet holds that the proposal cannot take the form of a general order banning the acceptance of "fake," "quack," or similarly objectionable advertising. His judgment is that the Commission possesses neither the authority or the machinery to conduct a wholesale campaign against "shady" publications which sell their columns to charlatans advertising bogus wares or schemes. A complaint may be issued against those accepting questionable advertising as well as against those placing it, in individual cases, but whether a "cease and desist" order would follow against both is a moot problem.

It is this problem with which the legal department of the Commission is now wrestling. At the request of Commissioner William E. Humphrey, the originator of the proposal, the Commission agreed recently to make a test case of two so-called "health magazines" which carried a familiar species of "quack" advertising. Mr. Humphrey informed the other members of the Commission that after an exhaustive review of the advertising columns of magazines of this type he thought the Commission should take immediate steps to protect the public from them. It was then he made his proposal that the Commission fix responsibility for "fake" advertising upon the newspaper or the magazine that accepts it as well as upon the advertiser.

The proposal was given serious consideration by most members of the Commission until it was examined in the light of the law. Whether Mr. Humphrey's proposal will survive some of the difficulties it encountered here is questionable. A survey of its legal aspects by the Commission's law department is yet to be completed. The Commission's chief counsel and his assistants are understood to have met obstacles which may even prevent a test case being made of the two magazines Mr. Humphrey cited to the Commission. Upon whether such a test case can be made Mr. Humphrey's proposal may rise or fall. In any event, it is unlikely that the Commission will arrive at an early decision or agreement.

At the outset, an investigation made by EDITOR & PUBLISHER indicated Mr. Humphrey's proposal might prove acceptable to the full Commission. But since the Commission's law department tackled the subject, and Mr. Humphrey's associates individually have given careful study to it, the prospect of the full Commission accepting the proposal now appears remote. Certainly there were no signs this week that rules based upon the proposal would soon be completed or promulgated, as seemed to be possible last week.

In the meanwhile Mr. Humphrey has gone West for a vacation until September. Mr. Van Fleet, having tendered his resignation, plans to step out about Aug. 1. Commissioner John F. Nugent, present chairman, has announced his intention of running for his old seat in the U. S. Senate, and has departed for Idaho to launch his campaign. He will quit the Commission if he wins the Democratic nomination for Senator. Commissioner Huston Thompson's term ends in September, and he will not seek reappointment.

Only Mr. Humphrey and Commissioner Charles W. Hunt would be left, provided Mr. Nugent realizes his Senatorial ambition, out of the five members of the Commission. It would therefore be up to President Coolidge to fill two, possibly three, vacancies on the Commission.

If a complaint is issued against one or the other of the magazines cited by Mr. Humphrey, secrecy, under the Commission's fixed rules, will probably cloak the proceedings until the respondent is provided with an opportunity to make answer, or appear for a hearing.

